yet no man gives it a thought.
- 9*† The country languishes in mourning,
Lebanon withers with shame;
Sharon is like the steppe, Bashan and Carmel are stripped bare.
- 10 Now will I rise up, says the LORD,
now will I be exalted, now be lifted up.
- 11 You conceive dry grass, bring forth stubble;
my spirit shall consume you like fire.
- 12* The peoples shall be as in a limekiln, like brushwood cut down for burning in the fire.
- 13 Hear, you who are far off, what I have done;
you who are near, acknowledge my might.
- 14* On Zion sinners are in dread, trembling grips the impious:

"Who of us can live with the consuming fire?
who of us can live with the everlasting flames?"

- 15* He who practices virtue and speaks honestly, who spurns what is gained by oppression,
Brushing his hands free of contact with a bribe, stopping his ears lest he hear of bloodshed, closing his eyes lest he look on evil—
- 16 He shall dwell on the heights, his stronghold shall be the rocky fastness,
his food and drink in steady supply.

Restoration of Zion

- 17† Your eyes will see a king in his splendor, they will look upon a vast land.
- 18 Your mind will dwell on the terror:
"Where is he who counted, where is he who weighed?
Where is he who counted the towers?"
- 19 To the people of alien tongue you will look no more,
the people of obscure speech, stammering in a language not understood.
- 20 Look to Zion, the city of our festivals;
let your eyes see Jerusalem as a quiet abode, a tent not to be struck, Whose pegs will never be pulled up,
nor any of its ropes severed.
- 22 Indeed the LORD will be there with us, majestic;
yes, the LORD our judge, the LORD our lawgiver, the LORD our king, he it is who will save us.
- 21† In a place of rivers and wide streams on which no boat is rowed,
where no majestic ship passes, 23 The rigging hangs slack;
it cannot hold the mast in place,
nor keep the sail spread out.

20: 30, 23.
33, 2: 25, 9.
4: 2 Chr 20, 25.
5: 1, 26.
6: Prv 9, 10.
8: Jgs 5, 6.

9: Na 1, 4.
12: 10, 17.
14: Na 1, 6.
15: Pss 15, 2-6; 24, 4f.

†
33, 7: Ariel . . . Shalem: Jerusalem; cf 29, 1; Gn 14, 18.
33, 9: Sharon: the fertile plain near the Mediterranean.
33, 17: King: the messianic king, or God; cf v 22.
33, 21, 23: Boat . . . majestic ship: of a foreign oppressor.

- Then the blind will divide great spoils and the lame will carry off the loot.
- 24 No one who dwells there will say, "I am sick";
the people who live there will be forgiven their guilt.
- 10 Night and day it shall not be quenched, its smoke shall rise forever.
From generation to generation she shall lie waste, never again shall anyone pass through her.

VI: THE LORD, ZION'S AVENGER

CHAPTER 34

Judgment upon Edom

- 1* Come near, O nations, and hear;
be attentive, O peoples!
Let the earth and what fills it listen,
the world and all it produces.
- 2 The LORD is angry with all the nations and is wrathful against all their host;
he has doomed them and given them over to slaughter.
- 3* Their slain shall be cast out, their corpses shall send up a stench;
The mountains shall run with their blood,
4* and all the hills shall rot;
The heavens shall be rolled up like a scroll,
and all their host shall wither away,
As the leaf wilts on the vine,
or as the fig withers on the tree.
- 5* When my sword has drunk its fill in the heavens, lo, it shall come down in judgment upon Edom, a people I have doomed.
- 6* The LORD has a sword filled with blood, greasy with fat,
With the blood of lambs and goats,
with the fat of rams' kidneys;
For the LORD has a sacrifice in Bozrah,
a great slaughter in the land of Edom.
- 7 Wild oxen shall be struck down with fatlings,
and bullocks with bulls;
Their land shall be soaked with blood,
and their earth greasy with fat.
- 8* For the LORD has a day of vengeance,
a year of requital by Zion's defender.
- 9 Edom's streams shall be changed into pitch and her earth into sulphur, and her land shall become burning pitch;
- 11* Her nobles shall be no more,
nor shall kings be proclaimed there;
all her princes are gone.
- 13* Her castles shall be overgrown with thorns,
her fortresses with thistles and briers.
She shall become an abode for jackals and a haunt for ostriches.
- 14† Wildcats shall meet with desert beasts, satyrs shall call to one another;
There shall the lilith repose,
and find for herself a place to rest.
- 15 There the hoot owl shall nest and lay eggs,
hatch them out and gather them in her shadow;
- There shall the kites assemble,
none shall be missing its mate.
- 16*† Look in the book of the LORD and read:
No one of these shall be lacking,
For the mouth of the LORD has ordered it,
and his spirit shall gather them there.
- 17 It is he who casts the lot for them, and with his hands he marks off their shares of her;
They shall possess her forever,
and dwell there from generation to generation.

34, 1: Dt 32, 1. 11: 14, 23; Zep 2.
3: Ez 32, 4, 6. 14.
4: 13, 10; Ez 32, 12: Ob 18.
7: 4, 15. 13: 13, 21; Hos 9, 6.
5: Jer 46, 10. 16: Jos 18, 10; Ps
6: Jer 49, 12f. 78, 55.
8: 13, 9; 63, 4.

†

34, 11: Satyrs: see note on 13, 21; cf 34, 14.
34, 14: Lilith: a female demon thought to roam about the desert.

34, 16: Book of the Lord: God's list of all his creatures, cf Ps 69, 29, "the book of the living"; Ps 139, 16, "your book."

CHAPTER 35
Israel's Deliverance

- 1*† The desert and the parched land will exult;
the steppe will rejoice and bloom.
- 2* They will bloom with abundant flowers, and rejoice with joyful song.
The glory of Lebanon will be given to them,
the splendor of Carmel and Sharon;
They will see the glory of the LORD,
the splendor of our God.
- 3* Strengthen the hands that are feeble,
make firm the knees that are weak,
- 4* Say to those whose hearts are frightened:
Be strong, fear not!
Here is your God,
he comes with vindication;
With divine recompense
he comes to save you.
- 5* Then will the eyes of the blind be opened,
the ears of the deaf be cleared;
- 6* Then will the lame leap like a stag,
then the tongue of the dumb will sing.
- Streams will burst forth in the desert, and rivers in the steppe.
- 7 The burning sands will become pools,
and the thirsty ground, springs of water;
The abode where jackals lurk will be a marsh for the reed and papyrus.
- 8 A highway will be there,
called the holy way;
No one unclean may pass over it,
nor fools go astray on it.
- 9* No lion will be there,
nor beast of prey go up to be met upon it.
It is for those with a journey to make,
and on it the redeemed will walk.
- 10* Those whom the LORD has ransomed will return
and enter Zion singing,
crowned with everlasting joy;
They will meet with joy and gladness,
sorrow and mourning will flee.

VII: HISTORICAL APPENDIX

CHAPTER 36

Invasion of Sennacherib. 1*† In the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah, Sennacherib, king of Assyria, went on an expedition against all the fortified cities of Judah and captured them. <sup>2</sup>From Lachish the king of Assyria sent his commander with a great army to King Hezekiah in Jerusalem. When he stopped at the conduit of the upper pool, on the highway of the fuller's field, <sup>3</sup>there came out to him the master of the palace, Eliakim, son of Hilkiah, and Shebna the scribe, and the herald Joah, son of Asaph. <sup>4</sup>The commander said to them, "Tell King Hezekiah: Thus says the great king, the king of Assyria, 'On what do you base this confidence of yours?' <sup>5</sup>Do you think mere words substitute for strategy and might in war? On whom, then, do you rely, that you rebel against me?' <sup>6</sup>* This Egypt, the staff on which you rely, is in fact a broken reed which pierces the hand of anyone who leans on it. That is what Pharaoh, king of Egypt, is to all who rely on him. <sup>7</sup>*† But if you say to me: "We rely on the LORD, our God," is not he the one whose high places and altars Hezekiah removed, commanding Judah and Jerusalem to worship before this altar?"

<sup>8</sup>"Now, make a wager with my lord the king of Assyria: 'I will give you two thousand horses, if you can put riders on them.' <sup>9</sup>How then can you repulse even one of the least servants of my lord? And yet you rely on Egypt for chariots and horsemen! <sup>10</sup>* 'Was it without the LORD's will that I have come up to destroy this land? The LORD said to me, "Go up and destroy that land!"' "

<sup>11</sup>† Then Eliakim and Shebna and Joah said to the commander, "Please speak to your servants in Aramaic; we understand it. Do not speak to us in Judean within earshot of the people who are on the wall."

<sup>12</sup>But the commander replied, "Was it to you and your master that my lord sent me to speak these words? Was it

35, 1: 55, 12f.	10.19.
2: 60, 13; Ps 96,	9: 62, 10; Lv 26, 6.
12.	10: 51, 11.
3: Jb 4, 3f; Heb 12,	36, 1: 2 Kgs 18, 13; 2
12.	Chr 32, 1.
4: 41, 10; Zec 8,	6: 30, 2.
13.	7: 2 Kgs 18, 4.
5: 29, 18; 32, 3.	10: 10, 5f.
6: 41, 18; 43,

† 35, 1-10: Similar to the description of the return from the exile, as found in chaps. 40-55.

36, 1-39, 8: Except for 36, 9-20, this historical appendix describing the siege, etc., is paralleled in 2 Kgs 18, 13-20, 19, which, however, has certain details proper to itself. The events are also recorded in substantially the same way in the cuneiform inscriptions of Sennacherib.

36, 7: The Assyrians pretend that Hezekiah's removal of the high places and altars (illegal sanctuaries) was taken by the Lord as an insult. They declare to Jerusalem's emissaries that the city therefore no longer has a right to the Lord's protection and that they are the ones who truly carry out his will (cf v 10).

36, 11: The Jewish emissaries ask that the conversation be carried on in Aramaic, not in Judean, for they fear the effect of the Assyrian claims upon the morale of the people.

not rather to the men sitting on the wall, who, with you, will have to eat their own excrement and drink their own urine?"<sup>13</sup> Then the commander stepped forward and cried out in a loud voice in Judean, "Listen to the words of the great king, the king of Assyria." <sup>14</sup> Thus says the king: 'Do not let Hezekiah deceive you, since he cannot deliver you.' <sup>15</sup> Let not Hezekiah induce you to rely on the LORD, saying, "The LORD will surely save us; this city will not be handed over to the king of Assyria." <sup>16*</sup> Do not listen to Hezekiah, for the king of Assyria says: 'Make peace with me and surrender! Then each of you will eat of his own vine and of his own fig tree, and drink the water of his own cistern, <sup>17</sup> until I come to take you to a land like your own, a land of grain and wine, of bread and vineyards. <sup>18*</sup> Do not let Hezekiah seduce you by saying, "The LORD will save us." Has any of the gods of the nations ever rescued his land from the hand of the king of Assyria? <sup>19*</sup> Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim? Where are the gods of Samaria? Have they saved Samaria from my hand? <sup>20</sup> Which of all the gods of these lands ever rescued his land from my hand? Will the LORD then save Jerusalem from my hand?" <sup>21</sup> But they remained silent and did not answer him one word, for the king had ordered them not to answer him.

<sup>22</sup> Then the master of the palace, Eliakim, son of Hilkiah, Shebna the scribe, and the herald Joah, son of Asaph, came to Hezekiah with their garments torn, and reported to him what the commander had said.

CHAPTER 37

<sup>1</sup> When King Hezekiah heard this, he tore his garments, wrapped himself in sackcloth, and went into the temple of the LORD. <sup>2</sup> He sent Eliakim, the master of the palace, and Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests, wrapped in sackcloth, to tell the prophet Isaiah, son of Amoz: <sup>3†</sup> "Thus says Hezekiah: 'This is a day of distress, of rebuke, and of disgrace. Children are at the point of birth, but there is no strength to bring them forth. <sup>4</sup> Perhaps the LORD, your God, will hear the words of the commander, whom his master, the king of Assyria, sent to taunt the living God, and will rebuke him for the words which the LORD, your God, has heard. Send up a prayer for the remnant that is here.'"

<sup>5</sup> When the servants of King Hezekiah had come to Isaiah, <sup>6*</sup> he said to them: "Tell this to your master: 'Thus says the LORD: Do not be frightened by the words you have heard, with which the servants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed me. <sup>7</sup> I am about to put in him such a spirit that, when he hears a certain report, he will return to his own land, and there I will cause him to fall by the sword.'"

<sup>8</sup> When the commander returned to Lachish and heard that the king of Assyria had left there, he found him besieging Libnah. <sup>9†</sup> The king of Assyria heard a report that Tirhakah, king of Ethiopia, had come out to fight against him. Again he sent envoys to Hezekiah with this message: "Thus shall you say to Hezekiah, king of Judah: <sup>10*</sup> 'Do not let your God on whom you rely deceive you by saying that Jerusalem will not be handed over to the king of Assyria. <sup>11</sup> You yourself have heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all the countries: They doomed them! Will you, then, be saved? <sup>12</sup> Did the gods of the nations whom my fathers destroyed save them? Gozen, Haran, Rezeph, and the Edenites in Telassar? <sup>13</sup> Where is the king of Hamath, the king of Arpad, or a king of the cities of Sepharvaim, Hena or Ivvah?'"

<sup>14</sup> Hezekiah took the letter from the hand of the messengers and read it; then he went up to the temple of the LORD, and spreading it out before him, <sup>15</sup> he prayed to the LORD: <sup>16†</sup> "O LORD of hosts, God of Israel, enthroned upon the cherubim! You alone are God over all the kingdoms of the earth. You have made the heavens and the earth. <sup>17</sup> Incline your ear, O LORD, and listen! Open your eyes, O LORD and see! Hear all the words of the letter that Sennacherib sent to taunt the living God. <sup>18</sup> Truly, O LORD, the kings of Assyria have laid waste all the nations and their lands, <sup>19*</sup> and cast their gods into the fire; they destroyed them because they were not gods but the work of human hands, wood and stone. <sup>20</sup> Therefore, O LORD, our God, save us from his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that you, O LORD, alone are God."

Punishment of Sennacherib. <sup>21</sup> Then Isaiah, son of Amoz, sent this message

16: 1 Kgs 4, 25, Zec	37, 6: 41, 10-14; 51, 7
3, 10.	10: 36, 14.
18: 37, 11.	19: Jer 16, 20.
19: 10, 9; 37, 13.

† 37, 3: A proverbial expression. In the Bible the pangs of childbirth often typify extreme anguish; cf 13, 8; Jer 6, 24; Mi 4, 9f. In this instance there is reference to the desperate situation of Hezekiah from which he was scarcely able to free himself.

37, 9: Tirhakah: may have been general of the Egyptian army in 701 B.C.; later he became king, one of the Ethiopian dynasty of Egyptian kings (c. 690-664 B.C.). Many consider that this account in Isaiah combines features of two originally distinct sieges of Jerusalem by Sennacherib.

37, 16: In contrast to the empty boasting of the Assyrians, Hezekiah proclaims the Lord as God over all the kingdoms of the earth.

to Hezekiah: Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: In answer to your prayer for help against Sennacherib, king of Assyria, <sup>22*</sup> this is the word the LORD has spoken concerning him:

She despises you, laughs you to scorn,
the virgin daughter Zion; Behind you she wags her head, daughter Jerusalem.

<sup>23*</sup> Whom have you insulted and blasphemed, against whom have you raised your voice
And lifted up your eyes on high?
Against the Holy One of Israel!

<sup>24</sup> Through your servants you have insulted the Lord:
You said, "With my many chariots
I climbed the mountain heights,
the recesses of Lebanon;
I cut down its lofty cedars,
its choice cypresses;
I reached the remotest heights,
its forest park.

<sup>25</sup> I dug wells and drank water in foreign lands;
I dried up with the soles of my feet
all the rivers of Egypt.

<sup>26</sup> Have you not heard?
Long ago I prepared it,
From days of old I planned it,
now I have brought it to pass:
That you should reduce fortified cities into heaps of ruins, <sup>27</sup> While their inhabitants, shorn of power,
are dismayed and ashamed, Becoming like the plants of the field,
like the green growth,
like the scorched grass on the housetops.

<sup>28</sup> I am aware whether you stand or sit;
I know whether you come or go,
and also your rage against me.

<sup>29</sup> Because of your rage against me
and your fury which has reached my ears,
I will put my hook in your nose and my bit in your mouth, and make you return the way you came.

<sup>30†</sup> This shall be a sign for you:
this year you shall eat the aftergrowth,
next year, what grows of itself;
But in the third year, sow and reap, plant vineyards and eat their fruit!

<sup>31*</sup> The remaining survivors of the house of Judah

shall again strike root below
and bear fruit above.

<sup>32</sup> For out of Jerusalem shall come a remnant,
and from Mount Zion, survivors.
The zeal of the LORD of hosts shall do this.

<sup>33</sup> Therefore, thus says the LORD concerning the king of Assyria: He shall not reach this city, nor shoot an arrow at it, nor come before it with a shield, nor cast up siegeworks against it. <sup>34*</sup> He shall return by the same way he came, without entering the city, says the LORD. <sup>35*</sup> I will shield and save this city for my own sake, and for the sake of my servant David.

<sup>36*†</sup> The angel of the LORD went forth and struck down one hundred and eighty-five thousand in the Assyrian camp. Early the next morning, there they were, all the corpses of the dead. <sup>37*</sup> So Sennacherib, the king of Assyria, broke camp and went back home to Nineveh.

<sup>38†</sup> When he was worshiping in the temple of his god Nisroch, his sons Adrammelech and Sharezer slew him with the sword and fled into the land of Ararat. His son Esarhaddon reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER 38

Sickness and Recovery of Hezekiah. <sup>1*†</sup> In those days, when Hezekiah was mortally ill, the prophet Isaiah, son of Amoz, came and said to him: "Thus says the LORD: Put your house in order, for you are about to die; you shall not recover." <sup>2</sup> Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall and prayed to the LORD: <sup>3*</sup> "O LORD, remember how faithfully and wholeheartedly I conducted myself

22: 2 Kgs 19, 21.

23: 1, 4.

31: 27, 6.

34: 37, 29.

35: 1 Kgs 15, 4f.

36: 10, 12; 17, 14.

37: 2 Kgs 19, 35f.

38: 1; 2 Kgs 20, 1.

3: 2 Kgs 18, 5f.

† 37, 30: You: Hezekiah. A sign: it is difficult to know the nature of this sign. Either it is merely a proverbial expression to signify that prosperity follows adversity, or it indicates that after two years the normal conditions of life will be resumed.

37, 36: The destruction of Sennacherib's army is also recorded by Herodotus, a Greek historian of the fifth century B.C. It was probably due to the bubonic plague, but the sacred author attributes it to its ultimate cause, God through his angel.

37, 38: The violent death of Sennacherib (681 B.C.) is also mentioned in non-biblical sources. It occurred twenty years after his invasion of Judah.

38, 1—39, 8: The events of this section—sickness and recovery of Hezekiah, embassy of Merodach-baladan—point forward to Babylon (cc 40-66). They occurred prior to the events of 36, 1—37, 38, which point back to Assyria (1, 1—35, 10).

38, 1: In those days: a time prior to the siege of Jerusalem in 701 B.C.

in your presence, doing what was pleasing to you!" And Hezekiah wept bitterly.

<sup>4</sup> Then the word of the LORD came to Isaiah: <sup>5</sup> "Go, tell Hezekiah: Thus says the LORD, the God of your father David: I have heard your prayer and seen your tears. I will heal you: in three days you shall go up to the LORD's temple; I will add fifteen years to your life. <sup>6*</sup> I will rescue you and this city from the hand of the king of Assyria; I will be a shield to this city."

<sup>21</sup> Isaiah then ordered a poultice of figs to be taken and applied to the boil, that he might recover. <sup>22</sup> Then Hezekiah asked, "What is the sign that I shall go up to the temple of the LORD?"

<sup>7</sup> [Isaiah answered:] "This will be the sign for you from the LORD that he will do what he has promised: <sup>8*</sup> † See, I will make the shadow cast by the sun on the stairway to the terrace of Ahaz go back the ten steps it has advanced." So the sun came back the ten steps it had advanced.

Hezekiah's Hymn of Thanksgiving.
<sup>9</sup> The song of Hezekiah, king of Judah, after he had been sick and had recovered from his illness:

<sup>10*</sup> † Once I said,

"In the noontime of life I must depart!

To the gates of the nether world I shall be consigned for the rest of my years."

<sup>11</sup> † I said, "I shall see the LORD no more in the land of the living.

No longer shall I behold my fellow men among those who dwell in the world."

<sup>12*</sup> † My dwelling, like a shepherd's tent, is struck down and borne away from me;

You have folded up my life, like a weaver who severs the last thread.

Day and night you give me over to torment;

<sup>13</sup> I cry out until the dawn.

Like a lion he breaks all my bones; [day and night you give me over to torment].

<sup>14</sup> Like a swallow I utter shrill cries; I moan like a dove.

My eyes grow weak, gazing heavenward:

O Lord, I am in straits; be my surety!

<sup>15</sup> † What am I to say or tell him?

He has done it!

I shall go on through all my years despite the bitterness of my soul.

<sup>16</sup> † Those live whom the LORD protects; yours . . . the life of my spirit.

You have given me health and life;

<sup>17</sup> † thus is my bitterness transformed into peace.

You have preserved my life from the pit of destruction, When you cast behind your back all my sins.

<sup>18*</sup> † For it is not the nether world that gives you thanks, nor death that praises you;

Neither do those who go down into the pit await your kindness.

<sup>19</sup> The living, the living give you thanks,

as I do today. Fathers declare to their sons, O God, your faithfulness.

<sup>20</sup> The LORD is our savior; we shall sing to stringed instruments

In the house of the LORD all the days of our life.

CHAPTER 39

Embassy from Merodach-baladan.

<sup>1</sup> † At that time when Merodach-baladan, son of Baladan, king of Babylon, heard that Hezekiah had recovered from his sickness, he sent letters and gifts to him. <sup>2*</sup> Hezekiah was pleased at this, and therefore showed the messengers his treasury, the silver and gold,

6: 37, 35. 18: Pss 6, 6, 88, 11-13.
8: 2 Kgs 20, 9, 11. 39, 1-8: 2 Kgs 20, 12
10: Jb 17, 11; Ps 102, 25. 2: 2 Chr 32, 25†
12: Jb 7, 6.

† 38, 5: Since Hezekiah died in 687 B.C., this sickness of his seems to have been in 702 B.C., that is, fifteen years before.

38, 8: Stairway to the terrace of Ahaz: this interpretation is based on a reading of the Hebrew text revised according to the Dead Sea Scroll of Isaiah; cf 2 Kgs 23, 12. Many translate the phrase as "steps of Ahaz" and understand this as referring to a sundial.

38, 10: In the noontime of life: long before the end of a full span of life; cf Pss 55, 24; 102, 25.

38, 11: See the Lord: go to the Temple and take part in its service.

38, 12: These two metaphors emphasize the suddenness and finality of death.

38, 15: What am I to say or tell him?: a rhetorical question as if the poet were at a loss in giving fitting expression to his gratitude; cf Ps 116, 12. He has done it: accomplished the cure. Despite the bitterness: even though the one praying was previously so dejected.

38, 16: Yours . . . the life of my spirit: the current Hebrew text is corrupt. The revised Latin psalter renders it: "you have revived my soul."

38, 17: You cast behind your back all my sins: figurative language to express the divine forgiveness of sins, as if God no longer saw or cared about them. This expression is ordinarily used of men forgetting God; cf 1 Kgs 14, 9; Ez 23, 35; Ps 50, 17.

38, 18: See note on Ps 6, 6.

39, 1: Merodach-baladan: twice king of Babylon, probably from 721 to 710 B.C., and again for nine months, in 704-703. This visit of his messengers, certainly before 701, was in reality a political one. Babylon hoped to lead an anti-Assyrian confederation composed of neighboring states.

the spices and fine oil, his whole army, and everything that was in his storerooms; there was nothing in his house or in his whole realm that he did not show them.

<sup>3</sup> Then Isaiah the prophet came to King Hezekiah and asked him, "What did these men say to you? Where did they come from?" Hezekiah answered, "They came to me from a distant land, from Babylon." <sup>4</sup> "What did they see in your house?" he asked. Hezekiah replied, "They saw everything in my house; there is nothing in my storerooms that I did not show them."

<sup>5</sup> Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, "Hear the word of the LORD of hosts: <sup>6*</sup> Behold, the days shall come when all that is in your house, and everything that your fathers have stored up until this day, shall be carried off to Babylon; nothing shall be left, says the LORD. <sup>7*</sup> Some of your own bodily descendants shall be taken and made servants in the palace of the king of Babylon." <sup>8*</sup> Hezekiah replied to Isaiah, "The word of the LORD which you have spoken is favorable." For he thought, "There will be peace and security in my lifetime."

B: THE BOOK OF CONSOLATION

I: THE LORD'S GLORY IN ISRAEL'S LIBERATION

CHAPTER 40

Promise of Salvation

- <sup>1</sup> Comfort, give comfort to my people, says your God.
- <sup>2*</sup> Speak tenderly to Jerusalem, and proclaim to her that her service is at an end, her guilt is expiated; Indeed, she has received from the hand of the LORD double for all her sins.
- <sup>3*</sup> A voice cries out: In the desert prepare the way of the LORD! Make straight in the wasteland a highway for our God!
- <sup>4</sup> Every valley shall be filled in, every mountain and hill shall be made low; The rugged land shall be made a plain, the rough country, a broad valley.
- <sup>5</sup> Then the glory of the LORD shall be revealed, and all mankind shall see it together; for the mouth of the LORD has spoken.

- <sup>6*</sup> A voice says, "Cry out!" I answer, "What shall I cry out?" "All mankind is grass, and all their glory like the flower of the field.
- <sup>7</sup> The grass withers, the flower wilts, when the breath of the LORD blows upon it. [So then, the people is the grass.]
- <sup>8</sup> Though the grass withers and the flower wilts, the word of our God stands forever."
- <sup>9</sup> Go up onto a high mountain, Zion, herald of glad tidings; Cry out at the top of your voice, Jerusalem, herald of good news! Fear not to cry out and say to the cities of Judah: Here is your God!
- <sup>10</sup> Here comes with power the Lord God, who rules by his strong arm; Here is his reward with him, his recompense before him.
- <sup>11*</sup> Like a shepherd he feeds his flock; in his arms he gathers the lambs, Carrying them in his bosom, and leading the ewes with care.

Power of the Creator To Save His People

- <sup>12†</sup> Who has cupped in his hand the waters of the sea, and marked off the heavens with a span? Who has held in a measure the dust of the earth, weighed the mountains in scales and the hills in a balance?
- <sup>13*</sup> Who has directed the spirit of the LORD,

6: 2 Kgs 24, 13;	18; Jas 1, 10; 1
25, 13ff.	Pt 1, 24.
7: 2 Chr 33, 11;	11: 49, 9f; 63, 11;
Dan 1, 2f.	Ez 34, 23; 37,
8: 2 Chr 32, 26.	24; Jn 10, 11.
40, 2: 50, 21.	13: Wis 9, 13; Rom
3: Mt 3, 3; Jn 1, 23.	11, 34; 1 Cor 2,
6: Jb 8, 12; 14, 2;	16; Jb 38, 1ff.
Ps 37, 2; Sir 14,

† 39, 6: Because Judah preferred to follow a pro-Babylonian policy, instead of trusting in God, it would later be exiled to Babylon.

39, 8: Favorable: for the exile would not occur in his lifetime.

40, 2: Service: servitude and exile.

40, 3-5: The figurative language here describes the actual return of the exiles from Babylon to Jerusalem. It is the Lord who leads them; their road is made easy for them. Mt 3, 3 and parallels see in these verses a prophecy of the Baptizer and Christ.

40, 12: Span: the distance between the extended little finger and the thumb. Measure: literally, "third"; here a small container.

- or has instructed him as his counselor?
- 14 Whom did he consult to gain knowledge?
Who taught him the path of judgment,
or showed him the way of understanding?
- 15 Behold, the nations count as a drop in the bucket,
as dust on the scales;
the coastlands weigh no more than powder.
- 16† Lebanon would not suffice for fuel,
nor its animals be enough for holocausts.
- 17 Before him all the nations are as nought,
as nothing and void he accounts them.
- 18* To whom can you liken God?
With what equal can you confront him?
- 19* An idol, cast by a craftsman, which the smith plates with gold and fits with silver chains?
- 20* Mulberry wood, the choice portion which a skilled craftsman picks out for himself,
Choosing timber that will not rot,
to set up an idol that will not be unsteady?
- 41:6† One man helps another, one says to the other, "Keep on!"
- 41:7† The craftsman encourages the goldsmith, the one who beats with the hammer,
him who strikes on the anvil;
He says the soldering is good,
and he fastens it with nails to steady it.
- 40:21 Do you not know? Have you not heard?
Was it not foretold you from the beginning?
Have you not understood? Since the earth was founded
- 22* He sits enthroned above the vault of the earth, and its inhabitants are like grasshoppers;
He stretches out the heavens like a veil, spreads them out like a tent to dwell in.
- 23 He brings princes to nought and makes the rulers of the earth as nothing.
- 24 Scarcely are they planted or sown,
scarcely is their stem rooted in the earth,
When he breathes upon them and they wither,

- and the stormwind carries them away like straw.
- 25 To whom can you liken me as an equal?
says the Holy One.
- 26*† Lift up your eyes on high and see who has created these:
He leads out their army and numbers them,
calling them all by name.
By his great might and the strength of his power not one of them is missing!
- 27† Why, O Jacob, do you say,
and declare, O Israel,
"My way is hidden from the LORD,
and my right is disregarded by my God"?
- 28 Do you not know
or have you not heard?
The LORD is the eternal God, creator of the ends of the earth.
He does not faint nor grow weary,
and his knowledge is beyond scrutiny.
- 29 He gives strength to the fainting;
for the weak he makes vigor abound.
- 30 Though young men faint and grow weary,
and youths stagger and fall,
- 31 They that hope in the LORD will renew their strength,
they will soar as with eagles' wings;
They will run and not grow weary,
walk and not grow faint.

CHAPTER 41

The Liberator of Israel

- 1† Keep silence before me, O coastlands;
you peoples, wait for my words!
Let them draw near and speak;
let us come together for judgment.
- 2† Who has stirred up from the East
the champion of justice,

18f: Acts 17, 29.
19: Ps 115, 4-7.
20: 44, 13.

22: Ps 104, 2.
26: Ps 147, 4f.

† 40, 16: Lebanon . . . fuel: the famed cedars would not be enough to keep the fires of sacrifice burning.
41, 6-7: These two verses have been transposed to chapter 40.
40, 26: Created: see note on Gn 1, 1. By name: for he is their Creator.
40, 27f: God's people, here called Jacob and Israel, must not give way to discouragement: their Lord is the eternal God.

41, 1-4: It is generally agreed that these verses describe the vocation and victory of Cyrus, whom the Lord used as his instrument to redeem Israel.

41, 2: Cyrus is the champion of justice and God's attendant

- and summoned him to be his attendant?
 To him he delivers the nations and subdues the kings;
 With his sword he reduces them to dust,
 with his bow, to driven straw.
- 3 He pursues them, passing on without loss,
 by a path his feet do not even tread.
- 4* Who has performed these deeds?
 He who has called forth the generations since the beginning.
 I, the LORD, am the first,
 and with the last I will also be.
- 5 The coastlands see, and fear;
 the ends of the earth tremble:
 these things are near, they come to pass.
- 8* But you, Israel, my servant,
 Jacob, whom I have chosen,
 offspring of Abraham my friend—
- 9 You whom I have taken from the ends of the earth and summoned from its far-off places,
 You whom I have called my servant,
 whom I have chosen and will not cast off—
- 10 Fear not, I am with you;
 be not dismayed; I am your God.
 I will strengthen you, and help you,
 and uphold you with my right hand of justice.
- 11 Yes, all shall be put to shame and disgrace who vent their anger against you;
 Those shall perish and come to nought who offer resistance.
- 12 You shall seek out, but shall not find,
 those who strive against you;
 They shall be as nothing at all who do battle with you.
- 13 For I am the LORD, your God,
 who grasp your right hand;
 It is I who say to you, "Fear not,
 I will help you."
- 14† Fear not, O worm Jacob,
 O maggot Israel;
 I will help you, says the LORD;
 your redeemer is the Holy One of Israel.
- 15 I will make of you a threshing sledge, sharp, new, and double-edged,
 To thresh the mountains and crush them,
 to make the hills like chaff.
- 16 When you winnow them, the wind shall carry them off and the storm shall scatter them.
 But you shall rejoice in the LORD,
 and glory in the Holy One of Israel.
- 17 The afflicted and the needy seek water in vain, their tongues are parched with thirst.
 I, the LORD, will answer them;
 I, the God of Israel, will not forsake them.
- 18 I will open up rivers on the bare heights, and fountains in the broad valleys;
 I will turn the desert into a marshland,
 and the dry ground into springs of water.
- 19 I will plant in the desert the cedar, acacia, myrtle, and olive;
 I will set in the wasteland the cypress, together with the plane tree and the pine,
- 20 That all may see and know,
 observe and understand,
 That the hand of the LORD has done this,
 the Holy One of Israel has created it.
- 21† Present your case, says the LORD;
 bring forward your reasons, says the King of Jacob.
- 22 Let them come near and foretell to us
 what it is that shall happen!
 What are the things of long ago?
 Tell us, that we may reflect on them
 And know their outcome;
 or declare to us the things to come!
- 23 Foretell the things that shall come afterward, that we may know that you are gods!
 Do something, good or evil,
 that will put us in awe and in fear.
- 24 Why, you are nothing and your work is nought!
 To choose you is an abomination.
- 25† I have stirred up one from the north,
 and he comes;
 from the east I summon him by name;
 He shall trample the rulers down like red earth,
 as the potter treads the clay.
- 26 Who announced this from the beginning, that we might know;
 beforehand, that we might say it is true?

41, 4: 44, 7; 46, 10. 8f: 44, 1f.21; 45, 4.

† 41, 14: Redeemer: in Hebrew, goel, one who frees another from slavery and avenges his sufferings; cf Lv 25, 48; Dt 19, 6, 12.
 41, 21-24: An indictment of idols.
 41, 25: I summon him: Cyrus.

- Not one of you foretold it, not one spoke;
no one heard you say,
27 "The first news for Zion: they are coming now," or, "For Jerusalem I will pick out a bearer of the glad tidings."
28 When I look, there is not one, no one of them to give counsel, to make an answer when I question them.
29 Ah, all of them are nothing, their works are nought, their idols are empty wind!

CHAPTER 42

The Servant of the Lord

- 1*† Here is my servant whom I uphold, my chosen one with whom I am pleased,
Upon whom I have put my spirit; he shall bring forth justice to the nations,
2 Not crying out, not shouting, not making his voice heard in the street.
3† A bruised reed he shall not break, and a smoldering wick he shall not quench, 4† Until he establishes justice on the earth; the coastlands will wait for his teaching.
5 Thus says God, the LORD, who created the heavens and stretched them out, who spreads out the earth with its crops,
Who gives breath to its people and spirit to those who walk on it:
6* I, the LORD, have called you for the victory of justice,
I have grasped you by the hand; I formed you, and set you as a covenant of the people, a light for the nations,
7 To open the eyes of the blind, to bring out prisoners from confinement, and from the dungeon, those who live in darkness.
8 I am the LORD, this is my name; my glory I give to no other, nor my praise to idols.
9 See, the earlier things have come to pass, new ones I now foretell; Before they spring into being, I announce them to you.

The Salvation of Israel Despite Its Sins

- 10 Sing to the LORD a new song, his praise from the end of the earth:

- Let the sea and what fills it resound, the coastlands, and those who dwell in them.
11† Let the steppe and its cities cry out, the villages where Kedar dwells; Let the inhabitants of Sela exult, and shout from the top of the mountains.
12 Let them give glory to the LORD, and utter his praise in the coastlands.
13* The LORD goes forth like a hero, like a warrior he stirs up his ardor; He shouts out his battle cry, against his enemies he shows his might:
14 I have looked away, and kept silence, I have said nothing, holding myself in;
But now, I cry out as a woman in labor, gasping and panting.
15* I will lay waste mountains and hills, all their herbage I will dry up; I will turn the rivers into marshes, and the marshes I will dry up.
16* I will lead the blind on their journey; by paths unknown I will guide them.
I will turn darkness into light before them, and make crooked ways straight. These things I do for them, and I will not forsake them.
17 They shall be turned back in utter shame who trust in idols; Who say to molten images, "You are our gods."
18† You who are deaf, listen, you who are blind, look and see!
19 Who is blind but my servant, or deaf like the messenger I send?
20 You see many things without taking note; your ears are open, but without hearing.

42, 1: 45, 6; 49, 6;
6: 45, 13;
13: Ex 14, 3;
15: Ex 9, 25; 10, 15;

14, 21: Ps 105,
33ff.
16: Ex 13, 21.

†

42, 1-4: Servant: there are three other "Servant-of-the-Lord" oracles, 49, 1-7; 50, 4-11; 52, 13-53, 12. Many identifications have been proposed, e.g., historical Israel, ideal Israel, an Old Testament historical character before or during the lifetime of the prophet, the prophet himself. The New Testament and Christian tradition, however, have seen a fulfillment of these prophecies in Jesus Christ.

42, 3: A reference to the mercy of Christ.

42, 4: Coastlands: the lands of the Mediterranean. In the Old Testament the word often refers to the pagan lands of the west.

42, 11: Kedar: cf footnote to 21, 16. Sela: Petra, the capital of Edom.

42, 18-20: Because of their unbelief, the Lord rebukes his people, whom he calls his servant, his messenger.

- 21 Though it pleased the LORD in his justice to make his law great and glorious, 22† This is a people despoiled and plundered, all of them trapped in holes,
hidden away in prisons.
They are taken as booty, with no one to rescue them,
as spoil, with no one to demand their return.
- 23 Who of you gives ear to this?
Who listens and pays heed for the time to come?
- 24† Who was it that gave Jacob to be plundered,
Israel to the despoilers?
Was it not the LORD, against whom we have sinned?
In his ways they refused to walk,
his law they disobeyed.
- 25 So he poured out wrath upon them,
his anger, and the fury of battle;
It blazed round about them, yet they did not realize, it burned them, but they took it not to heart.

CHAPTER 43

Promises of Redemption and Restoration

- 1 But now, thus says the LORD,
who created you, O Jacob, and formed you, O Israel:
Fear not, for I have redeemed you;
I have called you by name: you are mine.
- 2 When you pass through the water,
I will be with you;
in the rivers you shall not drown.
When you walk through fire, you shall not be burned;
the flames shall not consume you.
- 3† For I am the LORD, your God,
the Holy One of Israel, your savior.
I give Egypt as your ransom, Ethiopia and Seba in return for
you.
- 4* Because you are precious in my eyes and glorious, and because I love
you,
I give men in return for you and peoples in exchange for your life.
- 5 Fear not, for I am with you;
from the east I will bring back your descendants,
from the west I will gather you.
- 6* I will say to the north: Give them up!
and to the south: Hold not back!
Bring back my sons from afar,

- and my daughters from the ends of the earth:
- 7 Everyone who is named as mine,
whom I created for my glory, whom I formed and made.
- 8 Lead out the people who are blind though they have eyes, who are deaf though they have ears.
- 9† Let all the nations gather together, let the peoples assemble!
Who among them could have revealed this,
or foretold to us the earlier things?
Let them produce witnesses to prove themselves right, that one may hear and say, "It is true!"
- 10 You are my witnesses, says the
LORD,
my servants whom I have chosen To know and believe in me and understand that it is I.
Before me no god was formed,
and after me there shall be none.
- 11 It is I, I the LORD;
there is no savior but me.
- 12 It is I who foretold, I who saved;
I made it known, not any strange god among you;
You are my witnesses, says the
LORD.
I am God, <sup>13*</sup> yes, from eternity
I am He;
There is none who can deliver from
my hand:
who can countermand what I do?
- 14† Thus says the LORD, your redeemer,
the Holy One of Israel:
For your sakes I send to Babylon;
I will lower all the bars,
and the Chaldeans shall cry out in lamentation.
- 15 I am the LORD, your Holy One,
the creator of Israel, your King.
- 16* Thus says the LORD,
who opens a way in the sea and a path in the mighty waters,
- 17* Who leads out chariots and horsemen,
a powerful army,
Till they lie prostrate together, never to rise,

---

43, 4: Dt 4, 37; Hos	13: 41, 4.
11, 1.	16: 51, 10f; Ex 14,
6: 49, 22; Ez 16,	21.
20.	17: Ex 15, 4.

---

† 42, 22: A people: Israel in exile.
42, 24: Despoilers: the Assyrians and Babylonians.
43, 3f: Egypt . . . Ethiopia and Seba: countries which God permitted the Persians to conquer in return for having given Israel its freedom.
43, 9: Only God can know and predict future events; cf
41, 1-5, 21-29.
43, 14-17: The destruction of Babylon.

snuffed out and quenched like a wick.
 18† Remember not the events of the past,
 the things of long ago consider not;
 19 See, I am doing something new!
 Now it springs forth, do you not perceive it?
 In the desert I make a way,
 in the wasteland, rivers.
 20 Wild beasts honor me,
 jackals and ostriches,
 For I put water in the desert and rivers in the wasteland for my chosen people to drink, 21 The people whom I formed for myself, that they might announce my praise.
 22† Yet you did not call upon me, O Jacob, for you grew weary of me, O Israel.
 23* You did not bring me sheep for your holocausts,
 nor honor me with your sacrifices.
 I did not exact from you the service of offerings,
 nor weary you for frankincense.
 24† You did not buy me sweet cane for money,
 nor fill me with the fat of your sacrifices; Instead, you burdened me with your sins,
 and wearied me with your crimes.
 25 It is I, I, who wipe out,
 for my own sake, your offenses;
 your sins I remember no more.
 26 Would you have me remember, have us come to trial?
 Speak up, prove your innocence!
 27† Your first father sinned;
 your spokesmen rebelled against me 28 Till I repudiated the holy gates, put Jacob under the ban,
 and exposed Israel to scorn.

CHAPTER 44

1 Hear then, O Jacob, my servant,
 Israel, whom I have chosen.
 2† Thus says the LORD who made you, your help, who formed you from the womb:
 Fear not, O Jacob, my servant,
 the darling whom I have chosen.
 3 I will pour out water upon the thirsty ground,
 and streams upon the dry land;
 I will pour out my spirit upon your offspring,
 and my blessing upon your descendants.

4* They shall spring up amid the verdure like poplars beside the flowing waters.
 5*† One shall say, "I am the LORD's," another shall be named after Jacob, and this one shall write on his hand,
 "The LORD's,"
 and Israel shall be his surname.

The True God and False Gods

6* Thus says the LORD, Israel's King, and redeemer, the LORD of hosts:
 I am the first and I am the last;
 there is no God but me.
 7 Who is like me? Let him stand up and speak,
 make it evident, and confront me with it.
 Who of old announced future events?
 Let them foretell to us the things to come.
 8*† Fear not, be not troubled:
 did I not announce and foretell it long ago?
 You are my witnesses! Is there a God or any Rock besides me?

9*† Idol makers all amount to nothing, and their precious works are of no avail, as they themselves give witness. To their shame, they neither see nor know anything; and they are more deaf than men are. <sup>10</sup> Indeed, all the associates of anyone who forms a god, or casts an idol to no purpose, will be put to shame; <sup>11</sup> they will all assemble and stand forth to be reduced to fear and shame.

<sup>12</sup>* The smith fashions an iron image, works it over the coals, shapes it with hammers, and forges it with his strong arm. He is hungry and weak, drinks no water and becomes exhausted.

23: Jer 6, 20. 51, 15; 54, 5
 44, 4; 54, 1ff. 8: 43, 10, 12; Dt 32,
 5: 43, 7; 45, 14. 4.
 6: 41, 44; 43, 15; 9: 48, 5, 7.
 45, 21; 48, 3, 12; 12: Wis 13, 11f.

† 43, 18: No need to think solely of the past wonders of the exodus from Egypt; equally great is the exodus from Babylon.

43, 22-28: The reason for the liberation of the Israelites is not their fidelity but rather God's mercy.

43, 24: Sweet cane: a fragrant substance used in making incense and the sacred anointing oil; cf Ex 30, 23; Jer 6 20.

43, 27: First father: Adam or Jacob, or collectively "early ancestors." Spokesmen: leaders, priests, prophets.

44, 2: The darling: see note on Dt 32, 15; cf also Dt 33 5, 26.

44, 5: Write on his hand: an allusion to the Babylonian custom of tattooing the owner's name on the hand of his slave; cf also Rv 13, 16.

44, 8: Rock: place of refuge; said of God in Dt 32, 4, 18
 1 Sm 2, 2; etc.

44, 9-20: Satire on the makers and worshipers of idols

<sup>13</sup> The carpenter stretches a line and marks with a stylus the outline of an idol. He shapes it with a plane and measures it off with a compass, making it like a man in appearance and dignity, to occupy a shrine. <sup>14</sup> He cuts down cedars, takes a holm or an oak, and lays hold of other trees of the forest, which the Lord had planted and the rain made grow <sup>15</sup> to serve man for fuel. With a part of their wood he warms himself, or makes a fire for baking bread; but with another part he makes a god which he adores, an idol which he worships. <sup>16</sup> Half of it he burns in the fire, and on its embers he roasts his meat; he eats what he has roasted until he is full, and then warms himself and says, "Ah! I am warm, I feel the fire." <sup>17</sup> Of what remains he makes a god, his idol, and prostrate before it in worship, he implores it, "Rescue me, for you are my god."

<sup>18</sup> The idols have neither knowledge nor reason; their eyes are coated so that they cannot see, and their hearts so that they cannot understand. <sup>19</sup> Yet he does not reflect, nor have the intelligence and sense to say, "Half of the wood I burned in the fire, and on its embers I baked bread and roasted meat which I ate. Shall I then make an abomination out of the rest, or worship a block of wood?" <sup>20</sup>† He is chasing ashes—a thing that cannot save itself when the flame consumes it; yet he does not say, "Is not this thing in my right hand a fraud?"

<sup>21</sup> Remember this, O Jacob, you, O Israel, who are my servant! I formed you to be a servant to me; O Israel, by me you shall never be forgotten:

<sup>22</sup> I have brushed away your offenses like a cloud, your sins like a mist; return to me, for I have redeemed you.

<sup>23</sup> Raise a glad cry, you heavens: the LORD has done this; shout, you depths of the earth. Break forth, you mountains, into song, you forest, with all your trees. For the LORD has redeemed Jacob, and shows his glory through Israel.

†Cyrus, Anointed of the Lord, Liberator of Israel

<sup>24</sup>* Thus says the LORD, your redeemer, who formed you from the womb: I am the LORD, who made all things, who alone stretched out the heavens; when I spread out the earth, who was with me?

<sup>25</sup>† It is I who bring to nought the omens of liars, who make fools of diviners; I turn wise men back and make their knowledge foolish.

<sup>26</sup> It is I who confirm the words of my servants, I carry out the plan announced by my messengers;

I say to Jerusalem: Be inhabited; to the cities of Judah: Be rebuilt; I will raise up their ruins.

<sup>27</sup>* It is I who said to the deep: Be dry; I will dry up your wellsprings.

<sup>28</sup>*† I say of Cyrus: My shepherd, who fulfills my every wish; He shall say of Jerusalem, "Let her be rebuilt," and of the temple, "Let its foundations be laid."

CHAPTER 45

<sup>1</sup>† Thus says the LORD to his anointed, Cyrus, whose right hand I grasp, Subduing nations before him, and making kings run in his service,

Opening doors before him and leaving the gates unbarred:

<sup>2</sup>*† I will go before you and level the mountains; Bronze doors I will shatter, and iron bars I will snap.

<sup>3</sup> I will give you treasures out of the darkness, and riches that have been hidden away,

That you may know that I am the LORD, the God of Israel, who calls you by your name.

<sup>4</sup>* For the sake of Jacob, my servant, of Israel my chosen one, I have called you by your name, giving you a title, though you knew me not.

<sup>5</sup> I am the LORD and there is no other, there is no God besides me. It is I who arm you, though you know me not,

24: 40, 22; Jb 9, 8 23
27: 42, 15; 51, 10 45, 2: Ps 107, 16.
28: Jer 3, 15; Ez 34, 4: 40, 26.

†

44, 20: Chasing ashes: exerting efforts in vain; cf Hos 12, 2; Eccl 1, 14; 2, 11, 17.

44, 28: Cyrus: king of Persia (559-529 B.C.) and conqueror of Babylon (538 B.C.), who liberated the Jews, permitting them to return to their native land and to rebuild Jerusalem and the Temple.

45, 1: Anointed: in Hebrew, meshiah, from which the word "Messiah" is derived; from its Greek translation Christos, we have the name "Christ." Applied to kings, "anointed" originally referred only to those of Israel, but it is here given to Cyrus because he is the agent of the Lord.

45, 2: Bronze doors: of Babylon.

- 6† so that toward the rising and the setting of the sun men may know that there is none besides me.
- I am the LORD, there is no other;
- 7† I form the light, and create the darkness,
I make well-being and create woe;
I, the LORD, do all these things.
- 8*† Let justice descend, O heavens, like dew from above,
like gentle rain let the skies drop it down.
Let the earth open and salvation bud forth;
let justice also spring up!
I, the LORD, have created this.
- 9*† Woe to him who contends with his Maker;
a potsherd among potsherds of the earth!
Dare the clay say to its modeler,
"What are you doing?"
or, "What you are making has no hands?"
- 10 Woe to him who asks a father,
"What are you begetting?"
or a woman, "What are you giving birth to?"
- 11 Thus says the LORD,
the Holy One of Israel, his maker:
You question me about my children,
or prescribe the work of my hands for me!
- 12 It was I who made the earth and created mankind upon it;
It was my hands that stretched out the heavens;
I gave the order to all their host.
- 13† It was I who stirred up one for the triumph of justice;
all his ways I make level.
He shall rebuild my city and let my exiles go free Without price or ransom,
says the LORD of hosts.
- 14*† Thus says the LORD:
The earnings of Egypt, the gain of Ethiopia,
and the Sabeans, tall of stature, Shall come over to you and belong to you;
they shall follow you, coming in chains.
Before you they shall fall prostrate,
saying in prayer:
"With you only is God, and nowhere else;
the gods are nought.
- 15*† Truly with you God is hidden,
the God of Israel, the savior!
- 16 Those are put to shame and disgrace who vent their anger against him;
Those go in disgrace who carve images.
- 17 Israel, you are saved by the LORD, saved forever!

You shall never be put to shame or disgrace in future ages."

- 18† For thus says the LORD,
The creator of the heavens,
who is God,
The designer and maker of the earth
who established it,
Not creating it to be a waste,
but designing it to be lived in:
I am the LORD, and there is no other.
- 19 I have not spoken from hiding nor from some dark place of the earth,
And I have not said to the descendants of Jacob,
"Look for me in an empty waste."
I, the LORD, promise justice,
I foretell what is right.
- 20† Come and assemble, gather together,
you fugitives from among the gentiles!
They are without knowledge who bear wooden idols and pray to gods that cannot save.
- 21 Come here and declare in counsel together:
Who announced this from the beginning and foretold it from of old?
Was it not I, the LORD,
besides whom there is no other God?
There is no just and saving God but me.
- 22 Turn to me and be safe,
all you ends of the earth,
for I am God; there is no other!

8: Pss 72, 6; 85, 9, 20.
11, 14: 43, 3.
9: Jer 18, 6; Rom 15: 55, 8; Prv 25, 2.

† 45, 6: The Gentiles will come to know the true God: cf also vv 20-25.

45, 7: Create woe: God permits evil for the sake of a greater good.

45, 8: The Vulgate rendering gives a more precise messianic sense to this verse, using "just one" and "savior" in place of justice and salvation. The Advent liturgy uses the Vulgate form, Rorate coeli: desuper . . ., to express the world's longing for the coming of Christ.

45, 9: No one may challenge God's freedom of action, exemplified here by the selection of Cyrus as his anointed.

45, 13: One: Cyrus, called by God for the deliverance and restoration of Israel.

45, 14: Egypt . . . Ethiopia . . . Sabeans: the Egyptians and their allies who, when conquered by Cyrus, are seen as acknowledging the God of Israel to be the one true God, cf 43, 3.

45, 15: God is hidden: he dwells invisibly in the holy of holies.

45, 18: Waste: an allusion to the beginning of creation, when the earth was waste and void (Gn 1, 2), the same Hebrew word, tohu, being used in both passages. The further reference here is to Palestine, which God wishes again to be inhabited by the returning exiles.

45, 20: Who bear wooden idols: in their religious processions. The gods of the pagans have feet but cannot walk; cf Ps 115, 7; Bar 6, 25.

- 23* By myself I swear, uttering my just decree
and my unalterable word:
To me every knee shall bend;
by me every tongue shall swear, 24 Saying, "Only in the LORD are just deeds and power.
Before him in shame shall come all who vent their anger against him.
25 In the LORD shall be the vindication and the glory of all the descendants of Israel."

CHAPTER 46

The Gods of Babylon

- 1† Bel bows down, Nebo stoops, their idols are upon beasts and cattle;
They must be borne up on shoulders, carried as burdens by the weary.
2 They stoop and bow down together; unable to save those who bear
them,
they too go into captivity.
3* Hear me, O house of Jacob, all who remain of the house of Israel,
My burden since your birth, whom I have carried from your infancy.
4 Even to your old age I am the same, even when your hair is gray I will bear you;
It is I who have done this, I who will continue,
and I who will carry you to safety.
5 Whom would you compare me with,
as an equal,
or match me against, as though we were alike?
6 There are those who pour out gold from a purse
and weigh out silver on the scales;
Then they hire a goldsmith to make it into a god before which they fall down in worship.
7 They lift it to their shoulders to carry;
when they set it in place again, it stays,
and does not move from the spot.
Although they cry out to it, it cannot answer;
it delivers no one from distress.
8 Remember this and be firm, bear it well in mind, you rebels;
remember the former things,
those long ago:
9 I am God, there is no other;
I am God, there is none like me.
10 At the beginning I foretell the outcome;

in advance, things not yet done.
I say that my plan shall stand,
I accomplish my every purpose.

- 11† I call from the east a bird of prey, from a distant land, one to carry out my plan.
Yes, I have spoken, I will accomplish
it;
I have planned it, and I will do it.
12 Listen to me, you fainthearted, you who seem far from the victory of justice:
13 I am bringing on my justice, it is not far off,
my salvation shall not tarry;
I will put salvation within Zion,
and give to Israel my glory.

CHAPTER 47

The Fall of Babylon

- 1† Come down, sit in the dust,
O virgin daughter Babylon;
Sit on the ground, dethroned,
O daughter of the Chaldeans.
No longer shall you be called dainty and delicate.
2 Take the millstone and grind flour,
remove your veil;
Strip off your train, bare your legs,
pass through the streams.
3 Your nakedness shall be uncovered and your shame be seen;
I will take vengeance,
I will yield to no entreaty,
says our redeemer,
4 Whose name is the LORD of hosts,
the Holy One of Israel.
5 Go into darkness and sit in silence,
O daughter of the Chaldeans,
No longer shall you be called sovereign mistress of kingdoms.
6 Angry at my people,
I profaned my inheritance,
And I gave them into your hand;
but you showed them no mercy,
And upon old men
you laid a very heavy yoke.
7* You said, "I shall remain always,
a sovereign mistress forever!"
But you did not lay these things to heart,
you disregarded their outcome.
8* Now hear this, voluptuous one,
enthroned securely,

23: Rom 14, 11; Phil 2, 10.
46, 3: 44, 2. 47, 7: 14, 13f.
8: Zep 2, 15; Rv 18, 7.

†

46, 1: Bel. . . Nebo: gods of Babylon; their complete helplessness is here contrasted with God's omnipotence.
46, 11: From the east a bird of prey: Cyrus; cf 41, 2-4.
47, 1-15: A taunt-song, mocking Babylon, once queen of the nations, now made a slave girl.

- Saying to yourself,
 "I, and no one else!
 I shall never be a widow,
 or suffer the loss of my children"—
- 9† Both these things shall come to you suddenly, in a single day:
 Complete bereavement and widowhood shall come upon you
 For your many sorceries
 and the great number of your spells;
- 10 Because you felt secure in your wickedness, and said, "No one sees me."
 Your wisdom and your knowledge led you astray,
 And you said to yourself,
 "I, and no one else!"
- 11 But upon you shall come evil
 you will not know how to predict; Disaster shall befall you which you cannot allay.
 Suddenly there shall come upon you ruin which you will not expect.
- 12 Keep up, now, your spells and your many sorceries.
 Perhaps you can make them avail,
 perhaps you can strike terror!
- 13 You wearied yourself with many consultations,
 at which you toiled from your youth;
 Let the astrologers stand forth to save you,
 the stargazers who forecast at each new moon
 what would happen to you.
- 14 Lo, they are like stubble,
 fire consumes them;
 They cannot save themselves
 from the spreading flames.
 This is no warming ember,
 no fire to sit before.
- 15 Thus do your wizards serve you with whom you have toiled from your youth;
 Each wanders his own way,
 with none to save you.
- 3 Things of the past I foretold long ago,
 they went forth from my mouth,
 I let you hear of them;
 then suddenly I took action and they came to be.
- 4 Because I know that you are stubborn and that your neck is an iron sinew and your forehead bronze,
 I foretold them to you of old;
 before they took place I let you hear of them,
 That you might not say, "My idol did them,
 my statue, my molten image commanded them."
- 6* Now that you have heard, look at all this;
 must you not admit it?
 From now on I announce new things to you,
 hidden events of which you knew not.
- 7 Now, not long ago, they are brought into being,
 and beforetime you did not hear of them,
 so that you cannot claim to have known them;
- 8* You neither heard nor knew,
 they did not reach your ears beforehand.
 Yes, I know you are utterly treacherous,
 a rebel you were called from birth.
- 9 For the sake of my name I restrain my anger, for the sake of my renown I hold it back from you,
 lest I should destroy you.
- 10* See, I have refined you like silver, tested you in the furnace of affliction.
- 11 For my sake, for my own sake, I do this;
 why should I suffer profanation?
 My glory I will not give to another.
- 12* Listen to me, Jacob,
 Israel, whom I named!
 I, it is I who am the first,
 and also the last am I.
- 13* Yes, my hand laid the foundations of the earth;
 my right hand spread out the heavens.

CHAPTER 48

Exhortations to the Exiles

- 1 Hear this, O house of Jacob called by the name Israel, sprung from the stock of Judah,
 You who swear by the name of the LORD and invoke the God of Israel without sincerity or justice,
- 2 Though you are named after the holy city and rely on the God of Israel,
 whose name is the LORD of hosts.

48, 6: 42, 9; 12: 41, 4: 44, 6: 48,
 8: 43, 22ff; 12: Fv 1, 8, 17.
 10: 1, 25; Jer 6, 29f; 13: 40, 22, 26, 45
 Zac 13, 9; Mal 12, 18.
 3, 2.

† 47, 9-13, 15: Babylon was known for its sorcery and astrology.

- When I call them,
they stand forth at once.
- 14† All of you assemble and listen:
Who among you foretold these things?
The LORD's friend shall do his will against Babylon and the progeny of Chaldea.
- 15 I myself have spoken, I have called him,
I have brought him, and his way succeeds!
- 16† Come near to me and hear this!
Not from the beginning did I speak it in secret;
At the time it comes to pass, I am present:
"Now the Lord God has sent me, and his spirit."
- 17 Thus says the LORD, your redeemer,
the Holy One of Israel:
I, the LORD, your God, teach you what is for your good,
and lead you on the way you should go.
- 18 If you would hearken to my commandments,
your prosperity would be like a river,
and your vindication like the waves of the sea;
- 19 Your descendants would be like the sand,
and those born of your stock like its grains,
Their name never cut off or blotted out from my presence.
- 20 Go forth from Babylon, flee from Chaldea!
With shouts of joy proclaim this,
make it known;
Publish it to the ends of the earth,
and say,
"The LORD has redeemed his servant Jacob.
- 21* They did not thirst
when he led them through dry lands;
Water from the rock he set flowing for them;
he cleft the rock, and waters welled forth."
- 22 [There is no peace for the wicked,
says the LORD.]
- The LORD called me from birth, from my mother's womb he gave me my name.
- 2† He made of me a sharp-edged sword and concealed me in the shadow of his arm.
He made me a polished arrow,
in his quiver he hid me.
- 3† You are my servant, he said to me,
Israel, through whom I show my glory.
- 4* Though I thought I had toiled in vain,
and for nothing, uselessly, spent my strength,
Yet my reward is with the LORD,
my recompense is with my God.
- 5 For now the LORD has spoken who formed me as his servant from the womb, That Jacob may be brought back to him and Israel gathered to him;
And I am made glorious in the sight of the LORD,
and my God is now my strength!
- 6*† It is too little, he says, for you to be my servant,
to raise up the tribes of Jacob,
and restore the survivors of Israel;
I will make you a light to the nations, that my salvation may reach to the ends of the earth.
- 7* Thus says the LORD,
the redeemer and the Holy One of Israel,
To the one despised, whom the nations abhor,
the slave of rulers:
When kings see you, they shall stand up,
and princes shall prostrate themselves
Because of the LORD who is faithful,

21: Ex 17, 6; Nm 20,

11.

49, 1: 41, 9; 43, 1; 44,

2:24; 46, 3.

4: 40, 27.

6: 42, 1-6; 44, 5;

45, 14; Lk 2, 32;

Acts 13, 46f.

7: 49, 23; 55, 5.

†

48, 14: The Lord's friend: Cyrus, who carries out God's plans.48, 16: "Now the Lord . . . spirit"; said by Cyrus; cf v 14.

49: 1-7: The second of the four "Servant-of-the-Lord" oracles.

49, 1: Gave me my name: designated me for a special office (cf Jer 1, 5), or perhaps, made me renowned (cf Ps 45, 18).

49, 2: The Servant was made ready and fit for the preaching of God's word.

49, 3: Israel: the Servant is identified with the people of Israel as their ideal representative; however, since vv 5f seem to distinguish the Servant from Israel, some regard the word Israel here as a gloss.

49, 6: The Servant's vocation will be not only the restoration of Israel but the conversion of the world; cf Lk 2, 32.

II: EXPIATION OF SIN, SPIRITUAL LIBERATION OF ISRAEL

CHAPTER 49

The Servant of the Lord

- 1*† Hear me, O coastlands, listen, O distant peoples.

the Holy One of Israel who has chosen you.

The Liberation and Restoration of Zion

- 8* Thus says the LORD:
In a time of favor I answer you,
on the day of salvation I help
you,
To restore the land
and allot the desolate heritages, 9* Saying to the prisoners: Come out!
To those in darkness: Show yourselves!
Along the ways they shall find pasture, on every bare height shall their pastures be.
10* They shall not hunger or thirst, nor shall the scorching wind or the sun strike them;
For he who pities them leads them and guides them beside springs of water.
11* I will cut a road through all my mountains,
and make my highways level.
12† See, some shall come from afar, others from the north and the west,
and some from the land of Syene.
13 Sing out, O heavens, and rejoice, O
earth,
break forth into song, you mountains.
For the LORD comforts his people
and shows mercy to his afflicted.
14* But Zion said, "The LORD has forsaken me;
my Lord has forgotten me."
15* Can a mother forget her infant, be without tenderness for the child of her womb?
Even should she forget,
I will never forget you.
16† See, upon the palms of my hands I have written your name;
your walls are ever before me.
17 Your rebuilders make haste, as those who tore you down and laid you waste go forth from you;
18 Look about and see,
they are all gathering and coming
to you.
As I live, says the LORD,
you shall be arrayed with them all
as with adornments, like a bride you shall fasten them
on you.

- 19 Though you were waste and desolate,
a land of ruins,

Now you shall be too small for your inhabitants,
while those who swallowed you up will be far away.

- 20 The children whom you had lost shall yet say to you,
"This place is too small for me, make room for me to live in."
21* You shall ask yourself:
"Who has borne me these?
I was bereft and barren [exiled and repudiated];
who has reared them?
I was left all alone;
where then do these come from?"
22* Thus says the Lord God:
See, I will lift up my hand to the nations,
and raise my signal to the peoples;
They shall bring your sons in their arms,
and your daughters shall be carried on their shoulders.
23 Kings shall be your foster fathers, their princesses your nurses;
Bowing to the ground, they shall worship you
and lick the dust at your feet.
Then you shall know that I am the
LORD,
and those who hope in me shall never be disappointed.

- 24 Thus says the LORD:
Can booty be taken from a warrior?
or captives be rescued from a tyrant?
25 Yes, captives can be taken from a warrior, and booty be rescued from a tyrant;
Those who oppose you I will oppose,
and your sons I will save.
26* I will make your oppressors eat their own flesh,
and they shall be drunk with their own blood
as with the juice of the grape.
All mankind shall know that I, the LORD, am your savior,
your redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.

8: 2 Cor 6, 2.

9: 42, 7, 18ff.

10: 51, 14; Rv 7, 16.

11: 40, 3f.

14: 40, 27.

15: 43, 4; 44, 21; 46,

3f.

21: 54, 1ff.

22: 5, 26; 13, 2.

26: 19, 2; Ez 38, 21.

Zec 14, 13.

†

49, 12: Syene: now called Aswan, at the first cataract of the Nile in southern Egypt.

49, 16: Upon the palms . . . name: for continual remembrance; cf Ex 13, 9, 16; Dt 6, 6-9.

CHAPTER 50
Salvation Only through the Lord's Servant

- 1*† Thus says the LORD:
 Where is the bill of divorce with which I dismissed your mother?
 Or to which of my creditors
 have I sold you?
 It was for your sins that you were sold,
 for your crimes that your mother was dismissed.
- 2*† Why was no one there when I came?
 Why did no one answer when I called?
 Is my hand too short to ransom?
 Have I not the strength to deliver?
 Lo, with my rebuke I dry up the
 sea,
 I turn rivers into a desert;
 Their fish rot for lack of water,
 and die of thirst.
- 3 I clothe the heavens in mourning,
 and make sackcloth their vesture.
- 4† The Lord God has given me
 a well-trained tongue,
 That I might know how to speak to the weary
 a word that will rouse them.
 Morning after morning
 he opens my ear that I may hear;
- 5† And I have not rebelled, have not turned back.
- 6*† I gave my back to those who beat
 me,
 my cheeks to those who plucked my beard;
 My face I did not shield
 from buffets and spitting.
- 7* The Lord God is my help,
 therefore I am not disgraced;
 I have set my face like flint, knowing that I shall not be put to shame.
- 8 He is near who upholds my right;
 if anyone wishes to oppose me,
 let us appear together.
 Who disputes my right?
 Let him confront me.
- 9* See, the Lord God is my help;
 who will prove me wrong?
 Lo, they will all wear out like cloth,
 the moth will eat them up.
- 10*† Who among you fears the LORD,
 heeds his servant's voice,
 And walks in darkness
 without any light, Trusting in the name of the LORD and relying on his God?
- 11 All of you kindle flames and carry about you fiery darts;
 Walk by the light of your own fire and by the flares you have burnt!

 This is your fate from my hand:
 you shall lie down in a place of pain.

CHAPTER 51
Exhortation To Trust in the Lord

- 1*† Listen to me, you who pursue justice,
 who seek the LORD;
 Look to the rock from which you were hewn,
 to the pit from which you were quarried;
- 2* Look to Abraham, your father,
 and to Sarah, who gave you birth;
 When he was but one I called him,
 I blessed him and made him many.
- 3 Yes, the LORD shall comfort Zion and have pity on all her ruins;
 Her deserts he shall make like Eden, her wasteland like the garden of
 the LORD;
 Joy and gladness shall be found in
 her,
 thanksgiving and the sound of song.
- 4*† Be attentive to me, my people;
 my folk, give ear to me.
 For law shall go forth from my presence,
 and my judgment, as the light of the peoples.
- 5 I will make my justice come speedily;
 my salvation shall go forth [and my arm shall judge the nations];
 In me shall the coastlands hope,
 and my arm they shall await.

- 50, 1: Dt 24, 1-4; Mt 19, 3; Mk 10, 2ff; Is 54, 6ff.
 2: Ex 7, 18; Ps 105, 29.
 6: 2 Sm 10, 4ff; Mt 26, 67; 27, 30.
 7: Ez 3, 9.
 9: 51, 6-8; Ps 102, 27.
 10: 43, 1f; 44, 1f.
 51, 1: Rom 9, 30f.
 2: Ez 33, 24; Gn 12, 2ff; 22, 17.
 4: 2, 3.

†

50, 1: Responding to the people's complaint of utter abandonment by God, the prophet shows that their sins were responsible for their banishment. Since there was no bill of divorce, the bond between the Lord and his people still exists and he will ultimately save them.

50, 2: Israel's faith in God is weak; she does not answer his call; nor believe in his promises of deliverance.

50, 4-11: The third of the four "Servant-of-the-Lord" oracles; in vv 4-9 the Servant speaks; in vv 10f God reproves the people for not following the Servant.

50, 5: The Servant does not refuse the divine vocation.

50, 6: He willingly submits to insults and beatings. Plucked my beard: a grave insult.

50, 10f: Instead of trusting in the Lord and his Servant, the people rely on their own devices, to their own destruction.

51, 1: Rock . . . pit: your glorious ancestry.
 51, 4f: The conversion of the Gentiles.

- 6† Raise your eyes to the heavens, and look at the earth below;
Though the heavens grow thin like smoke,
the earth wears out like a garment and its inhabitants die like flies,
My salvation shall remain forever and my justice shall never be dismayed.
- 7 Hear me, you who know justice, you people who have my teaching at heart:
Fear not the reproach of men,
be not dismayed at their revilings.
- 8* They shall be like a garment eaten
by moths,
like wool consumed by grubs;
But my justice shall remain forever and my salvation, for all generations.
- 9*† Awake, awake, put on strength,
O arm of the LORD!
Awake as in the days of old,
in ages long ago!
Was it not you who crushed Rahab,
you who pierced the dragon?
- 10† Was it not you who dried up the sea,
the waters of the great deep,
Who made the depths of the sea into
a way
for the redeemed to pass over?
- 11 Those whom the LORD has ran-somed will return
and enter Zion singing,
crowned with everlasting joy;
They will meet with joy and gladness,
sorrow and mourning will flee.
- 12 I, it is I who comfort you.
Can you then fear mortal man, who is human only, to be looked upon as grass,
- 13 And forget the LORD, your maker, who stretched out the heavens and laid the foundations of the earth?
All the day you are in constant dread
of the fury of the oppressor;
But when he sets himself to destroy,
what is there of the oppressor's fury?
- 14 The oppressed shall soon be released;
they shall not die and go down into the pit,
nor shall they want for bread.
- 15* For I am the LORD, your God, who stirs up the sea so that its waves roar;
the LORD of hosts by name.
- 16 I have put my words into your mouth and shielded you in the shadow of
my hand,
I, who stretched out the heavens, who laid the foundations of the

earth,
who say to Zion: You are my people.

The Cup of the Lord

- 17* Awake, awake!
Arise, O Jerusalem,
You who drank at the LORD's hand
the cup of his wrath;
Who drained to the dregs
the bowl of staggering!
- 18 She has no one to guide her
of all the sons she bore;
She has no one to grasp her by the hand,
of all the sons she reared!—
- 19 Your misfortunes are double;
who is there to condescend with you?
Desolation and destruction, famine and sword!
Who is there to comfort you?
- 20 Your sons lie helpless
at every street corner
like antelopes in a net.
They are filled with the wrath of the
LORD,
the rebuke of your God.
- 21* But now, hear this, O afflicted one,
drunk, but not with wine,
- 22 Thus says the LORD, your Master,
your God, who defends his people:
See, I am taking from your hand
the cup of staggering;
The bowl of my wrath
you shall no longer drink.
- 23 I will put it into the hands of your tormentors,
those who ordered you to bow down, that they might walk
over you,
While you offered your back like the
ground,
like the street for them to walk on.

CHAPTER 52

Let Zion Rejoice

- 1 Awake, awake!
Put on your strength, O Zion;
Put on your glorious garments,
O Jerusalem, holy city.
No longer shall the uncircumcised or the unclean enter you.

8: 50, 9. 15: Jer 31, 35.
9: Ex 15, 16; Jb 9. 17: Jer 25, 15ff; Ez
13; 26, 12; Pss 23, 32ff.
74, 13; 89, 11. 21: 29, 9.

† 51, 6: God's salvation and justice are eternal, in contrast to the impermanence of the heavens and the earth: cf Mt 24, 35.

51, 9: Rahab: see note on 30, 7. The dragon: see notes on 27, 1; Ps 74, 13.

51, 10: Great deep: another reference to the primeval chaos of Gn 1, 2.

- 2 Shake off the dust, ascend to the throne, Jerusalem;
Loose the bonds from your neck,
O captive daughter Zion!
- 3 For thus says the LORD:
You were sold for nothing, and without money you shall be redeemed.
- 4 Thus says the Lord GOD:
To Egypt in the beginning my people went down,
to sojourn there;
Assyria, too, oppressed them for nought.
- 5 But now, what am I to do here?
says the LORD.
My people have been taken away without redress;
their rulers make a boast of it,
says the LORD;
all the day my name is constantly reviled.
- 6 Therefore on that day my people shall know my renown,
that it is I who have foretold it.
Here I am!
- 7*† How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him who brings glad tidings, Announcing peace, bearing good news, announcing salvation, and saying to Zion,
"Your God is King!"
- 8* Hark! Your watchmen raise a cry, together they shout for joy,
For they see directly, before their eyes,
the LORD restoring Zion.
- 9 Break out together in song,
O ruins of Jerusalem!
For the LORD comforts his people,
he redeems Jerusalem.
- 10 The LORD has bared his holy arm
in the sight of all the nations;
All the ends of the earth will behold
the salvation of our God.

- 11† Depart, depart, come forth from
there,
touch nothing unclean!
Out from there! Purify yourselves, you who carry the vessels of the
LORD.
- 12* Yet not in fearful haste will you come out,
nor leave in headlong flight,
For the LORD comes before you, and your rear guard is the God of Israel.

Suffering and Triumph of the Servant of the Lord

- 13† See, my servant shall prosper, he shall be raised high and greatly exalted.

- 14* Even as many were amazed at
him—
so marred was his look beyond that of man, and his appearance beyond that of mortals—
- 15* So shall he startle many nations, because of him kings shall stand speechless;
For those who have not been told shall see,
those who have not heard shall ponder it.

CHAPTER 53

- 1* Who would believe what we have heard?
To whom has the arm of the LORD
been revealed?
- 2*† He grew up like a sapling before
him,
like a shoot from the parched
earth;
There was in him no stately bearing to make us look at him, nor appearance that would attract us to him.
- 3*† He was spurned and avoided by men,
a man of suffering, accustomed to infirmity,
One of those from whom men hide their faces,
spurned, and we held him in no esteem.
- 4*† Yet it was our infirmities that he bore,
our sufferings that he endured,
While we thought of him as stricken,
as one smitten by God and afflicted.
- 5* But he was pierced for our offenses,
crushed for our sins,

52, 7: 40, 9; Rom 10,

15.

8: 62, 6.

12: Ex 12, 11.

14: Ps 69, 8.

15: Mi 7, 16.

53, 1: 52, 10; Jn 12,

38; Rom 10, 16.

2: 11, 1.

3: Jb 19, 18; Ps 31,

11ff; Mk 9, 11.

4: Jer 10, 19; Mt 8,

17.

5: 1 Cor 15, 3; 1 Pt

2, 24.

†

52, 7-10: God leads his people back from Babylon to Zion, from whose ruined walls watchmen . . . shout for joy; cf Rom 10, 15.

52, 11: From there: from Babylon. Vessels of the Lord: taken to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar, now carried back by the exiled priests returning in procession to Zion; cf Ezr 1, 7.

52, 13—53, 12: The last of the four "Servant-of-the-Lord" oracles. An extraordinary description of the sinless Servant, who by his voluntary suffering atones for the sins of his people, and saves them from just punishment at the hands of God. Only in Jesus Christ is the prophecy perfectly fulfilled.

53, 2: Only God appreciated his Servant's true greatness.

53, 3: Because he suffered, he was regarded as a sinner and therefore as one to be spurned.

53, 4ff: He did indeed suffer but it was for the sins of mankind, and through his sufferings men are healed.

- Upon him was the chastisement that makes us whole,
by his stripes we were healed.
- 6* We had all gone astray like sheep,
each following his own way;
But the LORD laid upon him
the guilt of us all.
- 7* Though he was harshly treated, he submitted
and opened not his mouth;
Like a lamb led to the slaughter or a sheep before the shearers,
he was silent and opened not his mouth.
- 8 Oppressed and condemned, he was taken away,
and who would have thought any more of his destiny?
When he was cut off from the land of the living,
and smitten for the sin of his people,
- 9* A grave was assigned him among the wicked and a burial place with evildoers, Though he had done no wrong
nor spoken any falsehood.
- 10† [But the LORD was pleased to crush him in infirmity.]
- If he gives his life as an offering for sin,
he shall see his descendants in a long life,
and the will of the LORD shall be accomplished through him.
- 11 Because of his affliction he shall see the light in fullness of days;
Through his suffering, my servant shall justify many,
and their guilt he shall bear.
- 12* Therefore I will give him his portion among the great,
and he shall divide the spoils with the mighty, Because he surrendered himself to death and was counted among the wicked;
And he shall take away the sins of many,
and win pardon for their offenses.
- 2* Enlarge the space for your tent, spread out your tent cloths unsparingly;
lengthen your ropes and make firm your stakes.
- 3 For you shall spread abroad to the right and to the left;
Your descendants shall dispossess the nations and shall people the desolate cities.
- 4 Fear not, you shall not be put to shame;
you need not blush, for you shall not be disgraced.
The shame of your youth you shall forget,
the reproach of your widowhood no longer remember.
- 5† For he who has become your husband is your Maker;
his name is the LORD of hosts;
Your redeemer is the Holy One of Israel,
called God of all the earth.
- 6* The LORD calls you back,
like a wife forsaken and grieved in spirit,
A wife married in youth and then cast off,
says your God.
- 7 For a brief moment I abandoned you,
but with great tenderness I will take you back.
- 8 In an outburst of wrath, for a moment
I hid my face from you;
But with enduring love I take pity on you,
says the LORD, your redeemer.
- 9* This is for me like the days of Noah,
when I swore that the waters of Noah should never again deluge the earth;
So I have sworn not to be angry with you,
or to rebuke you.

CHAPTER 54

The New Zion

- 1*† Raise a glad cry, you barren one who did not bear, break forth in jubilant song, you who were not in labor,
For more numerous are the children of the deserted wife than the children of her who has a husband,
says the LORD.

6: Lv 16, 21ff.	22, 37.
7: Mt 26, 63; Acts 8, 32.	54, 1: Gal 4, 27.
9: 1 Pt 2, 22f; 1 Jn 3, 5.	2: 49, 20.
12: Mk 15, 28; Lk	6: Mal 2, 14f.
	9: Gn 9, 15.

† 53, 10ff: Because he fulfilled the divine will by suffering for the sins of others, the Servant will be rewarded by the Lord. See the light: enjoy happiness. This line may originally have read, "he shall drink and eat to the full"—at the thanks giving sacrifice at which he shall divide the spoils (v 12).

54, 1: Jerusalem, pictured as a wife who had been barren and deserted, now suddenly finds herself with innumerable children (the returning exiles); cf Gal 4, 27 for the application of this text to the Church, the New Zion.

54, 5: Redeemer: cf note on 41, 14.

13† In place of the thornbush, the cypress shall grow, instead of nettles, the myrtle.
This shall be to the LORD'S renown,
an everlasting imperishable sign.

III: RETURN OF THE FIRST CAPTIVES

CHAPTER 56

The Lord's House Open to All

1† Thus says the LORD:
Observe what is right, do what is just;
for my salvation is about to come,
my justice, about to be revealed.

2 Happy is the man who does this,
the son of man who holds to it;
Who keeps the sabbath free from profanation,
and his hand from any evil-doing.

3† Let not the foreigner say,
when he would join himself to the LORD,
"The LORD will surely exclude me from his people";
Nor let the eunuch say,
"See, I am a dry tree."

4* For thus says the LORD:
To the eunuchs who observe my sabbaths and choose what pleases me and hold fast to my covenant,

5† I will give, in my house and within my walls, a monument and a name
Better than sons and daughters;
an eternal, imperishable name will I give them.

6 And the foreigners who join themselves to the LORD,
ministering to him,
Loving the name of the LORD,
and becoming his servants—
All who keep the sabbath free from profanation and hold to my covenant,

7* Them I will bring to my holy mountain and make joyful in my house of prayer;
Their holocausts and sacrifices will be acceptable on my altar,
For my house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples.

8 Thus says the Lord GOD,
who gathers the dispersed of Israel:
Others will I gather to him
besides those already gathered.

Blind Leaders

9*† All you wild beasts of the field,
come and eat,
all you beasts in the forest!

10 My watchmen are blind,

all of them unaware;
They are all dumb dogs,
they cannot bark;
Dreaming as they lie there, loving their sleep.

11 They are relentless dogs, they know not when they have enough.

These are the shepherds who know no discretion;
Each of them goes his own way,
every one of them to his own gain:

12* "Come, I will fetch some wine;
let us carouse with strong drink,
And tomorrow will be like today,
or even greater."

CHAPTER 57

1 The just man perishes,
but no one takes it to heart;
Devout men are swept away,
with no one giving it a thought.
Though he is taken away from the presence of evil,
the just man <sup>2</sup> enters into peace;
There is rest on his couch for the sincere, straightforward man.

Faithless People

3 But you, draw near,
you sons of a sorceress,
adulterous, wanton race!

4 Of whom do you make sport,
at whom do you open wide your mouth,
and put out your tongue?
Are you not rebellious children,
a worthless race;

5* You who are in heat among the terebinths,
under every green tree;
You who immolate children in the wadies, behind the crevices in the cliffs?

56, 4: Wis 3, 14f. 12: 28, 7ff; Wis 2, 7
7: 1 Kgs 8, 29f; Mt 57, 5: Jer 7, 31; 19, 5;
21, 13. Ez 20, 28, 31.

† 55, 13: Thornbush . . . nettles: suggestive of the desert and therefore symbolic of suffering and hardship; cypress, myrtle: suggestive of fertile land and therefore symbolic of joy and strength.

56, 1-8: Participation in the future messianic salvation is offered to all who believe in the Lord and keep his commandments, regardless of origin or social condition.

56, 3: Eunuchs had originally been excluded from the community of the Lord; cf Dt 23, 2; Wis 3, 14. Dry tree: unable to produce the fruit of offspring.

56, 5: A monument and a name: a memorial inscription to prevent oblivion for one who had no children; cf 2 Sm 18, 18; Neh 7, 15; 13, 14.

56, 9-57, 13: This section is apparently preexilic, written in the manner of the older prophets who condemned the pagan rites of Baal worship.

56, 9: Wild beasts: foreign nations, which are invited to come and ravage Israel.

- 6† Among the smooth stones of the wadi is your portion, these are your lot; To these you poured out libations, and brought offerings. Should I decide not to punish these things?
- 7* Upon a high and lofty mountain you made your bed, and there you went up to offer sacrifice.
- 8 Behind the door and the doorpost you placed your indecent symbol. Deserting me, you spread out your high, wide bed; And of those whose embraces you love you carved the symbol and gazed upon it
- 9† While you approached the king with scented oil, and multiplied your perfumes; While you sent your ambassadors far away, down even to the nether world.
- 10 Though worn out by your many misdeeds, you never said, "It is hopeless"; New strength you found, and so you did not weaken.
- 11 Of whom were you afraid? Whom did you fear, that you became false And did not remember me or give me any thought? Was I to remain silent and unseeing, so that you would not have me to fear?
- 12† I will expose your justice and your works;
- 13† They shall not help you when you cry out, nor save you in your distress. All these the wind shall carry off, the breeze shall bear away; But he who takes refuge in me shall inherit the land, and possess my holy mountain.

Comfort for the Afflicted

- 14* Build up, build up, prepare the way, remove the stumbling blocks from my people's path.
- 15* For thus says he who is high and exalted, living eternally, whose name is the Holy One: On high I dwell, and in holiness, and with the crushed and dejected in spirit, To revive the spirits of the dejected, to revive the hearts of the crushed.
- 16 I will not accuse forever, nor always be angry; For their spirits would faint before me, the souls that I have made.

- 17* Because of their wicked avarice I was angry, and struck them, hiding myself in wrath, as they went their own rebellious way.
- 18 I saw their ways, but I will heal them and lead them; I will give full comfort to them and to those who mourn for them,
- 19 I, the Creator, who gave them life. Peace, peace to the far and the near, says the LORD; and I will heal them.
- 20 But the wicked are like the tossing sea which cannot be calmed, And its waters cast up mud and filth.
- 21* No peace for the wicked! says my God.

CHAPTER 58

True Fasting

- 1† Cry out full-throated and unsparingly, lift up your voice like a trumpet blast; Tell my people their wickedness, and the house of Jacob their sins.
- 2† They seek me day after day, and desire to know my ways, Like a nation that has done what is just and not abandoned the law of their God; They ask me to declare what is due them, pleased to gain access to God.
- 3 "Why do we fast, and you do not see it? afflict ourselves, and you take no note of it?"
- Lo, on your fast day you carry out your own pursuits, and drive all your laborers.

7: Hos 4, 13; Jer 2,	15: 61, 2f.
20; Ez 6, 13.	17: 56, 11.
14: 40, 3f.	21: 48, 21.

† 57, 6: Smooth stones: the Hebrew word for this expression has the same consonants as the word for "portion"; instead of making the Lord their portion (cf Ps 16, 5), the people adored slabs of stone which they took from the streambeds in valleys and set up as idols; cf Jer 3, 9. Therefore, it is implied, they will be swept away as by a sudden torrent of waters carrying them down the rocky-bottomed gorge to destruction and death without burial.

57, 9: The king: the pagan god Moloch. Ambassadors: children sent to him through a sacrificial death.

57, 12: Justice: here used ironically.

57, 13: All these: the wicked mentioned in 57, 3-10.

58, 1: This command is directed to the prophet.

58, 2-14: Merely external worship does not avail with God; it must be joined to internal sincerity.

- 4 Yes, your fast ends in quarreling and fighting,
striking with wicked claw.
Would that today you might fast so as to make your voice heard on high!
- 5* Is this the manner of fasting I wish,
of keeping a day of penance:
That a man bow his head like a reed,
and lie in sackcloth and ashes?
Do you call this a fast,
a day acceptable to the LORD?
- 6 This, rather, is the fasting that I wish:
releasing those bound unjustly,
untying the thongs of the yoke;
Setting free the oppressed,
breaking every yoke;
- 7* Sharing your bread with the hungry, sheltering the oppressed and the homeless;
Clothing the naked when you see
them,
and not turning your back on your own.
- 8 Then your light shall break forth like the dawn,
and your wound shall quickly be healed;
Your vindication shall go before you,
and the glory of the LORD shall be your rear guard.
- 9 Then you shall call, and the LORD will answer,
you shall cry for help, and he will say: Here I am!
If you remove from your midst oppression, false accusation and malicious
speech;
- 10 If you bestow your bread on the hungry
and satisfy the afflicted; Then light shall rise for you in the darkness,
and the gloom shall become for
you like midday;
- 11* Then the LORD will guide you always and give you plenty even on the parched land.
He will renew your strength, and you shall be like a watered garden, like a spring whose water never fails.
- 12* The ancient ruins shall be rebuilt for your sake,
and the foundations from ages
past you shall raise up;
"Repairer of the breach," they shall call you,
"Restorer of ruined homesteads."
- 13 If you hold back your foot on the sabbath from following your own pursuits on my holy day;
If you call the sabbath a delight,

- and the LORD's holy day honorable;
If you honor it by not following your ways,
seeking your own interests, or speaking with malice—
- 14 Then you shall delight in the LORD, and I will make you ride on the heights of the earth;
I will nourish you with the heritage of Jacob, your father, for the mouth of the LORD has spoken.

CHAPTER 59

Sin and Confession

- 1* Lo, the hand of the LORD is not too short to save,
nor his ear too dull to hear.
- 2 Rather, it is your crimes that separate you from your God,
It is your sins that make him hide his face
so that he will not hear you.
- 3* For your hands are stained with blood,
your fingers with guilt;
Your lips speak falsehood,
and your tongue utters deceit.
- 4† No one brings suit justly,
no one pleads truthfully;
They trust in emptiness and tell lies;
they conceive mischief and bring forth malice.
- 5*† They hatch adders' eggs,
and weave spiders' webs:
Whoever eats their eggs will die, if one of them is pressed, it will hatch as a viper;
- 6 Their webs cannot serve as clothing, nor can they cover themselves with their works.
Their works are evil works, and deeds of violence come from their hands.
- 7* Their feet run to evil, and they are quick to shed innocent blood;
Their thoughts are destructive thoughts,
plunder and ruin are on their highways.
- 8 The way of peace they know not,
and there is nothing that is right
in their paths;

58, 5: Zec 7, 5,
7: Ez 18, 7, 16; Mt
25, 35.
11: 51, 3; Ps 24.
12: 61, 4.

59, 1: 50, 2; Nm 11,
23.
3: 1, 15.
5: Jb 20, 12-16.
7: Rom 3, 15.

† 59, 4: Emptiness: things having no value.
59, 5†: A proverb signifying evil works—adders' eggs—and useless devices—spiders' webs; the former do positive harm to oneself and others; the latter serve no useful purpose.

Their ways they have made crooked, whoever treads them knows no peace.

9† That is why right is far from us and justice does not reach us. We look for light, and lo, darkness; for brightness, but we walk in gloom!

10 Like blind men we grope along the wall, like people without eyes we feel our way.
 We stumble at midday as at dusk, in Stygian darkness, like the dead.

11* We all growl like bears, like doves we moan without ceasing.
 We look for right, but it is not there; for salvation, and it is far from us.

12 For our offenses before you are many, our sins bear witness against us. Yes, our offenses are present to us, and our crimes we know:

13 Transgressing, and denying the LORD, turning back from following our God,
 Threatening outrage, and apostasy, uttering words of falsehood the heart has conceived.

14 Right is repelled, and justice stands far off;
 For truth stumbles in the public square, uprightness cannot enter.

15 Honesty is lacking, and the man who turns from evil is despoiled.

The Redeemer in Zion

The LORD saw this, and was aggrieved that right did not exist.

16 He saw that there was no one, and was appalled that there was none to intervene;
 So his own arm brought about the victory, and his justice lent him its support.

17* He put on justice as his breastplate, salvation, as the helmet on his head;
 He clothed himself with garments of vengeance, wrapped himself in a mantle of zeal.

18 He repays his enemies their deserts, and requites his foes with wrath.

19 Those in the west shall fear the name of the LORD, and those in the east, his glory;
 For it shall come like a pent-up river which the breath of the LORD drives on.

20* He shall come to Zion a redeemer to those of Jacob who turn from sin, says the LORD.

21 This is the covenant with them which I myself have made, says the LORD:
 My spirit which is upon you and my words that I have put into your mouth Shall never leave your mouth, nor the mouths of your children
 Nor the mouths of your children's children from now on and forever, says the LORD.

CHAPTER 60

Glory of the New Zion

1† Rise up in splendor! Your light has come, the glory of the Lord shines upon you.

2 See, darkness covers the earth, and thick clouds cover the peoples;
 But upon you the LORD shines,
 and over you appears his glory.

3* Nations shall walk by your light, and kings by your shining radiance.

4* Raise your eyes and look about;
 they all gather and come to you:
 Your sons come from afar,
 and your daughters in the arms of their nurses.

5 Then you shall be radiant at what you see,
 your heart shall throb and overflow,
 For the riches of the sea shall be emptied out before you,
 the wealth of nations shall be brought to you.

6 Caravans of camels shall fill you, dromedaries from Midian and Ephah;
 All from Sheba shall come bearing gold and frankincense, and proclaiming the praises of the LORD.

7 All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered for you,

11: 38, 14. 20: Rom 11, 26f.
 17: Wis 5, 17ff; Eph 6, 14; 1 Thes 5, 8. 60, 3: 42, 6; 45, 14; 49, 6. 4: 49, 18.

† 59, 9-15: Spoken by the people through the mouth of the prophet.
 60, 1-6: The Church makes use of these verses for the first reading of the Mass on the feast of Epiphany, for she sees in them symbols of her universality.

- the rams of Nebaioth shall be your sacrifices;
They will be acceptable offerings on my altar,
and I will enhance the splendor of my house.
- 8† What are these that fly along like clouds,
like doves to their cotes?
- 9 All the vessels of the sea are assembled,
with the ships of Tarshish in the lead,
To bring your children from afar with their silver and gold,
In the name of the LORD, your God,
the Holy One of Israel, who has glorified you.
- 10 Foreigners shall rebuild your walls,
and their kings shall be your attendants;
Though I struck you in my wrath,
yet in my good will I have shown you mercy.
- 11* Your gates shall stand open constantly;
day and night they shall not be closed
But shall admit to you the wealth of nations, and their kings, in the vanguard.
- 12 For the people or kingdom shall perish
that does not serve you;
those nations shall be utterly destroyed.
- 13*† The glory of Lebanon shall come to you:
the cypress, the plane and the pine,
To bring beauty to my sanctuary,
and glory to the place where I set my feet.
- 14 The children of your oppressors shall come,
bowing low before you;
All those who despised you shall fall prostrate at your feet.
They shall call you "City of the LORD,"
"Zion of the Holy One of Israel."
- 15* Once you were forsaken,
hated and unvisited,
Now I will make you the pride of the ages,
a joy to generation after generation.
- 16 You shall suck the milk of nations,
and be nursed at royal breasts;
You shall know that I, the LORD, am your savior, your redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.
- 17 In place of bronze I will bring gold,
instead of iron, silver;
In place of wood, bronze,
- instead of stones, iron;
I will appoint peace your governor,
and justice your ruler.
- 18 No longer shall violence be heard of in your land, or plunder and ruin within your boundaries.
You shall call your walls "Salvation" and your gates "Praise."
- 19* No longer shall the sun be your light by day,
Nor the brightness of the moon shine upon you at night;
The LORD shall be your light forever,
your God shall be your glory.
- 20 No longer shall your sun go down, or your moon withdraw,
For the LORD will be your light forever, and the days of your mourning shall be at an end.
- 21 Your people shall all be just,
they shall always possess the land,
They, the bud of my planting,
my handiwork to show my glory.
- 22* The smallest shall become a thousand,
the youngest, a mighty nation;
I, the LORD, will swiftly accomplish these things when their time comes.

CHAPTER 61

The Mission to the Afflicted

- 1*† The spirit of the Lord GOD is upon me, because the LORD has anointed me;
He has sent me to bring glad tidings to the lowly,
to heal the brokenhearted,
To proclaim liberty to the captives and release to the prisoners,
- 2* To announce a year of favor from the LORD and a day of vindication by our God,
to comfort all who mourn;
- 3 To place on those who mourn in Zion a diadem instead of ashes,

11: Rv 21, 25.

22: Gn 12, 2; 17, 6.

13: 35, 2.

61, 1; 42, 1; 48, 16; Lk

15: Ez 16.

4, 18f.

19: Rv 21, 23; 22, 5.

2: Mt 5, 5.

†

60, 8f: Like clouds, like doves: the white sails of the ships of Tarshish; cf note on Ps 48, 8.60, 13: Glory of Lebanon: the cedars, together with the cypress, the plane and the pine, all precious, durable wood.61, 1f: This was spoken by the prophet in regard to the restoration of Zion, but quoted by Christ as referring to his mission; cf Lk 4, 18f. Year of favor . . . day of vindication: the time of God's salvation.

To give them oil of gladness in place of mourning,
a glorious mantle instead of a listless spirit.
They will be called oaks of justice, planted by the LORD to show his glory.

The Reward of Israel

- 4* They shall rebuild the ancient ruins, the former wastes they shall raise
up
And restore the ruined cities, desolate now for generations.
- 5 Strangers shall stand ready to pasture your flocks, foreigners shall be your farmers and vinedressers.
- 6 You yourselves shall be named priests of the LORD, ministers of our God you shall be called.
You shall eat the wealth of the nations
and boast of riches from them.
- 7* Since their shame was double and disgrace and spittle were their portion,
They shall have a double inheritance in their land, everlasting joy shall be theirs.
- 8* For I, the LORD, love what is right,
I hate robbery and injustice;
I will give them their recompense faithfully,
a lasting covenant I will make with them.
- 9 Their descendants shall be renowned among the nations, and their offspring among the peoples;
All who see them shall acknowledge
them
as a race the LORD has blessed.
- 10 I rejoice heartily in the LORD,
in my God is the joy of my soul;
For he has clothed me with a robe of salvation,
and wrapped me in a mantle of justice,
Like a bridegroom adorned with a diadem,
like a bride bedecked with her jewels.
- 11 As the earth brings forth its plants, and a garden makes its growth
spring up,
So will the Lord God make justice and praise
spring up before all the nations.

CHAPTER 62

Jerusalem the Lord's Bride

- 1 For Zion's sake I will not be silent, for Jerusalem's sake I will not be quiet,

Until her vindication shines forth like the dawn and her victory like a burning torch.

- 2*† Nations shall behold your vindication,
and all kings your glory;
You shall be called by a new name pronounced by the mouth of the
LORD.
- 3 You shall be a glorious crown in the hand of the LORD,
a royal diadem held by your God.
- 4* No more shall men call you "Forsaken,"
or your land "Desolate,"
But you shall be called "My Delight,"
and your land "Espoused."
For the LORD delights in you,
and makes your land his spouse.
- 5 As a young man marries a virgin,
your Builder shall marry you;
And as a bridegroom rejoices in his bride
so shall your God rejoice in you.

Restoration of Zion

- 6† Upon your walls, O Jerusalem,
I have stationed watchmen;
Never, by day or by night,
shall they be silent.
O you who are to remind the LORD,
take no rest
- 7 And give no rest to him,
until he re-establishes Jerusalem And makes of it
the pride of the earth.
- 8* The LORD has sworn by his right hand
and by his mighty arm:
No more will I give your grain
as food to your enemies;
Nor shall foreigners drink your wine,
for which you toiled.
- 9* But you who harvest the grain shall eat it,
and you shall praise the LORD;
You who gather the grapes shall drink the wine
in the courts of my sanctuary.

4: 58, 12.

7: 40, 2.

8: 55, 3; 59, 21.

62, 2: Rv 2, 17; 3, 12.

4: 49, 15f; 54, 1ff.

8: 52, 10.

9: Dt 12, 17f; 14,

23.

†

62, 2: New name: figurative expression for a new state of happiness; cf Rv 2, 17; 3, 12.

62, 6f: Remind the Lord . . . give no rest to him: figuratively, as though to make certain that the Lord will remember his pledge to Jerusalem. Cf Lk 11, 7f.

- 10*† Pass through, pass through the gates, prepare the way for the people;
Build up, build up the highway,
clear it of stones,
raise up a standard over the nations.
- 11* See, the LORD proclaims to the ends of the earth:
Say to daughter Zion,
your savior comes!
Here is his reward with him,
his recompense before him.
- 12* They shall be called the holy people,
the redeemed of the LORD,
And you shall be called "Frequented,"
a city that is not forsaken.

CHAPTER 63

Punishment of Edom

- † Who is this that comes from Edom, in crimsoned garments, from Bozrah—
This one arrayed in majesty, marching in the greatness of his strength?
"It is I, I who announce vindication,
I who am mighty to save."
- 2* Why is your apparel red, and your garments like those of the wine presser?
- 3 "The wine press I have trodden alone,
and of my people there was no one with me.
I trod them in my anger,
and trampled them down in my wrath;
Their blood spurted on my garments;
all my apparel I stained.
- 4* For the day of vengeance was in my heart,
my year for redeeming was at
hand.
- 5* I looked about, but there was no one to help,
I was appalled that there was no
one to lend support;
So my own arm brought about the victory and my own wrath lent me its support.
- 6 I trampled down the peoples in my anger,
I crushed them in my wrath, and I let their blood run out upon the ground."

Prayer for the Return of God's Favor

- 7*† The favors of the LORD I will recall, the glorious deeds of the LORD, Because of all he has done for us;
for he is good to the house of Israel,

He has favored us according to his mercy
and his great kindness.

- 8 He said: They are indeed my people, children who are not disloyal;
So he became their savior
in their every affliction.
- 9* It was not a messenger or an angel,
but he himself who saved them.
Because of his love and pity
he redeemed them himself, Lifting them and carrying them
all the days of old.
- 10 But they rebelled, and grieved
his holy spirit;
So he turned on them like an enemy,
and fought against them.
- 11 Then they remembered the days of old
and Moses, his servant;
Where is he who brought up out of the sea
the shepherd of his flock?
Where is he who put his holy spirit in their midst;
- 12 Whose glorious arm
was the guide at Moses' right;
Who divided the waters before them, winning for himself eternal renown;
- 13 Who led them without stumbling through the depths
like horses in the open country, 14 Like cattle going down into the plain,
the spirit of the LORD guiding
them?
Thus you led your people,
bringing glory to your name.
- 15* Look down from heaven and regard
us
from your holy and glorious palace!
Where is your zealous care and your might,
your surge of pity and your mercy?
O Lord, hold not back, 16 for you are our father.
Were Abraham not to know us,

10: 58, 14.

11: 40, 10.

12: 62, 4.

63, 2: Rv 19, 13.
4: 34, 8; 61, 2.

5: 59, 16.

7: 26, 15.

9: Dt 4, 37f.

15: Dt 26, 15; Bar 2, 16.

† 62, 10: The command is given to the workmen to begin the reconstruction of the city.

63, 1-6: In a dramatic dialogue between God and the prophet, the Lord is portrayed as the sole avenger of justice against his enemies.

63, 7-64, 11: A prayer probably composed toward the end of the exile, in which the prophet, after recalling God's blessings on Israel in its past history (63, 7-10), especially at the Exodus (11-14), begs the Lord to come once more to the aid of his people (63, 15-64, 3), who now humbly confess their sins (4-11).

- nor Israel to acknowledge us,
 You, LORD, are our father, our redeemer you are named for-
 ever.
- 17 Why do you let us wander, O LORD,
 from your ways,
 and harden our hearts so that we fear you not?
 Return for the sake of your servants,
 the tribes of your heritage.
- 18 Why have the wicked invaded your holy place,
 why have our enemies trampled your sanctuary?
- 19 Too long have we been like those you do not rule,
 who do not bear your name.

Oh, that you would rend the heavens and come down, with the mountains quaking before you,

CHAPTER 64

- 1 As when brushwood is set ablaze, or fire makes the water boil!
 Thus your name would be made known to your enemies and the nations would tremble before you,
- 2 While you wrought awesome deeds
 we could not hope for,
 3* such as they had not heard of from
 of old.
 No ear has ever heard, no eye ever seen,
 any God but you doing such deeds for those who wait for him.
- 4 Would that you might meet us doing
 right,
 that we were mindful of you in our
 ways!
 Behold, you are angry, and we are sinful;
- 5 all of us have become like unclean
 men,
 all our good deeds are like polluted rags;
 We have all withered like leaves, and our guilt carries us away like the wind.
- 6 There is none who calls upon your name,
 who rouses himself to cling to you;
 For you have hidden your face from
 us
 and have delivered us up to our guilt.
- 7 Yet, O LORD, you are our father;
 we are the clay and you the potter:
 we are all the work of your hands.
- 8 Be not so very angry, LORD,
 keep not our guilt forever in mind;
 look upon us, who are all your people.
- 9* Your holy cities have become a desert,

- Zion is a desert, Jerusalem a waste.
- 10 Our holy and glorious temple in which our fathers praised you
 Has been burned with fire;
 all that was dear to us is laid
 waste.
- 11 Can you hold back, O LORD, after all this?
 Can you remain silent, and afflict us so severely?

CHAPTER 65

Necessity of Punishment

- 1* I was ready to respond to those who asked me not,
 to be found by those who sought
 me not.
 I said: Here I am! Here I am!
 To a nation that did not call upon my name.
- 2* I have stretched out my hands all the day
 to a rebellious people, Who walk in evil paths
 and follow their own thoughts, 3 People who provoke me continually, to my face, Offering sacrifices in the groves and burning incense on bricks, 4 Living among the graves and spending the night in caverns, Eating swine's flesh,
 with carrion broth in their dishes,
 5† Crying out, "Hold back, do not touch me; I am too sacred
 for you!"

These things enkindle my wrath,
 a fire that burns all the day.

6 Lo, before me it stands written;
 I will not be quiet until I have paid in full

7 Your crimes and the crimes of your fathers as well,
 says the LORD.
 Since they burned incense on the
 mountains,
 and disgraced me on the hills,
 I will at once pour out in full measure their recompense into their laps.

Fate of the Good and the Bad in Israel

- 8 Thus says the LORD:
 When the juice is pressed from grapes,

64, 3: 1 Cor 2, 9. 65, 1: Rom 10, 20.
 9: Ps 79, 1. 2: Rom 10, 21.

† 65, 5: I am too sacred for you: the uncleanness of pork, obvious to a Semite, is what these people claim has made them sacred! The prophet ridicules them. Some translate: "I will render you sacred," and understand this as referring to the concept of sacredness as something contagious.

- men say, "Do not discard them, for there is still good in them"; Thus will I do with my servants: I will not discard them all;
- 9 From Jacob I will save offspring, from Judah, those who are to inherit my mountains; My chosen ones shall inherit the land, my servants shall dwell there.
- 10 Sharon shall be a pasture for the flocks and the valley of Achor a resting place for the cattle of my people who have sought me.
- 11† But you who forsake the LORD, forgetting my holy mountain, You who spread a table for Fortune and fill cups of blended wine for Destiny,
- 12* You I will destine for the sword; you shall all go down in slaughter. Since I called and you did not answer, I spoke and you did not listen, But did what was evil in my sight and preferred things which displease me,
- 13 therefore thus says the Lord God: Lo, my servants shall eat, but you shall go hungry; My servants shall drink, but you shall be thirsty; My servants shall rejoice, but you shall be put to shame;
- 14 My servants shall shout for joy of heart, But you shall cry out for grief of heart and howl for anguish of spirit.
- 15 The Lord God shall slay you, and the name you leave Shall be used by my chosen ones for cursing; but my servants shall be called by another name
- 16 By which he will be blessed on whom a blessing is invoked in the land; He who takes an oath in the land shall swear by the God of truth; For the hardships of the past shall be forgotten, and hidden from my eyes.

The World Renewed

- 17* Lo, I am about to create new heavens and a new earth; The things of the past shall not be remembered or come to mind.
- 18 Instead, there shall always be rejoicing and happiness in what I create;

For I create Jerusalem to be a joy and its people to be a delight;

19 I will rejoice in Jerusalem and exult in my people. No longer shall the sound of weeping be heard there, or the sound of crying;

20 No longer shall there be in it an infant who lives but a few days, or an old man who does not round out his full lifetime; He dies a mere youth who reaches but a hundred years, and he who fails of a hundred shall be thought accursed.

- 21 They shall live in the houses they build, and eat the fruit of the vineyards they plant;
- 22 They shall not build houses for others to live in, or plant for others to eat. As the years of a tree, so the years of my people; and my chosen ones shall long enjoy the produce of their hands.
- 23 They shall not toil in vain, nor beget children for sudden destruction; For a race blessed by the LORD are they and their offspring.
- 24 Before they call, I will answer; while they are yet speaking, I will hearken to them.
- 25*† The wolf and the lamb shall graze alike, and the lion shall eat hay like the ox [but the serpent's food shall be dust]. None shall hurt or destroy on all my holy mountain, says the LORD.

CHAPTER 66

True and False Worship

- 1* Thus says the LORD: The heavens are my throne, the earth is my footstool. What kind of house can you build for me; what is to be my resting place?
- 2 My hand made all these things when all of them came to be, says the LORD.

12: 66, 4; Prv 1, 24; Jer 7, 13. 66, 1: 2 Sm 7, 4ff. 1 Kgs 8, 27; Acts 7, 49; 17, 24.
17: 66, 22; Rv 21, 1. 25: 11, 6-9.

† 65, 11f: Destiny; the Hebrew also has a play on the words Destiny and destine; meni and manithi.
65, 25: See note on 11, 6-9.

- This is the one whom I approve:
the lowly and afflicted man who trembles at my word.
- 3* Merely slaughtering an ox is like slaying a man;
sacrificing a lamb, like breaking a dog's neck;
Bringing a cereal offering, like offering swine's blood;
burning incense, like paying homage to an idol.
Since these have chosen their own ways
and taken pleasure in their own abominations,
- 4*† I in turn will choose ruthless treatment for them and bring upon them what they fear.
Because, when I called, no one answered,
when I spoke, no one listened;
Because they did what was evil in my sight,
and chose what gave me displeasure,
- 5 Hear the word of the LORD,
you who tremble at his word:
Your brethren who, because of my name,
hate and reject you, say,
"Let the LORD show his glory that we may see your joy";
but they shall be put to shame.
- 6* A sound of roaring from the city,
a sound from the temple,
The sound of the LORD repaying his enemies their deserts!

Mother Zion

- 7*† Before she comes to labor,
she gives birth;
Before the pains come upon her,
she safely delivers a male child.
- 8 Who ever heard of such a thing, or saw the like?
Can a country be brought forth in one day,
or a nation be born in a single moment?
Yet Zion is scarcely in labor when she gives birth to her children.
- 9 Shall I bring a mother to the point of birth,
and yet not let her child be born?
says the LORD;
Or shall I who allow her to conceive, yet close her womb? says your
God.
- 10 Rejoice with Jerusalem and be glad because of her,
all you who love her;
Exult, exult with her,
all you who were mourning over
her!

- 11 Oh, that you may suck fully of the milk of her comfort,
That you may nurse with delight
at her abundant breasts!
For thus says the LORD:
Lo, I will spread prosperity over her like a river,
and the wealth of the nations like an overflowing torrent.
As nurslings, you shall be carried in her arms,
and fondled in her lap;
13 As a mother comforts her son,
so will I comfort you;
in Jerusalem you shall find your comfort.
- 14 When you see this, your heart shall rejoice,
and your bodies flourish like the grass;
The LORD's power shall be known to his servants,
but to his enemies, his wrath.
- 15 Lo, the LORD shall come in fire,
his chariots like the whirlwind,
To wreak his wrath with burning heat and his punishment with fiery flames.
- 16 For the LORD shall judge all mankind
by fire and sword.
and many shall be slain by the
LORD.

17* They who sanctify and purify themselves to go to the groves, as followers of one who stands within, they who eat swine's flesh, loathsome things and mice, shall all perish with their deeds and their thoughts, says the LORD.

Gathering of the Nations. 18† I come to gather nations of every language;
they shall come and see my glory. 19 I will set a sign among them; from them
I will send fugitives to the nations: to Tarshish, Put and Lud, Mosoch, Tubal and Javan, to the distant coastlands that have never heard of my fame, or seen my glory; and they shall proclaim my glory among the nations. 20 They shall bring all your brethren from all the nations as an offering to the LORD, on horses and in chariots, in carts, upon mules and dromedaries, to Jerusalem, my holy mountain, says the LORD, just

3: Lv 11, 7. 2.
4: 65, 12; Prv 1, 7-9; 49, 18-21; 54, 1.
24; Jer 7, 13. 17: Lv 11, 29.
6: Jl 4, 16; Am 1,

† 66, 4f: Worship which is merely external is as evil as though it were idolatry.

66, 7-9: The absence of labor in Zion's childbearing is a symbol of the joyful begetting of the new people of God.

66, 18-21: God summons the neighboring nations to Zion and from among them will send some to far distant lands to proclaim his glory. All your brethren: Jews in exile.

as the Israelites bring their offering to the house of the LORD in clean vessels.

<sup>21</sup> Some of these I will take as priests and Levites, says the LORD.

Lasting Reward and Punishment

<sup>22*</sup> As the new heavens and the new earth which I will make shall endure before me, says the LORD, so shall your race and your name endure.

<sup>23</sup> From one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, All mankind shall come to worship before me, says the LORD.

<sup>24*</sup>† They shall go out and see the corpses of the men who rebelled against me;

Their worm shall not die, nor their fire be extinguished; and they shall be abhorrent to all mankind.

---

22: 65, 17; Rv 21, 1.

24: Mk 9, 45.

† 66, 24: God's enemies lie dead outside the walls of the New Jerusalem; just as in the past, corpses, filth and refuse lay in the Valley of Hinnom outside the city, where huge fires were constantly burning; cf. Jos 15, 8; 2 Chr 28, 3; Mk 9, 45-48.

The Book of
JEREMIAH

The Book of Jeremiah combines history, biography, and prophecy. It portrays a nation in crisis and introduces the reader to an extraordinary leader upon whom the Lord placed the heavy burden of the prophetic office. Jeremiah was born about 650 B.C. of a priestly family from the little village of Anathoth, near Jerusalem. While still very young he was called to his task in the thirteenth year of King Josiah (628), whose reform, begun with enthusiasm and hope, ended with his death on the battlefield of Megiddo (609) as he attempted to stop the northward march of the Egyptian Pharaoh Neco.

The prophet heartily supported the reform of the pious King Josiah, which began in 629 B.C. Nineveh, the capital of Assyria, fell in 612, preparing the way for the new colossus, Babylon, which was soon to put an end to Judean independence.

After the death of Josiah the old idolatry returned. Jeremiah opposed it with all his strength. Arrest, imprisonment, and public disgrace were his lot. Jeremiah saw in the nation's impotence the sealing of its doom. Nebuchadnezzar captured Jerusalem and carried King Jehoiachin into exile (22, 24).

During the years 598-587, Jeremiah attempted to counsel Zedekiah in the face of bitter opposition. The false prophet Hananiah proclaimed that the yoke of Babylon was broken and a strong pro-Egyptian party in Jerusalem induced Zedekiah to revolt. Nebuchadnezzar took swift and terrible vengeance; Jerusalem was destroyed in 587 and its leading citizens sent into exile. About this time Jeremiah uttered the great oracle of the "New Covenant" (31, 31-34) sometimes called "The Gospel before the Gospel." This passage contains his most sublime teaching and is a landmark in Old Testament theology.

The prophet remained amidst the ruins of Jerusalem, but was later forced into Egyptian exile by a band of conspirators. There, according to an old tradition, he was murdered by his own countrymen. The influence of Jeremiah was greater after his death than before. The exiled community read and meditated on the lessons of the prophet, and his influence can be seen in Ezekiel, certain of the psalms, and the second part of Isaiah. Shortly after the exile, the Book of Jeremiah as we have it today was published in a final edition. It is divided as follows:

- I: Oracles in the Days of Josiah (1, 1-6, 30)
- II: Oracles Mostly in the Days of Jehoiakim (7, 1-20, 18)
- III: Oracles in the Last Years of Jerusalem (21, 1-33, 26)
- IV: Fall of Jerusalem (34, 1-45, 5)
- V: Oracles against the Nations (46, 1-51, 64)
- VI: Historical Appendix (52, 1-34)

---

I: ORACLES IN THE DAYS OF JOSIAH

Call of Jeremiah

CHAPTER 1

<sup>4</sup> The word of the LORD came to me thus:

<sup>1</sup>† The words of Jeremiah, son of Hilkiah, of a priestly family in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin. <sup>2</sup>* The word of the LORD first came to him in the days of Josiah, son of Amon, king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign, <sup>3</sup>*† and continued through the reign of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah, and until the downfall and exile of Jerusalem in the fifth month of the eleventh year of Zedekiah, son of Josiah, king of Judah.

1, 2: 25, 3.

3: 25, 1.

†

1, 1: Anathoth: a village about three miles northeast of Jerusalem, where Solomon exiled Abiathar (1 Kgs 2, 26f); it is probable that Jeremiah belonged to the priestly family of Abiathar.

1, 3: Until the downfall: these words were originally prefixed as a title to a collection of Jeremiah's prophecies which lacked chapters 40-44. The new title in 40, 1 and the oracles that follow clearly show that Jeremiah continued to prophesy after the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 B.C.

5*† Before I formed you in the womb I knew you, before you were born I dedicated you,
a prophet to the nations I appointed you.
6† "Ah, Lord God!" I said,
"I know not how to speak; I am too young."

7 But the LORD answered me,

Say not, "I am too young."
To whoever I send you, you shall go;
whatever I command you, you shall speak.

8 Have no fear before them, because I am with you to deliver you, says the LORD.

9* Then the LORD extended his hand and touched my mouth, saying,

See, I place my words in your mouth!

10 This day I set you over nations and over kingdoms,
To root up and to tear down,
to destroy and to demolish,
to build and to plant.

11† The word of the LORD came to me with the question: What do you see, Jeremiah? "I see a branch of the watching-tree," I replied. 12 Then the LORD said to me: Well have you seen, for I am watching to fulfill my word. 13*† A second time the word of the LORD came to me with the question: What do you see? "I see a boiling cauldron," I replied, "that appears from the north."

14* And from the north, said the LORD to me, evil will boil over upon all who dwell in the land.

15* Lo, I am summoning all the kingdoms of the north, says the LORD;

Each king shall come and set up his throne
at the gateways of Jerusalem, Opposite her walls all around and opposite all the cities of Judah.

16* I will pronounce my sentence against them for all their wickedness in forsaking me,
And in burning incense to strange gods and adoring their own handiwork.

17 But do you gird your loins; stand up and tell them
all that I command you.
Be not crushed on their account,
as though I would leave you crushed before them;

18* For it is I this day who have made you a fortified city,

A pillar of iron, a wall of brass,
against the whole land:
Against Judah's kings and princes, against its priests and people.
19 They will fight against you, but not prevail over you,
for I am with you to deliver you,
says the LORD.

CHAPTER 2

Infidelity of Israel

1† This word of the LORD came to me:
2*† Go, cry out this message for Jerusalem to hear!

I remember the devotion of your youth,
how you loved me as a bride,
Following me in the desert,
in a land unsown.

3*† Sacred to the LORD was Israel,
the first fruits of his harvest;
Should anyone presume to partake of them,
evil would befall him, says the LORD.

4 Listen to the word of the LORD, O house of Jacob!
All you clans of the house of Israel,

5* thus says the LORD:
What fault did your fathers find in me

5: 49, 1; Gal 1, 15f.	18: 6, 27; 15, 20; Ez 9: 1; Is 6, 7.
13: Ez 11, 3, 7; 24, 3.	2, 2: Dt 2, 7, 32, 9-12; Mi 6, 4.
14: 4, 6; 6, 1.	3: 12, 14; Ex 4, 22.
15: 6, 22.	Dt 7, 6; 14, 2.
16: Is 2, 8.	5: Is, 5, 4; Mi 6, 3.

† 1, 5: Jeremiah was destined to the office of prophet before his birth; cf Is 49, 1, 5; Lk 1, 15; Gal 1, 15f. I knew you: I loved you and chose you. I dedicated you: I set you apart to be a prophet. Some Fathers and later theologians understand this to mean that Jeremiah was freed from original sin before his birth. The context does not justify this conclusion. The nations: the pagan neighbors of Judah, besides the great world powers—Assyria, Babylonia, Egypt—intimately associated with Judah's destiny.

1, 6: I am too young: Jeremiah's youth (he was less than thirty years old) must not be an obstacle to the responsibilities of the prophetic office, God will supply for his human defects (cf vv 7f).

1, 11: The watching-tree: the almond tree, which is the first to blossom in the springtime as though it had not slept. The Hebrew name contains a play on words with "I am watching."

1, 13: Boiling cauldron . . . the north: symbol of an invasion from the north; cf vv 14f.

2, 1-3, 5: These verses probably contain the earliest of Jeremiah's preachings. The covenant relationship, symbolized by the figure of a marriage, was frequently broken by Israel, seen here as an unfaithful wife unworthy of reconciliation with God (3, 1-5).

2, 2: Devotion: Israel's gratitude, fidelity, and love for God.
2, 3: First fruits: an offering to God which became his exclusive property, and could therefore not be put to profane use; cf Lv 22, 1.

that they withdrew from me, Went after empty idols,
 and became empty themselves?
 6* They did not ask, "Where is the
 LORD
 who brought us up from the land of Egypt,
 Who led us through the desert, through a land of wastes and gullies,
 Through a land of drought and
 darkness,
 through a land which no one crosses,
 where no man dwells?"

7* When I brought you into the garden land
 to eat its goodly fruits,
 You entered and defiled my land,
 you made my heritage loathsome.

8*† The priests asked not,
 "Where is the LORD?"
 Those who dealt with the law knew
 me not:
 the shepherds rebelled against
 me.
 The prophets prophesied by Baal,
 and went after useless idols.

9* Therefore will I yet accuse you, says
 the LORD,
 and even your children's children
 I will accuse.

10† Pass over to the coast of the Kittim and see,
 send to Kedar and carefully inquire:
 Where has the like of this been done?

11* Does any other nation change its gods?—
 yet they are not gods at all!
 But my people have changed their glory
 for useless things.

12 Be amazed at this, O heavens, and shudder with sheer horror,
 says the LORD.

13* Two evils have my people done:
 they have forsaken me, the source of living waters;
 They have dug themselves cisterns, broken cisterns, that hold no
 water.

14† Is Israel a slave, a bondman by birth?
 Why then has he become booty?
 15* Against him lions roar full-throated cries.
 They have made his land a waste;
 his cities are charred ruins, without inhabitant.

16† Yes, the people of Memphis and Tahpanhes
 shave the crown of your head.

17* Has not the forsaking of the LORD, your God,
 done this to you?

18† And now, why go to Egypt,
 to drink the waters of the Nile?
 Why go to Assyria, to drink the waters of the Euphrates?
 19* Your own wickedness chastises you,
 your own infidelities punish you.
 Know then, and see, how evil and bitter is your forsaking the LORD, your
 God,
 And showing no fear of me,
 says the LORD, the God of hosts.

20*† Long ago you broke your yoke,
 you tore off your bonds.
 "I will not serve," you said.
 On every high hill, under every green tree,
 you gave yourself to harlotry.

21* I had planted you, a choice vine of fully tested stock;
 How could you turn out obnoxious to me,
 a spurious vine?

22* Though you scour it with soap, and use much lye,
 The stain of your guilt is still before
 me,
 says the Lord God.

23† How can you say, "I am not defiled,
 I have not gone after the Baals"?
 Consider your conduct in the Valley,
 recall what you have done:
 A frenzied she-camel, coursing near and far,
 24 breaking away toward the desert,
 Snuffing the wind in her ardor—who can restrain her lust?

6: Ex 20, 21; Dt 8, 14; Is 63, 11ff.	15: 9, 11; 17: 4, 18; 30, 15
7: Lv 18, 24f; Dt 8, 7-10; 32, 13f.	19: Prv 5, 22; Hos 5, 5.
8: 8, 8ff; 23, 1.13.	20: 3, 6.13; Jgs 10, 6.
9: Ex 20, 5.	21: Ex 15, 17; Ps 80, 9; Is 5, 4.
11: 16, 20; Ps 106, 20.	22: Jb 9, 30.
13: 17, 13; Ps 36, 9; Is 1, 4.

† 2, 8: Those who dealt with the law: the priests. The shep-herds: the kings and nobles.
 2, 10: Kittim: a Phoenician colony in Cyprus. Kedar: a no-mad tribe of the Syrian desert. These two names represent West and East.
 2, 14: Bondman by birth: a perpetual slave, different from the debt-slave, who was to be freed after six years; cf Ex 21, 2.
 2, 16: Memphis: the capital of Lower Egypt. Tahpanhes: A frontier city of Egypt, east of the Delta. Shave the crown of your head: the spoilation of Judah at the hands of the Egyptians.
 2, 18: Egypt and Assyria were the protecting foreign powers favored by rival parties within Judah. The desire for such foreign alliances is a further desertion of the Lord, the source of living waters (v 13), in favor of the above-named powers, symbolized by the Nile and the Euphrates rivers.
 2, 20: Harlotry: idolatry (because Israel is the bride of God).
 2, 23: The Valley: of Ben-hinnom, south of Jerusalem, site of the infamous sanctuary of Topheth where children were sacrificed to Molech; cf 7, 31.

- No beasts need tire themselves seeking her;
in her month they will meet her.
- 25* Stop wearing out your shoes and parching your throat!
But you say, "No use! no!
I love these strangers,
and after them I must go."
- 26* As the thief is shamed when caught,
so shall the house of Israel be shamed:
They, their kings and their princes, their priests and their prophets;
- 27 They who say to a piece of wood,
"You are my father,"
and to a stone, "You gave me birth."
They turn to me their backs, not their faces;
yet, in their time of trouble they cry out,
"Rise up and save us!"
- 28* Where are the gods you made for yourselves?
Let them rise up!
Will they save you in your time of trouble?
For as numerous as your cities are your gods, O Judah!
And as many as the streets of Jerusalem
are the altars you have set up for Baal.
- 29 How dare you still plead with me?
You have all rebelled against me,
says the LORD.
- 30* In vain I struck your children;
the correction they did not take.
Your sword devoured your prophets like a ravening lion.
- 31 You, of this generation,
take note of the word of the Lord:
Have I been a desert to Israel, a land of darkness?
Why do my people say, "We have moved on,
we will come to you no more"?
- 32* Does a virgin forget her jewelry,
a bride her sash?
Yet my people have forgotten me days without number.
- 33 How well you pick your way when seeking love!
You who, in your wickedness,
have gone by ways unclean!
- 34 You, on whose clothing there is the life-blood of the innocent, whom you found committing no burglary;
- 35 Yet withal you say, "I am innocent;
at least, his anger is turned away from me."
Behold, I will judge you on that word of yours, "I have not sinned."
- 36* How very base you have become in changing your course!
By Egypt will you be shamed,
as you were shamed by Assyria.
- 37* From there also shall you go away with hands upon your head;
For the LORD has rejected those in whom you trust, with them you will have no success.

CHAPTER 3

- 1*† If a man sends away his wife and, after leaving him,
she marries another man,
Does the first husband come back to her?
Would not the land be wholly defiled?
But you have sinned with many lovers,
and yet you would return to me!
says the LORD.
- 2*† Lift your eyes to the heights, and see,
where have men not lain with you?
By the waysides you waited for them like an Arab in the desert.
You defiled the land
by your wicked harlotry.
- 3* Therefore the showers were withheld,
the spring rain failed.
But because you have a harlot's brow,
you refused to blush.
- 4 Even now do you not call me, "My father,
you who are the bridegroom of my youth"?
- 5 "Will he keep his wrath forever, will he hold his grudge to the end?"
This is what you say; yet you do all the evil you can.

Judah and Israel. 6* The LORD said to me in the days of King Josiah: See now what rebellious Israel has done! She has gone up every high mountain, and under 25: 18, 12. 18.

26: 48, 27; Rom 6, 36: 2 Chr 28, 16-21.
21. 37: 2 Sm 13, 19.
28: 11, 13; Dt 32, 3, 1: Dt 24, 1-4.
38; Jgs 10, 14. 2: Ez 16, 24f.
30: 5, 3; Neh 9, 26. 3: 6, 15, 8, 12.
32: 13, 25; Dt 32, 6: 2, 20; Dt 12, 2.

†
3, 1: Such remarriage of divorced spouses was forbidden by Dt 24, 1-4. Under this figure the prophet sees the presumption of Judah, the unfaithful spouse, who thinks she can return to the Lord after uniting herself to other gods.

3, 2: An Arab: a marauding nomad who lay in wait for caravans.

every green tree she has played the harlot. <sup>7</sup> And I thought, after she has done all this she will return to me. But she did not return. Then, even though her traitor sister Judah saw <sup>8*</sup> that for all the adulteries rebellious Israel had committed, I put her away and gave her a bill of divorce, nevertheless her traitor sister Judah was not frightened; she too went off and played the harlot. <sup>9*</sup> Eager to sin, she polluted the land, committing adultery with stone and wood. <sup>10</sup> With all this, the traitor sister Judah did not return to me wholeheartedly, but insincerely, says the LORD.

Restoration of Israel

<sup>11*</sup> Then the LORD said to me: Rebel Israel is inwardly more just than traitorous Judah. <sup>12*</sup> Go, proclaim these words toward the north, and say:

Return, rebel Israel, says the LORD,
I will not remain angry with you;
For I am merciful, says the LORD,
I will not continue my wrath forever.

<sup>13*</sup> Only know your guilt:
how you rebelled against the LORD, your God,
How you ran hither and yon to strangers
[under every green tree]
and would not listen to my voice,
says the LORD.

<sup>14*</sup> †Return, rebellious children, says the LORD,
for I am your Master;
I will take you, one from a city, two from a clan,
and bring you to Zion.

<sup>15*</sup> I will appoint over you shepherds
after my own heart, who will shepherd you wisely and prudently.

<sup>16</sup> When you multiply and become fruitful in the land,
says the LORD,
They will in those days no longer
say,
"The ark of the covenant of the LORD!"
They will no longer think of it, or remember it,
or miss it, or make another.

<sup>17*</sup> At that time they will call Jerusalem the LORD's throne; there all nations will be gathered together to honor the name of the LORD at Jerusalem, and they will walk no longer in their hard-hearted wickedness. <sup>18*</sup> In those days the house of Judah will join the house of Israel; together they will come from the land of the north to the land which I gave to your fathers as a heritage.

Conditions for Forgiveness

<sup>19*</sup> I had thought:
How I should like to treat you as sons,
And give you a pleasant land, a heritage most beautiful among
the nations!
You would call me, "My Father," I thought,
and never cease following me.
<sup>20*</sup> But like a woman faithless to her lover, even so have you been faithless to
me,
O house of Israel, says the LORD.
<sup>21</sup> A cry is heard on the heights!
the plaintive weeping of Israel's children,
Because they have perverted their ways
and forgotten the LORD, their God.
<sup>22*</sup> Return, rebellious children, and I will cure you of your rebel-ling.
"Here we are, we now come to you because you are the LORD, our
God.
<sup>23*</sup> Deceptive indeed are the hills,
the thronging mountains;
In the LORD, our God, alone is the salvation of Israel.
<sup>24†</sup> The shame-god has devoured
our fathers' toil from our youth,
Their sheep and their cattle,
their sons and their daughters.
<sup>25*</sup> Let us lie down in our shame, let our disgrace cover us,
for we have sinned against the
LORD, our God,
From our youth to this day, we and our fathers also;
we listened not to the voice of the LORD, our God."

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1*</sup> If you wish to return, O Israel, says
the LORD,
return to me.

---

8: 2 Kgs 17, 6.18-	15.
23; Ez 23, 11.	17: Is 2, 2.
9: 2, 27.	18: 30, 3; 31, 8.
11: Ez 16, 51; 23,	19: 31, 9.20; Is 63,
11.	16.
12: Dt 4, 29ff.	20: 5, 11.
13: 2, 20.25; Lv 26,	22: Hos 3, 5.
40.	23: 14, 8.
14: 23, 3; Is 10, 21f.	25: 16, 11f; 22, 21.
15: Ez 34, 23; Jn 21,	4, 1: 25, 5.

† 3, 14-18: A remnant of Israel (14) will reunite with Judah (18). The elementary cult of the Lord represented by the ark of the covenant will now be replaced by a more deeply spiritual and universal alliance, symbolized by his throne in the ideal Jerusalem around which all nations will be gathered together (17).

3, 24: Shame-god: literally, shame, a term commonly substituted for Baal, the Canaanite god with many local shrines.

If you put your detestable things out of my sight,
and do not stray,
2*† Then you can swear, "As the LORD lives," in truth, in judgment, and in justice;
Then shall the nations use his name
in blessing, and glory in him.

3* For to the men of Judah and to Jerusalem, thus says the LORD:

Till your untilled ground,
sow not among thorns.
4*† For the sake of the LORD, be circumcised, remove the foreskins of your hearts,
O men of Judah and citizens of Jerusalem;
Lest my anger break out like fire,
and burn till none can quench it,
because of your evil deeds.

The Invasion from the North

5 Proclaim it in Judah, make it heard in Jerusalem;
Blow the trumpet through the land,
summon the recruits!
Say, "Fall in, let us march to the fortified cities."
6 Bear the standard to Zion, seek refuge without delay!
Evil I bring from the north,
and great destruction.
7* Up comes the lion from his lair, the destroyer of nations has set
out,
has left his place,
To turn your land into desolation,
till your cities lie waste and empty.
8* So gird yourselves with sackcloth, mourn and wail:
"The blazing wrath of the LORD is not turned away from us."

9 In that day, says the LORD,
The king will lose heart, and the princes;
the priests will be amazed,
and the prophets stunned.

10*† "Alas! Lord God," they will say,
"You only deceived us
When you said: Peace shall be yours;
for the sword touches our very soul."

11 At that time it will be said of this people and of Jerusalem,
"From the glaring heights through the desert
a wind comes toward the daughter of my people."

12* Not to winnow, not to cleanse, does this wind from the heights
come at my bidding;

And I myself now pronounce sentence upon them.

13 Seel like storm clouds he advances, like a hurricane his chariots;
Swifter than eagles are his steeds:
"Woe to us! we are ruined."

14 Cleanse your heart of evil, O Jerusalem,
that you may be saved.
How long must your pernicious
thoughts
lodge within you?

15 Listen! They proclaim it from Dan, from Mount Ephraim they announce destruction:

16* "Make this known to the nations,
announce it to Jerusalem:
The besiegers are coming from the distant land,
shouting their war cry against the cities of Judah."

17* Like watchmen of the fields they surround her,
for she has rebelled against me,
says the LORD.

18* Your conduct, your misdeeds, have
done this to you;
how bitter is this disaster of yours,
how it reaches to your very heart!

19† My breast! my breast! how I suffer!
The walls of my heart!

My heart beats wildly,
I cannot be still;
For I have heard the sound of the trumpet,
the alarm of war.

20* Ruin after ruin is reported;
the whole earth is laid waste.
In an instant my tents are ravaged:
in a flash, my shelters.

21 How long must I see that signal, hear that trumpet sound!

22* Fools my people are,
they know me not;
Senseless children they are,
having no understanding;

2: 12, 16; Dt 10,	10: 6, 14.
20, Is 65, 16.	12: 1, 16.
3: Hos 10, 12; Mt	16: 5, 15.
13, 7, 22.	17: 6, 3.
4: 9, 24.	18: 2, 17, 19.
7: 2, 15; 5, 6.	20: 10, 20.
8: 6, 26; Is 5, 25.	22: Dt 32, 51, 28.

† 4, 2: As the Lord lives: this oath, made sincerely, implies Israel's return to God and loyal adherence to him. Thus the ancient promises are fulfilled; cf Gn 12, 3; 18, 18; 22, 18; 26, 4; Ps 72, 17.

4, 4: The mere external rite of circumcision avails nothing unless accompanied by the removal of blindness and obstinacy of heart; cf Rom 2, 25, 29; 1 Cor 7, 19; Gal 5, 6; 6, 13, 15.

4, 10: You only deceived us: the false prophets blame their deception on God; cf 14, 13-16.

4, 19ff: Probably the prophet's own anguish at the coming destruction of Judah.

- They are wise in evil,
but know not how to do good.
- 23* I looked at the earth, and it was waste and void;
at the heavens, and their light had gone out!
- 24 I looked at the mountains, and they were trembling,
and all the hills were crumbling!
- 25 I looked and behold, there was no man;
even the birds of the air had flown away!
- 26* I looked and behold, the garden land was a desert, with all its cities destroyed before the LORD, before his blazing wrath.
- 27* For thus says the LORD:
Waste shall the whole land be;
I will [not] wholly destroy it.
- 28* Because of this the earth shall mourn,
the heavens above shall darken;
I have spoken, I will not repent,
I have resolved, I will not turn back.
- 29 At the shout of horseman and bowman each city takes to flight;
They shrink into the thickets,
they scale the rocks:
All the cities are abandoned,
and no one dwells in them.
- 30 You now who are doomed, what do you mean by putting on purple,
bedecking yourself with gold,
Shading your eyes with cosmetics, beautifying yourself in vain?
Your lovers spurn you,
they seek your life.
- 31* Yes, I hear the moaning, as of a woman in travail, like the anguish of a mother with her first child—
The cry of daughter Zion gasping, as she stretches forth her hands:
"Ah, woe is me! I sink exhausted before the slayers!"

CHAPTER 5

Universal Corruption

- 1 Roam the streets of Jerusalem,
look about and observe,
Search through her public places, to find even one Who lives uprightly
and seeks to be faithful,
and I will pardon her!
- 2 Though they say, "As the LORD lives," they swear falsely.
- 3* O LORD, do your eyes not look for honesty?
You struck them, but they did not cringe;

- you laid them low, but they refused correction;
They set their faces harder than stone,
and refused to return to you.
- 4* It is only the lowly, I thought,
who are foolish;
For they know not the way of the LORD,
their duty to their God.
- 5* I will go to the great ones and speak with them;
For they know the way of the LORD,
their duty to their God.
But, one and all, they had broken the yoke, torn off the harness.
- 6 Therefore lions from the forest slay them,
wolves of the desert ravage them,
Leopards keep watch round their cities:
all who come out are torn to pieces
For their many crimes and their numerous rebellions.
- 7 Why should I pardon you these things?
Your sons have forsaken me,
they swear by gods that are not.
I fed them, but they committed adultery;
to the harlot's house they throng.
- 8* Lustful stallions they are,
each neighs after another's wife.
- 9 Shall I not punish them for these things?
says the LORD;
On a nation such as this shall I not take vengeance?
- 10* Climb to her terraces, and ravage them, destroy them [not] wholly.
Tear away her tendrils,
they do not belong to the LORD.
- 11* For they have openly rebelled against me,
both the house of Israel and the house of Judah,
says the LORD.
- 12*† They denied the LORD, saying, "Not he—
No evil shall befall us, neither sword nor famine shall we see.
- 13 The prophets have become wind,
and the word is not in them.

---

23: Is 24, 1.3	4: 8, 7.
26: Lv 26, 31.	5: 6, 13.
27: 5, 18.	8: 13, 27.
28: Is 24, 4.	10: 2, 21.
31: 6, 24.	11: 3, 20.
5, 3: 2, 30.	12: 14, 13; Is 28, 15.

† 5, 12: They denied the Lord: the people act as though God does not exist and will not interfere.

- May their threats be carried out against themselves!"
- 14 Now, for this that you have said, says the LORD, the God of hosts— Behold, I make my words in your mouth, a fire, And this people is the wood that it shall devour!—
- 15* Beware, I will bring against you a nation from afar, O house of Israel, says the LORD; A long-lived nation, an ancient nation, a people whose language you know not, whose speech you cannot understand.
- 16 Their quivers are like open graves; all of them are warriors.
- 17* They will devour your harvest and your bread, devour your sons and your daughters, Devour your sheep and cattle, devour your vines and fig trees; They will beat flat with the sword the fortified city in which you trust.
- 18* Yet even in those days, says the LORD, I will not wholly destroy you.
- 19 And when they ask, "Why has the LORD done all these things to us?" say to them, "As you have forsaken me to serve strange gods in your own land, so shall you serve strangers in a land not your own."
- 20 Announce this to the house of Jacob, proclaim it in Judah:
- 21* Pay attention to this, foolish and senseless people Who have eyes and see not, who have ears and hear not.
- 22* Should you not fear me, says the LORD, should you not tremble before me? I made the sandy shore the sea's limit, which by eternal decree it may not overstep. Toss though it may, it is to no avail; though its billows roar, they cannot pass.
- 23 But this people's heart is stubborn and rebellious; they turn and go away,
- 24*† And say not in their hearts, "Let us fear the LORD, our God, Who gives us rain early and late, in its time; Who watches for us over the appointed weeks of harvest."
- 25* Your crimes have prevented these things, your sins have turned back these blessings from you.
- 26* For there are among my people criminals; like fowlers they set traps, but it is men they catch.
- 27 Their houses are as full of treachery as a bird-cage is of birds; Therefore they grow powerful and rich,
- 28* fat and sleek. They go their wicked way; justice they do not defend By advancing the claim of the fatherless or judging the cause of the poor. Shall I not punish these things? says the LORD; on a nation such as this shall I not take vengeance?
- 30 A shocking, horrible thing has happened in the land:
- 31* The prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests teach as they wish; Yet my people will have it so; what will you do when the end comes?

CHAPTER 6

The Enemy at the Gates

- 1* Flee, sons of Benjamin, out of Jerusalem! Blow the trumpet in Tekoa, raise a signal over Beth-hacherem; For evil threatens from the north, and mighty destruction.
- 2 O lovely and delicate daughter Zion, you are ruined!
- 3*† Against her, shepherds come with their flocks; all around, they pitch their tents, each one grazes his portion.
- 4 "Prepare for war against her, Up! let us rush upon her at mid-day! Alas! the day is waning, evening shadows lengthen;
- 5* Up! let us rush upon her by night, destroy her palaces!"
- 6* For thus says the LORD of hosts: Hew down her trees,

15: Dt 28, 49.	26: Prv 1, 11.
17: Dt 28, 31.	28: 12, 1; Is 1, 23
18: 4, 27.	31: 14, 14; Mi 2, 11
21: Is 6, 9.	6: 1, 14f.
22: Jb 38, 10f.	3: 4, 17.
24: Gn 8, 22; Dt 11, 14.	5: 2 Chr 36, 19.
25: 2, 17, 19.	6: 32, 24; Zep 3, 1-4.

†

5, 24: Rain early and late: autumn and spring rains respectively. Appointed weeks of harvest: the seven weeks between the Passover (Dt 16, 9f) and Pentecost, during which it ordinarily did not rain.

6, 3: Shepherds . . . with their flocks: foreign invaders with their armies.

- throw up a siege mound against Jerusalem.
Woe to the city marked for punishment;
nought but oppression within her!
- 7* As the well gushes out its waters,
so she gushes out her wickedness.
Violence and destruction resound in her;
ever before me are wounds and blows.
- 8 Be warned, O Jerusalem, lest I be estranged from you;
Lest I turn you into a desert,
a land where no man dwells.
- 9 Thus says the LORD of hosts:
Glean, glean like a vine
the remnant of Israel;
Pass your hand, like a vintager, repeatedly over the tendrils.
- 10* To whom shall I speak?
whom shall I warn, and be heard?
See! their ears are uncircumcised,
they cannot give heed;
See, the word of the LORD has become for them an object of scorn, which they will not have.
- 11* Therefore my wrath brims up within me,
I am weary of holding it in;
I will pour it out upon the child in the street,
upon the young men gathered together.
Yes, all will be taken, husband and wife, graybeard with ancient.
- 12* Their houses will fall to strangers, their fields and their wives as well;
For I will stretch forth my hand against those who dwell in this land,
says the LORD.
- 13* Small and great alike, all are greedy for gain; prophet and priest, all practice fraud.
- 14*† They would repair, as though it were nought,
the injury to my people:
"Peace, peace!" they say,
though there is no peace.
- 15* They are odious; they have done abominable things,
yet they are not at all ashamed,
they know not how to blush.
Hence they shall be among those who fall;
in their time of punishment they shall go down,
says the LORD.
- 16*† Thus says the LORD:
Stand beside the earliest roads,
ask the pathways of old
Which is the way to good, and walk it;
- thus you will find rest for your souls.
But they said, "We will not walk it."
17† When I raised up watchmen for them:
"Hearken to the sound of the trumpet!"
they said, "We will not hearken."
18 Therefore hear, O nations, and know, O earth,
what I will do with them:
19* See, I bring evil upon this people,
the fruit of their own schemes,
Because they heeded not my words,
because they despised my law.
20* Of what use to me incense that comes from Sheba, or sweet cane from far-off lands?
Your holocausts find no favor with me,
your sacrifices please me not.
21* Therefore, thus says the LORD:
See, I will place before this people obstacles to bring them down;
Fathers and sons alike,
neighbors and friends shall perish.
- 22* Thus says the LORD:
See, a people comes from the land of the north,
a great nation, roused from the ends of the earth.
23 Bow and javelin they wield;
cruel and pitiless are they.
They sound like the roaring sea
as they ride forth on steeds,
Each in his place, for battle against you, daughter Zion.
- 24* We hear the report of them;
helpless fall our hands,
Anguish takes hold of us,
throes like a mother's in childbirth.
- 25 Go not forth into the field,
step not into the street,
Beware of the enemy's sword;
terror on every side!
- 26* O daughter of my people, gird on sackcloth, roll in the ashes.

7: Is 57, 20. 16: 7, 23f; 18, 15.
10: 7, 26; 20, 8. 19: Prv 1, 31.
11: Ez 9, 6. 20: Is 1, 11; 43, 24.
12: 8, 10; Dt 28, 21: Is 8, 14f.
30ff. 22: 1, 15; 5, 15.
13: 8, 10; 23, 11. 24: 4, 31.
14: 8, 11. 26: 25, 34; Am 8, 10.
15: 3, 3; 8, 12. 10.

† 6, 14: As though it were nought: the false assurance of well-being given by priest and prophet cannot reduce the harm which universal materialism and corruption have done to the people.

6, 16: Earliest roads . . . pathways of old: history and the lessons to be learned from it.

6, 17: Watchmen: the prophets who, like Jeremiah, had upheld God's moral law.

Mourn as for an only child with bitter wailing, For sudden upon us
comes the destroyer.

- 27* A tester among my people I have appointed you,
to search and test their way.
28 Arch-rebels are they all, dealers in slander,
all of them corrupt.
29 The bellows roars,
the lead is consumed by the fire;
In vain has the smelter refined,
the wicked are not drawn off.
30 "Silver rejected" they shall be called, for the LORD has rejected them.

II: ORACLES MOSTLY IN THE DAYS OF JEHOIAKIM

CHAPTER 7

The Temple Sermon. 1† The following message came to Jeremiah for the LORD: 2 Stand at the gate of the house of the LORD, and there proclaim this message: Hear the word of the LORD, all you of Judah who enter these gates to worship the LORD! 3* Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Reform your ways and your deeds, so that I may remain with you in this place. 4* Put not your trust in the deceitful words: "This is the temple of the LORD! The temple of the LORD!" 5 Only if you thoroughly reform your ways and your deeds; if each of you deals justly with his neighbor; 6*† if you no longer oppress the resident alien, the orphan, and the widow; if you no longer shed innocent blood in this place, or follow strange gods to your own harm, 7* will I remain with you in this place, in the land which I gave your fathers long ago and forever.

8 But here you are, putting your trust in deceitful words to your own loss! 9* Are you to steal and murder, commit adultery and perjury, burn incense to Baal, go after strange gods that you know not, 10* and yet come to stand before me in this house which bears my name, and say: "We are safe; we can commit all these abominations again!" 11* Has this house which bears my name become in your eyes a den of thieves? I too see what is being done, says the LORD. 12*† You may go to Shiloh, which I made the dwelling place of my name in the beginning. See what I did to it because of the wickedness of my people Israel. 13 And now, because you have committed all these misdeeds, says the LORD, because you did not listen, though I spoke to you untiringly; because you did not answer, though I called you, 14* I will do to this house named after me, in which you trust, and to this place which I gave to you and your fathers, just as I did to Shiloh. 15* I will cast you away from me, as I cast away all your brethren, all the offspring of Ephraim.

Abuses in Worship 16* You, now, do not intercede for this people; raise not in their behalf a pleading prayer! Do not urge me, for I will not listen to you. 17 Do you not see what they are doing in the cities of Judah, in the streets of Jerusalem? 18*† The children gather wood, their fathers light the fire, and the women knead dough to make cakes for the queen of heaven, while libations are poured out to strange gods in order to hurt me. 19* Is it I whom they hurt, says the LORD; is it not rather themselves, to their own confusion? 20* See now, says the Lord GOD, my anger and my wrath will pour out upon this place, upon man and beast, upon the trees of the field and the fruits of the earth; it will burn without being quenched.

21 Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Heap your holocausts upon your sacrifices; eat up the flesh! 22† In speaking to your fathers on the day I brought them out of the land of Egypt, I gave them no command concerning holocaust or sacrifice. 23* This rather is what I commanded them: Listen to my voice; then I will be your God and you shall be my people. Walk in all the ways that I command you, so that you may prosper.

24* But they obeyed not, nor did they pay heed. They walked in the hardness of their evil hearts and turned their backs, not their faces, to me. 25* From the day that your fathers left the land

27: 1, 18.	2 Kgs 17, 23.
7, 3; 18, 11; 26, 13.	16: 11, 14; 14, 11.
4: Mi 3, 11.	18: 44, 17, 19.
6: Ex 22, 21-24.	19: Jb 35, 6.
7: Dt 4, 40.	20: 36, 29; 2 Kgs
9: 44, 17.	22, 17.
10: 32, 34.	23: 11, 4; Lv 26.
11: Mt 21, 13.	3: 12.
12: Jos 18, 1.	24: 17, 23.
14: 26, 9.	25: 2 Chr 36, 15f;
15: 1 Kgs 9, 7;	Bar 1, 19.

†

7, 1-15: The temple of the Lord will not serve as a place of refuge for the Jews against their enemies if they fail to reform their evil ways.

7, 6: The resident alien: specially protected by law; cf Ex 20, 10; Nm 9, 14; 15, 14; Dt 5, 14; 28, 43.

7, 12: Shiloh: original place of worship from the time of Joshua to that of Samuel. The sanctuary was later rejected by God and destroyed by the Philistines; cf 1 Sm 1, 9, 4, 3f; Ps 78, 60, 68f.

7, 18: Queen of heaven: the Assyro-Babylonian Ishtar, goddess of fertility, whose worship was introduced under King Manasseh and was revived after Josiah's death. Cakes shaped like stars (Ishtar was identified with the planet Venus) were offered in her honor.

7, 22: I gave them no command: right conduct rather than mere external cult was God's will concerning his people (v 23).

of Egypt even to this day, I have sent you untiringly all my servants the prophets. <sup>26*</sup> Yet they have not obeyed me nor paid heed; they have stiffened their necks and done worse than their fathers. <sup>27</sup> When you speak all these words to them, they will not listen to you either; when you call to them, they will not answer you. <sup>28</sup> Say to them: This is the nation which does not listen to the voice of the LORD, its God, or take correction. Faithfulness has disappeared; the word itself is banished from their speech.

<sup>29*</sup>†Cut off your dedicated hair and throw it away!

on the heights intone an elegy;
For the LORD has rejected and cast off

the generation that draws down his wrath.

<sup>30*</sup> The people of Judah have done what is evil in my eyes, says the LORD. They have defiled the house which bears my name by setting up in it their abominable idols. <sup>31</sup> In the Valley of Ben-hinnom they have built the high place of Topheth to immolate in fire their sons and their daughters, such a thing as I never commanded or had in mind. <sup>32*</sup> Therefore, beware! days will come, says the LORD, when Topheth and the Valley of Ben-hinnom will no longer be called such, but rather the Valley of Slaughter. For lack of space, Topheth will be a burial place. <sup>33*</sup> The corpses of this people will be food for the birds of the sky and for the beasts of the field, which no one will drive away. <sup>34*</sup> In the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem I will silence the cry of joy, the cry of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride; for the land will be turned to rubble.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1*</sup> At that time, says the LORD, the bones of the kings and princes of Judah, the bones of the priests and the prophets, and the bones of the citizens of Jerusalem will be emptied out of their graves <sup>2*</sup>† and spread out before the sun and the moon and the whole army of heaven, which they loved and served, which they followed, consulted, and worshiped. They will not be gathered up for burial, but will lie like dung upon the ground. <sup>3</sup> Death will be preferred to life by all the survivors of this wicked race who remain in any of the places to which I banish them, says the LORD of hosts.

Israel's Conduct Incomprehensible

<sup>4</sup> Tell them: Thus says the LORD: When someone falls, does he not rise again?

if he goes astray, does he not turn back?

<sup>5*</sup> Why do these people rebel with obstinate resistance? Why do they cling to deceptive idols, refuse to turn back?

<sup>6*</sup> I listen closely: they speak what is not true; No one repents of his wickedness, saying, "What have I done!" Everyone keeps on running his course, like a steed dashing into battle.

<sup>7*</sup> Even the stork in the air knows its seasons; Turtledove, swallow and thrush observe their time of return, But my people do not know the ordinance of the LORD.

<sup>8*</sup>†How can you say, "We are wise, we have the law of the LORD"? Why, that has been changed into falsehood by the lying pen of the scribes!

<sup>9*</sup> The wise are confounded, dismayed and ensnared; Since they have rejected the word of the LORD, of what avail is their wisdom?

Shameless in Their Crimes

<sup>10*</sup> Therefore, I will give their wives to strangers, their fields to spoilers. Small and great alike, all are greedy for gain, prophet and priest, all practice fraud.

<sup>11*</sup>†They would repair, as though it were nought, the injury to the daughter of my people: "Peace, peace!" they say, though there is no peace.

<sup>12*</sup> They are odious; they have done abominable things, 26: 19, 15; 2 Chr 30, 8.	5: 5, 3; 7, 24, 26. 6: Jb 34, 31f.

29: 9, 17-21.	7: Is 1, 3.
30: 32, 34.	8: Mal 2, 8; Rom 2, 17-23.
32: 19, 6; 32, 35.	9: 1 Cor 3, 20.
33: 16, 4; 34, 20.	10: 6, 13; Dt 28, 30.
34: 16, 9.	11: 6, 14.
8, 1: Bar 2, 24.	12: 6, 15.
2: Dt 4, 19.

† 7, 29: Dedicated hair: the unshorn hair of the nazirite, regarded as sacred because of a vow, temporary or permanent, to abstain from cutting or shaving the hair, from contact with a corpse, and from all products of the vine; cf Nm 6, 4-8. The cutting of this hair was a sign of extreme mourning.

8, 2: Army of heaven: the stars, worshiped by the pagan nations and even by the inhabitants of Jerusalem during the reigns of Manasseh and Amon.

8, 8f: Lying pen of the scribes: because the interpretations and ordinances of the scribes ran counter to the word of the Lord.

8, 11: Daughter of my people: the people itself personified as a woman.

yet they are not at all ashamed,
they know not how to blush.
Hence they shall be among those who fall;
in their time of punishment they shall go down,
says the LORD.

Threats of Punishment

- 13 I will gather them all in, says the
LORD:
no grapes on the vine,
No figs on the fig trees,
foliage withered!
- 14* Why do we remain here?
Let us form ranks and enter the walled cities,
to perish there;
For the LORD has wrought our destruction,
he has given us poison to drink, because we have sinned against
the LORD.
- 15* We wait for peace to no avail;
for a time of healing, but terror
comes instead.
- 16 From Dan is heard
the snorting of his steeds;
The neighing of his stallions shakes the whole land.
They come devouring the land and
all it contains,
the city and those who dwell in it.
- 17* Yes, I will send against you poisonous snakes,
Against which no charm will work
when they bite you, says the LORD.

The Prophet's Grief over the People's Suffering

- 18 My grief is incurable, my heart within me is faint.
- 19* Listen! the cry of the daughter of my people,
far and wide in the land!
Is the LORD no longer in Zion, is her King no longer in her midst?
[Why do they provoke me with their idols,
with their foreign nonentities?]
- 20 "The harvest has passed, the summer is at an end,
and yet we are not safe!"
- 21* I am broken by the ruin of the daughter of my people.
I am disconsolate; horror has seized me.
- 22*† Is there no balm in Gilead,
no physician there?
Why grows not new flesh over the wound of the daughter of
my people?
- 23 Oh, that my head were a spring of
water,
my eyes a fountain of tears,
That I might weep day and night over the slain of the daughter of

my people!

CHAPTER 9

The Corruption of the People

- 1 Would that I had in the desert
a travelers' lodge!
That I might leave my people
and depart from them.
They are all adulterers,
a faithless band.
- 2 They ready their tongues like a drawn bow;
with lying, and not with truth,
they hold forth in the land.
They go from evil to evil,
but me they know not, says the
LORD.
- 3† Be on your guard, everyone against his neighbor;
put no trust in any brother.
Every brother apes Jacob, the sup-planter,
every friend is guilty of slander.
- 4* Each one deceives the other,
no one speaks the truth.
They have accustomed their tongues to lying,
and are perverse, and cannot repent.
- 5 Violence upon violence,
deceit upon deceit:
They refuse to recognize me,
says the LORD.
- 6 Therefore, thus says the LORD
of hosts:
I will smelt them and test them;
how else should I deal with their wickedness?
- 7* A murderous arrow is his tongue,
his mouth utters deceit;
He speaks cordially with his friends, but in his heart he lays an ambush!
- 8* For these things, says the LORD,
shall I not punish them?
On a nation such as this shall I not take vengeance?

Dirge over the Ravaged Land

- 9* Over the mountains, break out in cries of lamentation, over the pasture lands, intone a dirge:

14: 9, 14; 23, 15.	22: 46, 11.
15: 14, 19.	9: 4; 12, 6.
17: Dt 32, 24.	7: Pss 28, 3, 62, 4.
19: Dt 32, 21; Mi 4,	8: 5, 9, 29.
9.	9: 4, 25, 12, 4.
21: 14, 17.

† 8, 22: Gilead: noted for its healing balm but unable to heal the moral wound of the people.

9, 3: Jacob, the supplanter: in Hebrew, a play on words Jacob, as his name indicates ("he supplants"), deprived his brother Esau of his birthright; cf Gn 25, 26, 33.

They are scorched, and no man crosses them,
unheard is the bleat of the flock;
Birds of the air as well as beasts,
all have fled, and are gone.

10* I will turn Jerusalem into a heap of ruins,
a haunt of jackals;
The cities of Judah I will make into a waste,
where no one dwells.

11* Who is so wise that he can understand this? Let him to whom the mouth of the LORD has spoken make it known:

Why is the land ravaged, scorched like a wasteland untra-versed?

12 The LORD answered: Because they have abandoned my law, which I set before them, and have not followed it or listened to my voice, 13* but followed rather the hardness of their hearts and the Baals, as their fathers had taught them; 14* therefore, thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: See now, I will give them wormwood to eat and poison to drink. 15* I will scatter them among nations whom neither they nor their fathers have known; I will send the sword to pursue them until I have completely destroyed them.

16 Thus says the LORD of hosts:
Attention! tell the wailing women to
come,
summon the best of them;

17* Let them come quickly and intone a dirge for us,
That our eyes may be wet with weeping,
our cheeks run with tears.

18 The dirge is heard from Zion: Ruined we are, and greatly ashamed;

We must leave the land,
give up our homes!

19 Hear, you women, the word of the
LORD,

let your ears receive his message.
Teach your daughters this dirge,
and each other this lament.

20* Death has come up through our windows,

has entered our palaces;
It cuts down the children in the street,
young people in the squares.

21 The corpses of the slain lie like dung on a field,
Like sheaves behind the harvester,
with no one to gather them.

True Glory

22* Thus says the LORD:
Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom,

nor the strong man glory in his
strength,
nor the rich man glory in his riches;

23 But rather, let him who glories, glory in this,
that in his prudence he knows me, Knows that I, the LORD, bring about kindness,
justice and uprightness on the
earth;
For with such am I pleased, says the
LORD.

Circumcision Worthless. 24* See, days are coming, says the LORD, when I will demand an account of all those circumcised in their flesh: 25† Egypt and Judah, Edom and the Ammonites, Moab and the desert dwellers who shave their temples. For all these nations, like the whole house of Israel, are uncircumcised in heart.

CHAPTER 10

The Folly of Idolatry

1 Hear the word which the LORD speaks to you, O house of Israel.
2*† Thus says the LORD:

Learn not the customs of the na-
tions,
and have no fear of the signs of the heavens,
though the nations fear them.

3* For the cult idols of the nations are nothing,
wood cut from the forest, Wrought by craftsmen with the adze,

4* adorned with silver and gold.
With nails and hammers they are fastened,
that they may not totter.

5* Like a scarecrow in a cucumber field are they,
they cannot speak;
They must be carried about,
for they cannot walk.

Fear them not, they can do no harm, neither is it in their power to do good.

10: Is 13, 22.

11: Ps 107, 43; Hos

14, 10.

13: 7, 24; 19, 4f.

14: 23, 15.

15: Lv 26, 33; Dt 28,

36.64.

17: 14, 17.

20: 14, 16.

22: Prv 21, 30.

24: 4, 4.

10, 2: Bar 6, 6.

3: Wis 13, 11; Is

44, 9.

4: Is 40, 19; 41, 7.

5: Ps 115, 4-8; Bar

6, 15.

† 9, 25: Desert dwellers . . . temples: Arab tribesmen who cut off their hair and shaved their temples in honor of the pagan god Dushara. This was forbidden the Israelites (Lv 19, 27).

10, 2: Signs of the heavens: phenomena in the sky superstitiously regarded by the pagans as dire omens.

- 6* No one is like you, O LORD, great are you,
great and mighty is your name.
- 7* Who would not fear you,
King of the nations,
for it is your due!
Among all the wisest of the nations,
and in all their domain,
there is none like you.
- 8 One and all they are dumb and senseless,
these idols they teach about are wooden:
- 9 Silver strips brought from Tarshish,
and gold from Ophir,
The work of the craftsman
and the handiwork of the smelter, Clothed with violet and purple—
all of them the work of artisans.
- 11* Thus shall you say of them: Let the gods that did not make heaven and earth perish from the earth, and from beneath these heavens!

- 10* The LORD is true God,
he is the living God, the eternal
King,
Before whose anger the earth
quakes,
whose wrath the nations cannot endure:
- 12* He who made the earth by his power, established the world by his wisdom,
and stretched out the heavens by his skill.
- 13 When he thunders, the waters in the heavens roar,
and he brings up clouds from the end of the earth;
He makes the lightning flash in the rain,
and releases stormwinds from their chambers.
- 14* Every man is stupid, ignorant;
every artisan is put to shame by his idol:
He has molded a fraud,
without breath of life.
- 15 Nothingness are they, a ridiculous work;
they will perish in their time of punishment.
- 16* Not like these is the portion of Jacob:
he is the creator of all things;
Israel is his very own tribe,
LORD of hosts is his name.

Abandonment of Judah

- 17 Lift your bundle and leave the land,
O city living in a state of siege!
18 For thus says the LORD:
Behold, this time
I will sling away the inhabitants of the land;

- I will hem them in,
that they may be taken.
- 19 Woe is me! I am undone, my wound is incurable;
Yet I had thought:
if I make light of my wound, I can bear it.
- 20* My tent is ruined,
all its cords are severed.
My sons have left me, they are no
more:
no one to pitch my tent,
no one to raise its curtains.
- 21* Yes, the shepherds were stupid as
cattle,
the LORD they sought not;
Therefore they had no success,
and all their flocks were scattered.
- 22 Listen! a noise! it comes closer,
a great uproar from the northern
land:
To turn the cities of Judah into a desert haunt of jackals.

Prayer of Jeremiah

- 23 You know, O LORD,
that man is not master of his way;
Man's course is not within his choice,
nor is it for him to direct his step.
- 24 Punish us, O LORD, but with equity, not in anger, lest you have us dwindle away.
- 25* Pour out your wrath on the nations that know you not,
on the tribes that call not upon
your name;
For they have devoured Jacob utterly,
and laid waste his dwelling.

CHAPTER 11

Plea for Fidelity to the Covenant.

<sup>1</sup> The following message came to Jeremiah from the LORD: <sup>2</sup> Speak to the men of Judah and to the citizens of Jerusalem, <sup>3</sup> saying to them: Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Cursed be the man who does not observe the terms of this covenant, <sup>4</sup> which I enjoined upon your fathers the day I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, that iron foundry, saying: Listen to my voice and do all that I command you. Then you shall be my people, and I will be your God, <sup>5</sup> Thus I will fulfill the oath which I swore to your fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey: the 6: Ps 86, 8ff.

7: 5, 22; Ps 47, 2, 8.
10: Ps 10, 16.
11: Ps 96, 5.
12: Ps 104, 5.
14: Rom 1, 22f.
16: 31, 35.
20: 4, 20.
21: 23, 1; Ez 34, 5f.
25: Ps 79, 6f.
11, 3: Dt 27, 26.
4: Dt 4, 20; 1 Kgs
8, 51.

one you have today. "Amen, LORD," I answered.

<sup>6</sup> Then the LORD said to me: Proclaim all these words in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem: Hear the words of this covenant and obey them.

<sup>7</sup> Urgently and constantly I warned your fathers to obey my voice, from the day I brought them up out of the land of Egypt even to this day. <sup>8*</sup> But they did not listen or give ear. Each one followed the hardness of his evil heart, till I brought upon them all the threats of this covenant which they had failed to observe as I commanded them.

<sup>9</sup> A conspiracy has been found, the LORD said to me, among the men of Judah and the citizens of Jerusalem.

<sup>10*</sup> They have returned to the crimes of their forefathers who refused to obey my words. They also have followed and served strange gods; the covenant which I had made with their fathers, the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken.

<sup>11*</sup> Therefore, thus says the LORD: See, I bring upon them misfortune which they cannot escape. Though they cry out to me, I will not listen to them.

<sup>12*</sup> Then the cities of Judah and the citizens of Jerusalem will go and cry out to the gods to which they have been offering incense. But these gods will give them no help whatever when misfortune strikes.

<sup>13*</sup> For as numerous as your cities are your gods, O Judah!
And as many as the streets of Jerusalem
are the altars for offering sacrifice to Baal.

<sup>14*</sup> Do not intercede on behalf of this people, nor utter a plea for them. I will not listen when they call to me at the time of their misfortune.

Sacrifices of No Avail

<sup>15</sup> What right has my beloved in my house, while she prepares her plots?
Can vows and sacred meat turn away your misfortune from you?
Will you still be jubilant
<sup>16</sup> when you hear the great invasion?
A spreading olive tree, goodly to behold,
the LORD has named you;
Now he sets fire to it,
its branches burn.

<sup>17*</sup> The LORD of hosts who planted you has decreed misfortune for you because of the evil done by the house of Israel and by the house of Judah, who provoked me by sacrificing to Baal.

The Plot against Jeremiah

<sup>18</sup> I knew it because the LORD informed me; at that time you, O LORD, showed me their doings.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1*</sup> You would be in the right, O LORD, if I should dispute with you; even so, I must discuss the case with you.

Why does the way of the godless prosper,
why live all the treacherous in contentment?

<sup>2*</sup> You planted them; they have taken root,
they keep on growing and bearing fruit.

You are upon their lips,
but far from their inmost thoughts.

<sup>3*†</sup> You, O Lord, know me, you see me, you have found that at heart I am with you.

Pick them out like sheep for the slaughter, set them apart for the day of carnage.

<sup>4</sup> How long must the earth mourn,
the green of the whole countryside wither?

For the wickedness of those who dwell in it beasts and birds disappear, because they say, "God does not see our ways."

<sup>5</sup> If running against men has wearied you, how will you race against horses?
And if in a land of peace you fall headlong,
what will you do in the thickets of the Jordan?

<sup>6*</sup> For even your own brothers, the members of your father's house, betray you; they have recruited a force against you. Do not believe them, even if they are friendly to you in their words.

<sup>11:19*†</sup> Yet I, like a trusting lamb led

8: 2 Kgs 17, 14,	12, 1: Jb 21, 7; Mal 3,
10: Dt 31, 16; Ez 20,	15,
21-30,	2: Is 29, 13,
11: 14, 12; Mi 3, 4,	3: 17, 18; Jb 23,
12: Dt 32, 37f.	10,
13: 2, 28; Hos 10, 1,	6: 9, 4,
14: 7, 16; 14, 11,	11, 19: 18, 18; 20, 10;
17: Is 5, 2,	Wis 2, 20,

† 12, 3: Jeremiah does not seek private vengeance but the punishment of the wicked by the Lord; cf 20, 12. Nevertheless, the prophet's reaction to persecution shows the difference between the spirit of the Old Testament and the New. 12, 19-23: These verses have been transposed from chapter 11.

to slaughter, had not realized that they were hatching plots against me: "Let us destroy the tree in its vigor; let us cut him off from the land of the living, so that his name will be spoken no more."

20* But, you, O LORD of hosts, O just Judge, searcher of mind and heart,
Let me witness the vengeance you take on them,
for to you I have entrusted my cause!

21* Therefore, thus says the LORD concerning the men of Anathoth who seek your life, saying, "Do not prophesy in the name of the LORD; else you shall die by our hand." 22* Therefore, thus says the LORD of hosts: I am going to punish them. The young men shall die by the sword; their sons and daughters shall die by famine. 23* None shall be spared among them, for I will bring misfortune upon the men of Anathoth, the year of their punishment.

The Lord's Complaint

12:7* I abandon my house,
cast off my heritage;
The beloved of my soul I deliver into the hand of her foes.
8* My heritage has turned on me
like a lion in the jungle;
Because she has roared against me,
I treat her as an enemy.
9* My heritage is a prey for hyenas,
is surrounded by vultures;
Come, gather together, all you beasts of the field,
come and eat!
10* Many shepherds have ravaged my vineyard, have trodden my heritage underfoot;
The portion that delighted me they have turned into a desert waste.
11 They have made it a mournful
waste,
desolate it lies before me,
Desolate, all the land,
because no one takes it to heart.
12* Upon every desert height brigands have come up.
The LORD has a sword which consumes
the land, from end to end:
no peace for all mankind.
13 They have sown wheat and reaped thorns,
they have tired themselves out to no purpose;
They recoil before their harvest,
the flaming anger of the LORD.

Judah's Neighbors. 14*† Thus says the LORD against all my evil neighbors who plunder the heritage which I gave my people Israel as their own: See, I will pluck them up from their land; the house of Judah I will pluck up in their midst. 15* But after plucking them up, I will pity them again and bring them back, each to his heritage, each to his land. 16* And if they carefully learn my people's custom of swearing by my name, "As the LORD lives," they who formerly taught my people to swear by Baal shall be built up in the midst of my people. 17* But if they do not obey, I will uproot and destroy that nation entirely, says the LORD.

CHAPTER 13

Judah's Corruption. 1† The LORD said to me: Go buy yourself a linen loincloth; wear it on your loins, but do not put it in water. 2 I bought the loincloth, as the LORD commanded, and put it on. 3 A second time the word of the LORD came to me thus: 4 Take the loincloth which you bought and are wearing, and go now to the Parath; there hide it in a cleft of the rock. 5 Obedient to the LORD's command, I went to the Parath and buried the loincloth. 6 After a long interval, he said to me: Go now to the Parath and fetch the loincloth which I told you to hide there. 7 Again I went to the Parath, sought out and took the loincloth from the place where I had hid it. But it was rotted, good for nothing! 8 Then the message came to me from the LORD: 9* Thus says the LORD: So also I will allow the pride of Judah to rot, the great pride of Jerusalem. 10* This wicked people who refuse to obey my words, who walk in the stubbornness of their hearts, and follow strange gods to serve and adore them, shall be like this loincloth which is good for nothing. 11* For, as close as the loincloth clings to a man's loins, so had I made the whole house of Israel and the whole house of Judah cling to me, says the LORD; to be my people, my renown, my praise, my beauty. But they did not listen.

20: 15, 15.	12: Is 42, 25; 57, 21.
21: Am 7, 13. 16.	14: 2 Kgs 24, 2.
22: 18, 21f.	15: Am 9, 14.
23: 23, 12.	16: Dt 6, 13.
12, 7: Ps 78, 62; Lam	17: Is 60, 12.
2, 1f.	13, 9: Prv 16, 18.
8: Ps 106, 40.	10: 2, 20; 7, 24; 16,
9: 2 Kgs 24, 2; Is	11.
56, 9.	11: Ex 19, 5; Dt 26,
10: 6, 3; Is 63, 18.	18f.

† 12, 14: My evil neighbors: nations surrounding Israel, the land belonging to the Lord; cf Is 8, 8.

13, 1-11: This is probably a vision of the prophet symbolizing the religious corruption of Judah at the hands of the Babylonians, represented here by the river Parath, the Euphrates, though a spring of the same name, northeast of Anathoth, may be directly meant.

The Broken Wineflask

<sup>12</sup> Now speak to them this word: Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Every wineflask is meant to be filled with wine. If they reply, "Do we not know that every wineflask is meant to be filled with wine?" <sup>13</sup>* say to them: Thus says the LORD: Beware! I am filling with drunkenness all the inhabitants of this land, the kings who succeed to David's throne, the priests and prophets, and all the citizens of Jerusalem. <sup>14</sup>* I will dash them against each other, fathers and sons together, says the LORD; I will show no compassion, I will not spare or pity, but will destroy them.

A Last Warning

- <sup>15</sup> Give ear, listen humbly, for the LORD speaks.
- <sup>16</sup>* Give glory to the LORD, your God,
before it grows dark;
Before your feet stumble
on darkening mountains;
Before the light you look for turns to darkness,
changes into black clouds.
- <sup>17</sup>* If you do not listen to this in your pride,
I will weep in secret many tears;
My eyes will run with tears for the LORD's flock, led away to exile.

Exile

- <sup>18</sup>* Say to the king and to the queen mother:
come down from your throne;
From your heads fall
your magnificent crowns.
- <sup>19</sup> The cities of the Negeb are besieged,
with no one to relieve them;
All Judah is banished
in universal exile.

Jerusalem's Disgrace

- <sup>20</sup>* Lift up your eyes and see men coming from the north.
Where is the flock entrusted to you,
the sheep that were your glory?
- <sup>21</sup>* What will you say when they place as rulers over you those whom you taught to be your lovers?
Will not pangs seize you like those of a woman giving
birth?
- <sup>22</sup>* If you ask in your heart
why these things befall you:
For your great guilt your skirts are stripped away
and you are violated.
- <sup>23</sup>* Can the Ethiopian change his skin?
the leopard his spots?

As easily would you be able to do
good,

- accustomed to evil as you are.
- <sup>24</sup>* I will scatter them like chaff that flies when the desert wind blows.
- <sup>25</sup>* This is your lot, the portion measured out to you from me, says the LORD.
Because you have forgotten me,
and trusted in the lying idol,
- <sup>26</sup>* I now will strip off your skirts from
you,
so that your shame will appear.
- <sup>27</sup>* Your adulteries, your neighings,
your shameless prostitutions:
On the hills in the highlands
I see these horrible crimes of yours.
Woe to you, Jerusalem, how long will it yet be before you become clean!

CHAPTER 14

The Great Drought

- <sup>1</sup>* The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah concerning the drought:
- <sup>2</sup>* Judah mourns,
her gates are lifeless;
Her people sink down in mourning;
from Jerusalem ascends a cry of anguish.
- <sup>3</sup>* The nobles send their servants for water,
but when they come to the cisterns
They find no water
and return with empty jars.
Ashamed, despairing, they cover their heads
- <sup>4</sup>* because of the stricken soil;
Because there is no rain in the land the farmers are ashamed, they cover their heads.
- <sup>5</sup> Even the hind in the field deserts her offspring
because there is no grass.
- <sup>6</sup> The wild asses stand on the bare heights,
gasping for breath like jackals;
Their eyes grow dim, because there is no vegetation to be seen.
- <sup>7</sup>* Even though our crimes bear witness against us, take action, O LORD, for the honor of your name—

13: 25, 15-18; Is 51,

17.

14: 19, 10f.

16: Prv 4, 18f; Is 5,

30; Am 8, 9.

17: 14, 17; Ps 119,

136.

18: 22, 26; 2 Kgs

24, 12, 15.

20: 6, 22f.

21: 2 Kgs 16, 7.

22: Is 47, 2f.

23: Ps 55, 20.

24: Pss 1, 4; 83, 14.

25: Jb 20, 29.

26: Ez 16, 32.

27: 2, 20.

14, 1: Lv 26, 19f.

2: Is 3, 26.

3: Am 4, 8.

4: Dt 28, 23.

7: Dn 9, 4-14.

- Even though our rebellions are many, though we have sinned against you.
- 8 O Hope of Israel, O LORD,
our savior in time of need!
Why should you be a stranger in this land, like a traveler who has stopped
but for a night?
- 9* Why are you like a man dumb-founded,
a champion who cannot save?
You are in our midst, O LORD,
your name we bear:
do not forsake us!
- 10* Thus says the LORD of this people:
They so love to wander
that they do not spare their feet.
The LORD has no pleasure in them;
now he remembers their guilt,
and will punish their sins.
- 11* Then the LORD said to me: Do not intercede for this people. 12* If they fast, I will not listen to their supplication. If they offer holocausts or cereal offerings, I will not accept them. Rather, I will destroy them with the sword, famine, and pestilence.
- 13* Ah! Lord GOD, I replied, it is the prophets who say to them, "You shall not see the sword; famine shall not befall you. Indeed, I will give you lasting peace in this place."
- 14* Lies these prophets utter in my name, the LORD said to me. I did not send them; I gave them no command nor did I speak to them. Lying visions, foolish divination, dreams of their own imagination, they prophesy to you.
- 15* Therefore, thus says the LORD: Concerning the prophets who prophesy in my name, though I did not send them; who say, "Sword and famine shall not befall this land": by the sword and famine shall these prophets meet their end.
- 16* The people to whom they prophesy shall be cast out into the streets of Jerusalem by famine and the sword. No one shall bury them, their wives, their sons, or their daughters, for I will pour out upon them their own wickedness.
- 17* Speak to them this word:

Let my eyes stream with tears day and night, without rest, Over the great destruction which overwhelms
the virgin daughter of my people, over her incurable wound.

18 If I walk out into the field, look! those slain by the sword;
If I enter the city,
look! those consumed by hunger.
Even the prophet and the priest forage in a land they know not.

- 19* Have you cast Judah off completely?
Is Zion loathsome to you?
Why have you struck us a blow that cannot be healed?
We wait for peace, to no avail;
for a time of healing, but terror
comes instead.
- 20* We recognize, O LORD, our wickedness,
the guilt of our fathers;
that we have sinned against you.
- 21* For your name's sake spurn us not,
disgrace not the throne of your glory;
remember your covenant with us,
and break it not.
- 22* Among the nations' idols is there any that gives rain?
Or can the mere heavens send showers?
Is it not you alone, O LORD,
our God, to whom we look?
You alone have done all these things.

CHAPTER 15

- 1* The LORD said to me: Even if Moses and Samuel stood before me, my heart would not turn toward this people. Send them away from me. 2* If they ask you where they should go, tell them, Thus says the LORD: Whoever is marked for death, to death; whoever is marked for the sword, to the sword; whoever is marked for famine, to famine; whoever is marked for captivity, to captivity.
- 3* Four kinds of scourge I have decreed against them, says the LORD: the sword to slay them; dogs to drag them about, the birds of the sky and the beasts of the earth to devour and destroy them.
- 4* And I will make them an object of horror to all the kingdoms of the earth because of what Manasseh, son of Hezekiah, king of Judah, did in Jerusalem.

Scene of Tragedy

- 5* Who will pity you, Jerusalem, who will console you?
Who will stop to ask about your welfare?

9: Is 59, 1f; 63, 19.	20: Ps 106, 6; Dn 9, 5.8.
10: 2, 25.	21: 14, 7; Lv 26, 44; Ps 25, 11.
11: 11, 14; Ex 32, 10.	22: 5, 24; Zec 10, 1.
12: 6, 20; Is 1, 11, 13.	15, 1: Ps 99, 6; Ez 14, 14, 16.
13: 4, 10; 5, 12.	2: 14, 12; Ez 5, 12.
14: 5, 31; 23, 16.	3: Ez 14, 21.
15: 5, 12f.	4: 24, 9; 2 Kgs 21, 11-16; 23, 26; 24, 3f.
16: 7, 33; 19, 7.	5: Is 51, 19.
17: 9, 17.
19: 8, 15; 2 Chr 36, 16.

6* You have disowned me, says the LORD, turned your back upon me;
 And so I stretched out my hand to destroy you,
 I was weary of sparing you.
 7* I winnowed them with the fan in every city gate.
 I destroyed my people through bereavement;
 they returned not from their evil ways.
 8 Their widows were more numerous before me than the sands of the sea.
 I brought against the mother of youths
 the spoiler at midday;
 Suddenly I struck her
 with anguish and terror.
 9* The mother of seven swoons away,
 gasping out her life;
 Her sun sets in full day,
 she is disgraced, despairing.
 Their survivors I will give to the sword before their enemies, says the LORD.

Jeremiah's Complaint

10* Woe to me, mother, that you gave me birth!
 a man of strife and contention to all the land!
 I neither borrow nor lend,
 yet all curse me.
 11* Tell me, LORD, have I not served you for their good?
 Have I not interceded with you in the time of misfortune and anguish?
 15* You know I have.
 Remember me, LORD, visit me,
 and avenge me on my persecutors.
 Because of your long-suffering banish me not;
 know that for you I have borne insult.
 16 When I found your words, I devoured them;
 they became my joy and the happiness of my heart,
 Because I bore your name,
 O LORD, God of hosts.
 17* I did not sit celebrating in the circle of merry-makers;
 Under the weight of your hand I sat alone because you filled me with indignation.
 18* † Why is my pain continuous,
 my wound incurable, refusing to be healed?
 You have indeed become for me a treacherous brook, whose waters do not abide!

Thus the LORD answered me:
 If you repent, so that I restore you,
 in my presence you shall stand;
 If you bring forth the precious without the vile,
 you shall be my mouthpiece.
 Then it shall be they who turn to you,
 and you shall not turn to them;
 20* And I will make you toward this people a solid wall of brass.
 Though they fight against you,
 they shall not prevail,
 For I am with you,
 to deliver and rescue you, says the LORD.
 21 I will free you from the hand of the wicked, and rescue you from the grasp of the violent.

CHAPTER 16

Jeremiah's Life a Warning. <sup>1</sup> This message came to me from the LORD: <sup>2</sup> Do not marry any woman; you shall not have sons or daughters in this place, <sup>3</sup> for thus says the LORD concerning the sons and daughters who will be born in this place, the mothers who will give them birth, the fathers who will beget them in this land: <sup>4*</sup> Of deadly disease they shall die. Unlamented and unburied they will lie like dung on the ground. Sword and famine will make an end of them, and their corpses will become food for the birds of the sky and the beasts of the field.

<sup>5*</sup> Go not into a house of mourning, the LORD continued: go not there to lament or offer sympathy. For I have withdrawn my friendship from this people, says the LORD, my kindness and my pity. <sup>6**†</sup> They shall die, the great and the lowly, in this land, and shall go unburied and unlamented. No one will gash himself or shave his head for them. <sup>7*</sup> They will not break bread with the bereaved to console them in their bereavement; they will not give them the cup of consolation to drink over the death of father or mother.

6: Am 7, 8.	18: 14, 19, 30, 15.
7: Is 41, 16.	20: 1, 18; 6, 27.
9: 1 Sm 2, 5.	16, 4: 7, 33; 22, 18.
10: 20, 14.	5: Ez 24, 16f.
11: 39, 11-14.	6: Lv 19, 28; Dt 14,
15: 11, 20; 12, 3; Ps	1.
69, 8.	7: Ez 24, 17.
17: Ps 25, 4.

† 15, 12-14: These verses are omitted in the text because v 12 in the Hebrew is a dittography of 17, 1, and vv 13-14 are a dittography of 17, 31.

15, 18: A treacherous brook: that dries up when its waters are needed. The prophet complains that he cannot rely on God with unfailing assurance of his assistance.

16, 6f: These verses refer to popular mourning practices, sometimes connected with pagan superstition; cf Dt 14, 1f.

<sup>8</sup> Enter not a house where people are celebrating, to sit with them eating and drinking. <sup>9*</sup> For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Before your very eyes and during your lifetime I will silence from this place the cry of joy and the cry of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride.

<sup>10*</sup> When you proclaim all these words to this people and they ask you: "Why has the LORD pronounced all these great evils against us? What is our crime? What sin have we committed against the LORD, our God?"—<sup>11*</sup> you shall answer them: It is because your fathers have forsaken me, says the LORD, and followed strange gods, which they served and worshiped; but me they have forsaken, and my law they have not observed. <sup>12*</sup> And you have done worse than your fathers. Here you are, every one of you, walking in the hardness of his evil heart instead of listening to me. <sup>13</sup> I will cast you out of this land into a land that neither you nor your fathers have known; there you can serve strange gods day and night, because I will not grant you my mercy.

Return from Exile. <sup>14*</sup> However, days will surely come, says the LORD, when it will no longer be said, "As the LORD lives, who brought the Israelites out of Egypt"; <sup>15*</sup> but rather, "As the LORD lives, who brought the Israelites out of the land of the north and out of all the countries to which he had banished them." I will bring them back to the land which I gave their fathers.

Double Punishment. <sup>16*</sup> Look! I will send many fishermen, says the LORD, to catch them. After that, I will send many hunters to hunt them out from every mountain and hill and from the clefts of the rocks. <sup>17*</sup> For my eyes are upon all their ways; they are not hidden from me, nor does their guilt escape my view. <sup>18*</sup> I will at once repay them double for their crime and their sin of profaning my land with their detestable corpses of idols, and filling my heritage with their abominations.

Conversion of the Heathen

<sup>19*</sup> O LORD, my strength, my fortress, my refuge in the day of distress! To you will the nations come from the ends of the earth, and say,

"Mere frauds are the heritage of our fathers, empty idols of no use."

<sup>20*</sup> Can man make for himself gods?
These are not gods.

<sup>21*</sup> Look, then: I will give them knowledge;
this time I will leave them in no doubt

Of my strength and my power:
they shall know that my name is LORD.

CHAPTER 17

The Sin of Judah and Its Punishment

<sup>1*</sup> The sin of Judah is written with an iron stylus, Engraved with a diamond point
upon the tablets of their hearts.

[And the horns of their altars, <sup>2</sup> when their sons remember their altars and their sacred poles, beside the green trees, on the high hills, <sup>3</sup> the peaks in the highland.]

Your wealth and all your treasures
I will give as spoil.

In recompense for all your sins
throughout your borders,

<sup>4*</sup> You will relinquish your hold on your heritage which I have given you.

I will enslave you to your enemies in a land that you know not:

For a fire has been kindled by my wrath that will burn forever.

True Wisdom

<sup>5*</sup> Thus says the LORD:
Cursed is the man who trusts in human beings,
who seeks his strength in flesh,
whose heart turns away from the LORD.

<sup>6</sup> He is like a barren bush in the desert that enjoys no change of season,
But stands in a lava waste,
a salt and empty earth.

<sup>7*</sup> Blessed is the man who trusts in the LORD, whose hope is the LORD.

<sup>8*</sup> He is like a tree planted beside the waters that stretches out its roots to the stream:

It fears not the heat when it comes,
its leaves stay green;
In the year of drought it shows no distress,

but still bears fruit.

<sup>9</sup> More tortuous than all else is the human heart, beyond remedy; who can understand it?

9: 7, 34; 25, 10.

10: 2, 35; 5, 19; 13,

22.

11: 22, 9; Dt 29, 25.

12: 7, 24ff.

14: 23, 7f.

15: 24, 6.

16: 2 Kgs 24, 2;

Lam 4, 19.

17: 32, 19; Jb 34,

21.

18: Is 40, 2

19: 2, 11; Is 2, 2f.

20: 2, 11; Gal 4, 8.

21: Am 5, 8.

17, 1: Jb 19, 24.

4: 5, 19; Dt 32, 22.

5: Ps 146, 2f.

7: Ps 1, 3.

8: Is 58, 11.

- 10* I, the LORD, alone probe the mind and test the heart,
To reward everyone according to his ways,
according to the merit of his deeds.
- 11* A partridge that mothers a brood not her own is the man who acquires wealth unjustly:
In midlife it will desert him;
in the end he is only a fool.

The Source of Life

- 12* A throne of glory, exalted from the beginning,
such is our holy place.
- 13* O hope of Israel, O LORD!
all who forsake you shall be in disgrace;
The rebels in the land shall be put to shame;
they have forsaken the source of living waters
[the LORD].

Prayer for Vengeance

- 14 Heal me, LORD, that I may be healed;
save me, that I may be saved,
for it is you whom I praise.
- 15* See how they say to me,
"Where is the word of the LORD?
Let it come to pass!"
- 16 Yet I did not press you to send calamity;
the day without remedy I have not desired.
You know what passed my lips;
it is present before you.
- 17* Do not be my ruin,
you, my refuge in the day of misfortune.
- 18* Let my persecutors, not me, be confounded;
let them, not me, be broken.
Bring upon them the day of misfortune, crush them with repeated destruction.

Observance of the Sabbath. 19*† Thus said the LORD to me: Go, stand at the Gate of Benjamin, where the kings of Judah enter and leave, and at the other gates of Jerusalem. 20 There say to them: Hear the word of the LORD, you kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all you citizens of Jerusalem who enter these gates! 21* Thus says the LORD: As you love your lives, take care not to carry burdens on the sabbath day, to bring them in through the gates of Jerusalem. 22* Bring no burden from your homes on the sabbath. Do no work whatever, but keep holy the sabbath, as I commanded your fathers, 23* though they did not listen or give ear, but stiffened their necks so as not to hear or take correction. 24* If you obey me wholeheartedly, says the LORD, and carry no burden through the gates of this city on the sabbath, keeping the sabbath holy and abstaining from all work on it, 25* then, through the gates of this city, kings who sit upon the throne of David will continue to enter, riding in their chariots or upon their horses, along with their princes, and the men of Judah, and the citizens of Jerusalem. This city will remain inhabited forever. 26* To it people will come from the cities of Judah and the neighborhood of Jerusalem, from the land of Benjamin and from the foothills, from the hill country and the Negeb, to bring holocausts and sacrifices, cereal offerings and incense and thank offerings to the house of the LORD. 27* But if you do not obey me and keep holy the sabbath, if you carry burdens and come through the gates of Jerusalem on the sabbath, I will set unquenchable fire to its gates, which will consume the palaces of Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 18

The Potter's Vessel. 1† This word came to Jeremiah from the LORD: 2 Rise up, be off to the potter's house; there I will give you my message. 3 I went down to the potter's house and there he was, working at the wheel. 4* Whenever the object of clay which he was making turned out badly in his hand, he tried again, making of the clay another object of whatever sort he pleased. 5 Then the word of the Lord came to me: 6* Can I not do to you, house of Israel, as this potter has done? says the LORD. Indeed, like clay in the hand of the potter, so are you in my hand, house of Israel. 7* Sometimes I threaten to uproot and tear down and destroy a nation or a kingdom. 8* But if that nation which I have threatened turns from its evil, I also repent of the evil which I threatened 10: 32, 19; 1 Sm 16, 7; Eccl 12, 14.	22: Ex 20, 8; 23, 12.

11: Prv 13, 11; Lk 12, 20.	23: 5, 3; 7, 24.
12: 14, 21.	24: Is 58, 14.
13: 2, 13.	25: 22, 4.
15: Is 5, 19; 2 Pt 3, 4.	26: 32, 44.
17: 16, 19.	27: Ez 22, 8.
18: 15, 15; 18, 20-23; Ps 35, 5f.	18, 4: Rom 9, 20f.
19: 7, 2.	6: Wis 15, 7; Is 45, 9.
21: Neh 13, 15-19.	7: 1, 10.
	8: 26, 3; Is 55, 7; Ez 18, 21, 27.

† 17, 19: The Gate of Benjamin: probably the northern gate of the temple area and city wall of Jerusalem; cf 20, 2; 37, 12; 38, 7.

18, 1-12: The lesson of the potter is not that God deals arbitrarily with his people, but that he is almighty to destroy or restore, accordingly as they disobey him or fulfill his plans.

to do. <sup>9</sup>Sometimes, again, I promise to build up and plant a nation or a kingdom. <sup>10*</sup> But if that nation does what is evil in my eyes, refusing to obey my voice, I repent of the good with which I promised to bless it.

<sup>11*</sup> And now, tell this to the men of Judah and the citizens of Jerusalem: Thus says the LORD: Take care! I am fashioning evil against you and making a plan. Return, each of you, from his evil way; reform your ways and your deeds. <sup>12*</sup> But they will say, "No use! We will follow our own devices; each one of us will behave according to the stubbornness of his evil heart!"

Judah's Apostasy Unnatural

- <sup>13*</sup> Therefore thus says the LORD:
Ask among the nations—
who has ever heard the like?
Truly horrible things
has virgin Israel done!
<sup>14†</sup> Does the snow of Lebanon desert the rocky heights?
Do the gushing waters dry up that flow fresh down the mountains?
<sup>15*</sup> Yet my people have forgotten me:
they burn incense to a thing that does not exist.
They stumble out of their ways,
the paths of old,
To travel on bypaths,
not the beaten track.
<sup>16*</sup> Their land shall be turned into a desert,
an object of lasting ridicule:
All passers-by will be amazed,
will shake their heads.
<sup>17*</sup> Like the east wind, I will scatter
them
before their enemies;
I will show them my back, not my face,
in their day of disaster.

Another Prayer for Vengeance.

<sup>18*</sup> "Come," they said, "let us contrive a plot against Jeremiah. It will not mean the loss of instruction from the priests, nor of counsel from the wise, nor of messages from the prophets. And so, let us destroy him by his own tongue; let us carefully note his every word."

- <sup>19</sup> Heed me, O LORD, and listen to what my adversaries
say.
<sup>20*</sup> Must good be repaid with evil that they should dig a pit to take my life?
Remember that I stood before you
to speak in their behalf, to turn away your wrath from
them.
<sup>21†</sup> So now, deliver their children to famine,
do away with them by the sword.

Let their wives be made childless and widows;
let their men die of pestilence, their young men be slain by the sword in battle.

- <sup>22</sup> May cries be heard from their homes,
when suddenly you send plunderers against them.
For they have dug a pit to capture
me,
they have hid snares for my feet;
<sup>23*</sup> But you, O LORD, know all their plans to slay me.
Forgive not their crime,
blot not out their sin in your sight!
Let them go down before you, proceed against them in the time of your anger.

CHAPTER 19

Symbol of the Potter's Flask. <sup>1</sup> Thus said the LORD: Go, buy a potter's earthen flask. Take along some of the elders of the people and of the priests, <sup>2†</sup> and go out toward the Valley of Ben-hinnom, at the entrance of the Potsherd Gate; there proclaim the words which I will speak to you: <sup>3</sup> Listen to the word of the LORD, kings of Judah and citizens of Jerusalem: Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I am going to bring such evil upon this place that all who hear of it will feel their ears tingle. <sup>4*</sup> This is because they have forsaken me and alienated this place by burning in it incense to strange gods which neither they nor their fathers knew; and the kings of Judah have filled this place with the blood of the innocent. <sup>5*</sup> They have built high places for Baal to immolate their sons in fire as holocausts to Baal: such a thing as I neither commanded nor spoke of, nor did it ever enter my mind. <sup>6*</sup> Therefore, days will come, says the LORD, when this place will no longer

10: Nm 14, 22f.	15f.
11: 7, 3; 25, 5; 35, 15.	20: Ps 35, 12.
12: 2, 25; 7, 24.	21: Ps 109, 9f.
13: 2, 10f; 5, 30.	23: Neh 4, 5; Pss 35, 4; 37, 32f.
15: 2, 13.32.	19, 4: 1, 16; 2 Kgs 21, 16; 24, 4.
16: 19, 8; Lv 26, 32; 1 Kgs 9, 8.	5: 7, 31f; 32, 35.
17: Prv 1, 24-31.	6: 7, 32.
18: 11, 19; Ps 35,

† 18, 14: Lebanon: here apparently including Mount Hermon, whose snow-capped peak can be seen from parts of Palestine all year round. The prophet contrasts the certainties of nature with Israel's unnatural desertion of the Lord for idols (v 15).

18, 21: In the Old Testament a man's family was regarded as part of his personality, to be rewarded or punished along with him; cf Jos 7, 24f.

19, 2: Potsherd Gate: in the south wall of Jerusalem, through which potsherds and other refuse were carried to the Valley of Ben-hinnom.

be called Topheth, or the Valley of Ben-hinnom, but rather, the Valley of Slaughter. <sup>7*</sup> In this place I will foil the plan of Judah and Jerusalem; I will make them fall by the sword before their enemies, by the hand of those that seek their lives. Their corpses I will give as food to the birds of the sky and the beasts of the field. <sup>8</sup> I will make this city an object of amazement and derision. Because of all its wounds, every passer-by will be amazed and will catch his breath. <sup>9*</sup> I will have them eat the flesh of their sons and daughters; they shall eat one another's flesh during the strict siege by which their enemies and those who seek their lives will confine them.

<sup>10</sup> And you shall break the flask in the sight of the men who went with you, <sup>11*</sup> and say to them: Thus says the LORD of hosts: Thus will I smash this people and this city, as one smashes a clay pot so that it cannot be repaired. And Topheth shall be a burial place, for lack of place to bury elsewhere. <sup>12*</sup> Thus I will do to this place and to its inhabitants, says the LORD; I will make this city like Topheth. <sup>13*</sup> And the houses of Jerusalem and the palaces of the kings of Judah shall be defiled like the place of Topheth, all the houses upon whose roofs they burnt incense to the whole host of heaven and poured out libations to strange gods.

<sup>14*</sup> When Jeremiah returned from Topheth, where the LORD had sent him to prophesy, he stood in the court of the house of God and said to all the people: <sup>15*</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I will surely bring upon this city all the evil with which I threatened it, because they have stiffened their necks and have not obeyed my words.

CHAPTER 20

<sup>1*</sup>† Jeremiah was heard prophesying these things by the priest Pashhur, son of Immer, chief officer in the house of the LORD. <sup>2*</sup> So he had the prophet scourged and placed in the stocks at the upper Gate of Benjamin in the house of the LORD. <sup>3*</sup>† The next morning, after Pashhur had released Jeremiah from the stocks, the prophet said to him: Instead of Pashhur, the LORD will name you "Terror on every side." <sup>4†</sup> For thus says the LORD: Indeed, I will deliver you to terror, you and all your friends. Your own eyes shall see them fall by the sword of their enemies. All Judah I will deliver to the king of Babylon, who shall take them captive to Babylon or slay them with the sword. <sup>5*</sup> All the wealth of this city, all it has toiled for and holds dear, all the treasures of the kings of Judah, I will give as plunder into the hands of their foes, who shall seize it and carry it away to Babylon. <sup>6*</sup> You Pashhur, and all the members of your household shall go into exile. To Babylon you shall go, you and all your friends; there you shall die and be buried, because you have prophesied lies to them.

Jeremiah's Interior Crisis

<sup>7†</sup> You duped me, O LORD, and I let myself be duped;
you were too strong for me, and you triumphed.

All the day I am an object of laughter;
everyone mocks me.

<sup>8</sup> Whenever I speak, I must cry out, violence and outrage is my message;

The word of the LORD has brought me derision and reproach all the day.

<sup>9*</sup> I say to myself, I will not mention
him,

I will speak in his name no more.
But then it becomes like fire burning in my heart,
imprisoned in my bones;
I grow weary holding it in,
I cannot endure it.

<sup>10*</sup> Yes, I hear the whisperings of many:
"Terror on every side!

Denounce! let us denounce him!"
All those who were my friends are on the watch for any misstep of mine.

"Perhaps he will be trapped; then we can prevail,
and take our vengeance on him."

<sup>11*</sup> But the LORD is with me, like a mighty champion:

my persecutors will stumble, they will not triumph.

In their failure they will be put to utter shame,

to lasting, unforgettable confusion.

7: 7, 33.	3: 6, 25.
9: Lv 26, 29.	5: 2 Kgs 20, 17;
11: 7, 32.	24, 12-16.
12: 2 Kgs 23, 10.	6: 14, 13f; 28, 15.
13: 32, 29.	9: 6, 11; Jb 32, 18.
14: 26, 2.	10: Jb 19, 19; Ps 31,
15: 7, 26; Prv 29, 1.	13; Lk 20, 20.
20: 1, 21, 1.	11: 1, 8; 15, 20.
2: 29, 26.

† 20, 1: Chief officer in the house of the Lord: head of the temple police; cf 29, 26. By entering the temple court (19, 14), Jeremiah had put himself under Pashhur's jurisdiction.

20, 3: Terror on every side: Pashhur will share the fate of doomed Jerusalem and will experience personally all that the people as a whole have had to endure.

20, 4: Babylon: mentioned here for the first time as the land of exile. The prophecy probably dates from after 605 B.C., when Nebuchadnezzar defeated Egypt and made the Chaldean empire dominant in Syria and Palestine.

20, 7: You duped me: to be understood in the light of Jeremiah's intimate dealings with God; cf 15, 18.

- 12* O LORD of hosts, you who test the just,
who probe mind and heart,
Let me witness the vengeance you take on them,
for to you I have entrusted my cause.
- 13* Sing to the LORD,
praise the LORD,
For he has rescued the life of the poor
from the power of the wicked!
- 14*† Cursed be the day on which I was born!
May the day my mother gave me birth never be blessed!
- 15 Cursed be the man who brought the news
to my father, saying,
"A child, a son, has been born to you!"
filling him with great joy.
- 16* Let that man be like the cities which the LORD relentlessly overthrew;
Let him hear war cries in the morning,
battle alarms at noonday,
- 17* because he did not dispatch me in the womb!
Then my mother would have been my grave,
her womb confining me forever.
- 18* Why did I come forth from the womb,
to see sorrow and pain,
to end my days in shame?

III: ORACLES IN THE LAST YEARS OF JERUSALEM

CHAPTER 21

Fate of Zedekiah and Jerusalem.

1† The message which came to Jeremiah from the LORD when King Zedekiah sent him Pashhur, son of Malchiah, and the priest Zephaniah, son of Maaseiah, with this request: <sup>2</sup> Inquire for us of the LORD, because Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, is attacking us. Perhaps the LORD will deal with us according to all his wonderful works, so that he will withdraw from us. <sup>3</sup> But Jeremiah answered them: This is what you shall report to Zedekiah: <sup>4</sup> Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: I will turn back in your hands the weapons with which you intend to fight the king of Babylon and the Chaldeans who besiege you outside the walls. These weapons I will pile up in the midst of this city, <sup>5</sup>* and I myself will fight against you with outstretched hand and mighty arm, in anger, and wrath, and great rage! <sup>6</sup>* I will strike the inhabitants of this city, both man and beast; they shall die in a great pestilence. <sup>7</sup>* After that, says the LORD, I will hand over Zedekiah, king of Judah, and his ministers and the people in this city who survive pestilence, sword, and famine, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, into the hands of their enemies and those who seek their lives. He shall strike them with the edge of the sword, without quarter, without pity or mercy. <sup>8</sup>* And to this people you shall say: Thus says the LORD: See, I am giving you a choice between life and death. <sup>9</sup> Whoever remains in this city shall die by the sword or famine or pestilence. But whoever leaves and surrenders to the besieging Chaldeans shall live and have his life as booty. <sup>10</sup>† For I have turned against this city, for its woe and not for its good, says the LORD. It shall be given into the power of the king of Babylon who shall burn it with fire.

Oracles regarding the Kings

- 11† To the royal house of Judah:
Hear the word of the LORD, <sup>12</sup>* O house of David!
Thus says the LORD:
Each morning dispense justice,
rescue the oppressed from the hand of the oppressor, Lest my fury break out like fire which burns without being quenched, because of the evil of your deeds.
- 13† Beware! I am against you, Valley-site,

12: 11, 20.	5: Is 63, 10; Lam 2.
13: Pss 35, 9f; 109, 30f.	6: 16, 4.
14: 15, 10; Jb 3, 1-10; 10, 18.	7: 24, 8ff; Dt 28, 49f.
16: Gn 19, 25; Is 13, 19.	8: 21, 9; Dt 30, 15, 19.
17: Jb 3, 10f; 10, 19.	12: 4, 4; 22, 3; Zec 7, 9.
18: Jb 14, 1.
21, 4: 37, 8ff.

† 20, 14-18: Deception, sorrow and terror have brought the prophet close to the point of despair; nevertheless he has expressed his utmost confidence in the triumph of God's will (vv 11ff); cf Jb 3, 3-12.

21, 1: Zedekiah: brother of Jehoiakim, appointed king by Nebuchadnezzar after he had carried Jehoiachin away to captivity (2 Kgs 24, 17). Pashhur: different from the one in 20, 1ff but also one of Jeremiah's enemies; cf 38, 1, 4.

21, 10: Jeremiah consistently pointed out the uselessness of resistance to Babylon, since the Lord had delivered Judah to Nebuchadnezzar (27, 6). Because of this the prophet was denounced and imprisoned as a traitor (37, 13f).

21, 11-23, 8: This section contains an editor's collection of Jeremiah's oracles against the kings of Judah. They are placed in the chronological order of the kings, and are prefaced by the oracles against the kings of Judah in general (21, 11-22, 9).

21, 13: Valley-site, Rock of the Plain: Mount Zion, surrounded by valleys, was regarded by the royal house as impregnable. Despite this natural fortification, God shows denisively that it is no more than a rock rising from the plain, undefendable against the attack of his fury.

Rock of the Plain, says the LORD.
You who say, "Who will attack us, who can penetrate our retreats?"

14*† I will punish you, says the LORD, as your deeds deserve!
I will kindle a fire in its forest that shall devour all its surroundings.

CHAPTER 22

1 The LORD told me this: Go down to the palace of the king of Judah and there deliver this message: 2* You shall say: Listen to the word of the LORD, king of Judah, who sit on the throne of David, you, your ministers, and your people that enter by these gates! 3* Thus says the LORD: Do what is right and just. Rescue the victim from the hand of his oppressor. Do not wrong or oppress the resident alien, the orphan, or the widow, and do not shed innocent blood in this place. 4 If you carry out these commands, kings who succeed to the throne of David will continue to enter the gates of this palace, riding in chariots or mounted on horses, with their ministers, and their people. 5 But if you do not obey these commands, I swear by myself, says the LORD: this palace shall become rubble. 6† For thus says the LORD concerning the palace of the king of Judah:

Though you be to me like Gilead,
like the peak of Lebanon,
I will turn you into a waste,
a city uninhabited.

7* Against you I will send destroyers,
each with his axe:

They shall cut down your choice cedars,
and cast them into the fire.

8* Many people will pass by this city and ask one another: "Why has the LORD done this to so great a city?" 9* And the answer will be given: "Because they have deserted their covenant with the LORD, their God, by worshiping and serving strange gods."

Jehoahaz

10* † Weep not for him who is dead, mourn not for him!
Weep rather for him who is going
away;
never again will he see
the land of his birth.

11† Thus says the LORD concerning Shallum, son of Josiah, king of Judah, who succeeded his father as king. He has left this place never to return. 12 Rather, he shall die in the place where they exiled him; this land he shall not see again.

Jehoiakim

13* † Woe to him who builds his house on wrong,
his terraces on injustice;
Who works his neighbor without pay,
and gives him no wages.

14 Who says, "I will build myself a spacious house,
with airy rooms,"
Who cuts out windows for it, panels it with cedar,
and paints it with vermillion.

15* † Must you prove your rank among kings
by competing with them in cedar?
Did not your father eat and drink?
He did what was right and just,
and it went well with him.

16* Because he dispensed justice to the weak and the poor,
it went well with him.
Is this not true knowledge of me?
says the LORD.

17* But your eyes and heart are set on nothing
except on your own gain,
On shedding innocent blood, on practicing oppression and extortion.

18* † Therefore, thus says the LORD concerning Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah:

They shall not lament him,
"Alas! my brother"; "Alas! sister."

They shall not lament him,
"Alas, Lord! alas, Majesty!"

14: 2 Kgs 25, 9; 2	10: 2 Chr 35, 23ff.
Chr 36, 19.	13: Lv 19, 13; Dt 24,
22, 2: 17, 20.	14: Hb 2, 9.12.
3: 21, 12; Ex 22,	15: 2 Kgs 23, 25.
21-24; Dt 24,	16: Prv 31, 9.
17.	17: Ez 22, 13.27.
7: 21, 14.	18: 16, 4ff; 1 Kgs
8: Dt 29, 24ff.	13, 30
9: 19, 4; 40, 2f.

† 21, 14: Its forest: probably the royal palace, built of cedar wood; cf 22, 14; in 1 Kgs 7, 2 the armory of Solomon's palace is called "the house of the forest of Lebanon."

22, 6: Gilead . . . Lebanon: both were known for their trees; cf v 7.

22, 10: Him who is dead: Josiah. His successor, Jehoahaz, who is going away, was deported by Pharaoh Neco to Egypt, where he died (2 Kgs 23, 33f).

22, 11: Shallum: Jehoahaz is called this only here. Presumably it was his name at birth, while Jehoahaz was his royal name.

22, 13: Without pay: either by forced labor in public works, or inasmuch as workers were defrauded of their hire. Despite the impoverishment caused in Judah by the payment of foreign tribute, Jehoiakim embarked on a program of lavish building in Jerusalem (v 14). Social injustice is the cause of much of the prophetic condemnation of the kings (v 17).

22, 15f: Josiah, the reforming king, prospered materially without oppressing his people; he embodied all the ideals of kingship.

22, 18: "Alas! my brother"; "Alas! sister": customary cries of mourning.

19*† The burial of an ass shall he be given, dragged forth and cast out beyond the gates of Jerusalem.

Jeconiah

20*† Scale Lebanon and cry out,
in Bashan lift up your voice;
Cry out from Abarim,
for all your lovers are crushed.
21 I spoke to you when you were secure,
but you answered, "I will not listen."
This has been your way from your youth, not to listen to my voice.
22 The wind shall shepherd all your shepherds, your lovers shall go into exile.
Surely then you shall be ashamed and confounded
because of all your wickedness.
23 You who dwell on Lebanon,
who nest in the cedars,
How you shall groan when pains
come upon you,
like the pangs of a woman in travail!

24† As I live, says the LORD, if you, Coniah, son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, are a signet ring on my right hand, I will snatch you from it. 25* I will deliver you into the hands of those who seek your life; the hands of those whom you fear; the hands of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and the Chaldeans. 26*† I will cast you out, you and the mother who bore you, into a different land from the one you were born in; and there you shall die. 27* Neither of them shall come back to the land for which they yearn.

28 Is this man Coniah a vessel despised,
to be broken up,
an instrument that no one wants?
Why are he and his descendants cast out?
why thrown into a land they know not?
29 O land, land, land,
hear the word of the LORD—
30*† Thus says the LORD:
Write this man down as one childless,
who will never thrive in his lifetime!
No descendant of his shall achieve a seat on the throne of David as ruler again over Judah.

CHAPTER 23

Messianic Reign. 1*† Woe to the shepherds who mislead and scatter the flock of my pasture, says the LORD.

2* Therefore, thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, against the shepherds who shepherd my people: You have scattered my sheep and driven them away. You have not cared for them, but I will take care to punish your evil deeds. 3* I myself will gather the remnant of my flock from all the lands to which I have driven them and bring them back to their meadow; there they shall increase and multiply. 4* I will appoint shepherds for them who will shepherd them so that they need no longer fear and tremble; and none shall be missing, says the LORD.

5* Behold, the days are coming, says the LORD, when I will raise up a righteous shoot to David;

19: 36, 30.	23, 1: 22, 22.
20: 30, 14f; Dt 32, 49.	2: Ez 34, 4ff; Zec 11, 16f.
25: 21, 7; 34, 20.	3: 29, 14; 32, 37.
26: 2 Kgs 24, 15.	4: 3, 15; Ez 34, 11f.
27: 44, 14.	5: 33, 14ff; Is 4, 2.
30: 36, 30; 1 Chr 3, 16f; Mt 1, 12.	9, 5f; 11, 1-5

†

22, 19: The burial of an ass: no burial at all, except to be cast outside the city as refuse. This prophecy regards the popular feeling toward Jehoiakim rather than the actual circumstances of his burial. According to 2 Kgs 24, 5 he was buried with his fathers in Jerusalem. However, his grave may have been profaned by Nebuchadnezzar.

22, 20-23: The prophet first apostrophizes Jerusalem, which is bidden to scale Lebanon, Bashan, and Abarim, i.e., the highest surrounding mountains to the north, northeast, and southeast, to gaze on the ruin of its lovers, i.e., the false leaders of Judah, called its shepherds (22), cf 2, 8. The year is 597 B.C., after Nebuchadnezzar's deportation of Jehoiachin. Jerusalem still stands (23), apparently as secure as the heights of Lebanon, but destruction is to follow (cf v 6).

22, 24: Coniah: a shortened form of Jeconiah, the name which Jeremiah gives the king called elsewhere in the Bible Jehoiachin. A signet ring: the seal used by important men—in a sense, their most valuable possession—mounted in a ring worn constantly on the hand. The Lord says that even were Jehoiachin such a precious possession, he would reject him. The words in vv 24-30 date from the short three-month reign of Jehoiachin, before he was carried away by Nebuchadnezzar.

22, 26: You and the mother who bore you: the queen mother held a special position in the monarchy of Judah, and in the Books of Kings she is invariably mentioned by name along with the king (1 Kgs 15, 2; 2 Kgs 18, 2). Jehoiachin did indeed die in Babylon.

22, 30: Childless: Jehoiachin is so considered because none of his descendants will be king. From the Book of Ezekiel, who dates his oracles according to Jehoiachin's fictitious regnal years, it is evident that the people expected Jehoiachin to return. The above prophecy of Jeremiah was uttered to dispel this hope (28, 4). Of the seven sons born to Jehoiachin in exile, none became king. His grandson Zerubbabel presided for a time over the Jewish community after the return from exile, but not as king.

23, 1-8: With the false rulers who have governed his people the Lord contrasts himself, the good shepherd, who will in the times of restoration appoint worthy rulers (1-4). A messianic King will arise from the line of David who will rule over Judah and Israel with the justice of the Lord, fulfilling all the kingly ideals (5). "The Lord our justice" is probably an ironic wordplay on the name of the weak King Zedekiah ("The Lord is justice"); the messianic King will be in reality what Zedekiah's name falsely proclaims him. The final verses, 7-8, were probably added during the exile.

As king he shall reign and govern wisely, he shall do what is just and right in the land.
 6* In his days Judah shall be saved, Israel shall dwell in security. This is the name they give him: "The LORD our justice."
 7* Therefore, the days will come, says the LORD, when they shall no longer say, "As the LORD lives, who brought the Israelites out of the land of Egypt";<sup>8</sup> but rather, "As the LORD lives, who brought the descendants of the house of Israel up from the land of the north"—and from all the lands to which I banished them; they shall again live on their own land.

The False Prophets

9† Concerning the prophets: My heart within me is broken, my bones all tremble; I am like a man who is drunk, overcome by wine, Because of the LORD, because of his holy words.
 10* With adulterers the land is filled; on their account the land mourns, the pasture ranges are seared. Theirs is an evil course, theirs is unjust power.
 11* Both prophet and priest are godless! In my very house I find their wickedness, says the LORD.
 12* Hence their way shall become for them slippery ground. In the darkness they shall lose their footing, and fall headlong; Evil I will bring upon them: the year of their punishment, says the LORD.
 13* Among Samaria's prophets I saw unseemly deeds: They prophesied by Baal and led my people Israel astray.
 14* But among Jerusalem's prophets I saw deeds still more shocking: Adultery, living in lies, siding with the wicked, so that no one turns from evil; To me they are all like Sodom, its citizens like Gomorrah.
 15* Therefore, thus says the LORD of hosts against the prophets:
 Behold, I will give them wormwood to eat, and poison to drink; For from Jerusalem's prophets ungodliness has gone forth into the whole land.

16* Thus says the LORD of hosts: Listen not to the words of your prophets, who fill you with emptiness; Visions of their own fancy they speak, not from the mouth of the LORD.
 17*† They say to those who despise the word of the LORD, "Peace shall be yours"; And to everyone who walks in hardness of heart, "No evil shall overtake you."
 18* Now, who has stood in the council of the LORD, to see him and to hear his word? Who has heeded his word, so as to announce it?
 19* See, the storm of the LORD! His wrath breaks forth In a whirling storm that bursts upon the heads of the wicked.
 20 The anger of the LORD shall not abate until he has done and fulfilled what he has determined in his heart. When the time comes, you shall fully understand.
 21* I did not send these prophets, yet they ran; I did not speak to them, yet they prophesied.
 22 Had they stood in my council, and did they but proclaim to my people my words, They would have brought them back from evil ways and from their wicked deeds.
 23*† Am I a God near at hand only, says the LORD, and not a God far off?
 24 Can a man hide in secret without my seeing him? says the LORD.

---

6: Dn 9, 24.	17: 5, 12; Ez 13, 10;
7f: 16, 14f.	Mi 3, 11; Zec 10, 2.
10: 4, 22; 5, 7f; 9, 2.	18: Jb 15, 8; Is 40, 13; 1 Cor 2, 16.
10.	19: 30, 23.
11: 6, 13.	21: 29, 9.
12: Ps 35, 6.	23: 16, 17; Ps 139, 8.
13: 1 Kgs 18, 19.
14: 29, 21ff; Is 1, 9f.
15: 8, 14; 9, 14.
16: 14, 14.

† 23, 9-40: After the collection of oracles against the kings, the editor of the book placed this collection of oracles against the false prophets. With them are associated the priests, for both have betrayed their trust as instructors in the religion of the Lord, cf 2, 8, 4, 9, 6, 13f.
 23, 17-20: Not only are the false prophets personally immoral, but they encourage immorality by prophesying good of those who do evil. The true prophet, on the other hand, sees the inevitable consequences of sin.
 23, 23: Near at hand only... far off: God knows not merely the present but also the future.

Do I not fill both heaven and earth? says the
LORD.

<sup>25</sup> I have heard the prophets who prophesy lies in my name say, "I had a dream! I had a dream!" <sup>26</sup> How long will this continue? Is my name in the hearts of the prophets who prophesy lies and their own deceitful fancies? <sup>27*</sup> By their dreams which they recount to each other, they think to make my people forget my name, just as their fathers forgot my name for Baal. <sup>28*†</sup> Let the prophet who has a dream recount his dream; let him who has my word speak my word truthfully!

What has straw to do with the wheat?

says the LORD.

<sup>29</sup> Is not my word like fire, says the
LORD,
like a hammer shattering rocks?

<sup>30*</sup> Therefore I am against the prophets, says the LORD, who steal my words from each other. <sup>31</sup> Yes, I am against the prophets, says the LORD, who borrow speeches to pronounce oracles. <sup>32*</sup> Yes, I am against the prophets who prophesy lying dreams, says the LORD, and who lead my people astray by recounting their lies and by their empty boasting. From me they have no mission or command, and they do this people no good at all, says the LORD.

<sup>33†</sup> And when this people, or a prophet or a priest asks you, "What is the burden of the LORD?" you shall answer, "You are the burden, and I cast you off, says the LORD." <sup>34</sup> If a prophet or a priest or anyone else mentions "the burden of the LORD," I will punish that man and his house. <sup>35</sup> Thus you shall ask, when speaking to one another, "What answer did the LORD give?" or, "What did the LORD say?" <sup>36</sup> But the burden of the LORD you shall mention no more. For each man his own word becomes the burden so that you pervert the words of the living God, the LORD of hosts, our God. <sup>37</sup> Thus shall you ask the prophet, "What answer did the LORD give?" or, "What did the LORD say?" <sup>38</sup> But if you ask about "the burden of the LORD," then thus says the LORD: Because you use this phrase, "the burden of the LORD," though I forbade you to use it, <sup>39</sup> therefore I will lift you on high and cast you from my presence, you and the city which I gave to you and your fathers. <sup>40*</sup> And I will bring upon you eternal reproach, eternal, unforgettable shame.

CHAPTER 24

The Two Baskets of Figs. <sup>1*†</sup> The LORD showed me two baskets of figs placed before the temple of the LORD.— This was after Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, had exiled from Jerusalem Jeconiah, son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and the princes of Judah, the artisans and the skilled workers, and brought them to Babylon.—<sup>2</sup> One basket contained excellent figs, the early-ripening kind. But the other basket contained very bad figs, so bad they could not be eaten. <sup>3*</sup> Then the LORD said to me: What do you see, Jeremiah? "Figs," I replied; "the good ones are very good, but the bad ones very bad, so bad they cannot be eaten." <sup>4</sup> Thereupon this word of the LORD came to me: <sup>5*</sup> Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Like these good figs, even so will I regard with favor Judah's exiles whom I sent away from this place into the land of the Chaldeans. <sup>6*</sup> I will look after them for their good, and bring them back to this land, to build them up, not to tear them down; to plant them, not to pluck them out. <sup>7*</sup> I will give them a heart with which to understand that I am the LORD. They shall be my people and I will be their God, for they shall return to me with their whole heart. <sup>8*</sup> And like the figs that are bad, so bad they cannot be eaten—yes, thus says the LORD—even so will I treat Zedekiah, king of Judah, and his princes, the remnant of Jerusalem remaining in this land and those who have settled in the land of Egypt. <sup>9*</sup> I will make them an object of horror to all the kingdoms of the earth, a reproach and a byword, a taunt and a curse, in all the places to which I will drive them. <sup>10*</sup> I will send upon them the sword, famine, and pestilence, until they have disappeared from the land which I gave them and their fathers.

27: Jgs 3, 7; 8, 33.	6: 12, 15; Am 9,
28: Nm 12, 6.	15.
30: Dt 18, 20.	7: 30, 22; 31, 1; 32,
32: 28, 15ff.	37; Bar 2, 31
40: 20, 11.	8: 29, 18.
24, 1: Am 8, 1f.	9: 15, 4; Dt 28,
3: 1, 11.	37.
5: 29, 11; Lv 26,	10: 14, 12.
44f.

† 23, 28f: Straw . . . wheat: such is the contrast between false and true prophecy. True prophecy is like fire (cf 5, 14; 20, 9), producing violent results (v 29); Jeremiah's own life is a testimony of this.

23, 33-40: A wordplay on massā', which means both oracle (usually of woe) and burden. In 34ff it appears that the word massā' itself is forbidden the people in the meaning of a divine oracle. Doubtless this was because of some association unknown to us. In Hos 2, 16 it is forbidden to call God "Baal" ("master"), because of the association of this title with the Canaanite god.

24, 1-10: Jeremiah, like Ezekiel, saw that no good could be expected from the people who had been left in Judah under Zedekiah or who had fled into Egypt; good was to be hoped for only from those who would pass through the purifying experience of the exile to form the new Israel.

CHAPTER 25

Seventy Years of Exile. <sup>1*</sup>† The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah (the first year of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon). <sup>2</sup> This word the prophet Jeremiah spoke to all the people of Judah and all the citizens of Jerusalem: <sup>3*</sup> Since the thirteenth year of Josiah, son of Amon, king of Judah, to this day—these three and twenty years—the word of the LORD has come to me and I spoke to you untiringly, but you would not listen. <sup>4*</sup> Though you refused to listen or pay heed, the LORD has sent you without fail all his servants the prophets <sup>5</sup> with this message: Turn back, each of you, from your evil way and from your evil deeds; then you shall remain in the land which the LORD gave you and your fathers, from of old and forever. <sup>6*</sup> Do not follow strange gods to serve and adore them, lest you provoke me with your handiwork, and I bring evil upon you. <sup>7*</sup> But you would not listen to me, says the LORD, and so you provoked me with your handiwork to your own harm. <sup>8</sup> Hence, thus says the LORD of hosts: Since you would not listen to my words, <sup>9*</sup> lo! I will send for and fetch all the tribes of the north, says the LORD (and I will send to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, my servant); I will bring them against this land, against its inhabitants, and against all these neighboring nations. I will doom them, making them an object of horror, of ridicule, of everlasting reproach. <sup>10</sup> Among them I will bring to an end the song of joy and the song of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the sound of the millstone and the light of the lamp. <sup>11*</sup> This whole land shall be a ruin and a desert. Seventy years these nations shall be enslaved to the king of Babylon; <sup>12*</sup> but when the seventy years have elapsed, I will punish the king of Babylon and the nation and the land of the Chaldeans for their guilt, says the LORD. Their land I will turn into everlasting desert. <sup>13</sup> Against that land I will fulfill all the words I have spoken against it [all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah prophesied against all the nations]. <sup>14*</sup> They also shall be enslaved to great nations and mighty kings, and thus I will repay them according to their own deeds and according to their own handiwork.

The Cup of Judgment on the Nations. <sup>15*</sup>† For thus said the LORD, the God of Israel, to me: Take this cup of foaming wine from my hand, and have all the nations to whom I will send you drink it. <sup>16*</sup> They shall drink, and be convulsed, and go mad, because of the sword I will send among them. <sup>17</sup> I took the cup from the hand of the LORD and gave drink to all the nations to which the LORD sent me: <sup>18</sup> [Jerusalem, the cities of Judah, her kings and her princes, to make them a ruin and a desert, an object of ridicule and cursing, as they are today;] <sup>19</sup> Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and his servants, his princes, all the people under him, native <sup>20†</sup> and foreign; all the kings of the land of Uz; and all the kings of the land of the Philistines: Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod; <sup>21</sup> Edom, Moab, and the Ammonites; <sup>22†</sup> all the kings of Tyre, of Sidon, and of the shores beyond the sea; <sup>23†</sup> Dedan and Tema and Buz, all the desert dwellers who shave their temples; <sup>24</sup> [all the kings of Arabia;] <sup>25</sup> all the kings of Zimri, of Elam, of the Medes; <sup>26†</sup> all the kings of the north, near and far, one after the other; all the kingdoms upon the face of the earth [and after them the king of Sheshach shall drink].

<sup>27*</sup> Tell them: Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Drink! become drunk and vomit; fall, never to rise, before the sword that I will send among you! <sup>28*</sup> If they refuse to take the cup from your hand and drink, say to them: Thus says the LORD of hosts: You must drink! <sup>29</sup> For since with this city, which is called by my name, I begin to inflict evil, how can you possibly be spared? You shall not be spared! I will call down the sword upon all who inhabit the earth, says the LORD of hosts.

<sup>30*</sup> Prophecy against them all these things and say to them:

The LORD roars from on high, from his holy dwelling he raises
his voice;

25, 1: 36, 1.	14: 27, 7; 50, 9, 41f;
3: 1, 2.	51, 6, 24.
4: 2 Chr 36, 15.	15: Rv 14, 10.
6: 7, 6f.	16: 51, 7.
7: 7, 17ff.	27: Ob 16.
9: 1, 15; 43, 10.	28: 49, 12.
11: Lv 26, 32-35.	30: 51, 14.
12: Is 13, 20ff.

† 25, 1-14: The fourth year of Jehoiakim: 605 B.C. Officially, the first year of Nebuchadnezzar began the following year, but as early as his victory over Egypt at Carchemish in 605, Nebuchadnezzar was the dominant power in the Near East, in whom Jeremiah now saw the fulfillment of his prophecy of the enemy to come from the north (cf 1, 13; 6, 22ff). In vv 11f occurs for the first time the prophecy of the seventy years' exile; cf 29, 10. This Jeremiah intends as a round number, to signify that the present generation must die out.

25, 15ff: Jeremiah is a prophet to the nations (cf 1, 5) as well as to his own people. All the nations mentioned here appear again in the more extensive collection of Jeremiah's oracles against the nations in chapters 46-51.

25, 20: Uz: the homeland of Job, in Edomite or Arabian territory.

25, 22: The shores beyond the sea: Phoenician commercial colonies planted throughout the Mediterranean world.

25, 23: Dedan and Tema and Buz: North Arabian tribes.

25, 26: Sheshach: Babylon. The word is formed from dābēl by substituting letters of the Hebrew alphabet in inverse order.

- Mightily he roars over the range, a shout like that of vintagers over the grapes.
- 31 To all who inhabit the earth to its very ends
the uproar spreads;
For the LORD has an indictment against the nations,
he is to pass judgment upon all mankind:
The godless shall be given to the sword,
says the LORD.
- 32 Thus says the LORD of hosts:
Lo! calamity stalks
from nation to nation;
A great storm is unleashed from the ends of the earth.
- 33* On that day, those whom the LORD has slain will be strewn from one end of the earth to the other. None will mourn them, none will gather them for burial; they shall lie like dung on the field.
- 34 Howl, you shepherds, and wail!
roll in the dust, leaders of the flock!
The time for your slaughter has
come;
like choice rams you shall fall.
- 35* There is no flight for the shepherds, no escape for the leaders of the flock.
- 36 Listen! Wailing from the shepherds, howling by the leaders of the flock!
For the LORD lays waste their grazing place,
- 37 desolate lie the peaceful pastures;
38* The lion leaves his lair, and their land is made desolate
By the sweeping sword,
by the burning wrath of the LORD.

CHAPTER 26

Jeremiah Threatened with Death.

1† In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah, this message came from the LORD:
2* Thus says the LORD: Stand in the court of the house of the LORD and speak to the people of all the cities of Judah who come to worship in the house of the LORD; whatever I command you, tell them, and omit nothing. 3* Perhaps they will listen and turn back, each from his evil way, so that I may repent of the evil
I have planned to inflict upon them for their evil deeds. 4 Say to them: Thus says
the LORD: If you disobey me, not living according to the law I placed before you 5* and not listening to the words of my servants the prophets, whom I send you constantly though you do not obey them, 6* I will treat this house like Shiloh, and make this the city which all the nations of the earth shall refer to when cursing another.

7 Now the priests, the prophets, and all the people heard Jeremiah speak these words in the house of the LORD. 8 When Jeremiah finished speaking all that the LORD bade him speak to all the people, the priests and prophets laid hold of him, crying, "You must be put to death!" 9 Why do you prophesy in the name of the LORD: 'This house shall be like Shiloh,' and 'This city shall be desolate and deserted?'" And all the people gathered about Jeremiah in the house of the
LORD.

10 When the princes of Judah were informed of these things, they came up from the king's palace to the house of the LORD and held court at the New Gate of the house of the LORD. 11* The priests and prophets said to the princes and to all the people, "This man deserves death; he has prophesied against this city, as you have heard with your own ears." 12 Jeremiah gave this answer to the princes and all the people: "It was the LORD who sent me to prophesy against this house and city all that you have heard. 13* Now, therefore, reform your ways and your deeds; listen to the voice of the LORD your God, so that the LORD will repent of the evil with which he threatens you. 14 As for me, I am in your hands; do with me what you think good and right. 15 But mark well: if you put me to death, it is innocent blood you bring on yourselves, on this city and its citizens. For in truth it was the LORD who sent me to you, to speak all these things for you to hear."

16 Thereupon the princes and all the people said to the priests and the prophets, "This man does not deserve death;
it is in the name of the LORD, our God, that he speaks to us." 17 At this, some of the elders of the land came forward and said to all the people assembled, 18*† "Micah of Moresheth used to prophesy in the days of Hezekiah, king of Judah, and he told all the people of Judah: Thus says the LORD of hosts:

Zion shall become a plowed field,
Jerusalem a heap of ruins,
and the temple mount a forest ridge.

33: 8, 2; 16, 4, 6.	5: 25, 4.
35: 32, 4.	6: 7, 12, 14.
38: 4, 7.	11: 38, 4.
26: 2: 7, 2.	13: 7, 3.
3: 18, 3.	18: Mi 1, 1; 3, 12.

† 26, 1: The beginning of the reign: a technical expression for the time between a king's accession to the throne and the beginning of his first official (calendar) year as king. Jehoiakim's first regnal year was 608 B.C.

18, 18: Micah of Moresheth: the prophet Micah, who appears among the canonical minor prophets (cf Mi 1, 1).

19* Did Hezekiah, king of Judah, and all Judah condemn him to death? Did they not rather fear the LORD and entreat the favor of the LORD, so that he repented of the evil with which he had threatened them? But we are on the point of committing this great evil to our own undoing."

The Fate of Uriah. 20 There was another man who prophesied in the name of the LORD, Uriah, son of Shemaiah, from Kiriath-jearim; he prophesied the same things against this city and land as Jeremiah did. 21 When King Jehoiakim and all his officers and princes were informed of his words, the king sought to kill him. But Uriah heard of it and fled in fear to Egypt. 22 Thereupon King Jehoiakim sent Elnathan, son of Achbor, and others with him into Egypt 23 to bring Uriah back to the king, who had him slain by the sword and his corpse cast into the common grave. 24† But Ahikam, son of Shaphan, protected Jeremiah, so that he was not handed over to the people to be put to death.

CHAPTER 27

Serve Babylon or Perish. 1† [In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah.] . . . this message came to Jeremiah from the LORD: 2 Thus said the LORD to me: Make for yourself bands and yoke bars and put them over your shoulders. 3 Send to the kings of Edom, of Moab, of the Ammonites, of Tyre, and of Sidon, through the ambassadors who have come to Jerusalem to Zedekiah, king of Judah, 4 and charge them thus: Tell your masters: Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: 5* It was I who made the earth, and man and beast on the face of the earth, by my great power, with my outstretched arm; and I can give them to whomever I think fit. 6* Now I have given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, my servant; even the beasts of the field I have given him for his use. 7* All nations shall serve him and his son and his grandson, until the time of his land, too, shall come. Then it in turn shall serve great nations and mighty kings. 8* Meanwhile, if any nation or kingdom will not serve Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, or will not bend its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, I will punish that nation with sword, famine, and pestilence, says the LORD, until I give them into his hand.

9*† You, however, must not listen to your prophets, to your diviners and dreamers, to your soothsayers and sorcerers, who say to you, "You need not serve the king of Babylon." 10* For they prophesy lies to you, in order to drive you far from your land, to make me banish you so that you will perish. 11* The people that submits its neck to the yoke of the king of Babylon to serve him I will leave in peace on its own land, says the LORD, to till it and dwell in it.

12* To Zedekiah, king of Judah, I spoke the same words: Submit your necks to the yoke of the king of Babylon; serve him and his people, so that you may live. 13* Why should you and your people die by sword, famine, and pestilence, with which the LORD has threatened the nation that will not serve the king of Babylon? 14* Do not listen to the words of those prophets who say, "You need not serve the king of Babylon," for they prophesy lies to you. 15* I did not send them, says the LORD, but they prophesy falsely in my name, with the result that I must banish you, and you will perish, you and the prophets who are prophesying to you.

16* To the priests and to all the people I spoke as follows: Thus says the LORD: Do not listen to the words of your prophets who prophesy to you: "The vessels of the house of the LORD will be brought back from Babylon soon now," for they prophesy lies to you. 17 Do not listen to them! Serve the king of Babylon that you may live; else this city will become a heap of ruins. 18 If they were prophets, if the word of the LORD were with them, they would intercede with the LORD of hosts, that the vessels which remain in the house of the LORD and in the palace of the king of Judah and in Jerusalem might not be taken to Babylon. 19† For thus says the LORD of hosts concerning the pillars, the bronze sea, the stands, and the rest of the vessels that remain

19: 2 Chr 32, 26.	10: 14, 13-16.
27: 5: 32, 17.	11: Bar 2, 21.
6: 25, 9; 43, 10; Ez	12: 38, 17.
30, 21, 25.	13: 24, 8ff.
7: 25, 11; 2 Chr 36,	14: 14, 14; 23, 21.
20.	15: 20, 6.
8: 25, 9; Bar 2, 22.	16: 28, 3; 2 Chr 36,
9: 29, 8.	7.10.18.

†

26, 24: Ahikam, son of Shaphan: one of Josiah's officials (2 Kgs 22, 12) and father of Gedaliah, Jeremiah's friend, who was governor of Judah after Zedekiah's deportation (cf 39, 14; 40, 5ff).

27, 1—29, 32: A special collection of Jeremiah's prophecies dealing with false prophets. From stylistic peculiarities, quite evident in the Hebrew, it is plain that these three chapters once existed independently of the other prophecies of Jeremiah.

27, 1: [In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim. . . .] Judah: this gloss cannot be correct because according to 28, 1 the time is the fourth year of Zedekiah 594 B.C., the occasion of an embassy of the neighboring states (v 3), doubtless for the purpose of laying plans against Nebuchadnezzar.

27, 9: Your prophets: seers and diviners served the Gentile kings as the professional prophets served the kings of Judah. 27, 19-22: This prophecy was fulfilled after Zedekiah's disastrous defeat; cf 2 Kgs 25, 13ff.

in this city, <sup>20</sup> which Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, did not take when he exiled Jeconiah, son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, from Jerusalem to Babylon, along with all the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem—<sup>21</sup>* yes, thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning the vessels that remain in the house of the LORD, in the palace of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem: <sup>22</sup> To Babylon they shall be brought, and there they shall remain, until the day I look for them, says the LORD; then I will bring them back and restore them to this place.

CHAPTER 28

The Two Yokes. <sup>1</sup> That same year, in [the beginning of] the reign of Zedekiah, king of Judah, in the fifth month of the fourth year, the prophet Hananiah, son of Azzur, from Gibeon, said to me in the house of the LORD in the presence of the priests and all the people: <sup>2</sup> "Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: 'I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon. <sup>3</sup> Within two years I will restore to this place all the vessels of the temple of the LORD which Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, took away from this place to Babylon. <sup>4</sup> And I will bring back to this place Jeconiah, son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and all the exiles of Judah who went to Babylon,' says the LORD, 'for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.'"

<sup>5</sup> The prophet Jeremiah answered the prophet Hananiah in the presence of the priests and all the people assembled in the house of the LORD, <sup>6</sup> and said: Amen! thus may the LORD do! May he fulfill the things you have prophesied by bringing the vessels of the house of the LORD and all the exiles back from Babylon to this place! <sup>7</sup> But now, listen to what I am about to state in your hearing and the hearing of all the people. <sup>8</sup> From of old, the prophets who were before you and me prophesied war, woe, and pestilence against many lands and mighty kingdoms. <sup>9</sup>* But the prophet who prophesies peace is recognized as truly sent by the LORD only when his prophetic prediction is fulfilled.

<sup>10</sup> Thereupon the prophet Hananiah took the yoke from the neck of the prophet Jeremiah, broke it, <sup>11</sup> and said in the presence of all the people: "Thus says the LORD: 'Even so, within two years I will break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, from off the neck of all the nations.'"<sup>12</sup> At that, the prophet Jeremiah went away.

<sup>12</sup> Some time after the prophet Hananiah had broken the yoke from off the neck of the prophet Jeremiah, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: <sup>13</sup> Go tell

Hananiah this: Thus says the LORD: By breaking a wooden yoke, you forge an iron yoke! <sup>14</sup>* For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: A yoke of iron I will place on the necks of all these nations serving Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and they shall serve him; even the beasts of the field I give him.

<sup>15</sup> To the prophet Hananiah the prophet Jeremiah said: Hear this, Hananiah! The LORD has not sent you, and you have raised false confidence in this people. <sup>16</sup>* For this, says the LORD, I will dispatch you from the face of the earth; this very year you shall die, because you have preached rebellion against the LORD. <sup>17</sup> That same year, in the seventh month, Hananiah the prophet died.

CHAPTER 29

Letter to the Exiles in Babylon. <sup>1</sup> This is the contents of the letter which the prophet Jeremiah sent from Jerusalem to the remaining elders among the exiles, to the priests, the prophets, and all the people who were exiled by Nebuchadnezzar from Jerusalem to Babylon. <sup>2</sup>* This was after King Jeconiah and the queen mother, the courtiers, the princes of Judah and Jerusalem, the artisans and the skilled workmen had left Jerusalem. <sup>3</sup>† Delivered in Babylon by Elasah, son of Shaphan, and by Gemariah, son of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah, king of Judah, sent to the king of Babylon, the letter read:

<sup>4</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, to all the exiles whom I exiled from Jerusalem to Babylon: <sup>5</sup> Build houses to dwell in; plant gardens, and eat their fruits. <sup>6</sup> Take wives and beget sons and daughters; find wives for your sons and give your daughters husbands, so that they may bear sons and daughters. There you must increase in number, not decrease. <sup>7</sup>* Promote the welfare of the city to which I have exiled you; pray for it to the LORD, for upon its welfare depends your own.

<sup>10</sup>* Thus says the LORD: Only after seventy years have elapsed for Babylon will I visit you and fulfill for you my promise to bring you back to this place. <sup>11</sup> For I know well the plans I have in mind for

21f: 2 Kgs 25, 13-17;

2 Chr 36, 18.22.

28, 9: Dt 18, 22.

14: 27, 6f; Dt 28, 48.

16: Dt 13, 6.

29, 2: 2 Kgs 24, 15.

7: 1 Tm 2, 1f.

10: 25, 11; 2 Chr 36,

21f; Ezr 1, 1; Dn

9, 2; Zec 1, 12;

7, 5.

† 29, 3: Elasah: possibly the brother of Ahikam (cf. 26, 24) Gemariah: perhaps the son of the high priest Hilkiah; cf. 2 Kgs 22, 4. Zedekiah had dispatched these men to Nebuchadnezzar for some other purpose, possibly the payment of tribute, but Jeremiah took advantage of their mission to send his letter by them.

you, says the LORD, plans for your welfare, not for woe! plans to give you a future full of hope. <sup>12*</sup> When you call me, when you go to pray to me, I will listen to you. <sup>13</sup> When you look for me, you will find me. Yes, when you seek me with all your heart, <sup>14*</sup> you will find me with you, says the LORD, and I will change your lot; I will gather you together from all the nations and all the places to which I have banished you, says the LORD, and bring you back to the place from which I have exiled you.

<sup>16</sup> Thus says the LORD concerning the king who sits on David's throne, and all the people who remain in this city, your brethren who did not go with you into exile; <sup>17</sup> thus says the LORD of hosts: I am sending against them sword, famine and pestilence. I will make them like rotten figs, too bad to be eaten. <sup>18*</sup> I will pursue them with sword, famine, and pestilence, and make them an object of horror to all the kingdoms of the earth, of malediction, astonishment, ridicule, and reproach to all the nations among which I will banish them. <sup>19*</sup> For they did not listen to my words, says the LORD, though I kept sending them my servants the prophets, only to have them go unheeded, says the LORD.

<sup>20</sup> You, now, listen to the word of the LORD, all you exiles whom I sent away from Jerusalem to Babylon. <sup>15</sup> As for your saying, "The LORD has raised up for us prophets here in Babylon"—<sup>8*</sup> thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Do not let yourselves be deceived by the prophets and diviners who are among you; do not listen to those among you who dream dreams. <sup>9*</sup> For they prophesy lies to you in my name; I did not send them, says the LORD. <sup>21*</sup> This is what the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, has to say about those who prophesy lies to you in my name, Ahab, son of Kolaiah, and Zedekiah, son of Maaseiah: I am handing them over to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, who will slay them before your eyes. <sup>22</sup> All the exiles of Judah in Babylon will pattern a curse after them: "May the LORD make you like Zedekiah and Ahab, whom the king of Babylon roasted in the flames." <sup>23*</sup> For they are criminals in Israel, committing adultery with their neighbors' wives, and alleging in my name things I did not command. I know, I am witness, says the LORD.

The False Prophet Shemaiah. <sup>24</sup> Say this to Shemaiah, the Nehelamite: <sup>25</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Because you sent letters on your own authority to all the people of Jerusalem, to all the priests and to Zephaniah, the priest, son of Maaseiah, with this message: <sup>26†</sup> "The LORD has appointed you priest in place of the priest Jehoiada, so that there may be police officers in the house of the LORD, to take action against all madmen and those who pose as prophets, by putting them into the stocks or the pillory. <sup>27</sup> Why, then, do you not rebuke Jeremiah of Anathoth who poses as a prophet among you? <sup>28</sup> For he sent us in Babylon this message: It will be a long time; build houses to live in; plant gardens and eat their fruits. . . ."

<sup>29</sup> When the priest Zephaniah read this letter to the prophet, <sup>30</sup> the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: <sup>31</sup> Send the message to all the exiles: Thus says the LORD concerning Shemaiah, the Nehelamite: Because Shemaiah prophesies to you without a mission from me, and raises false confidence, <sup>32</sup> says the LORD, I will therefore punish Shemaiah, the Nehelamite, and his offspring. None of them shall survive among this people to see the good I will do to this people, says the LORD, because he preached rebellion against the LORD.

CHAPTER 30

The Restoration. <sup>1†</sup> The following message came to Jeremiah from the LORD: <sup>2*</sup> Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Write all the words I have spoken to you in a book. <sup>3*</sup> For behold, the days will come, says the LORD, when I will change the lot of my people (of Israel and Judah, says the LORD), and bring them back to the land which I gave to their fathers; they shall have it as their possession.

<sup>4</sup> These are the words which the LORD spoke to Israel and to Judah: <sup>5</sup> thus says the LORD:

A cry of dismay we hear;
fear reigns, not peace.

<sup>6*</sup> Inquire, and see:
since when do men bear children?

12: 33, 3.	23: 23, 14.
14: 23, 3, 6.	30, 2: 36, 2; Hb 2, 2;
18: 15, 4; 24, 9, 34.	Rv 1, 11.
17: 1.	3: 29, 14; 31.
19: 25, 4.	8, 10, 23; 32.
8: 27, 9, 14.	37, 44; Ez 39,
9: 5, 31.	25; Am 9, 14.
21: 14, 14.	6: 6, 24; 50, 43.

† 29, 26-29: The words of Jeremiah to the false prophet Shemaiah are not fully preserved in the current Hebrew text, as is seen in the incomplete sentence of this translation (vv 25-28). In his letter to Zephaniah Shemaiah reminds him of his authority, as Pashhur's successor, to imprison Jeremiah. Zephaniah, however, merely reads the letter to Jeremiah but does not imprison him.

30, 1—31, 40: These two chapters do not belong chronologically to those that precede or follow. They contain mainly oracles of salvation which Jeremiah originally uttered on behalf of the conquered remnants of the northern kingdom; then, after Judah began to share Samaria's fate, the oracles were extended to include Judah. Their composition is to be placed early in Jeremiah's ministry, probably after the fall of Nineveh (612 B.C.), when Josiah assumed power over the North; cf 2 Kgs 23, 15ff.

- Why, then, do I see all these men, with their hands on their loins
like women in childbirth?
Why have all their faces turned deathly pale?
- 7* How mighty is that day—
none like it!
A time of distress for Jacob,
though he shall be saved from it.
- 8* On that day, says the LORD of hosts,
"I will break his yoke from off your necks and snap your bonds." Strangers shall no longer enslave them; 9*† instead, they shall serve the LORD, their God, and David, their king, whom I will raise up for them.
- 10* But you, my servant Jacob, fear not,
says the LORD,
be not dismayed, O Israel!
Behold, I will deliver you from the
far-off land,
your descendants, from their land
of exile;
Jacob shall again find rest,
shall be tranquil and undisturbed,
for I am with you, says the LORD,
to deliver you.
- 11* I will make an end of all the nations
among which I have scattered
you;
but of you I will not make an end.
I will chastise you as you deserve,
I will not let you go unpunished.
- 12* For thus says the LORD:
Incurable is your wound,
grievous your bruise;
- 13 There is none to plead your cause,
no remedy for your running sore,
no healing for you.
- 14* All your lovers have forgotten you,
they do not seek you.
I struck you as an enemy would strike,
punished you cruelly;
- 15* Why cry out over your wound?
your pain is without relief.
Because of your great guilt,
your numerous sins,
I have done this to you.
- 16* Yet all who devour you shall be devoured,
all your enemies shall go into exile.
All who plunder you shall be plundered,
all who pillage you I will hand over to pillage.
- 17* For I will restore you to health;
of your wounds I will heal you,
says the LORD.
"The outcast" they have called you,
"with no avenger."
- 18* Thus says the LORD:
See! I will restore the tents of Jacob,
his dwellings I will pity;
- City shall be rebuilt upon hill,
and palace restored as it was.
- 19* From them will resound songs of praise,
the laughter of happy men.
I will make them not few, but many;
they will not be tiny, for I will glorify them.
- 20* His sons shall be as of old,
his assembly before me shall stand firm;
I will punish all his oppressors.
- 21† His leader shall be one of his own, and his rulers shall come from his kin.
When I summon him, he shall approach me;
how else should one take the deadly risk
of approaching me? says the
LORD.
- 22* You shall be my people,
and I will be your God.
- 23* See, the storm of the LORD!
His wrath breaks forth
In a whirling storm that bursts upon the heads of the wicked.
- 24* The anger of the LORD will not abate
until he has done and fulfilled what he has determined in his heart.
When the time comes,
you will fully understand.

CHAPTER 31

Good News of the Return

- 1* At that time, says the LORD,
I will be the God of all the tribes
of Israel,
and they shall be my people.

7: Am 5, 18; Zep 1, 14f.	15: 15, 18. 16: 2, 3.
8: Is 14, 5f; Ez 34, 27.	17: 33, 6. 18: 33, 7, 11; Eze 6, 3-15; Ez 36, 10.
9: Ez 34, 23; 37, 24; Hos 3, 5; Lk 1, 69.	19: Is 35, 10; 51, 11 20: Is 49, 26. 22: 24, 7, 31, 1, 33; 32, 38; Lv 26, 12; Ez 11, 20.
10: 46, 27; Is 43, 5. 11: 46, 28; Ez 11, 16f; Am 9, 8f.	36, 28 23: 23, 19 24: 23, 20
12: 10, 19; 14, 17; 15, 18.	23: 23, 19 24: 23, 20
14: 22, 22; Lam 1, 19.	31, 1: 30, 22.

† 30, 9: David, their king: the messianic King of the Davidic line, often called David by the prophets; cf Ez 34, 23f; 37, 24f; Hos 3, 5.

† 30, 21: His leader: probably not the messianic King, but simply any one of the rulers of the restored Israel, who will no longer be foreigners, and with whom the Lord will be on terms of intimacy, as with the whole people. The deadly risk of approaching me: to approach God unsummoned brings death; cf Lv 16, 1f.

- 2† Thus says the LORD:
The people that escaped the sword have found favor in the desert.
As Israel comes forward to be given his rest,
- 3* the LORD appears to him from afar:
With age-old love I have loved you;
so I have kept my mercy toward
you.
- 4 Again I will restore you, and you shall be rebuilt,
O virgin Israel;
Carrying your festive tambourines, you shall go forth dancing with the merrymakers.
- 5* Again you shall plant vineyards
on the mountains of Samaria;
those who plant them shall enjoy the fruits.
- 6* Yes, a day will come when the watchmen will call out on Mount Ephraim:
"Rise up, let us go to Zion, to the LORD, our God."

The Road of Return

- 7* For thus says the LORD:
Shout with joy for Jacob,
exult at the head of the nations;
proclaim your praise and say:
The LORD has delivered his people,
the remnant of Israel.
- 8* Behold, I will bring them back from the land of the north;
I will gather them from the ends of
the world,
with the blind and the lame in their midst,
The mothers and those with child;
they shall return as an immense throng.
- 9* They departed in tears,
but I will console them and guide
them;
I will lead them to brooks of water, on a level road, so that none shall stumble.
For I am a father to Israel,
Ephraim is my first-born.
- 10 Hear the word of the LORD, O na-
tions,
proclaim it on distant coasts, and
say:
He who scattered Israel, now gathers them together,
he guards them as a shepherd his
flock.
- 11* The LORD shall ransom Jacob, he shall redeem him from the hand of his conqueror.
- 12* Shouting, they shall mount the heights of Zion,
they shall come streaming to the LORD's blessings:
The grain, the wine, and the oil,
the sheep and the oxen;
They themselves shall be like watered gardens,

- never again shall they languish.
- 13 Then the virgins shall make merry and dance,
and young men and old as well.
I will turn their mourning into joy,
I will console and gladden them
after their sorrows.
- 14 I will lavish choice portions upon the priests,
and my people shall be filled with my blessings,
says the LORD.

End of Rachel's Mourning

- 15*† Thus says the LORD:
In Ramah is heard the sound of moaning,
of bitter weeping!
Rachel mourns her children,
she refuses to be consoled because her children are no more.
- 16 Thus says the LORD:
Cease your cries of mourning,
wipe the tears from your eyes.
The sorrow you have shown shall have its reward,
says the LORD,
they shall return from the enemy's land.
- 17* There is hope for your future, says
the LORD;
your sons shall return to their own borders.
- 18* I hear, I hear Ephraim pleading:
You chastised me, and I am chas-
tised;
I was an untamed calf.
If you allow me, I will return,
for you are the LORD, my God.
- 19* I turn in repentance;
I have come to myself, I strike my breast;
I blush with shame,
I bear the disgrace of my youth.
- 20* Is Ephraim not my favored son,
the child in whom I delight?

3: Dt 7, 8; 10, 15;	35, 5f.
Is 43, 4; 63, 9;	9: Ex 4, 22.
Hos 11, 1, 4.	11: Is 44, 23; 48, 20.
5: Is 65, 21; Am 9,	12: Is 58, 11.
14.	15: Mt 2, 18.
6: Is 2, 3; 27, 13;	17: 29, 10-14.
Mi 4, 2.	18: Lv 26, 40ff.
7: Is 12, 6.	19: Dt 30, 1ff.
8: 3, 18; 23, 3; Is	20: Hos 11, 8.

† 31, 2: The people that escaped the sword: the exiles who were not killed but deported, they have found favor in the desert, across which they were driven into captivity. The prophet alludes to the first desert wandering of Israel (Ex 16ff), in which the people found the Lord. His rest: the land of promise. The perfect fulfillment of this promised rest is found only in the New Testament (Hos chapters 3 and 4).
31, 15: Ramah: a village about five miles north of Jerusalem, where Rachel was buried (1 Sm 10, 2). Rachel: said to mourn for her children since she was the ancestress of Ephraim, the chief of the northern tribes. Mt 2, 18 applies this verse to the slaughter of the innocents by Herod.

Often as I threaten him,
I still remember him with favor;
My heart stirs for him,
I must show him mercy, says the
LORD.

Summons To Return Home

- 21 Set up road markers,
put up guideposts;
Turn your attention to the highway,
the road by which you went.
Turn back, O virgin Israel, turn back to these your cities.
- 22† How long will you continue to stray, rebellious daughter?
The LORD has created a new thing
upon the earth:
the woman must encompass the man with devotion.

23* Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: When I change their lot in the land of Judah and her cities, they shall again repeat this greeting: "May the LORD bless you, holy mountain, abode of justice!" 24 Judah and all her cities, the farmers and those who lead the flock, shall dwell there together.

25 For I will refresh the weary soul; every soul that languishes I will replenish.
26† Upon this I awoke and opened my eyes; but my sleep was sweet to me.

27 The days are coming, says the LORD, when I will seed the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the seed of man and the seed of beast. 28* As I once watched over them to uproot and pull down, to destroy, to ruin, and to harm, so I will watch over them to build and to plant, says the LORD. 29*† In those days they shall no longer say,

"The fathers ate unripe grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge,"

30 but through his own fault only shall anyone die: the teeth of him who eats
the unripe grapes shall be set on edge.

The New Covenant. 31*† The days are coming, says the LORD, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah. 32* It will not be like the covenant I made with their fathers the day I took them by the hand to lead them forth from the land of Egypt; for they broke my covenant and I had to show myself their master, says
the LORD. 33* But this is the covenant which I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the LORD. I will place my law within them, and write it upon their hearts; I will be their God, and they shall be my people. 34* No longer will they have need to teach their friends and kinsmen how to know the LORD. All, from least to greatest, shall know me, says the LORD, for I will forgive their evildoing and remember their sin no more.

Certainty of God's Promise

- 35* Thus says the LORD,
He who gives the sun to light the
day,
moon and stars to light the night;
Who stirs up the sea till its waves roar,
whose name is LORD of hosts:
36* If ever these natural laws give way in spite of me, says the LORD, Then shall the race of Israel cease as a nation before me forever.
- 37 Thus says the LORD:
If the heavens on high can be measured,
or the foundations below the earth
be sound,
Then will I cast off the whole race
of Israel
because of all they have done,
says the LORD.

Rebuilding of Jerusalem. 38*† The days are coming, says the LORD, when

23: 30, 3; Ps 122. 8.
28: 1, 10; 18, 7.
29: Dt 24, 16; Ez 18,
2.
31: 32, 40; Heb 9, 15-
32: Ez 24, 7f; Dt 5, 2.

33: 32, 40; Ez 37,
26; Heb 10, 16
34: Is 54, 13.
35: Gn 1, 14-18.
36: 33, 20f.
38: Neh 12, 38; Zec
14, 10f.

†

31, 22: The woman must encompass the man: the words "with devotion," not in the Hebrew, are added for the sense. No fully satisfactory explanation has been given this text. Among the more probable are these: (a) Formerly the man (the LORD) encompassed the woman (Israel) with mercy and devotion; now in the spiritual religion of Israel which will follow on the restoration, this order will be reversed. (b) So secure will Israel be after the restoration that women will no longer need the natural protection of their husbands, but even weak women can protect men. (c) St. Jerome in his commentary on this verse understood it of Mary's virginal conception of Christ. "The LORD has created a new thing on earth; without seed of man, without carnal union and conception, 'a woman will encompass a man' within her womb—One who, though He will later appear to advance in wisdom and age through the stages of infancy and childhood, yet, while confined for the usual number of months in his mother's womb, will already be perfect man."

31, 26: I awoke . . . sweet to me: probably said by the prophet himself.

31, 29: "The fathers . . . on edge": a proverb used in Israel, expressing the idea that children suffer for the sins of their parents (cf Ez 18, 2). The Israel of the restoration will be characterized instead by personal responsibility and retribution for one's acts (v 30; cf vv 31-34).

31, 31-34: The new covenant to be made with Israel is a common theme of the prophets, beginning with Hosea. According to Jeremiah, the qualities of the new covenant that make it different from the old are: (a) It will not be broken, but will last forever; (b) Its law will be written in the heart, not merely on tablets of stone; (c) The knowledge of God will be so generally shown forth in the life of the people that it will no longer be necessary to put it into words of instruction. In the fullest sense, this prophecy was fulfilled only through the work of Jesus Christ; cf Lk 22, 20; 1 Cor 11, 25.

31, 38: From the Tower of Hananel to the Corner Gate from the northeast to the northwest.

the city shall be rebuilt as the LORD's, from the Tower of Hananel to the Corner Gate. <sup>39</sup> The measuring line shall be stretched from there straight to the hill Gareb and then turn to Goah. <sup>40†</sup> The whole valley of corpses and ashes, all the slopes toward the Kidron Valley, as far as the corner of the Horse Gate at the east, shall be holy to the LORD. Never again shall the city be rooted up or thrown down.

CHAPTER 32

Pledge of Restoration. <sup>1†</sup> This message came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the tenth year of Zedekiah, king of Judah, the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar. <sup>2*</sup> At that time the army of the king of Babylon was besieging Jerusalem, and the prophet Jeremiah was imprisoned in the quarters of the guard, at the king's palace. <sup>3*</sup> Zedekiah, king of Judah, had imprisoned him there, remonstrating: "How dare you prophesy: Thus says the LORD: I am handing over this city to the king of Babylon, who will capture it. <sup>4*</sup> Neither shall Zedekiah, king of Judah, escape the hands of the Chaldeans; rather shall he be handed over to the king of Babylon. They shall meet and speak face to face, <sup>5*</sup> and Zedekiah shall be taken to Babylon. There he shall remain, until I attend to him, says the LORD; in fighting the Chaldeans, you cannot win!"

<sup>6†</sup> This message came to me from the LORD, said Jeremiah: <sup>7*†</sup> Hanamel, son of your uncle Shallum, will come to you with the offer: "Buy for yourself my field in Anathoth, since you, as nearest relative, have the first right of purchase." <sup>8</sup> Then, as the LORD foretold, Hanamel, my uncle's son, came to me to the quarters of the guard and said, "Please buy my field in Anathoth, in the district of Benjamin; as nearest relative, you have the first claim to possess it; make it yours." I knew this was what the LORD meant, <sup>9</sup> so I bought the field in Anathoth from my cousin Hanamel, paying him the money, seventeen silver shekels.

<sup>10</sup> When I had written and sealed the deed, called witnesses and weighed out the silver on the scales, <sup>11†</sup> I accepted the deed of purchase, both the sealed copy, containing title and conditions, and the open one. <sup>12*</sup> This deed of purchase I gave to Baruch, son of Neriah, son of Mahseiah, in the presence of my cousin Hanamel and of the witnesses who had signed the deed, and before all the men of Judah who happened to be in the quarters of the guard.

<sup>13</sup> In their presence I gave Baruch this charge: <sup>14†</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Take these deeds, both the sealed and the open deed of purchase, and put them in an earthen jar, so that they can be kept there a long time. <sup>15</sup> For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Houses and fields and vineyards shall again be bought in this land.

<sup>16</sup> After giving the deed of purchase to Baruch, son of Neriah, I prayed thus to the LORD: <sup>17*</sup> Ah, Lord GOD, you have made heaven and earth by your great might, with your outstretched arm; nothing is impossible to you. <sup>18*</sup> You continue your kindness through a thousand generations; and you repay the fathers' guilt, even into the lap of their sons who follow them. O God, great and mighty, whose name is LORD of hosts, <sup>19*</sup> great in counsel, mighty in deed, whose eyes are open to all the ways of men, giving to each according to his ways, according to the fruit of his deeds: <sup>20*</sup> you have wrought signs and wonders in the land of Egypt and to this day, both in Israel and among all other men, until now you have gained renown. <sup>21</sup> With strong hand and outstretched arm you brought your people Israel out of the land of Egypt amid signs and wonders and great terror. <sup>22*</sup> This land you gave them, as you had promised their fathers under oath, a land flowing with milk and honey. <sup>23*</sup> They entered and took pos-

32, 2: 33, 1; 37, 20; 38, 6; 39, 14.	42, 2.
3: 26, 9; 34, 2; 37, 6-10.	18: Ex 20, 5f; Dt 5, 9.
4: 34, 3; 38, 18, 23; 39, 4-7.	19: Jb 34, 21; Ps 33, 13ff.
5: 39, 7; 52, 11.	20: Ex 6, 6; Dt 4, 34; Ps 135, 9.
7: Lv 25, 24-34; Ru 4, 4.	22: 11, 5; Gn 15, 18; 17, 8; 26, 3.
12: 36, 4.	23: 7, 24ff; Dn 9, 10-14.
17: 2 Kgs 19, 15; Jb

†

31, 40: Valley of corpses and ashes: the Valley of Ben-hinnom, which joins the Kidron at the southeast of ancient Jerusalem. The Horse Gate: in the eastern city wall, at the southeast corner of the temple area.

32, 1-44: This chapter recounts a prophecy "in action." At the Lord's command, Jeremiah fulfills his family duty to purchase the land of his cousin, carrying out all the legal forms, including records, to testify that Judah will be restored and that the life of the past will be resumed.

32, 1: The tenth year of Zedekiah: 588 B.C. The eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar: dating his reign from his victory at Carchemish; see note on 25, 1-14.

32, 6-9: Jeremiah's imprisonment by the weak-willed Zedekiah was a technical custody that did not deprive him of all freedom of action. The siege maintained by the Chaldeans (v 2) was only now beginning (v 24), and could be bypassed by individual persons going to and fro between Jerusalem and nearby Anathoth.

32, 7: The first right of purchase: the obligation of the closest relative to redeem the property of one in economic distress, so that the ancestral land might remain within the family (Lv 25, 25-28); see note on Ru 2, 20.

32, 11: The sealed copy, . . . and the open one: the legal deed of sale was written on a scroll, which was then rolled up and sealed; about it was rolled another scroll, left unsealed, containing a copy or a summary of the first.

32, 14: In an earthen jar: the first of the Dead Sea Scrolls were found in such a jar.

session of it, but they did not listen to your voice; by your law they did not live, and what you commanded they failed to do. Hence you let all these evils befall them. <sup>24*</sup> See, the siegeworks have arrived at this city to breach it; the city will be handed over to the Chaldeans who are attacking it, amid sword, famine, and pestilence. What you threatened has happened, you see it yourself; <sup>25</sup> and yet you tell me, O Lord God: Buy the field with money, call in witnesses. But the city has already been handed over to the Chaldeans!

<sup>26</sup> Then this word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: <sup>27</sup> I am the LORD, the God of all mankind! Is anything impossible to me? <sup>28</sup> This now is what the LORD says: I will hand over this city to the Chaldeans, for Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, to take. <sup>29*</sup> The Chaldeans who are attacking it shall enter this city and set fire to it, burning it and its houses, on the roofs of which incense was burned to Baal and libations were poured out to strange gods as a provocation to me. <sup>30*</sup> The Israelites and the Judeans from their youth have done only what is evil in my eyes; the Israelites did nothing but provoke me with the works of their hands, says the LORD. <sup>31</sup> From the day it was built to this day, this city has excited my anger and wrath, <sup>32*</sup> so that I must put it out of my sight for all the wickedness the Israelites and Judeans, with their kings and their princes, their priests and their prophets, the men of Judah and the citizens of Jerusalem, have done to provoke me. <sup>33*</sup> They turned their backs to me, not their faces; though I kept teaching them, they would not listen to my correction. <sup>34*</sup> They defiled the house named after me by the horrid idols they set up in it. <sup>35*</sup>† They built high places to Baal in the Valley of Ben-hinnom, and immolated their sons and daughters to Molech, bringing sin upon Judah; this I never commanded them, nor did it even enter my mind that they should practice such abominations.

<sup>36</sup> Now, therefore, thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning this city, which as you say is handed over to the king of Babylon amid sword, famine, and pestilence: <sup>37*</sup> Behold, I will gather them together from all the lands to which in anger, wrath, and great rage I banish them; I will bring them back to this place and settle them here in safety. <sup>38*</sup> They shall be my people, and I will be their God. <sup>39</sup> One heart and one way I will give them, that they may fear me always, to their own good and that of their children after them. <sup>40*</sup> I will make with them an eternal covenant, never to cease doing good to them; into their hearts I will put the fear of me, that they may never depart from me. <sup>41*</sup> I will take delight in doing good to them: I will replant them firmly in this land, with all my heart and soul.

<sup>42*</sup> For thus says the LORD: Just as I brought upon this people all this great evil, so I will bring upon them all the good I promise them. <sup>43*</sup> Fields shall again be bought in this land, which you call a desert, without man or beast, handed over to the Chaldeans. <sup>44*</sup> Fields shall be bought with money, deeds written and sealed, and witnesses shall be used in the land of Benjamin, in the suburbs of Jerusalem, in the cities of Judah and of the hill country, in the cities of the foothills and of the Negeb, when I change their lot, says the LORD.

CHAPTER 33

Restoration of Jerusalem. <sup>1</sup> The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah a second time while he was still imprisoned in the quarters of the guard: <sup>2</sup> Thus says the LORD who made the earth and gave it form and firmness, whose name is LORD: <sup>3*</sup> Call to me, and I will answer you; I will tell to you things great beyond reach of your knowledge. <sup>4*</sup> Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning the houses of this city and the palaces of Judah's kings, which are being destroyed in the face of siegeworks and the sword: <sup>5*</sup> men come to battle the Chaldeans, and these houses will be filled with the corpses of those whom I slay in my anger and wrath, when I hide my face from this city for all their wickedness.

<sup>6*</sup> Behold, I will treat and assuage the city's wounds; I will heal them, and reveal to them an abundance of lasting peace. <sup>7*</sup> I will change the lot of Judah and the lot of Israel, and rebuild them as of old. <sup>8*</sup> I will cleanse them of all the guilt they incurred by sinning against me; all their offenses by which they sinned and rebelled against me, I will forgive. <sup>9</sup> Then Jerusalem shall be my joy, my praise, my glory, before all the

24: 21, 5; 33, 4.	40: 31, 31ff.
29: 21, 10; 37, 8ff.	41: Dt 30, 9.
30: 3, 25; 44, 8.	42: 33, 10-14; Zec
32: 2, 26; Is 3, 8.	8, 13.
33: 7, 24.	43: 33, 10.
34: 7, 30; 2 Kgs 21,	44: 17, 26; 33, 7.
41.	33: 3; Is 48, 6.
35: 7, 31; 19, 5; Ps	4: 32, 24.
106, 37f.	5: 21, 4ff.
37: 23, 3; 29, 14; Is	6: Is 57, 18.
11, 12; Ez 11,	7: 30, 3; 32, 44.
17.	8: Ez 36, 25.
38: 24, 7; 31, 33.

† 32, 35: Molech: the god to whom human sacrifice was offered in the Valley of Ben-hinnom. Here, as in 19, 5, he is given the name Baal; see note on Lv 18, 21.

nations of the earth, as they hear of all the good I will do among them. They shall be in fear and trembling over all the peaceful benefits I will give her.

<sup>10*</sup> Thus says the LORD: In this place of which you say, "How desolate it is, without man, without beast!" and in the cities of Judah, in the streets of Jerusalem that are now deserted, without man, without citizen, without beast, there shall yet be heard <sup>11*</sup> the cry of joy, the cry of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, the voice of the bride, the sound of those who bring thank offerings to the house of the LORD, singing, "Give thanks to the LORD of hosts, for the LORD is good; his mercy endures forever." For I will restore this country as of old, says the LORD.

<sup>12</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts: In this place, now desolate, without man or beast, and in all its cities there shall again be sheepfolds for the shepherds to couch their flocks. <sup>13</sup> In the cities of the hill country, of the foothills, and of the Negeb, in the land of Benjamin and the suburbs of Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, flocks will again pass under the hands of the one who counts them, says the LORD.

<sup>14†</sup> The days are coming, says the LORD, when I will fulfill the promise I made to the house of Israel and Judah. <sup>15*</sup> In those days, in that time, I will raise up for David a just shoot; he shall do what is right and just in the land. <sup>16</sup> In those days Judah shall be safe and Jerusalem shall dwell secure; this is what they shall call her: "The LORD our justice." <sup>17*</sup> For thus says the LORD: Never shall David lack a successor on the throne of the house of Israel, <sup>18*</sup> nor shall priests of Levi ever be lacking, to offer holocausts before me, to burn cereal offerings, and to sacrifice victims.

This word of the LORD also came to Jeremiah: <sup>19</sup> Thus says the LORD: <sup>20*</sup> If you can break my covenant with day, and my covenant with night, so that day and night no longer alternate in sequence, <sup>21</sup> then can my covenant with my servant David also be broken, so that he will not have a son to be king upon his throne, and my covenant with the priests of Levi who minister to me. <sup>22</sup> Like the host of heaven which cannot be numbered, and the sands of the sea which cannot be counted, I will multiply the descendants of my servant David and the Levites who minister to me.

<sup>23</sup> This word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: <sup>24*</sup> Have you not noticed what these people are saying: "The LORD has rejected the two tribes which he had chosen"? They spurn my people as if it were no longer a nation in their eyes. <sup>25*</sup> Thus says the LORD: When I have no covenant with day and night, and have given no laws to heaven and earth, <sup>26</sup> then too will I reject the descendants of Jacob and of my servant David, so as not to take from his descendants rulers for the race of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For I will change their lot and show them mercy.

IV: FALL OF JERUSALEM

CHAPTER 34

Fate of Zedekiah. <sup>1*</sup> This word came to Jeremiah from the LORD while Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and his armies and the earth's kingdoms subject to him, as well as the other peoples, were all attacking Jerusalem and all her cities: <sup>2*</sup> Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Go to Zedekiah, king of Judah, and tell him: Thus says the LORD: I am handing this city over to the king of Babylon; he will destroy it with fire. <sup>3*</sup> Neither shall you escape his hand; rather you will be captured and fall into his hands. You shall see the king of Babylon and speak to him face to face. Then you shall be taken to Babylon.

<sup>4</sup> But if you obey the word of the LORD, Zedekiah, king of Judah, then, says the LORD to you, you shall not die by the sword. <sup>5</sup> You shall die in peace, and they will lament you as their lord, and burn spices for your burial as they did for your fathers, the kings who preceded you from the first; it is I who make this promise, says the LORD.

<sup>6</sup> The prophet Jeremiah told all these things to Zedekiah, king of Judah, in Jerusalem, <sup>7†</sup> while the armies of the king of Babylon were attacking Jerusalem and the remaining cities of Judah, La-

10: 32, 43.	20f: 31, 36f; Ps 89, 37f.
11: 1 Chr 16, 34; Ezr 3, 11; Ps 136, 1.	24: Rom 11, 1f.
15: 23, 5; Ps 72, 1-4.12ff; Is 11, 1.	25f: 31, 36f; 32, 44.
17: 2 Sm 7, 16;	34, 1: 52, 4; 2 Kgs 25, 1.
1 Kgs 2, 4; Ps 89, 4f.29.36f.	2: 21, 10; 32, 3.28.
18: Ez 44, 15f.	3: 32, 4; 52, 11.

†

<sup>33, 14-26:</sup> This is the longest continuous passage in the Book of Jeremiah that is lacking in the Greek. It appears to be the postexilic composition of an inspired writer who used parts of the prophecies of Jeremiah—often, however, in a sense different from the prophet's. The prediction of an eternal Davidic dynasty (14-17) to fulfill the prophecy of Nathan (2 Sm 7, 11-16), and of a perpetual priesthood and sacrifice (18), was not to be realized in the restoration of the Jewish nation. It finds its fulfillment only in Jesus of Nazareth, who combined with his messianic Davidic kingship an eternal priesthood; cf Heb 6, 20; 7, 24f.

<sup>34, 7:</sup> Lachish and Azekah: fortress towns to the southwest of Jerusalem which Nebuchadnezzar besieged to prevent help coming to Jerusalem from Egypt. Between 1935 and 1938, archaeologists found at Lachish several letters written on pottery fragments which date from 598 or 588 B.C., and which mention both Lachish and Azekah.

chish, and Azekah, since these alone were left of the fortified cities of Judah.

The Pact Broken. 8† This is the word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD after King Zedekiah had made an agreement with all the people in Jerusalem to issue an edict of emancipation. 9* Everyone was to free his Hebrew slaves, male and female, so that no one should hold a man of Judah, his brother, in slavery. 10 All the princes and the others who entered the agreement consented to set free their male and female servants, so that they should be slaves no longer. But though they agreed and freed them, 11 afterward they took back their male and female slaves whom they had set free and again forced them into service.

12 Then this word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: 13 Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: The day I brought your fathers out of the land of Egypt, out of the place where they were slaves, I made this covenant with them: 14 Every seventh year each of you shall set free his Hebrew brother who has sold himself to you; six years he shall serve you, but then you shall let him go free. Your fathers, however, did not heed me or obey me. 15 Today you indeed repented and did what is right in my eyes by proclaiming the emancipation of your brethren and making an agreement before me in the house that is named after me. 16* But then you changed your mind and profaned my name by taking back your male and female slaves to whom you had given their freedom; you forced them once more into slavery.

17 Therefore, thus says the LORD: You did not obey me by proclaiming your neighbors and kinsmen free. I now proclaim you free, says the LORD, for the sword, famine, and pestilence. I will make you an object of horror to all the kingdoms of the earth. 18† The men who violated my covenant and did not observe the terms of the agreement which they made before me, I will make like the calf which they cut in two, between whose two parts they passed. 19 The princes of Judah and of Jerusalem, the courtiers, the priests, and the common people, who passed between the parts of the calf, 20* I will hand over, all of them, to their enemies, to those who seek their lives: their corpses shall be food for the birds of the air and the beasts of the field.

21* Zedekiah, too, king of Judah, and his princes, I will hand over to their enemies, to those who seek their lives, to the soldiers of the king of Babylon who have at present withdrawn from you. 22* I will give the command, says the LORD, and bring them back to this city. They shall attack and capture it, and destroy it with fire; the cities of Judah I will turn into a desert where no man dwells.

CHAPTER 35

The Faithful Rechabites. 1 This word came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the days of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah: 2† Approach the Rechabites and speak to them; bring them into the house of the LORD, to one of the rooms, and give them wine to drink. 3 So I went and brought Jaazaniah, son of Jeremiah, son of Habazziniah, his brothers and all his sons, the whole company of the Rechabites, 4† into the house of the LORD, to the room of the sons of Hanan, son of Igdaliah, the man of God, next to the princes' room, above the room of Maaseiah, son of Shallum, keeper of the doorway. 5 I set before these Rechabite men bowls full of wine and offered them cups to drink the wine.

6† "We do not drink wine," they said to me: "Jonadab, Rechab's son, our father, forbade us in these words: 'Neither you nor your children shall ever drink wine. 7 Build no house and sow no seed; neither plant nor own a vineyard. You shall dwell in tents all your life, so that you may live long on the earth where you are wayfarers.' 8 Now we have heeded Jonadab, Rechab's son, our father, in all his prohibitions. All our lives we have not drunk wine, neither we, nor our wives, nor our sons, nor our daughters. 9 We build no houses to live in; we 9: Ex 21, 2ff; Lv 25, 39-46; Dt 15, 12-15.

16: Lv 19, 12.
20: 7, 33; 16, 4, 19.

7.
21: 37, 5, 11.
22: 37, 8, 52, 7-13,
2 Chr 36, 17, 19.

†

34, 8-22: While the Chaldean siege of Jerusalem was in progress, the citizens of Jerusalem made a covenant at Zedekiah's instigation to free their brother Judeans who were in slavery. Doubtless this was both to provide additional free defenders for the city and to offer reparation for past violations of the law, according to which Hebrew slaves were to serve no longer than six years (Dt 15, 12-15). But when the siege was temporarily lifted, probably because of the help promised by Pharaoh Hophra (cf 37, 5), the inhabitants of Jerusalem broke the covenant and once more pressed their brethren into slavery (v 11).

34, 18f: As the Bible (Gn 15, 10-17) and also contemporary inscriptions make clear, agreements were sometimes ratified by walking between the divided pieces of animals while the contracting parties invoked on themselves a fate similar to that of the slaughtered beast if they should fail to keep their word. The agreement: that mentioned in vv 10, 15.

35, 2: The Rechabites: reactionaries who believed that the Lord could not be well served except by maintaining the original nomadic conditions of Israel's life. Without sharing their convictions, the prophet holds up their fidelity to their ideals as an example to put to shame his faithless countrymen. In the days of Jehoiakim: probably in 599 or 598 B.C.

35, 4: The sons of Hanan: probably the disciples of this man of God or prophet. Maaseiah: possibly the father of the priest Zephaniah (29, 25; 37, 3). Keeper of the doorway: a priestly function of responsibility; cf 52, 24.

35, 6: Jonadab: a contemporary of King Jehu; cf 2 Kgs 10, 15ff.

own no vineyards or fields or crops, <sup>10</sup> and we live in tents; we obediently do everything our father Jonadab commanded us. <sup>11</sup>† But when Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, invaded this land, we decided to come into Jerusalem to escape the army of the Chaldeans and the army of Aram; that is why we are now living in Jerusalem."

<sup>12</sup> Then this word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: <sup>13</sup>* Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Go, say to the men of Judah and to the citizens of Jerusalem: Will you not take correction and obey my words? says the LORD. <sup>14</sup>* The advice of Jonadab, Rechab's son, by which he forbade his children to drink wine, has been followed: to this day they have not drunk it; they obeyed their father's command. Me, however, you have not obeyed, although I spoke to you untiringly and insistently. <sup>15</sup>* I kept sending you all my servants the prophets, telling you to turn back, all of you, from your evil way; to reform your conduct, and not follow strange gods or serve them, if you would remain on the land which I gave you and your fathers; but you did not heed me or obey me. <sup>16</sup> Yes, the children of Jonadab, Rechab's son, observed the command which their father laid on them; but this people does not obey me! <sup>17</sup>* Now, therefore, says the LORD God of hosts, the God of Israel: I will bring upon Judah and all the citizens of Jerusalem every evil that I threatened; because when I spoke they did not obey, when I called they did not answer.

<sup>18</sup> But to the company of the Rechabites Jeremiah said: Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Since you have obeyed the command of Jonadab, your father, kept all his commands and done everything he commanded you, <sup>19</sup> thus therefore says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Never shall there fail to be a descendant of Jonadab, Rechab's son, standing in my service.

CHAPTER 36

Baruch Writes the Prophecies of Jeremiah. <sup>1</sup> In the fourth year of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD: <sup>2</sup> Take a scroll and write on it all the words I have spoken to you against Israel, Judah, and all the nations, from the day I first spoke to you, in the days of Josiah, until today. <sup>3</sup>* Perhaps, when the house of Judah hears all the evil I have in mind to do to them, they will turn back each from his evil way, so that I may forgive their wickedness and their sin. <sup>4</sup> So Jeremiah called Baruch, son of Neriah, who wrote down on a scroll, as Jeremiah dictated, all the words which the LORD had spoken to him.

<sup>5</sup> In the ninth month, in the fifth year of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah, a fast to placate the LORD was proclaimed for all the people of Jerusalem and all who came from Judah's cities to Jerusalem. <sup>6</sup>† Then Jeremiah charged Baruch: I cannot go to the house of the LORD; I am prevented from doing so. <sup>7</sup> Do you go on the fast day and read publicly in the LORD's house the LORD's words from the scroll you wrote at my dictation; read them also to all the men of Judah who come up from their cities. <sup>8</sup>* Perhaps they will lay their supplication before the LORD and will all turn back from their evil way; for great is the fury of anger with which the LORD has threatened this people.

<sup>9</sup> Baruch, son of Neriah, did everything the prophet Jeremiah commanded; from the book-scroll he read the LORD's words in the LORD's house. <sup>10</sup>† It was in the room of Gemariah, son of the scribe Shaphan, in the upper court of the LORD's house, at the entrance of the New Temple-Gate, that Baruch publicly read the words of Jeremiah from his book.

<sup>11</sup> Now Micaiah, son of Gemariah, son of Shaphan, heard all the words of the LORD read from the book. <sup>12</sup>† So he went down to the king's palace, into the scribe's chamber, where the princes were just then in session: Elishama, the scribe, Delaiah, son of Shemaiah, Elnathan, son of Achbor, Gemariah, son of Shaphan, Zedekiah, son of Hananiah, and the other princes. <sup>13</sup> To them Micaiah reported all that he had heard Baruch read publicly from his book. <sup>14</sup> Thereupon the princes sent Jehudi, son of Nethaniah, son of Shelemiah, son of Cushi, to Baruch with the order: "Come, and bring with you the scroll you read publicly to the people." Scroll in hand, Baruch, son of Neriah, went to them. <sup>15</sup> "Sit down," they said to him, "and read it to us." Baruch read it to them, <sup>16</sup> and when they heard all its words, they were frightened and said to 35, 13: 32, 33.

14: 7, 13; 25, 3; 2

Chr 36, 15f.

15: 25, 4f.7.

17: 11, 8f.

36, 3: 26, 3; Is 55, 6f.

7: 2 Kgs 22, 13.

† 35, 11: The army of Aram: Nebuchadnezzar enlisted the help of Judah's foreign neighbors in his assault on Jerusalem.

36, 5: I am prevented: probably because of his temple sermon (7, 1-15), or because of temporary ritual uncleanness.

36, 10: Gemariah: member of a family friendly to Jeremiah, which had rights to a room in the fortress of the temple gateway overlooking the court of the temple; from a window in this room Baruch read Jeremiah's prophetic sermon to the people.

36, 12: The scribe's chamber: the office of the royal secretary.

CHAPTER 37

one another, "We must certainly tell the king all these things."<sup>17</sup> Then they asked Baruch: "Tell us, please, how you came to write down all these words."<sup>18</sup> "Jeremiah dictated all these words to me," Baruch answered them, "and I wrote them down with ink in the book."<sup>19</sup> At this the princes said to Baruch, "Go into hiding, you and Jeremiah; let no one know where you are."

<sup>20</sup> Leaving the scroll in safekeeping in the room of Elishama the scribe, they entered the room where the king was. When they told him everything that had happened, <sup>21</sup> he sent Jehudi to fetch the scroll. Jehudi brought it from the room of Elishama the scribe, and read it to the king and to all the princes who were in attendance on the king. <sup>22</sup> Now the king was sitting in his winter house, since it was the ninth month, and fire was burning in a brazier before him. <sup>23</sup>† Each time Jehudi finished reading three or four columns, the king would cut off the piece with a scribe's knife and cast it into the fire in the brazier, until the entire roll was consumed in the fire. <sup>24</sup> Hearing all these words did not frighten the king and his ministers or cause them to rend their garments. <sup>25</sup> And though Elnathan, Delaiah, and Gemariah urged the king not to burn the scroll, he would not listen to them, <sup>26</sup> but commanded Jerahmeel, a royal prince, and Seraiah, son of Azriel, and Shelemiah, son of Abdeel, to arrest Baruch, the secretary, and the prophet Jeremiah. But the LORD kept them concealed.

<sup>27</sup> This word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, after the king burned the scroll with the text Jeremiah had dictated to Baruch: <sup>28</sup> Take another scroll, and write on it everything that the first scroll contained, which Jehoiakim, king of Judah, burned up. <sup>29</sup> And against Jehoiakim, king of Judah, say this: Thus says the LORD: You burned that scroll, saying, "Why did you write on it: Babylon's king shall surely come and lay waste this land and empty it of man and beast?" <sup>30</sup>† The LORD now says of Jehoiakim, king of Judah: No descendant of his shall succeed to David's throne; his corpse shall be cast out, exposed to the heat of day, to the cold of night. <sup>31</sup> I will punish him and his descendants and his ministers for their wickedness; against them and the citizens of Jerusalem and the men of Judah I will fulfill all the threats of evil which went unheeded.

<sup>32</sup> Jeremiah took another scroll, and gave it to his secretary, Baruch, son of Neriah; he wrote on it at Jeremiah's dictation all the words contained in the book which Jehoiakim, king of Judah, had burned in the fire, and many others of the same kind in addition.

Jeremiah in the Dungeon. <sup>1*</sup> Coniah, son of Jehoiakim, was succeeded by King Zedekiah, son of Josiah; he was made king over the land of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. <sup>2</sup> Neither he, nor his ministers, nor the people of the land would listen to the words of the LORD spoken by Jeremiah the prophet. <sup>3*</sup> Yet King Zedekiah sent Jehucal, son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah, son of Maaseiah the priest, to the prophet Jeremiah with this request: "Pray to the LORD, our God, for us." <sup>4</sup>† At this time Jeremiah had not yet been put into prison; he still came and went freely among the people. <sup>5</sup>† Also, Pharaoh's army had set out from Egypt, and when the Chaldeans who were besieging Jerusalem heard this report they marched away from the city.

<sup>6</sup> This word of the LORD then came to the prophet Jeremiah: <sup>7*</sup> Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Give this answer to the king of Judah who sent you to me to consult me: Pharaoh's army which has set out to help you will return to its own land, Egypt. <sup>8*</sup> The Chaldeans shall return to the fight against this city; they shall capture it and destroy it with fire.

<sup>9</sup> Thus says the LORD: Do not deceive yourselves with the thought that the Chaldeans will leave you for good, because they shall not leave! <sup>10*</sup> Even if you were to defeat the whole Chaldean army now attacking you, and only the wounded remained, each in his tent, these would rise up and destroy the city with fire.

<sup>11*</sup> When the Chaldean army lifted the siege of Jerusalem at the threat of the army of Pharaoh, <sup>12</sup> Jeremiah set out from Jerusalem for the district of Benjamin, to take part with his family in the division of an inheritance. <sup>13</sup> But when he reached the Gate of Benjamin, he met the captain of the guard, a man named Irijah, son of Shelemiah, son of Hananiah; he seized the prophet Jeremiah, saying, "You are deserting to the Chaldeans!" <sup>14</sup> "That is a lie!" Jeremiah an-

30: 22, 19.	6f.
37: 1, 52, 1; 2 Kgs 24,	7: Ez 17, 17.
17; 2 Chr 36, 10.	8: 34, 22.
3: 21, 1.	10: 21, 4.
5: Ez 17, 15; 29,	11: Zec 14, 10.

† 36, 23: A scribe's knife: used to sharpen the reeds which were employed as pens.

36, 30: Jehoiakim's son Jehoiachin was named king, but reigned only three months; he was known better for his thirty-seven-year exile in Babylon. His corpse shall be cast out: see note on 22, 19.

37, 4: Put into prison: as described in 32, 1ff. Chronologically, the present episode follows 34, 1-7.

37, 5: Pharaoh's army: the force sent by Pharaoh Hophra which caused the Chaldeans momentarily to lift the siege of Jerusalem (cf 34, 21).

swered, "I am not deserting to the Chaldeans." Without listening, Irijah kept Jeremiah in custody and brought him to the princes.

<sup>15*</sup> The princes were enraged, and had Jeremiah beaten and thrown into prison in the house of Jonathan the scribe, which they were using as a jail. <sup>16</sup> And so Jeremiah entered the vaulted dungeon, where he remained a long time.

<sup>17*</sup> Once King Zedekiah had him brought to his palace and he asked him secretly whether there was any message from the LORD. Yes! Jeremiah answered: you shall be handed over to the king of Babylon. <sup>18*</sup> Jeremiah then asked King Zedekiah: In what have I wronged you, or your ministers, or this people, that you should put me in prison? <sup>19</sup> And where are your own prophets now, <sup>20</sup> who prophesied to you that the king of Babylon would not attack you or this land? Hear now, my lord king, and grant my petition: do not send me back into the house of Jonathan the scribe, or I shall die there.

<sup>21*</sup> King Zedekiah ordered that Jeremiah be confined in the quarters of the guard, and given a loaf of bread each day from the bakers' shop until all the bread in the city was eaten up. Thus Jeremiah remained in the quarters of the guard.

CHAPTER 38

Jeremiah in the Miry Cistern.

<sup>1</sup> Shephatiah, son of Mattan, Gedaliah, son of Pashhur, Jucal, son of Shelemiah, and Pashhur, son of Malchiah, heard Jeremiah speaking these words to all the people: <sup>2*</sup> Thus says the LORD: He who remains in this city shall die by sword, or famine, or pestilence; but he who goes out to the Chaldeans shall live; his life shall be spared him as booty, and he shall live. <sup>3</sup> Thus says the LORD: This city shall certainly be handed over to the army of the king of Babylon; he shall capture it.

<sup>4*</sup> "This man ought to be put to death," the princes said to the king; "he demoralizes the soldiers who are left in this city, and all the people, by speaking such things to them; he is not interested in the welfare of our people, but in their ruin." <sup>5</sup> King Zedekiah answered: "He is in your power"; for the king could do nothing with them. <sup>6*</sup> And so they took Jeremiah and threw him into the cistern of Prince Malchiah, which was in the quarters of the guard, letting him down with ropes. There was no water in the cistern, only mud, and Jeremiah sank into the mud.

<sup>7</sup>† Now Ebed-melech, a Cushite, a courtier in the king's palace, heard that they had put Jeremiah into the cistern.

The king happened just then to be at the Gate of Benjamin, <sup>8</sup> and Ebed-melech went there from the palace and said to him, <sup>9*</sup> "My lord king, these men have been at fault in all they have done to the prophet Jeremiah, casting him into the cistern. He will die of famine on the spot, for there is no more food in the city." <sup>10</sup> Then the king ordered Ebed-melech the Cushite to take three men along with him, and draw the prophet Jeremiah out of the cistern before he should die. <sup>11</sup> Ebed-melech took the men along with him, and went first to the linen closet in the palace, from which he took some old, tattered rags; these he sent down to Jeremiah in the cistern, with ropes. <sup>12</sup> Then he said to Jeremiah, "Put the old, tattered rags between your armpits and the ropes." Jeremiah did so, <sup>13</sup> and they drew him up with the ropes out of the cistern. But Jeremiah remained in the quarters of the guard.

<sup>14*</sup> Once King Zedekiah summoned the prophet Jeremiah to come to him at the third entrance to the house of the LORD. "I have a question to ask you," the king said to Jeremiah; "hide nothing from me." Jeremiah answered Zedekiah: <sup>15*</sup> "If I tell you anything, you will have me killed, will you not? If I counsel you, you will not listen to me! <sup>16</sup> But King Zedekiah swore to Jeremiah secretly: "As the LORD lives who gave us the breath of life, I will not kill you; nor will I hand you over to these men who seek your life."

<sup>17*</sup> Thereupon Jeremiah said to Zedekiah: Thus says the LORD God of hosts, the God of Israel: If you surrender to the princes of Babylon's king, you shall save your life; this city shall not be destroyed with fire, and you and your family shall live. <sup>18*</sup> But if you do not surrender to the princes of Babylon's king, this city shall fall into the hands of the Chaldeans, who shall destroy it with fire, and you shall not escape their hands.

<sup>19*</sup> King Zedekiah, however, said to Jeremiah, "I am afraid of the men of

15: 38, 6-13.	6: 37, 14f.
17: 21, 7; 32, 3; 34,	9: 52, 6.
21.	14: 37, 16.
18: 26, 19.	15: Lk 22, 67f.
21: 32, 2; 38, 28.	17: 27, 12f; 2 Kgs
38, 2: 21, 9f; 39, 18;	24, 12.
45, 5.	18: 32, 4.
4: 26, 11.	19: 1 Sm 31, 4.

†

38, 1: Jeremiah enjoyed sufficient liberty in the quarters of the guard (37, 21) to speak to the people; cf 32, 6-9. Gedaliah, son of Pashhur; the latter is possibly the Pashhur of 20, 1. Pashhur, son of Malchiah; mentioned in 21, 1.

38, 4: He demoralizes the soldiers: literally, "he weakens their hands." One of the Lachish ostraca (see note on 34, 7) uses the same expression of the princes in Jerusalem. 38, 7: A Cushite: an Ethiopian. Ebed-melech evidently held a position of some authority at court.

Judah who have deserted to the Chaldeans; I may be handed over to them, and they will mistreat me." <sup>20*</sup> You will not be handed over, Jeremiah answered. Please obey the voice of the LORD and do as I tell you; then it shall go well with you, and your life will be spared. <sup>21</sup> But if you refuse to surrender, this is what the LORD shows me: <sup>22*</sup> All the women left in the house of Judah's king shall be brought out to the princes of Babylon's king, and they shall taunt you thus:

"They betrayed you, outdid you, your good friends!
Now that your feet are stuck in the mud,
they slink away."

<sup>23*</sup> All your wives and sons shall be led forth to the Chaldeans, and you shall not escape their hands; you shall be handed over to the king of Babylon, and this city shall be destroyed with fire.

<sup>24</sup> Then Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, "Let no one know about this conversation, or you shall die. <sup>25</sup> If the princes hear I spoke to you, if they come and ask you, 'Tell us what you said to the king; do not hide it from us, or we will kill you,' or, 'What did the king say to you?' <sup>26</sup> give them this answer: 'I petitioned the king not to send me back to Jonathan's house to die there.'" <sup>27</sup> When all the princes came to Jeremiah, they questioned him, and he answered them in the very words the king had commanded. They said no more to him, for nothing had been heard of the earlier conversation. <sup>28*</sup> Thus Jeremiah stayed in the quarters of the guard till the day Jerusalem was taken.

CHAPTER 39

Jeremiah and Gedaliah. When Jerusalem was taken. . . . <sup>1*</sup>† In the tenth month of the ninth year of Zedekiah, king of Judah, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and all his army marched against Jerusalem and besieged it. <sup>2†</sup> On the ninth day of the fourth month, in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, a breach was made in the city's defenses. <sup>3</sup> All the princes of the king of Babylon came and occupied the middle gate: Nergal-sharezzer, of Simmagir, the chief officer, Nebushazban, the high dignitary, and all the other princes of the king of Babylon. . . . <sup>4*</sup>† When Zedekiah, king of Judah, saw them, he and all his warriors fled by night, leaving the city on the Royal Garden Road through the gate between the two walls. He went in the direction of the Arabah, <sup>5*</sup>† but the Chaldean army pursued them, and overtook and captured Zedekiah in the desert near Jericho. He was brought to Riblah, in the land of Hamath, where Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, pronounced sentence upon him. <sup>6*</sup> As Zedekiah looked on, his sons were slain at Riblah by order of the king of Babylon, who slew also all the nobles of Judah. <sup>7*</sup> He then blinded Zedekiah and bound him in chains to bring him to Babylon.

<sup>8*</sup> The Chaldeans set fire to the king's palace and the houses of the people, and demolished the walls of Jerusalem. <sup>9*</sup> Nebuzaradan, chief of the bodyguard, deported to Babylon the rest of the people left in the city, those who had deserted to him, and the rest of the workmen. <sup>10*</sup> But some of the poor who had no property were left in the land of Judah by Nebuzaradan, chief of the bodyguard, and were given at the same time vineyards and farms.

<sup>11</sup> Concerning Jeremiah, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, gave the following orders through Nebuzaradan, chief of the bodyguard: <sup>12*</sup> "Take him and look after him; let no harm befall him, but treat him as he himself requests."

<sup>13</sup> Thereupon Nebuzaradan, chief of the bodyguard, and Nebushazban, the high dignitary, and Nergal-sharezzer, the chief officer, and all the nobles of the king of Babylon, <sup>14*</sup> had Jeremiah taken out of the quarters of the guard, and entrusted to Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, to be brought home. And so he remained among the people.

A Word of Comfort for Ebed-melech. <sup>15</sup> While Jeremiah was still imprisoned in the quarters of the guard, the word of the LORD came to him: <sup>16*</sup> Go, tell this to Ebed-melech the Cushite: Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I am now fulfilling the words I spoke against this city, for evil and not for good; and this before your very eyes. <sup>17</sup> But on that day I will rescue you, says the LORD; you shall not be handed over to the men of whom you are afraid. <sup>18*</sup> I will make certain that 20: 2 Chr 20, 20.	7: 32, 4f; Ez 12.

22: Jb 6, 15; 19, 13f.19.	13.
23: 41, 10.	8: 21, 10, 34, 2; 52.
28: 39, 14.	13.
39, 1f: 52, 4-16; 2 Kgs 25, 1-12; Ez 24, 1.	9: 2 Kgs 25, 11
	10: 2 Kgs 25, 12-22
	12: 40, 4.
	14: 26, 24, 38, 28
4: 52, 7.	16: 21, 10; Dn 9, 12.
5: 32, 4f; 38, 18.	18: 45, 5; Pss 25, 3.
6: 34, 21.	36, 40.

† 39, 1: The tenth month of the ninth year: the month Beth (mid-December to mid-January) of the year 589/8 B.C.

† 39, 2: The ninth day of the fourth month, in the eleventh year: in July of 587 B.C.

† 39, 4: The Royal Garden Road: along the southeast side of the city; the royal garden was in the Kidron Valley. The gate between the two walls: the southernmost city gate, at the end of the Tyropoan Valley. The Arabah: the Jordan Valley. Zedekiah was attempting to escape across the Jordan when he was captured near Jencho.

† 39, 5: Riblah: Nebuchadnezzar's headquarters in Syria which had also been used by Pharaoh Neco (2 Kgs 23, 33)

you escape and do not fall by the sword. Your life shall be spared as booty, because you trusted in me, says the LORD.

CHAPTER 40

Jeremiah Still in Judah. <sup>1</sup>*† This word came to Jeremiah from the LORD, after Nebuzaradan, captain of the bodyguard, had released him in Ramah, where he had found him a prisoner in chains, among the captives of Jerusalem and Judah who were being exiled to Babylon. <sup>2</sup> When the captain of the bodyguard took charge of Jeremiah, he said to him, "The LORD, your God, foretold the ruin of this place. <sup>3</sup> Now he has brought about in deed what he threatened; because you sinned against the LORD and did not obey his voice, this fate has befallen you. <sup>4</sup>* And now, I am freeing you today from the fetters that bind your hands; if it seems good to you to come with me to Babylon, you may come: I will look after you well. But if it does not please you to come to Babylon, you need not come. See, the whole land is before you; go wherever you think good and proper"; <sup>5</sup>* and then, before he left—"or go to Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon has appointed ruler over the cities of Judah; stay with him among the people, or go wherever you please." The captain of the bodyguard gave him food and gifts and let him go. <sup>6</sup>*† Jeremiah went to Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, in Mizpah, and stayed with him among the people left in the land.

<sup>7</sup> When the army leaders who were still in the field with all their men heard that the king of Babylon had given Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, charge of the land, of men, women, and children, and of those poor who had not been led captive to Babylon, <sup>8</sup>† they came with their men to Gedaliah in Mizpah: Ishmael, son of Nethaniah; Johanan, son of Kareah; Seraiah, son of Tanhumeth; the sons of Ephai of Netophah; and Jezaniah of Beth-maacah. <sup>9</sup>* Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, adjured them and their men not to be afraid to serve the Chaldeans: to stay in the land and submit to the king of Babylon, for their own welfare; <sup>10</sup> saying that he himself would remain in Mizpah, as their intermediary with the Chaldeans who should come to them. They were to collect the wine, the fruit, and the oil, to store them in jars, and to settle in the cities they occupied.

<sup>11</sup> When the people of Judah in Moab, those among the Ammonites, those in Edom, and those in all other lands heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant in Judah, and had appointed over them Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, <sup>12</sup> they all returned to the land of Judah from the places to which they had scattered. They went to Gedaliah at Mizpah and had a rich harvest of wine and fruit.

Assassination of Gedaliah. <sup>13</sup> Now Johanan, son of Kareah, and all the leaders of the armies in the field came to Gedaliah in Mizpah <sup>14</sup>*† and asked him whether he did not know that Baalis, the king of the Ammonites, had sent Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, to assassinate him. <sup>15</sup> But Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, would not believe them. Then Johanan, son of Kareah, said secretly to Gedaliah in Mizpah: "Let me go and kill Ishmael, son of Nethaniah; no one will know it. Why should he be allowed to kill you? All the Jews who have now rallied to you will be dispersed and the remnant of Judah will perish." <sup>16</sup> Nevertheless, Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, answered Johanan, son of Kareah, "You shall do nothing of the kind; you have lied about Ishmael."

CHAPTER 41

<sup>1</sup>* In the seventh month Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, son of Elishama, of royal descent, one of the king's nobles, came with ten men to Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, at Mizpah. And while they were together at table in Mizpah, <sup>2</sup> Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, and the ten who were with him, rose up and attacked with swords Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon had made ruler over the land; and they killed him. <sup>3</sup> Ishmael also slew all the men of Judah of military age who were with Gedaliah and the Chaldean soldiers who were there.

<sup>4</sup> The second day after the murder of Gedaliah, before anyone knew of it, <sup>5</sup> eighty men with beards shaved off, clothes in rags, and with gashes on their bodies came from Shechem, Shiloh, and Samaria, bringing food offerings and incense for the house of the LORD.

40, 1: 39, 14.	9: 27, 12f; 2 Kgs
4: 39, 12.	25, 24.
5: 39, 14; 2 Kgs	14: 41, 1ff. 10.
25, 22.	41, 1: 40, 14ff; 2 Kgs
6: 39, 14.	25, 25.

† 40, 1: This word: actually, no further word of the Lord is recorded until 42, 7f. This is a title affixed to the following chapters after they were attached to an earlier form of the book ending with chapter 39.

40, 6: Mizpah: some five miles northwest of Jerusalem, where Israel chose its first king (1 Sm 10, 17-24). Presumably Jerusalem had been damaged too much by the Chaldean conquest to remain a seat of government.

40, 8: Jezaniah: the seal ring of a high official of this name was discovered in 1932 at the site usually identified with Mizpah, Tell an-Nasbe.

40, 14: The Ammonites: they resented the survival of their ancient enemy, Judah. Ishmael: their willing tool, who doubtless aspired to rule over Judah himself, as he was of the house of David; cf 41, 1.

<sup>6</sup> Ishmael son of Nethaniah, went out from Mizpah to meet them, weeping as he went. <sup>7</sup> "Come to Gedaliah, son of Ahikam," he said as he met them. When they were once inside the city, Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, and his men slew them and threw them into the cistern. <sup>8</sup> But there were ten among them who pleaded with Ishmael: "Do not kill us; we have stores buried in the field: wheat and barley, oil and honey." And so he spared them and did not kill them, as he had killed their companions. <sup>9</sup>* The cistern into which Ishmael threw all the corpses of the men he had killed was the large one made by King Asa to defend himself against Baasha, king of Israel; this cistern Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, filled with the slain.

<sup>10</sup>† Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, led away the remnant of the people left in Mizpah and the princesses, whom Nebuzaradan, captain of the bodyguard, had confided to Gedaliah, son of Ahikam. With these captives, Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, set out to make his way to the Ammonites.

Flight to Egypt. <sup>11</sup> But when Johanan, son of Kareah, and the other army leaders with him heard of the crimes Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, had committed, <sup>12</sup>‡ they took all their men and set out to attack Ishmael, son of Nethaniah. They overtook him at the Great Waters in Gibeon. <sup>13</sup> At the sight of Johanan, son of Kareah, and the other army leaders, the people who were Ishmael's captives rejoiced. <sup>14</sup> All of those whom Ishmael had brought away from Mizpah went over to Johanan, son of Kareah. <sup>15</sup> But Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, escaped from Johanan and fled to the Ammonites with eight men. <sup>16</sup> Then Johanan, son of Kareah, and all his army leaders took charge of the remnant of the people, both the soldiers and the women and children with their guardians, whom Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, had brought away from Mizpah after he killed Gedaliah, son of Ahikam. From Gibeon, <sup>17</sup> they retreated to the lodging place of Chimham near Bethlehem, where they stopped, intending to flee into Egypt. <sup>18</sup> They were afraid of the Chaldeans, because Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, had slain Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon had made ruler in the land of Judah.

CHAPTER 42

<sup>1</sup> Then all the army leaders, Johanan, son of Kareah, Azariah, son of Hoshaiah, and all the people, high and low, approached the prophet Jeremiah <sup>2</sup> and said, "Grant our petition; pray for us to the LORD, your God, for all this remnant. We are now few who once were many, as you well see. <sup>3</sup> Let the LORD, your God, show us what way we should take and what we should do." <sup>4</sup>* Very well! the prophet Jeremiah answered them: I will pray to the LORD, your God, as you desire; whatever the LORD answers you, I will tell you; I will withhold nothing from you. <sup>5</sup>* And they said to Jeremiah, "May the LORD be our witness: we will truly and faithfully follow all the instructions the LORD, your God, will send us. <sup>6</sup>* Whether it is pleasant or difficult, we will obey the command of the LORD, our God, to whom we are sending you, so that it will go well with us for obeying the command of the LORD, our God."

<sup>7</sup> Ten days passed before the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah. <sup>8</sup> Then he called Johanan, son of Kareah, his army leaders, and all the people, high and low, <sup>9</sup> and said to them: Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, to whom you sent me to offer your prayer: <sup>10</sup>* If you remain quietly in this land I will build you up, and not tear you down; I will plant you, not uproot you; for I regret the evil I have done you. <sup>11</sup>* Do not fear the king of Babylon, before whom you are now afraid; do not fear him, says the LORD, for I am with you to save you, to rescue you from his power. <sup>12</sup>* I will grant you mercy, so that he will be sorry for you and let you return to your land. <sup>13</sup> But if you disobey the voice of the LORD, your God, and decide not to remain in this land, <sup>14</sup>* saying, "No, we will go to Egypt, where we will see no more of war, hear the trumpet alarm no longer, nor hunger for bread; there we will live!"; <sup>15</sup> then listen to the word of the LORD, remnant of Judah: Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: If you are determined to go to Egypt, when you arrive there to stay, <sup>16</sup>* the sword you fear shall reach you in the land of Egypt; the hunger you dread shall cling to you no less in Egypt, and there you shall die. <sup>17</sup>* All those men who determine to go to Egypt to stay, shall die by the sword, famine, and pestilence; not one shall survive or escape the evil that I will bring upon them. <sup>18</sup>* For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Just as my furious anger was poured out

9: 1 Kgs 15, 16; 2 Chr 16, 6,	12: Ps 106, 45f; Prv 16, 7.
42, 4: 1 Sm 3, 18.	14: Dt 28, 68.
5: Jgs 11, 10.	16: 44, 13f, 27.
6: 7, 23; Dt 5, 33; 6, 3.	17: 29, 17f; 44, 14, 28.
10: 31, 28; 32, 41.	18: 44, 12.
11: 30, 10f.

† 11, 10: The princesses: of the royal house of Judah. They had not been deported to Babylon with the men of this house.

‡ 12, 12: Gibeon: today called El-Jib; it is northwest of Jerusalem. The most recent excavations have revealed the extensive dimensions of the city spring and well, called here the Great Waters: cf 2 Sm 2, 12f.

upon the citizens of Jerusalem, so shall my anger be poured out on you when you reach Egypt. You shall become an example of malediction and horror, a curse and a reproach, and you shall never see this place again.

<sup>19</sup> It is the LORD who has spoken to you, remnant of Judah; do not go to Egypt! You can never say that I did not warn you this day. <sup>20</sup> At the cost of your lives you have deceived me, sending me to the LORD, your God, saying, "Pray for us to the LORD, our God; make known to us all that the LORD, our God, shall say, and we will do it." <sup>21</sup>* Today I proclaim his message, but you obey the voice of the LORD, your God, in nothing that he has commissioned me to make known to you. <sup>22</sup>* Have no doubt of this, you shall die by the sword, famine, and pestilence in the place where you wish to go and settle.

CHAPTER 43

<sup>1</sup> When Jeremiah finished speaking to the people all these words of the LORD, their God, with which the LORD had sent him to them, <sup>2</sup> Azariah, son of Hoshaiah, Johanan, son of Kareah, and all the insolent men shouted to Jeremiah: "You lie; it was not the LORD, our God, who sent you to tell us not to go to Egypt to settle. <sup>3</sup>* It is Baruch, son of Neriah, who stirs you up against us, to hand us over to the Chaldeans to be killed or exiled to Babylon."

<sup>4</sup>* Johanan, son of Kareah, and the rest of the leaders and the people did not obey the LORD's command to stay in the land of Judah. <sup>5</sup> Instead, Johanan, son of Kareah, and all the army leaders took along the whole remnant of Judah that had been dispersed among the nations and had returned thence to dwell again in the land of Judah: <sup>6</sup>* men, women, and children, the princesses and everyone whom Nebuzaradan, captain of the bodyguard, had entrusted to Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan; also Jeremiah, the prophet, and Baruch, son of Neriah. <sup>7</sup>* Against the LORD's command they went to Egypt, and arrived at Tahpanhes. . . .

Jeremiah in Egypt. <sup>8</sup> This word of the LORD came to Jeremiah in Tahpanhes: <sup>9</sup>† Take with you large stones and sink them in mortar in the brickyard at the entrance to the royal building in Tahpanhes, while the men of Judah look on, <sup>10</sup>* and then say to them: Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I will send for my servant Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and bring him here. He will set his throne upon these stones which I, Jeremiah, have sunk, and stretch his canopy over them. <sup>11</sup>* He shall come and strike the land of Egypt:

with death, whoever is marked for death; with exile, everyone destined for exile; with the sword, all who are intended for the sword. <sup>12</sup>* He shall set fire to the temples of Egypt's gods, and burn the gods or carry them off. As a shepherd delouses his cloak, he shall delouse the land of Egypt and depart victorious. <sup>13</sup> He shall smash the obelisks of the temple of the sun in the land of Egypt and destroy with fire the temples of the Egyptian gods.

CHAPTER 44

<sup>1</sup> This word came to Jeremiah for all the people of Judah who were living in Egypt, at Migdol, Tahpanhes, and Memphis, and in Upper Egypt: <sup>2</sup>*† Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: You have seen all the evil I brought on Jerusalem and the other cities of Judah. Today they are ruins and uninhabited, <sup>3</sup>* because of the evil they did to provoke me, going after strange gods, serving them and sacrificing to them, gods which neither they, nor you, nor your fathers knew. <sup>4</sup> Though I kept sending to you all my servants the prophets, with the plea not to commit this horrible deed which I hate, <sup>5</sup>* they would not listen or accept the warning to turn away from the evil of sacrificing to strange gods. <sup>6</sup> Therefore the fury of my anger poured forth in flame over the cities of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem, so that they became the ruinous waste they are today.

<sup>7</sup> Now thus says the LORD God of hosts, the God of Israel: Why do you inflict so great an evil upon yourselves? Will you root out from Judah man and wife, child and nursing, and not leave yourselves even a remnant? <sup>8</sup>* Will you go on provoking me by the works of your hands, by sacrificing to strange gods here in the land of Egypt where you have come to live? Will you be rooted out and become a curse and a disgrace among all the nations of the earth? <sup>9</sup>* Have you forgotten the evil deeds which your fathers,

21: Zec 7, 11f.	13f.
22: 44, 12; Hos 9, 6.	44, 2: 34, 22; Lv 26,
43, 3: 38, 4.	32f.
4: 41, 16.	3: 11, 17; Dt 32,
6: 41, 10.	17.
7: 42, 13f; 44, 1.	5: 7, 24-26; 19, 4.
10: 27, 6; Ez 29, 19.	8: 25, 6f.
11: 46, 13; Ez 30,	9: 1 Kgs 11, 1, 8;
10.	Ezr 9, 7, 14.
12: 46, 25; Ez 30,

† 43, 9: The royal building: residence of the Egyptian governor.

44, 2-30: Chronologically, this is the last of Jeremiah's prophecies to his countrymen. The narrative leaves him an old man nearing seventy, rejected by his people. According to tradition, he was murdered in Egypt by fellow Judeans.

and the kings of Judah and their wives, and you yourselves and your wives have done in the land of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem? <sup>10*</sup> To this day they have not been crushed; they do not fear or follow the law and the statutes which I set before you and your fathers.

<sup>11</sup> Hence, thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I have determined evil against you; and I will uproot all Judah. <sup>12*</sup> I will take away the remnant of Judah who insisted on coming to dwell in Egypt, so that they shall be wholly destroyed. In the land of Egypt they shall fall by the sword or be consumed by hunger. High and low, they shall die by the sword, or by hunger, and become an example of malediction, a horror, a curse and a reproach. <sup>13*</sup> Thus will I punish those who live in Egypt, just as I punished Jerusalem with sword, hunger, and pestilence. None of the remnant of Judah that have come to settle in the land of Egypt shall escape or survive. <sup>14</sup> None shall return to the land of Judah, though they yearn to return and live there. Only scattered refugees shall return.

<sup>15</sup> From all the men who knew that their wives were burning incense to strange gods, from all the women who were present in the immense crowd, and from all the people who lived in Lower and Upper Egypt, Jeremiah received this answer: <sup>16*</sup> "We will not listen to what you say in the name of the LORD. <sup>17*</sup> Rather will we continue doing what we had proposed; we will burn incense to the queen of heaven and pour out libations to her, as we and our fathers, our kings and princes have done in the cities of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem. Then we had enough food to eat and we were well off; we suffered no misfortune. <sup>18</sup> But since we stopped burning incense to the queen of heaven and pouring out libations to her, we are in need of everything and are being destroyed by the sword and by hunger. <sup>19*</sup> And when we burned incense to the queen of heaven and poured out libations to her, was it without our husbands' consent that we baked for her cakes in her image and poured out libations to her?"

<sup>20</sup> To all the people, men and women, who gave him this answer, Jeremiah said: <sup>21*</sup> Was it not this that the LORD remembered and brought to mind, that you burned incense in the cities of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem: you, your fathers, your kings and princes, and the people generally? <sup>22*</sup> The LORD could no longer bear your evil deeds, the horrible things which you were doing; and so your land became a waste, a desert, a thing accursed and without inhabitants, as it is today. <sup>23*</sup> Because you burned incense and sinned against the LORD, not obeying the voice of the LORD, not living by his law, his statutes, and his decrees, this evil has befallen you at the present day.

<sup>24</sup> Jeremiah said further to all the people, including the women: Hear the word of the LORD, all you Judeans in the land of Egypt: <sup>25</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: You and your wives have stated your intentions, and kept them in fact: "We will continue to fulfill the vows we have made to burn incense to the queen of heaven and to pour out libations to her." Very well! keep your vows, carry out your resolutions! <sup>26</sup> But listen then to the word of the LORD, all you people of Judah who live in Egypt: I swear by my own great name, says the LORD, in the whole land of Egypt no man of Judah shall henceforth pronounce my name, saying, "As the Lord God lives." <sup>27*</sup> I am watching over them to do evil, not good. All the men of Judah in Egypt shall perish by the sword or famine until they are utterly destroyed. <sup>28*</sup> Those who escape the sword to return from the land of Egypt to the land of Judah shall be few in number. The whole remnant of Judah who came to settle in Egypt shall know whose word stands, mine or theirs.

<sup>29</sup> That you may know how surely my threats of punishment for you shall be fulfilled, this shall be a sign to you, says the LORD, that I will punish you in this place. <sup>30*</sup> † Thus says the LORD: See! I will hand over Pharaoh Hophra, king of Egypt, to his enemies, to those who seek his life, just as I handed over Zedekiah, king of Judah, to his enemy and mortal foe, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon.

CHAPTER 45

A Message to Baruch. <sup>1</sup> † This is the message that the prophet Jeremiah gave to Baruch, son of Neriah, when he wrote in a book the prophecies that Jeremiah dictated in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah: <sup>2</sup> Thus says

10: 7, 24.	9, 11f.
12: 42, 15, 18, 22.	27: Ez 7, 3-7.
13: 43, 11.	28: Dt 28, 62; Is 10,
16: 6, 16f.	22.
17: 5, 3, 7, 18.	30: 39, 5ft. 46, 25f;
19: 7, 18.	Ez 29, 3f; 30.
21: 11, 13.	21.
22: 15, 6.	45, 1: 36, 4, 18, 32.
23: 2 Kgs 17, 15; Dn

† 44, 30: Hophra: killed by his own people. The ruler of Egypt at the time of its conquest by Nebuchadnezzar was Hophra's successor Amasis, who was also slain by his enemies.

45, 1-5: At the conclusion of his narrative, Baruch appends a prophecy given him personally by Jeremiah when he first wrote down Jeremiah's words (cf chap. 36). The future revealed by the prophet had depressed Baruch; this prophecy was to assure him of his personal safety, while repeating the Lord's determination to destroy Judah.

the LORD, God of Israel, to you, Baruch, <sup>3*</sup> because you said, "Alas! the LORD adds grief to my pain; I am weary from groaning, and can find no rest": <sup>4*</sup> say this to him, says the LORD: What I have built, I am tearing down; what I have planted, I am uprooting: even the whole land. <sup>5*</sup> And do you seek great things for yourself? Seek them not! I am bringing evil on all mankind, says the LORD, but your life I will leave you as booty, wherever you may go.

V: ORACLES AGAINST THE NATIONS

CHAPTER 46†

<sup>1</sup> This is the word of the LORD that came to the prophet Jeremiah against the nations.

Against Egypt. <sup>2†</sup> Concerning Egypt. Against the army of Pharaoh Neco, king of Egypt, which was defeated at Carchemish on the Euphrates by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah:

- <sup>3</sup> Prepare shield and buckler!
march to battle!
- <sup>4</sup> Harness the horses,
mount, charioteers!
Fall in with your helmets;
polish your spears, put on your breastplates.
- <sup>5*</sup> What do I see?
With broken ranks
They fall back;
their heroes are routed,
They flee headlong
without making a stand.
Terror on every side,
says the LORD!
- <sup>6</sup> The swift cannot flee,
nor the hero escape:
There in the north, on the Euphrates' bank,
they stumble and fall.
- <sup>7</sup> Who is this that surges forward like the Nile,
like rivers of billowing waters?
- <sup>8*</sup> Egypt surges like the Nile,
like rivers of billowing waters.
"I will surge forward," he says, "and cover the earth, destroying the city and its people.
- <sup>9</sup> Forward, horses!
drive madly, chariots!
Set out, warriors,
Cush and Put, bearing your shields,
Men of Lud, stretching your bows!"
- <sup>10*</sup> But this is the day of the Lord God of hosts, a day of vengeance, vengeance on his foes!
The sword devours, is sated, drunk with their blood:

for the Lord GOD of hosts holds a slaughter feast in the northland, on the Euphrates.

- <sup>11*</sup> Go up to Gilead, and take balm, O virgin daughter Egypt!
No use to multiply remedies;
for you there is no cure.
- <sup>12*</sup> The nations hear of your shame,
your cries fill the earth.
Warrior trips over warrior,
both fall together.

<sup>13*†</sup> The message which the LORD gave to the prophet Jeremiah concerning the advance of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, to attack the land of Egypt:

- <sup>14*</sup> Announce it in Egypt, publish it in Migdol, proclaim it in Memphis and Tahpanhes!
Say: Take your stand, prepare yourselves,
the sword has already devoured your neighbors.
- <sup>15†</sup> Why has Apis fled, your mighty one failed to stand?
The LORD thrust him down;
- <sup>16*</sup> he stumbled repeatedly, and fell.
They said one to another,
"Up! let us return to our own people,
To the land of our birth,
away from the destroying sword."
- <sup>17†</sup> Call Pharaoh, king of Egypt, by the name
"The noise that let its time go by."
- <sup>18†</sup> As I live, says the King

3: Lam 1, 3; 5, 5.	11: 8, 22; 51, 8; Ez 30, 21f.
4: 18, 7; Is 5, 5f.	12: Ez 32, 9-12.
5: 25, 26-29.	13: 43, 10f; 44, 30;
46, 5: 6, 25; 49, 29.	Is 19, 1.
8: Ez 29, 3; 32, 2.	14: 44, 1.
10: Dt 32, 42; Is 13, 9; Ez 39, 17-20.	16: Lv 26, 37.

† 46—51: In these chapters most of Jeremiah's oracles against the foreign nations have been gathered together and placed at the end of his book; in the Greek text they appear with the other oracles against the nations, in chap. 25. In general, they are in chronological order: 46, 1—49, 33, from the fourth year of Jehoiakim; 49, 34-39, at the beginning of Zedekiah's reign; 50, 1—51, 64, from the fourth year of Zedekiah.

46, 2: Carchemish on the Euphrates: the western terminus of the Mesopotamian trade route, where Nebuchadnezzar defeated Neco in 605 B.C., thus gaining undisputed control of Syria and Palestine.

46, 13: In 601 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar advanced against Egypt and even entered the country, but finally had to withdraw to Syria.

46, 15: Apis: the chief god of Memphis, venerated in the form of a black bull.

46, 17: "The noise . . . go by!": in Hebrew there is wordplay here on the name Hophra, who still made a pretense of power though his career was at an end.

46, 18: Tabor . . . Carmel: outstanding mountains of Palestine, symbols of strength, to which Nebuchadnezzar is compared.

- whose name is LORD of hosts,
Like Tabor among the mountains he shall come,
like Carmel above the sea.
19 Pack your baggage for exile,
capital city of daughter Egypt;
Memphis shall become a desert,
an empty ruin.
20 Egypt is a pretty heifer, from the north a horsefly lights
upon her.
21 The mercenaries in her ranks are like fattened calves;
They too turn and flee together,
stand not their ground,
When the day of their ruin comes upon them,
the time of their punishment.
22 She sounds like a retreating reptile!
Yes, they come in force;
like woodchoppers, they attack
her with axes.
23 They cut down her forest, says the
LORD,
impenetrable though it be;
More numerous than locusts,
they cannot be counted.
24 Disgraced is daughter Egypt, handed over to the people of the north.

25*† The LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, has said: See! I will punish Amon of Thebes, and Egypt, her gods and her kings, Pharaoh, and those who trust in him. 26* I will hand them over to those who shall take their lives, to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and his ministers. But later on Egypt shall be inhabited again, as in times past, says the LORD.

- 27* But you, my servant Jacob, fear not;
be not dismayed, O Israel.
Behold, I will deliver you from the
far-off land,
your descendants, from their land
of exile.
Jacob shall again find rest,
shall be tranquil and undisturbed.
28* You, my servant Jacob, never fear,
says the LORD,
for I am with you;
I will make an end of all the nations
to which I have driven you,
But of you I will not make an end:
I will chastise you as you deserve,
I will not let you go unpunished.

CHAPTER 47

Against the Philistines. 1* This is the word that came from the LORD to the prophet Jeremiah concerning the Philistines, before Pharaoh attacked Gaza:
2† Thus says the LORD:

Behold: waters are rising from the
north,
a torrent in flood;

- It shall flood the land and all that is in it,
the cities and their people.
All the people of the land
set up a wailing cry.
3 They hear the stamping hooves of his steeds,
the rattling chariots, the rumbling wheels.
Fathers turn not to save their children;
their hands fall helpless
4*† Because of the day which has come to ruin all the Philistines, And cut off from Tyre and Sidon
the last of their allies.
Yes, the LORD is destroying the Philistines,
the remnant from the coasts of Caphtor.
5*† Gaza is shaved bald,
Ashkelon is reduced to silence;
Ashdod, the remnant of their
strength,
how long will you gash yourself?
6† Alas, sword of the LORD!
how long till you find rest?
Return into your scabbard;
stop, be still!
7* How can it find rest when the LORD has commanded
it?
Against Ashkelon and the seashore
he has appointed it.

CHAPTER 48

Against Moab. 1† Concerning Moab, thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel:

Woe to Nebo, it is laid waste;
Kiriathaim is disgraced and captured,
Disgraced and overthrown is the stronghold:

25: Ez 30, 15f.	2, 4.
26: 44, 30; Ez 30, 4;	4: 25, 22; Ez 25,
32, 11f.	16f; Am 1, 8, 9.
27: 30, 10; 43, 5.	7.
28: 30, 11.	5: Am 1, 7.
47, 1: Ez 25, 15f; Zep	7: Zep 2, 5f.

† 46, 25: Amon: the sun-god worshiped at Thebes, in Upper Egypt.

47, 2-7: This prophecy was fulfilled in 605/4 B.C.

47, 4: Tyre and Sidon: Phoenician cities associated commercially with the Philistines, and enemies of Nebuchadnezzar; cf 27, 1-4. Nebuchadnezzar carried out a thirteen-year siege of Tyre which was only partially successful. Caphtor: probably the island of Crete, the traditional place of origin of the Philistines; cf Am 9, 7.

47, 5: Of the ancient Philistine cities, neither Gath nor Ekron (25, 20) is mentioned in this period of waning independence of the seacoast.

47, 6: Words of the Philistines.

48, 1-47: Moab was one of the Israelites' bitterest enemies. According to Flavius Josephus, Moab and Ammon were conquered by Nebuchadnezzar in his twenty-third year, 582 B.C., five years after the destruction of Jerusalem.

33 Joy and jubilation are at an end in the fruit gardens of the land of Moab.

I drain the wine from the wine vats,
the treader treads no more,
the vintage shout is stilled.

34* The cry of Heshbon and Elealeh is heard as far as Jahaz; they call from Zoar to Horonaim, and to Eglath-sheli-shiyah, for even the waters of Nimrim turn into a desert. 35 I will leave no one in Moab, says the LORD, to offer a holocaust on the high place, or to burn incense to his gods. 36* Hence the wail of flutes for Moab is in my heart; for the men of Kir-heres the wail of flutes is in my heart: the wealth they acquired has perished. 37* Every head has been made bald, every beard shaved; every hand is gashed, and the loins of all are clothed in sackcloth. 38 On every roof of Moab and in all his squares there is mourning;
I have shattered Moab like a pot that no one wants, says the LORD. 39 How terror seizes Moab, and wailing! How he turns his back in shame! Moab has become a laughingstock and a horror to all his neighbors! 40* For thus says the
LORD:

Behold, like an eagle he soars, spreads his wings over Moab.

- 41* Cities are taken,
strongholds seized:
On that day the hearts of Moab's heroes are like the heart of a woman in travail.
- 42* Moab shall be destroyed, no more a people,
because he boasted against the
LORD.
- 43* Terror, pit, and trap be upon you,
people of Moab, says the LORD.
- 44 He who flees from the terror falls into the pit;
He who climbs from the pit
is caught in the trap;
For I will bring these things upon Moab
in the year of their punishment,
says the LORD.
- 45* In Heshbon's shadow stop short
the exhausted refugees;
For fire breaks forth from Heshbon, and a blaze from the house of Sihon:
It consumes the brow of Moab,
the skull of the noisemakers.
- 46 Woe to you, O Moab, you are ruined, O people of Che-mosh!
Your sons are taken into exile,
your daughters into captivity.
- 47* But I will change the lot of Moab in the days to come, says the
LORD.
Thus far the judgment on Moab.

CHAPTER 49

Against the Ammonites. † Concerning the Ammonites, thus says the LORD:

Has Israel no sons?

has he no heir?

Why then has Milcom disinherited
Gad,

why have his people settled in Gad's cities?

2*† But the days are coming, says the
LORD,
when against Rabbah of the Am-monites

I will sound the battle alarm;
She shall become a mound of ruins, and her daughter cities shall be destroyed by fire.

Israel shall inherit those who disin-herited her,
says the LORD.

3* Howl, Heshbon, for the ravager approaches,

shriek, daughters of Rabbah!

Put on sackcloth and mourn, run to and fro, gashing yourselves;

For Milcom goes into exile along with his priests and captains.

4 Why do you glory in your strength, your ebbing strength, rebellious daughter?

You who trust in your treasures, saying,

"Who can come against me?"

5* I am bringing terror upon you,
says the Lord God of hosts,
from all round about you;

You shall be scattered, each man in headlong flight,
with no one to rally the fugitives.

6 But afterward I will change the lot of the Ammonites, says the LORD.

Against Edom. † Concerning Edom,
thus says the LORD of hosts:

Is there no more wisdom in Teman, has counsel perished from the prudent,

34: Is 15, 4f.

36: Is 16, 11.

37: 47, 5; Is 15, 2f;

Ez 7, 18.

40: 49, 22.

41: 6, 24; 30, 6.

42: Zep 2, 9f.

43: Is 24, 17f.

45: Nm 21, 28f.

47: 49, 39.

49, 2: Am 1, 14.

3: Is 15, 2f.

5: 48, 47.

†

49, 1: Milcom: chief god of the Ammonites. The Transjordan tribe of Gad bordered on Ammon, and after the collapse of the northern kingdom the Ammonites occupied its territory.

49, 2: Rabbah of the Ammonites: or Rabbath-Ammon, capital of the Ammonite kingdom. The modern Amman is the capital of the kingdom of Jordan.

49, 7-22: Edom: this implacable enemy from ancient times profited from Judah's downfall; cf Ob 11f.

49, 7: Teman: a district of Edom, used here for the whole country; it was famous for its wise men; cf Jb 2, 11.

has their wisdom become corrupt?
 8*† Flee, retreat, hide in deep holes,
 you who live in Dedan:
 For I will bring destruction upon Esau
 when I come to punish him.
 9* If vintagers came upon you,
 they would leave no gleanings;
 If thieves by night,
 they would destroy as they pleased.
 10* So I myself will strip Esau;
 I will uncover his retreats so that he cannot hide.
 He is ruined: sons, and brothers, and neighbors, so that he is no
 more.
 11* Leave your orphans behind, I will keep them alive;
 your widows, let them trust in me.
 12* For thus says the LORD: Even those not sentenced to drink the cup must drink it! Shall you then go unpunished?
 You shall not go unpunished; you shall surely drink it. 13*† By my own self I have sworn, says the LORD: Bozrah shall become an object of horror and a disgrace, a desolation and a curse; she and all her cities shall become ruins forever.
 14 I have heard a report from the LORD, a herald has been sent among the nations:
 Gather together, move against her,
 rise up for battle.
 15* Small will I make you among the nations,
 despised among men!
 16* The terror you spread beguiled you,
 and your presumption of heart;
 You that live in rocky crags,
 that hold the heights of the hill:
 Though you build your nest high as the eagle,
 from there I will drag you down,
 says the LORD.

17 Edom shall become an object of horror. Every passer-by shall be appalled and catch his breath at all her wounds.
 18* As when Sodom, Gomorrah, and their neighbors were overthrown, says
 the LORD, not a man shall dwell there:
 no one shall visit there.
 19* As when a lion comes up from the thicket of Jordan to the permanent feeding
 grounds,
 So I, in an instant, will drive men
 off;
 and whom I choose I will establish
 there!
 For who is like me? who can call me
 to account?
 What shepherd can stand against
 me?
 20 Therefore, hear the counsel of the
 LORD,

which he has taken against Edom;
 Hear the plans he has made against those that live in Teman:
 They shall be dragged away, even
 the smallest sheep,
 their own pasture shall be aghast
 because of them.
 21 At the noise of their fall the earth
 quakes,
 to the Red Sea the outcry is heard!
 22* See! like an eagle he soars aloft, and spreads his wings over Bozrah;
 On that day the hearts of Edom's heroes shall be like the heart of a woman in travail.

Against Damascus. Concerning Damascus:

23*† Hamath and Arpad are covered with shame,
 they have heard bad news;
 Worried, they toss like the sea
 which cannot rest.
 24 Damascus is weakened, she turns to flee,
 panic has seized her.
 Distress and pangs take hold of her,
 like those of a woman in travail.
 25 How can the city of glory be forsaken,
 the town of delight!
 26 But now her young men shall fall in her streets,
 and all her warriors shall be stilled.
 On that day, says the LORD of
 hosts,
 27† I will set fire to the wall of Damascus, and it shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad.

Against Arabia. 28* Of Kedar and the kingdoms of Hazor, defeated by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, thus says
 the LORD:

Rise up, attack Kedar, ravage the Easterners.

---

8: Ez 25, 13.	15: Ob 2.
9: Ob 5.	16: 48, 29f.
10: Mal 1, 3.	18: 50, 40; Dt 29,
11: Dt 10, 18; Ps 68,	23.
6.	19: 12, 5; 25, 9; 50,
12: 25, 15, 28; Lam	44f.
4, 21f.	22: 4, 13.
13: Is 34, 6; Ez 35,	23: Is 36, 19; 37, 13.
3-9; Ob 16.	28: Is 21, 16.

---

† 49, 8: Esau: Jacob's brother, the traditional ancestor of the Edomites; cf Gn 36.
 49, 13: Bozrah: capital of Edom, southeast of the Dead Sea.
 49, 23: Hamath and Arpad: independent Aramean states to the north of Damascus; the invasion is conceived as coming from the north. The situation is of the eighth century B.C. Cf Is 10, 9ff.
 49, 27: The palaces of Ben-hadad: the royal palaces in Damascus where at least three kings bore this name; cf 1 Kgs 15, 18; 20.

- 29* Their tents and herds shall be taken away, their tent curtains and all their goods;
Their camels they shall carry off for themselves, and shout from upon them, "Terror on every side!"
- 30 Flee! leave your homes, hide in deep holes,
you that live in Hazor, says the LORD;
For counsel has been taken against you,
a plan has been formed against you [Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon].
- 31 Rise up! set out against a nation that is at peace, that lives secure, says the LORD,
That has no gates or bars,
and dwells alone.
- 32* Their camels shall be your booty, their many herds your spoil;
I will scatter to the winds those who shave their temples, from all sides I will bring ruin upon them,
says the LORD.
- 33 Hazor shall become a haunt of jackals,
a desert forever.
Where no man lives,
no human being stays.

Against Elam. 34† The following word of the LORD against Elam came to the prophet Jeremiah at the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah, king of Judah: 35 Thus says the LORD of hosts:

- Behold, I will break the bow of Elam, the mainstay of their might.
- 36 I will bring upon Elam the four winds from the four ends of the heavens:
I will scatter them to all these winds, till there is no nation to which the outcasts of Elam shall not come.
- 37 I will break Elam before their foes,
before those who seek their life;
I will bring evil upon them,
my burning wrath, says the LORD.
I will send the sword to pursue them until I have completely made an end of them;
- 38 My throne I will set up in Elam and destroy from there king and princes,
says the LORD.
- 39 But in the days to come I will change
the lot of Elam, says the LORD.

CHAPTER 50

The First Prophecy against Babylon.

- 1*† The word which the LORD spoke against Babylon, against the land of the Chaldeans, through the prophet Jeremiah:

- 2† Announce and publish it among the nations;
publish it, hide it not, but say:
Babylon is taken, Bel confounded, Merodach shattered;
her images are put to shame, her idols shattered.
- 3* A people from the north advances against her
to turn her land into a desert,
So that no one shall live there, because man and beast have fled
away.
- 4* In those days, at that time, says the LORD,
the men of Israel and of Judah
shall come,
Weeping as they come, to seek the LORD, their God;
- 5* to their goal in Zion they shall ask the way.
"Come, let us join ourselves to the
LORD
with covenant everlasting, never to be forgotten."
- 6* Lost sheep were my people,
their shepherds misled them,
straggling on the mountains;
From mountain to hill they wandered,
losing the way to their fold.
- 7* Whoever came upon them devoured
them,
and their enemies said, "We incur
no guilt,
Because they sinned against the
LORD,
the hope of their fathers, their abode of justice."

- 8* Flee from Babylon, leave the land of the Chaldeans, be like the rams at the head of the
flock.
- 9* See, I am stirring up against Babylon a band of great nations from the north;

29: 4, 20.

32: 9, 25.

50, 1: 51, 1; Is 13, 1-

14; 21, 1-10.

3: 51, 48; Is 13, 17.

4: 3, 18; Ps 126, 6.

5: 31, 31; 32, 40.

6: Is 53, 6; 1 Pt 2, 25.

7: 31, 23.

8: 51, 6, 45; Is 48, 20.

9: 51, 27.

† 49, 34: Elam: the ancient kingdom to the east of Babylonia. 50, 1—51, 58: a collection of miscellaneous prophecies against Babylon which now stands as the introduction to the story in 51, 59-64. The Greek text of 50, 1 omits through the prophet Jeremiah, and it is in fact likely that these oracles are not Jeremiah's, but were composed by other inspired writers after the fall of Jerusalem, who may have used some of Jeremiah's texts. Babylon fell to the Persians in 538 B.C. 50, 2 Bel: originally the name of the god of Nippur in Mesopotamia, then identified with Merodach (Marduk), chief god of Babylon.

from there they advance, and she shall be taken.
 Their arrows are arrows of the skilled warrior;
 none shall return without effect.
 10 Chaldea shall be their plunder, and all her plunderers shall be enriched,
 says the LORD.
 11 Yes, rejoice and exult, you that plunder my portion;
 Frisk like calves on the green, snort like stallions!
 12* Your mother shall be sorely put to shame,
 she that bore you shall be abashed;
 See, the last of the nations, a desert, dry and waste.
 13* Because of the LORD's wrath she shall be empty, and become a total desert;
 Everyone who passes by Babylon will be appalled
 and catch his breath, at all her wounds.
 14* Take your posts encircling Babylon, you who bend the bow;
 Shoot at her, spare not your arrows,
 15*† raise the war cry against her on all sides.
 She surrenders, her bastions fall, her walls are torn down:
 Vengeance of the LORD is this! Take revenge on her,
 as she has done, do to her;
 for she sinned against the LORD.
 16* Cut off from Babylon the sower and him who wields the sickle in harvest time!
 Before the destroying sword, each of them turns to his own people, everyone flees to his own land.
 17* A stray sheep was Israel that lions pursued; Formerly the king of Assyria devoured her,
 now Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon gnaws her bones.

18* Therefore, thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel:

I will punish the king of Babylon and his land,
 as once I punished the king of Assyria;

19* But I will bring back Israel to her fold,
 to feed on Carmel and Bashan,
 And on Mount Ephraim and Gilead, till she has her fill.

20* In those days, at that time, says the LORD:

They shall seek Israel's guilt, but it shall be no more,
 and Judah's sins, but these shall no longer be found;

for I will forgive the remnant I preserve.

21† Attack the land of Merathaim, and those who live in Pekod;
 Slaughter and doom them, says the LORD,
 do all I have commanded you.
 22 Battle alarm in the land, dire destruction!
 23* How has the hammer of the whole earth been broken and shattered!
 What an object of horror
 Babylon has become among the nations.
 24* You ensnared yourself, and were caught,
 O Babylon, before you knew it!
 You were discovered and seized,
 because you challenged the LORD.
 25* The LORD opens his armory and brings forth the weapons of his wrath;
 For the Lord God of hosts has work to do in the land of the Chaldeans.
 26 Come upon her from every side,
 open her granaries,
 Pile up her goods in heaps and doom it,
 leave not a remnant.
 27 Slay all her oxen,
 let them go down to the slaughter;
 Woe to them! their day has come,
 the time of their punishment.
 28* Listen! the fugitives, the escaped from the land of Babylon:
 They announce in Zion
 the vengeance of the LORD, our God.
 29* Call up against Babylon archers, all who bend the bow;
 Encamp around her,
 let no one escape.
 Repay her for her deeds;
 as she has done, do to her,
 For she insulted the LORD,
 the Holy One of Israel.

12: 51, 43; Is 13, 20ff.

13: 25, 12.

14: 51, 11; Is 21, 2.

15: 51, 11, 44, 58; Ps

137, 8.

16: Is 13, 14.

17: 2 Kgs 17, 24;

18, 14.

18: Is 10, 12, 14.

24f.

19: 23, 3; Ez 34,

13f.

20: 31, 34; Is 43, 25;

Mi 7, 19.

23: 51, 20; Is 14, 6.

24: 51, 57.

25: 51, 11f; Is 13, 5.

26: 51, 10f.

29: 51, 56.

†

50, 15: Her walls are torn down: the prophet is not predicting the details of Babylon's downfall, but describing such a downfall in conventional language. Actually, Babylon was surrendered peaceably, without destruction.

50, 21: Merathaim, "twice bitter," and Pekod, "punishment," are here symbolic terms for Babylonia, though probably they suggest also the names of regions in that country.

30* Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
all her warriors shall perish on
that day,
says the LORD.

31 I am against you, man of insolence,
says the Lord God of hosts;
For your day has come,
the time for me to punish you.

32 Insolence stumbles and falls;
there is no one to raise him up.
I will kindle in his cities a fire that shall devour everything around him.

33 Thus says the LORD of hosts:
Oppressed are the men of Israel,
and with them the men of Judah;
All their captors hold them fast and refuse to let them go.

34* Strong is their avenger,
whose name is LORD of hosts;
He will defend their cause with success,
and give rest to the earth,
but unrest to those who live in Babylon.

35 A sword upon the Chaldeans, says
the LORD,
upon Babylon's people, her princes and wise men!

36 A sword upon the soothsayers, that they may become fools!
A sword upon her warriors,
that they may tremble;

37* A sword upon her motley throng, that they may become women!
A sword upon her treasures,
that they may be plundered;

38* A sword upon her waters, that they may dry up!
For it is a land of idols, and they shall be made frantic by fearful things.

39* Hence, wildcats and desert beasts shall dwell there,
and ostriches shall occupy it;
Never again shall it be peopled, or lived in,
from age to age.

40* As when God overturned Sodom and Gomorrah, with their neighbors, says the LORD,
Not a man shall dwell there,
no human being shall tarry there.

41* See! a people comes from the north,
a great nation, and mighty kings roused from the ends of the earth.

42 Bow and javelin they wield,
cruel and pitiless are they;
They sound like the roaring sea,
as they ride forth on steeds,
Each in his place for battle against you, daughter Babylon.

43* The king of Babylon hears news of
them,

and helpless fall his hands;
Anguish seizes him,
throes like a mother's in child-
birth.

44* As when a lion comes up from the Jordan's thicket
to the permanent feeding
grounds,
So I, in one instant, will drive them
off,
and whom I choose I will establish
there;
For who is like me? who calls me
to account?
what shepherd can stand against
me?

45* Therefore hear the counsel of the
LORD
which he has taken against Babylon;
Hear the plans he has made against the land of the Chaldeans:
They shall be dragged away, even
the smallest sheep;
their own pasture shall be aghast
because of them.

46* At the cry "Babylon is captured!"
the earth quakes;
the outcry is heard among the nations.

CHAPTER 51

The Second Prophecy against Babylon

1 Thus says the LORD:
See! I rouse against Babylon, and against those who live in Chaldea,
a destroying wind.

2* Against Babylon I will send winnowers to winnow her and lay waste her
land;
They shall besiege her from all sides
on the day of affliction.

3* Let the bowman draw his bow,
and flaunt his coat of mail;
Spare not her young men,
doom her entire army.

4* The slain shall fall in the land of Chaldea,
the transfixes, in her streets;

5 For Israel and Judah are not widowed
of their God, the LORD of hosts,
And the Chaldean land is full of guilt

---

30: 49, 26; 51, 4.                   43: Is 13, 7.
34: 51, 36.                           44: 49, 19.
37: 51, 30; Na 3, 13.               45: 51, 12, 29.
38: 51, 32, 36.                       46: 51, 29.
39: 51, 37; Is 13,                   51, 2: 15, 7; Is 41, 16.
21f.                                   3: 50, 14, 29.
40: 51, 43.                           4: 50, 30.
41: 51, 27f.

- to be punished by the Holy One of Israel.
- 6* Flee out of Babylon; let each one save his life, perish not for her guilt; This is a time of vengeance for the LORD, he pays her her due.
- 7* Babylon was a golden cup in the hand of the LORD which made the whole earth drunk; The nations drank its wine, with this they have become mad.
- 8* Babylon suddenly falls and is crushed: howl over her! Bring balm for her wounds, in case she can be healed.
- 9* "We have tried to heal Babylon, but she cannot be healed. Leave her, let us go, each to his own land." Her judgment reaches heaven, it touches the clouds.
- 10* The LORD has brought to light our just cause; come, let us tell in Zion what the LORD, our God, has done.
- 11*† Sharpen the arrows, fill the quivers; The LORD has stirred up the spirit of Media's kings; Babylon he is resolved to destroy. Yes, it is the vengeance of the LORD, vengeance for his temple.
- 12 Against the walls of Babylon raise a signal, make strong the watch; Post sentries, arrange ambushes! For the LORD has planned and he will carry out his threat against the inhabitants of Babylon.
- 13* You who dwell by mighty waters, rich in treasure, Your end has come, the term at which you shall be cut off!
- 14 The LORD of hosts has sworn by himself: I will fill you with men as numerous as locusts, who shall raise over you the vintage shout!
- 15* He has sworn who made the earth by his power, and established the world by his wisdom, and stretched out the heavens by his skill.
- 16 When he thunders, the waters in the heavens roar, and he brings up clouds from the end of the earth;
- He makes the lightning flash in the rain, and releases stormwinds from their chambers.
- 17 Every man is stupid, ignorant; every artisan is put to shame by his idol: He molded a fraud, without breath of life.
- 18 Nothingness are they, a ridiculous work, that will perish in their time of punishment.
- 19 Not like these is the portion of Jacob, he is the creator of all things; Israel is his very own tribe, LORD of hosts is his name.
- 20 You are my hammer, my weapon for war; With you I shatter nations, with you I destroy kingdoms.
- 21* With you I shatter horse and rider, with you I shatter chariot and driver.
- 22* With you I shatter man and wife, with you I shatter old and young, with you I shatter the youth and maiden.
- 23 With you I shatter the shepherd and his flock, with you I shatter the farmer and his team, with you I shatter satraps and prefects.
- 24* Thus will I repay Babylon, and all who live in Chaldea All the evil they did to Zion, as you shall see with your own eyes, says the LORD.
- 25* Beware! I am against you, destroying mountain, destroyer of the entire earth, says the LORD; I will stretch forth my hand against you, roll you down over the cliffs, and make you a burnt mountain:
- 26* They will not take from you a cornerstone, or a foundation stone; Ruins forever shall you be, says the LORD.

---

6: 50, 8.15.29; Is 48, 20.	13: Na 2, 1. 15: 10, 12.
7: Rv 14, 8; 17, 4.	21: Dn 7, 7.19.23.
8: Rv 18, 9-18.	22: Is 13, 16.18.
9: Is 13, 14; Rv 18, 5.	24: 25, 14; 50, 29; Ps 137, 8.
10: 50, 28.	25: Rv 8, 7; 18, 8f.
11: 2 Kgs 17, 6; Is 13, 17.	26: 25, 12; Ps 118, 22.

† 51, 11: Media's kings: the Medes dwelt with the Persians in the land now known as Iran. At the time these words were written the Medes were the dominant people of the two, but within a short time the Persians had gained the ascendancy.

27† Raise a signal on the earth, blow the trumpet among the nations;
Dedicate peoples to war against her,
summon against her the kingdoms,
Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz;
Appoint recruiting officers against her,
send up horses like bristling locusts.

28 Dedicate peoples to war against her:
the king of Media,
Its governors and all its prefects,
every land in his domain.

29 The earth quakes and writhes, the LORD's plan against Babylon is carried out,
Turning the land of Babylon into a desert where no one lives.

30 Babylon's warriors have ceased to fight, they remain in their strongholds;
Dried up is their strength,
they have become women.
Burned are their homes,
and broken their bars.

31* One runner meets another,
herald meets herald,
Telling the king of Babylon that all his city is taken.

32 The fords have been seized, and the fortresses set on fire,
while warriors are in panic.

33* For thus says the LORD of hosts,
the God of Israel:
Daughter Babylon is like a threshing floor
at the time it is trodden;
Yet a little while,
and the harvest time will come for her.

34† He has consumed me, routed me,
[Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon,]
he has left me as an empty vessel;
He has swallowed me like a dragon:
filled his belly with my delights,
and cast me out.

35 My torn flesh be upon Babylon, says the city on Zion;
My blood upon the people of Chaldea, says Jerusalem.

36 But now, thus says the LORD:
Surely I will defend your cause,
I will avenge you;
I will dry up her sea,
and drain her fountain.

37* Babylon shall become a heap of ruins,
a haunt of jackals;
A place of horror and ridicule,
where no one lives.

38* They all roar like lions,
growl like lion cubs.

39 When they are parched, I will set a drink before them to make them drunk, that they may be overcome with perpetual sleep, never to awaken,
says the LORD.

40 I will bring them down like lambs to the slaughter, like rams and goats.

41* How has she been seized, made captive,
the glory of the whole world!
What a horror has Babylon become among nations:
against Babylon the sea rises,
she is overwhelmed by the roaring waves!

42 Her cities have become a desert, parched and arid land
Where no man lives,
and no one passes through.

44 I will punish Bel in Babylon, and make him disgorge what he swallowed;
peoples shall stream to him no more.
The wall of Babylon falls!

45 Leave her, my people, let each one save himself from the burning wrath of the LORD.

46* Be not discouraged for fear of rumors spread in the land; this year the rumor comes, then violence in the land, tyrant against tyrant. 47 But behold, the days are coming when I will punish the idols of Babylon; her whole land shall be put to shame, and all her slain shall lie fallen within her. 48* Then heaven, and earth, and everything in them shall shout over Babylon with joy, when the destroyers come against her from the north, says the LORD. 49 Babylon, too, must fall, O slain of Israel, as at the hands of Babylon have fallen the slain of all the earth.

50 You who have escaped the sword, go on, stand not still;
Remember the LORD from afar,
let Jerusalem come to your minds.

51* We are ashamed because we have heard taunts, confusion covers our faces;
strangers have entered the holy places of the house of the LORD.

27: Na 3, 17.

31: 2 Chr 30, 6; Jb

1, 14-18.

33: Rv 14, 15.

37: Is 25, 2.

38: Na 2, 11f.

41: Is 13, 19.

46: Mt 24, 6f.

48: Rv 18, 20.

51: Pss 44, 16f; 78,

1-4.

† 51, 27: Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz: regions or people in what is now Armenia, subject at this time to Media.
51, 34: Me, my: refers to Jerusalem.

- 52 But behold, the days are coming, says the LORD, when I will punish her idols, and in her whole land the wounded will groan.
- 53* Though Babylon scale the heavens, and make her strong heights inaccessible, destroyers from me shall reach her, says the LORD.
- 54 Hear! loud cries from Babylon, dire destruction from the land of the Chaldeans;
- 55 For the LORD lays Babylon waste, stills her loud cry, Though her waves were roaring like mighty waters, and their clamor was heard afar.
- 56* For the destroyer comes upon her, [Babylon,] her heroes are captured, their bows broken; The LORD is a God who requites, he will surely repay.
- 57 I will make her princes and her wise men drunk, her governors, her prefects, and her warriors, so that they sleep an eternal sleep, never to awaken, says the King, whose name is the LORD of hosts.
- 58* Thus says the LORD of hosts:

The walls of spacious Babylon shall be leveled utterly;
her lofty gates shall be destroyed by fire.
The toil of the nations is for nothing;
for the flames the peoples weary themselves.

The Prophecy Sent to Babylon.

59† This was the errand given by the prophet Jeremiah to Seraiah, son of Ne-riah, son of Mahseiah, when he went to Babylon for the king in the fourth year of the reign of Zedekiah; Seraiah was chief quartermaster. 60† Jeremiah had written all the misfortune that was to befall Babylon in a single book: all these words were written against Babylon. 61* And Jeremiah said to Seraiah: When you reach Babylon, see that you read aloud all these words, 62 and then say: O LORD, you yourself threatened to destroy this place, so that neither man nor beast should dwell in it, since it would remain an everlasting desert. 63* When you have finished reading this book, tie a stone to it and throw it in the Euphrates, 64† and say: Thus shall Babylon sink. Never shall she rise, because of the evil I am bringing upon her. [To "weary themselves" are the words of Jeremiah.]

VI: HISTORICAL APPENDIX

CHAPTER 52

Capture of Jerusalem. 1*† Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he became king, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal, daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. 2 He did what was evil in the eyes of the LORD, just as Jehoiakim had done. 3 Indeed, what was done in Jerusalem and in Judah so angered the LORD that he cast them out from his presence.

Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon. 4*† In the tenth month of the ninth year of his reign, on the tenth day of the month, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and his whole army advanced against Jerusalem, encamped around it, and built siege walls on every side. 5 The siege of the city continued until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah.

6 On the ninth day of the fourth month, when famine had gripped the city and the people had no more bread, 7 the city walls were breached. Then all the soldiers took to flight and left the city by night through the gate between the two walls which was near the king's garden. With the Chaldeans surrounding the city, they went in the direction of the Arabah. 8 But the Chaldean army pursued the king and overtook Zedekiah in the desert near Jericho, while his whole army fled from him.

9 The king, therefore, was arrested and brought to Riblah, in the land of Hamath, to the king of Babylon, who pronounced sentence on him. 10 As Zedekiah looked on, the king of Babylon slew his sons as well as all the princes of Judah at Riblah. 11 Then he blinded Zedekiah, bound him with fetters, and had him brought to Babylon and kept in prison until the day of his death.

Destruction of Jerusalem. 12† On the tenth day of the fifth month (this was in the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon), Nebuzaradan,

53: Is 14, 13.

56: Na 1, 2.

58: Hb 2, 13.

61: 50, 1-51.

63: Rv 18, 21.

52, 1-27: 2 Kgs 24, 18—

25, 21.

4-16: 39, 1-10.

†

51, 59: Seraiah: the brother of Baruch; cf 32, 12. The king: Zedekiah. Perhaps Seraiah went to Babylon to explain away the presence of foreign ambassadors in Jerusalem that same year; cf 27, 3.

51, 60: Jeremiah prophesied against Babylon, even as he foretold Judah's release from Babylon's power (3, 14-18; 32, 15; 33, 6-9, 12f); but his book against Babylon was thrown in the Euphrates (v 63). The preceding oracles were composed by later writers; see note on 50, 1-51, 58.

51, 64: To "weary themselves" are the words of Jeremiah: an editorial remark concerning the end of v 58.

52, 1-34: This supplement to the Book of Jeremiah was taken by the final editor from 2 Kgs 24, 18-25, 30 and placed here in order to show the fulfillment of Jeremiah's prophecies. In part this repeats the history given in Jer 39-41; the history of Gedaliah in 2 Kgs 25, 22-26, however, has not been reproduced here.

52, 4: In the tenth month of the ninth year of his reign, on the tenth day of the month: January 15, 588 B.C. Cf 39, 1.

52, 12: On the tenth day of the fifth month . . . nineteenth year: the tenth of Ab—July/August in 587 B.C.

captain of the bodyguard, came to Jerusalem as the representative of the king of Babylon. <sup>13</sup> He burned the house of the LORD, the palace of the king, and all the houses of Jerusalem; every large building he destroyed with fire. <sup>14</sup> And the Chaldean troops who were with the captain of the guard tore down all the walls that surrounded Jerusalem.

<sup>15</sup> Then Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard, led into exile the rest of the people left in the city, and those who had deserted to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the artisans. <sup>16</sup> But some of the country's poor, Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard, left behind as vinedressers and farmers.

<sup>17</sup> The bronze pillars that belonged to the house of the LORD, and the wheeled carts and the bronze sea in the house of the LORD, the Chaldeans broke into pieces; they carried away all the bronze to Babylon. <sup>18</sup> They took also the pots, the shovels, the snuffers, the bowls, the pans, and all the bronze vessels used for service. <sup>19</sup> The basins also, the fire holders, the bowls, the pots, the lampstands, the pans, the sacrificial bowls which were of gold or silver, these too the captain of the guard carried off, <sup>20</sup> as well as the two pillars, the one sea, and the twelve oxen of bronze under the sea, and the wheeled carts which King Solomon had made for the house of the LORD. The bronze of all these furnishings could not be weighed.

<sup>21</sup> Each of the pillars was eighteen cubits high and twelve cubits in diameter; each was four fingers thick, and hollow inside. <sup>22</sup> A bronze capital five cubits high surmounted the one pillar, and a network with pomegranates encircled the capital, all of brass; and so for the other pillar. The pomegranates . . . <sup>23</sup> there were ninety-six pomegranates. There were a hundred pomegranates, all around the network.

<sup>24</sup> The captain of the guard also took Seraiah, the high priest, Zephaniah, the second priest, and the three keepers of the entry. <sup>25</sup> And from the city he took one courtier, a commander of soldiers, and seven men in the personal service of the king who were present in the city, and the scribe of the army commander who mustered the people of the land, and sixty of the common people who were in the city. <sup>26</sup> The captain of the guard, Nebuzaradan, arrested these and brought them to the king of Babylon at Riblah, <sup>27</sup> who had them struck down and put to death in Riblah, in the land of Hamath.

Thus was Judah exiled from her land. <sup>28†</sup> This is the number of the people whom Nebuchadnezzar led away captive: in his seventh year, three thousand and twenty-three people of Judah; <sup>29</sup> in the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar, eight hundred and thirty-two persons from Jerusalem; <sup>30</sup> in the twenty-third year of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuzaradan, captain of the guard, exiled seven hundred and forty-five people of Judah: four thousand six hundred persons in all.

Favor Shown to Jehoiachin. <sup>31*†</sup> In the thirty-seventh year of the exile of Jehoiachin, king of Judah, on the twenty-fifth day of the twelfth month, Evil-merodach, king of Babylon, in the inaugural year of his reign, took up the case of Jehoiachin, king of Judah, and released him from prison. <sup>32†</sup> He spoke kindly to him and gave him a throne higher than that of the other kings who were with him in Babylon. <sup>33</sup> Jehoiachin took off his prison garb and ate at the king's table as long as he lived. <sup>34</sup> The allowance given him by the king of Babylon was a perpetual allowance, in fixed daily amounts, all the days of his life until the day of his death.

---

31-34: 2 Kgs 25, 27-30

†

<sup>52, 28-30:</sup> These verses are missing in the Greek text and have not been taken from 2 Kgs 25, but from some other source using a different system of chronology. Besides the deportations of 598 and 587 B.C., mention is made here of a final one that took place in the year 582/1, possibly as a sequel to the murder of Gedaliah; cf 41, 2.

<sup>52, 31-34:</sup> In the year 561/0 B.C., Jehoiachin was released from prison by Nebuchadnezzar's successor Awil-Marduk (Evil-merodach), who reigned only two years. Babylonian records confirm the fact that Jehoiachin and his family were supported at public expense.

<sup>52, 32:</sup> The other kings: who had also been brought as captives to Babylon.

LAMENTATIONS

The sixth century B.C. was an age of crisis, a turning point in the history of Israel. With the destruction of the temple and the interruption of its ritual, the exile of the leaders and loss of national sovereignty, an era came to an end. Not long after the fall of Jerusalem (587) an eyewitness of the national humiliation composed these five laments. They combine confession of sin, grief over the suffering and humiliation of Zion, submission to merited chastisement, and strong faith in the constancy of Yahweh's love and power to restore. The union of poignant grief and unquenchable hope reflects the constant prophetic vision of the weakness of man and the strength of God's love; it also shows how Israel's faith in Yahweh could survive the shattering experience of national ruin.

As a literary work, the Book of Lamentations is carefully constructed according to a familiar structural device. The first four poems are acrostics in which the separate stanzas begin with successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet from the first to the last. Far from destroying the spontaneous pathos of the songs, this literary feature permits a symbolic and disciplined expression of the profound grief, the sinful responsibility, and the enduring hope of the suffering community. The figure of Israel as the bride of Yahweh, familiar from the prophets, appears here again; but now Zion is a desolate widow, the Judaea Capta of Titus' memorial coins, sustained only by the faith that God's chastisement will eventually give place to his infinite compassion.

---

CHAPTER 1

Jerusalem Abandoned and Disgraced

- 1† How lonely she is now,
the once crowded city!
Widowed is she
who was mistress over nations;
The princess among the provinces has been made a toiling slave.
- 2* Bitterly she weeps at night,
tears upon her cheeks,
With not one to console her
of all her dear ones;
Her friends have all betrayed her and become her enemies.
- 3* Judah has fled into exile from oppression and cruel slavery;
Yet where she lives among the nations
she finds no place to rest:
All her persecutors come upon her where she is narrowly confined.
- 4* The roads to Zion mourn for lack of pilgrims going to her feasts;
All her gateways are deserted,
her priests groan,
Her virgins sigh;
she is in bitter grief.
- 5 Her foes are uppermost,
her enemies are at ease;

- The LORD has punished her for her many sins.
Her little ones have gone away,
captive before the foe.
- 6 Gone from daughter Zion is all her glory:
Her princes, like rams
that find no pasture,
Have gone off without strength before their captors.
- 7 Jerusalem is mindful of the days
of her wretched homelessness,
When her people fell into enemy
hands,
and she had no one to help her;
When her foes gloated over her,
laughed at her ruin.
- 8* Through the sin of which she is guilty,
Jerusalem is defiled;
All who esteemed her think her vile now that they see her nakedness;
She herself groans and turns away.

---

1, 2: Jer 30, 14; Ez
16, 37.
3: Dt 28, 65; Jer
45, 3.

4: Jer 14, 2.
8: Is 47, 2; Jer 13,
22.26.

†

1, 1-22: In this poem the poet first describes Jerusalem's miserable state after the destruction wrought by the Chaldeans (vv 1-11a); in v 11b the city itself takes up the lament.

- 9 Her filth is on her skirt;
she gave no thought how she would end.
Astounding is her downfall,
with no one to console her.
Look, O LORD, upon her misery,
for the enemy has triumphed!
- 10* The foe stretched out his hand to all her treasures;
She has seen those nations
enter her sanctuary Whom you forbade to come into your assembly.
- 11* All her people groan,
searching for bread;
They give their treasures for food,
to retain the breath of life.
"Look O LORD, and see how worthless I have become!
- 12 "Come, all you who pass by the way,
look and see Whether there is any suffering like my suffering,
which has been dealt me
When the LORD afflicted me on the day of his blazing wrath.
- 13* "From on high he sent fire down into my very frame;
He spread a net for my feet,
and overthrew me.
He left me desolate,
in pain all the day.
- 14† "He has kept watch over my sins;
by his hand they have been plaited:
They have settled about my neck, he has brought my strength to its knees;
The Lord has delivered me into their grip,
I am unable to rise.
- 15* "All the mighty ones in my midst
the Lord has cast away;
He summoned an army against me
to crush my young men;
The LORD has trodden in the wine press
virgin daughter Judah.
- 16* "At this I weep,
my eyes run with tears:
Far from me are all who could console me,
any who might revive me;
My sons were reduced to silence
when the enemy prevailed."
- 17* Zion stretched out her hands, but there was no one to console
her;
The LORD gave orders against Jacob for his neighbors to be his foes;

Jerusalem has become in their midst
a thing unclean.

- 18* "The LORD is just;
I had defied his command.
Listen, all you peoples,
and behold my suffering:
My maidens and my youths
have gone into captivity.
- 19*† "I cried out to my lovers,
but they failed me.
My priests and my elders
perished in the city;
Where they sought food for themselves,
they found it not.
- 20* "Look, O LORD, upon my distress:
all within me is in ferment,
My heart recoils within me
from my monstrous rebellion.
In the streets the sword bereaves,
at home death stalks.
- 21 "Give heed to my groaning;
there is no one to console me.
All my enemies rejoice at my misfortune:
it is you who have wrought it.
Bring on the day you have proclaimed,
that they may be even as I.
- 22*† "Let all their evil come before you;
deal with them
As you have dealt with me
for all my sins;
My groans are many,
and I am sick at heart."

CHAPTER 2

The Lord's Wrath against Zion

- 1† How the Lord in his wrath has detested daughter Zion!
He has cast down from heaven to
earth
the glory of Israel,

---

10: Jer 51, 51.	17: Ps 74, 7.
11: Jer 52, 6.	18: Dt 28, 41.
13: Ez 12, 13.	19: Jer 30, 14.
15: Jer 8, 16.	20: 2, 11.
16: Jer 13, 17; 14,	22: 3, 64.
17.

† 1, 14: They have been plaited . . . my neck: the sins of the people have been bound together and laid as a yoke on their back; cf Mt 23, 4.

1, 19: My lovers: Zion's foreign allies, who failed to help her, as the prophets had warned.

1, 22: Zion fully acknowledges her guilt and the justness of divine punishment; nevertheless, she pleads that her enemies also be punished for their guilt.

2, 1: The glory of Israel: the temple. His footstool: the ark of the covenant (1 Chr 28, 2; Pss 99, 5; 132, 7); or again, the temple (Ez 43, 7).

- Unmindful of his footstool on the day of his wrath.
- 2 The Lord has consumed without pity
all the dwellings of Jacob;
He has torn down in his anger
the fortresses of daughter Judah;
He has brought to the ground in dishonor
her king and her princes.
- 3*† He broke off, in fiery wrath, the horn that was Israel's whole
strength;
He withheld the support of his right hand
when the enemy approached;
He blazed up in Jacob like a flaming fire
devouring all about it.
- 4* Like an enemy he made taut his bow;
with his arrows in his right hand
He took his stand as a foe, and slew
all on whom the eye doted;
Over the tent of daughter Zion
he poured out his wrath like fire.
- 5 The Lord has become an enemy,
he has consumed Israel:
Consumed all her castles and destroyed her fortresses;
For daughter Judah he has multiplied
moaning and groaning.
- 6* He has demolished his shelter like
a garden booth,
he has destroyed his dwelling;
In Zion the LORD has made feast and sabbath to be forgotten;
He has scorned in fierce wrath
both king and priest.
- 7* The Lord has disowned his altar, rejected his sanctuary;
The walls of her towers
he has handed over to the enemy,
Who shout in the house of the LORD
as on a feast day.
- 8*† The LORD marked for destruction
the wall of daughter Zion:
He stretched out the measuring line;
his hand brought ruin, yet he did not relent—
He brought grief on wall and rampart
till both succumbed.
- 9* Sunk into the ground are her gates;
he has removed and broken her bars.
Her king and her princes are among the pagans;
priestly instruction is wanting,
And her prophets have not received any vision from the LORD.
- 10*† On the ground in silence sit
the old men of daughter Zion;
They strew dust on their heads and gird themselves with sack-
cloth;
The maidens of Jerusalem
bow their heads to the ground.
- 11*† Worn out from weeping are my eyes,
within me all is in ferment;
My gall is poured out on the ground because of the downfall of the daughter of my people,
As child and infant faint away in the open spaces of the town.
- 12* They ask their mothers,
"Where is the cereal?"—in vain,
As they faint away like the wounded in the streets of the city, And breathe their last
in their mothers' arms.
- 13* To what can I liken or compare you,
O daughter Jerusalem?
What example can I show you for your comfort,
virgin daughter Zion?
For great as the sea is your downfall;
who can heal you?
- 14* Your prophets had for you false and specious visions;
They did not lay bare your guilt,
to avert your fate;
They beheld for you in vision false and misleading portents.
- 15* All who pass by clap their hands at you;
They hiss and wag their heads
over daughter Jerusalem:
"Is this the all-beautiful city,
the joy of the whole earth?"
- 16* All your enemies
open their mouths against you;
They hiss and gnash their teeth.
They say, "We have devoured her.
This at last is the day we hoped for;
we have lived to see it!"

---

2, 3: 1, 12.	11: 3, 48.
4: Jer 30, 14.	12: 1, 11.
6: 1, 4; Is 1, 13; 5,	13: 1, 12.
5.	14: Is 58, 1; Jer 2,
7: Ez 24, 21.	8; 23, 16.
8: Jer 52, 13.	15: Jer 18, 16.
9: Dt 28, 36.	16: 3, 46.
10: Is 3, 26.

---

† 2, 3: Horn: symbol of power and strength; cf 2, 17; 1 Sm 2, 10; Lk 1, 69; etc.

2, 8: The measuring line: used not only in building, but in deciding what must be destroyed; cf Is 34, 11; 2 Kgs 21, 13.

2, 10: They strew dust: as a sign of penance; cf Jb 2, 12.

2, 11: My gall is poured out on the ground: I am afflicted with bitter sorrow; cf Jb 16, 13.

- 17* The LORD has done as he decreed:
he has fulfilled the threat
He set forth from days of old;
he has destroyed and had no pity, Letting the enemy gloat over you and exalting the horn of your foes.
- 18 Cry out to the Lord;
moan, O daughter Zion!
Let your tears flow like a torrent
day and night;
Let there be no respite for you,
no repose for your eyes.
- 19 Rise up, shrill in the night,
at the beginning of every watch;
Pour out your heart like water in the presence of the Lord; Lift up your hands to him for the lives of your little ones [Who faint from hunger at the corner of every street].
- 20*†“Look, O LORD, and consider:
whom have you ever treated thus?
Must women eat their offspring, their well-formed children?
Are priest and prophet to be slain
in the sanctuary of the LORD?”
- 21* “Dead in the dust of the streets lie young and old;
My maidens and young men
have fallen by the sword;
You have slain on the day of your
wrath,
slaughtered without pity.
- 22* “You summoned as for a feast day terrors against me from all sides;
There was not, on the day of your
wrath,
either fugitive or survivor;
Those whom I bore and reared my enemy has utterly destroyed.”

CHAPTER 3

Sufferings of the Prophet and His People

- 1*†I am a man who knows affliction from the rod of his anger, 2 One whom he has led and forced to walk
in darkness, not in the light;
3 Against me alone he brings back his hand
again and again all the day.
4* He has worn away my flesh and my skin,
he has broken my bones;
5 He has beset me round about with poverty and weariness;
6* He has left me to dwell in the dark like those long dead.
7 He has hemmed me in with no escape

- and weighed me down with chains;
8* Even when I cry out for help,
he stops my prayer;
9 He has blocked my ways with fitted stones,
and turned my paths aside.
- 10* A lurking bear he has been to me,
a lion in ambush!
11* He deranged my ways, set me astray,
left me desolate.
12* He bent his bow, and set me up as the target for his arrow.
- 13* He pierces my sides with shafts from his quiver.
14* I have become a laughingstock for all nations,
their taunt all the day long;
15* He has sated me with bitter food, made me drink my fill of wormwood.
- 16 He has broken my teeth with gravel, pressed my face in the dust;
17 My soul is deprived of peace,
I have forgotten what happiness
is;
18 I tell myself my future is lost,
all that I hoped for from the LORD.
19 The thought of my homeless poverty is wormwood and gall; 20 Remembering it over and over leaves my soul downcast within
me.
21 But I will call this to mind,
as my reason to have hope:
- 22* The favors of the LORD are not exhausted,
his mercies are not spent;
23 They are renewed each morning,
so great is his faithfulness.
24* My portion is the LORD, says my soul;
therefore will I hope in him.
- 25* Good is the LORD to one who waits for him,
to the soul that seeks him;

17: Dt 28, 15.	11: 1, 13.
20: 4, 10.	12: 2, 4; Jb 16, 12.
21: 3, 43; 2 Chr 36,	13: Jb 6, 4; Ps 38,
17; Jer 6, 11.	3.
22: Jer 42, 17.	14: Jb 30, 9; Ps 69,
3, 1; Jer 20, 18.	13.
4: Jb 30, 30; Is 38,	15: Jer 9, 14; 23, 15.
13.	22: Neh 9, 31.
6: Ps 143, 3.	24: Pss 16, 5; 73,
8: Ps 22, 2.	26.
10: Jb 10, 16; Hos	25: Ps 130, 6; Is 30,
13, 8.	18.

† 2, 20: Must women eat their offspring: extreme famine in a besieged city sometimes led to this form of cannibalism; cf 4, 10; 2 Kgs 6, 28f; Bar 2, 3; Ez 5, 10.
3, 1-21: The author identifies Zion's sufferings with his own.

- 26 It is good to hope in silence for the saving help of the LORD.
- 27† It is good for a man to bear
the yoke from his youth.
- 28 Let him sit alone and in silence,
when it is laid upon him.
- 29*† Let him put his mouth to the dust;
there may yet be hope.
- 30* Let him offer his cheek to be struck,
let him be filled with disgrace.
- 31* For the Lord's rejection does not last forever;
- 32* Though he punishes, he takes pity,
in the abundance of his mercies;
- 33* He has no joy in afflicting or grieving the sons of men.
- 34 When anyone tramples underfoot
all the prisoners in the land,
- 35 When he distorts men's rights in the very sight of the Most High,
- 36 When he presses a crooked claim,
the Lord does not look on unconcerned.
- 37 Who commands so that it comes to pass,
except the Lord ordains it;
- 38* Except it proceeds from the mouth of the Most High,
whether the thing be good or bad!
- 39* Why should any living man complain, any mortal, in the face of his sins?
- 40* Let us search and examine our ways that we may return to the LORD!
- 41 Let us reach out our hearts toward God in heaven!
- 42 We have sinned and rebelled;
you have not forgiven us.
- 43* You veiled yourself in wrath and pursued us,
you slew us and took no pity;
- 44 You wrapped yourself in a cloud which prayer could not pierce.
- 45* You have made us offscourings and refuse
among the nations.
- 46 All our enemies have opened their mouths against
us;
- 47* Terror and the pit have been our lot,
desolation and destruction;
- 48* My eyes run with streams of water over the downfall of the daughter of my people.
- 49 My eyes flow without ceasing,
there is no respite,
- 50 Till the LORD from heaven looks down and sees.
- 51 My eyes torment my soul at the sight of all the daughters of my city.

- 52 Those who were my enemies without cause
hunted me down like a bird;
- 53* They struck me down alive in the pit,
and sealed me in with a stone.
- 54 The waters flowed over my head,
and I said, "I am lost!"
- 55* I called upon your name, O LORD,
from the bottom of the pit;
- 56 You heard me call, "Let not your ear be deaf to my cry for help!"
- 57 You came to my aid when I called
to you;
you said, "Have no fear!"
- 58 You defended me in mortal danger,
you redeemed my life.
- 59* You see, O LORD, how I am wronged;
do me justice!
- 60 You see all their vindictiveness,
all their plots against me.
- 61 You hear their insults, O LORD,
[all their plots against me],
- 62 The whispered murmuring of my foes,
against me all the day;
- 63 Whether they sit or stand,
see, I am their taunt song.
- 64 Requite them as they deserve, O
LORD,
according to their deeds;
- 65* Give them hardness of heart,
as your curse upon them;
- 66 Pursue them in wrath and destroy
them
from under your heavens!

CHAPTER 4

Miseries of the Besieged City

- 1 How tarnished is the gold,
how changed the noble metal;
How the sacred stones lie strewn
at every street corner!
- 2* Zion's precious sons,
fine gold their counterpart,
Now worth no more than earthen jars
made by the hands of a potter!

29: Jb 42, 6.	47: Is 24, 17; Jer 48, 43.
30: Is 50, 6; Mt 5, 39.	48: Ps 119, 136.
31: Ps 103, 9.	53: Jer 37, 16; 38, 6-9.
32: Is 54, 8f.	55: Ps 130, 1f.
33: Heb 12, 10f.	59: Ps 35, 23.
38: Is 45, 7.	65: Jer 11, 20; 2 Tm 4, 14.
39: Prv 19, 3.	4, 2: Jer 19, 11.
40: Jl 2, 12f.
43: 2, 21.
45: 1 Cor 4, 13.

†

3, 27: To bear the yoke: to do God's will; cf Jer 2, 20.
3, 29: Let him put his mouth to the dust: in humble submission; cf Ps 72, 9.

- 3*† Even the jackals bare their breasts and suckle their young;
The daughter of my people has become as cruel
as the ostrich in the desert.
- 4 The tongue of the suckling cleaves to the roof of its mouth in thirst;
The babes cry for food,
but there is no one to give it to
them.
- 5* Those accustomed to dainty food perish in the streets;
Those brought up in purple
now cling to the ash heaps.
- 6* The punishment of the daughter of
my people
is greater than the penalty of Sodom,
Which was overthrown in an instant without the turning of a hand.
- 7 Brighter than snow were her
princes,
whiter than milk,
More ruddy than coral,
more precious than sapphire.
- 8* Now their appearance is blacker than soot,
they are unrecognized on the
streets;
Their skin shrinks on their bones,
as dry as wood.
- 9 Better for those who perish by the sword
than for those who die of hunger,
Who waste away, as though pierced through,
lacking the fruits of the field!
- 10* The hands of compassionate women boiled their own children,
To serve them as mourners' food in the downfall of the daughter of
my people.
- 11* The LORD has spent his anger, poured out his blazing wrath;
He has kindled a fire in Zion that has consumed her foundations.
- 12 The kings of the earth did not believe,
nor any of the world's inhabitants,
That enemy or foe could enter the gates of Jerusalem.
- 13*† Because of the sins of her prophets and the crimes of her priests, Who shed in her midst
the blood of the just!—
- 14* They staggered blindly in the streets,
soiled with blood,
- So that people could not touch
even their garments:
- 15 "Away you unclean!" they cried to
them,
"Away, away, do not draw near!"
If they left and wandered among the nations,
nowhere could they remain.
- 16 The LORD himself has dispersed
them,
he regards them no more;
He does not receive the priests with favor,
nor show kindness to the elders.
- 17† Our eyes ever wasted away,
looking in vain for aid;
From our watchtower we watched for a nation that could not save
us.
- 18 Men dogged our steps so that we could not walk in our streets;
Our end drew near, and came;
our time had expired.
- 19* Our pursuers were swifter
than eagles in the air,
They harassed us on the mountains and waylaid us in the desert.
- 20*† The anointed one of the LORD, our breath of life,
was caught in their snares,
He in whose shadow we thought we could live on among the nations.
- 21*† Though you rejoice and are glad, O daughter Edom,
you who dwell in the land of Uz,
To you also shall the cup be passed;
you shall become drunk and naked.

3: Jb 39, 16.	11: Jer 7, 20; Ez 5,
5: Dt 28, 56.	13.
6: Gn 19, 23-29; 2	13: Jer 6, 13.
Pt 2, 6; Jude 1,	14: Is 59, 10.
7.	19: Jer 4, 13; Hb 1,
8: 3, 4.	8
10: 2, 20; Dt 28, 56f;	20: 2, 9; Ez 19, 4, 8.
2 Kgs 6, 29.	21: 1, 21; Jer 25, 15.

† 3, 3: Cruel as the ostrich: see note on Jb 39, 14ff. Jerusalem, in her distress, has abandoned her children.
4, 13f: The priests and the false prophets lulled the people into an illusory security (Jer 2, 8; 5, 31; 6, 13; etc.), condoning and entering into their crimes so that they themselves became unclean.
4, 17: A nation: Egypt, which failed to give effective aid against Babylon.
4, 20: Our breath of life: the king. This is a royal epithet borrowed from Egyptian usage, while the anointed one of the Lord is Israelite. After the disaster of 598 B.C. (2 Kgs 24, 1-17), Jerusalem could have hoped to live in peace amidst her neighbors; but they (vv 21f) as well as Babylon turned against her to ensure her total devastation in 587 B.C.
4, 21: Uz: see note on Jer 25, 20.

22* Your chastisement is completed, O daughter Zion,
he will not prolong your exile;
But your wickedness, O daughter Edom, he will punish,
he will lay bare your sins.

CHAPTER 5

The Prophet's Lament
and Supplication

- 1 Remember, O LORD, what has befallen us, look, and see our disgrace:
2* Our inherited lands have been turned over to strangers,
our homes to foreigners.
3 We have become orphans, fatherless;
widowed are our mothers.
4 The water we drink we must buy,
for our own wood we must pay.
5 On our necks is the yoke of those who drive us;
we are worn out, but allowed no rest.
- 6† To Egypt we submitted, and to Assyria, to fill our need of bread.
7† Our fathers, who sinned, are no more;
but we bear their guilt.
8† Slaves rule over us;
there is no one to rescue us from their hands.
9* At the peril of our lives we bring in our sustenance, in the face of the desert heat;
10* Our skin is shriveled up, as though by a furnace, with the searing blasts of famine.
- 11* The wives in Zion were ravished by the enemy,
the maidens in the cities of Judah;
12* Princes were gibbeted by them,
elders shown no respect.
13 The youths carry the millstones, boys stagger under their loads of wood;
- 14† The old men have abandoned the gate,
the young men their music.
15* The joy of our hearts has ceased,
our dance has turned into mourning;
16 The garlands have fallen from our heads:
woe to us, for we have sinned!
17 Over this our hearts are sick,
at this our eyes grow dim:
18 That Mount Zion should be desolate, with jackals roaming there!
19* You, O LORD, are enthroned forever;
your throne stands from age to age.
20* Why, then, should you forget us, abandon us so long a time?
21* Lead us back to you, O LORD, that we may be restored:
give us anew such days as we had of old.
22* For now you have indeed rejected us,
and in full measure turned your wrath against us.

---

22: Is 40, 2.	Am 8, 10.
5, 2: Ps 79, 1.	19: Pss 9, 8; 45, 7;
9: Jer 6, 25.	102, 13.27.
10: 4, 8.	20: Pss 13, 1; 42,
11: Zec 14, 2.	10.
12: 4, 16.	21: Ps 80, 19f.
15: Jer 16, 9; 25, 10;	22: Jer 14, 19.

†

5, 6: In its state of abjection, Judah was forced to depend on its traditional enemies to the west and the east for subsistence. Mesopotamia is here called by the name it had long borne, Assyria, though in these times the power of the Assyrians had been superseded by that of the Chaldeans.

5, 7: Our fathers: collective responsibility, for good and for evil, was recognized in the Old Testament; cf Jer 31, 29. But the present generation is also personally guilty of sin (v 16).

5, 8: Administrations imposed by foreign powers were notoriously corrupt and inept. The Hebrew word for "slave" is the same as that used for an official (servant of the ruler); the author doubtless intends the double meaning here.

5, 14: The gate: the place of assembly, where city decisions were made and judgment given by the elders and other notables; see note on Ru 4, 1.

The Book of
BARUCH

The opening verses of this book ascribe it, or at least its first part, to Baruch, the well-known secretary of the prophet Jeremiah. It contains five very different compositions, the first and the last in prose, the others in poetic form. The prose sections were certainly composed in Hebrew, though the earliest known form of the book is in Greek.

An observance of the feast of Booths with a public prayer of penitence and petition (1, 15—3, 8), such as is supposed by the introduction (1, 1-14), would not have been possible during the lifetime of Baruch after the fall of Jerusalem; this indeed is suggested in the prayer itself (2, 26). The prayer is therefore to be understood as the pious reflection of a later Jewish writer upon the circumstances of the exiles in Babylon as he knew them from the Book of Jeremiah. He expresses in their name sentiments called for by the prophet, and ascribes the wording of these sentiments to the person most intimately acquainted with Jeremiah's teaching, namely, Baruch. The purpose of this literary device is to portray for his own and later generations the spirit of repentance which prompted God to bring the exile to an end.

The lesson thus gained is followed by a hymn in praise of Wisdom (3, 9—4, 4), exalting the law of Moses as the unique gift of God to Israel, the observance of which is the way to life and peace. The ideal city of Jerusalem is then represented (4, 5-29) as the solicitous mother of all exiles, who is assured in the name of God that all her children will be restored to her (4, 30—5, 9).

The final chapter is really a separate work, with a title of its own (6, 1). It is patterned after the earlier letter of Jeremiah (Jer 29), in the spirit of the warnings against idolatry contained in Jer 10 and Is 44. Its earnestness is impressive, but in restating previous inspired teachings at a later day, it does so with no special literary grace.

Thus the principal divisions of the book are seen to be:

- I: Prayer of the Exiles (1, 1—3, 8)
- II: Praise of Wisdom in the Law of Moses (3, 9—4, 4)
- III: Jerusalem Bemoans and Consoles Her Captive Children (4, 5-29)
- IV: Jerusalem Consoled: The Captivity about To End (4, 30—5, 9)
- V: The Letter of Jeremiah against Idolatry (6, 1-72)

---

I: PRAYER OF THE EXILES

CHAPTER 1

Meeting in Babylon. <sup>1*</sup> Now these are the words of the scroll which Baruch, son of Neriah, son of Mahseiah, son of Zedekiah, son of Hasadiah, son of Hilkiah, wrote in Babylon, <sup>2*†</sup> in the fifth year [on the seventh day of the month, at the time when the Chaldeans took Jerusalem and burnt it with fire]. <sup>3*</sup> And Baruch read the words of this scroll for Jeconiah, son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, to hear it, as well as all the people who came to the reading: <sup>4†</sup> the nobles, the kings' sons, the elders, and the whole people, small and great alike—all who lived in Babylon by the river Sud.

<sup>5</sup> They wept and fasted and prayed before the LORD, <sup>6*</sup> and collected such funds as each could furnish. <sup>7</sup> These they sent to Jerusalem, to Jehoiakim, son of Hilkiah, son of Shallum, the priest, and to the priests and the whole people who

-
- |                                      |                              |
|--------------------------------------|------------------------------|
| 1, 1: Jer 32, 12; 36,4; 45, 1-5. | Jer 22, 24-30;51, 59-64. |
| 2: 2 Kgs 25, 8ff.                    | 3-4: 2 Kgs 23, 1-2.          |
| 3: 2 Kgs 24, 8-17;                   | 6: Dt 16, 17.                |

† 1, 2: In the fifth year on the seventh day of the month: Jerusalem fell on the seventh day of the fifth month; cf 2 Kgs 25, 8; Jer 52, 12. Either the text read originally "the fifth month;" or it refers to the observance of an anniversary of the fall of Jerusalem in 587 B.C.

1, 4: The river Sud: one of the Babylonian canals, not otherwise identified. In ancient non-Biblical Hebrew fragments discovered in 1952, there is reference to a river "Sur" in a similar context.

were with him in Jerusalem. <sup>8†</sup> [This was when he received the vessels of the house of the Lord that had been removed from the temple, to restore them to the land of Judah, on the tenth of Sivan. These silver vessels Zedekiah, son of Josiah, king of Judah, had had made <sup>9</sup> after Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, carried off Jeconiah, and the princes, and the skilled workers, and the nobles, and the people of the land from Jerusalem, as captives, and brought them to Babylon.]

<sup>10*</sup> Their message was: "We send you funds, with which you are to procure holocausts, sin offerings, and frankincense, and to prepare cereal offerings; offer these on the altar of the LORD our God, <sup>11*†</sup> and pray for the life of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and that of Belshazzar, his son, that their lifetimes may equal the duration of the heavens above the earth; <sup>12</sup> and that the LORD may give us strength, and light to our eyes, that we may live under the protective shadow of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and that of Belshazzar, his son, and serve them long, finding favor in their sight.

Confession of Guilt. <sup>13</sup> "Pray for us also to the LORD, our God; for we have sinned against the LORD, our God, and the wrath and anger of the LORD have not yet been withdrawn from us at the present day. <sup>14*</sup> And read out publicly this scroll which we send you, in the house of the LORD, on the feast day and during the days of assembly:

<sup>15*</sup> "Justice is with the LORD, our God; and we today are flushed with shame, we men of Judah and citizens of Jerusalem, <sup>16</sup> that we, with our kings and rulers and priests and prophets, and with our fathers, <sup>17</sup> have sinned in the LORD's sight <sup>18</sup> and disobeyed him. We have neither heeded the voice of the LORD, our God, nor followed the precepts which the LORD set before us. <sup>19</sup> From the time the LORD led our fathers out of the land of Egypt until the present day, we have been disobedient to the LORD, our God, and only too ready to disregard his voice. <sup>20*</sup> And the evils and the curse which the LORD enjoined upon Moses, his servant, at the time he led our fathers forth from the land of Egypt to give us the land flowing with milk and honey, cling to us even today. <sup>21</sup> For we did not heed the voice of the LORD, our God, in all the words of the prophets whom he sent us, <sup>22</sup> but each one of us went off after the devices of our own wicked hearts, served other gods, and did evil in the sight of the LORD, our God.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> "And the LORD fulfilled the warning he had uttered against us: against our

judges, who governed Israel, against our kings and princes, and against the men of Israel and Judah. <sup>2*</sup> He brought down upon us evils so great that there has not been done anywhere under heaven what has been done in Jerusalem, as was written in the law of Moses: <sup>3†</sup> that one after another of us should eat the flesh of his son or of his daughter. <sup>4*</sup> He has made us subject to all the kingdoms round about us, a reproach and a horror among all the nations round about to which the LORD has scattered us. <sup>5</sup> We are brought low, not raised up, because we sinned against the LORD, our God, not heeding his voice.

<sup>6*</sup> "Justice is with the LORD, our God; and we, like our fathers, are flushed with shame even today. <sup>7</sup> All the evils of which the LORD had warned us have come upon us: <sup>8</sup> and we did not plead before the LORD, or turn, each from the figments of his evil heart. <sup>9*</sup> And the LORD kept watch over the evils, and brought them home to us; for the LORD is just in all the works he commanded us to do, <sup>10</sup> but we did not heed his voice, or follow the precepts of the LORD which he set before us.

Prayer for Deliverance. <sup>11*</sup> "And now, LORD, God of Israel, who you led your people out of the land of Egypt with your mighty hand, with signs and wonders and great might, and with your upraised arm, so that you have made for yourself a name till the present day: <sup>12*</sup> we have sinned, been impious, and violated, O LORD, our God, all your statutes. <sup>13</sup> Let your anger be withdrawn from us, for we are left few in number among the nations to which you scattered us. <sup>14</sup> Hear, O LORD, our prayer of supplication, and deliver us for your own sake: grant us favor in the presence of

10: Jer 17, 26,	28, 15-68.
11: Dt 11, 21; Jer	2, 2f; 2 Kgs 6, 28f; Jer
29, 7; Dn 5, 1-	19, 9; Lam 2, 20;
2; 1 Tm 2, 1f.	4, 10; Ez 5, 10.
14: Ex 23, 14ff; Lv	4; Jer 29, 18.
23, 35f; Hos 9,	6; 1, 15.
5; Sir 50, 6.	9; Jer 1, 12; 31, 28;
15: 2, 6; 3, 8; Neh	44, 27.
9, 6-37; Ezr 9, 6-	11; Dt 6, 21-22.
15; Dn 9, 4-19.	12; Ps 106, 6.
20: Lv 26, 14-39; Dt

† 8f: He: possibly Baruch; less likely Jehoiakim . . . the priest (v 7), a member of the high-priestly family not mentioned elsewhere. The silver vessels here described are distinct from the vessels referred to in 2 Kgs 25, 14 and Ezr 1, 7ff. The author of this note may have thought of the fifth year (v 1) of Zedekiah, in view of Jer 28, 1; 29, 1ff. A "fifth year," again with no month mentioned, is given in Ezr 1, 2 for the inaugural vision of Ezekiel's prophetic career.

1, 11: Nebuchadnezzar . . . Belshazzar, his son: as in Dn 5, 1f. Later Jewish tradition seems to have simplified the history of the past by making the last Chaldean ruler of Babylon the son of the conqueror of Jerusalem.

2, 3: One after another of us should eat: see note on Lam 2, 20.

our captors,<sup>15*</sup> that the whole earth may know that you are the LORD, our God, and that Israel and his descendants bear your name.<sup>16*</sup> O LORD, look down from your holy dwelling and take thought of us; turn, O LORD, your ear to hear us.<sup>17*</sup> Look directly at us, and behold: it is not the dead in the nether world, whose spirits have been taken from within them, who will give glory and vindication to the LORD.<sup>18*</sup> He whose soul is deeply grieved, who walks bowed and feeble, with failing eyes and famished soul, will declare your glory and justice, LORD!

<sup>19</sup> "Not on the just deeds of our fathers and our kings do we base our plea for mercy in your sight, O LORD, our God.

<sup>20</sup> You have brought your wrath and anger down upon us, as you had warned us through your servants the prophets:<sup>21*</sup> "Thus says the LORD: Bend your shoulders to the service of the king of Babylon, that you may continue in the land I gave your fathers:<sup>22</sup> for if you do not hear the LORD's voice so as to serve the king of Babylon,

<sup>23*</sup> I will make to cease from the cities of Judah and from the streets of Jerusalem
The sounds of joy and the sounds of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom
and the voice of the bride;
And all the land shall be deserted, without inhabitants.'

<sup>24*</sup> But we did not heed your voice, or serve the king of Babylon, and you fulfilled the threats you had made through your servants the prophets, to have the bones of our kings and the bones of our fathers brought out from their burial places.<sup>25*</sup> † And indeed, they lie exposed to the heat of day and the frost of night. They died in dire anguish, by hunger and the sword and plague.<sup>26*</sup> † And you reduced the house which bears your name to what it is today, for the wickedness of the kingdom of Israel and the kingdom of Judah.

God's Promises Recalled. <sup>27</sup> "But with us, O Lord, our God, you have dealt in all your clemency and in all your great mercy.<sup>28</sup> This was your warning through your servant Moses, the day you ordered him to write down your law in the presence of the Israelites:<sup>29</sup> If you do not heed my voice, surely this great and numerous throng will dwindle away among the nations to which I will scatter them.<sup>30*</sup> For I know they will not heed me, because they are a stiff-necked people. But in the land of their captivity they shall have a change of heart;<sup>31*</sup> they shall know that I, the LORD, am their God. I will give them hearts, and heedful ears;<sup>32*</sup> and they shall praise me in the land of their captivity, and shall invoke my name.<sup>33*</sup> Then they shall turn back from their stiff-necked stubbornness, and from their evil deeds, because they shall remember the fate of their fathers who sinned against the LORD.<sup>34</sup> And I will bring them back to the land which with my oath I promised to their fathers, to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob; and they shall rule it. I will make them increase; they shall not then diminish.<sup>35*</sup> And I will establish for them, as an eternal covenant, that I will be their God, and they shall be my people; and I will not again remove my people Israel from the land I gave them.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> "LORD Almighty, God of Israel, afflicted souls and dismayed spirits call to you.<sup>2</sup> Hear, O LORD, for you are a God of mercy; and have mercy on us, who have sinned against you:<sup>3*</sup> for you are enthroned forever, while we are perishing forever.<sup>4</sup> LORD Almighty, God of Israel, hear the prayer of Israel's few, the sons of those who sinned against you; they did not heed the voice of the LORD, their God, and the evils cling to us.<sup>5</sup> Remember at this time not the misdeeds of our fathers, but your own hand and name:<sup>6</sup> for you are the LORD our God; and you, O LORD, we will praise!<sup>7*</sup> For this, you put into our hearts the fear of you: that we may call upon your name, and praise you in our captivity, when we have removed from our hearts all the wickedness of our fathers who sinned against you.<sup>8</sup> Behold us today in our captivity, where you scattered us, a reproach, a curse, and a requital for all the misdeeds of our fathers, who withdrew from the LORD, our God."

II: PRAISE OF WISDOM IN THE LAW OF MOSES

<sup>9*</sup> Hear, O Israel, the commandments of life:
listen, and know prudence!

15: Sir 36, 11; Jer 14, 9.	30: Dt 30, 1f; 31, 27.
16: Dt 26, 15.	31: Jer 24, 7; Ez 36, 26; Ps 40, 7.
17: Ps 6, 6; Is 38, 18.	32: Tb 13, 7.
18: Zep 2, 3.	33ff: Dt 30, 1-10.
21: Jer 27, 12.	35: Jer 31, 31; Lam 4, 22.
23: Jer 7, 34.	3, 3: Pss 29, 10; 102, 12f.
24: Jer 8, 1f.	7: Jer 31, 33.
25: Jer 7, 34; 14, 12; 31, 30.	9: Prv 4, 20ff.
26: Jer 7, 10-15.

†

2, 25: They lie exposed: probably an allusion to Jer 36, 30; see note on Jer 22, 19.

2, 26: The house which bears your name: the temple of Jerusalem. What it is today: during the exile it lay in ruins.

- 10 How is it, Israel, that you are in the land of your
foes,
grown old in a foreign land,
Defiled with the dead, 11* accounted with those destined for
the nether world?
12* You have forsaken the fountain of wisdom!
13* Had you walked in the way of God, you would have dwelt in enduring peace.
14* Learn where prudence is, where strength, where understanding;
That you may know also where are length of days, and life,
where light of the eyes, and peace.
15* Who has found the place of wisdom, who has entered into her treasuries?
16* Where are the rulers of the nations, they who lorded it over the wild beasts of the earth, 17 and made sport of the birds of the heavens:
They who heaped up the silver and the gold in which men trust;
of whose possessions there was no end?
18 They schemed anxiously for money,
but there is no trace of their work:
19 They have vanished down into the
nether world,
and others have risen up in their stead.
20 Later generations have seen the light,
have dwelt in the land,
But the way to understanding they have not known,
21 they have not perceived her paths, or reached her;
their offspring were far from the way to her.
22* † She has not been heard of in Canaan, nor seen in Teman.
23 The sons of Hagar who seek knowledge on earth,
the merchants of Midian and Te-man,
the phrasemakers seeking knowl-
edge,
These have not known the way to
wisdom,
nor have they her paths in mind.
24† O Israel, how vast is the house of God,
how broad the scope of his dominion:
25 Vast and endless,
high and immeasurable!
26* In it were born the giants, renowned at the first,
stalwarts, skilled in war.
27* Not these did God choose, nor did he give them the way of understanding;

- 28* They perished for lack of prudence, perished through their folly.
29* Who has gone up to the heavens and taken her,
or brought her down from the clouds?
30 Who has crossed the sea and found
her,
bearing her away rather than choice gold?
31 None knows the way to her,
nor has any understood her paths.
32 Yet he who knows all things knows
her;
he has probed her by his knowledge—
He who established the earth for all time,
and filled it with four-footed beasts;
33 He who dismisses the light, and it departs,
calls it, and it obeys him trembling;
34 Before whom the stars at their posts shine and rejoice;
35* When he calls them, they answer,
"Here we are!"
shining with joy for their Maker.
36 Such is our God;
no other is to be compared to him:
37* He has traced out all the way of understanding,
and has given her to Jacob, his servant,
to Israel, his beloved son.
38* Since then she has appeared on
earth,
and moved among men.

CHAPTER 4

- 1* She is the book of the precepts of
God,
the law that endures forever;
All who cling to her will live,
but those will die who forsake her.
2* Turn, O Jacob, and receive her:
walk by her light toward splendor.

11: Ps 88, 5.
12: Jer 2:13; Jn 4,
10, 14.
13: Is 48, 18.
14: Prv 3, 2; 8, 14.
15ff: Jb 28, 1-28.
16: Jer 27, 6.
22: Jer 49, 7; Ez 28,
4-5; Zec 9, 2; Jb
2, 11.
26: Gn 6, 4; Wis 14,
6.
27: 1 Sm 16, 7-10.

28: Sir 10, 8.
29: Dt 30, 12f; Sir
24, 4; Rom 10,
6f.
35: Jb 38, 7; Ps 147,
4; Is 40, 26.
37: Ps 147, 19; Sir
24, 8-12.
38: Wis 9, 18; Jn 1, 14.
4, 1: Dt 4, 6-8; Prv 8,
35f; Sir 24, 22.
2: Prv 4, 13, 19.

†

3, 22f: Despite the renown for wisdom of the peoples of Canaan or Phoenicia (Ez 28, 3f), of Teman (Jer 49, 7), of the sons of Hagar or the Arabians, they did not possess true wisdom, which is found only in the law of God.
3, 24: The house of God: here, the created universe.

- 3 Give not your glory to another,
your privileges to an alien race.
4* Blessed are we, O Israel; for what pleases God is known to
us!

III: JERUSALEM BEWAILS AND CONSOLES HER CAPTIVE CHILDREN

- 5 Fear not, my people!
Remember, Israel,
6* You were sold to the nations
not for your destruction;
It was because you angered God that you were handed over to your foes.
7* For you provoked your Maker with sacrifices to demons, to no-
gods;
8 You forsook the Eternal God who nourished you,
and you grieved Jerusalem who fostered you.
9 She indeed saw coming upon you the anger of God; and she said:
"Hear, you neighbors of Zion!
God has brought great mourning
upon me,
10 For I have seen the captivity that the Eternal God has brought upon my sons and daughters.
11 With joy I fostered them;
but with mourning and lament I let them go.
12* Let no one gloat over me, a widow, bereft of many:
For the sins of my children I am left desolate,
because they turned from the law
of God,
13 and did not acknowledge his statutes;
In the ways of God's commandments they did not walk, nor did they tread the disciplined paths of his justice.
14 "Let Zion's neighbors come, to take note of the captivity of my sons and daughters, brought upon them by the Eternal
God.
15* He has brought against them a nation from afar,
a nation ruthless and of alien
speech,
That has neither reverence for age
nor tenderness for childhood; 16 They have led away this widow's cherished sons, have left me solitary, without daughters.
17 What can I do to help you?
18* He who has brought this evil upon
you

- must himself deliver you from your enemies' hands.
19 Farewell, my children, farewell:
I am left desolate.
20* I have taken off the garment of
peace,
have put on sackcloth for my prayer of supplication, and while I live I will cry out to the Eternal God.
21* "Fear not, my children; call upon
God,
who will deliver you from oppression at enemy hands.
22 I have trusted in the Eternal God for your welfare,
and joy has come to me from the Holy One
Because of the mercy that will swiftly reach you from your eternal savior.
23* With mourning and lament I sent you forth,
but God will give you back to me with enduring gladness and joy.
24* As Zion's neighbors lately saw you taken captive,
so shall they soon see God's salvation come to you,
with great glory and the splendor of the Eternal God.
25* †"My children, bear patiently the anger
that has come from God upon you;
Your enemies have persecuted you,
and you will soon see their destruction
and trample upon their necks.
26* My pampered children have trodden rough roads, carried off by their enemies like sheep in a raid.
27* Fear not, my children; call out to
God!
He who brought this upon you will remember you.
28 As your hearts have been disposed to stray from God,
turn now ten times the more to seek him;
29* For he who has brought disaster
upon you

4: Dt 4, 32-37; 33,
29.

6: Jgs 2, 14; Is 50,
1; 52, 3.

7-8: Dt 32, 13-18; 1
Cor 10, 20.

12: Lam 1, 1,2,7.

15: Dt 28, 49f; Jer 5,
15; 6, 22f.

18: Jer 32, 42.

20: Jdt 9, 1; Est 4, 16.

21: Jer 51, 5.

23: Jer 31, 12f.

24: Is 60, 11f.

25: Is 51, 23.

27: Is 40, 1.

29: Is 35, 10.

† 4, 25: Trample upon their necks: love of enemies was not an Old Testament ideal. The Babylonians are considered here, however, to be God's enemies as well as Israel's.

will, in saving you, bring you back enduring joy."

IV: JERUSALEM CONSOLED: THE CAPTIVITY ABOUT TO END

- 30* Fear not, Jerusalem!
He who gave you your name is your encouragement.
- 31 Fearful are those who harmed you, who rejoiced at your downfall;
- 32* Fearful are the cities where your children were enslaved, fearful the city that took your sons.
- 33* As that city rejoiced at your collapse, and made merry at your downfall, so shall she grieve over her own desolation.
- 34 I will take from her the joyous throngs, and her exultation shall be turned to mourning;
- 35*† For fire shall come upon her from the Eternal God, for a long time, and demons shall dwell in her from that time on.
- 36* Look to the east, Jerusalem! behold the joy that comes to you from God.
- 37 Here come your sons whom you once let go, gathered in from the east and from the west
By the word of the Holy One, rejoicing in the glory of God.

CHAPTER 5

- 1* Jerusalem, take off your robe of mourning and misery; put on the splendor of glory from God forever:
- 2* Wrapped in the cloak of justice from God, bear on your head the mitre that displays the glory of the eternal name.
- 3 For God will show all the earth your splendor:
- 4* you will be named by God forever the peace of justice, the glory of God's worship.
- 5 Up, Jerusalem! stand upon the heights; look to the east and see your children Gathered from the east and the west at the word of the Holy One, rejoicing that they are remembered by God.
- 6* Led away on foot by their enemies they left you:

but God will bring them back to you borne aloft in glory as on royal thrones.

- 7* For God has commanded that every lofty mountain be made low,
And that the age-old depths and gorges be filled to level ground, that Israel may advance secure in the glory of God.
- 8* The forests and every fragrant kind of tree have overshadowed Israel at God's command;
- 9 For God is leading Israel in joy by the light of his glory, with his mercy and justice for company.

V: THE LETTER OF JEREMIAH AGAINST IDOLATRY

CHAPTER 6

1* A copy of the letter which Jeremiah sent to those who were being led captive to Babylon by the king of the Babylonians, to convey to them what God had commanded him:

For the sins you committed before God, you are being led captive to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar, king of the Babylonians. 2† When you reach Babylon you will be there many years, a period seven generations long; after which I will bring you back from there in peace. 3* And now in Babylon you will see borne upon men's shoulders gods of silver and gold and wood, which cast fear upon the pagans. 4 Take care that you yourselves do not imitate their alien example and stand in fear of them, 5 when you see the crowd before them and behind worshipping them. Rather, say in your hearts, "You, O LORD, are to be worshiped!"; 6* for my angel is with you, and he is the custodian of your lives.

7* Their tongues are smoothed by

30: Ps 46, 5; Is 60, 14.

32: Jer 51, 43.

33f: Is 13, 20ff; 47, 1-11; Jer 50, 13.

35: Is 34, 9-14.

36: Is 60, 4f.

5, 1: Is 52, 1.

2: Ex 39, 30; Wis

18, 24; Is 61, 10;

62, 3.

4: Is 1, 26; 32, 17, Jer 33, 16.

6: Is 49, 22.

7: Is 40, 3f.

8: Is 41, 19.

6, 1: Jer 29, 1.

3: Is 46, 7; Jer 10,

1-16.

6: Ex 23, 20.

7: Ps 135, 16.

†

4, 35: Deserts and desolate places were looked upon as the special habitations of demons; Tb 8, 3; Lk 11, 24.

6, 2: Seven generations: possibly an indication of the date of this composition by an author writing for his contemporaries for whom the conditions of the exile were still realities. He has multiplied the seventy years of Jer 29, 10 by three or four.

woodworkers; they are covered with gold and silver—but they are a fraud, and cannot speak.<sup>8</sup> People bring gold, as to a maiden in love with ornament,<sup>9</sup> and furnish crowns for the heads of their gods. Then sometimes the priests take the silver and gold from their gods and spend it on themselves,<sup>10†</sup> or give part of it to the harlots on the terrace. They trick them out in garments like men, these gods of silver and gold and wood;<sup>11</sup> but though they are wrapped in purple clothing, they are not safe from corrosion or insects.<sup>12</sup> They wipe their faces clean of the house dust which is thick upon them.<sup>13</sup> Each has a scepter, like the human ruler of a district; but none does away with those that offend against it.<sup>14</sup> Each has in its right hand an axe or dagger, but it cannot save itself from war or pillage. Thus it is known they are not gods; do not fear them.

<sup>15</sup> As useless as one's broken tools<sup>16</sup> are their gods, set up in their houses; their eyes are full of dust from the feet of those who enter.<sup>17</sup> Their courtyards are walled in like those of a man brought to execution for a crime against the king; the priests reinforce their houses with gates and bars and bolts, lest they be carried off by robbers.<sup>18</sup> They light more lamps for them than for themselves, yet not one of these can they see.<sup>19</sup> They are like any beam in the house; it is said their hearts are eaten away. Though the insects out of the ground consume them and their garments, they do not feel it.<sup>20</sup> Their faces are blackened by the smoke of the house.<sup>21</sup> Bats and swallows alight on their bodies and on their heads; and cats as well as birds.<sup>22</sup> Know, therefore, that they are not gods, and do not fear them.

<sup>23</sup> Despite the gold that covers them for adornment, unless someone wipes away the corrosion, they do not shine; nor did they feel anything when they were molded.<sup>24</sup> They are bought at any price, and there is no spirit in them.<sup>25*</sup> Having no feet, they are carried on men's shoulders, displaying their shame to all; and those who worship them are put to confusion<sup>26</sup> because, if they fall to the ground, the worshipers must raise them up. They neither move of themselves if one sets them upright, nor come upright if they fall; but one puts gifts beside them as beside the dead.<sup>27*†</sup> Their priests resell their sacrifices for their own advantage. Even their wives cure parts of the meat, but do not share it with the poor and the weak;<sup>28</sup> the menstruous and women in childbed handle their sacrifices. Knowing from this that they are not gods, do not fear them.

<sup>29</sup> How can they be called gods? For women bring the offerings to these gods of silver and gold and wood;<sup>30*</sup> and in their temples the priests squat with torn tunic and with shaven hair and beard, and with their heads uncovered.<sup>31</sup> They shout and wail before their gods as others do at a funeral banquet.<sup>32</sup> The priests take some of their clothing and put it on their wives and children.<sup>33*†</sup> Whether they are treated well or ill by anyone, they cannot requite it; they can neither set up a king nor remove him.<sup>34</sup> Similarly, they cannot give anyone riches or coppers; if one fails to fulfill a vow to them, they cannot exact it of him.<sup>35*</sup> They neither save a man from death, nor deliver the weak from the strong.<sup>36</sup> To no blind man do they restore his sight, nor do they save any man in an emergency.<sup>37</sup> They neither pity the widow nor benefit the orphan.<sup>38</sup> These gilded and silvered wooden statues are like stones from the mountains; and their worshipers will be put to shame.<sup>39</sup> How then can it be thought or claimed that they are gods?

<sup>40†</sup> Even the Chaldeans themselves have no respect for them; for when they see a deaf mute, incapable of speech, they bring forward Bel and ask the god to make noise, as though the man could understand;<sup>41</sup> and they are themselves unable to reflect and abandon these gods, for they have no sense.<sup>42*†</sup> And their women, girt with cords, sit by the roads, burning chaff for incense;<sup>43</sup> and whenever one of them is drawn aside by some passer-by who lies with her, she mocks her neighbor who has not been dignified as she has, and has not had her cord broken.<sup>44</sup> All that takes place around these gods is a fraud: how then can it be thought or claimed that they are gods?

<sup>45</sup> They are produced by woodworkers and goldsmiths, and they are nothing else than what these craftsmen wish them to be.<sup>46</sup> Even those who produce them are not long-lived;<sup>47</sup> how then can what they have produced be gods? They have left frauds and opprobrium to their successors.<sup>48</sup> For when war or disaster comes upon them, the priests deliberate

25: Wis 13, 16.	33: Dn 2, 21.
27: Lv 12, 4; 15, 19f;	35: Pss 68, 6; 146.
Dt 14, 28f.	7f.
30: Lv 10, 6; 21,	42-43: Jer 3,2.
5, 10.

† 6, 10: Harlots on the terrace: cult prostitutes, common in the idolatrous religions of the Gentiles.

6, 27-31: From the point of view of Jewish ritual law, the practices named here were grotesque and depraved; cf Lv 12, 2ff; 15, 19-23.

6, 33-39: All that the gods cannot do, the true God does; cf 1 Sm 2, 7; Dt 23, 22; Pss 68, 6; 146, 7-9; Is 35, 4f.

6, 40: Bel: cf note on Jer 50, 2.

6, 42†: This seems to refer to the obligation of Babylonian women to serve once in their lives as cult prostitutes. The unbroken cord was a sign that this duty had not yet been fulfilled. Chaff: burnt as an aphrodisiac or for use in erotic rites.

among themselves where they can hide with them.<sup>49</sup> How then can one not know that these are no-gods, which do not save themselves either from war or from disaster?<sup>50</sup> They are wooden, gilded and silvered; they will later be known for frauds. To all peoples and kings it will be clear that they are not gods, but human handiwork; and that God's work is not in them.

<sup>51</sup> Who does not know that they are not gods? <sup>52</sup> They set no king over the land, nor do they give men rain. <sup>53</sup> They neither vindicate their own rights, nor do they recover what is unjustly taken, for they are unable; <sup>54</sup> they are like crows between heaven and earth. For when fire breaks out in the temple of these wooden or gilded or silvered gods, though the priests flee and are safe, they themselves are burnt up in the fire like beams. <sup>55</sup> They cannot resist a king, or enemy forces. <sup>56</sup> How then can it be admitted or thought that they are gods?

They are safe from neither thieves nor bandits, these wooden and silvered and gilded gods; <sup>57</sup> those who seize them strip off the gold and the silver, and go away with the clothing that was on them, and they cannot help themselves. <sup>58</sup> * How much better to be a king displaying his valor, or a handy tool in a house, the joy of its owner, than these false gods; or the door of a house, that keeps safe those who are within, rather than these false gods; or a wooden post in a palace, rather than these false gods! <sup>59</sup> The sun and moon and stars are bright, and obedient in the service for which they are sent. <sup>60</sup> Likewise the lightning, when it flashes, is a goodly sight; and the same wind blows over all the land. <sup>61</sup> The clouds, too, when commanded by God to proceed across the whole world, fulfill the order; <sup>62</sup> and fire, sent from on high to burn up the mountains and the forests, does what has been commanded. But these false gods are not their equal, whether in beauty or in power; <sup>63</sup> so that it is unthinkable, and cannot be claimed, that they are gods. They can neither execute judgment, nor benefit man. <sup>64</sup> Know, therefore, that they are not gods, and do not fear them.

<sup>65</sup> Kings they neither curse nor bless. <sup>66</sup> They show the nations no signs in the heavens, nor are they brilliant like the sun, nor shining like the moon. <sup>67</sup> The beasts which can help themselves by fleeing to shelter are better than they are. <sup>68</sup> Thus in no way is it clear to us that they are gods; so do not fear them. <sup>69</sup> For like a scarecrow in a cucumber patch, that is no protection, are their wooden, gilded, silvered gods. <sup>70</sup> Just like a thornbush in a garden on which perches every kind of bird, or like a corpse hurled into darkness, are their silvered and gilded wooden gods. <sup>71</sup> From the rotting of the purple and the linen upon them, it can be known that they are not gods; they themselves will in the end be consumed, and be a disgrace in the land. <sup>72</sup> The better for the just man who has no idols: he shall be far from disgrace!

---

58: Wis 13, 10-15; 15, 7ff.

The Book of
EZEKIEL

Ezekiel's complex character makes him one of the most interesting figures in Israelite prophecy. In many ways he resembles the more primitive type of prophet represented by Elijah and Elisha; yet he clearly depends on all his predecessors in prophecy, and his teaching is a development of theirs. His unique contribution to the history of prophetism lies in his manifest interest in the temple and the liturgy, an interest paralleled in no other prophet—not even Jeremiah who, like Ezekiel, was also a priest. Particularly because of this interest, Ezekiel's influence on postexilic religion was enormous, and not without reason has he been called "the father of Judaism." This has resulted in his prophecies reaching us with the evident marks of editing and addition by the post-exilic circles that shared his intense interest. However, we may be sure that in this book we have throughout what is in substance the prophet's own work.

Ezekiel became a prophet in Babylon—the first prophet to receive the call to prophesy outside the Holy Land. As one of the exiles deported by Nebuchadnezzar in 597, his first task was to prepare his fellow countrymen in Babylon for the final destruction of Jerusalem, which they believed to be inviolable. Accordingly, the first part of his book consists of reproaches for Israel's past and present sins and the confident prediction of yet a further devastation of the land of promise and a more general exile. In 587, when Nebuchadnezzar destroyed Jerusalem, Ezekiel was vindicated before his unbelieving compatriots.

After this time, Ezekiel's message changes. From now on his prophecy is characterized by the promise of salvation in a new covenant, and he is anxious to lay down the conditions necessary to obtain it. Even as Jeremiah had believed, Ezekiel thought that the exiles were the hope of Israel's restoration, once God's allotted time for the Exile had been accomplished. His final eight chapters are an utopian vision of the Israel of the future, rid of its past evils and reestablished firmly under the rule of the Lord. The famous vision of the dry bones in chapter 37 expresses his firm belief in a forthcoming restoration, Israel rising to new life from the graveyard of Babylon. But Ezekiel's new covenant, like Jeremiah's, was to see its true fulfillment only in the New Testament.

Perhaps no other prophet has stressed the absolute majesty of God as Ezekiel does. This appears not only in the tremendous vision by the river Chebar with which his prophecy opens, but throughout the book. Ultimately, says Ezekiel, whatever God does to or for man is motivated by zeal for his own holy name. The new heart and the new spirit which must exist under the new covenant cannot be the work of man; they too must be the work of God. By such teachings he helped prepare for the New Testament doctrine of salvation through grace.

The Book of Ezekiel is divided as follows:

- I: Call of the Prophet (1, 1—3, 27)*
- II: Before the Siege of Jerusalem (4, 1—24, 27)*
- III: Prophecies against Foreign Nations (25, 1—32, 32)*
- IV: Salvation for Israel (33, 1—39, 29)*
- V: The New Israel (40, 1—48, 35)*

---

I: CALL OF THE PROPHET

CHAPTER 1

1,1: 3, 23; 10, 20; 43, 3.

The Vision: God on the Cherubim.
1*† In the thirtieth year, on the fifth day of the fourth month, while I was among the exiles by the river Chebar, the heavens opened, and I saw divine visions.—‡ On the fifth day of the

† 1, 1: The thirtieth year, which corresponds to the fifth year of exile (v 2), has never been satisfactorily explained, possibly it refers to the prophet's age. The river Chebar: probably a canal near Nippur, southeast of Babylon, one of the sites on which the Jewish exiles were settled.

1, 2: The fifth day of the fourth month, the fifth year: July 31, 593 B.C.; cf v 1.

month, the fifth year, that is, of King Jehoiachin's exile, <sup>3</sup> the word of the LORD came to the priest Ezekiel, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans by the river Chebar.—There the hand of the LORD came upon me.

<sup>4</sup>† As I looked, a stormwind came from the North, a huge cloud with flashing fire [enveloped in brightness], from the midst of which [the midst of the fire] something gleamed like electrum. <sup>5</sup>† Within it were figures resembling four living creatures that looked like this: their form was human, <sup>6</sup> but each had four faces and four wings, <sup>7</sup> and their legs went straight down; the soles of their feet were round. They sparkled with a gleam like burnished bronze.

<sup>10</sup>*† Their faces were like this: each of the four had the face of a man, but on the right side was the face of a lion, and on the left side the face of an ox, and finally each had the face of an eagle. <sup>9</sup> Their faces [and their wings] looked out on all their four sides; they did not turn when they moved, but each went straight forward. <sup>12</sup> [Each went straight forward; wherever the spirit wished to go, there they went; they did not turn when they moved.]

<sup>8</sup> Human hands were under their wings, and the wings of one touched those of another. <sup>11</sup> Each had two wings spread out above so that they touched one another's, while the other two wings of each covered his body. <sup>13</sup> In among the living creatures something like burning coals of fire could be seen; they seemed like torches, moving to and fro among the living creatures. The fire gleamed, and from it came forth flashes of lightning.

<sup>15</sup> As I looked at the living creatures, I saw wheels on the ground, one beside each of the four living creatures. <sup>16</sup> The wheels had the sparkling appearance of chrysolite, and all four of them looked the same: they were constructed as though one wheel were within another.

<sup>17</sup> They could move in any of the four directions they faced, without veering as they moved. <sup>18</sup>* The four of them had rims, and I saw that their rims were full of eyes all around. <sup>19</sup> When the living creatures moved, the wheels moved with them; and when the living creatures were raised from the ground, the wheels also were raised. <sup>20</sup> Wherever the spirit wished to go, there the wheels went, and they were raised together with the living creatures; for the spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels.

<sup>22</sup>† Over the heads of the living creatures, something like a firmament could be seen, seeming like glittering crystal, stretched straight out above their heads.

<sup>23</sup> Beneath the firmament their wings were stretched out, one toward the other. [Each of them had two covering his body.] <sup>24</sup> Then I heard the sound of their wings, like the roaring of mighty waters, like the voice of the Almighty. When they moved, the sound of the tumult was like the din of an army. [And when they stood still, they lowered their wings.]

<sup>26</sup>† Above the firmament over their heads something like a throne could be seen, looking like sapphire. Upon it was seated, up above, one who had the appearance of a man. <sup>27</sup> Upward from what resembled his waist I saw what gleamed like electrum; downward from what resembled his waist I saw what looked like fire; he was surrounded with splendor. <sup>28</sup> Like the bow which appears in the clouds on a rainy day was the splendor that surrounded him. Such was the vision of the likeness of the glory of the LORD.

CHAPTER 2

Eating of the Scroll. When I had seen it, I fell upon my face and heard a voice that said to me: <sup>1</sup>† Son of man, stand up! I wish to speak with you. <sup>2</sup>† As he spoke to me, spirit entered into me and set me on my feet, and I heard the one who was speaking <sup>3</sup> say to me: Son of man, I am sending you to the Israelites, rebels who have rebelled against me; they and their fathers have revolted against me to this very day. <sup>4</sup> Hard of face and obstinate of heart are they to whom I am sending you. But you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord God! <sup>5</sup> And whether they heed or resist—for they are a rebellious house—they shall know that a prophet has been among them. <sup>6</sup>† But as for you, son of man, fear neither them nor their words when they contradict you and reject you, and when you sit on scorpions. Neither fear their words nor be dismayed at their looks, for they

10: Rv 4, 6f.

6.8.

18: 10, 12; Rv 4,

†

1, 4: The North: the abode of God; see notes on Jb 37, 22; Ps 48, 3. Electrum: an alloy of gold and silver, used here for some undetermined bright metal.

1, 5: Four living creatures: identified as cherubim in 10, 20f.

1, 10-22: Note the changed order of the verses and the omission of the textually uncertain verses 14 and 21. Such changes also occur elsewhere in this book.

1, 22f. 26: This symbolic description of God's throne is similar to that in Ex 24, 9f.

1, 26: One who had the appearance of a man: God appearing in human form (v 28); cf Ex 33, 18-23.

2, 1: Son of man: a formal way of saying simply "man"; God's habitual way of addressing the prophet throughout this book. Probably the title is used to emphasize the separation of the divine and the human.

2, 2: Spirit: vital power, coming from God, which enables the prophet to hear the word of God; cf 8, 3; 9, 24; 11, 1.

2, 6: When you sit on scorpions: the prophet must be prepared for the bitterest opposition.

are a rebellious house. <sup>7</sup> [But speak my words to them, whether they heed or resist, for they are rebellious.] <sup>8</sup> As for you, son of man, obey me when I speak to you: be not rebellious like this house of rebellion, but open your mouth and eat what I shall give you.

<sup>9*</sup> It was then I saw a hand stretched out to me, in which was a written scroll <sup>10</sup> which he unrolled before me. It was covered with writing front and back, and written on it was: Lamentation and wailing and woe!

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> He said to me: Son of man, eat what is before you; eat this scroll, then go, speak to the house of Israel. <sup>2</sup> So I opened my mouth and he gave me the scroll to eat. <sup>3*†</sup> Son of man, he then said to me, feed your belly and fill your stomach with this scroll I am giving you. I ate it, and it was as sweet as honey in my mouth. He said: <sup>4</sup> Son of man, go now to the house of Israel, and speak my words to them.

<sup>5</sup> Not to a people with difficult speech and barbarous language am I sending you, <sup>6</sup> nor to the many peoples [with difficult speech and barbarous language] whose words you cannot understand. If I were to send you to these, they would listen to you; <sup>7</sup> but the house of Israel will refuse to listen to you, since they will not listen to me. For the whole house of Israel is stubborn of brow and obstinate in heart. <sup>8</sup> But I will make your face as hard as theirs, and your brow as stubborn as theirs, <sup>9</sup> like diamond, harder than flint. Fear them not, nor be dismayed at their looks, for they are a rebellious house.

<sup>10</sup> Son of man, he said to me, take into your heart all my words that I speak to you; hear them well. <sup>11</sup> Now go to the exiles, to your countrymen, and say to them: Thus says the Lord God!—whether they heed or resist!

<sup>12†</sup> Then spirit lifted me up, and I heard behind me the noise of a loud rumbling as the glory of the LORD rose from its place: <sup>13</sup> the noise made by the wings of the living creatures striking one another, and by the wheels alongside them, a loud rumbling. <sup>14</sup> The spirit which had lifted me up seized me, and I went off spiritually stirred, while the hand of the LORD rested heavily upon me. <sup>15†</sup> Thus I came to the exiles who lived at Tel-abib by the river Chebar, and for seven days I sat among them distraught.

The Prophet as Watchman. <sup>17*†</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: Son of man, I have appointed you a watchman for the house of Israel. When you hear a word from my mouth, you shall warn them for me.

<sup>18</sup> If I say to the wicked man, You shall surely die; and you do not warn him or speak out to dissuade him from his wicked conduct so that he may live: that wicked man shall die for his sin, but I will hold you responsible for his death. <sup>19</sup> If, on the other hand, you have warned the wicked man, yet he has not turned away from his evil nor from his wicked conduct, then he shall die for his sin, but you shall save your life.

<sup>20</sup> If a virtuous man turns away from virtue and does wrong when I place a stumbling block before him, he shall die. He shall die for his sin, and his virtuous deeds shall not be remembered; but I will hold you responsible for his death if you did not warn him. <sup>21</sup> When, on the other hand, you have warned a virtuous man not to sin, and he has in fact not sinned, he shall surely live because of the warning, and you shall save your own life.

Ezekiel's Dumbness. <sup>22†</sup> The hand of the LORD came upon me, and he said to me: Get up and go out into the plain, where I will speak with you. <sup>23*</sup> So I got up and went out into the plain, and I saw that the glory of the LORD was in that place, like the glory I had seen by the river Chebar. I fell prone, <sup>24</sup> but then spirit entered into me and set me on my feet, and he spoke with me.

He said to me: Go shut yourself up in your house. <sup>25</sup> [As for you, son of man, they will put cords upon you and bind you with them, so that you cannot go out among them.] <sup>26†</sup> I will make your tongue stick to your palate so that you will be dumb and unable to rebuke them for being a rebellious house. <sup>27</sup> Only when I speak with you and open your mouth, shall you say to them: Thus says the Lord God! Let him heed who will, and let him resist who will, for they are a rebellious house.

2, 9: Rv 5, 1.
3, 3: Rv 10, 9f.
17: 33, 7.

23: 1, 3, 10,
15, 20, 22; 43, 7

† 3, 3: As sweet as honey: though the prophet must foretell terrible things, the word of God is sweet to him who receives it.

3, 12: The glory of the LORD: the divine presence, manifested here in visible form.

3, 15: Tel-abib: one of the sites where the exiles were settled, probably near Nippur.

3, 17-21: This passage refers to one of the prophet's most characteristic qualities: It was placed here by an editor, though it properly belongs to a later stage in Ezekiel's ministry; cf. chapter 33.

3, 22-27: This passage also belongs to a later period, with 24, 25f and 33, 21f, during the time of the final siege of Jerusalem, when Ezekiel's prophecies consisted mainly of symbolic actions rather than words.

3, 26: Dumb: unwilling to speak to the people in exile while Jerusalem was being besieged; cf. 24, 27.

II: BEFORE THE SIEGE OF JERUSALEM

CHAPTER 4

Acts Symbolic of Siege and Exile.

3:16† At the end of seven days. . . . 1 As for you, son of man, take a clay tablet; lay it in front of you, and draw on it a city [Jerusalem]. 2 Raise a siege against it: build a tower, lay out a ramp, pitch camps, and set up battering-rams all around. 3 Then take an iron griddle and set it up as an iron wall between you and the city. Fix your gaze on it: it shall be in the state of siege, and you shall besiege it. This shall be a sign for the house of Israel. 4 Then you shall lie on your left side, while I place the sins of the house of Israel upon you. As many days as you lie thus, you shall bear their sins. 5† For the years of their sins I allot you the same number of days, three hundred and ninety, during which you will bear the sins of the house of Israel. 6 When you finish this, you are to lie down again, but on your right side, and bear the sins of the house of Judah forty days; one day for each year I have allotted you. 7† Fixing your gaze on the siege of Jerusalem, with bared arm you shall prophesy against it. 8 See, I will bind you with cords so that you cannot turn from one side to the other until you have completed the days of your siege.

9† Again, take wheat and barley, and beans and lentils, and millet and spelt; put them in a single vessel and make bread out of them. Eat it for as many days as you lie upon your side, three hundred and ninety. 10 The food you eat shall be twenty shekels a day by weight; each day the same. 11 And the water you drink shall be the sixth of a hin by measure; each day the same. 16† Then he said to me: Son of man, I am breaking the staff of bread in Jerusalem. They shall eat bread which they have weighed out anxiously, and they shall drink water which they have measured out fearfully, 17 so that, owing to the scarcity of bread and water, everyone shall be filled with terror and waste away because of his sins.

12 For your food you must bake barley loaves over human excrement in their sight, said the LORD. 13* Thus the Israelites shall eat their food unclean among the nations where I scatter them. 14 "Oh no, Lord God!" I protested. "Never have I been made unclean, and from my youth till now, never have I eaten carrion flesh or that torn by wild beasts; never has any unclean meat entered my mouth." 15 Very well, he replied, I allow you cow's dung in place of human excrement; bake your bread on that.

CHAPTER 5

1 As for you, son of man, take a sharp sword and use it like a barber's razor, passing it over your head and beard. Then take a set of scales and divide the hair you have cut. 2† Burn a third in the fire, within the city, when the days of your siege are completed; place another third around the city and strike it with the sword; the final third strew in the wind, and pursue it with the sword. 3 [But of the last take a small number and tie them in the hem of your garment. 4 Then take some of these and throw them in the midst of the fire and burn them.]

Say to the whole house of Israel: 5 Thus says the Lord God: This is Jerusalem! In the midst of the nations I placed her, surrounded by foreign countries. 6 But she rebelled against my ordinances more wickedly than the nations, and against my statutes more than the foreign countries surrounding her; she has spurned my ordinances and has not lived by my statutes. 7 Therefore thus says the Lord God: Because you have been more rebellious than the nations surrounding you, not living by my statutes nor fulfilling my ordinances, but acting according to the ordinances of the surrounding nations; 8† therefore thus says the Lord God: See, I am coming at you! I will inflict punishments in your midst while the nations look on. 9 Because of all your abominations I will do with you what I have never done before, the like of which I will never do again. 10† This means that fathers within you shall eat sons, and sons shall eat fathers. I will inflict punishments upon you

4, 13: Hos 9, 4.

3, 16: At the end of seven days. . . : the incomplete sentence probably contained some such words as "the word of the Lord came to me." For seven days, see v 15. (This verse has been transposed from chapter 3.)

4, 5†: Three hundred and ninety days . . . forty days: symbolically representing the respective lengths of the periods of exile of northern Israelites and Judahites. Northern Israel had already fallen to Assyria in 722 B.C. The letters in the Hebrew phrase for the days of your siege (v 8), each of which has its own numerical value, add up to three hundred and ninety. Forty years represent one generation.

4, 7: Bared arm: a symbol of unrestrained power.
4, 9-17: This action represents the scarcity of food during the siege of Jerusalem, and the consequent need to eat whatever is at hand. Twenty shekels: about nine ounces. The sixth of a hin: about one quart.

4, 16: Breaking the staff of bread: reducing the supply of bread which sustains the life of man as the walking staff sustains the traveler on his journey; cf 5, 16; 14, 13; Lv 26, 26; Ps 105, 16; Is 3, 1.

5, 2: The city: the one drawn on the tablet.
5, 8: I am coming at you: an expression borrowed from the language of warfare in which enemies attacked one another with the sword. You in vv 8-17 is Jerusalem.

5, 10: Fathers . . . shall eat sons, and sons . . . fathers: see note on Lam 2, 20.

and scatter all that remain of your people in every direction.

<sup>11</sup> Therefore, as I live, says the Lord GOD, because you have defiled my sanctuary with all your detestable abominations, I swear to cut you down. I will not look upon you with pity nor have mercy.

<sup>12</sup> A third of your people shall die of pestilence and perish of hunger within you; another third shall fall by the sword all around you; and a third I will scatter in every direction, and I will pursue them with the sword. <sup>16*</sup> When I loose against you the cruel, destructive arrows of hunger, I will break your staff of bread; <sup>17</sup> I will send famine against you, and wild beasts that shall rob you of your children. Pestilence and bloodshed shall stalk through you, and I will bring the sword upon you. I, the LORD, have spoken!

<sup>13</sup> Thus shall my anger spend itself, and I will wreak my fury upon them till I am appeased; they shall know that I, the LORD, have spoken in my jealousy when I spend my fury upon them. <sup>14</sup> I will make you a waste and a reproach among the nations that surround you, which every passer-by may see. <sup>15</sup> When I execute judgment upon you in anger and fury and with furious chastisements, you shall be a reproach and an object of scorn, a terrible warning to the nations that surround you. I, the LORD, have spoken!

CHAPTER 6

Against the Mountains of Israel.

<sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, turn toward the mountains of Israel, and prophesy against them: <sup>3*†</sup> Mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord God. Thus says the Lord God [to the mountains and hills, the ravines and valleys]: See, I am bringing a sword against you, and I will destroy your high places. <sup>4</sup> Your altars shall be laid waste, your incense stands shall be broken, and I will cast down your slain ones before your idols; <sup>5†</sup> I will scatter their bones all around your altars. <sup>6</sup> In all your dwelling places cities shall be made desolate and high places laid waste, so that your altars will be made desolate and laid waste, your idols broken and removed, and your incense stands smashed to bits. <sup>7</sup> [The slain shall fall in your midst, and you shall know that I am the LORD. <sup>8</sup> I have warned you.]

When some of your people have escaped to other nations from the sword, and have been scattered over the foreign lands, <sup>9</sup> then those who have escaped will remember me among the nations to which they have been exiled, after I have broken their adulterous hearts that turned away from me [and their eyes which lusted after idols]. They shall loathe themselves because of their evil deeds, all their abominations. <sup>10</sup> Then they shall know that it was not in vain that I, the LORD, threatened to inflict this calamity upon them.

<sup>11†</sup> Thus says the Lord GOD: Clap your hands, stamp your feet, and cry "Alas!" because of all the abominations of the house of Israel, for which they shall fall by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence. <sup>12</sup> He that is far off shall die of pestilence, he that is near shall fall by the sword, and he that is besieged shall perish by famine; so will I spend my fury upon them. <sup>13†</sup> Then shall they know that I am the LORD, when their slain shall lie amid their idols, all about their altars, on every high hill and mountaintop, beneath every green tree and leafy oak, wherever they offered appeasing odors to any of their gods. <sup>14†</sup> I will stretch out my hand against them, and wherever they live I will make the land a desolate waste, from the desert to Riblah; thus shall they know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER 7

The End Has Come. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, now say: Thus says the Lord GOD to the land of Israel: An end! The end has come upon the four corners of the land! <sup>3</sup> Now the end is upon you; I will unleash my anger against you and judge you according to your conduct and lay upon you the consequences of all your abominations. <sup>4</sup> I will not look upon you with pity nor have mercy; I will bring your conduct down upon you, and the consequences of your abominations shall be in your midst; then shall you know that I am the LORD.

<sup>5</sup> Thus says the Lord GOD: Disaster upon disaster! See it coming! <sup>6</sup> An end is coming, the end is coming upon you! See it coming! <sup>7</sup> The climax has come for you who dwell in the land! The time has come, near is the day: a time of consternation, not of rejoicing. <sup>8</sup> Soon now I will pour out my fury upon you and spend my anger upon you; I will judge you according to your conduct and lay upon

5, 16; 4, 16; 14, 13. 6, 3; 36, 1.

† 6, 3: High places: the sanctuaries on the mountaintops where illegal worship, whether of the Lord or of Canaanite deities, was performed.

6, 5: Scatter their bones . . . altars: dead men's bones defiled a place; cf 2 Kgs 23, 14.

6, 11: Clap your hands, stamp your feet: here evidently signs of mourning; in 25, 6, signs of joy.

6, 13: Every green tree and leafy oak: sacred groves had a long history in Palestine as places of worship; cf Dt 12, 2; note on Gn 12, 6.

6, 14: From the desert to Riblah: the whole land, from the far south to the far north.

you the consequences of all your abominations. <sup>9</sup> I will not look upon you with pity nor have mercy; I will deal with you according to your conduct, and the consequences of your abominations shall be in your midst; then shall you know that it is I, the LORD, who strike.

<sup>10</sup> See, the day of the LORD! See, the end is coming! Lawlessness is in full bloom, insolence flourishes, <sup>11</sup> violence has risen to support wickedness. It shall not be long in coming, nor shall it delay. <sup>12</sup>† The time has come, the day dawns. Let not the buyer rejoice nor the seller mourn, for wrath shall be upon all the throng. <sup>13</sup> The seller shall not regain what he sold as long as he lives, for wrath shall be upon all the throng. Because of his sins, no one shall preserve his life. <sup>14</sup> They shall sound the trumpet and make everything ready, yet no one shall go to war, for my wrath is upon all the throng.

<sup>15</sup> The sword is outside; pestilence and hunger are within. He that is in the country shall die by the sword; pestilence and famine shall devour those in the city. <sup>16</sup> Even those who escape and flee to the mountains like the doves of the valleys—I will put them all to death, each one for his own sins. <sup>17</sup> All their hands shall be limp, and all their knees shall run with water. <sup>18</sup>*† They shall put on sackcloth, and horror shall cover them; shame shall be on all their faces and baldness on all their heads. <sup>19</sup>* They shall fling their silver into the streets, and their gold shall be considered refuse. Their silver and gold cannot save them on the day of the LORD's wrath. They shall not be allowed to satisfy their craving or fill their bellies, for this has been the occasion of their sin. <sup>20</sup> In the beauty of their ornaments they put their pride: they made of them their abominable images [their idols]. For this reason I make them refuse. <sup>21</sup> I will hand them over as booty to foreigners, to be spoiled and defiled by the wicked of the earth. <sup>22</sup>† I will turn away my face from them, and my treasure shall be profaned: robbers shall enter and profane it.

<sup>23</sup> They shall wreak slaughter, for the land is filled with bloodshed and the city full of violence. <sup>24</sup> I will bring in the worst of the nations, who shall take possession of their houses. I will put an end to their proud strength, and their sanctuaries shall be profaned. <sup>25</sup> When anguish comes they shall seek peace, but there will be none. <sup>26</sup> There shall be disaster after disaster, rumor after rumor. Prophetic vision shall fade; instruction shall be lacking to the priest, and counsel to the elders, <sup>27</sup> while the prince shall be enveloped in terror, and the hands of the common people shall tremble. I will deal with them according to their conduct, and according to their judgments I will judge them; thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER 8

Vision of Abominations in the Temple. <sup>3</sup>*† Spirit lifted me up in the air and brought me in divine visions to Jerusalem, to the entrance of the north gate, where stood the statue of jealousy which stirs up jealousy. <sup>5</sup>† He said to me: Son of man, look toward the north! I looked toward the north and saw northward of the gate the altar of the statue of jealousy. <sup>6</sup> Son of man, he asked me, do you see what they are doing? Do you see the great abominations that the house of Israel is practicing here, so that I must depart from my sanctuary? But you shall see still greater abominations!

<sup>7</sup> Then he brought me to the entrance of the court, where I saw there was a hole in the wall. <sup>8</sup> Son of man, he ordered, dig through the wall. I dug through the wall and saw a door. <sup>9</sup> Enter, he said to me, and see the abominable evils which they are doing here. <sup>10</sup>† I entered and saw that all around upon the wall were pictured the figures of all kinds of creeping things and loathsome beasts [all the idols of the house of Israel]. <sup>11</sup> Before these stood seventy of the elders of the house of Israel, among whom stood Jaazaniah, son of Shaphan, each of them with his censor in his hand, and the fragrance of the incense was rising upward. <sup>12</sup> Then he said to me: Do you see, son of man, what each of these elders of the house of Israel is doing in his idol room? They think: "The LORD cannot see us; the LORD has forsaken the land." <sup>13</sup> He continued: You shall see still greater abominations that they are practicing.

<sup>14</sup>† Then he brought me to the en-

7, 18: Is 15, 2; Jer 48, 37. 10; Zep 1, 18.
8, 3: Dn 14, 6.
19: Prv 11, 4; Sir 5,

† 7, 12f: Mundane affairs will cease to have any meaning in view of the disaster that is to come.

7, 18: Baldness: shaving the head was a sign of mourning.

7, 22: My treasure: the temple of Jerusalem.

8, 3: The statue of jealousy which stirs up jealousy: the statue which provokes the Lord's jealousy for his honor. This was probably the statue of the goddess Asherah erected by the wicked King Manasseh (cf 2 Kgs 21, 7; 2 Chr 33, 7.15). Though it had been removed by King Josiah (2 Kgs 23, 6), it had no doubt been set up again in the repaganizing of Jerusalem that followed on Josiah's death.

8, 5: He: an angel accompanies Ezekiel in these visions and represents the voice of the Lord; cf 40, 3f.

8, 10: Creeping things and loathsome beasts: probably Egyptian deities, which were represented in animal form. During the last days of Jerusalem King Zedekiah was allied with Egypt, trusting in it for protection against the Chaldeans.

8, 14: Weeping for Tammuz: the withering of trees and plants in autumn was thought to be due to the descent of Tammuz, the Babylonian god of fertility, to the nether world of the dead; this descent was bewailed by the women.

trance of the north gate of the temple, and I saw sitting there the women who were weeping for Tammuz. <sup>15</sup> Then he said to me: Do you see this, son of man? You shall see other abominations, greater than these!

<sup>16†</sup> Then he brought me into the inner court of the LORD's house, and there at the door of the LORD's temple, between the vestibule and the altar, were about twenty-five men with their backs to the LORD's temple and their faces toward the east; they were bowing down to the sun. <sup>17†</sup> Do you see, son of man? he asked me. Is it such a trivial matter for the house of Judah to do the abominable things they have done here—for they have filled the land with violence, and again and again they have provoked me—that now they must also put the branch to my nose? <sup>18</sup> Therefore I in turn will act furiously: I will not look upon them with pity nor will I show mercy.

CHAPTER 9

Slaughter of the Idolaters. <sup>1</sup> Then he cried loud for me to hear: Come, you scourges of the city! <sup>2</sup> With that I saw six men coming from the direction of the upper gate which faces the north, each with a destroying weapon in his hand. In their midst was a man dressed in linen, with a writer's case at his waist. They entered and stood beside the bronze altar. <sup>3</sup> Then he called to the man dressed in linen with the writer's case at his waist, <sup>4††</sup> saying to him: Pass through the city [through Jerusalem] and mark an X on the foreheads of those who moan and groan over all the abominations that are practiced within it. <sup>5</sup> To the others I heard him say: Pass through the city after him and strike! Do not look on them with pity nor show any mercy! <sup>6</sup> Old men, youths and maidens, women and children—wipe them out! But do not touch any marked with the X; begin at my sanctuary. So they began with the men [the elders] who were in front of the temple. <sup>7</sup> Defile the temple, he said to them, and fill the courts with the slain; then go out and strike in the city.

<sup>8</sup> As they began to strike, I was left alone. I fell prone, crying out, Alas, Lord God! Will you destroy all that is left of Israel when you pour out your fury on Jerusalem? <sup>9</sup> He answered me: The sins of the house of Israel are great beyond measure; the land is filled with bloodshed, the city with lawlessness. They think that the LORD has forsaken the land, that he does not see them. <sup>10</sup> I, however, will not look upon them with pity, nor show any mercy. I will bring down their conduct upon their heads.

<sup>11</sup> Then I saw the man dressed in linen with the writing case at his waist make his report: "I have done as you ordered." <sup>11:24†</sup> Spirit lifted me up and brought me back to the exiles in Chaldea [in a vision, by God's spirit]. Then the vision I had seen left me, <sup>11:25</sup> and I told the exiles everything the LORD had shown me.

CHAPTER 10

God's Glory Leaves Jerusalem.

<sup>8:1†</sup> On the fifth day of the sixth month, in the sixth year, as I was sitting in my house, and the elders of Judah sat before me, the hand of the Lord God fell upon me there. <sup>8:2†</sup> I looked up and saw a form that looked like a man. Downward from what seemed to be his waist, there was fire; from his waist upward there seemed to be a brightness like the sheen of electrum. He stretched out what appeared to be a hand and seized me by the hair of my head. . . .

<sup>8:4</sup> I saw there the glory of the God of Israel, like the vision I had seen in the plain. The cherubim were stationed to the right of the temple; <sup>20*</sup> these were the living creatures I had seen beneath the God of Israel by the river Chebar, whom I now recognized to be cherubim. <sup>21</sup> Each had four faces and four wings; something like human hands were under their wings. <sup>22</sup> Their faces looked just like those I had seen by the river Chebar; each one went straight forward. <sup>14*</sup> Each had four faces: the first face was that of an ox, the second that of a man, the third that of a lion, and the fourth that of an eagle. <sup>15</sup> Such were the living creatures I had seen by the river Chebar.

<sup>9*</sup> I also saw four wheels beside them.

9, 4: Ex 12, 7; Rv 7, 14: 1, 10.
3, 9: 1, 15f.
10, 20: 1, 1.3.

†

8, 16: Bowing down to the sun: sun worship had been made an important part of Judahite idolatry by the impious kings. cf 2 Kgs 23, 11.

8, 17: Put the branch to my nose: the meaning is uncertain. Perhaps it refers to an Egyptian practice imported into Judah: the Egyptian sun god Re is pictured with a vine branch at his nose, signifying the transfer of creative power (divine breath) to living things. Such rites were abominable to the Lord.

9, 4: Ezekiel is pre-eminently the prophet of personal retribution; the innocent inhabitants of Jerusalem are to be spared when the idolatrous are punished. An X: literally, the Hebrew letter tau, which had the form of a cross.

11, 24f: These verses have been transposed from chapter 11 and placed after 9, 11.

8, 1—11, 25: In these chapters of the current Hebrew text, several visions involving the temple of Jerusalem were combined to form a single continuous vision. The redistribution of verses in this translation is an attempt to separate the original visions. 8, 1, 2, 4 have been transposed here from chapter 8.

8, 1: The fifth day of the sixth month, in the sixth year: September 17, 592 B.C.

8, 2: The dots suppose the omission of some words describing the prophet's being transported in his visions to the court of the temple.

one wheel beside each cherub; the wheels appeared to have the luster of chrysolite stone. <sup>10</sup> All four of them seemed to be made the same, as though they were a wheel within a wheel. <sup>11</sup> When they moved, they went in any one of their four directions without veering as they moved; for in whichever direction they were faced, they went straight toward it without veering as they moved. <sup>12*</sup> The rims of the four wheels were full of eyes all around. <sup>13</sup> I heard the wheels given the name "wheelwork." <sup>16*</sup> When the cherubim moved, the wheels went beside them; when the cherubim lifted their wings to rise from the earth, even then the wheels did not leave their sides. <sup>17</sup> When they stood still, the wheels stood still; when they rose, the wheels rose with them; for the living creatures' spirit was in them.

<sup>1</sup> I looked and saw in the firmament above the cherubim what appeared to be sapphire stone; something like a throne could be seen upon it. <sup>2†</sup> He said to the man dressed in linen: Go within the wheelwork under the cherubim; fill both your hands with burning coals from among the cherubim, then scatter them over the city. As I looked on, he entered.

The glory of the God of Israel had gone up from the cherubim, upon which it had been, to the threshold of the temple. <sup>3</sup> As the man entered, the cloud filled the inner court, <sup>4</sup> and the glory of the LORD rose from over the cherubim to the threshold of the temple; the temple was filled with the cloud, and all the court was bright with the glory of the LORD. <sup>5</sup> The noise of the wings of the cherubim could be heard as far as the outer court; it was like the voice of God the Almighty when he speaks.

<sup>6</sup> When he had commanded the man dressed in linen to take fire from within the wheelwork, among the cherubim, the man entered and stood by one of the wheels. <sup>7</sup> Thereupon its cherub stretched out his hand toward the fire that was among the cherubim. He took up some of it and put it in the hands of the one dressed in linen, who took it and came out. <sup>8</sup> [Something like human hands could be seen under the wings of the cherubim.]

<sup>18</sup> Then the glory of the LORD left the threshold of the temple and rested upon the cherubim. <sup>19</sup> These lifted their wings, and I saw them rise from the earth, the wheels rising along with them. They stood at the entrance of the eastern gate of the LORD's house, and the glory of the God of Israel was up above them. <sup>11:22†</sup> Then the cherubim lifted their wings, and the wheels went along with them, while up above them was the glory of the God of Israel. <sup>23</sup> And the glory of the LORD rose from the city and took a stand on the mountain which is to the east of the city.

CHAPTER 11

Judgment of the Princes. <sup>1</sup> Spirit lifted me up and brought me to the east gate of the temple. At the entrance of the gate I saw twenty-five men, among whom were Jaazaniah, son of Azzur, and Pelatiah, son of Benaiah, princes of the people. <sup>2</sup> The LORD said to me: Son of man, these are the men who are planning evil and giving wicked counsel in this city. <sup>3†</sup> "Shall we not," they say, "be building houses soon? The city is the kettle, and we are the meat." <sup>4</sup> Therefore prophesy against them, son of man, prophesy! <sup>5</sup> Then the spirit of the LORD fell upon me, and he told me to say: Thus says the LORD: This is the way you talk, house of Israel, and what you are plotting I well know. <sup>6</sup> You have slain many in this city and have filled its streets with your slain. <sup>7</sup> Therefore thus says the Lord God: Your slain whom you have placed within it, they are the meat, and the city is the kettle; but you I will take out of it. <sup>8</sup> You fear the sword, but the sword I will bring upon you, says the Lord God. <sup>9</sup> I will bring you out of the city, and hand you over to foreigners, and inflict punishments upon you. <sup>10</sup> By the sword you shall fall; at the boundaries of Israel I will judge you; thus you shall know that I am the LORD. <sup>11</sup> The city shall not be a kettle for you, nor shall you be the meat within it. At the boundaries of Israel I will judge you, <sup>12</sup> and you shall know that I am the LORD, by whose statutes you have not lived, and whose ordinances you have not kept; rather, you have acted according to the ordinances of the nations around you.

<sup>13</sup> While I was prophesying, Pelatiah, the son of Benaiah, died. I fell prone and cried out in a loud voice: "Alas, Lord God! will you utterly wipe out what remains of Israel?"

Restoration of the Exiles. <sup>14</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>15†</sup> Son of man, it is about your kinsmen, your fellow exiles, and the whole house of Is-12: 1, 18.

16: 1, 19.

†

10, 2: The burning coals within the wheelwork under God's throne, a sign of the divine presence (cf 28, 14; Ps 18, 13), symbolize the judgment to be visited on the city.

10, 22f: These verses have been transposed from chapter 11.

11, 3: These words reflect the false confidence of the inhabitants of Jerusalem in the face of the Chaldean invasion. Jerusalem, they think, is like an iron kettle protecting the meat within it from harm; but cf 24, 3-6.

11, 15-21: Like Jeremiah (cf chapter 29), Ezekiel knows that no reform is to be expected from the men of Judah who remained in Palestine; but the exiles will be the ones to form the new Israel. The new, spiritual covenant will replace the former covenant; cf Jer 24, 7.

rael that the inhabitants of Jerusalem say, "They are far away from the LORD; to us the land of Israel has been given as our possession."<sup>16</sup> Therefore say: Thus says the Lord God: Though I have removed them far among the nations and scattered them over foreign countries—and was for a while their only sanctuary in the countries to which they had gone—<sup>17</sup> I will gather you from the nations and assemble you from the countries over which you have been scattered, and I will restore to you the land of Israel. <sup>18</sup> They shall return to it and remove from it all its detestable abominations. <sup>19*</sup> I will give them a new heart and put a new spirit within them; I will remove the stony heart from their bodies, and replace it with a natural heart, <sup>20</sup> so that they will live according to my statutes, and observe and carry out my ordinances; thus they shall be my people and I will be their God. <sup>21</sup> But as for those whose hearts are devoted to their detestable abominations, I will bring down their conduct upon their heads, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 12

Acts Symbolic of the Exile. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, you live in the midst of a rebellious house; they have eyes to see but do not see, and ears to hear but do not hear, for they are a rebellious house. <sup>3</sup> Now, son of man, during the day while they are looking on, prepare your baggage as though for exile, and again while they are looking on, migrate from where you live to another place; perhaps they will see that they are a rebellious house. <sup>4</sup> You shall bring out your baggage like an exile in the daytime while they are looking on; in the evening, again while they are looking on, you shall go out like one of those driven into exile; <sup>5†</sup> while they look on, dig a hole in the wall and pass through it; <sup>6</sup> while they look on, shoulder the burden and set out in the darkness; cover your face that you may not see the land, for I have made you a sign for the house of Israel.

<sup>7</sup> I did as I was told. During the day I brought out my baggage as though it were that of an exile, and at evening I dug a hole through the wall with my hand and, while they looked on, set out in the darkness, shouldering my burden.

<sup>8</sup> Then, in the morning, the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>9</sup> Son of man, did not the house of Israel, that rebellious house, ask you what you were doing? <sup>10</sup> Tell them: Thus says the Lord God: This oracle concerns Jerusalem and the whole house of Israel within it. <sup>11</sup> I am a sign for you: as I have done, so shall it be done to them; as captives they shall go into exile. <sup>12</sup> The prince who is among them shall shoulder his burden and set out in darkness, going through a hole that he has dug in the wall, and covering his face lest he be seen by anyone. <sup>13*†</sup> But I will spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my snare. I will bring him to Babylon, into the land of the Chaldeans—but he shall not see it—and there he shall die. <sup>14</sup> All his retinue, his aides, and his troops I will scatter in every direction, and pursue them with the sword. <sup>15</sup> Then shall they know that I am the LORD, when I disperse them among the nations and scatter them over foreign lands. <sup>16</sup> Yet I will leave a few of them to escape the sword, famine and pestilence, so that they may tell of all their abominations among the nations to which they will come; thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

<sup>17</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>18</sup> Son of man, eat your bread trembling, and drink your water shaking with anxiety. <sup>19</sup> Then say to the people of the land: Thus says the Lord God of the inhabitants of Jerusalem [to the land of Israel]: They shall eat their bread in anxiety and drink their water in horror, that their land may be emptied of the violence of all its inhabitants that now fills it. <sup>20</sup> Inhabited cities shall be in ruins, and the land shall be a waste; thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

Prophecy Ridiculed. <sup>21</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>22†</sup> Son of man, what is this proverb that you have in the land of Israel: "The days drag on, and no vision ever comes to anything"? <sup>23</sup> Say to them therefore: Thus says the Lord God: I will put an end to this proverb; they shall never quote it again in Israel. Rather, say to them: The days are at hand, and also the fulfillment of every vision. <sup>25</sup> Whatever I speak is final, and it shall be done without further delay. In your days, rebellious house, whatever I speak I will bring about, says the Lord God.

<sup>24</sup> There shall no longer be any false visions or deceitful divinations within the house of Israel, because it is I, the LORD, who will speak.

<sup>26</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>27</sup> Son of man, listen to the house of Israel saying, "The vision he sees is a long way off; he prophesies of the distant future!" <sup>28</sup> Say to them therefore: Thus

11, 19: 36, 26; Jer 31, 12, 13: 17, 20, 32, 3.

† 12, 5: Dig a hole in the wall: the exiles are to leave Jerusalem through the broken walls of the ruined city.
12, 13: But he shall not see it: Zedekiah was blinded by Nebuchadnezzar before being deported to Babylonia; cf 2 Kgs 25, 7.

12, 22, 27: These words were used against Ezekiel because of the apparent failure of his prophecies; cf Jer 20, 7ff.

says the Lord God: None of my words shall be delayed any longer; whatever I speak is final, and it shall be done, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 13

Against the Prophets of Peace. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, prophesy against the prophets of Israel, prophesy! Say to those who prophesy their own thought: Hear the word of the LORD: <sup>3</sup> You did not step into the breach, nor did you build a wall about the house of Israel that would stand firm against attack on the day of the LORD. <sup>4</sup> Was not the vision you saw false, and your divination lying? <sup>5</sup> Therefore thus says the Lord God: Because you have spoken falsehood and have seen lying visions, therefore see! I am coming at you, says the Lord God.

<sup>6</sup> For the very reason that they led my people astray, saying, "Peace!" when there was no peace, and that, as one built a wall, they would cover it with whitewash, <sup>7</sup> say then to the whitewashers: I will bring down a flooding rain; hailstones shall fall, and a stormwind shall break out. <sup>8</sup> And when the wall has fallen, will you not be asked: Where is the whitewash you spread on?

<sup>9</sup> Therefore thus says the Lord God: In my fury I will let loose stormwinds; because of my anger there shall be a flooding rain, and hailstones shall fall with destructive wrath. <sup>10</sup> I will tear down the wall that you have whitewashed and level it to the ground, laying bare its foundations. When it falls, you shall be crushed beneath it; thus you shall know that I am the LORD. <sup>11</sup> When I have spent my fury on the wall and its whitewashers, I tell you there shall be no wall, nor shall there be whitewashers—<sup>12</sup> those prophets of Israel who prophesied to Jerusalem and saw for it visions of peace when there was no peace, says the Lord God.

Against False Prophets in Chaldea. <sup>13</sup> Thus says the Lord God: Woe to those prophets who are fools, who follow their own spirit and have seen no vision. <sup>14</sup> Like foxes among ruins are your prophets, O Israel! <sup>15</sup> Their visions are false and their divination lying. They say, "Thus says the LORD!" though the LORD did not send them; then they wait for him to fulfill their word! <sup>16</sup> But I will stretch out my hand against the prophets who have false visions and who foretell lies. They shall not belong to the community of my people, nor be recorded in the register of the house of Israel, nor enter the land of Israel; thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

Against False Prophetesses. <sup>17</sup> Now, son of man, turn toward the daughters of your people who prophesy their own thoughts; against these, prophesy: Thus says the Lord God: <sup>18</sup> Because you have disheartened the upright man with lies when I did not wish him grieved, and have encouraged the wicked man not to turn from his evil conduct and save his life; <sup>19</sup> therefore you shall no longer see false visions and practice divination, but I will rescue my people from your power. Thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

Against Sorceresses. <sup>20</sup> Woe to those who sew bands for everyone's wrists and make veils for every size of head so as to entrap their owners. Do you think to entrap the lives of my people, yet keep yourselves alive? <sup>21</sup> You dishonor me before my people with handfuls of barley and crumbs of bread, killing those who should not die and keeping alive those who should not live, lying to my people who willingly hear lies. <sup>22</sup> Therefore thus says the Lord God: See! I am coming at those bands of yours in which you entrap men's lives: I will tear them from their arms and set free those you have caught. <sup>23</sup> I will tear off your veils and rescue my people from your power, so that they shall no longer be prey to your hands. Thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER 14

Prophecy Useless for Idolaters.

<sup>1</sup> When certain elders of Israel came and sat down before me, <sup>2</sup> the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>3</sup> Son of man, these men have the memory of their idols fresh in their hearts, and they keep the occasion of their sin before them. Why should I allow myself to be consulted by them? <sup>4</sup> Therefore speak with them, and say to them: Thus says the Lord God: If anyone of the house of Israel, holding the memory of his idols in his heart and keeping the occasion of his sin before him, has recourse to a prophet, I, the LORD, will be his answer in person because of his many idols. <sup>5</sup> Thus would I bring back to their senses the house of Israel, who have become estranged from me through all their idols.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore say to the house of Israel:

13, 3: 14, 9; 34, 2; Jer 23, 1.

† 13, 10: To the confidence which the people had in their defenses against the Chaldeans, the false prophets contributed the illusion of security by predictions of peace, like men who whitewash a wall rather than allow its defects to be seen.

13, 18: Sew bands . . . make veils: magical practices believed to give to the sorceresses power over those on whom they placed these objects.

13, 19: Handfuls of barley and crumbs of bread: used in divination and forecasting the future.

Thus says the Lord God: Return and be converted from your idols; turn yourselves away from all your abominations. <sup>7</sup> For if anyone of the house of Israel or any alien resident in Israel is estranged from me, and holds the memory of his idols in his heart and keeps the occasion of his sin before him, yet asks a prophet to consult me for him, I, the LORD, will be his answer in person. <sup>8</sup> I will turn against that man, and make of him an example and a byword. I will cut him off from the midst of my people. Thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

<sup>9</sup>*† As for the prophet, if he is beguiled into speaking a word, I, the LORD, shall have beguiled that prophet; I will stretch out my hand against him and root him out of my people Israel. <sup>10</sup> Each shall receive punishment for his sin, the inquirer and the prophet shall be punished alike, <sup>11</sup> so that the house of Israel may no longer stray from me and may no longer be defiled by all their sins. Thus they shall be my people, and I will be their God, says the Lord God.

Personal Responsibility. <sup>12</sup>† Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>13</sup>* Son of man, when a land sins against me by breaking faith, I stretch out my hand against it and break its staff of bread, I let famine loose upon it and cut off from it both man and beast; <sup>14</sup>† and even if these three men were in it, Noah, Daniel, and Job, they could save only themselves by their virtue, says the Lord God. <sup>15</sup> If I were to cause wild beasts to prowl the land, depopulating it so that it became a waste, traversed by none because of the wild beasts, <sup>16</sup> and these three men were in it, as I live, says the Lord God, I swear they could save neither sons nor daughters; they alone would be saved, and the land would be a waste. <sup>17</sup> Or if I brought the sword upon this country, commanding the sword to pass through the land cutting off from it man and beast, <sup>18</sup> and these three men were in it, as I live, says the Lord God, they would be unable to save either sons or daughters; they alone would be saved. <sup>19</sup> Or if I were to send pestilence into this land, pouring out upon it my bloodthirsty fury, cutting off from it man and beast, <sup>20</sup> even if Noah, Daniel, and Job were in it, as I live, says the Lord God, I swear that they could save neither son nor daughter; they would save only themselves by their virtue.

<sup>21</sup> Thus says the Lord God: Even though I send Jerusalem my four cruel punishments, the sword, famine, wild beasts, and pestilence, to cut off from it man and beast, <sup>22</sup> still some survivors shall be left in it who will bring out sons and daughters; when they come out to you, you shall see their conduct and their actions and be consoled regarding the evil I have brought on Jerusalem [all that I have brought upon it]. <sup>23</sup> They shall console you when you see their conduct and actions, for you shall then know that it was not without reason that I did to it what I did, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 15

Parable of the Vine. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, what makes the wood of the vine better than any other wood? That branch among the trees of the forest! <sup>3</sup> Can you use its wood to make anything worthwhile? Can you make even a peg from it, to hang on it any kind of vessel? <sup>4</sup> If you throw it on the fire as fuel and the fire devours both ends and even the middle is scorched, is it still good for anything? <sup>5</sup> Why, even when it was whole it was good for nothing; how much less, when the fire has devoured and scorched it, can it be used for anything! <sup>6</sup> Therefore, thus says the Lord God: Like the wood of the vine among the trees of the forest, which I have destined as fuel for the fire, do I make the inhabitants of Jerusalem. <sup>7</sup> I will set my face against them; they have escaped from the fire, but the fire shall devour them. Thus you shall know that I am the LORD, when I turn my face against them. <sup>8</sup> I will make the land a waste, because they have broken faith, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 16

The Faithless Spouse. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, make known to Jerusalem her abominations. <sup>3</sup>† Thus says the Lord God to Jerusalem: By origin and birth you are of the land of Canaan; your father was an Amorite and your mother a Hittite. <sup>4</sup> As for your birth, the day you were born your navel cord was not cut; you were neither washed with water nor anointed, nor were you rubbed with salt, nor swathed in swaddling clothes. <sup>5</sup> No one

14, 9: 1 Kgs 22, 23. 13: 4, 16.

†

14, 9: I, the LORD, shall have beguiled that prophet: the ancient Israelites attributed to God every action, good or evil, cf 1 Sm 18, 10; 2 Sm 24, 1ff. We would say, rather, that God permitted this deceit.

14, 12-23: The doctrine of personal responsibility before God was not new (cf 3, 16-21; 18, 33, 1-20); but it had not been emphasized by the prophets before the exile, who mostly predicted national retribution and called for national repentance.

14, 14: Noah, Daniel, and Job: proverbially virtuous men. The Daniel named here may be the traditional just judge of the ancient past, celebrated in Canaanite literature, who is possibly reflected in Dn 13, but is not the hero of Dn 1-12. 16, 3†: By origin and birth . . . Canaan . . . Amorite. Hittite: the inhabitants of Jerusalem and Judah absorbed not only pre-Israelite racial strains, but also many elements of the country's pagan cult and customs.

looked on you with pity or compassion to do any of these things for you. Rather, you were thrown out on the ground as something loathsome, the day you were born.

<sup>6</sup> Then I passed by and saw you weltering in your blood. I said to you: Live in your blood<sup>7</sup> and grow like a plant in the field. You grew and developed, you came to the age of puberty; your breasts were formed, your hair had grown, but you were still stark naked.<sup>8†</sup> Again I passed by you and saw that you were now old enough for love. So I spread the corner of my cloak over you to cover your nakedness; I swore an oath to you and entered into a covenant with you; you became mine, says the Lord God.<sup>9</sup> Then I bathed you with water, washed away your blood, and anointed you with oil.<sup>10</sup> I clothed you with an embroidered gown, put sandals of fine leather on your feet; I gave you a fine linen sash and silk robes to wear.<sup>11</sup> I adorned you with jewelry: I put bracelets on your arms, a necklace about your neck,<sup>12</sup> a ring in your nose, pendants in your ears, and a glorious diadem upon your head.<sup>13</sup> Thus you were adorned with gold and silver; your garments were of fine linen, silk, and embroidered cloth. Fine flour, honey, and oil were your food. You were exceedingly beautiful, with the dignity of a queen.<sup>14</sup> You were renowned among the nations for your beauty, perfect as it was, because of my splendor which I had bestowed on you, says the Lord God.

<sup>15</sup> But you were captivated by your own beauty, you used your renown to make yourself a harlot, and you lavished your harlotry on every passer-by, whose own you became.<sup>16†</sup> You took some of your gowns and made for yourself gaudy high places, where you played the harlot. . . .<sup>17</sup> You took the splendid gold and silver ornaments that I had given you and made for yourself male images, with which also you played the harlot.<sup>18</sup> You took your embroidered gowns to cover them; my oil and my incense you set before them;<sup>19</sup> the food that I had given you, the fine flour, the oil, and the honey with which I fed you, you set before them as an appealing odor, says the Lord God.<sup>20*†</sup> The sons and daughters you had borne me you took and offered as sacrifices to be devoured by them! Was it not enough that you had become a harlot?<sup>21*</sup> You slaughtered and immolated my children to them, making them pass through fire.<sup>22</sup> And through all your abominations and harlotries you remembered nothing of when you were a girl, stark naked and weltering in your blood.

<sup>23</sup> Then after all your evildoing—woe, woe to you! says the Lord God—<sup>24†</sup> you raised for yourself a platform and a dais

in every public place.<sup>25*</sup> At every street corner you built a dais for yourself to use your beauty obscenely, spreading your legs for every passer-by, playing the harlot countless times.<sup>26</sup> You played the harlot with the Egyptians, your lustful neighbors, so many times that I was provoked to anger.<sup>27</sup> Therefore I stretched out my hand against you, I diminished your allowance and delivered you over to the will of your enemies, the Philistines, who revolted at your lewd conduct.<sup>28</sup> You also played the harlot with the Assyrians, because you were not satisfied; and after playing the harlot with them, you were still not satisfied.<sup>29</sup> Again and again you played the harlot, now going to Chaldea, the land of the traders; but despite this, you were still not satisfied.

<sup>30</sup> How wild your lust! says the Lord God, that you did all these things, acting like a shameless prostitute,<sup>31</sup> building your platform at every street corner and erecting your dais in every public place! Yet you were unlike a prostitute, since you disdained payment.<sup>32</sup> The adulterous wife receives, instead of her husband, payment.<sup>33</sup> All harlots receive gifts. But you rather bestowed your gifts on all your lovers, bribing them to come to you from all sides for your harlotry.<sup>34</sup> Thus in your harlotry you were different from all other women. No one sought you out for prostitution. Since you gave payment instead of receiving it, how different you were!

<sup>35</sup> Therefore, harlot, hear the word of the LORD!<sup>36</sup> Thus says the Lord God: Because you poured out your lust and revealed your nakedness in your harlotry with your lovers and abominable idols, and because you sacrificed the life-blood of your children to them,<sup>37*</sup> I will now gather together all your lovers whom you tried to please, whether you loved them or loved them not; I will gather them against you from all sides and expose you naked for them to see.<sup>38</sup> I will inflict on you the sentence of adulter-

16, 20: 20, 26, 31; 23, 21: 2 Kgs 16, 3; 17, 37ff; Lv 18, 21; 17: 21, 6, 23, 10.
20, 2; Dt 12, 31; 25: 23, 8; Is 57, 7;
18, 10; 2 Kgs Jer 2, 20; 3, 2;
21, 6; 23, 10; 24, 5, 7, 13, 27; Hos
4; Jer 7, 31; 19, 2, 4, 4, 13.
5; 32, 34; Mi 6, 37: 23, 10.
7.

† 16, 8: I spread the corner of my cloak over you to cover your nakedness: and also to signify the intention of marriage; cf Ru 3, 9.

16, 16: Fine robes were used to cover a couch for harlotry; cf Prv 7, 16f. In the allegory of this chapter the viewpoint often shifts from the figure (harlotry) to the reality (idolatry).

16, 20f: Human sacrifice was introduced under Judah's impious kings; cf 2 Kgs 16, 3; 17, 17; Jer 7, 31.

16, 24: A platform and a dais: associated with ritual prostitution, which the Israelites borrowed from Canaanite practice.

esses and murderers; I will wreak fury and jealousy upon you.<sup>39</sup> I will hand you over to them to tear down your platform and demolish your dais; they shall strip you of your garments and take away your splendid ornaments, leaving you stark naked.<sup>40</sup> They shall lead an assembly against you to stone you and hack you with their swords.<sup>41*</sup> They shall burn your apartments with fire and inflict punishments on you while many women look on. Thus I will put an end to your harlotry, and you shall never again give payment.<sup>42</sup> When I have wreaked my fury upon you I will cease to be jealous of you, I will be quiet and no longer vexed.<sup>43</sup> Because you did not remember what happened when you were a girl, but enraged me with all these things, therefore in return I am bringing down your conduct upon your head, says the Lord God. For did you not add lewdness to the rest of your abominable deeds?

<sup>44</sup> See, everyone who is fond of proverbs will say of you, 'Like mother, like daughter.'<sup>45†</sup> Yes, you are the true daughter of the mother who spurned her husband and children, and you are a true sister to those who spurned their husbands and children—your mother was a Hittite and your father an Amorite.<sup>46†</sup> Your elder sister was Samaria with her daughters, living to the north of you; and your younger sister, living to the south of you, was Sodom with her daughters.<sup>47</sup> Yet not only in their ways did you walk, and act as abominably as they did; in a very short time you became more corrupt in all your ways than they.<sup>48</sup> As I live, says the Lord God, I swear that your sister Sodom, with her daughters, has not done as you and your daughters have done!<sup>49*</sup> And look at the guilt of your sister Sodom: she and her daughters were proud, sated with food, complacent in their prosperity, and they gave no help to the poor and needy.<sup>50</sup> Rather, they became haughty and committed abominable crimes in my presence; then, as you have seen, I removed them.<sup>51</sup> Samaria did not commit half your sins! You have done more abominable things than they, and have even made your sisters appear just, with all the abominable deeds you have done.<sup>52</sup> You, then, bear your shame; you are an argument in favor of your sisters! In view of your sinful deeds, more abominable than theirs, they appear just in comparison with you. Blush for shame, and bear the shame of having made your sisters appear just.

<sup>53</sup> I will restore their fortunes, the fortune of Sodom and her daughters and of Samaria and her daughters [and I will restore your fortune along with them],<sup>54</sup> that you may bear your shame and be disgraced for all the comfort you brought them.<sup>55</sup> Yes, your sisters, Sodom and her daughters, Samaria and her daughters, shall return to their former state [you and your daughters shall return to your former state].<sup>56</sup> Was not your sister Sodom kept in bad repute by you while you felt proud of yourself,<sup>57</sup> before your wickedness became evident? Now you are like her, reproached by the Edomites and all your neighbors, despised on all sides by the Philistines.<sup>58</sup> The penalty of your lewdness and your abominations—you must bear it all, says the LORD.

<sup>59</sup> For thus speaks the Lord God: I will deal with you according to what you have done, you who despised your oath, breaking a covenant.<sup>60</sup> Yet I will remember the covenant I made with you when you were a girl, and I will set up an everlasting covenant with you.<sup>61</sup> Then you shall remember your conduct and be ashamed when I take your sisters, those older and younger than you, and give them to you as daughters, even though I am not bound by my covenant with you.<sup>62</sup> For I will reestablish my covenant with you, that you may know that I am the LORD,<sup>63</sup> that you may remember and be covered with confusion, and that you may be utterly silenced for shame when I pardon you for all you have done, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 17

The Eagles and the Vine. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, propose a riddle, and speak this proverb to the house of Israel: <sup>3</sup> Thus speaks the Lord God:

The great eagle, with great wings,
with long pinions,
with thick plumage, many-hued,
came to Lebanon.

He took the crest of the cedar,
tearing off its topmost branch,
And brought it to a land of tradesmen, set it in a city of merchants.

<sup>4</sup> Then he took some seed of the land, and planted it in a seedbed;
A shoot by plentiful waters,
like a willow he placed it, <sup>5</sup> To sprout and grow up a vine, dense and low-lying,
<sup>6</sup>

41: 2 Kgs 25, 9.

49: Gn 19, 24.

† 16, 45: True daughter of the mother: Jerusalem has followed in the footsteps of its heathen forebears; cf v 3.

16, 46: Your elder sister was Samaria: Samaria can be called an elder sister in view of the relatively greater importance of the northern kingdom, Israel, during most of Old Testament history. Also, the relatively insignificant Sodom of ancient history can be called your younger sister.

Its branches turned toward him,
its roots lying under him.
Thus it became a vine, produced branches
and put forth shoots.
7 But there was another great eagle,
great of wing, rich in plumage;
To him this vine bent its roots,
sent out its branches,
That he might water it more freely than the bed where it was planted.
8 In a fertile field by plentiful waters
it was planted,
to grow branches, bear fruit,
and become a majestic vine.

<sup>9</sup> Say: Thus says the Lord God: Can it prosper? Will he not rather tear it out by the roots and strip off its fruit, so that all its green growth will wither when he pulls it up by the roots? [No need of a mighty arm or many people to do this.]
<sup>10</sup> True, it is planted, but will it prosper? Will it not rather wither, when touched by the east wind, in the bed where it grew?

<sup>11</sup>† Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>12</sup> Son of man, say now to the rebellious house: Do you not understand what this means? It is this: The king of Babylon came to Jerusalem and took away its king and princes with him to Babylon. <sup>13</sup> Then he selected a man of the royal line with whom he made a covenant, binding him under oath, while removing the nobles of the land, <sup>14</sup> so that the kingdom would remain a modest one, without aspirations, and would keep his covenant and obey him. <sup>15</sup> But this man rebelled against him, sending envoys to Egypt to obtain horses and a great army. Can he prosper? Can he who does such things escape? Can he break a covenant and still go free? <sup>16</sup> As I live, says the Lord God, in the home of the king who set him up to rule, whose oath he spurned, whose covenant with him he broke, there in Babylon I swear he shall die! <sup>17</sup> When ramps are cast up and siege towers are built for the destruction of many lives, he shall not be saved in the conflict by Pharaoh with a great army and numerous troops. <sup>18</sup> He spurned his oath, breaking his covenant. Though he gave his hand in pledge, he did all these things. He shall not escape!

<sup>19</sup> Therefore say: Thus says the Lord God: As I live, my oath which he spurned, my covenant which he broke, I swear to bring down upon his head. <sup>20</sup>* I will spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my snare. I will bring him to Babylon and enter into judgment with him there over his breaking faith with me. <sup>21</sup> All the crack troops among his forces shall fall by the sword, and the survivors shall be scattered in every direction. Thus you shall know that I, the LORD, have spoken.

<sup>22</sup>† Therefore say: Thus says the Lord God:

I, too, will take from the crest of the cedar,
from its topmost branches tear off a tender shoot,
And plant it on a high and lofty mountain;
<sup>23</sup> on the mountain heights of Israel I will plant it.
It shall put forth branches and bear fruit,
and become a majestic cedar.
Birds of every kind shall dwell beneath it,
every winged thing in the shade of its boughs.
<sup>24</sup> And all the trees of the field shall know that I, the LORD,
Bring low the high tree,
lift high the lowly tree,
Wither up the green tree,
and make the withered tree bloom.

As I, the LORD, have spoken, so will I do.

CHAPTER 18

Personal Responsibility. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: Son of man, <sup>2</sup>*† what is the meaning of this proverb that you recite in the land of Israel:

"Fathers have eaten green grapes, thus their children's teeth are on edge!"<sup>3</sup>

<sup>3</sup> As I live, says the Lord God: I swear that there shall no longer be anyone among you who will repeat this proverb in Israel. <sup>4</sup> For all lives are mine; the life of the father is like the life of the son, both are mine; only the one who sins shall die.

<sup>5</sup> If a man is virtuous—if he does what is right and just, <sup>6</sup>† if he does not eat on the mountains, nor raise his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel; if he does not defile his neighbor's wife, nor have

17, 20: 12, 13; 32, 3.

18, 2: Jer 13, 1, 29.

† 17, 11-21: These verses explain the foregoing allegory. In 597 B.C., Nebuchadnezzar removed King Jehoiachin and took him into exile; in his place he set Zedekiah, Jehoiachin's uncle, on the throne and received from him the oath of loyalty. But Zedekiah was beguiled into rebellion by Pharaoh Hophra of Egypt, and thereby merited punishment; cf 2 Kgs 24, 10-25, 7.

17, 22: I, too, will take from the crest of the cedar . . . plant it: the Lord will restore Israel under a messianic King from the same Davidic dynasty.

18, 2: Fathers . . . on edge: a proverb by which the people claimed that they were being punished for their ancestors' sins rather than for their own; cf Jer 31, 29.

18, 6: Eat on the mountains: partake of ritual meals at the heathen high places.

relations with a woman in her menstrual period; <sup>7*</sup> if he oppresses no one, gives back the pledge received for a debt, commits no robbery; if he gives food to the hungry and clothes the naked; <sup>8</sup> if he does not lend at interest nor exact usury; if he holds off from evildoing, judges fairly between a man and his opponent; <sup>9</sup> if he lives by my statutes and is careful to observe my ordinances, that man is virtuous—he shall surely live, says the Lord God.

<sup>10</sup> But if he begets a son who is a thief, a murderer, or who does any of these things <sup>11</sup> (though the father does none of them), a son who eats on the mountains, defiles the wife of his neighbor, <sup>12</sup> oppresses the poor and needy, commits robbery, does not give back a pledge, raises his eyes to idols, does abominable things, <sup>13</sup> lends at interest and exacts usury—this son certainly shall not live. Because he practiced all these abominations, he shall surely die; his death shall be his own fault.

<sup>14</sup> On the other hand, if a man begets a son who, seeing all the sins his father commits, yet fears and does not imitate him; <sup>15</sup> a son who does not eat on the mountains, or raise his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, or defile his neighbor's wife; <sup>16</sup> who does not oppress anyone, or exact a pledge, or commit robbery; who gives his food to the hungry and clothes the naked; <sup>17</sup> who holds off from evildoing, accepts no interest or usury, but keeps my ordinances and lives by my statutes—this one shall not die for the sins of his father, but shall surely live. <sup>18</sup> Only the father, since he violated rights, and robbed, and did what was not good among his people, shall in truth die for his sins. <sup>19</sup> You ask: "Why is not the son charged with the guilt of his father?" Because the son has done what is right and just, and has been careful to observe all my statutes, he shall surely live. <sup>20*</sup> Only the one who sins shall die. The son shall not be charged with the guilt of his father, nor shall the father be charged with the guilt of his son. The virtuous man's virtue shall be his own, as the wicked man's wickedness shall be his.

<sup>21</sup> But if the wicked man turns away from all the sins he committed, if he keeps all my statutes and does what is right and just, he shall surely live, he shall not die. <sup>22</sup> None of the crimes he committed shall be remembered against him; he shall live because of the virtue he has practiced. <sup>23*</sup> Do I indeed derive any pleasure from the death of the wicked? says the Lord God. Do I not rather rejoice when he turns from his evil way that he may live?

<sup>24</sup> And if the virtuous man turns from the path of virtue to do evil, the same kind of abominable things that the wicked man does, can he do this and still live? None of his virtuous deeds shall be remembered, because he has broken faith and committed sin; because of this, he shall die. <sup>25*</sup> You say, "The LORD's way is not fair!" Hear now, house of Israel: Is it my way that is unfair, or rather, are not your ways unfair? <sup>26</sup> When a virtuous man turns away from virtue to commit iniquity, and dies, it is because of the iniquity he committed that he must die. <sup>27</sup> But if a wicked man, turning from the wickedness he has committed, does what is right and just, he shall preserve his life; <sup>28</sup> since he has turned away from all the sins which he committed, he shall surely live, he shall not die. <sup>29</sup> And yet the house of Israel says, "The LORD's way is not fair!" Is it my way that is not fair, house of Israel, or rather, is it not that your ways are not fair?

<sup>30*</sup> Therefore I will judge you, house of Israel, each one according to his ways, says the Lord God. Turn and be converted from all your crimes, that they may be no cause of guilt for you. <sup>31</sup> Cast away from you all the crimes you have committed, and make for yourselves a new heart and a new spirit. Why should you die, O house of Israel? <sup>32*</sup> For I have no pleasure in the death of anyone who dies, says the Lord God. Return and live!

CHAPTER 19

<sup>1</sup> As for you, son of man, raise a lamentation over the prince of Israel:

Allegory of the Lions

- <sup>2†</sup> What a lioness was your mother, a lion of lions!
Among young lions she couched to rear her whelps.
- <sup>3</sup> One whelp she raised up,
a young lion he became;
He learned to seize prey,
men he devoured.
- <sup>4</sup> Then nations raised cries against
him,
in their pit he was caught;
They took him away with hooks to the land of Egypt.

7: Is 58, 7; Mt 25, 35.
20: Dt 24, 16; 2 Kgs
14, 6; 2 Chr 25,
4.
23: 33, 11; 2 Pt 3,

9.
25: 33, 20.
30: Mt 3, 2; Lk 3, 3.
32: 18, 23; 33, 11; 2
Pt 3, 9.

† 19, 2-9: The meaning of this allegory is uncertain. Probably the two young lions are Jehoahaz and Zedekiah, sons of the same mother, who were deported to Egypt and Babylonia respectively. Cf 2 Kgs 23, 31-34; 24, 18ff.

- 5 Then she saw that in vain she had waited, her hope was destroyed.
She took another of her whelps,
him she made a young lion.
- 6 He prowled among the lions,
a young lion he became;
He learned to seize prey,
men he devoured;
- 7 He ravaged their strongholds,
their cities he wasted.
The land and all in it were appalled at the noise of his roar.
- 8 Nations laid out against him
snares all about him;
They spread their net to take him,
in their pit he was caught.
- 9 They put him in a cage and took him away
to the king of Babylon,
So that his voice would not be heard on the mountains of Israel.

Allegory of the Vine Branch

- 10† Your mother was like a vine planted by the water; Fruitful and branchy was she because of the abundant water.
- 11 One strong branch she put out as a royal scepter.
Stately was her height
amid the dense foliage;
Notably tall was she
with her many clusters.
- 12* But she was torn up in fury
and flung to the ground;
The east wind withered her up,
her fruit was torn off;
Then her strong branch withered up,
fire devoured it.
- 13 So now she is planted in the desert,
in a land dry and parched,
- 14 For fire came out of the branch and devoured her shoots;
She is now without a strong branch,
a ruler's scepter.

This is a lamentation and serves as a lamentation.

CHAPTER 20

Israel's History of Infidelity. †† In the seventh year, on the tenth day of the fifth month, some of the elders of Israel came to consult the LORD and sat down before me. <sup>2</sup> Then the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>3</sup> Son of man, speak with the elders of Israel and say to them: Thus says the Lord God: Have you come to consult me? As I live! I swear I will not allow myself to be consulted by you, says the Lord God.

<sup>4</sup> Will you judge them? Will you judge, son of man? Make known to them the abominations of their ancestors <sup>5</sup> in these words: Thus speaks the Lord God:

The day I chose Israel, I swore to the descendants of the house of Jacob; in the land of Egypt I revealed myself to them and swore: I am the LORD, your God. <sup>6</sup> That day I swore to bring them out of the land of Egypt to the land I had scouted for them, a land flowing with milk and honey, a jewel among all lands. <sup>7</sup> Then I said to them: Throw away, each of you, the detestable things that have held your eyes; do not defile yourselves with the idols of Egypt: I am the LORD, your God.

<sup>8</sup> But they rebelled against me and refused to listen to me; none of them threw away the detestable things that had held their eyes, they did not abandon the idols of Egypt. Then I thought of pouring out my fury on them and spending my anger on them there in the land of Egypt; <sup>9</sup> but I acted for my name's sake, that it should not be profaned in the sight of the nations among whom they were, in whose presence I had made myself known to them, revealing that I would bring them out of the land of Egypt. <sup>10</sup> Therefore I led them out of the land of Egypt and brought them into the desert. <sup>11</sup>* Then I gave them my statutes and made known to them my ordinances, which everyone must keep, to have life through them. <sup>12</sup>* I also gave them my sabbaths to be a sign between me and them, to show that it was I, the LORD, who made them holy.

<sup>13</sup> But the house of Israel rebelled against me in the desert. They did not observe my statutes, and they despised my ordinances that bring life to those who keep them. My sabbaths, too, they desecrated grievously. Then I thought of pouring out my fury on them in the desert to put an end to them, <sup>14</sup> but I acted for my name's sake, that it should not be profaned in the sight of the nations in whose presence I had brought them out. <sup>15</sup> Nevertheless I swore to them in the desert not to bring them to the land I had given them, a land flowing with milk and honey, a jewel among all lands. <sup>16</sup> So much were their hearts devoted to their idols, they had not lived by my statutes, but despised my ordinances and desecrated my sabbaths. <sup>17</sup> But I looked on them with pity, not wanting to destroy them, so I did not put an end to them in the desert.

<sup>18</sup> Then I said to their children in the desert: Do not observe the statutes of

19, 12: Hos 13, 15. 12: Ex 20, 8; 31, 13; 20, 11: Lv 18, 5; Rom Dt 5, 12.
10, 5.

†

19, 10-14: A vine: Judah. One strong branch: the Davidic king.

20, 1: The seventh year, on the tenth day of the fifth month: August 14, 591 B.C.

your parents or keep their ordinances; do not defile yourselves with their idols. <sup>19</sup> I am the LORD, your God: observe my statutes and be careful to keep my ordinances; <sup>20</sup> keep holy my sabbaths, as a sign between me and you to show that I am the LORD, your God. <sup>21</sup> But their children rebelled against me: they did not observe my statutes or keep my ordinances that bring life to those who observe them, and my sabbaths they desecrated. Then I thought of pouring out my fury on them, of spending my anger on them in the desert; <sup>22</sup> but I stayed my hand, acting for my name's sake, lest it be profaned in the sight of the nations in whose presence I brought them out. <sup>23</sup> Nevertheless I swore to them in the desert that I would disperse them among the nations and scatter them over foreign lands; <sup>24</sup> for they did not keep my ordinances, but despised my statutes and desecrated my sabbaths, with eyes only for the idols of their fathers. <sup>25</sup> Therefore I gave them statutes that were not good, and ordinances through which they could not live. <sup>26</sup> I let them become defiled by their gifts, by their immolation of every first-born, so as to make them an object of horror.

<sup>27</sup> Therefore speak to the house of Israel, son of man, and tell them: Thus says the Lord God: In this way also your fathers blasphemed me, breaking faith with me: <sup>28</sup> when I had brought them to the land I had sworn to give them, and they saw all its high hills and leafy trees, there they offered their sacrifices [there they brought their offensive offerings], there they sent up appeasing odors, and there they poured out their libations. <sup>29</sup> I asked them: To what sort of high place do you betake yourselves?—and so they call it a high place even to the present day. <sup>30</sup> Therefore say to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord God: Will you defile yourselves like your fathers? Will you lust after their detestable idols? <sup>31</sup> By offering your gifts, by making your children pass through the fire, you defile yourselves with all your idols even to this day. Shall I let myself be consulted by you, house of Israel? As I live! says the Lord God: I swear I will not let myself be consulted by you.

<sup>32</sup> What you are thinking of shall never happen: "We shall be like the nations, like the peoples of foreign lands, serving wood and stone." <sup>33</sup> As I live, says the Lord God, with a mighty hand and outstretched arm, with poured-out wrath, I swear I will be king over you! <sup>34</sup> With a mighty hand and outstretched arm, with poured-out wrath, I will bring you out from the nations and gather you from the countries over which you are scattered; <sup>35</sup> then I will lead you to the desert of the peoples, where I will enter into judgment with you face to face.

<sup>36</sup> Just as I entered into judgment with your fathers in the desert of the land of Egypt, so will I enter into judgment with you, says the Lord God. <sup>37</sup> I will count you with the staff and bring back but a small number. <sup>38</sup> I will separate from you those who have rebelled and transgressed against me; from the land where they sojourned as aliens I will bring them out, but they shall not return to the land of Israel. Thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

<sup>39</sup> As for you, house of Israel, thus says the Lord God: Come, each one of you, destroy your idols! Then listen to me, and never again profane my holy name with your gifts and your idols. <sup>40</sup> For on my holy mountain, on the mountain height of Israel, says the Lord God, there the whole house of Israel without exception shall worship me; there I will accept them, and there I will claim your tributes and the first fruits of your offerings, and all that you dedicate. <sup>41</sup> As a pleasing odor I will accept you, when I have brought you from among the nations and gathered you out of the countries over which you were scattered; and by means of you I will manifest my holiness in the sight of the nations. <sup>42</sup> Thus you shall know that I am the LORD, when I bring you back to the land of Israel, the land which I swore to give to your fathers. <sup>43</sup> There you shall recall your conduct and all the deeds by which you defiled yourselves; and you shall loathe yourselves because of all the evil things you did. <sup>44</sup> And you shall know that I am the LORD when I deal with you thus, for my name's sake, and not according to your evil conduct and corrupt actions. O house of Israel, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 21

The Sword of the Lord. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, look southward, preach toward the south, and prophesy against the forest of the southern land. <sup>3</sup> Hear the word of the LORD! you shall say to the southern forest. Thus says the Lord God: See! I am kindling a fire in you that shall devour all trees, the green as well as the dry. The blazing flame shall not be quenched, but from south to north every face shall be scorched by it. <sup>4</sup> Everyone

<sup>1</sup> 20, 25f: I gave them statutes that were not good: the Lord permitted them to adopt pagan practices, including the abominable sacrifice of their newborn infants, which could only merit their destruction. See note on 14, 9.

<sup>20, 35-38</sup>: Exile in the pagan lands will serve the same purpose as the desert journey after the Exodus from Egypt: the rebellious will be eliminated, and only a remnant will survive.

<sup>21, 22f</sup>: The southern kingdom, Judah, is likened to a forest about to be burned; cf Jer 21, 14.

shall see that I, the LORD, have kindled it, and it shall not be quenched.

<sup>5</sup> But I said, "Alas! Lord God, they say to me, 'Is not this the one who is forever spinning parables?'" <sup>6</sup> Then the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>7</sup> Son of man, look toward Jerusalem, preach against their sanctuary, and prophesy against the land of Israel, <sup>8†</sup> saying to the land of Israel: Thus says the LORD: See! I am coming at you; I will draw my sword from its sheath and cut off from you the virtuous and the wicked. <sup>9</sup> Thus my sword shall leave its sheath against everyone from south to north, <sup>10</sup> and everyone shall know that I, the LORD, have drawn my sword from its sheath, and it shall not be sheathed again.

Act Symbolic of the City's Fall. <sup>11</sup> As for you, son of man, groan! with shattered strength groan bitterly while they look on. <sup>12†</sup> And when they ask you, "Why are you groaning?", you shall say: Because of a report; when it comes every heart shall fail, every hand shall fall helpless, every spirit shall be daunted, and every knee shall run with water. See, it is coming, it is here! says the Lord God.

Song of the Sword. <sup>13</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>14</sup> Son of man, prophesy! say: Thus says the LORD:

- A sword, a sword has been sharpened,
a sword, a sword has been burnished:
- <sup>15</sup> To work slaughter has it been sharpened,
to flash lightning has it been burnished.
- Why should I now withdraw it?
You have spurned the rod and every judgment!
- <sup>16</sup> I have given it over to the burnisher that he might hold it in his hand, A sword sharpened and burnished to be put in the hand of a slayer.
- <sup>17</sup> Cry out and wail, son of man, for it is destined for my people; It is for all the princes of Israel, victims of the sword with my people.

Therefore, slap your thigh, <sup>18†</sup> for the sword has been tested; and why should it not be so? says the Lord God, since you have spurned the rod.

- <sup>19</sup> As for you, son of man, prophesy, brushing one hand against the other:
While the sword is doubled and tripled,
this sword of slaughter,
This great sword of slaughter which threatens all around,
- <sup>20</sup> That every heart may tremble; for many will be the fallen.

At all their gates

I have appointed the sword for slaughter,

Fashioned to flash lightning, burnished for slaughter.

- <sup>21</sup> Cleave to the right! destroy! to the left! wherever your edge is turned.

<sup>22†</sup> Then, I too, shall brush one hand against the other and wreak my fury. I, the LORD, have spoken.

Nebuchadnezzar at the Crossroads.

<sup>23</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>24</sup> Son of man, make for yourself two roads over which the sword of the king of Babylon can come. Both roads shall lead out from the same land. Then put a signpost at the head of each road, <sup>25</sup> so that the sword can come to Rabbah of the Ammonites or to Judah's capital, Jerusalem. <sup>26†</sup> For at the fork where the two roads divide stands the king of Babylon, divining; he has shaken the arrows, inquired of the teraphim, inspected the liver. <sup>27†</sup> In his right hand is the divining arrow marked "Jerusalem," bidding him to give the order for slaying, to raise his voice in the battle cry, to post battering rams at the gates, to cast up a ramp, to build a siege tower. <sup>28</sup> In their eyes this is but a lying oracle; yet they are bound by the oaths they have sworn, and the arrow taken in hand marks their guilt.

<sup>29</sup> Therefore thus says the Lord God: Because you have drawn attention to your guilt, with your crimes laid bare and your sinfulness in all your wicked deeds revealed (because attention has been drawn to you), you shall be taken in hand. <sup>30</sup> And as for you, depraved and wicked prince of Israel, whose day is coming when your life of crime will be ended, <sup>31</sup> thus says the Lord God: Off with the turban and away with the crown! Nothing shall be as it was! Up with the low and down with the high! <sup>32</sup> Twisted, twisted, twisted will I leave it; it shall not be the same until he comes who has the claim against the city; and to him I will hand it over.

† 21, 8: Cut off from you the virtuous and the wicked: a more complete devastation of Jerusalem than that described in 9, 6.

† 21, 12: A report: the news of the fall of Jerusalem; cf 33, 21f.

† 21, 17: Slap your thigh: a gesture signifying grief and dread. 21, 22: Brush one hand against the other: a gesture signifying the rejection of responsibility; cf 22, 13; Nm 24, 10.

† 21, 26: Three forms of divination are mentioned: arrow divination, consisting in the use of differently marked arrows, extracted or shaken from a case at random; the consultation of the teraphim or household idols, and liver divination, scrutiny of the configurations of the livers of newly slaughtered animals, a common form of divination in Mesopotamia.

† 21, 27: An arrow marked "Jerusalem" is picked out, which marks the guilt of the city's inhabitants for having broken their oath of allegiance to Nebuchadnezzar.

Against the Ammonites. <sup>33†</sup> As for you, son of man, prophesy: Thus says the Lord GOD against the Ammonites and their insults: A sword, a sword is drawn for slaughter, burnished to consume and to flash lightning, <sup>34</sup> because you planned with false visions and lying divinations to lay it on the necks of depraved and wicked men whose day has come when their crimes are at an end. <sup>35</sup> Return it to its sheath! In the place where you were created, in the land of your origin, I will judge you. <sup>36</sup> I will pour out my indignation upon you, breathing my fiery wrath upon you, I will hand you over to ravaging men, artisans of destruction. <sup>37</sup> You shall be fuel for the fire, your blood shall flow throughout the land. You shall not be remembered, for I, the LORD, have spoken.

CHAPTER 22

Crimes of Jerusalem. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> You, son of man, would you judge, would you judge the bloody city? Then make known all her abominations, <sup>3</sup> and say: Thus says the Lord GOD: Woe to the city which sheds blood within herself so that her time has come, and which has made idols for her own defilement. <sup>4</sup> By the blood which you shed you have been made guilty, and with the idols you made you have become defiled; you have brought on your day, so that the end of your years has come. Therefore I make you an object of scorn to the nations and a laughingstock to all foreign lands. <sup>5</sup> Those near you and those far off shall deride you because of your foul reputation and your great perversity. <sup>6</sup> See! the princes of Israel, family by family, are in you only for bloodshed. <sup>7</sup> Within you, father and mother are despised; in your midst, they extort from the resident alien; within you, they oppress orphans and widows. <sup>8</sup> What is holy to me you have spurned, and my sabbaths you have desecrated. <sup>9</sup> There are those in you who slander to cause bloodshed; within you are those who feast on the mountains; in your midst are those who do lewd things. <sup>10</sup> In you are those who uncover the nakedness of their fathers, and in you those who coerce women in their menstrual period. <sup>11*</sup> There are those in you who do abominable things with the wives of their neighbors, men who defile their daughters-in-law by incest, men who coerce their sisters, the daughters of their own fathers. <sup>12</sup> There are those in you who take bribes to shed blood. You exact interest and usury; you despoil your neighbors violently; and me you have forgotten, says the Lord GOD.

<sup>13</sup> See, I am brushing one hand against the other because of the unjust profits you have made and because of the bloodshed in your midst. <sup>14</sup> Can your heart remain firm, will your hands be strong, in the days when I deal with you? I, the LORD, have spoken, and I will act. <sup>15</sup> I will disperse you among the nations and scatter you over foreign lands, so that I may purge your uncleanness. <sup>16</sup> In you I will allow myself to be profaned in the eyes of the nations; thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

<sup>17</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>18</sup> Son of man, the house of Israel has become dross for me. All of them are bronze and tin, iron and lead [in the midst of a furnace]: dross from silver have they become. <sup>19</sup> Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Because all of you have become dross, therefore I must gather you together within Jerusalem. <sup>20</sup> Just as silver, bronze, iron, lead, and tin are gathered into a furnace and smelted in the roaring flames, so I will gather you together in my furious wrath, put you in, and smelt you. <sup>21</sup> When I have assembled you, I will blast you with the fire of my anger and smelt you with it. <sup>22</sup> You shall be smelted by it just as silver is smelted in a furnace. Thus you shall know that I, the LORD, have poured out my fury on you.

<sup>23</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>24</sup> Son of man, say to her: You are a land unruined on [that is, not rained on] at the time of my fury. <sup>25</sup> Her princes are like roaring lions that tear prey; they devour people, seizing their wealth and precious things, and make widows of many within her. <sup>26</sup> Her priests violate my law and profane what is holy to me; they do not distinguish between the sacred and the profane, nor teach the difference between the unclean and the clean; they pay no attention to my sabbaths, so that I have been profaned in their midst. <sup>27*</sup> Her nobles within her are like wolves that tear prey, shedding blood and destroying lives to get unjust gain. <sup>28</sup> Her prophets cover them with whitewash, pretending to visions that are false and performing lying divinations, saying, "Thus says the Lord GOD," although the LORD has not spoken. <sup>29</sup> The people of the land practice extortion and commit robbery; they afflict the poor and the needy, and oppress the resident alien without justice. <sup>30</sup> Thus I have

22, 11: Jer 5, 7f.

27: Mi 3, 11;

Zep 3, 3.

†

21, 33-37: In the preceding section Nebuchadnezzar is represented as deciding whether to attack Jerusalem or Rabbath-Ammon. As it happened, Jerusalem was chosen for attack; later, however, the Chaldeans also invaded Ammon. The present oracle against Ammon is inserted here, rather than in chapters 25-32, in order to complement the oracle against Jerusalem.

searched among them for someone who could build a wall or stand in the breach before me to keep me from destroying the land; but I found no one.<sup>31</sup> Therefore I have poured out my fury upon them; with my fiery wrath I have consumed them; I have brought down their conduct upon their heads, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 23

The Two Sisters. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, there were two women, daughters of the same mother, <sup>3</sup> who even as young girls played the harlot in Egypt. There the Egyptians caressed their bosoms and fondled their virginal breasts. <sup>4†</sup> Oholah was the name of the elder, and the name of her sister was Oholibah. They became mine and bore sons and daughters. [As for their names: Samaria is Oholah, and Jerusalem is Oholibah.] <sup>5</sup> Oholah became a harlot faithless to me; she lusted after her lovers, the Assyrians, warriors <sup>6</sup> dressed in purple, governors and officers, all of them attractive young men, knights mounted on horses. <sup>7</sup> Thus she gave herself as a harlot to them, to all the elite of the Assyrians, and she defiled herself with all those for whom she lusted [with all their idols]. <sup>8</sup> She did not give up the harlotry which she had begun in Egypt, when they had lain with her as a young girl, fondling her virginal breasts and pouring out their impurities on her. <sup>9</sup> Therefore I handed her over to her lovers, the Assyrians for whom she had lusted. <sup>10*</sup> They exposed her nakedness, her sons and daughters they took away, and herself they slew with the sword. Thus she became a byword for women, for they punished her grievously.

<sup>11</sup> Though her sister Oholibah saw all this, her lust was more depraved than her sister's, and she outdid her in harlotry. <sup>12</sup> She too lusted after the Assyrians, governors and officers, warriors impeccably clothed, knights mounted on horses, all of them attractive young men. <sup>13</sup> I saw that she had defiled herself. Both had gone down the same path, <sup>14</sup> yet she went further in her harlotry. When she saw men drawn on the wall, the images of Chaldeans drawn with vermillion, <sup>15</sup> with sashes girded about their waists, flowing turbans on their heads, all looking like chariot warriors, the portraits of Babylonians, natives of Chaldea, <sup>16</sup> she lusted for them; no sooner had she set eyes on them than she sent messengers to them in Chaldea. <sup>17</sup> Then the Babylonians came to her, to the love couch, and defiled her with their intercourse. As soon as she was defiled by them, she became disgusted with them. <sup>18</sup> Her harlotry was discovered and her shame was revealed, and I became disgusted with her as I had become disgusted with her sister. <sup>19</sup> But she played the harlot all the more, recalling the days of her girlhood, when she had been a harlot in the land of Egypt. <sup>20</sup> She lusted for the lechers of Egypt, whose members are like that of an ass, and whose heat is like that of stallions.

<sup>21</sup> You yearned for the lewdness of your girlhood, when the Egyptians fondled your breasts, caressing your bosom. <sup>22</sup> Therefore, Oholibah, thus says the Lord God: I will now stir up your lovers against you, those with whom you are disgusted, and I will bring them against you from every side: <sup>23†</sup> the men of Babylon and all of Chaldea, Pekod, Shoa and Koa, along with all those of Assyria, attractive young men, all of them governors and officers, charioteers and warriors, all of them horsemen. <sup>24</sup> They shall come against you from the north with chariots and wagons and many peoples. Shields, bucklers, and helmets they shall array against you everywhere. <sup>25</sup> I will leave it to them to judge, and they will judge you by their own ordinances. I will let loose my jealousy against you, so that they shall deal with you in fury, cutting off your nose and ears; and what is left of you shall fall by the sword. They shall take away your sons and daughters, and what is left of you shall be devoured by fire. <sup>26</sup> They shall strip off your clothes and seize your splendid ornaments. <sup>27</sup> I will put an end to your lewdness and to the harlotry you began in Egypt; you shall no longer look toward it, nor shall you remember Egypt again.

<sup>28</sup> For thus says the Lord God: I am now handing you over to those whom you hate, to those who fill you with disgust. <sup>29</sup> They shall deal with you in hatred, seizing all that you have worked for and leaving you stark naked, so that your indecent nakedness is exposed. Your lewdness and harlotry <sup>30</sup> have brought these things upon you, because you played the harlot with the nations by defiling yourself with their idols.

<sup>31</sup> Because you followed in the path of your sister, I will hand you her cup. <sup>32</sup> Thus says the Lord God:

The cup of your sister you shall drink,

---

23, 10: 16, 37.

† 23, 4: Oholah . . . Oholibah: symbolic names. The first, standing for Samaria, may be read to mean "her own tent"; the latter, standing for Jerusalem, means "my tent is in her." The references seem to be to the schismatic temple and cult of the Lord in Samaria, as opposed to their authentic counterpart in Jerusalem.

23, 23: Pekod, Shoa and Koa: peoples living about the Tigris, part of "greater Babylonia."

so wide and deep, which holds so much,

<sup>33</sup> Filled with destruction and grief, a cup of dismay, the cup of your sister.

<sup>34</sup> You shall drain it dry, and gnaw at the very sherds of the cup, and you shall tear out your breasts; for I have spoken, says the Lord God. <sup>35</sup> Therefore thus says the Lord God: Because you have forgotten me and cast me behind your back, it is for you to bear the penalty of your lewdness and harlotry.

<sup>36</sup> Then the LORD said to me: Son of man, would you judge Oholah and Oholibah? Then make known to them their abominations. <sup>37</sup> For they committed adultery, and blood is on their hands. They committed adultery with their idols; to feed them they immolated the children they had borne me. <sup>38</sup> [This, too, they did to me: they defiled my sanctuary and desecrated my sabbaths. <sup>39</sup> On the very day they slew their children for their idols, they entered my sanctuary to desecrate it. Thus they acted within my house.] <sup>40†</sup> Moreover, they sent for men who had to come from afar, to whom messengers were sent. And so they came—and for them you bathed yourself, painted your eyes, and put on ornaments. <sup>41</sup> You sat on a couch prepared for them, with a table spread before it, on which you had set my incense and oil. <sup>42</sup> Then was heard the shout of a carefree mob in the city, and these were men brought in from the desert, who put bracelets on the women's arms and splendid diadems on their heads. <sup>43</sup> So I said: "Oh, this woman jaded with adulteries! Now they will commit whoredom with her, and as for her. . . ."

<sup>44</sup> And indeed they did come to her as men come to a harlot. Thus they came to Oholah and Oholibah, the lewd women. <sup>45</sup> But just men shall punish them with the sentence meted out to adulteresses and murderers, for they have committed adultery, and blood is on their hands.

<sup>46</sup> Thus says the Lord God: Summon an assembly against them, and deliver them over to terror and plunder. <sup>47</sup> The assembly shall stone them and hack them to pieces with their swords. They shall slay their sons and daughters, and burn their houses with fire. <sup>48</sup> Thus I will put an end to lewdness in the land, and all the women will be warned not to imitate your lewdness. <sup>49</sup> They shall inflict on you the penalty of your lewdness, and you shall pay for your sins of idolatry. Thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER 24

Allegory of the Pot. † On the tenth day of the tenth month, in the ninth year, the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, write down this date today, for this very day the king of Babylon has invested Jerusalem. <sup>3†</sup> Propose this parable to the rebellious house: Thus says the Lord God:

Set up the pot, set it up, then pour in some water.

- <sup>4</sup> Put in it pieces of meat, all good pieces: thigh and shoulder;
- <sup>5</sup> Fill it with the choicest joints taken from the pick of the flock. Then pile the wood beneath it; bring to a boil these pieces and the joints that are in it.
- <sup>6*</sup> Take out its pieces, one by one, without casting lots for it.

Therefore, thus says the Lord God: Woe to the bloody city, a pot containing rust, whose rust has not been removed. <sup>7†</sup> For the blood she shed is in her midst; she poured it on the bare rock; she did not pour it out on the earth, to be covered with dust. <sup>8</sup> To work up my wrath, to excite my vengeance, she put her blood on the bare rock, not to be covered. <sup>9</sup> Therefore, thus says the Lord God:

- <sup>10</sup> I, too, will heap up a great bonfire, piling on wood and kindling the fire, Till the meat has been cooked, till the broth has boiled.

<sup>11</sup> Then I will set the pot empty on the coals till its metal glows red hot, till the impurities in it melt, and its rust disappears. <sup>12</sup> Yet not even with fire will its great rust be removed. <sup>13</sup> Because you have sullied yourself with lewdness when I would have purified you, and you refused to be purified of your uncleanness, therefore you shall not be purified until I wreak my fury on you. <sup>14</sup> I, the LORD, have spoken; it is coming, for I will bring it about without fail. I will not have pity nor repent. By your conduct and your deeds you shall be judged, says the Lord God.

Symbol of the Destruction of the Temple. <sup>15</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>16</sup> Son of man, by a sudden blow I am taking away from you the de-

24, 6: Na 3, 1; Hb 2, 12.

† 23, 40: Men who had to come from afar: ambassadors from Assyria and Babylon. Alliances with these countries aided in the corruption of both Israel and Judah.

24, 1: The tenth day of the tenth month, in the ninth year: January 15, 588 B.C. The same date is given in Jer 52, 4, 24, 3ff. This present comparison of the inhabitants of Jerusalem to meat boiled in a pot symbolizes their punishment rather than their supposed protection as in 11, 3.

24, 7: Blood . . . to be covered with dust: since blood was sacred to God, it had to be covered with earth (Lv 17, 13), the blood of a murdered man that was left uncovered cried to heaven for vengeance; cf Jb 16, 18; Gn 4, 10.

light of your eyes, but do not mourn or weep or shed any tears. <sup>17†</sup> Groan in silence, make no lament for the dead, bind on your turban, put your sandals on your feet, do not cover your beard, and do not eat the customary bread. <sup>18</sup> That evening my wife died, and the next morning I did as I had been commanded. <sup>19</sup> Then the people asked me, "Will you not tell us what all these things that you are doing mean for us?" <sup>21</sup> I therefore spoke to the people that morning, <sup>20</sup> saying to them: Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>21</sup> Say to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord God: I will now desecrate my sanctuary, the stronghold of your pride, the delight of your eyes, the desire of your soul. The sons and daughters you left behind shall fall by the sword. <sup>24</sup> Ezekiel shall be a sign for you: all that he did you shall do when it happens. Thus you shall know that I am the LORD. <sup>22†</sup> You shall do as I have done, not covering your beards nor eating the customary bread. <sup>23</sup> Your turbans shall remain on your heads, your sandals on your feet. You shall not mourn or weep, but you shall rot away because of your sins and groan one to another.

End of Ezekiel's Dumbness. <sup>25*</sup> As for you, son of man, truly, on the day I take away from them their bulwark, their glorious joy, the delight of their eyes, the desire of their soul, and the pride of their hearts, their sons and daughters, <sup>26</sup> that day the fugitive will come to you, that you may hear it for yourself; <sup>27</sup> that day your mouth shall be opened and you shall be dumb no longer. Thus you shall be a sign to them, and they shall know that I am the LORD.

III: PROPHECIES AGAINST FOREIGN NATIONS

CHAPTER 25

Against Ammon. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, turn toward the Ammonites and prophesy against them. <sup>3*</sup> Say to the Ammonites: Hear the word of the LORD! Thus says the Lord God: Because you cried out your joy over the desecration of my sanctuary, the devastation of the land of Israel, and the exile of the house of Judah, <sup>4†</sup> therefore I will deliver you into the possession of the Easterners. They shall set up their encampments among you and pitch their tents; they shall eat your fruits and drink your milk. <sup>5</sup> I will make Rabbah a pasture for camels, and the villages of the Ammonites a resting place for flocks. Thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

<sup>6</sup> For thus says the Lord God: Because you clapped your hands and stamped

your feet, rejoicing most maliciously in your heart over the land of Israel, <sup>7</sup> therefore I will stretch out my hand against you. I will make you plunder for the nations, I will cut you off from the peoples, and remove you from the lands. I will destroy you, and thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

Against Moab. <sup>8*</sup> Thus says the Lord God: Because Moab said, "See! the house of Judah is like all other nations," <sup>9†</sup> therefore I will clear the shoulder of Moab totally of its cities, the jewels of the land: Beth-jesimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim. <sup>10</sup> I will hand her over, along with the Ammonites, into the possession of the Easterners, that she may not be remembered among the peoples. <sup>11</sup> Thus I will execute judgment upon Moab, that they may know that I am the LORD.

Against Edom. <sup>12*</sup> Thus says the Lord God: Because Edom has taken vengeance on the house of Judah and has made itself grievously guilty by taking vengeance on them, <sup>13</sup> therefore thus says the Lord God: I will stretch out my hand against Edom and cut off from it man and beast. I will make it a waste from Teman to Dedan; they shall fall by the sword. <sup>14</sup> My vengeance upon Edom I will entrust to my people Israel, who will deal with Edom in accordance with my anger and my fury; thus they shall know my vengeance, says the Lord God.

Against the Philistines. <sup>15</sup> Thus says the Lord God: Because the Philistines have acted revengefully, and have taken vengeance with destructive malice in their hearts, with an undying enmity, <sup>16†</sup> therefore thus says the Lord God: See! I am stretching out my hand against the Philistines; I will cut off the Cherethites and wipe out the remnant on the seacoast. <sup>17</sup> I will execute great acts of vengeance on them, punishing them furiously. Thus they shall know that I am the LORD, when I wreak my vengeance on them.

24, 25ff: 3, 22-27.

25, 3: Jer 40, 14; 41, 10; 49, 2; Am 1, 13ff; Zep 2, 8ff.
8: Sir 50, 26; Is 15, 1-9; 16, 1-14;

Jer 48, 1-47; Am 2, 1ff; Zep 2, 8f.
12ff: 35, 1ff; Is 34, 5; Jer 49, 7-22; Jl 4, 19; Am 1, 11f; Ob 1, 1-21.

† 24, 17: The customary bread: eaten as a mourning observance, cf Jer 16, 7. The other gestures here forbidden were also popular mourning customs.

24, 22f: The fall of the city will be so sudden and final that the exiles will have no time to go into mourning.

25, 4: The Easterners: nomadic tribes to the east of Ammon and Moab.

25, 9: The shoulder of Moab: the edge of the Moabite plateau.

25, 16: Cherethites: a people forming part of the Philistine nation; cf Zep 2, 5.

CHAPTER 26

Against the City of Tyre. <sup>1</sup> On the first day of the . . . month in the eleventh year, the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, because of what Tyre said of Jerusalem:

- "Aha! it is broken, the gateway to the peoples;
now that it is ruined, its wealth reverts to me!"
- <sup>3*</sup> therefore thus says the Lord God: See! I am coming at you, Tyre; I will churn up against you many nations, even as the sea churns up its waves;
- <sup>4†</sup> They shall destroy the walls of Tyre and raze her towers.
I will scrape the ground from her and leave her a bare rock;
- <sup>5</sup> She shall be a drying place for nets in the midst of the sea.

I have spoken, says the Lord God; and she shall be booty for the nations. <sup>6†</sup> And her daughters on the mainland shall be slaughtered by the sword; thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

<sup>7</sup> For thus says the Lord God: I am now bringing up against Tyre from the north Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, the king of kings, with horses and chariots, with cavalry and a great and mighty army.

- <sup>8</sup> Your daughters on the mainland he shall slay with the sword;
He shall place a siege tower against you,
cast up a ramp about you,
and raise his shields against you.
- <sup>9</sup> He shall pound your walls with battering-rams and break down your towers with his weapons.
- <sup>10</sup> The surge of his horses shall cover you with dust, amid the noise of steeds, of wheels and of chariots.
Your walls shall shake as he enters your gates,
even as one enters a city that is breached.
- <sup>11</sup> With the hoofs of his horses he shall trample all your streets;
Your people he shall slay by the sword;
your mighty pillars he shall pull to the ground.
- <sup>12</sup> Your wealth shall be plundered,
your merchandise pillaged;
Your walls shall be torn down,
your precious houses demolished;
Your stones, your timber, and your clay shall be cast into the sea.

- <sup>13</sup> I will put an end to the noise of your songs, and the sound of your lyres shall be heard no more.
- <sup>14</sup> I will make you a bare rock;
a drying place for nets shall you be.

Never shall you be rebuilt, for I have spoken, says the Lord God.

<sup>15</sup> Thus says the Lord God to Tyre: At the noise of your fall, at the groaning of the wounded, when the sword slays in your midst, shall not the isles quake? <sup>16†</sup> All the princes of the sea shall step down from their thrones, lay aside their robes, and strip off their embroidered garments. They shall be clothed in mourning and, sitting on the ground, they shall tremble at every moment and be horrified at you. <sup>17</sup> Then they shall utter a lament over you:

How have you perished, gone from the seas,
city most prized!
Once she was mighty on the sea,
she and her dwellers,
Who spread terror into all that dwelt by the sea.

- <sup>18</sup> On this, the day of your fall,
the islands quake!

The isles in the sea are terrified at your passing.

<sup>19</sup> For thus says the Lord God: When I make you a city desolate like cities that are no longer inhabited, when I churn up the abyss against you, and its mighty waters cover you, <sup>20†</sup> then I will thrust you down with those who descend into the pit, those of the bygone age; and I will make you dwell in the nether lands, in the everlasting ruins, with those who go down to the pit, so that you may never return to take your place in the land of the living. <sup>21</sup> I will make you a devastation, and you shall be no more; you shall be sought, but never again found, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 27

The Ship Tyre. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> As for you, son of man, utter a lament over Tyre, <sup>3</sup> and say

26, 3: Is 26, 1-21; 47, 4; Jl 4, 4f;

Zec 9, 2ff.

<sup>26, 4f:</sup> A bare rock: the Tyre of Ezekiel's time was situated on a rocky island just off the Phoenician coast; it was not until the time of Alexander the Great that it was connected by a causeway to the mainland.

<sup>26, 5:</sup> Her daughters: tributary towns and villages on the mainland.

<sup>26, 16:</sup> The princes of the sea: the rulers of the islands and coastal cities leagued commercially with Tyre.

<sup>26, 20:</sup> Those who descend into the pit: the dead, pictured as dwelling in a place or cave of darkness.

to Tyre that is situated at the approaches of the sea, that brought the trade of the peoples to many a coastland: Thus says the Lord God:

Tyre, you said, "I am a ship, perfect in beauty."

- 4 In the midst of the sea your builders placed you, perfected your beauty.
- 5† With cypress from Senir they built for you
all of your decks;
Cedar from Lebanon they took to make you a mast;
- 6† From the highest oaks of Bashan they made your oars;
Your bridge they made of cypress wood from the coasts of Kittim.
- 7† Fine embroidered linen from Egypt became your sail [to serve you as a banner].
Purple and scarlet from the coasts of Elishah covered your cabin.
- 8† Citizens of Sidon and Arvad served as your oarsmen;
Skilled men of Zemer were in you to be your mariners;
- 9 The elders and experts of Gebal were in you to caulk your seams.

Every ship and sailor on the sea came to you to carry trade. <sup>10</sup> Persia and Lud and Put were in your army as warriors; shield and helmet they hung upon you, increasing your splendor. <sup>11</sup> The men of Arvad were all about your walls, and the Gamadites were in your towers; they hung their bucklers all around on your walls, and made perfect your beauty. <sup>12</sup> Tarshish traded with you, so great was your wealth, exchanging silver, iron, tin, and lead for your wares. <sup>13</sup> Javan, Tubal, and Meshech were also traders with you, exchanging slaves and articles of bronze for your goods. <sup>14</sup> From Beth-togarmah horses, steeds, and mules were exchanged for your wares. <sup>15</sup> The Rhodanites trafficked with you; many coastlands traded with you; ivory tusks and ebony wood they gave you for payment. <sup>16</sup> Edom traded with you, so many were your products, exchanging garnets, purple, embroidered cloth, fine linen, coral, and rubies for your wares. <sup>17</sup> Judah and the land of Israel trafficked with you, exchanging Minnith wheat, figs, honey, oil, and balm for your goods. <sup>18</sup> Damascus traded with you, so great was your wealth, exchanging Helbon wine and Zahar wool. <sup>19</sup> Javan exchanged wrought iron, cassia, and aromatic cane from Uzal for your wares. <sup>20</sup> Dedan traded with you for riding gear. <sup>21</sup> The trade of Arabia and of all the sheikhs of Kedar belonged to you; they dealt in lambs, rams, and goats. <sup>22</sup> The merchants of Sheba and Raamah also traded with you, exchanging for your wares the very choicest spices, all kinds of precious stones, and gold. <sup>23</sup> Haran, Canneh, and Eden, the merchants of Sheba, Asshur, and Chilmad <sup>24</sup> traded with you, marketing with you rich garments, violet mantles, embroidered cloth, varicolored carpets, and firmly woven cords. <sup>25</sup> Ships of Tarshish journeyed for you in your merchandising.

You were full and heavily laden
in the heart of the sea.

- 26 Through the deep waters your oarsmen brought you home,
But the east wind smashed you
in the heart of the sea.
- 27 Your wealth, your goods, your wares,
your sailors, and your crew,

[the caulkers of your seams, those who traded for your goods, all your warriors who were in you, and all the great crowd within you]

Sank into the heart of the sea on the day of your shipwreck.

- 28 Hearing the shouts of your mariners,
the shores begin to quake.
- 29 Down from their ships
come all who ply the oar;
The sailors, all the mariners of the sea,
stand on the shore,
- 30 Making their voice heard on your behalf,
shouting bitter cries,
Strewing dust on their heads,
rolling in the ashes.
- 31 For you they shave their heads and put on sackcloth,
For you they weep in anguish,
with bitter lament.
- 32 In their mourning they utter a lament over you;
thus they wail over you:
Who was ever destroyed like Tyre
in the midst of the sea?
- 33 With your goods which you drew from the seas
you filled many peoples;
With your great wealth and merchandise you enriched the kings of the earth.

† —————
27, 5: Senir: another name for Mount Hermon; cf Dt 3, 9.
27, 6: Bashan: northern Transjordan, which, like Lebanon, was noted for its great forests. Kittim: probably Cyprus.
27, 7: Elishah: probably another term for Cyprus.
27, 8†: Sidon . . . Arvad . . . Zemer . . . Gebal: Phoenician cities in Tyre's orbit of influence; the last-named is the classical Byblos.

- 34 Now you are wrecked in the sea,
in the watery depths;
Your wares and all your crew have gone down with you.
- 35 All who dwell on the coastlands are aghast over you,
Their kings are terrified,
their faces convulsed.
- 36 The traders among the peoples
now hiss at you;
You have become a horror,
and you shall be no more.

CHAPTER 28

The Prince of Tyre. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, say to the prince of Tyre: Thus says the Lord God:

- Because you are haughty of heart,
you say, "A god am I!
I occupy a godly throne
in the heart of the sea!"—
And yet you are a man, and not a
god,
however you may think yourself
like a god.
- 3† Oh yes, you are wiser than Daniel,
there is no secret that is beyond
you.
- 4 By your wisdom and your intelligence
you have made riches for yourself;
You have put gold and silver into your treasuries.
- 5 By your great wisdom applied to your trading
you have heaped up your riches;
your heart has grown haughty from your riches—
- 6 therefore thus says the Lord
God:
Because you have thought yourself
to have the mind of a god, 7 Therefore I will bring against you foreigners, the most barbarous of nations.
They shall draw their swords against your beauteous wisdom, they shall run them through your splendid apparel.
- 8 They shall thrust you down to the pit, there to die
a bloodied corpse, in the heart of
the sea.
- 9 Will you then say, "I am a god!"
when you face your murderers?
No, you are a man, not a god, handed over to those who will slay
you.
- 10 You shall die the death of the uncircumcised
at the hands of foreigners,
for I have spoken,
says the Lord God.

<sup>11</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>12</sup>† Son of man, utter a lament over the king of Tyre, saying to him: Thus says the Lord God:

- You were stamped with the seal of perfection,
of complete wisdom and perfect beauty.
- 13 In Eden, the garden of God, you were,
and every precious stone was your covering [carnelian, topaz, and beryl, chrysolite, onyx, and jasper, sapphire, garnet, and emerald];

Of gold your pendants and jewels were made, on the day you were created.

- 14† With the Cherub I placed you;
you were on the holy mountain of
God,
walking among the fiery stones.
- 15 Blameless you were in your conduct from the day you were created, Until evil was found in you,
the result of your far-flung trade:
violence was your business, and you sinned.
- Then I banned you from the mountain of God;
the Cherub drove you from among the fiery stones.
- 17 You became haughty of heart because of your beauty;
for the sake of splendor you de-based your wisdom.
I cast you to the earth, so great was your guilt;
I made you a spectacle in the sight of kings.
- 18 Because of your guilt, your sinful trade,
I have profaned your sanctuaries,
And I have brought out fire from your midst
which will devour you.
I have reduced you to dust on the earth
in the sight of all who should see
you.
- 19 Among the peoples, all who knew
you
stand aghast at you;
You have become a horror,
you shall be no more.

Against Sidon. <sup>20</sup>* Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>21</sup>* Son of man, look toward Sidon, and prophesy against

28, 20: Is 23, 1-18.

21: Jer 47, 4.

†

28, 3: Wiser than Daniel: see note on 14, 14.

28, 12-19: This picture of Tyre and its fall recalls images of the earthly paradise portraying the creation of man in perfection and his fall (Gn. chapters 2-3).

28, 14: The holy mountain of God: the residence of God was sometimes designated as a mountain; cf Is 14, 13. The fiery stones: associated with the divine presence; cf 1, 13; Ps 18, 13.

it: <sup>22*</sup> Thus says the Lord GOD: See! I am coming at you, Sidon; I will be glorified in your midst. Then they shall know that I am the LORD, when I inflict punishments upon it and use it to manifest my holiness.

<sup>23</sup> Into it I will send pestilence, and blood shall flow in its streets. Within it shall fall those slain by the sword that comes against it from every side.

Thus they shall know that I am the LORD. <sup>24</sup> Sidon shall no longer be a tearing thorn for the house of Israel, a brier that scratches them more than all the others about them who despise them; thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

<sup>25</sup> Thus says the Lord GOD: When I gather the house of Israel from the peoples among whom they are scattered, then I will manifest my holiness through them in the sight of the nations. Then they shall live on their land which I gave to my servant Jacob; <sup>26</sup> they shall live on it in security, building houses and planting vineyards. They shall dwell secure while I inflict punishments on all their neighbors who despised them; thus they shall know that I, the LORD, am their God.

CHAPTER 29

Egypt the Crocodile. <sup>1†</sup> On the twelfth day of the tenth month in the tenth year, the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2†</sup> Son of man, set your face against Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and prophesy against him and against all Egypt. <sup>3†</sup> Say this to him: Thus says the Lord GOD:

See! I am coming at you, Pharaoh, king of Egypt, Great crouching monster
amidst your Niles:
Who say, "The Niles are mine;
it is I who made them!"

<sup>4</sup> I will put hooks in your jaws and make the fish of your Niles stick to your scales, then draw you up from the midst of your Niles along with all the fish of your Niles sticking to your scales.

<sup>5</sup> I will cast you into the desert, you and all the fish of your Niles; You shall fall upon the open field, you shall not be taken up or buried;
To the beasts of the earth and the birds of the air
I give you as food,

<sup>6*</sup> That all who dwell in Egypt may know that I am the LORD.
Because you have been a reed staff for the house of Israel:

<sup>7</sup> When they held you in hand, you splintered, throwing every shoulder out of joint;

When they leaned on you, you broke, bringing each one of them down headlong;

<sup>8</sup> therefore thus says the Lord GOD: See! I will bring the sword against you, and cut off from you both man and beast.

<sup>9</sup> The land of Egypt shall become a desolate waste; thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

Because you said, "The Niles are mine; it is I who made them," <sup>10†</sup> therefore see! I am coming at you and against your Niles; I will make the land of Egypt a waste and a desolation from Migdol to Syene, and even to the frontier of Ethiopia. <sup>11</sup> No foot of man or beast shall pass through it; they shall not pass through it, and it will be uninhabited for forty years. <sup>12</sup> I will make the land of Egypt the most desolate of lands, and its cities shall be the most deserted of cities for forty years; and I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and strew them over foreign lands. <sup>13</sup> Yet thus says the Lord GOD: At the end of forty years I will gather the Egyptians from the peoples among whom they are scattered, <sup>14†</sup> and I will restore Egypt's fortune, bringing them back to the land of Pathros, the land of their origin, where it will be the lowliest <sup>15</sup> of kingdoms, never more to set itself above the nations. I will make them few, that they may not dominate the nations. <sup>16</sup> No longer shall they be for the house of Israel to trust in, but the living reminder of its guilt for having turned to follow after them. Thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

The Wages of Nebuchadnezzar.

<sup>17†</sup> On the first day of the first month in the twenty-seventh year, the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>18†</sup> Son of man, Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, has led 22: Jl 4, 4; Zec 9, 29, 6: Is 36, 6.

2ff.

† 29, 1: The twelfth day of the tenth month in the tenth year: January 7, 587 B.C. The siege of Jerusalem had begun a year earlier; cf 24, 1.

29, 2: Egypt was allied with Judah against the Chaldeans.
29, 3: Niles: the many rivulets of the Nile as it branches out into the Delta.

29, 10: From Migdol to Syene: from the northern to the southern extremity of Egypt. Syene is the modern Assuan.

29, 14: Pathros, the land of their origin: upper Egypt, that is, southern Egypt, where the Egyptians were thought to have originated; Is 11, 11; Jer 44, 1.15.

29, 17: The first day of the first month in the twenty-seventh year: April 26, 571 B.C. This is the latest date attached to any prophecy in Ezekiel.

29, 18†: The fulfillment of Ezekiel's prophecy against Tyre (chapters 26-28) was a thirteen-year siege of the city by Nebuchadnezzar (587-574 B.C.). Tyre seems to have been taken, but its resources were exhausted and the booty was small. Therefore Ezekiel now prophesies that Nebuchadnezzar will collect his wages as God's instrument in the punishment of Tyre, by plundering Egypt.

his army in an exhausting campaign against Tyre. Their heads became bald and their shoulders were galled; but neither he nor his army received any wages from Tyre for the campaign he led against it. <sup>19*</sup> Therefore thus says the Lord God: I am now giving the land of Egypt to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. He shall carry off its riches, plundering and pillaging it for the wages of his soldiers, who did it for me; <sup>20</sup> as payment for his toil I have given him the land of Egypt, says the Lord God.

<sup>21</sup> On that day I will make a horn sprout for the house of Israel, and I will cause you to speak out in their midst; thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER 30

The Day of the Lord against Egypt.

<sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, speak this prophecy: Thus says the Lord God: Cry, Oh, the day! <sup>3</sup> for near is the day, near is the day of the LORD; a day of clouds, doomsday for the nations shall it be. <sup>4</sup> Then a sword shall come upon Egypt, and anguish shall be in Ethiopia, when the slain fall in Egypt, when her riches are seized and her foundations are overthrown. <sup>5</sup> Ethiopia, Put, Lud, all Arabia, Libya, and people of the allied territory shall fall by the sword with them. <sup>6</sup> Those who support Egypt shall fall, and down shall come her proud strength; from Migdol to Syene they shall fall there by the sword, says the Lord God. <sup>7</sup> She shall be the most devastated of lands, and her cities shall be the most desolate of all. <sup>8</sup> Then they shall know that I am the LORD, when I set fire to Egypt and when all who help her are broken. <sup>9</sup> On that day messengers shall hasten forth at my command to terrify unsuspecting Ethiopia; they shall be in anguish on the day of Egypt, which is surely coming.

<sup>10</sup> Thus says the Lord God: I will put an end to the throngs of Egypt by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. <sup>11</sup> He and his people with him, the most ruthless of nations, shall be brought in to devastate the land. They shall draw their swords against Egypt, and fill the land with the slain. <sup>12</sup> I will turn the Niles into dry land and sell the land over to the power of the wicked. The land and everything in it I will hand over to foreigners to devastate. I, the LORD, have spoken.

<sup>13*</sup> Thus says the Lord God: I will put an end to the great ones of Memphis and the princes of the land of Egypt, that they may be no more. I will cast fear into the land of Egypt, and devastate Pathros. <sup>14</sup> I will set fire to Zoan, and inflict punishments on Thebes. <sup>15</sup> I will pour out my wrath on Pelusium, Egypt's stronghold, and cut down the crowds in Memphis. <sup>16</sup> I will set fire to Egypt; Syene shall writhe in anguish; Thebes shall be breached and its walls shall be demolished. <sup>17</sup> The young men of On and of Pibeseth shall fall by the sword, and the cities themselves shall go into captivity. <sup>18</sup> In Tehaphnehes the day shall be darkened when I break the scepter of Egypt. Her haughty pride shall cease from her, clouds shall cover her, and her daughters shall go into captivity. <sup>19</sup> Thus will I inflict punishments on Egypt, that they may know that I am the LORD.

Pharaoh's Broken Arm. <sup>20†</sup> On the seventh day of the first month in the eleventh year, the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>21†</sup> Son of man, I have broken the arm of Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, and see, it has not been bound up with bandages and healing remedies that it may be strong enough to hold the sword. <sup>22</sup> Therefore thus says the Lord God: See! I am coming at Pharaoh, the king of Egypt. I will break his strong arm, so that the sword drops from his hand. <sup>23</sup> I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and strew them over foreign lands. <sup>24</sup> But I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and put my sword in his hand, which he will bring against Egypt so as to plunder and pillage it. <sup>25</sup> [I will make the arms of the king of Babylon strong, but the arms of Pharaoh shall drop.] Then they shall know that I am the LORD, when I put my sword in the hand of the king of Babylon for him to wield against the land of Egypt. <sup>26</sup> [I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and strew them over foreign lands.] Thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER 31

Allegory of the Cypress. <sup>1†</sup> On the first day of the third month in the eleventh year, the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, say to Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, and to his hordes: What are you like in your greatness?

<sup>3</sup> Behold, a cypress [cedar] in Lebanon,

19: Jer 46, 2.

30, 13: Zec 13, 2.

† 30, 20: The seventh day of the first month in the eleventh year: April 29, 587 B.C.

30, 21-26: This oracle was uttered during the siege of Jerusalem, which had now lasted more than a year (24, 1). Pharaoh Hophra went to the aid of Jerusalem, causing the Chaldeans to lift the siege temporarily; cf Jer 34, 21; 37, 6f. In the prophet's eyes, this was interfering with the divine punishment of Judah that was to be inflicted by the Chaldeans. The Egyptians were routed by the Chaldeans, and were able to offer no more help to Jerusalem; cf chapter 31.

31, 1: The first day of the third month in the eleventh year: June 21, 587 B.C.

- beautiful of branch, lofty of stature, amid the very clouds lifted its crest.
- 4 Waters made it grow, the abyss made it flourish, sending its rivers round where it was planted, turning its streams to all the trees of the field.
- 5 Thus it grew taller than every other tree of the field, and longer of branch because of the abundant water.
- 6 In its boughs nested all the birds of the air,
under its branches all beasts of the field gave birth,
in its shade dwelt numerous peoples of every race.
- 7 It became beautiful and stately in its spread of foliage, for its roots were turned toward abundant water.
- 8 The cedars in the garden of God were not its equal,
nor could the fir trees match its boughs,
Neither were the plane trees like it for branches;
no tree in the garden of God matched its beauty.
- 9 I made it beautiful, with much foliage,
the envy of all Eden's trees in the garden of God.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore thus says the Lord God: Because it became lofty in stature, raising its crest among the clouds, and because it became proud in heart at its height, <sup>11</sup> I have handed it over to the mightiest of the nations, which has dealt with it in keeping with its wickedness. I humiliated it. <sup>12</sup> Foreigners, the most ruthless of the nations, cut it down and left it on the mountains. Its foliage was brought low in all the valleys, its branches lay broken in all the ravines of the land, and all the peoples of the land withdrew from its shade, abandoning it.

<sup>13</sup> On its fallen trunk rested all the birds of the air, and by its branches were all the beasts of the field.

<sup>14</sup> Thus no tree may grow lofty in stature or raise its crest among the clouds; no tree fed by water may stand by itself in its loftiness.

For all of them are destined for death,
for the land below,
For the company of mortals,
those who go down into the pit.

<sup>15</sup> Thus says the Lord God: On the day

he went down to the nether world I made the abyss close up over him; I stopped its streams so that the deep waters were held back. I cast gloom over Lebanon because of him, so that all the trees in the land drooped on his account. <sup>16</sup> At the crash of his fall I made the nations rock, when I cast him down to the nether world with those who go down into the pit. In the land below, all Eden's trees were consoled, Lebanon's choice and best, all that were fed by water. <sup>17</sup> They too have come down with him to the nether world, to those slain by the sword; those who dwelt in his shade are dispersed among the nations. <sup>18</sup> Which was your equal in glory or size among the trees of Eden? Yet you have been brought down with the trees of Eden to the land below. You shall lie with the un-circumcised, with those slain by the sword. Such are Pharaoh and all his hordes, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 32

Dirge over Pharaoh. <sup>1</sup> On the first day of the twelfth month in the twelfth year, the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, utter a lament over Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, saying to him: Lion of the nations, you are destroyed.

You were like a monster in the sea,
spouting in your streams, Stirring the water with your feet
and churning its streams.

<sup>3</sup>* Thus says the Lord God:

I will spread my net over you [with a host of many nations], and draw you up in my seine.

<sup>4</sup> I will leave you on the land;
on the open field I will cast you.
I will have all the birds of the air alight on you,
and all the beasts of the earth eat their fill of you.

<sup>5</sup> I will leave your flesh on the mountains, and fill the valleys with your carcass.

<sup>6</sup> I will water the land with what flows from you, and the river beds shall be filled with your blood.

<sup>7</sup>* When I snuff you out I will cover the heavens, and all their stars I will darken;
The sun I will cover with clouds,

32, 3; 12, 13; 17, 20,
7; Is 13, 10; Jl 2,

10; 4, 15; Mt 24,
29.

† 32, 1: The first day of the twelfth month in the twelfth year.
March 3, 585 B.C.

and the moon shall not give its light.

- <sup>8</sup> All the shining lights in the heavens
I will darken on your account,
And I will spread darkness over your land,
says the Lord God.

<sup>9</sup> I will grieve the hearts of many peoples when I lead you captive among the nations, to lands which you do not know. <sup>10</sup> Many peoples shall be appalled at you, and their kings shall shudder over you in horror when they see me brandish my sword, and on the day of your downfall every one of them shall continuously tremble for his own life. <sup>11</sup> For thus says the Lord God: The sword of the king of Babylon shall come upon you.

- <sup>12</sup> I will cut down your horde with the blades of warriors, all of them the most ruthless of the nations;

They shall lay waste the glory of Egypt,
and all her hordes shall be destroyed.

- <sup>13</sup> I will have all of her animals perish beside her abundant waters;
The foot of man shall stir them no longer,
nor shall the hoof of beast disturb them.

- <sup>14</sup> Then will I make their waters clear, and their streams flow like oil,
says the Lord God.

<sup>15</sup> When I turn Egypt into a waste, the land shall be devastated of all that is in it; when I strike all who live there, they shall know that I am the LORD. <sup>16</sup> This is a dirge, and it shall be sung: the daughters of the nations shall chant it; over Egypt and all its hordes shall they chant it, says the Lord God.

Dirge over Egypt. <sup>17</sup> On the fifteenth day of the first month in the twelfth year, the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>18</sup> Son of man, lament over the throngs of Egypt, for the mighty nations have thrust them down to the bottom of the earth, with those who go down into the pit. <sup>20</sup> In the midst of those slain by the sword shall they fall, and place shall be made with them for all their hordes. Then from the midst of the nether world, the mighty warriors shall speak to Egypt: <sup>19</sup> "Whom do you excel in beauty?" <sup>21</sup> Come down, you and your allies, lie with the uncircumcised, with those slain by the sword."

<sup>22</sup> There is Assyria with all her company, all of them slain, <sup>23</sup> whose graves have been made in the recesses of the pit; her company is around Egypt's grave, all of them slain, fallen by the sword, who spread terror in the land of the living. <sup>24</sup> There is Elam with all her throng about Egypt's grave, all of them

slain, fallen by the sword: they have gone down uncircumcised to the bottom of the earth, who spread their terror in the land of the living, and they bear their disgrace with those who go down into the pit; <sup>25</sup> in the midst of the slain they are placed. <sup>26</sup> There are Meshech and Tubal and all their throng about her grave, all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword, for they spread their terror in the land of the living.

<sup>27</sup>† They do not lie with the mighty men fallen of old, who went down to the nether world with their weapons of war, whose swords were placed under their heads and whose shields were laid over their bones, though the mighty men caused terror in the land of the living. <sup>28</sup> But in the midst of the uncircumcised shall you lie, with those slain by the sword.

<sup>29</sup> There are Edom, her kings, and all her princes, who despite their might have been placed with those slain by the sword; with the uncircumcised they lie, and with those who go down into the pit. <sup>30</sup> There are all the princes of the north and all the Sidonians, who have gone down with the slain, because of the terror their might inspired; they lie uncircumcised with those slain by the sword and bear their disgrace with those who go down to the pit. <sup>31</sup> When Pharaoh sees these, he shall be comforted for all his hordes slain by the sword—Pharaoh and all his army, says the Lord God. <sup>32</sup> Since he spread his terror in the land of the living, therefore is he laid to rest among the uncircumcised, with those slain by the sword—Pharaoh and all his hordes, says the Lord God.

IV: SALVATION FOR ISRAEL

CHAPTER 33

The Prophet a Watchman. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, speak thus to your countrymen: When I bring the sword against a country, and the people of this country select one of their number to be their watchman, <sup>3</sup> and the watchman, seeing the sword coming against the country, blows the trumpet to warn the people, <sup>4</sup> anyone hearing but not heeding the warning of the trumpet and therefore slain by the sword that comes against him, shall be responsible for his own death. <sup>5</sup> He heard the trumpet blast yet refused to take warning; he is responsible for his own death, for had he taken warning he would have escaped with his life.<sup>6</sup> But if the watchman sees the sword coming and fails to blow the warning trumpet, so that the sword comes and takes anyone, I will hold the watchman responsible for that person's death, even though that person is taken because of his own sin.

† 32, 27: The mighty men fallen of old: the semilegendary heroes of the prehistoric past, who were thought to have once dominated the world; cf 14, 9.

<sup>7</sup>* You, son of man, I have appointed watchman for the house of Israel; when you hear me say anything, you shall warn them for me. <sup>8</sup> If I tell the wicked man that he shall surely die, and you do not speak out to dissuade the wicked man from his way, he [the wicked man] shall die for his guilt, but I will hold you responsible for his death. <sup>9</sup> But if you warn the wicked man, trying to turn him from his way, and he refuses to turn from his way, he shall die for his guilt, but you shall save yourself.

Individual Retribution. <sup>10</sup> As for you, son of man, speak to the house of Israel: You people say, "Our crimes and our sins weigh us down; we are rotting away because of them. How can we survive?" <sup>11</sup>* Answer them: As I live, says the Lord God, I swear I take no pleasure in the death of the wicked man, but rather in the wicked man's conversion, that he may live. Turn, turn from your evil ways! Why should you die, O house of Israel?

<sup>12</sup> As for you, son of man, tell your countrymen: The virtue which a man has practiced will not save him on the day that he sins; neither will the wickedness that a man has done bring about his downfall on the day that he turns from his wickedness [nor can the virtuous man, when he sins, remain alive].

<sup>13</sup> Though I say to the virtuous man that he shall surely live, if he then presumes on his virtue and does wrong, none of his virtuous deeds shall be remembered; because of the wrong he has done, he shall die. <sup>14</sup> And though I say to the wicked man that he shall surely die, if he turns away from his sin and does what is right and just, <sup>15</sup> giving back pledges, restoring stolen goods, living by the statutes that bring life, and doing no wrong, he shall surely live, he shall not die. <sup>16</sup> None of the sins he committed shall be held against him; he has done what is right and just, he shall surely live.

<sup>17</sup> Yet your countrymen say, "The way of the LORD is not fair!"; but it is their way that is not fair. <sup>18</sup> When a virtuous man turns away from what is right and does wrong, he shall die for it. <sup>19</sup> But when a wicked man turns away from wickedness and does what is right and just, because of this he shall live. <sup>20</sup>* And still you say, "The way of the LORD is not fair!"; I will judge every one of you according to his ways, O house of Israel.

The Fugitive from Jerusalem. <sup>21</sup>† On the fifth day of the tenth month, in the twelfth year of our exile, the fugitive came to me from Jerusalem and said, "The city is taken!" <sup>22</sup> The hand of the LORD had come upon me the evening before the fugitive arrived, and he opened my mouth when the fugitive reached me in the morning. My mouth was opened, and I was dumb no longer.

The Survivors in Judah. <sup>23</sup>† Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>24</sup> Son of man, they who live in the ruins on the land of Israel reason thus: "Abraham, though but a single individual, received possession of the land; we, therefore, being many, have as permanent possession the land that has been given to us." <sup>25</sup> Give them this answer: Thus says the Lord God: You eat on the mountains, you raise your eyes to your idols, you shed blood—yet you would keep possession of the land? <sup>26</sup> You rely on your sword, you do abominable things, each one of you defiles his neighbor's wife—yet you would keep possession of the land? <sup>27</sup> Tell them this: Thus says the Lord God: As I live, those who are in the ruins I swear shall fall by the sword; those who are in the open field I have given to the wild beasts for food; and those who are in fastnesses and in caves shall die by the plague. <sup>28</sup> I will make the land a desolate waste, so that its proud strength will come to an end, and the mountains of Israel shall be so desolate that no one will cross them. <sup>29</sup> Thus they shall know that I am the LORD, when I make the land a desolate waste because of all abominable things they have done.

The Prophet's False Popularity.

<sup>30</sup>† As for you, son of man, your countrymen are talking about you along the walls and in the doorways of houses. They say to one another, "Come and hear the latest word that comes from the LORD." <sup>31</sup> My people come to you as people always do; they sit down before you and hear your words, but they will not obey them, for lies are on their lips and their desires are fixed on dishonest gain.

33, 7: 3, 17.
11: 18, 23-32.

20: 18, 25.

†

33, 21: January 8, 585 B.C. According to Jeremiah (39, 2), Jerusalem was taken in July, 587. Some MSS read "eleventh" for twelfth year (January, 586); even so, there was ample time between the fall of Jerusalem and the arrival of the fugitive from that city to journey to Babylon. However, this is the fugitive sent to fulfill the promise of 24, 25, 27, the eye witness who would release Ezekiel from his dumbness; cf 3, 26f.

33, 23-29: News brought by the fugitive furnished the occasion of this prophecy. Like Jeremiah, Ezekiel rejects the idea that the survivors in Judah have any claim to the land. The new Israel is to be formed from the exiles.

33, 30: The fulfillment of Ezekiel's prophecies about Jerusalem was responsible for this temporary enthusiasm among the unstable people.

<sup>32</sup> For them you are only a ballad singer, with a pleasant voice and a clever touch. They listen to your words, but they will not obey them. <sup>33</sup> But when it comes—and it is surely coming!—they shall know that there was a prophet among them.

CHAPTER 34

Parable of the Shepherds. <sup>1</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup>*† Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel, in these words prophesy to them [to the shepherds]: Thus says the LORD GOD: Woe to the shepherds of Israel who have been pasturing themselves! Should not shepherds, rather, pasture sheep? <sup>3</sup> You have fed off their milk, worn their wool, and slaughtered the fatlings, but the sheep you have not pastured. <sup>4</sup> You did not strengthen the weak nor heal the sick nor bind up the injured. You did not bring back the strayed nor seek the lost, but you lorded it over them harshly and brutally. <sup>5</sup> So they were scattered for lack of a shepherd, and became food for all the wild beasts. My sheep were scattered <sup>6</sup> and wandered over all the mountains and high hills; my sheep were scattered over the whole earth, with no one to look after them or to search for them.

<sup>7</sup> Therefore, shepherds, hear the word of the LORD: <sup>8</sup> As I live, says the LORD GOD, because my sheep have been given over to pillage, and because my sheep have become food for every wild beast, for lack of a shepherd; because my shepherds did not look after my sheep, but pastured themselves and did not pasture my sheep; <sup>9</sup> because of this, shepherds, hear the word of the LORD: <sup>10</sup> Thus says the LORD GOD: I swear I am coming against these shepherds. I will claim my sheep from them and put a stop to their shepherding my sheep so that they may no longer pasture themselves. I will save my sheep, that they may no longer be food for their mouths.

<sup>11</sup> For thus says the LORD GOD: I myself will look after and tend my sheep. <sup>12</sup> As a shepherd tends his flock when he finds himself among his scattered sheep, so will I tend my sheep. I will rescue them from every place where they were scattered when it was cloudy and dark. <sup>13</sup> I will lead them out from among the peoples and gather them from the foreign lands; I will bring them back to their own country and pasture them upon the mountains of Israel [in the land's ravines and all its inhabited places]. <sup>14</sup> In good pastures will I pasture them, and on the mountain heights of Israel shall be their grazing ground. There they shall lie down on good grazing ground, and in rich pastures shall they be pastured on the mountains of Israel. <sup>15</sup> I myself will pasture my sheep; I myself will give them rest, says the LORD GOD. <sup>16</sup> The lost I will seek out, the strayed I will bring back, the injured I will bind up, the sick I will heal [but the sleek and the strong I will destroy], shepherding them rightly.

Separation of the Sheep. <sup>17</sup> As for you, my sheep, says the LORD GOD, I will judge between one sheep and another, between rams and goats. <sup>18</sup> Was it not enough for you to graze on the best pasture, that you had to trample the rest of your pastures with your feet? Was it not enough for you to drink the clearest water, that you had to foul the remainder with your feet? <sup>19</sup> Thus my sheep had to graze on what your feet had trampled and drink what your feet had fouled. <sup>20</sup> Therefore thus says the LORD GOD: Now will I judge between the fat and the lean sheep. <sup>21</sup> Because you push with side and shoulder, and butt all the weak sheep with your horns until you have driven them out, <sup>22</sup> I will save my sheep so that they may no longer be despoiled, and I will judge between one sheep and another. <sup>23</sup>*† I will appoint one shepherd over them to pasture them, my servant David; he shall pasture them and be their shepherd. <sup>24</sup> I, the LORD, will be their God, and my servant David shall be prince among them. I, the LORD, have spoken.

<sup>25</sup> I will make a covenant of peace with them, and rid the country of ravenous beasts, that they may dwell securely in the desert and sleep in the forests. <sup>26</sup> I will place them about my hill, sending rain in due season, rains that shall be a blessing to them. <sup>27</sup> The trees of the field shall bear their fruits, and the land its crops, and they shall dwell securely on their own soil. Thus they shall know that I am the LORD when I break the bonds of their yoke and free them from the power of those who enslaved them. <sup>28</sup> They shall no longer be despoiled by the nations or devoured by beasts of the earth, but shall dwell secure, with no one to frighten them. <sup>29</sup> I will prepare for them peaceful fields for planting; they shall no longer be carried off by famine in the land, or bear the reproaches of the nations. <sup>30</sup> Thus they shall know that I, the LORD, am their God, and they are my people, the house of Israel, says the LORD GOD. <sup>31</sup> [You, my sheep, you are the sheep of my pasture, and I am your God, says the LORD GOD.]

34, 2: 13, 3; Jer 23, 1.
23: Is 40, 21; Hos 3.

5, Jn 10, 11, 14.

† 34, 2: The shepherds of Israel: the leaders of the people
34, 23: One shepherd, my servant David: a messianic
Davidic King who will rule over the restored Israel (vv 25-31) in the name of the Lord.

CHAPTER 35

Against Edom. <sup>1</sup>*† Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>2</sup> Son of man, set your face against Mount Seir, and prophesy against it. <sup>3</sup> Say to it: Thus says the Lord God: See! I am coming at you, Mount Seir. I will stretch out my hand against you and make you a desolate waste. <sup>4</sup> Your cities I will turn into ruins, and you shall be a waste; thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

<sup>5</sup> Because you never let die your hatred for the Israelites, whom you delivered over to the power of the sword at the time of their trouble, when their crimes came to an end, <sup>6</sup> therefore, as I live, says the Lord God, you have been guilty of blood, and blood, I swear, shall pursue you. <sup>7</sup> I will make Mount Seir a desolate waste, and cut off from it any traveler. <sup>8</sup> With the slain I will fill your hills, your valleys, and all your ravines [in them the slain shall fall by the sword]: <sup>9</sup> desolate will I make you forever, and leave your cities without inhabitants; thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

<sup>10</sup>† Because you said: The two nations and the two lands have become mine; we shall possess them—although the LORD was there—<sup>11</sup> therefore, as I live, says the Lord God, I will deal with you according to your anger and your envy which you have exercised [in your hatred] against them. I will make myself known among you when I judge you, <sup>12</sup> and you shall know that I am the LORD.

I have heard all the contemptuous things you have uttered against the mountains of Israel: "They are desolate, they have been given us to devour." <sup>13</sup> I have heard the insolent and wild words you have spoken against me. <sup>14</sup> Thus says the Lord God: Just as you rejoiced over my land because it was desolate, so will I do to you. <sup>15</sup> In keeping with your glee over the devastation of the inheritance of the house of Israel, so will I treat you. A waste shall you be, Mount Seir, you and the whole of Edom. Thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER 36

Regeneration of the Land. <sup>1</sup>* As for you, son of man, prophesy to the mountains of Israel: Mountains of Israel, hear the word of the LORD! <sup>2</sup> Thus says the Lord God: Because the enemy has said of you, "Ha! the everlasting heights have become our possession!" <sup>3</sup> [therefore prophesy in these words: Thus says the Lord God:]; because you have been ridiculed and despised on all sides for having become a possession for the rest of the nations, and have become a byword and a popular jeer; <sup>4</sup> therefore, mountains of Israel, hear the word of the LORD: [Thus says the Lord God to the mountains and hills, the ravines and valleys, the desolate ruins and abandoned cities, which have been given over to the pillage and mockery of the remaining nations round about; <sup>5</sup> therefore thus says the Lord God:] Truly, with burning jealousy I speak against the rest of the nations [and against all of Edom] who with wholehearted joy and utter contempt have considered my land their possession to be delivered over to plunder. <sup>6</sup> [Therefore, prophesy concerning the land of Israel, and say to the mountains and hills, the ravines and valleys: Thus says the Lord God:] With jealous fury I speak, because you have borne the reproach of the nations. <sup>7</sup> Therefore do I solemnly swear that your neighboring nations shall bear their own reproach.

<sup>8</sup> As for you, mountains of Israel, you shall grow branches and bear fruit for my people Israel, for they shall soon return. <sup>9</sup> See, I come to you, it is to you that I turn; you will be tilled and sown, <sup>10</sup> and I will settle crowds of men upon you, the whole house of Israel; cities shall be repeopled, and ruins rebuilt. <sup>11</sup> I will settle crowds of men and beasts upon you, to multiply and be fruitful. I will repeople you as in the past, and be more generous to you than in the beginning; thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

<sup>12</sup> [My people Israel are the ones whom I will have walk upon you; they shall take possession of you, and you shall be their heritage. Never again shall you rob them of their children.]

<sup>13</sup>† Thus says the Lord God: Because they have said of you, "You are a land that devours men, and you rob your people of their children"; <sup>14</sup> therefore, never again shall you devour men or rob your people of their children, says the Lord God. <sup>15</sup> No more will I permit you to hear the reproach of nations, or bear insults from peoples, or rob your people of their children, says the Lord God.

Regeneration of the People. <sup>16</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>17</sup> Son of man, when the house of Israel lived in their land, they defiled it by their * 35, 1ff; 25, 12ff.

36, 1; 6, 3.

†

35, 1-15: After the fall of Jerusalem, Edom assisted the Chaldeans in devastating the land and subduing the population, and ended by occupying part of Judah's former territory. For this reason these oracles against Edom are found in the context of the city's fall.

35, 10: The two nations and the two lands: the superseded kingdoms of Israel and Judah and their territories.

36, 13: A land that devours men: destroys its own population, as could be seen in its disastrous political history.

conduct and deeds. In my sight their conduct was like the defilement of a menstruous woman. <sup>18</sup> Therefore I poured out my fury upon them [because of the blood which they poured out on the ground, and because they defiled it with idols]. <sup>19</sup> I scattered them among the nations, dispersing them over foreign lands; according to their conduct and deeds I judged them. <sup>20*</sup> But when they came among the nations [wherever they came], they served to profane my holy name, because it was said of them: "These are the people of the LORD, yet they had to leave their land." <sup>21</sup> So I have relented because of my holy name which the house of Israel profaned among the nations where they came. <sup>22</sup> Therefore say to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord God: Not for your sakes do I act, house of Israel, but for the sake of my holy name, which you profaned among the nations to which you came. <sup>23</sup> I will prove the holiness of my great name, profaned among the nations, in whose midst you have profaned it. Thus the nations shall know that I am the LORD, says the Lord God, when in their sight I prove my holiness through you. <sup>24</sup> For I will take you away from among the nations, gather you from all the foreign lands, and bring you back to your own land. <sup>25*</sup> I will sprinkle clean water upon you to cleanse you from all your impurities, and from all your idols I will cleanse you. <sup>26*</sup> I will give you a new heart and place a new spirit within you, taking from your bodies your stony hearts and giving you natural hearts. <sup>27*</sup> I will put my spirit within you and make you live by my statutes, careful to observe my decrees. <sup>28</sup> You shall live in the land I gave your fathers; you shall be my people, and I will be your God. <sup>29</sup> I will save you from all your impurities; I will order the grain to be abundant, and I will not send famine against you. <sup>30</sup> I will increase the fruit on your trees and the crops in your fields; thus you shall no longer bear among the nations the reproach of famine. <sup>31</sup> Then you shall remember your evil conduct, and that your deeds were not good; you shall loathe yourselves for your sins and your abominations. <sup>32</sup> Not for your sakes do I act, says the Lord God—let this be known to you! Be ashamed and abashed because of your conduct, O house of Israel.

<sup>33</sup> Thus says the Lord God: When I purify you from all your crimes, I will re-people the cities, and the ruins shall be rebuilt; <sup>34</sup> the desolate land shall be tilled, which was formerly a wasteland exposed to the gaze of every passer-by. <sup>35</sup> "This desolate land has been made into a garden of Eden," they shall say. "The cities that were in ruins, laid waste, and destroyed are now re-peopled and fortified." <sup>36</sup> Thus the neighboring nations that remain shall know that I, the LORD, have rebuilt what was destroyed and replanted what was desolate. I, the LORD, have promised, and I will do it. <sup>37</sup> Thus says the Lord God: This also I will be persuaded to do for the house of Israel: to multiply them like sheep. <sup>38</sup> As with sacrificial sheep, the sheep of Jerusalem on its feast days, the cities which were in ruins shall be filled with flocks of men; thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

CHAPTER 37

Vision of the Dry Bones. <sup>1†</sup> The hand of the LORD came upon me, and he led me out in the spirit of the LORD and set me in the center of the plain, which was now filled with bones. <sup>2</sup> He made me walk among them in every direction so that I saw how many they were on the surface of the plain. How dry they were! <sup>3</sup> He asked me: Son of man, can these bones come to life? "Lord God," I answered, "you alone know that." <sup>4</sup> Then he said to me: Prophecy over these bones, and say to them: Dry bones, hear the word of the LORD! <sup>5</sup> Thus says the Lord God to these bones: See! I will bring spirit into you, that you may come to life. <sup>6</sup> I will put sinews upon you, make flesh grow over you, cover you with skin, and put spirit in you so that you may come to life and know that I am the LORD. <sup>7</sup> I prophesied as I had been told, and even as I was prophesying I heard a noise; it was a rattling as the bones came together, bone joining bone. <sup>8</sup> I saw the sinews and the flesh come upon them, and the skin cover them, but there was no spirit in them. <sup>9</sup> Then he said to me: Prophecy to the spirit, prophecy, son of man, and say to the spirit: Thus says the Lord God: From the four winds come, O spirit, and breathe into these slain that they may come to life. <sup>10</sup> I prophesied as he told me, and the spirit came into them; they came alive and stood upright, a vast army. <sup>11</sup> Then he said to me: Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel. They have been saying, "Our bones are dried up, our hope is lost, and we are cut off." <sup>12</sup> Therefore, prophecy and say to them: Thus says the Lord God: O my people, I will open your graves and have you rise from them, and bring you back to

20: Is 52, 5; Rom 2, 24;
25: Ps 51, 4; Zec 13, 1; Hb 10, 22; Jn 3, 5.

26: Jer 31, 33.
27: 37, 14; 39, 29; Is 42, 1; 44, 3; 59, 21; Hg 2, 5; Jl 3, 1f.

† 37, 1-14: This vision is a prediction of the restoration of Israel under the figure of a resurrection from the dead; it is not concerned with the doctrine of resurrection itself.

the land of Israel. <sup>13</sup> Then you shall know that I am the LORD, when I open your graves and have you rise from them, O my people! <sup>14</sup> I will put my spirit in you that you may live, and I will settle you upon your land; thus you shall know that I am the LORD. I have promised, and I will do it, says the LORD.

The Two Sticks. <sup>15†</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me: <sup>16</sup> Now, son of man, take a single stick, and write on it: Judah and those Israelites who are associated with him. Then take another stick and write on it: Joseph [the stick of Ephraim] and all the house of Israel associated with him. <sup>17</sup> Then join the two sticks together, so that they form one stick in your hand. <sup>18</sup> When your countrymen ask you, "Will you not tell us what you mean by all this?" <sup>19</sup> answer them: Thus says the Lord God: [I will take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and of the tribes of Israel associated with him, and I will join to it the stick of Judah, making them a single stick; they shall be one in my hand. <sup>20</sup> The sticks on which you write you shall hold up before them to see. <sup>21</sup> Tell them: Thus speaks the Lord God:] I will take the Israelites from among the nations to which they have come, and gather them from all sides to bring them back to their land. <sup>22</sup> I will make them one nation upon the land, in the mountains of Israel, and there shall be one prince for them all. Never again shall they be two nations, and never again shall they be divided into two kingdoms.

<sup>23</sup> No longer shall they defile themselves with their idols, their abominations, and all their transgressions. I will deliver them from all their sins of apostasy, and cleanse them so that they may be my people and I may be their God. <sup>24*</sup> My servant David shall be prince over them, and there shall be one shepherd for them all; they shall live by my statutes and carefully observe my decrees. <sup>25</sup> They shall live on the land which I gave to my servant Jacob, the land where their fathers lived; they shall live on it forever, they, and their children, and their children's children, with my servant David their prince forever. <sup>26*</sup> I will make with them a covenant of peace; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them, and I will multiply them, and put my sanctuary among them forever. <sup>27</sup> My dwelling shall be with them; I will be their God, and they shall be my people. <sup>28</sup> Thus the nations shall know that it is I, the LORD, who make Israel holy, when my sanctuary shall be set up among them forever.

CHAPTER 38

First Prophecy against Gog. <sup>1†</sup> Thus the word of the LORD came to me:

<sup>2††</sup> Son of man, turn toward Gog [the land of Magog], the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him: <sup>3</sup> Thus says the Lord God: See! I am coming at you, Gog, chief prince of Meshech and Tubal. <sup>4</sup> I will lead you forth with all your army, horses and riders all handsomely outfitted, a great horde with bucklers and shields, all of them carrying swords: <sup>5</sup> Persia, Cush, and Put with them [all with shields and helmets], <sup>6</sup> Gomer with all its troops, Beth-togarmah from the recesses of the north with all its troops, many peoples with you. <sup>7</sup> Prepare yourself, be ready, you and all your horde assembled about you, and be at my disposal. <sup>8</sup> After many days you will be mustered [in the last years you will come] against a nation which has survived the sword, which has been assembled from many peoples [on the mountains of Israel which were long a ruin], which has been brought forth from among the peoples and all of whom now dwell in security. <sup>9</sup> You shall come up like a sudden storm, advancing like a cloud to cover the earth, you and all your troops and the many peoples with you.

<sup>10</sup> Thus says the Lord God: At that time thoughts shall arise in your mind, and you shall devise an evil scheme: <sup>11</sup> "I will go up against a land of open villages and attack the peaceful people who are living in security, all of them living without walls, having neither bars nor gates, <sup>12†</sup> to plunder and pillage, turning my hand against the ruins that were reaped and against a people gathered from the nations, a people concerned with cattle and goods, who dwell at the navel of the earth." <sup>13</sup> Sheba and Dedan, the merchants of Tarshish and all her young lions shall ask you: "Is it for plunder that you have come? Is it for pillage that you have summoned your horde, to carry off 37, 24: 34, 23; Jer 23, 5; 33, 15. 26: Ps 110, 4. 38, 2: Rv 20, 7f.

† 37, 15-22: The symbolic action of joining two sticks into one signifies the future union of Israel and Judah under one messianic King.

38, 1—39, 20: These three oracles against Gog may refer either to a specific foreign invasion in the future, or to the apocalyptic struggle between good and evil at the end of time. By some they are ascribed to a later author than Ezekiel, who lived after the exile and the return to Palestine.

38, 2: Gog: the name is almost certainly a symbolic one taken from that of Gyges, king of Lydia, whether or not the prophet has a specific person in mind. The gloss Magog may be an Akkadian expression, mai-Gog, "the land of Gog." Meshech and Tubal, as well as Gomer and Beth-togarmah (v 6), were countries around the Black Sea, the northernmost countries known to the Hebrews: the north (cf also v 15) was the traditional direction from which invasion was expected; cf Jer 1, 13ff.

38, 12: Who dwell at the navel of the earth: the people of Israel (cf v 18; also 5, 5). Many ancient peoples spoke of their own homelands as "the navel," that is, the center of the earth.

silver and gold, to take away cattle and goods, to seize much plunder?"

<sup>17</sup> Thus says the Lord God: It is of you that I spoke in ancient times through my servants, the prophets of Israel, who prophesied in those days that I would bring you against them. <sup>18</sup> But on that day, the day when Gog invades the land of Israel, says the Lord God, my fury shall be aroused. In my anger <sup>19</sup> and in my jealousy, in my fiery wrath, I swear: On that day there shall be a great shaking upon the land of Israel. <sup>20</sup> Before me shall tremble the fish of the sea and the birds of the air, the beasts of the field and all the reptiles that crawl upon the ground, and all men who are on the land. Mountains shall be overturned, and cliffs shall tumble, and every wall shall fall to the ground. <sup>21</sup> Against him I will summon every terror, says the Lord God, every man's sword against his brother. I will hold judgment with him in pestilence and bloodshed; <sup>22</sup> flooding rain and hailstones, fire and brimstone, I will rain upon him, upon his troops, and upon the many peoples with him. <sup>23</sup> I will prove my greatness and holiness and make myself known in the sight of many nations; thus they shall know that I am the Lord.

Second Prophecy against Gog.

<sup>14</sup> Therefore prophesy, son of man, and say to Gog: Thus says the Lord God: When my people Israel are dwelling in security, will you not bestir yourself <sup>15</sup> and come from your home in the recesses of the north, you and many peoples with you, all mounted on horses, a great horde and a mighty army? <sup>16</sup> You shall come up against my people Israel like a cloud covering the land. In the last days I will bring you against my land, that the nations may know of me, when in their sight I prove my holiness through you, O Gog.

CHAPTER 39

Third Prophecy against Gog. <sup>1</sup> Now, son of man, prophesy against Gog in these words: Thus says the Lord God: See! I am coming at you, Gog, chief prince of Meshech and Tubal. <sup>2</sup> I will turn you about, I will urge you on, and I will make you come up from the recesses of the north; I will lead you against the mountains of Israel. <sup>3</sup> Then I will strike the bow from your left hand, and make the arrows drop from your right. <sup>4</sup> Upon the mountains of Israel you shall fall, you and all your troops and the peoples who are with you. To birds of prey of every kind and to the wild beasts I am giving you to be eaten. <sup>5</sup> On the open field you shall fall, for I have decreed it, says the Lord God.

<sup>6</sup> I will send fire upon Magog and upon those who live securely in the coastlands; thus they shall know that I am the Lord. <sup>7</sup> I will make my holy name known among my people Israel; I will no longer allow my holy name to be profaned. Thus the nations shall know that I am the Lord, the Holy One in Israel. <sup>8</sup> Yes, it is coming and shall be fulfilled, says the Lord God. This is the day I have decreed.

<sup>9</sup> Then shall those who live in the cities of Israel go out and burn weapons: [shields and bucklers,] bows and arrows, clubs and lances; for seven years they shall make fires with them. <sup>10</sup> They shall not have to bring in wood from the fields or cut it down in the forests, for they shall make fires with the weapons. Thus they shall plunder those who plundered them and pillage those who pillaged them, says the Lord God.

<sup>11</sup>† On that day I will give Gog for his tomb a well-known place in Israel, the Valley of Abarim east of the sea [it is blocked to travelers]. Gog shall be buried there with all his horde, and it shall be named "Valley of Hamon-gog." <sup>12</sup> To purify the land, the house of Israel shall need seven months to bury them. <sup>13</sup> All the people of the land shall bury them and gain renown for it, when I reveal my glory, says the Lord God. <sup>14</sup> Men shall be permanently employed to pass through the land burying those who lie unburied, so as to purify the land. For seven months they shall keep searching. <sup>15</sup> When they pass through, should they see a human bone, let them put up a marker beside it, until others have buried it in the Valley of Hamon-gog. <sup>16</sup> [Also the name of the city shall be Hamonah.] Thus the land shall be purified.

<sup>17</sup> As for you, son of man, says the Lord God, say to birds of every kind and to all the wild beasts: Come together, from all sides gather for the slaughter I am about to provide for you, a great slaughter on the mountains of Israel: you shall have flesh to eat and blood to drink. <sup>18</sup> You shall eat the flesh of warriors and drink the blood of the princes of the land [rams, lambs, and goats, bullocks, fatlings of Bashan, all of them]. <sup>19</sup> From the slaughter which I will provide for you, you shall eat fat until you are filled and drink blood until you are drunk. <sup>20</sup> You shall be filled at my table with horses and riders, with warriors and soldiers of every kind, says the Lord God.

Israel's Return. <sup>21</sup> Thus I will display my glory among the nations, and all the nations shall see the judgment I have executed and the hand I have laid upon them. <sup>22</sup> From that day forward the house of Israel shall know that I am the LORD, their God. <sup>23</sup> The nations shall know that because of its sins the house of Israel went into exile; for they transgressed against me, and I hid my face from them and handed them over to their foes, so that all of them fell by the sword. <sup>24</sup> According to their uncleanness and their transgressions I dealt with them, hiding my face from them.

†

39, 11: The Valley of Abarim: in the Abarim mountains, east of the Jordan. Hamon-gog: means "the horde of Gog."

<sup>25</sup> Therefore, thus says the Lord God: Now I will restore the fortunes of Jacob and have pity on the whole house of Israel, and I will be jealous for my holy name. <sup>26</sup> They shall forget their disgrace and all the times they broke faith with me, when they live in security on their land with no one to frighten them. <sup>27</sup> When I bring them back from among the peoples, I will gather them from the lands of their enemies, and will prove my holiness through them in the sight of many nations. <sup>28</sup> * Thus they shall know that I, the LORD, am their God, since I who exiled them among the nations, will gather them back on their land, not leaving any of them behind. <sup>29</sup> No longer will I hide my face from them, for I have poured out my spirit upon the house of Israel, says the Lord God.

V: THE NEW ISRAEL

The New Temple

CHAPTER 40

The Man with a Measure. <sup>1</sup>† On the tenth day of the month beginning the twenty-fifth year of our exile, fourteen years after the city was taken, that very day the hand of the LORD came upon me and brought me <sup>2</sup> in divine visions to the land of Israel, where he set me down on a very high mountain. On it there seemed to be a city being built before me. <sup>3</sup> When he had brought me there, all at once I saw a man whose appearance was that of bronze; he was standing in the gate, holding a linen cord and a measuring rod. <sup>4</sup> The man said to me, "Son of man, look carefully and listen intently, and pay strict attention to all that I will show you, for you have been brought here so that I might show it to you. Tell the house of Israel all that you see." <sup>5</sup>† [Then I saw an outer wall that completely surrounded the temple. The man was holding a measuring rod six cubits long, each cubit being a cubit and a handbreadth; he measured the width and the height of the structure, each of which were found to be one rod.]

The East Gate. <sup>6</sup>† Then he went to the gate which faced the east, climbed its steps, and measured the gate's threshold, which was found to be a rod wide.

<sup>7</sup> The cells were a rod long and a rod wide, and the pilasters between the cells measured five cubits. The threshold of the gate adjoining the vestibule of the gate toward the inside measured one rod. <sup>8</sup> He measured the vestibule of the gate, <sup>9</sup> which was eight cubits, and its pilasters, which were two cubits. The vestibule of the gate was toward the inside. <sup>10</sup> The cells of the east gate were three on either side, of equal size, and the pilasters on either side were also of equal size. <sup>11</sup> He measured the gate's entrance, which was ten cubits wide, while the width of the gate's passage itself was thirteen cubits. <sup>12</sup> The border before each of the cells on both sides was one cubit; the cells themselves were six cubits on either side, from opening to opening. <sup>13</sup> He measured the gate from the back wall of one cell to the back wall of the cell on the opposite side: the width was twenty-five cubits. <sup>14</sup> He measured the vestibule, which was twenty-five cubits. The pilasters adjoining the court on either side were six cubits. <sup>15</sup> The length of the gate from the front entrance to the front of the vestibule on the inside was fifty cubits. <sup>16</sup> Within the gateway on both sides there were splayed windows let into the cells [and into their pilasters]; likewise, within the vestibule on both sides there were windows. The pilasters were decorated with palms.

The Outer Court. <sup>17</sup>† Then he brought me to the outer court, where there were chambers and a pavement. The pavement was laid all around the court, and the chambers, which were on the pavement, were thirty in number. <sup>18</sup> The pavement lay alongside the gates, as wide as the gates were long; this was the lower pavement. <sup>19</sup> He measured the width of the court from the front of the lower gate to the front of the inner gate; it was one hundred cubits between them.

The North Gate. Then he proceeded

---

39, 28: 36, 23.

† 40, 1—48, 35: This lengthy vision of the new Israel is dated (40, 1) April 26, 573 B.C. It is largely concerned with the new temple and the prescriptions to govern it, but other details of the restored commonwealth are included, forming a kind of program for the future. The literary form of the vision has been aptly termed "utopian": it is plain that the prophet did not expect a literal fulfillment of much of what he described. The passage doubtless underwent successive additions, both from the prophet and from later inspired writers.

40, 5: A cubit and a handbreadth: the ordinary cubit consisted of six handbreadths; the great cubit, of seven. In measuring the temple, a rod six great cubits long was used. The ordinary cubit was about one and a half feet, or, more exactly, 17.5 inches; the large cubit, 20.4 inches.

40, 6-16: The east gate, leading into the outer court of the temple, is described more fully than the north and south gates, which, however, were of the same dimensions. On the west side of the outer court there was a large building instead of a gate (41, 12).

40, 17: The outer court: the court outside the temple area proper, which had its own inner court (vv 28-37).

north,<sup>20</sup> where, on the outer court, there was a gate facing north, whose length and width he measured.<sup>21</sup> Its cells, three on either side, its pilasters, and its vestibule had the same measurements as those of the first gate; it was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide.<sup>22</sup> Its windows, the windows of its vestibule, and its palm decorations were of the same proportions as those of the gate facing the east. Seven steps led up to it, and its vestibule was toward the inside.<sup>23</sup> The inner court had a gate opposite the north gate, just as at the east gate; he measured one hundred cubits from one gate to the other.

The South Gate.<sup>24</sup> Then he led me south, to where there was a southern gate, whose cells, pilasters, and vestibule he measured; they were the same size as the others.<sup>25</sup> The gate and its vestibule had windows on both sides, like the other windows. It was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide.<sup>26</sup> It was ascended by seven steps; its vestibule was toward the inside; and it was decorated with palms here and there on its pilasters.<sup>27</sup> The inner court also had a southern gate; from gate to gate he measured one hundred cubits.

Gates of the Inner Court.<sup>28†</sup> Then he brought me to the inner court by the south gate, where he measured the south gate. Its dimensions were the same as the others;<sup>29</sup> its cells, its pilasters, and its vestibule were the same size as the others. The gate and its vestibule had windows on both sides; and it was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide.

<sup>31</sup> But its vestibule was toward the outer court; palms were on its pilasters, and it had a stairway of eight steps.<sup>32</sup> Then he brought me to the gate facing the east, where he measured the gate, whose dimensions were found to be the same.

<sup>33</sup> Its cells, its pilasters, and its vestibule were the same size as the others; the gate and its vestibule had windows on both sides; it was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide.<sup>34</sup> But its vestibule was toward the outer court; palms were on its pilasters here and there, and it had a stairway of eight steps.<sup>35</sup> Then he brought me to the north gate, where he measured the dimensions<sup>36</sup> of its cells, its pilasters, and its vestibule, and found them the same. The gate and its vestibule had windows on both sides; it was fifty cubits long and twenty-five cubits wide.<sup>37</sup> Its vestibule was toward the outer court; palms were on its pilasters here and there, and it had a stairway of eight steps.

Side Rooms.<sup>38</sup> There was a chamber opening off the vestibule of the gate, where the holocausts were rinsed.<sup>39</sup> In the vestibule of the gate there were two tables on either side, on which were slaughtered the sin offerings and guilt offerings.<sup>40</sup> Along the wall of the vestibule, but outside, near the entrance of the north gate, were two tables, and on the other side of the vestibule of the gate there were two tables.<sup>41</sup> There were four tables on either side of the gate [eight tables], on which the sacrifices were slaughtered.<sup>42</sup> There were four tables for holocausts, made of cut stone, one and a half cubits long, one and a half cubits wide, and one cubit high.<sup>43</sup> The ledges, a handbreadth wide, were set on the inside all around, and on them were laid the instruments with which the holocausts were slaughtered. On the tables themselves the flesh was laid.<sup>44</sup> He then led me to the inner court where there were two chambers, one beside the north gate, facing south, and the other beside the south gate, facing north.<sup>45</sup> He said to me, "This chamber which faces south is for the priests who have charge of the temple,<sup>46†</sup> and the chamber which faces north is for the priests who have charge of the altar. These are the Zadokites, the only Levites who may come near to minister to the LORD."<sup>47</sup> Then he measured the court, which was a hundred cubits long and a hundred cubits wide, a perfect square. The altar stood in front of the temple.

The Temple Building.<sup>48†</sup> Then he brought me into the vestibule of the temple and measured the pilasters on each side, which were five cubits. The width of the doorway was fourteen cubits, and the side walls on either side of the door measured three cubits.<sup>49†</sup> The vestibule was twenty cubits wide and twelve cubits deep; ten steps led up to it, and there were columns by the pilasters, one on either side.

CHAPTER 41

<sup>1</sup> Then he brought me to the nave and measured the pilasters, which were six cubits thick on either side.<sup>2</sup> The width of the entrance was ten cubits, and the walls at either side of it measured five cubits each. He measured the length of the nave, which was found to be forty cubits, while its width was twenty.

<sup>3</sup> Then he went in beyond and measured the pilasters flanking that en-

† —————
40, 28-37: The gates leading into the inner court of the temple area correspond to the gates leading into the outer court, with the exception that their vestibules are on the outer rather than the inner side. (Verse 30, a ditto-graphy of v 29, is omitted.)

40, 46: The Zadokites: descendants of the priestly line of Zadok, cf 2 Sm 15, 24-29; 1 Kgs 1, 32ff; 2, 35.

40, 48-41, 15: The description of Ezekiel's visionary temple closely follows the description of the temple of Solomon (1 Kgs 6).

40, 49-41, 4: Vestibule . . . nave . . . holy of holies: the three divisions of the temple building in progressing order of sanctity. The last is called "the inner sanctuary" in 1 Kgs 6.

trance, which were two cubits; the width of the entrance was six cubits, and the walls at either side of it extended seven cubits each. <sup>4</sup> He measured the space beyond the nave, twenty cubits long and twenty cubits wide, and said to me, "This is the holy of holies."<sup>5</sup>

<sup>5</sup> Then he measured the wall of the temple, which was six cubits thick; the side chambers, which extended all the way around the temple, had a width of four cubits. <sup>6</sup> There were thirty side chambers built one above the other in three stories, and there were offsets in the outside wall of the temple that enclosed the side chambers; these served as supports, so that there were no supports in the temple wall proper. <sup>7</sup> There was a broad circular passageway that led upward to the side chambers, for the temple was enclosed all the way around and all the way upward; therefore the temple had a broad way running upward so that one could pass from the lowest to the middle and the highest story. <sup>8</sup> About the temple was a raised pavement completely enclosing it—the foundations of the side chambers—a full rod of six cubits in extent. <sup>9</sup> The width of the outside wall which enclosed the side chambers was five cubits. Between the side chambers of the temple <sup>10</sup> and the chambers of the court was an open space twenty cubits wide going all around the temple. <sup>11</sup> The side chambers had entrances to the open space, one entrance on the north and another on the south. The width of the wall surrounding the open space was five cubits. <sup>12</sup>† The building fronting the free area on the west side was seventy cubits front to back; the wall of the building was five cubits thick all around, and it measured ninety cubits from side to side. <sup>13</sup> He measured the temple, which was one hundred cubits long. The free area, together with the building and its walls, was a hundred cubits in length. <sup>14</sup> The façade of the temple, along with the free area, on the east side, was one hundred cubits wide. <sup>15</sup> He measured the building which lay the length of the free area and behind it, and together with its walls on both sides it was one hundred cubits.

Interior of the Temple. The inner nave and the outer vestibule <sup>16</sup> were paneled with precious wood all around, covered from the ground to the windows. There were splayed windows with trellises about them [facing the threshold]. <sup>17</sup> As high as the lintel of the door, even into the interior part of the temple as well as outside, on every wall on every side in both the inner and outer rooms were carved <sup>18</sup> the figures of cherubim and palm trees: a palm tree between every two cherubim. Each cherub had two faces: <sup>19</sup> a man's face looking at a palm tree on one side, and a lion's face looking at a palm tree on the other; thus they were figured on every side throughout the whole temple. <sup>20</sup> From the ground to the lintel of the door the cherubim and palm trees were carved on the walls. <sup>21</sup> The way into the nave was a square doorframe. In front of the holy place was something that looked like <sup>22</sup>† a wooden altar, three cubits in height, two cubits long, and two cubits wide. It had corners, and its base and sides were of wood. He said to me, "This is the table which is before the LORD."<sup>23</sup> The nave had a double door, and also the holy place had <sup>24</sup> a double door. Each door had two movable leaves; two leaves were on one doorjamb and two on the other. <sup>25</sup> Carved upon them [on the doors of the nave] were cherubim and palm trees, like those carved on the walls. Before the vestibule outside was a wooden lattice. <sup>26</sup> There were splayed windows [and palm trees] on both side walls of the vestibule, and the side chambers of the temple. . . .

CHAPTER 42

Other Structures. <sup>1</sup> Then he led me north to the outer court, bringing me to some chambers on the north that lay across the free area and which were also across from the building. <sup>2</sup> Their length was a hundred cubits on the north side, and they were fifty cubits wide. <sup>3</sup> Across the twenty cubits of the inner court and the pavement of the outer court, there were three parallel rows of them on different levels. <sup>4</sup> In front of the chambers, to the inside, was a walk ten cubits broad and a wall of one cubit; but the entrances of the chambers were on the north. <sup>5</sup>† The outermost chambers were the lowest, for the system of levels set them at a level lower than the closest chambers and those in between; <sup>6</sup> for they were in three rows and had no foundations to conform with the foundations of the courts, therefore they were on a lower terrace of the ground than the closest and the middle chambers. <sup>7</sup> On the far side there was a wall running parallel to the chambers along the outer court; its length before these chambers was fifty cubits, <sup>8</sup> for the length of the chambers belonging to the outer court was fifty cubits, but along its entire length the wall measured one hundred cubits. <sup>9</sup> Below these chambers there was the way in from the east, so that † 41, 12: The building: the function of this structure lying behind the temple is never specified.

41, 22: A wooden altar: the altar of incense, standing in the nave at the entrance to the holy of holies.

42, 5†: The three rows of identical chambers, since they rested on different ground levels, necessarily had roofs on correspondingly different levels.

one could enter from the outer court<sup>10</sup> where the wall of the court began.

To the south along the side of the free area and the building there were also chambers,<sup>11</sup> before which was a passage. These looked like the chambers to the north, just as long and just as wide, with the same exits and plan and entrances.<sup>12</sup> Below the chambers to the south there was an entrance at the beginning of the way which led to the back wall, by which one could enter from the east.<sup>13†</sup> He said to me, "The north and south chambers which border on the free area are the sanctuary chambers; here the priests who draw near to the LORD shall eat the most sacred meals, and here they shall keep the most sacred offerings: cereal offerings, sin offerings, and guilt offerings; for it is a holy place.<sup>14</sup> When the priests have once entered, they shall not leave the holy place for the outer court until they have left here the clothing in which they ministered, for it is holy. They shall put on other garments, and then approach the place destined for the people."

Measuring the Outer Court.<sup>15</sup> When he had finished measuring the inner temple area, he brought me out by way of the gate which faces east and measured all the limits of the court.<sup>16</sup> He measured the east side: five hundred cubits by his measuring rod. Then he turned<sup>17</sup> and measured the north side: five hundred cubits by the measuring rod. He turned<sup>18</sup> to the south and measured five hundred cubits by the measuring rod.<sup>19</sup> Then he turned to the west and measured five hundred cubits by the measuring rod.<sup>20</sup> Thus he measured it in the four directions, five hundred cubits long and five hundred cubits wide. It was surrounded by a wall, to separate the sacred from the profane.

Restoration of the Temple

CHAPTER 43

The Return of the Lord.<sup>1</sup> Then he led me to the gate which faces the east,<sup>2</sup> and there I saw the glory of the God of Israel coming from the east. I heard a sound like the roaring of many waters, and the earth shone with his glory.<sup>3*</sup> The vision was like that which I had seen when he came to destroy the city, and like that which I had seen by the river Chebar. I fell prone<sup>4</sup> as the glory of the LORD entered the temple by way of the gate which faces the east,<sup>5</sup> but spirit lifted me up and brought me to the inner court. And I saw that the temple was filled with the glory of the LORD.<sup>6</sup> Then I heard someone speaking to me from the temple, while the man stood beside me.<sup>7</sup> The voice said to me: Son of man, this is where my throne shall be, this is where I will set the soles of my feet; here I will dwell among the Israelites forever. Never again shall they and their kings profane my holy name with their harlotries and with the corpses of their kings [their high places].<sup>8†</sup> When they placed their threshold against my threshold and their doorpost next to mine, so that only a wall was between us, they profaned my holy name by their abominable deeds; therefore I consumed them in my wrath.<sup>9</sup> From now on they shall put far from me their harlotry and the corpses of their kings, and I will dwell in their midst forever.

The Law of the Temple.<sup>10</sup> As for you, son of man, describe the temple to the house of Israel [that they may be ashamed of their sins], both its measurements and its design;<sup>11</sup> [and if they are ashamed of all that they have done.] make known to them the form and design of the temple, its exits and entrances, all its statutes and laws; write these down for them to see, that they may carefully observe all its laws and statutes.<sup>12</sup> This is the law of the temple: its whole surrounding area on the mountain top shall be most sacred.

The Altar.<sup>13†</sup> These were the measurements of the altar in cubits of one cubit plus a handbreadth. Its base was one cubit high and one cubit deep, with a rim around its edges of one span. The height of the altar itself was as follows:<sup>14</sup> from its base at the bottom up to the lower edge it was two cubits high, and this ledge was one cubit deep; from the lower to the upper ledge it was four cubits high, and this ledge also was one cubit deep;<sup>15</sup> the hearth of the altar was four cubits high, and extending from the top of the hearth were the four horns of the altar.<sup>16</sup> The hearth was a square: twelve cubits long and twelve cubits wide.<sup>17</sup> The upper ledge was also a square: fourteen cubits long and fourteen cubits wide. The lower ledge, likewise a square, was sixteen cubits long and sixteen cubits wide, with a half-cubit rim surrounding it. And there was a base of one cubit all around. The steps of the altar face the east.

<sup>18</sup> Then he said to me: Son of man, thus 43: 3: 1, 1.

42, 13: The function of these chambers is explained again in 46, 19f.

43: 8: They placed their threshold against my threshold: the preexilic temple and the royal palace belonged to the same complex of buildings, and this physical proximity was reflected in the use made of the temple by kings like Ahaz and Manasseh, who treated it as their private chapel for pagan rites. In the new Israel the temple is free, even physically, from civil jurisdiction; cf. 45, 7f.

43, 13: The altar: of holocausts, standing in the inner court of the temple area; cf. 40, 47.

says the Lord God: These are the statutes for the altar when it is set up for the offering of holocausts upon it and for the sprinkling of blood against it. <sup>19</sup> Give a young bull as a sin offering to the priests, the Levites who are of the line of Zadok, who draw near me to minister to me, says the Lord God. <sup>20</sup> Take some of its blood and put it on the four horns of the altar, and on the four corners of the ledge, and on the rim all around. Thus you shall purify it and make atonement for it. <sup>21</sup> Then take the bull of the sin offering, which is to be burnt in a designated part of the temple, outside the sanctuary. <sup>22</sup> On the second day present an unblemished he-goat as a sin offering, to purify the altar as was done with the bull. <sup>23</sup> When you have finished the purification, bring an unblemished young bull and an unblemished ram from the flock, <sup>24</sup> and present them before the LORD; the priests shall strew salt on them and offer them to the LORD as holocausts. <sup>25</sup> Daily for seven days you shall offer a he-goat as a sin offering, and a young bull and a ram from the flock, all unblemished, shall be offered <sup>26</sup> for seven days. Thus atonement shall be made for the altar, and it shall be purified and dedicated. <sup>27</sup> And when these days are over, from the eighth day on, the priests shall offer your holocausts and peace offerings on the altar. Then I will accept you, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 44

The Closed Gate. <sup>1</sup> Then he brought me back to the outer gate of the sanctuary, facing the east; but it was closed. <sup>2</sup> He said to me: This gate is to remain closed; it is not to be opened for anyone to enter by it; since the LORD, the God of Israel, has entered by it, it shall remain closed. <sup>3</sup> Only the prince may sit down in it to eat his meal in the presence of the LORD. He must enter by way of the vestibule of the gate, and leave by the same way.

The New Law

Admission to the Temple. <sup>4</sup> Then he brought me by way of the north gate to the façade of the temple, and when I looked I saw the glory of the LORD filling the LORD's temple, and I fell prone. <sup>5</sup> Then he said to me: Son of man, pay strict attention, look carefully, and listen intently to all that I will tell you about the statutes and laws of the LORD's temple; be attentive in regard to those who are to be admitted to the temple and all those who are to be excluded from the sanctuary. <sup>6</sup> Say to that rebellious house, the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord God: Enough of all these abominations of yours, O house of Israel! <sup>7</sup>† You have admitted foreigners, uncircumcised both in heart and flesh, to my sanctuary to profane it when you offered me food, fat, and blood; thus you have broken my covenant by all your abominations. <sup>8</sup> Instead of caring for the service of my temple, you have appointed such as these to serve me in my sanctuary in your stead. <sup>9</sup> Thus says the Lord God: No foreigners, uncircumcised in heart and in flesh, shall ever enter my sanctuary; none of the foreigners who live among the Israelites.

Levites. <sup>10</sup>† But as for the Levites who departed from me when Israel strayed from me to pursue their idols, they shall bear the consequences of their sin. <sup>11</sup> They shall serve in my sanctuary as gatekeepers and temple servants; they shall slaughter the holocausts and the sacrifices for the people, and they shall stand before the people to minister for them. <sup>12</sup> Because they used to minister for them before their idols, and became an occasion of sin to the house of Israel, therefore I have sworn an oath against them, says the Lord God: they shall bear the consequences of their sin. <sup>13</sup> They shall no longer draw near me to serve as my priests, nor shall they touch any of my sacred things, or the most sacred things. Thus they shall bear their disgrace because of all their abominable deeds. <sup>14</sup> But I will set them to the service of the temple, for all its work and for everything that is to be done in it.

Priests. <sup>15</sup> As for the levitical priests, however, the Zadokites who cared for my sanctuary when the Israelites strayed from me, they shall draw near me to minister to me, and they shall stand before me to offer me fat and blood, says the Lord God. <sup>16</sup> It is they who shall enter my sanctuary, they who shall approach my table to minister to me, and they who shall carry out my service. <sup>17</sup> Whenever they enter the gates of the inner court, they shall wear linen garments; they shall not put on anything woolen when they minister at the gates of the inner court or within the † 44, 3: The prince stands at the eastern gate of the inner court while his sacrifice is offered up (46, 2); he then goes to the vestibule of the outer court, there to partake of his sacrificial meal. The closed outer gate on the eastern side signifies that the Lord has entered the temple permanently, not to depart again.

44, 7f: In the preexilic temple various menial services had been performed by foreigners; cf Job 9, 22-27. In the new temple the Levites will perform these services (vv 10-14).

44, 10-14: Levites other than the Zadokite priesthood of Jerusalem had performed priestly functions at the various sanctuaries and high places in Israel and Judah, where the worship of the Lord had often been corrupted with pagan elements. The demolition of the Levites to menial service in the temple was enforced in the actual restoration after the exile, and explains why relatively few Levites were willing to return; cf Ezr 8, 15ff.

temple. <sup>18</sup>* They shall have linen turbans on their heads and linen drawers on their loins; they shall not gird themselves with anything that causes sweat. <sup>19</sup>*† When they are to go out to the people in the outer court, they shall take off the garments in which they ministered and leave them in the chambers of the sanctuary, putting on other garments; thus they will not transmit holiness to the people with their garments.

<sup>20</sup>* They shall not shave their heads nor let their hair hang loose, but they shall keep their hair carefully trimmed. <sup>21</sup>* No priest shall drink wine when he is to enter the inner court. <sup>22</sup>* They shall not take for their wives either widows or divorced women, but only virgins of the race of Israel; however, they may marry women who are the widows of priests. <sup>23</sup> They shall teach my people to distinguish between the sacred and the profane, and make known to them the difference between the clean and the unclean. <sup>24</sup>* In capital cases they shall stand as judges, judging them according to my decrees. They shall observe my laws and statutes on all my festivals, and keep my sabbaths holy.

<sup>25</sup>* They shall not make themselves unclean by coming near any dead person, unless it be their father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or maiden sister; for these they may make themselves unclean. <sup>26</sup> After a priest has been cleansed, he must wait an additional seven days, <sup>27</sup> and on the day he enters the inner court to minister in the sanctuary, he shall present his sin offering, says the Lord God. <sup>28</sup>* They shall have no inheritance, for I am their inheritance; you shall give them no property in Israel, for I am their property. <sup>29</sup>*† They shall eat the cereal offering, the sin offering, and the guilt offering; whatever is under the ban in Israel shall be theirs. <sup>30</sup>* All the choicest first fruits of every kind, and all the best of your offerings of every kind, shall belong to the priests; likewise the best of your dough you shall give to the priests to bring a blessing down upon your house. <sup>31</sup>* The priests shall not eat anything, whether flesh or fowl, that has died of itself or has been killed by wild beasts.

CHAPTER 45

The Sacred Tract. <sup>1</sup> When you apportion the land into inheritances, you shall set apart a sacred tract of land for the LORD, twenty-five thousand cubits long and twenty thousand wide; its whole area shall be sacred. <sup>2</sup> Of this land a square plot, five hundred by five hundred cubits, surrounded by a free space of fifty cubits, shall be assigned to the sanctuary. <sup>3</sup> Also from this sector measure off a strip, twenty-five thousand cubits long and ten thousand wide, within which shall be the sanctuary, the holy of holies. <sup>4</sup> This shall be the sacred part of the land belonging to the priests, the ministers of the sanctuary, who draw near to minister to the LORD; it shall be a place for their homes and pasture land for their cattle. <sup>5</sup> Also there shall be a strip twenty-five thousand cubits long and ten thousand wide as property for the Levites, the ministers of the temple, that they may have cities to live in. <sup>6</sup> As property of the City you shall designate a strip five thousand cubits wide and twenty-five thousand long, parallel to the sacred tract; this shall belong to the whole house of Israel. <sup>7</sup> The prince shall have a section bordering on both sides of the combined sacred tract and City property, extending westward on the western side and eastward on the eastern side, corresponding in length to one of the tribal portions from the western boundary to the eastern boundary <sup>8</sup> of the land. This shall be his property in Israel, so that the princes of Israel will no longer oppress my people, but will leave the land to the house of Israel according to their tribes.

Weights and Measures. <sup>9</sup>† Thus says the Lord God: Enough, you princes of Israel! Put away violence and oppression, and do what is right and just! Stop evicting my people! says the Lord God. <sup>10</sup>* You shall have honest scales, an honest ephah, and an honest liquid measure. <sup>11</sup> The ephah and the liquid measure shall be of the same size: the liquid measure equal to a tenth of a homer, and the ephah equal to a tenth of a ho-

44, 18: Ex 28, 40, 42;	29: Lv 2, 3; 10; 6.
29, 9; 38, 28;	9:22; 7, 9; 10.
Lv 6, 3.	12; Nm 18, 9;
19: 42, 13, 14.	18, 14.
20: Lv 21, 5.	30: Ex 34, 26; Dt 18,
21: Lv 10, 9.	4.
22: Lv 21, 7, 14.	31: Lv 22, 8.
24: Dt 17, 9; 19, 17.	45, 10: Lv 19, 35; Dt 25,
25: Lv 21, 1ff. 11.	13-16; Hos 12,
28: Nm 18, 20; Dt	8; Am 8, 5; Mi 6,
18, 1.	10f.

† 44, 19: Thus they will not transmit holiness to the people holiness was thought of as something physical, as though it were communicable, and therefore not to be brought in contact with unconsecrated persons.

44, 29: Under the ban: dedicated to the Lord, withdrawn from profane use.

45, 9-12: Besides the land monopoly fostered by royal greed and collusion with the wealthy (Mi 2, 2; Is 3, 12-15, 5, 8-10), one grave social evil of preexilic Israel was dishonesty in business; cf Hos 12, 8; Am 8, 5. Ephah: a dry measure; liquid measure: in Hebrew, a "bath," standardized according to the homer (a dry measure of about 10 bushels, or 80 gallons). In v 12 reference is made to the change in value of the mina: before the exile it was valued at 50 shekels, but afterward, in imitation of Babylonian practice, the 60-shekel mina was adopted. The shekel was a unit of weight slightly less than half an ounce. As a monetary unit, the value obviously differed greatly, depending on whether it was a gold or a silver shekel.

mer; by the homer they shall be determined. <sup>12*</sup> The shekel shall be twenty gerahs. Twenty shekels, twenty-five shekels, plus fifteen shekels shall be your mina.

Offerings. <sup>13</sup> These are the offerings you shall make: one sixth of an ephah from each homer of wheat, and one sixth of an ephah from each homer of barley. <sup>14†</sup> The regulation for oil: for every measure of oil, a tenth of a measure, computed by the kor of ten liquid measures [or a homer, for ten liquid measures make a homer]. <sup>15</sup> One sheep from the flock for every two hundred from the pasturage of Israel, for sacrifice—holocausts and peace offerings and atonement sacrifices, says the Lord God. <sup>16</sup> All the people of the land shall be bound to this offering [for the prince in Israel]. <sup>17</sup> It shall be the duty of the prince to provide the holocausts, cereal offerings, and libations on the feasts, new moons, and sabbaths, on all the festivals of the house of Israel. He shall offer the sin offerings, cereal offerings, holocausts, and peace offerings, to make atonement on behalf of the house of Israel.

The Passover. <sup>18</sup> Thus says the Lord God: On the first day of the first month you shall use an unblemished young bull as a sacrifice to purify the sanctuary. <sup>19</sup> Then the priest shall take some of the blood from the sin offering and put it on the doorposts of the temple, on the four corners of the ledge of the altar, and on the doorposts of the gates of the inner court. <sup>20</sup> You shall repeat this on the first day of the seventh month for those who have sinned through inadvertence or ignorance; thus you shall make atonement for the temple. <sup>21*</sup> On the fourteenth day of the first month you shall observe the feast of the Passover; for seven days unleavened bread is to be eaten. <sup>22</sup> On that day the prince shall offer on his own behalf, and on behalf of all the people of the land, a bull as a sin offering. <sup>23</sup> On each of the seven days of the feast he shall offer as a holocaust to the LORD seven bulls and seven rams without blemish, and as a sin offering he shall offer one male goat each day. <sup>24†</sup> As a cereal offering he shall offer one ephah for each bull and one ephah for each ram; and he shall offer one hin of oil for each ephah.

The Feast of Booths. <sup>25</sup> On the fifteenth day of the seventh month, the feast day, and for seven days, he shall perform the same rites, making the same sin offerings, the same holocausts, the same cereal offerings and offerings of oil.

CHAPTER 46

Sabbaths. <sup>1</sup> Thus says the Lord God: The gate toward the east of the inner court shall remain closed throughout the six working days, but on the sabbath and on the day of the new moon it shall be open. <sup>2</sup> The prince shall enter from outside by way of the vestibule of the gate and remain standing at the doorpost of the gate; then while the priests offer his holocausts and peace offerings, he shall worship at the threshold of the gate and then leave; the gate shall not be closed until evening. <sup>3</sup> The people of the land shall worship before the LORD at the door of this gate on the sabbaths and new moons. <sup>4*</sup> The holocausts which the prince presents to the LORD on the sabbath shall consist of six unblemished lambs and an unblemished ram, <sup>5</sup> together with a cereal offering of one ephah for the ram, whatever he pleases for the lambs, and a hin of oil for each ephah. <sup>6*</sup> On the day of the new moon he shall provide an unblemished young bull, also six lambs and a ram without blemish, <sup>7</sup> with a cereal offering of one ephah for the bull and one for the ram, for the lambs as much as he has at hand, and for each ephah a hin of oil.

Ritual Laws. <sup>8</sup> The prince shall always enter and depart by the vestibule of the gate. <sup>9*</sup> When the people of the land enter the presence of the LORD to worship on the festivals, if they enter by the north gate they shall leave by the south gate, and if they enter by the south gate they shall leave by the north gate; no one shall return by the gate through which he has entered, but he shall leave by the opposite gate. <sup>10</sup> The prince shall be in their midst when they enter, and he shall also leave with them. <sup>11</sup> On the feasts and festivals the cereal offering shall be an ephah for a bull, an ephah for a ram, but for the lambs as much as one pleases, and a hin of oil with each ephah. <sup>12</sup> When the prince makes a freewill offering to the LORD, whether holocausts or peace offerings, the eastern gate shall be opened for him, and he shall offer his holocausts or his peace offerings as on the sabbath; then he shall leave, and the gate shall be closed after his departure. <sup>13*</sup> He shall offer as a daily holocaust to the LORD an unblemished yearling lamb; this he shall offer every morning. <sup>14</sup> With it every morning he shall provide as a cereal offering one sixth of an ephah, with a third of a hin of oil to moisten

12: Ex 30, 13; Lv 27,

25; Nm 3, 47;

18, 16.

21: Ex 12, 6; Lv 23,

5; Nm 28, 16.

46, 4; Nm 28, 9f.

6: Nm 28, 11-15.

9: Ex 23, 17; 34,

23; Dt 16, 16.

13: Ex 29, 38-42;

Nm 28, 3-8.

†

45, 14: Kor: both a liquid and a dry measure, corresponding to the homer.

45, 24: Hir: a sixth part of the liquid measure called a bath.

the fine flour. This cereal offering to the LORD is mandatory with the established holocaust. <sup>15*</sup> The lamb, the cereal offering, and the oil are to be offered every morning as an established holocaust.

The Prince and the Land. <sup>16</sup> Thus says the Lord God: If the prince makes a gift of part of his inheritance to any of his sons, it shall belong to his sons; that property is theirs by inheritance. <sup>17†</sup> But if he makes a gift of part of his inheritance to one of his servants, it shall belong to the latter only until the year of release, when it shall revert to the prince. Only the inheritance given to his sons is permanent. <sup>18</sup> The prince shall not seize any part of the inheritance of the people by evicting them from their property. He shall provide an inheritance for his sons from his own property, so that none of my people will be driven from their property.

The Temple Kitchens. <sup>19</sup> Then he brought me by the entrance which is on the side of the gate to the chambers [of the sanctuary, reserved to the priests] which face the north. There, at their west end, I saw a place, <sup>20</sup> concerning which he said to me, "Here the priests cook the guilt offerings and the sin offerings, and bake the cereal offerings, so that they do not have to take them into the outer court at the risk of transmitting holiness to the people." <sup>21</sup> Then he led me into the outer court and had me pass around the four corners of the court, and I saw that in each corner there was another court: <sup>22</sup> in the four corners of the court, minor courts, forty cubits long and thirty wide, all four of them the same size. <sup>23</sup> A wall of stones surrounded each of the four, and hearths were built beneath the stones all the way around. <sup>24</sup> He said to me, "These are the kitchens where the temple ministers cook the sacrifices of the people."

CHAPTER 47

The Wonderful Stream. <sup>1††</sup> Then he brought me back to the entrance of the temple, and I saw water flowing out from beneath the threshold of the temple toward the east, for the façade of the temple was toward the east; the water flowed down from the southern side of the temple, south of the altar. <sup>2</sup> He led me outside by the north gate, and around to the outer gate facing the east, where I saw water trickling from the southern side. <sup>3</sup> Then when he had walked off to the east with a measuring cord in his hand, he measured off a thousand cubits and had me wade through the water, which was ankle-deep. <sup>4</sup> He measured off another thousand and once more had me wade through the water, which was now knee-deep. Again he measured off a thousand and had me wade; the water was up to my waist. <sup>5</sup> Once more he measured off a thousand, but there was now a river through which I could not wade; for the water had risen so high it had become a river that could not be crossed except by swimming. <sup>6</sup> He asked me, "Have you seen this, son of man?" Then he brought me to the bank of the river, where he had me sit. <sup>7</sup> Along the bank of the river I saw very many trees on both sides. <sup>8</sup> He said to me, "This water flows into the eastern district down upon the Arabah, and empties into the sea, the salt waters, which it makes fresh. <sup>9</sup> Wherever the river flows, every sort of living creature that can multiply shall live, and there shall be abundant fish, for wherever this water comes the sea shall be made fresh. <sup>10†</sup> Fishermen shall be standing along it from En-gedi to En-eqlaim, spreading their nets there. Its kinds of fish shall be like those of the Great Sea, very numerous. <sup>11</sup> Only its marshes and swamps shall not be made fresh; they shall be left for salt. <sup>12</sup> Along both banks of the river, fruit trees of every kind shall grow; their leaves shall not fade, nor their fruit fail. Every month they shall bear fresh fruit, for they shall be watered by the flow from the sanctuary. Their fruit shall serve for food, and their leaves for medicine."

The New Israel

Boundaries of the Land. <sup>13†</sup> Thus says the Lord God: These are the boundaries within which you shall apportion the land among the twelve tribes of Israel [Joseph having two portions]. <sup>14</sup> All of you shall have a like portion in this land which I swore to give to your fathers, that it might fall to you as your inheritance. <sup>15*</sup> This is the boundary of the land on the north side: from the Great Sea in the direction of Hethlon, past Labo of Hamath, to Zedad, <sup>16</sup> Berothah, and Sibraim, along the frontiers of Hamath and Damascus, to Hazar-enon

15: Ex 29, 42.

47, 1: Sir 24, 28f; Jl 4,

18: Zec 13, 1;

Rv 22, 1f.

15: Nm 34, 7ff.

†

46, 17: The year of release: the jubilee year; cf Lv 25, 23-55.

47, 1-12: The wonderful and superabundant stream flowing from the temple, restoring to fertility traditionally and ground, is symbolic of the return of the conditions of primeval paradise; cf Gn 2, 10-14. Water signifies great blessings, just as dryness signifies a curse; cf 26, 5, 14.

47, 10: From En-gedi to En-eqlaim: the former was about halfway down the western shore of the Dead Sea, the latter may have been at its northern extremity.

47, 13-20: These boundaries of the restored Israel correspond to those of the Davidic kingdom at its fullest extent, the so-called "ideal boundaries" of the promised land; cf Nm 34, 3-12.

which is on the border of the Hauran. <sup>17</sup> Thus the border shall extend from the sea to Hazar-enon, with the frontier of Hamath and Damascus to the north. This is the northern boundary. <sup>18</sup> The eastern boundary: between the Hauran—toward Damascus—and Gilead on the one side, and the land of Israel on the other side, the Jordan shall form the boundary down to the eastern sea as far as Tamar. This is the eastern boundary. <sup>19</sup> The southern boundary: from Tamar to the waters of Meribath-kadesh, thence to the Wadi of Egypt, and on to the Great Sea. This is the southern boundary. <sup>20</sup> The western boundary: the Great Sea forms the boundary up to a point parallel to Labo of Hamath. This is the western boundary.

The Northern Portions. <sup>21</sup> You shall distribute this land among yourselves according to the tribes of Israel. <sup>22*</sup> You shall allot it as inheritances for yourselves and for the aliens resident in your midst who have bred children among you. The latter shall be to you like native Israelites; along with you they shall receive inheritances among the tribes of Israel. <sup>23</sup> In whatever tribe the alien may be resident, there you shall assign him his inheritance, says the Lord God.

CHAPTER 48

<sup>1</sup>*† This is the list of the tribes. Dan: at the northern extremity, adjoining Hamath, all along from the approaches to Hethlon through Labo of Hamath to Hazar-enon, on the northerly border with Damascus, with his possession reaching from the eastern to the western boundary. <sup>2</sup> Asher: on the frontier of Dan, from the eastern to the western boundary. <sup>3</sup> Naphtali: on the frontier of Asher, from the eastern to the western boundary. <sup>4</sup> Manasseh: on the frontier of Naphtali, from the eastern to the western boundary. <sup>5</sup> Ephraim: on the frontier of Manasseh, from the eastern to the western boundary. <sup>6</sup> Reuben: on the frontier of Ephraim, from the eastern to the western boundary. <sup>7</sup> Judah: on the frontier of Reuben, from the eastern to the western boundary.

The Sacred Tract. <sup>8</sup> On the frontier of Judah, from the eastern to the western boundary there shall be the tract which you shall set apart, twenty-five thousand cubits from north to south, and as wide as one of the tribal portions from the eastern to the western boundary. In the center of the tract shall be the sanctuary. <sup>9</sup> The tract that you set aside for the LORD shall be twenty-five thousand cubits across by twenty thousand north and south. <sup>10</sup> In this sacred tract the priests shall have twenty-five thousand cubits on the north, ten thousand on the west, ten thousand on the east, and twenty-five thousand on the south; and the sanctuary of the LORD shall be in its center. <sup>11</sup> The consecrated priests, the Zadokites, who fulfilled my service and did not stray along with the Israelites as the Levites did, <sup>12</sup> shall have within this tract of land their own most sacred domain, next to the territory of the Levites. <sup>13</sup> The Levites shall have a territory corresponding to that of the priests, twenty-five thousand cubits by ten thousand. The whole tract shall be twenty-five thousand cubits across and twenty thousand north and south. <sup>14</sup> They may not sell or exchange or alienate this, the best part of the land, for it is sacred to the LORD. <sup>15</sup> The remaining five thousand cubits along the twenty-five-thousand-cubit line are profane land, assigned to the City for dwellings and pasture; the City shall be at their center. <sup>16</sup> These are the dimensions of the City: the north side, forty-five hundred cubits; the south side, forty-five hundred cubits; the east side, forty-five hundred cubits; and the west side, forty-five hundred cubits. <sup>17</sup> The pasture lands of the City shall extend north two hundred and fifty cubits, south two hundred and fifty cubits, east two hundred and fifty cubits, and west two hundred and fifty cubits. <sup>18</sup> There shall remain an area along the sacred tract, ten thousand cubits to the east and ten thousand to the west, whose produce shall provide food for the workers of the City. <sup>19</sup> The workers in the City shall be taken from all the tribes of Israel. <sup>20</sup> The entire tract shall be twenty-five thousand by twenty-five thousand cubits; as a perfect square you shall set apart the sacred tract together with the City property.

<sup>21</sup> The remainder shall belong to the prince: the land on both sides of the sacred tract and the City property, extending along the twenty-five-thousand-cubit line eastward to the eastern boundary, and westward along the twenty-five-thousand-cubit line to the western boundary, a territory parallel with the tribal portions for the prince. The sacred tract and the sanctuary of the temple shall be in the middle. <sup>22</sup> Thus, except for the property of the Levites and the City property, which lie in the midst of the prince's property, the territory between the portions of Judah and of Benjamin shall belong to the prince.

* 22: Ex 12, 48; Lv 19, 9, 14; Jos 8, 33.
34; 24, 22; Nm 48, 1: 47, 15ff.

† 48, 1-29: This distribution of the land among the tribes does not correspond to the geographical realities of Palestine. It is a description of the ideal order, like that in 47, 1-12.

The Southern Portions. <sup>23</sup> These are the remaining tribes. Benjamin: from the eastern to the western boundary. <sup>24</sup> Simeon: on the frontier of Benjamin, from the eastern to the western boundary. <sup>25</sup> Issachar: on the frontier of Simeon, from the eastern to the western boundary. <sup>26</sup> Zebulun: on the frontier of Issachar, from the eastern to the western boundary. <sup>27</sup> Gad: on the frontier of Zebulun, from the eastern to the western boundary. <sup>28</sup> Along the frontier of Gad shall be the southern boundary, which shall extend from Tamar to the waters of Meribath-kadesh, and from there to the Wadi of Egypt, and on to the Great Sea. <sup>29</sup> Such is the land which you shall apportion as inheritances among the tribes of Israel, and these are their portions, says the Lord God.

The Gates of the City. <sup>30</sup> These are the exits of the City, the gates of which are named after the tribes of Israel. On the north side, measuring forty-five hundred cubits, <sup>31</sup> there shall be three gates: the gate of Reuben, the gate of Judah, and the gate of Levi. <sup>32</sup> On the east side, measuring forty-five hundred cubits, there shall be three gates: the gate of Joseph, the gate of Benjamin, and the gate of Dan. <sup>33</sup> On the south side, measuring forty-five hundred cubits, there shall be three gates: the gate of Simeon, the gate of Issachar, and the gate of Zebulun. <sup>34</sup> On the west side, measuring forty-five hundred cubits, there shall be three gates: the gate of Gad, the gate of Asher, and the gate of Naphtali. <sup>35</sup> The perimeter of the City is eighteen thousand cubits. The name of the City shall henceforth be "The LORD is here."

The Book of DANIEL

This Book takes its name, not from the author, who is actually unknown, but from its hero, a young Jew taken early to Babylon, where he lived at least until 538 B.C. Strictly speaking, the book does not belong to the prophetic writings but rather to a distinctive type of literature known as "apocalyptic," of which it is an early specimen. Apocalyptic writing enjoyed its greatest popularity from 200 B.C. to 100 A.D., a time of distress and persecution for Jews, and later, for Christians. Though subsequent in time to the prophetic, apocalyptic literature has its roots in the teaching of the prophets, who often pointed ahead to the day of the Lord, the consummation of history. For both prophet and apocalypticist Yahweh was the Lord of history, and he would ultimately vindicate his people.

This work was composed during the bitter persecution carried on by Antiochus IV Epiphanes (167-164) and was written to strengthen and comfort the Jewish people in their ordeal.

The Book contains stories originating in and transmitted by popular traditions which tell of the trials and triumphs of the wise Daniel and his three companions. The moral is that men of faith can resist temptation and conquer adversity. The characters are not purely legendary but rest on older historical tradition. What is more important than the question of historicity, and closer to the intention of the author, is the fact that a persecuted Jew of the second century B.C. would quickly see the application of these stories to his own plight.

There follows a series of visions promising deliverance and glory to the Jews in the days to come. The great nations of the ancient world have risen in vain against Yahweh; his kingdom shall overthrow existing powers and last forever. Under this apocalyptic imagery are contained some of the best elements of prophetic teaching: the insistence on right conduct, the divine control over events, the certainty that the kingdom of God will ultimately triumph. The arrival of the kingdom is a central theme of the synoptic gospels, and Jesus, in calling himself the "Son of Man," reminds us that he fulfills the destiny of this mysterious figure in the seventh chapter of Daniel.

The added episodes of Susanna, Bel, and the Dragon, found only in the Greek version, are edifying short stories with a didactic purpose.

These three sections constitute the divisions of the Book of Daniel:

- I: Daniel and the Kings of Babylon (1, 1—6, 29)
- II: Daniel's Visions (7, 1—12, 13)
- III: Appendix (13, 1—14, 42)

---

I: DANIEL AND THE KINGS OF BABYLON

CHAPTER 1

The Food Test. <sup>1</sup>* In the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came and laid siege to Jerusalem. <sup>2</sup>*† The Lord handed over to him Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and some of the vessels of the temple of God, which he carried off to the land of Shinar, and placed in the temple treasury of his god.

<sup>3</sup>The king told Ashpenaz, his chief chamberlain, to bring in some of the Israelites of royal blood and of the nobility, <sup>4</sup>young men without any defect, handsome, intelligent and wise, quick to learn, and prudent in judgment, such as could take their place in the king's palace; they were to be taught the language and literature of the Chaldeans; <sup>5</sup>after three years' training they were to enter the king's service. The king allotted them a daily portion of food and wine from the royal table. <sup>6</sup>Among these were men of Judah: Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. <sup>7</sup>† The chief

---

1, 1: 2 Kgs 24, 1; 2
Chr 36, 6; Jer
25, 1.

2: 5, 2; Gn 10, 10;
2 Kgs 24, 2; 2
Chr 36, 7.

† 1, 2: Shinar: ancient name for Babylonia, a deliberate archaism in this text; cf Gn 10, 10; 11, 2.

1, 7: The young men are given Babylonian names as a sign of their adoption by the king.

chamberlain changed their names: Daniel to Belteshazzar, Hananiah to Shadrach, Mishael to Meshach, and Azariah to Abednego.

<sup>8</sup>† But Daniel was resolved not to defile himself with the king's food or wine; so he begged the chief chamberlain to spare him this defilement. <sup>9</sup> Though God had given Daniel the favor and sympathy of the chief chamberlain, <sup>10</sup> he nevertheless said to Daniel, "I am afraid of my lord the king; it is he who allotted you your food and drink. If he sees that you look wretched by comparison with the other young men of your age, you will endanger my life with the king."<sup>11</sup> Then Daniel said to the steward whom the chief chamberlain had put in charge of Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, <sup>12</sup> "Please test your servants for ten days. Give us vegetables to eat and water to drink. <sup>13</sup> Then see how we look in comparison with the other young men who eat from the royal table, and treat your servants according to what you see."<sup>14</sup> He acceded to this request, and tested them for ten days; <sup>15</sup> after ten days they looked healthier and better fed than any of the young men who ate from the royal table. <sup>16</sup> So the steward continued to take away the food and wine they were to receive, and gave them vegetables.

<sup>17</sup> To these four young men God gave knowledge and proficiency in all literature and science, and to Daniel the understanding of all visions and dreams. <sup>18</sup> At the end of the time the king had specified for their preparation, the chief chamberlain brought them before Nebuchadnezzar. <sup>19</sup> When the king had spoken with all of them, none was found equal to Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah; and so they entered the king's service. <sup>20</sup> In any question of wisdom or prudence which the king put to them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters in his kingdom. <sup>21</sup>† Daniel remained there until the first year of King Cyrus.

meaning."<sup>5</sup> The king answered the Chaldeans, "This is what I have decided: unless you tell me the dream and its meaning, you shall be cut to pieces and your houses destroyed. <sup>6</sup> But if you tell me the dream and its meaning, you shall receive from me gifts and presents and great honors. Now tell me the dream and its meaning."

<sup>7</sup> Again they answered, "Let the king tell his servants the dream and we will give its meaning."<sup>8</sup> But the king replied: "I know for certain that you are bargaining for time, since you know what I have decided. <sup>9</sup> If you do not tell me the dream, there can be but one decree for you. You have framed a false and deceitful interpretation to present me with till the crisis is past. Tell me the dream, therefore, that I may be sure that you can also give its correct interpretation."

<sup>10</sup> The Chaldeans answered the king: "There is not a man on earth who can do what you ask, O king; never has any king, however great and mighty, asked such a thing of any magician, enchanter, or Chaldean. <sup>11</sup> What you demand, O king, is too difficult; there is no one who can tell it to the king except the gods who do not dwell among men."<sup>12</sup> At this the king became violently angry and ordered all the wise men of Babylon to be put to death. <sup>13</sup> When the decree was issued that the wise men should be slain, Daniel and his companions were also sought out.

<sup>14</sup> Then Daniel prudently took counsel with Arioch, the captain of the king's guard, who had set out to kill the wise men of Babylon; <sup>15</sup> "O officer of the king," he asked, "what is the reason for this harsh order from the king?" When Arioch told him, <sup>16</sup> Daniel went and asked for time from the king, that he might give him the interpretation.

<sup>17</sup> Daniel went home and informed his companions Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, <sup>18</sup> that they might implore the

CHAPTER 2

21: 6, 28.

The King's Dream.† <sup>1</sup> In the second year of his reign, King Nebuchadnezzar had a dream which left his spirit no rest and robbed him of his sleep. <sup>2</sup>† So he ordered that the magicians, enchanters, sorcerers, and Chaldeans be summoned to interpret the dream for him. When they came and presented themselves to the king, <sup>3</sup> he said to them, "I had a dream which will allow my spirit no rest until I know what it means."<sup>4</sup>† The Chaldeans answered the king [Aramaic]: "O king, live forever! Tell your servants the dream and we will give its

1, 8: This defilement: the bread, meat, and wine of the Gentiles, which were unclean (Hos 9, 3; Tb 1, 12; Jdt 10, 5; 12, 1f) because they might have been offered to idols or prepared over firewood taken from a sacred grove. Only raw vegetables and water were safe from this danger (v 12).

1, 21: The first year of King Cyrus: the year of this Persian king's conquest of Babylon, 539/8 B.C.

2, 1-49: The chronology of v 1 is in conflict with that of 1, 5, 18, and in v 25 Daniel appears to be introduced to the king for the first time. It seems that the story of this chapter was originally entirely independent of chapter 1, and later retouched slightly to fit its present setting.

2, 2: Chaldeans: here probably astrologers, who were so associated with the Chaldeans in the Hebrew mind that in the later language they are sometimes simply called by the name of that people.

2, 4: Aramaic: from 2, 4 to 7, 28 the text of Daniel is in Aramaic, not Hebrew, as indicated by this gloss.

mercy of the God of heaven in regard to this mystery, so that Daniel and his companions might not perish with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.<sup>19</sup> During the night the mystery was revealed to Daniel in a vision, and he blessed the God of heaven:

- <sup>20</sup> "Blessed be the name of God forever and ever, for wisdom and power are his.
<sup>21</sup> He causes the changes of the times and seasons, makes kings and unmakes them.
He gives wisdom to the wise and knowledge to those who understand.
<sup>22*</sup> He reveals deep and hidden things and knows what is in the darkness, for the light dwells with him.
<sup>23</sup> To you, O God of my fathers,
I give thanks and praise,
because you have given me wisdom and power.
Now you have shown me what we asked of you,
you have made known to us the king's dream."

<sup>24</sup> So Daniel went to Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon, and said to him, "Do not put the wise men of Babylon to death. Bring me before the king, and I will tell him the interpretation of the dream." Arioch quickly brought Daniel to the king and said, <sup>25</sup> "I have found a man among the Judean captives who can give the interpretation to the king."
<sup>26</sup> The king asked Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, "Can you tell me the dream that I had, and its meaning?"
<sup>27</sup> In the king's presence Daniel made this reply:

"The mystery about which the king has inquired, the wise men, enchanters, magicians, and astrologers could not explain to the king.<sup>28</sup> But there is a God in heaven who reveals mysteries, and he has shown King Nebuchadnezzar what is to happen in days to come; this was the dream you saw as you lay in bed.<sup>29</sup> To you in your bed there came thoughts about what should happen in the future, and he who reveals mysteries showed you what is to be.<sup>30</sup> To me also this mystery has been revealed; not that I am wiser than any other living person, but in order that its meaning may be made known to the king, that you may understand the thoughts in your own mind.

<sup>31</sup> "In your vision, O king, you saw a statue, very large and exceedingly bright, terrifying in appearance as it stood before you.<sup>32</sup> The head of the statue was pure gold, its chest and arms were silver, its belly and thighs bronze,<sup>33†</sup> the legs iron, its feet partly iron and partly tile.<sup>34</sup> While you looked at the statue, a stone which was hewn from a mountain without a hand being put to it, struck its iron and tile feet, breaking them in pieces.<sup>35</sup> The iron, tile, bronze, silver, and gold all crumbled at once, fine as the chaff on the threshing floor in summer, and the wind blew them away without leaving a trace. But the stone that struck the statue became a great mountain and filled the whole earth.

<sup>36†</sup> "This was the dream; the interpretation we shall also give in the king's presence.<sup>37</sup> You, O king, are the king of kings; to you the God of heaven has given dominion and strength, power and glory;<sup>38</sup> men, wild beasts, and birds of the air, wherever they may dwell, he has handed over to you, making you ruler over them all; you are the head of gold.<sup>39</sup> Another kingdom shall take your place, inferior to yours, then a third kingdom, of bronze, which shall rule over the whole earth.<sup>40</sup> There shall be a fourth kingdom, strong as iron; it shall break in pieces and subdue all these others, just as iron breaks in pieces and crushes everything else.<sup>41</sup> The feet and toes you saw, partly of potter's tile and partly of iron, mean that it shall be a divided kingdom, but yet have some of the hardness of iron. As you saw the iron mixed with clay tile,<sup>42</sup> and the toes partly iron and partly tile, the kingdom shall be partly strong and partly fragile.<sup>43</sup> The iron mixed with clay tile means that they shall seal their alliances by intermarriage, but they shall not stay united, any more than iron mixes with clay.<sup>44*</sup> In the lifetime of those kings the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed or delivered up to another people; rather, it shall break in pieces all these kingdoms and put an end to them, and it shall stand forever.<sup>45</sup> That is the meaning of the stone you saw hewn from the mountain without a hand being put to it, which broke in pieces the tile, iron, bronze, silver, and gold. The great God has revealed to the king what shall be in the future; this is

2, 22: Jn 1, 9; 8, 12; 1
Cor 4, 5; 1 Jn 1,
6.

44: Mt 21, 44; Lk 20,
18.

† 2, 33: Partly tile: terra cotta tile was much in use among the Babylonians for decoration and for actual construction.
2, 36-45: The four successive kingdoms in this apocalyptic perspective are the Babylonian (gold), the Median (silver), the Persian (bronze), and the Hellenistic (iron). The last, after Alexander's death, was divided among his generals (vv 41f). The two resulting kingdoms, which most affected the Jews, were the dynasty of the Ptolemies in Egypt and that of the Seleucids in Syria, who tried in vain, by war and through intermarriage, to restore the unity of Alexander's empire (v 43). The stone hewn from the mountain is the messianic kingdom awaited by the Jews (vv 44f). Our Lord made this image personal to himself; cf Lk 20, 17f.

exactly what you dreamed, and its meaning is sure."

<sup>46</sup> Then King Nebuchadnezzar fell down and worshiped Daniel and ordered sacrifice and incense offered to him. <sup>47</sup> To Daniel the king said, "Truly your God is the God of gods and Lord of kings and a revealer of mysteries; that is why you were able to reveal this mystery." <sup>48</sup> He advanced Daniel to a high post, gave him many generous presents, made him ruler of the whole province of Babylon and chief prefect over all the wise men of Babylon. <sup>49</sup> At Daniel's request the king made Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego administrators of the province of Babylon, while Daniel himself remained at the king's court.

CHAPTER 3

The Fiery Furnace. <sup>1†</sup> King Nebuchadnezzar had a golden statue made, sixty cubits high and six cubits wide, which he set up in the plain of Dura in the province of Babylon. <sup>2†</sup> He then ordered the satraps, prefects, and governors, the counselors, treasurers, judges, magistrates and all the officials of the provinces to be summoned to the dedication of the statue which he had set up. <sup>3</sup> The satraps, prefects, and governors, the counselors, treasurers, judges, and magistrates and all the officials of the provinces, all these came together for the dedication and stood before the statue which King Nebuchadnezzar had set up. <sup>4†</sup> A herald cried out: "Nations and peoples of every language, when you hear the sound of the trumpet, flute, lyre, harp, psaltery, bagpipe, and all the other musical instruments, <sup>5</sup> you are ordered to fall down and worship the golden statue which King Nebuchadnezzar has set up. <sup>6†</sup> Whoever does not fall down and worship shall be instantly cast into a white-hot furnace." <sup>7</sup> Therefore, as soon as they heard the sound of the trumpet, flute, lyre, harp, psaltery, bagpipe, and all the other musical instruments, the nations and peoples of every language all fell down and worshiped the golden statue which King Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

<sup>8</sup> At that point, some of the Chaldeans came and accused the Jews <sup>9</sup> to King Nebuchadnezzar: "O king, live forever! <sup>10</sup> O king, you issued a decree that everyone who heard the sound of the trumpet, flute, lyre, harp, psaltery, bagpipe, and all the other musical instruments should fall down and worship the golden statue; <sup>11</sup> whoever did not was to be cast into a white-hot furnace. <sup>12</sup> There are certain Jews whom you have made administrators of the province of Babylon: Shadrach, Meshach, Abednego; these men, O king, have paid no attention to you;

they will not serve your god or worship the golden statue which you set up."

<sup>13</sup> Nebuchadnezzar flew into a rage and sent for Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, who were promptly brought before the king. <sup>14</sup> King Nebuchadnezzar questioned them: "Is it true, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, that you will not serve my god, or worship the golden statue that I set up? <sup>15</sup> Be ready now to fall down and worship the statue I had made, whenever you hear the sound of the trumpet, flute, lyre, harp, psaltery, bagpipe, and all the other musical instruments; otherwise, you shall be instantly cast into the white-hot furnace; and who is the God that can deliver you out of my hands?" <sup>16</sup> Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego answered King Nebuchadnezzar, "There is no need for us to defend ourselves before you in this matter. <sup>17†</sup> If our God, whom we serve, can save us from the white-hot furnace and from your hands, O king, may he save us! <sup>18</sup> But even if he will not, know, O king, that we will not serve your god or worship the golden statue which you set up."

<sup>19</sup> Nebuchadnezzar's face became livid with utter rage against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. He ordered the furnace to be heated seven times more than usual <sup>20</sup> and had some of the strongest men in his army bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego and cast them into the white-hot furnace. <sup>21</sup> They were bound and cast into the white-hot furnace with their coats, hats, shoes and other garments, <sup>22</sup> for the king's order was urgent. So huge a fire was kindled in the furnace that the flames devoured the men who threw Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego into it. <sup>23</sup> But these three fell, bound, into the midst of the white-hot furnace.

<sup>24†</sup> They walked about in the flames, singing to God and blessing the Lord. <sup>25</sup> In the fire Azariah stood up and prayed aloud:

<sup>26</sup> "Blessed are you, and praiseworthy, O Lord, the God of our fathers, and glorious forever is your name.

†

3, 1: Dura: several places in Babylonia bore this name. Probably the present reference is to one a few miles south of Babylon. Colossi of the type mentioned here were not uncommon in antiquity; a cubit was seventeen and a half inches.

3, 2: Satraps: the Persian major governors.

3, 4: Psaltery: a harplike instrument.

3, 6: Death by fire was not unknown as a punishment in Babylonia; cf Jer 29, 22.

3, 17: If our God . . . can save us: the youths do not question the efficacy of the divine power, but whether it will be exercised (v 18).

3, 24-30: These verses are inspired additions to the Aramaic text of Daniel, translated from the Greek form of the book. They were originally composed in Hebrew or Aramaic, which has not been preserved. The Church has always regarded them as part of the canonical Scriptures.

- 27 For you are just in all you have done;
all your deeds are faultless, all your ways right,
and all your judgments proper.
- 28 You have executed proper judgments in all that you have brought upon us and upon Jerusalem, the holy city
of our fathers.
By a proper judgment you have done all this
because of our sins;
- 29 For we have sinned and transgressed
by departing from you,
and we have done every kind of evil.
- 30 Your commandments we have not heeded or observed,
nor have we done as you ordered us for our good.
- 31 Therefore all you have brought upon
us,
all you have done to us,
you have done by a proper judgment.
- 32 You have handed us over to our enemies,
lawless and hateful rebels;
to an unjust king, the worst in all
the world.
- 33 Now we cannot open our mouths;
we, your servants, who revere
you,
have become a shame and a reproach.
- 34 For your name's sake, do not deliver us up forever,
or make void your covenant.
- 35 Do not take away your mercy from
us,
for the sake of Abraham, your beloved, Isaac your servant, and Israel your holy one,
- 36 To whom you promised to multiply their offspring
like the stars of heaven,
or the sand on the shore of the sea.
- 37 For we are reduced, O Lord, beyond any other nation,
brought low everywhere in the world this day
because of our sins.
- 38 We have in our day no prince,
prophet, or leader,
no holocaust, sacrifice, oblation,
or incense,
no place to offer first fruits, to find favor with you.
- 39 But with contrite heart and humble
spirit
let us be received;
- 40 As though it were holocausts of rams and bullocks,
or thousands of fat lambs,
So let our sacrifice be in your presence today
- as we follow you unreservedly;
for those who trust in you cannot be put to shame.
- 41 And now we follow you with our whole heart,
we fear you and we pray to you.
- 42 Do not let us be put to shame, but deal with us in your kindness and great mercy.
- 43 Deliver us by your wonders, and bring glory to your name, O
Lord:
- 44 Let all those be routed who inflict evils on your servants;
Let them be shamed and powerless,
and their strength broken;
- 45 Let them know that you alone are
the Lord God,
glorious over the whole world."
- 46 Now the king's men who had thrown them in continued to stoke the furnace with brimstone, pitch, tow, and faggots.
- 47 The flames rose forty-nine cubits above the furnace, 48 and spread out, burning the Chaldeans nearby. 49 But the angel of the Lord went down into the furnace with Azariah and his companions, drove the fiery flames out of the furnace, 50 and made the inside of the furnace as though a dew-laden breeze were blowing through it. The fire in no way touched them or caused them pain or harm.
- 51 Then these three in the furnace with one voice sang, glorifying and blessing
God:
- 52 "Blessed are you, O Lord, the God
of our fathers,
praiseworthy and exalted above
all forever;
And blessed is your holy and glorious
name,
praiseworthy and exalted above
all for all ages.
- 53 Blessed are you in the temple of your holy glory,
praiseworthy and glorious above
all forever.
- 54 Blessed are you on the throne of your kingdom,
praiseworthy and exalted above
all forever.
- 55 Blessed are you who look into the depths
from your throne upon the cheru-bim,
praiseworthy and exalted above
all forever.
- 56 Blessed are you in the firmament of heaven,
praiseworthy and glorious forever.
- 57 Bless the Lord, all you works of the Lord,
praise and exalt him above all forever.
- 58 Angels of the Lord, bless the Lord,
praise and exalt him above all forever.

59* You heavens, bless the Lord, praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

60 All you waters above the heavens,
bless the Lord,
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

61 All you hosts of the Lord, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

62 Sun and moon, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

63 Stars of heaven, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

64 Every shower and dew, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

65 All you winds, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

66 Fire and heat, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

67 [Cold and chill, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.]

68 Dew and rain, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.]

69 Frost and chill, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

70 Ice and snow, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

71 Nights and days, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

72 Light and darkness, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

73 Lightnings and clouds, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

74 Let the earth bless the Lord,
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

75 Mountains and hills, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

76 Everything growing from the earth,
bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

77 You springs, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

78 Seas and rivers, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

79 You dolphins and all water creatures, bless the Lord,
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

80 All you birds of the air, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

81 All you beasts, wild and tame, bless
the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

82 You sons of men, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

83 O Israel, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

84 Priests of the Lord, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

85 Servants of the Lord, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

86 Spirits and souls of the just, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

87 Holy men of humble heart, bless the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

88 Hananiah, Azariah, Mishael, bless
the Lord;
praise and exalt him above all for-
ever.

For he has delivered us from the
nether world,
and saved us from the power of death;
He has freed us from the raging flame
and delivered us from the fire.

89 Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good,
for his mercy endures forever.

90 Bless the God of gods, all you who fear the Lord;
praise him and give him thanks, because his mercy endures for-
ever."

Hearing them sing, and astonished at seeing them alive, <sup>91</sup> King Nebuchadnezzar rose in haste and asked his nobles, "Did we not cast three men bound into the fire?" "Assuredly, O king," they answered. <sup>92</sup> "But," he replied, "I see four men unfettered and unhurt, walking in the fire, and the fourth looks like a son of God." <sup>93</sup> Then Nebuchadnezzar came to the opening of the white-hot furnace and called to Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego: "Servants of the most high God, come out." Thereupon Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego came out of the fire. <sup>94</sup> When the satraps, prefects, governors, and nobles of the king

3, 59f: Ps 148, 4.

f 3, 92: A son of God: an angel; cf Jb 1, 6.

came together, they saw that the fire had had no power over the bodies of these men; not a hair of their heads had been singed, nor were their garments altered; there was not even a smell of fire about them. <sup>95</sup> Nebuchadnezzar exclaimed, "Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, who sent his angel to deliver the servants that trusted in him; they disobeyed the royal command and yielded their bodies rather than serve or worship any god except their own God. <sup>96</sup> Therefore I decree for nations and peoples of every language that whoever blasphemes the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego shall be cut to pieces and his house destroyed. For there is no other God who can rescue like this." <sup>97</sup> Then the king promoted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in the province of Babylon.

Vision of the Great Tree. <sup>98</sup> King Nebuchadnezzar to the nations and peoples of every language, wherever they dwell on earth: abundant peace! <sup>99</sup>† It has seemed good to me to publish the signs and wonders which the most high God has accomplished in my regard.

<sup>100</sup>* How great are his signs, how mighty his wonders;
his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom,
and his dominion endures through all generations.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> I, Nebuchadnezzar, was at home in my palace, content and prosperous. <sup>2</sup> I had a terrifying dream as I lay in bed, and the images and the visions of my mind frightened me. <sup>3</sup> So I issued a decree that all the wise men of Babylon should be brought before me to give the interpretation of the dream. <sup>4</sup> When the magicians, enchanters, Chaldeans, and astrologers had come in, I related the dream before them; but none of them could tell me its meaning. <sup>5</sup>*† Finally there came before me Daniel, whose name is Belteshazzar after the name of my god, and in whom is the spirit of the holy God. I repeated the dream to him: <sup>6</sup> "Belteshazzar, chief of the magicians, I know that the spirit of the holy God is in you and no mystery is too difficult for you; tell me the meaning of the visions that I saw in my dream.

<sup>7</sup> "These were the visions I saw while in bed: I saw a tree of great height at the center of the world. <sup>8</sup> It was large and strong, with its top touching the heavens, and it could be seen to the ends of the earth. <sup>9</sup> Its leaves were beautiful and its fruit abundant, providing food for all. Under it the wild beasts found shade, in its branches the birds of the air nested; all men ate of it. <sup>10</sup>† In the vision I saw while in bed, a holy sentinel came down from heaven, <sup>11</sup>† and cried out:

- "Cut down the tree and lop off its branches, strip off its leaves and scatter its fruit;
let the beasts flee its shade, and the birds its branches.
<sup>12</sup> But leave in the earth its stump and roots, fettered with iron and bronze, in the grass of the field.
Let him be bathed with the dew of heaven;
his lot be to eat, among beasts, the grass of the earth.
<sup>13</sup> Let his mind be changed from the human;
let him be given the sense of a beast,
till seven years pass over him.
<sup>14</sup>* By decree of the sentinels is this decided,
by order of the holy ones, this sentence;
That all who live may know that the Most High rules over the kingdom of men:
He can give it to whom he will,
or set over it the lowliest of men."

<sup>15</sup> "This is the dream that I, King Nebuchadnezzar, had. Now, Belteshazzar, tell me its meaning. Although none of the wise men in my kingdom can tell me the meaning, you can, because the spirit of the holy God is in you."

<sup>16</sup> Then Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, was appalled for a while, terrified by his thoughts. "Belteshazzar," the king said to him, "let not the dream or its meaning terrify you." <sup>17</sup>† "My lord," Belteshazzar replied, "this dream

100: 4, 31; 7, 14.
4, 5: Gn 41, 38.

14: 1 Sm 2, 8; 16,
11; Is 62, 6.

† 3, 98—4, 34: This section has the form of a letter written by Nebuchadnezzar to his subjects.

3, 99: The most high God: the Jews, especially in the diaspora, used this title to distinguish their God from those of the pagans. On the lips of a polytheist (so also in v 93) it was merely the title of another god. It was an ancient divine name used in Canaan; cf Gn 14, 18.

4, 5: After the name of my god: Belteshazzar, the Babylonian name given to Daniel at the king's orders (1, 7), is Balatsu-ussur, "protect his life." In the king's intention, this would be an abbreviation for Bel-balatsu-ussur. It would thus include an appeal to the god Bel, originally the name of the city god of Nippur, and later identified with Marduk, the chief god of Babylon. Daniel's use of the name would refer the prayer rather to the true God.

4, 10: A holy sentinel: an angel. This term is found in the Bible only in this chapter of Daniel, but it is common in later Jewish literature.

4, 11ff: As the tree is Nebuchadnezzar (v 19), the description passes from metaphor to the reality.

4, 17: "This dream . . . for your foes": Daniel speaks as a courtier.

should be for your enemies, and its meaning for your foes. The large, strong tree that you saw, with its top touching the heavens, that could be seen by the whole earth,<sup>18</sup> which had beautiful foliage and abundant fruit, providing food for all, under which the wild beasts lived, and in whose branches the birds of the air dwelt—<sup>19</sup> you are that tree, O king, large and strong! Your majesty has become so great as to touch the heavens, and your rule extends over the whole earth.<sup>20</sup> As for the king's vision of a holy sentinel that came down from heaven and proclaimed: 'Cut down the tree and destroy it, but leave in the earth its stump and roots, fettered with iron and bronze in the grass of the field; let him be bathed with the dew of heaven, and let his lot be among wild beasts till seven years pass over him'—<sup>21</sup> this is its meaning, O king; this is the sentence which the Most High has passed upon my lord king: <sup>22</sup>*† You shall be cast out from among men and dwell with wild beasts; you shall be given grass to eat like an ox and be bathed with the dew of heaven; seven years shall pass over you, until you know that the Most High rules over the kingdom of men and gives it to whom he will. <sup>23</sup> The command that the stump and roots of the tree are to be left means that your kingdom shall be preserved for you, once you have learned it is heaven that rules. <sup>24</sup>*† Therefore, O king, take my advice; atone for your sins by good deeds, and for your misdeeds by kindness to the poor; then your prosperity will be long."

<sup>25</sup> All this happened to King Nebuchadnezzar. <sup>26</sup> Twelve months later, as he was walking on the roof of the royal palace in Babylon, <sup>27</sup>† the king said, "Babylon the great! Was it not I, with my great strength, who built it as a royal residence for my splendor and majesty?" <sup>28</sup> While these words were still on the king's lips, a voice spoke from heaven, "It has been decreed for you, King Nebuchadnezzar, that your kingdom is taken from you! <sup>29</sup> You shall be cast out from among men, and shall dwell with wild beasts; you shall be given grass to eat like an ox, and seven years shall pass over you, until you learn that the Most High rules over the kingdom of men and gives it to whom he will."<sup>30</sup>† At once this was fulfilled. Nebuchadnezzar was cast out from among men, he ate grass like an ox, and his body was bathed with the dew of heaven, until his hair grew like the feathers of an eagle, and his nails like the claws of a bird.

<sup>31</sup>* When this period was over, I, Nebuchadnezzar, raised my eyes to heaven; my reason was restored to me, and I blessed the Most High, I praised and glorified him who lives forever:

His dominion is an everlasting dominion, and his kingdom endures through all generations.

<sup>32</sup> All who live on the earth are counted as nothing; he does as he pleases with the powers of heaven as well as with those who live on the earth.

There is no one who can stay his hand or say to him, "What have you done?"

<sup>33</sup> At the same time my reason returned to me, and for the glory of my kingdom, my majesty and my splendor returned to me. My nobles and lords sought me out; I was restored to my kingdom, and became much greater than before. <sup>34</sup> Therefore, I, Nebuchadnezzar, now praise and exalt and glorify the King of heaven, because all his works are right and his ways just; and those who walk in pride he is able to humble.

CHAPTER 5

The Writing on the Wall. † King Belshazzar gave a great banquet for a thousand of his lords, with whom he drank. <sup>2</sup>† Under the influence of the wine, he ordered the gold and silver vessels which Nebuchadnezzar, his father, had taken from the temple in Jerusalem, to be brought in so that the king, his lords, his wives and his entertainers might drink from them. <sup>3</sup> When the gold and silver vessels taken from the house of God in Jerusalem had been brought in, and while the king, his lords, his wives and his entertainers were drinking <sup>4</sup> wine from them, they praised their 22: 5, 21.

31: 3, 100; 7, 14.

24: Sir 3, 30; 4, 8.

†

4, 22: The description is of a form of insanity called lycanthropy, in which the patient acts like a wolf.

4, 24: A classic Scriptural text for the efficacy of good works.

4, 27: The words attributed to the king are similar to the boastings in the royal inscriptions by which the Mesopotamian kings testified to their mighty works.

4, 30ff: There is no certainty of any such thing happening to Nebuchadnezzar as is described here. Some scholars think that the Nebuchadnezzar of this chapter is actually Nabonidus, the father of Belshazzar, who was mysteriously absent from Babylon for a number of years. The biblical author's chief interest was not in the historicity of this popular tale, but in the object lesson it contained for the proud "divine" kings of the Seleucid dynasty.

5, 1: King Belshazzar: Belshazzar was actually the crown prince, but he had been given royal authority in Babylon by his father Nabonidus.

5, 2: Nebuchadnezzar, his father: several kings of Babylon intervened between Nebuchadnezzar and Belshazzar. Either the term father is used here in the broad sense of "remote predecessor," or the name Nebuchadnezzar is used for "Nabonidus."

gods of gold and silver, bronze and iron, wood and stone.

<sup>5</sup> Suddenly, opposite the lampstand, the fingers of a human hand appeared, writing on the plaster of the wall in the king's palace. When the king saw the wrist and hand that wrote, <sup>6</sup> his face blanched; his thoughts terrified him, his hip joints shook, and his knees knocked. <sup>7</sup> The king shouted for the enchanters, Chaldeans, and astrologers to be brought in. "Whoever reads this writing and tells me what it means," he said to the wise men of Babylon, "shall be clothed in purple, wear a golden collar about his neck, and be third in the government of the kingdom."<sup>8</sup> <sup>9</sup> But though all the king's wise men came in, none of them could either read the writing or tell the king what it meant. <sup>9</sup> Then King Belshazzar was greatly terrified; his face went ashen, and his lords were thrown into confusion.

<sup>10</sup> When the queen heard of the discussion between the king and his lords, she entered the banquet hall and said, "O king, live forever! Be not troubled in mind, nor look so pale!" <sup>11</sup> There is a man in your kingdom in whom is the spirit of the holy God; during the lifetime of your father he was seen to have brilliant knowledge and god-like wisdom. In fact, King Nebuchadnezzar, your father, made him chief of the magicians, enchanters, Chaldeans, and astrologers, <sup>12</sup> because of the extraordinary mind possessed by this Daniel, whom the king named Belteshazzar. He knew and understood how to interpret dreams, explain enigmas, and solve difficulties. Now therefore, summon Daniel to tell you what this means."

<sup>13</sup> Then Daniel was brought into the presence of the king. The king asked him, "Are you the Daniel, the Jewish exile, whom my father, the king, brought from Judah?" <sup>14</sup> I have heard that the spirit of God is in you, that you possess brilliant knowledge and extraordinary wisdom. <sup>15</sup> Now, the wise men and enchanters were brought in to me to read this writing and tell me its meaning, but they could not say what the words meant. <sup>16</sup> But I have heard that you can interpret dreams and solve difficulties; if you are able to read the writing and tell me what it means, you shall be clothed in purple, wear a gold collar about your neck, and be third in the government of the kingdom."

<sup>17</sup> Daniel answered the king: "You may keep your gifts, or give your presents to someone else; but the writing I will read for you, O king, and tell you what it means. <sup>18</sup> The Most High God gave your father Nebuchadnezzar a great kingdom and glorious majesty. <sup>19</sup> Because he made him so great, the nations and peoples of every language dreaded and feared him. Whomever he wished, he killed or let live; whomever he wished, he exalted or humbled. <sup>20</sup> But when his heart became proud and his spirit hardened by insolence, he was put down from his royal throne and deprived of his glory; <sup>21</sup>* he was cast out from among men and was made insensate as a beast; he lived with wild asses, and ate grass like an ox; his body was bathed with the dew of heaven, until he learned that the Most High God rules over the kingdom of men and appoints over it whom he will. <sup>22</sup> You, his son, Belshazzar, have not humbled your heart, though you knew all this; <sup>23</sup> you have rebelled against the Lord of heaven. You had the vessels of his temple brought before you, so that you and your nobles, your wives and your entertainers, might drink wine from them; and you praised the gods of silver and gold, bronze and iron, wood and stone, that neither see nor hear nor have intelligence. But the God in whose hand is your life breath and the whole course of your life, you did not glorify. <sup>24</sup> By him were the wrist and hand sent, and the writing set down.

<sup>25</sup>† "This is the writing that was inscribed: MENE, TEKEL, and PERES. These words mean: <sup>26</sup>† MENE, God has numbered your kingdom and put an end to it; <sup>27</sup> TEKEL, you have been weighed on the scales and found wanting; <sup>28</sup> PERES, your kingdom has been divided and given to the Medes and Persians."

<sup>29</sup> Then by order of Belshazzar they clothed Daniel in purple, with a gold collar about his neck, and proclaimed him third in the government of the kingdom. <sup>30</sup> The same night Belshazzar, the Chaldean king, was slain:

CHAPTER 6

1† And Darius the Mede succeeded to the kingdom at the age of sixty-two.

In the Lions' Den. <sup>2</sup> Darius decided to appoint over his entire kingdom one 5, 21: 4, 22.

† 5, 25: Mene, Tekel, and Peres: these seem to be the Aramaic names of weights and monetary values: the mina, the shekel (the sixtieth part of a mina), and the parsu (a half-mina).

5, 26ff: Daniel interprets these three terms by a play on the words: Mene, connected with the verb meaning to number; Tekel, with the verb meaning to weigh; Peres, with the verb meaning to divide. There is also a play on the last term with the word for Persians.

6, 1: Darius the Mede: unknown in profane history. The Median kingdom had already been conquered by Cyrus the Persian, and it was Cyrus who captured Babylon. Evidently the author of Daniel has deliberately adopted an apocalyptic view of history, derived from prophecy (cf Is 13, 17ff; Jer 51, 11, 26ff), according to which the Medes formed the second of four world kingdoms preceding the messianic times; see note on 2, 36-45. The character of Darius the Mede has probably been modeled on that of the Persian King Darius the Great (522-486 B.C.), the second successor of Cyrus.

hundred and twenty satraps, to safeguard his interests; <sup>3</sup> these were accountable to three supervisors, one of whom was Daniel. <sup>4</sup> Daniel outshone all the supervisors and satraps because an extraordinary spirit was in him, and the king thought of giving him authority over the entire kingdom. <sup>5</sup> Therefore the supervisors and satraps tried to find grounds for accusation against Daniel as regards the administration. But they could accuse him of no wrongdoing; because he was trustworthy, no fault of neglect or misconduct was to be found in him. <sup>6</sup> Then these men said to themselves, "We shall find no grounds for accusation against this Daniel unless by way of the law of his God." <sup>7</sup> So these supervisors and satraps went thronging to the king and said to him, "King Darius, live forever! <sup>8*</sup> All the supervisors of the kingdom, the prefects, satraps, nobles, and governors are agreed that the following prohibition ought to be put in force by royal decree: no one is to address any petition to god or man for thirty days, except to you, O king; otherwise he shall be cast into a den of lions. <sup>9†</sup> Now, O king, issue the prohibition over your signature, immutable and irrevocable under Mede and Persian law." <sup>10</sup> So King Darius signed the prohibition and made it law.

<sup>11</sup> Even after Daniel heard that this law had been signed, he continued his custom of going home to kneel in prayer and give thanks to his God in the upper chamber three times a day, with the windows open toward Jerusalem. <sup>12</sup> So these men rushed in and found Daniel praying and pleading before his God. <sup>13</sup> Then they went to remind the king about the prohibition: "Did you not decree, O king, that no one is to address a petition to god or man for thirty days, except to you, O king; otherwise he shall be cast into a den of lions?" The king answered them, "The decree is absolute, irrevocable under the Mede and Persian law." <sup>14</sup> To this they replied, "Daniel, the Jewish exile, has paid no attention to you, O king, or to the decree you issued; three times a day he offers his prayer."

<sup>15</sup> The king was deeply grieved at this news and he made up his mind to save Daniel; he worked till sunset to rescue him. <sup>16</sup> But these men insisted, "Keep in mind, O king," they said, "that under the Mede and Persian law every royal prohibition or decree is irrevocable." <sup>17†</sup> So the king ordered Daniel to be brought and cast into the lions' den. To Daniel he said, "May your God, whom you serve so constantly, save you." <sup>18</sup> To forestall any tampering, the king sealed with his own ring and the rings of the lords the stone that had been brought to block the opening of the den.

<sup>19</sup> Then the king returned to his palace

for the night; he refused to eat and he dismissed the entertainers. Since sleep was impossible for him, <sup>20</sup> the king rose very early the next morning and hastened to the lions' den. <sup>21</sup> As he drew near, he cried out to Daniel sorrowfully, "O Daniel, servant of the living God, has the God whom you serve so constantly been able to save you from the lions?" <sup>22*</sup> Daniel answered the king: "O king, live forever! <sup>23</sup> My God has sent his angel and closed the lions' mouths so that they have not hurt me. For I have been found innocent before him; neither to you have I done any harm, O king!" <sup>24</sup> This gave the king great joy. At his order Daniel was removed from the den, unhurt because he trusted in his God. <sup>25</sup> The king then ordered the men who had accused Daniel, along with their children and their wives, to be cast into the lions' den. Before they reached the bottom of the den, the lions overpowered them and crushed all their bones.

<sup>26</sup> Then King Darius wrote to the nations and peoples of every language, wherever they dwell on the earth: "All peace to you! <sup>27</sup> I decree that throughout my royal domain the God of Daniel is to be revered and feared:

"For he is the living God, enduring forever;
his kingdom shall not be destroyed,
and his dominion shall be without end.

<sup>28*</sup> He is a deliverer and savior, working signs and wonders in heaven and on earth, and he delivered Daniel from the lions' power."

<sup>29</sup> So Daniel fared well during the reign of Darius and the reign of Cyrus the Persian.

II: DANIEL'S VISIONS

CHAPTER 7

Vision of the Four Beasts. <sup>1†</sup> In the first year of King Belshazzar of Babylon,

6, 8: Est 1, 19.
22: 1 Mc 2, 60.

28: 1, 21.

†

6, 9: Immutable and irrevocable: the passages in Est 1, 19 and 8, 8 also refer to the immutability of Medo-Persian laws. The historian Diodorus Siculus indicates that such a concept existed in the time of Darius III (335-331 B.C.), the last of the Persian kings. Cf vv 13, 16.

6, 17: The lions' den: a pit too deep to be easily scaled; its opening was blocked with a stone (v 18).

7, 1-27: The significance of this vision is the same as that of Nebuchadnezzar's dream in chapter 2; see note on 2, 36-45. To the four succeeding world kingdoms, Babylonian, Median, Persian, and Greek, is opposed the messianic kingdom of the people of God. The imagery of this chapter has been used extensively in the Revelation of St. John, where it is applied to the Roman empire, the persecutor of the Church.

Daniel had a dream as he lay in bed, and was terrified by the visions of his mind. Then he wrote down the dream; the account began: 2† In the vision I saw during the night, suddenly the four winds of heaven stirred up the great sea, 3 from which emerged four immense beasts, each different from the others. 4† The first was like a lion, but with eagle's wings. While I watched, the wings were plucked; it was raised from the ground to stand on two feet like a man, and given a human mind. 5† The second was like a bear; it was raised up on one side, and among the teeth in its mouth were three tusks. It was given the order, "Up, devour much flesh." 6† After this I looked and saw another beast, like a leopard; on its back were four wings like those of a bird, and it had four heads. To this beast dominion was given. 7† After this, in the visions of the night I saw the fourth beast, different from all the others, terrifying, horrible, and of extraordinary strength; it had great iron teeth with which it devoured and crushed, and what was left it trampled with its feet. 8 I was considering the ten horns it had, when suddenly another, a little horn, sprang out of their midst, and three of the previous horns were torn away to make room for it. This horn had eyes like a man, and a mouth that spoke arrogantly. 9† As I watched,

His dominion is an everlasting dominion that shall not be taken away, his kingship shall not be destroyed.

15 I, Daniel, found my spirit anguished within its sheath of flesh, and I was terrified by the visions of my mind. 16 I approached one of those present and asked him what all this meant in truth; in answer, he made known to me the meaning of the things: 17 "These four great beasts stand for four kingdoms which shall arise on the earth. 18 But the holy ones of the Most High shall receive the kingship, to possess it forever and ever."

19 But I wished to make certain about the fourth beast, so very terrible and different from the others, devouring and crushing with its iron teeth and bronze claws, and trampling with its feet what was left; 20 about the ten horns on its head, and the other one that sprang up, before which three horns fell; about the horn with the eyes and the mouth that spoke arrogantly, which appeared greater than its fellows. 21 For, as I watched, that horn made war against the holy ones and was victorious 22 until the Ancient One arrived; judgment was pronounced in favor of the holy ones of the Most High, and the time came when the holy ones possessed the kingdom.

Thrones were set up and the Ancient One took his throne.

His clothing was snow bright,
and the hair on his head as white as wool;

His throne was flames of fire,
with wheels of burning fire.

10* A surging stream of fire flowed out from where he sat;
Thousands upon thousands were ministering to him,
and myriads upon myriads attended him.

The court was convened, and the books were opened. 11 I watched, then, from the first of the arrogant words which the horn spoke, until the beast was slain and its body thrown into the fire to be burnt up. 12 The other beasts, which also lost their dominion, were granted a prolongation of life for a time and a season. 13† As the visions during the night continued, I saw

One like a son of man coming,
on the clouds of heaven;
When he reached the Ancient One and was presented before him,

14* He received dominion, glory, and kingship; nations and peoples of every language serve him.

7, 10: Fv 5, 11. 4, 7: Lk 1, 32.
14: 3, 100; 4, 31; Mi

† 7, 2: The great sea: the primordial ocean beneath the earth, according to primitive cosmology (Gn 7, 11; 49, 25). This was thought to contain various monsters (Is 27, 1; Jb 7, 12), and in particular mythological monsters symbolizing the chaos which God had vanquished in ancient times (Jb 9, 13; 26, 13; etc.).

7, 4: The representation of the Babylonian empire as a winged lion, a common motif in Babylonian art, symbolizes the bestial power hostile to God. The two wings that were plucked represent Nebuchadnezzar and Belshazzar. On two feet like a man . . . a human mind: contrasts with what is said in 4, 13.30.

7, 5: A bear: represents the Median empire, its three tusks symbolizing its destructive nature; hence, the command: "Up, devour much flesh."

7, 6: A leopard: used to symbolize the swiftness with which Cyrus the Persian established his kingdom. Four heads: corresponding to the four Persian kings of 11, 2.

7, 7: Alexander's empire was different from all the others in that it was Western rather than Oriental in inspiration. The ten horns represent the kings of the Seleucid dynasty, the only part of the Hellenistic empire that concerned the author. The little horn is Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175-163 B.C.), the worst of the Seleucid kings, who usurped the throne.

7, 9: A vision of the heavenly throne of God (the Ancient One), who sits in judgment (symbolized by fire) over the nations. Some of the details of the vision, depicting the divine majesty and omnipotence, are to be found in Ez 1.

7, 13: One like a son of man: in contrast to the worldly kingdoms opposed to God, which appear as beasts, the glorified people of God that will form his kingdom on earth is represented in human form (v 18). Just as our Lord applied the figure of the stone hewn from the mountain to himself (2, 36-45), he also made the title "Son of Man": his most characteristic way of referring to himself, as the One in whom and through whom the salvation of God's people came to be realized.

<sup>23</sup> He answered me thus:

"The fourth beast shall be a fourth kingdom on earth, different from all the others; It shall devour the whole earth, beat it down, and crush it.

<sup>24</sup> The ten horns shall be ten kings rising out of that kingdom; another shall rise up after them, Different from those before him, who shall lay low three kings.

<sup>25</sup>† He shall speak against the Most High and oppress the holy ones of the Most High, thinking to change the feast days and the law.

They shall be handed over to him for a year, two years, and a half-year.

<sup>26</sup> But when the court is convened, and his power is taken away by final and absolute destruction,

<sup>27</sup> Then the kingship and dominion and majesty of all the kingdoms under the heavens shall be given to the holy people of the Most High, Whose kingdom shall be everlasting: all dominions shall serve and obey him."

<sup>28</sup>† The report concluded: I, Daniel, was greatly terrified by my thoughts, and my face blanched, but I kept the matter to myself.

CHAPTER 8

Vision of the Ram and He-goat.

<sup>1</sup>† After this first vision, I, Daniel, had another, in the third year of the reign of King Belshazzar. <sup>2</sup>† In my vision I saw myself in the fortress of Susa in the province of Elam; I was beside the river Ulai. <sup>3</sup> I looked up and saw standing by the river a ram with two great horns, the one larger and newer than the other. <sup>4</sup> I saw the ram butting toward the west, north, and south. No beast could withstand it or be rescued from its power; it did what it pleased and became very powerful.

<sup>5</sup> As I was reflecting, a he-goat with a prominent horn on its forehead suddenly came from the west across the whole earth without touching the ground. <sup>6</sup> It approached the two-horned ram I had seen standing by the river, and rushed toward it with savage force. <sup>7</sup> I saw it attack the ram with furious blows when they met, and break both its horns. It threw the ram, which had not the force to withstand it, to the ground, and trampled upon it; and no one could rescue it from its power.

<sup>8</sup> The he-goat became very powerful,

but at the height of its power the great horn was shattered, and in its place came up four others, facing the four winds of heaven. <sup>9</sup>† Out of one of them came a little horn which kept growing toward the south, the east, and the glorious country. <sup>10</sup>† Its power extended to the host of heaven, so that it cast down to earth some of the host and some of the stars and trampled on them. <sup>11</sup> It boasted even against the prince of the host, from whom it removed the daily sacrifice, and whose sanctuary it cast down, <sup>12</sup> as well as the host, while sin replaced the daily sacrifice. It cast truth to the ground, and was succeeding in its undertaking.

<sup>13</sup>† I heard a holy one speaking, and another said to whichever one it was that spoke, "How long shall the events of this vision last concerning the daily sacrifice, the desolating sin which is placed there, the sanctuary, and the trampled host?" <sup>14</sup> He answered him, "For two thousand three hundred evenings and mornings; then the sanctuary shall be purified."

<sup>15</sup> While I, Daniel, sought the meaning of the vision I had seen, a manlike figure stood before me, <sup>16</sup>† and on the Ulai I heard a human voice that cried out, "Gabriel, explain the vision to this man." <sup>17</sup>† When he came near where I was standing, I fell prostrate in terror. But he said to me, "Understand, son of man, that the vision refers to the end time." <sup>18</sup> As he spoke to me, I fell forward in a faint; he touched me and made me stand up. <sup>19</sup> "I will show you," he said,

†

7, 25: The reference is to the persecutions of Antiochus IV and his attempt to force the Jews to give up their customs and to adopt Hellenistic ways (1 Mc 1, 33f). A year, two years, and a half-year: an indefinite, evil period of time. As seven is the Jewish "perfect" number, half of it signifies great imperfection. Actually, this corresponds fairly accurately to the duration of Antiochus' persecution.

7, 28: This verse ends the Aramaic part of the Book of Daniel.

8, 1-27: This vision repeats the major part of the preceding one, though in a more explicit fashion. As explained in vv 20ff, the two-horned ram represents the combined kingdom of the Medes and Persians, destroyed by Alexander's Hellenistic empire originating in the west. Once again the author is interested only in the Seleucid dynasty, which emerged from the dissolution of Alexander's empire after his death in 323 B.C.

8, 2: The fortress of Susa: the royal palace of the Persian kings in the ancient territory of Elam, east of Babylonia. The river Ulai: a canal along the northern side of Susa.

8, 9: A little horn, as in chapter 7, is Antiochus IV. The glorious country: Palestine.

8, 10ff: The host of heaven: ordinarily meaning the stars, here refers to the people of God; cf 12, 3. The prince of the host: God himself, with whose holy religion Antiochus interfered (1 Mc 1, 45).

8, 13: The desolating sin: the Hebrew contains a wordplay (shomer) on the name Bael Shammem ("lord of the heavens," the Greek Zeus Olympios), referring to the statue with which Antiochus profaned the temple of Jerusalem (2 Mc 6, 2).

8, 16: The angel Gabriel is mentioned here for the first time in the Bible. There is wordplay in the preceding verse on geber—manlike figure.

8, 17: The end time: the day of the Lord, when God sits in judgment on his enemies (v 19).

"what is to happen later in the period of wrath; for at the appointed time, there will be an end.

<sup>20</sup> "The two-horned ram you saw represents the kings of the Medes and Persians. <sup>21</sup> The he-goat is the king of the Greeks, and the great horn on its forehead is the first king. <sup>22</sup> The four that rose in its place when it was broken are four kingdoms that will issue from his nation, but without his strength.

<sup>23</sup> "After their reign,
when sinners have reached their measure,
There shall arise a king, impudent and skilled in intrigue.

<sup>24</sup> He shall be strong and powerful,
bring about fearful ruin,
and succeed in his undertaking.
He shall destroy powerful peoples;

<sup>25</sup> his cunning shall be against the holy ones,
his treacherous conduct shall succeed.

He shall be proud of heart and destroy many by stealth.

But when he rises against the prince of princes,

he shall be broken without a hand being raised.

<sup>26</sup> The vision of the evenings and the mornings

is true, as spoken;

Do you, however, keep this vision undisclosed,

because the days are to be many."

<sup>27</sup> I, Daniel, was weak and ill for some days; then I arose and took care of the king's affairs. But I was appalled at the vision, which I could not understand.

CHAPTER 9

Gabriel and the Seventy Weeks. <sup>1†</sup> It was the first year that Darius, son of Ahasuerus, of the race of the Medes, reigned over the kingdom of the Chaldeans; <sup>2*†</sup> in the first year of his reign I, Daniel, tried to understand in the Scriptures the counting of the years of which the LORD spoke to the prophet Jeremiah: that for the ruins of Jerusalem seventy years must be fulfilled.

<sup>3</sup> I turned to the LORD God, pleading in earnest prayer, with fasting, sackcloth, and ashes. <sup>4*</sup> I prayed to the LORD, my God, and confessed, "Ah, Lord, great and awesome God, you who keep your merciful covenant toward those who love you and observe your commandments! <sup>5*</sup> We have sinned, been wicked and done evil; we have rebelled and departed from your commandments and your laws. <sup>6</sup> We have not obeyed your servants the prophets, who spoke in your name to our kings, our princes, our fathers, and all the people of the land. <sup>7</sup> Justice, O Lord, is on your side; we are shamed even to this day: the men of Judah, the residents of Jerusalem, and all Israel, near and far, in all the countries to which you have scattered them because of their treachery toward you. <sup>8</sup> O LORD, we are shamed, like our kings, our princes, and our fathers, for having sinned against you. <sup>9</sup> But yours, O Lord, our God, are compassion and forgiveness! Yet we rebelled against you <sup>10</sup> and paid no heed to your command, O LORD, our God, to live by the law you gave us through your servants the prophets. <sup>11*</sup> Because all Israel transgressed your law and went astray, not heeding your voice, the sworn malediction, recorded in the law of Moses, the servant of God, was poured out over us for our sins. <sup>12</sup> You carried out the threats you spoke against us and against those who governed us, by bringing upon us in Jerusalem the greatest calamity that has ever occurred under heaven. <sup>13†</sup> As it is written in the law of Moses, this calamity came full upon us. As we did not appease the LORD, our God, by turning back from our wickedness and recognizing his constancy, <sup>14</sup> so the LORD kept watch over the calamity and brought it upon us. You, O LORD, our God, are just in all that you have done, for we did not listen to your voice.

<sup>15*</sup> "Now, O Lord, our God, who led your people out of the land of Egypt with a strong hand, and made a name for yourself even to this day, we have sinned, we are guilty. <sup>16</sup> O Lord, in keeping with all your just deeds, let your anger and your wrath be turned away from your city Jerusalem, your holy mountain. On account of our sins and the crimes of our fathers, Jerusalem and your people have become the reproach of all our neighbors. <sup>17</sup> Hear, therefore, O God, the prayer and petition of your servant; and for your own sake, O Lord, let your face shine upon your desolate sanctuary. <sup>18*</sup> Give ear, O my God, and

9, 2f: Jer 25, 11, 29,

10.

4: Neh 1, 5.

5: Bar 1, 17.

11: Dt 27, 15.

15: Bar 2, 11; Ex 14,

22.

18: Jer 25, 29.

† 9, 1: Darius: see the note on 6, 1.
9, 2: Seventy years: the prophet Jeremiah (25, 11; 29, 10) prophesied a Babylonian captivity of seventy years, a round number signifying the complete passing away of the existing generation. Jeremiah's prophecy was fulfilled in the capture of Babylon by Cyrus and the subsequent return of the Jews to Palestine. However, the author of Daniel, living during the persecution of Antiochus, sees the conditions of the exile still existing; therefore, in his meditation he extends Jeremiah's number to seventy weeks of years (v 24), i.e., seven times seventy years, to characterize the Jewish victory over the Seleucids as the ultimate fulfillment of the prophecy.

9, 13: As it is written: the first time that this formula of Scriptural citation is used in the Bible. The reference (v 11) is to the sanctions of Lv 26, 14ff; Dt 28, 15ff.

listen; open your eyes and see our ruins and the city which bears your name. When we present our petition before you, we rely not on our just deeds, but on your great mercy. <sup>19</sup> O Lord, hear! O Lord, pardon! O Lord, be attentive and act without delay, for your own sake, O my God, because this city and your people bear your name!"

<sup>20</sup> I was still occupied with my prayer, confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, presenting my petition to the LORD, my God, on behalf of his holy mountain—<sup>21</sup>*† I was still occupied with this prayer, when Gabriel, the one whom I had seen before in vision, came to me in rapid flight at the time of the evening sacrifice. <sup>22</sup> He instructed me in these words: "Daniel, I have now come to give you understanding. <sup>23</sup> When you began your petition, an answer was given which I have come to announce, because you are beloved. Therefore, mark the answer and understand the vision.

<sup>24</sup>† "Seventy weeks are decreed for your people and for your holy city:
Then transgression will stop and sin will end,
guilt will be expiated,
Everlasting justice will be introduced,
vision and prophecy ratified,
and a most holy will be anointed.
<sup>25</sup>† Know and understand this:
From the utterance of the word that Jerusalem was to be rebuilt Until one who is anointed and a leader,
there shall be seven weeks.
During sixty-two weeks
it shall be rebuilt,
With streets and trenches,
in time of affliction.
<sup>26</sup>† After the sixty-two weeks an anointed shall be cut down
when he does not possess the city;
And the people of a leader who will come shall destroy the sanctuary.
Then the end shall come like a torrent;
until the end there shall be war,
the desolation that is decreed.
<sup>27</sup>*† For one week he shall make a firm compact with the many;
Half the week
he shall abolish sacrifice and oblation;
On the temple wing shall be the horrible abomination until the ruin that is decreed is poured out upon the horror."

CHAPTER 10

Vision of the Hellenistic Wars. †† In the third year of Cyrus, king of Persia, a revelation was given to Daniel, who had been named Belteshazzar. The revelation was certain: a great war; he understood it from the vision. <sup>2</sup> In those days, I, Daniel, mourned three full weeks. <sup>3</sup> I ate no savory food, I took no meat or wine, and I did not anoint myself at all until the end of the three weeks.

*† On the twenty-fourth day of the first month I was on the bank of the great river, the Tigris. <sup>5</sup>† As I looked up, I saw a man dressed in linen with a belt of fine gold around his waist. <sup>6</sup> His body was like chrysolite, his face shown like lightning, his eyes were like fiery torches, his arms and feet looked like burnished bronze, and his voice sounded like the roar of a multitude. <sup>7</sup> I alone, Daniel, saw the vision; but great fear seized the men who were with me; they fled and hid themselves, although they did not see

21: Dn 8, 16,
27: Mt 24, 15;

2 Mc 6, 2.

†

9, 21: At the time of the evening sacrifice: between three and four in the afternoon.

9, 24: Seventy weeks: i.e., of years. Just as Jeremiah's seventy years was an approximation (see note on v 2), the four hundred and ninety years here is not to be taken literally. Similarly, the distribution of the "weeks" in the following verses indicates only relative proportions of the total figure. A most holy: an expression used almost always of an object, the altar or the temple, but once (1 Chr 23, 13) of Aaron the high priest. The author sees the definitive establishment of the kingdom of God, realized in the reconsecration of the temple after Antiochus' desecration, or personified in the holy community (like the Son of Man of chapter 7). The Fathers of the Church almost unanimously understood the reference to be to Christ, the final realization of the prophecy.

9, 25: From the utterance . . . to be rebuilt: from the time of Jeremiah's prophecy. One . . . anointed and a leader: either Cyrus, who was called the anointed of the Lord to end the exile (Is 45, 1), or the high priest Joshua who presided over the rebuilding of the altar of sacrifice after the exile (Ezr 3, 2). Seven weeks: forty-nine years, an approximation of the time of the exile. During sixty-two weeks . . . rebuilt: a period of 434 years, roughly approximating the interval between the rebuilding of Jerusalem after the exile and the beginning of the Seleucid persecution.

9, 26: An anointed: doubtless the high priest Onias III, murdered in 171 B.C., from which the author dates the beginning of the persecution. Onias was in exile when he was killed. A leader: Antiochus IV.

9, 27: One week: the final phase of the period in view, the time of Antiochus' persecution; he is Antiochus himself. The many: the faithless Jews who allied themselves with the heathen; cf 1 Mc 1, 11ff. Half the week: three and a half years; see note on 7, 25. The temple was desecrated by Antiochus from 167 to 165 B.C. The temple wing: probably the main portal. The horrible abomination: see note on 8, 13. Perhaps an inscription was placed on the portal of the temple dedicating it to the Olympian Zeus. Our Lord referred to this passage in his own prediction of the destruction of Jerusalem (Mt 24, 15).

10, 1—12, 13: This final vision repeats some of the material contained in the others. It is concerned with history of the worldly kingdoms from the time of Cyrus to the defeat of the tyrant Antiochus.

10, 2: Mourned: perhaps the author intends to recall the interruption in the rebuilding of the temple, which occurred during this time (Ezr 4, 1—4).

10, 4: The first month: the month Nisan (mid-March to mid-April).

10, 5: The heavenly person of the vision is probably the angel Gabriel, as in 9, 21. Chrysolite: or topaz, a yellowish precious stone.

the vision. <sup>8</sup> So I was left alone, seeing this great vision. No strength remained in me; I turned the color of death and was powerless. <sup>9</sup> When I heard the sound of his voice, I fell face forward in a faint.

<sup>10</sup> But then a hand touched me, raising me to my hands and knees. <sup>11</sup> "Daniel, beloved," he said to me, "understand the words which I am speaking to you; stand up, for my mission now is to you." When he said this to me, I stood up trembling. <sup>12</sup> "Fear not, Daniel," he continued; "from the first day you made up your mind to acquire understanding and humble yourself before God, your prayer was heard. Because of it I started out, <sup>13</sup>† but the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood in my way for twenty-one days, until finally Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me. I left him there with the prince of the kings of Persia, <sup>14</sup> and came to make you understand what shall happen to your people in the days to come; for there is yet a vision concerning those days."

<sup>15</sup> While he was speaking thus to me, I fell forward and kept silent. <sup>16</sup> Then something like a man's hand touched my lips; I opened my mouth and said to the one facing me, "My lord, I was seized with pangs at the vision and I was powerless. <sup>17</sup> How can my lord's servant speak with you, my lord? For now no strength or even breath is left in me." <sup>18</sup> The one who looked like a man touched me again and strengthened me, saying, <sup>19</sup> "Fear not, beloved, you are safe; take courage and be strong." <sup>20</sup> When he spoke to me, I grew strong and said, "Speak, my lord, for you have strengthened me." "Do you know," he asked, "why I have come to you? Soon I must fight the prince of Persia again. When I leave, the prince of Greece will come; <sup>21</sup>* but I shall tell you what is written in the truthful book. No one supports me against all these except Michael, your prince, <sup>11,1†</sup> standing as a reinforcement and a bulwark for me. <sup>2†</sup> Now I shall tell you the truth.

CHAPTER 11

"Three kings of Persia are yet to come; and a fourth shall acquire the greatest riches of all. Strengthened by his riches, he shall rouse all the kingdom of Greece. <sup>3</sup> But a powerful king shall appear and rule with great might, doing as he pleases. <sup>4</sup> No sooner shall he appear than his kingdom shall be broken and divided in four directions under heaven; but not among his descendants or in keeping with his mighty rule, for his kingdom shall be torn to pieces and belong to others than they.

<sup>5†</sup> "The king of the south shall grow strong, but one of his princes shall grow stronger still and govern a domain

greater than his. <sup>6</sup> After some years they shall become allies: the daughter of the king of the south shall come to the king of the north in the interest of peace. But her bid for power shall fail: and her line shall not be recognized, and she shall be given up, together with those who brought her, her son and her husband. But later <sup>7</sup> a descendant of her line shall succeed to his rank, and shall come against the rampart and enter the stronghold of the king of the north, and conquer them. <sup>8</sup> Even their gods, with their molten images and their precious vessels of silver and gold, he shall carry away as booty into Egypt. For years he shall have nothing to do with the king of the north. <sup>9</sup> Then the latter shall invade the land of the king of the south, and return to his own country.

<sup>10</sup> "But his sons shall prepare and assemble a great armed host, which shall advance like a flood, then withdraw. When it returns and surges around the stronghold, <sup>11</sup> the king of the south, provoked, shall go out to fight against the king of the north, whose great host shall make a stand but shall be given into his hand <sup>12</sup> and be carried off. In the pride of his heart, he shall lay low tens of thousands, but he shall not triumph. <sup>13</sup> For the king of the north shall raise another army, greater than before; after some years he shall attack with this large army and great resources. <sup>14</sup>* In those times many shall resist the king of the south, and outlaws of your people shall rise up in fulfillment of vision, but they shall fail. <sup>15</sup> When the king of the north comes, he shall set up siegeworks and take the fortified city by storm. The power of the south shall not withstand him, and not even his picked troops shall

10, 21: Rv 12, 7.

11, 14: Is 19, 1.

†

10, 13: The prince of the kingdom of Persia: the guardian angel of Persia. The later Judaism ascribed protecting angels to various groups of human society, often as little more than personifications. Michael: the angel who is the protector of God's people (v 21).

11, 1: Standing . . . truth: these are the first two verses of chapter 11.

11, 2-4: The three kings of Persia who follow Cyrus are uncertain, since there were more than three Persian kings between Cyrus and the dissolution of the kingdom. The fourth is doubtless Xerxes I (486-465 B.C.), the great campaigner against Greece. The powerful king is Alexander the Great, who ended the Persian empire by his victory at Issus in 333 B.C.

11, 5-45: These verses describe the dynastic histories of the Ptolemies in Egypt (the king of the south) and the Seleucids in Syria (the king of the north), the two divisions of the Hellenistic empire that were of interest to the author (v 6). In vv 10-20 is described the struggle between the two kingdoms for the control of Palestine, in which the Seleucids were eventually victorious. The reference in v 20 is to Seleucus IV, who sent Heliodorus to plunder the temple treasure in Jerusalem (2 Mc 3). Finally, vv 21-45 describe the career of Antiochus IV and his persecution, in details that have been seen above.

have the strength to resist. <sup>16</sup> He shall attack him and do as he pleases, with no one to withstand him. He shall stop in the glorious land, dealing destruction. <sup>17</sup> He shall set himself to penetrate the entire strength of his kingdom. He shall conclude an agreement with him and give him a daughter in marriage in order to destroy the kingdom, but this shall not succeed in his favor. <sup>18</sup> He shall turn to the coastland and take many, but a leader shall put an end to his shameful conduct, so that he cannot renew it against him. <sup>19</sup> He shall turn to the strongholds of his own land, but shall stumble and fall, to be found no more. <sup>20</sup> In his stead one shall arise who will send a tax collector through the glorious kingdom, but he shall soon be destroyed, though not in conflict or in battle.

<sup>21</sup> "There shall rise in his place a despicable person, to whom the royal insignia shall not be given. By stealth and fraud he shall seize the kingdom. <sup>22</sup> Armed might shall be completely overwhelmed by him and crushed, and even the prince of the covenant. <sup>23</sup> After allying with him, he shall treacherously rise to power with a small party. <sup>24</sup> By stealth he shall enter prosperous provinces and do that which his fathers or grandfathers never did; he shall distribute spoil, booty, and riches among them and devise plots against their strongholds; but only for a time. <sup>25</sup> He shall call on his strength and cleverness to meet the king of the south with a great army; the king of the south shall prepare for battle with a very large and strong army, but he shall not succeed because of the plots devised against him. <sup>26</sup> Even his table companions shall seek to destroy him, his army shall be overwhelmed, and many shall fall slain. <sup>27</sup> The two kings, resolved on evil, shall sit at table together and exchange lies, but they shall have no success, because the appointed end is not yet.

<sup>28</sup> "He shall turn back toward his land with great riches, his mind set against the holy covenant; he shall arrange matters and return to his land. <sup>29</sup> At the time appointed he shall come again to the south, but this time it shall not be as before. <sup>30</sup>† When ships of the Kittim confront him, he shall lose heart and retreat. Then he shall direct his rage and energy against the holy covenant; those who forsake it he shall once more single out. <sup>31</sup> Armed forces shall move at his command and defile the sanctuary stronghold, abolishing the daily sacrifice and setting up the horrible abomination. <sup>32</sup> By his deceit he shall make some who were disloyal to the covenant apostatize; but those who remain loyal to their God shall take strong action. <sup>33</sup> The nation's wise men shall instruct the many; though for a time they will become victims of the sword, of flames, exile, and plunder. <sup>34</sup> When they fall, few people shall help them, but many shall join them out of treachery. <sup>35</sup> Of the wise men, some shall fall, so that the rest may be tested, refined, and purified, until the end time which is still appointed to come.

<sup>36</sup>† "The king shall do as he pleases, exalting himself and making himself greater than any god; he shall utter dreadful blasphemies against the God of gods. He shall prosper only till divine wrath is ready, for what is determined must take place. <sup>37</sup> He shall have no regard for the gods of his ancestors or for the one in whom women delight; for no god shall he have regard, because he shall make himself greater than all. <sup>38</sup> Instead, he shall give glory to the god of strongholds; a god unknown to his fathers he shall glorify with gold, silver, precious stones, and other treasures. <sup>39</sup> To defend the strongholds he shall station a people of a foreign god. Whoever acknowledges him he shall provide with abundant honor; he shall make them rule over the many and distribute the land as a reward.

<sup>40</sup> "At the appointed time the king of the south shall come to grips with him, but the king of the north shall overwhelm him with chariots and horsemen and a great fleet, passing through the countries like a flood. <sup>41</sup> He shall enter the glorious land and many shall fall, except Edom, Moab, and the chief part of Ammon, which shall escape from his power. <sup>42</sup> He shall extend his power over the countries, and not even the land of Egypt shall escape. <sup>43</sup> He shall control the riches of gold and silver and all the treasures of Egypt; Libya and Ethiopia shall be in his train. <sup>44</sup> When news from the east and the north terrifies him, he shall set out with great fury to slay and to doom many. <sup>45</sup> He shall pitch the tents of his royal pavilion between the sea and the glorious holy mountain, but he shall come to his end with none to help him.

CHAPTER 12

1*† "At that time there shall arise
Michael, the great prince,

12, 1: Rv 12, 7.

† 11, 30: Kittim: originally this word meant Cypriots or other island dwellers. Here it means the Romans, who forced Antiochus to withdraw from Egypt during his second campaign there.

† 11, 36-39: Instead of venerating Apollo, one of the gods of his ancestors, Antiochus venerated, and even identified himself with, Zeus Olympios, whom the Romans equated with the god of their fortress in Rome, Jupiter Capitolinus, the god of strongholds.

† 12, 1: Written in the book: the book of God's predestination.

guardian of your people;
It shall be a time unsurpassed in distress
since nations began until that time.

At that time your people shall escape, everyone who is found written in the book.

- 2*† Many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake;
some shall live forever,
others shall be an everlasting horror and disgrace.
- 3* But the wise shall shine brightly like the splendor of the firmament,
And those who lead the many to justice shall be like the stars forever.

4 "As for you, Daniel, keep secret the message and seal the book until the end time; many shall fall away and evil shall increase."

5 I, Daniel, looked and saw two others, one standing on either bank of the river. 6 One of them said to the man clothed in linen, who was upstream, "How long shall it be to the end of these appalling things?" 7*† The man clothed in linen, who was upstream, lifted his right and left hands to heaven; and I heard him swear by him who lives forever that it should be for a year, two years, a half-year; and that, when the power of the destroyer of the holy people was brought to an end, all these things should end. 8 I heard, but I did not understand; so I asked, "My lord, what follows this?" 9 "Go, Daniel," he said, "because the words are to be kept secret and sealed until the end time. 10 Many shall be refined, purified, and tested, but the wicked shall prove wicked; none of them shall have understanding, but the wise shall have it. 11 From the time that the daily sacrifice is abolished and the horrible abomination is set up, there shall be one thousand two hundred and ninety days. 12 Blessed is the man who has patience and perseveres until the one thousand three hundred and thirty-five days. 13 Go, take your rest, you shall rise for your reward at the end of days."

III. APPENDIX

CHAPTER 13

Susanna's Virtue. 1† In Babylon there lived a man named Joakim, 2 who married a very beautiful and God-fearing woman, Susanna, the daughter of Hilkiah; 3 her pious parents had trained their daughter according to the law of Moses. 4 Joakim was very rich; he had a garden near his house, and the Jews had recourse to him often because he was the most respected of them all.

5 That year, two elders of the people were appointed judges, of whom the Lord said, "Wickedness has come out of Babylon: from the elders who were to govern the people as judges." 6 These men, to whom all brought their cases, frequented the house of Joakim. 7 When the people left at noon, Susanna used to enter her husband's garden for a walk. 8 When the old men saw her enter every day for her walk, they began to lust for her. 9 They suppressed their consciences; they would not allow their eyes to look to heaven, and did not keep in mind just judgments. 10 Though both were enamored of her, they did not tell each other their trouble, 11 for they were ashamed to reveal their lustful desire to have her. 12 Day by day they watched eagerly for her. 13 One day they said to each other, "Let us be off for home, it is time for lunch." So they went out and parted; 14 but both turned back, and when they met again, they asked each other the reason. They admitted their lust, and then they agreed to look for an occasion when they could meet her alone.

15 One day, while they were waiting for the right moment, she entered the garden as usual, with two maids only. She decided to bathe, for the weather was warm. 16 Nobody else was there except the two elders, who had hidden themselves and were watching her. 17 "Bring me oil and soap," she said to the maids, "and shut the garden doors while I bathe." 18 They did as she said; they shut the garden doors and left by the side gate to fetch what she had ordered, unaware that the elders were hidden inside.

19 As soon as the maids had left, the two old men got up and hurried to her. 20 "Look," they said, "the garden doors are shut, and no one can see us; give in to our desire, and lie with us. 21 If you refuse, we will testify against you that you dismissed your maids because a young man was here with you."

2: Mt 25, 46; Jn 5, 29.

3: Wis 3, 7.
7: Rv 10, 5f.

†

12, 2: The first Israelites who have fallen (11, 33ff) shall awake, that is, rise to live forever. A resurrection of the wicked as in later, Christian teaching (Jn 5, 28f) is implied here if the others are included in the many; but cf Is 66, 24.

12, 7: A year, two years, a half-year: see note on 7, 25. The author's perspective is the end of Antiochus, and beyond, the final consummation of all things.

13, 1—14, 42: The short stories in these two chapters may have originally been about some other Daniel or Daniels than the hero of the main part of the book. They exist now only in Greek, but probably were first composed in Hebrew or Aramaic. They are excluded from the Jewish canon of Scripture, but the Church has always included them among the inspired writings.

<sup>22</sup> "I am completely trapped," Susanna groaned. "If I yield, it will be my death; if I refuse, I cannot escape your power." <sup>23</sup> Yet it is better for me to fall into your power without guilt than to sin before the Lord." <sup>24</sup> Then Susanna shrieked, and the old men also shouted at her, <sup>25</sup> as one of them ran to open the garden doors. <sup>26</sup> When the people in the house heard the cries from the garden, they rushed in by the side gate to see what had happened to her. <sup>27</sup> At the accusations by the old men, the servants felt very much ashamed, for never had any such thing been said about Susanna.

<sup>28</sup> When the people came to her husband Joakim the next day, the two wicked elders also came, fully determined to put Susanna to death. Before all the people they ordered: <sup>29</sup> "Send for Susanna, the daughter of Hilkiah, the wife of Joakim." When she was sent for, <sup>30</sup> she came with her parents, children and all her relatives. <sup>31</sup> Susanna, very delicate and beautiful, <sup>32</sup> was veiled; but those wicked men ordered her to uncover her face so as to sate themselves with her beauty. <sup>33</sup> All her relatives and the onlookers were weeping.

<sup>34</sup> In the midst of the people the two elders rose up and laid their hands on her head. <sup>35</sup> Through her tears she looked up to heaven, for she trusted in the Lord wholeheartedly. <sup>36</sup> The elders made this accusation: "As we were walking in the garden alone, this woman entered with two girls and shut the doors of the garden, dismissing the girls. <sup>37</sup> A young man, who was hidden there, came and lay with her. <sup>38</sup> When we, in a corner of the garden, saw this crime, we ran toward them. <sup>39</sup> We saw them lying together, but the man we could not hold, because he was stronger than we; he opened the doors and ran off. <sup>40</sup> Then we seized this one and asked who the young man was, <sup>41</sup> but she refused to tell us. We testify to this." The assembly believed them, since they were elders and judges of the people, and they condemned her to death.

<sup>42</sup> But Susanna cried aloud: "O eternal God, you know what is hidden and are aware of all things before they come to be: <sup>43</sup> you know that they have testified falsely against me. Here I am about to die, though I have done none of the things with which these wicked men have charged me."

<sup>44</sup> The Lord heard her prayer. <sup>45</sup> As she was being led to execution, God stirred up the holy spirit of a young boy named Daniel, <sup>46</sup> and he cried aloud: "I will have no part in the death of this woman." <sup>47</sup> All the people turned and asked him, "What is this you are saying?" <sup>48</sup> He stood in their midst and continued, "Are you such fools, O Israelites! To condemn a woman of Israel without examination and without clear evidence? <sup>49</sup> Return to court, for they have testified falsely against her."

<sup>50</sup> Then all the people returned in haste. To Daniel the elders said, "Come, sit with us and inform us, since God has given you the prestige of old age." <sup>51</sup> But he replied, "Separate these two far from one another that I may examine them."

<sup>52</sup> After they were separated one from the other, he called one of them and said: "How you have grown evil with age! Now have your past sins come to term: <sup>53</sup> passing unjust sentences, condemning the innocent, and freeing the guilty, although the Lord says, 'The innocent and the just you shall not put to death.'" <sup>54</sup> Now, then, if you were a witness, tell me under what tree you saw them together." <sup>55</sup>† "Under a mastic tree," he answered. "Your fine lie has cost you your head," said Daniel; "for the angel of God shall receive the sentence from him and split you in two." <sup>56</sup> Putting him to one side, he ordered the other one to be brought. "Offspring of Canaan, not of Judah," Daniel said to him, "beauty has seduced you, lust has subverted your conscience. <sup>57</sup>† This is how you acted with the daughters of Israel, and in their fear they yielded to you; but a daughter of Judah did not tolerate your wickedness. <sup>58</sup> Now, then, tell me under what tree you surprised them together." <sup>59</sup> "Under an oak," he said. "Your fine lie has cost you also your head," said Daniel; "for the angel of God waits with a sword to cut you in two so as to make an end of you both."

<sup>60</sup> The whole assembly cried aloud, blessing God who saves those that hope in him. <sup>61</sup>* They rose up against the two elders, for by their own words Daniel had convicted them of perjury. According to the law of Moses, they inflicted on them the penalty they had plotted to impose on their neighbor: <sup>62</sup> they put them to death. Thus was innocent blood spared that day.

<sup>63</sup> Hilkiah and his wife praised God for their daughter Susanna, as did Joakim her husband and all her relatives, because she was found innocent of any shameful deed. <sup>64</sup> And from that day onward Daniel was greatly esteemed by the people.

13, 53: Ex 23, 7.

61f: Dt 19, 18.19.

† 13, 55-59: The contrast between the mastic tree, which is small, and the majestic oak emphasizes the contradiction between the statements of the two elders. In the Greek text there is a play on words between the names of these two trees and the mortal punishment decreed by Daniel for the elders.

† 13, 57: Besides the evident moral intent of this story, it appears to have served the purpose of contrasting the northern and the southern kingdoms, Israel and Judah, in favor of the latter.

CHAPTER 14

Bel and the Dragon. <sup>1†</sup> After King Astyages was laid with his fathers, Cyrus the Persian succeeded to his kingdom. <sup>2†</sup> Daniel was the king's favorite and was held in higher esteem than any of the friends of the king. <sup>3†</sup> The Babylonians had an idol called Bel, and every day they provided for it six barrels of fine flour, forty sheep, and six measures of wine. <sup>4</sup> The king worshiped it and went every day to adore it; but Daniel adored only his God. <sup>5</sup> When the king asked him, "Why do you not adore Bel?" Daniel replied, "Because I worship not idols made with hands, but only the living God who made heaven and earth and has dominion over all mankind." <sup>6</sup> Then the king continued, "You do not think Bel is a living god? Do you not see how much he eats and drinks every day?" <sup>7</sup> Daniel began to laugh. "Do not be deceived, O king," he said; "it is only clay inside and bronze outside; it has never taken any food or drink." <sup>8</sup> Enraged, the king called his priests and said to them, "Unless you tell me who it is that consumes these provisions, you shall die. <sup>9</sup> But if you can show that Bel consumes them, Daniel shall die for blaspheming Bel." Daniel said to the king, "Let it be as you say!" <sup>10</sup> There were seventy priests of Bel, besides their wives and children.

When the king went with Daniel into the temple of Bel, <sup>11</sup> the priests of Bel said, "See, we are going to leave. Do you, O king, set out the food and prepare the wine; then shut the door and seal it with your ring. <sup>12</sup> If you do not find that Bel has eaten it all when you return in the morning, we are to die; otherwise Daniel shall die for his lies against us." <sup>13</sup> They were not perturbed, because under the table they had made a secret entrance through which they always came in to consume the food. <sup>14</sup> After they departed the king set the food before Bel, while Daniel ordered his servants to bring some ashes, which they scattered through the whole temple; the king alone was present. Then they went outside, sealed the closed door with the king's ring, and departed. <sup>15</sup> The priests entered that night as usual, with their wives and children, and they ate and drank everything.

<sup>16</sup> Early the next morning, the king came with Daniel. <sup>17</sup> "Are the seals unbroken, Daniel?" he asked. And Daniel answered, "They are unbroken, O king." <sup>18</sup> As soon as he had opened the door, the king looked at the table and cried aloud, "Great you are, O Bel; there is no trickery in you." <sup>19</sup> But Daniel laughed and kept the king from entering. "Look at the floor," he said; "whose footprints are these?" <sup>20</sup> "I see the footprints of men, women, and children!" said the king. <sup>21</sup> The angry king arrested the priests, their wives, and their children. They showed him the secret door by which they used to enter to consume what was on the table. <sup>22</sup> He put them to death, and handed Bel over to Daniel, who destroyed it and its temple.

<sup>23</sup> There was a great dragon which the Babylonians worshiped. <sup>24</sup> "Look!" said the king to Daniel, "you cannot deny that this is a living god, so adore it." <sup>25</sup> But Daniel answered, "I adore the Lord, my God, for he is the living God. <sup>26</sup> Give me permission, O king, and I will kill this dragon without sword or club." "I give you permission," the king said. <sup>27</sup> Then Daniel took some pitch, fat, and hair; these he boiled together and made into cakes. He put them into the mouth of the dragon, and when the dragon ate them, he burst asunder. "This," he said, "is what you worshiped."

<sup>28</sup> When the Babylonians heard this, they were angry and turned against the king. "The king has become a Jew," they said; "he has destroyed Bel, killed the dragon, and put the priests to death." <sup>29</sup> They went to the king and demanded: "Hand Daniel over to us, or we will kill you and your family." <sup>30</sup> When he saw himself threatened with violence, the king was forced to hand Daniel over to them. <sup>31</sup> They threw Daniel into a lions' den, where he remained six days. <sup>32</sup> In the den were seven lions, and two carcasses and two sheep had been given to them daily. But now they were given nothing, so that they would devour Daniel.

<sup>33</sup> In Judea there was a prophet, Habakkuk; he mixed some bread in a bowl with the stew he had boiled, and was going to bring it to the reapers in the field, <sup>34</sup> when an angel of the Lord told him, "Take the lunch you have to Daniel in the lions' den at Babylon." <sup>35</sup> But Habakkuk answered, "Babylon, sir, I have never seen, and I do not know the den!" <sup>36*</sup> The angel of the Lord seized him by the crown of his head and carried him by the hair; with the speed of the wind, he set him down in Babylon above the den. <sup>37</sup> "Daniel, Daniel," cried Habakkuk, "take the lunch God has sent you." <sup>38</sup> "You have remembered me, O God," said Daniel; "you have not forsaken

14, 36: Ez 8, 3.

†

14, 1: King Astyages: the last of the Median kings, defeated by Cyrus in 550 B.C. This story preserves the fiction of a successive Median and Persian rule of Babylon.

14, 2: This verse in the Septuagint Greek text reads: "There was once a priest, Daniel by name, the son of Abai, a favorite of the king of Babylon." This may represent an earlier form of the story, before it was attached to the Book of Daniel.

14, 3: Bel: see the note on 4, 5.

those who love you.”<sup>39</sup> While Daniel began to eat, the angel of the Lord at once brought Habakkuk back to his own place.

<sup>40</sup> On the seventh day the king came to mourn for Daniel. As he came to the den and looked in, there was Daniel, sitting there!<sup>41</sup> The king cried aloud, “You are great, O Lord, the God of Daniel, and there is no other besides you!”<sup>42</sup> Daniel he took out, but those who had tried to destroy him he threw into the den, and they were devoured in a moment before his eyes.

The Book of
HOSEA

Hosea belonged to the northern kingdom and began his prophetic career in the last years of Jeroboam II (786-746 B.C.). Some believe that he was a priest, others that he was a cult prophet; the prophecy, our only source of information concerning his life, gives us no certain answer in the matter. The collected oracles reveal a very sensitive, emotional man who could pass quickly from violent anger to the deepest tenderness. The prophecy pivots around his own unfortunate marriage to Gomer, a personal tragedy which profoundly influenced his teaching. In fact, his own prophetic vocation and message were immeasurably deepened by the painful experience he underwent in his married life.

Gomer, the adulteress, symbolized faithless Israel. And just as Hosea could not give up his wife forever even when she played the harlot, so Yahweh could not renounce Israel, who had been betrothed to him. God would chastise, but it would be the chastisement of the jealous lover, longing to bring back the beloved to the fresh and pure joy of their first love.

Israel's infidelity took the form of idolatry and ruthless oppression of the poor. No amount of mechanically offered sacrifices could atone for her serious sins. Chastisement alone remained; God would have to strip her of the rich ornaments bestowed by her false lovers and thus bring her back to the true lover. A humiliated Israel would again seek Yahweh. The eleventh chapter of Hosea is one of the summits of Old Testament theology; God's love for his people has never been expressed more tenderly. Hosea began the tradition of describing the relation between Yahweh and Israel in terms of marriage. This symbolism appears later on in the Old Testament; and, in the New, both St. John and St. Paul express in the same imagery the union between Christ and his Church.

The Book of Hosea is divided as follows:

- I: The Prophet's Marriage and Its Lesson (1, 1—3, 5)
II: Israel's Guilt and Punishment (4, 1—14, 10)

---

I: THE PROPHET'S MARRIAGE AND ITS LESSON†

CHAPTER 1

Marriage with an Unfaithful Wife.

<sup>1</sup> The word of the LORD that came to Hosea, the son of Beeri, in the days of Uz-ziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam, son of Joash, king of Israel. <sup>2†</sup> In the beginning of the LORD's speaking to Hosea, the LORD said to Hosea:

Go, take a harlot wife and harlot's children, for the land gives itself to harlotry, turning away from the LORD.

<sup>3</sup> So he went and took Gomer, the daughter of Diblaim; and she conceived and bore him a son. <sup>4†</sup> Then the LORD said to him:

Give him the name Jezreel, for in a little while I will punish the house of Jehu for the bloodshed at Jezreel

And bring to an end the kingdom
of the house of Israel;
<sup>5</sup> On that day I will break the bow of Israel
in the valley of Jezreel.

<sup>6†</sup> When she conceived again and bore a daughter, the LORD said to him:

---

†—3: This section is ordinarily thought to be biographical, the prophet's personal tragedy figuring as the relation of God to his people Israel. Hosea's marriage to a harlot wife represents Israel's infidelity to her Lord; hence the symbolic names of the children (1, 4-9). In 2, 4-25 the Lord protests this infidelity and decrees its consequences, but promises restoration in return for amendment; his punishments are medicinal. In chapter 3 Hosea once more takes back his wife, but only conditionally, signifying God's long-suffering love for Israel and hope for her return.

1, 2: A harlot wife: this does not necessarily mean that Gomer was a harlot when Hosea married her; the verse describes the event in its final consequences.

1, 4: Jezreel: the strategic valley in northern Israel where Jehu brought the dynasty of Omri to an end through bloodshed (2 Kgs 9-10). Jeroboam II was the last king but one of the house of Jehu; the prophecy in this verse was fulfilled by the murder of his son, who reigned only six months (2 Kgs 15, 8-10).

1, 6: Lo-ruhama: "she is not pitied." The "pity" that is here withheld from Israel is God's gratuitous love which inspires his beneficent acts.

Give her the name Lo-ruhamah;
I no longer feel pity for the house
of Israel:
rather, I abhor them utterly.

7† Yet for the house of Judah I feel pity;
I will save them by the LORD, their
God;
But I will not save them by war, by sword or bow, by horses or horsemen.

<sup>8</sup> After she weaned Lo-ruhamah, she conceived and bore a son. <sup>9†</sup> Then the LORD said:

Give him the name Lo-ammi,
for you are not my people,
and I will not be your God.

CHAPTER 2

Israel's Punishment and Restoration

4† Protest against your mother, protest!
for she is not my wife,
and I am not her husband.
Let her remove her harlotry from before her,
her adultery from between her breasts,

5† Or I will strip her naked, leaving her as on the day of her
birth;
I will make her like the desert,
reduce her to an arid land,
and slay her with thirst.

6 I will have no pity on her children, for they are the children of harlotry.

7† Yes, their mother has played the
harlot;
she that conceived them has acted shamefully.
"I will go after my lovers," she said,
"who give me my bread and my
water,
my wool and my flax, my oil and my drink."

10 Since she has not known that it was I who gave her
the grain, the wine, and the oil,
And her abundance of silver, and of gold, which they used for Baal,

11 Therefore I will take back my grain in its time,
and my wine in its season;
I will snatch away my wool and my flax,
with which she covers her naked-
ness.

12 So now I will lay bare her shame before the eyes of her lovers, and no one can deliver her out of my hand.

13 I will bring an end to all her joy, her feasts, her new moons, her sabbaths,

and all her solemnities.

14 I will lay waste her vines and fig trees,
of which she said, "These are the hire
my lovers have given me";
I will turn them into rank growth and wild beasts shall devour
them.

15† I will punish her for the days of the Baals,
for whom she burnt incense While she decked herself out with her rings and her jewels, and, in going after her lovers,
forgot me, says the LORD.

8† Therefore, I will hedge in her way with thorns
and erect a wall against her,
so that she cannot find her paths.

9 If she runs after her lovers, she shall not overtake them;
if she looks for them she shall not find them.
Then she shall say,
"I will go back to my first husband,
for it was better with me than than now."

16† So I will allure her;
I will lead her into the desert and-speak to her heart.

17 From there I will give her the vineyards she had,
and the valley of Achor as a door
of hope.
She shall respond there as in the days of her youth,

† 1, 7: The terrible punishments announced by the prophets were so fully realized that later generations made a point of recalling the same prophets' messages of consolation also, even though it meant taking these from another context. Thus, an editor placed the words of 2, 1ff after the repudiation of Israel in 1, 9; here the more natural order has been restored. The present verse is another example of the same thing. In addition, it may be the work of a later hand, dating from a time when the prophecies of Hosea were circulated in the south, after the dissolution of the northern kingdom that he had prophesied. The second part of the verse emphasizes the power of the Lord, who needs no human agents to fulfill his will. It may refer to the deliverance of Jerusalem from the siege of Sennacherib (2 Kgs 19, 35ff).

1, 9: Lo-ammi: "not my people."
2, 4: The Lord speaks of Israel, still using the example of Hosea's wife.

2, 5: I will strip her naked: contemporary documents indicate that this was a conventional punishment for adultery.

2, 7: My lovers: the local fertility deities to whom, rather than to the Lord (v 10), the unfaithful Israelites attributed the produce of the land.

2, 15: The days of the Baals: ritual observances held in various local shrines in honor of Baal.

2, 8: The crop failures, blight, etc., sent by the Lord (vv 11-14) have as their purpose to make Israel see the folly of her ways.

2, 16: Israel's journey in the desert represents for Hosea the time of Israel's fidelity, before it was corrupted by the ways of Canaan; cf Jer 2, 2-7; Am 5, 25. Thus, he pictures a restoration in terms of a new entry into the promised land.

- when she came up from the land of Egypt.
- 18† On that day, says the LORD, She shall call me "My husband," and never again "My baal."
- 19 Then will I remove from her mouth the names of the Baals, so that they shall no longer be invoked.
- 20 I will make a covenant for them on that day, with the beasts of the field, With the birds of the air, and with the things that crawl or the ground. Bow and sword and war I will destroy from the land, and I will let them take their rest in security.
- 21† I will espouse you to me forever: I will espouse you in right and in justice, in love and in mercy;
- 22 I will espouse you in fidelity, and you shall know the LORD.
- 23 On that day I will respond, says the LORD; I will respond to the heavens, and they shall respond to the earth;
- 24 The earth shall respond to the grain, and wine, and oil, and these shall respond to Jezreel.
- 25* I will sow him for myself in the land, and I will have pity on Lo-ru-hama. I will say to Lo-ammi, "You are my people," and he shall say, "My God!"
- 5*† Then the people of Israel shall turn back and seek the LORD, their God, and David, their king; They shall come trembling to the LORD and to his bounty, in the last days.
- 2:1*† The number of the Israelites shall be like the sand of the sea, which can be neither measured nor counted. Whereas they were called, "Lo-ammi," They shall be called, "Children of the living God."
- 2:2 Then the people of Judah and of Israel shall be gathered together; They shall appoint for themselves one head and come up from other lands, for great shall be the day of Jezreel.
- 2:3 Say to your brothers, "Ammi," and to your sisters, "Ruhama."

25: Rom 9, 25; 1 Pt 2, 10.

3, 5: Ez 34, 23, 2, 1; Rom 9, 26.

†

2, 18: My baal: the word means "lord, master." It was commonly used by women of their husbands, but it is to be shunned as a title for the Lord because of its association with the pagan god Baal. Probably it had been so used by many Israelites, who saw little if any difference between the worship of the Lord and the worship of Baal.

2, 21f: The Lord will once more espouse Israel; the qualities ascribed to the renewed people are the bridal gift (cf Gn 24, 53) with which he will endow it. In right and in justice: two terms dear to Hosea, used by him especially to condemn the popular social injustice and corruption of the legal processes. Here they mean right conduct in general. Love: one of the most characteristic words of Hosea's prophecy. It means a dutiful love, based on a social relation; here it refers to the covenant between God and his people. It is a love fulfilled by the performance of mutual obligations. Mercy: from the same root as the word translated pity in 1, 6; cf v. 25. And you shall know the Lord: another characteristic expression of Hosea; cf 4, 1; 5, 4; 6, 3, 6. It means not an abstract but a practical knowledge, i.e., acknowledgment of his will, obedience to his law.

3, 1-5: Hosea is instructed to take Gomer back, redeeming her from her paramours. On condition of her amendment, she will be restored to her former position of wife. This in turn signifies God's enduring love for his people. He will put the people through a period of trial—the dissolution of the kingdom—in order that they may return to him wholeheartedly.

3, 1: Raisin cakes: offerings to the fertility goddess Asherah, the female counterpart of Baal; cf Jer 7, 18; 44, 19.

3, 2: Homer: about ten bushels. Lethech: a half-homer.

3, 4: Sacred pillar: the stone massebah, originally perhaps a phallic symbol, representing Baal. These were also used, with another signification, in Israelite worship; see notes on Gn 28, 18; Ex 34, 13. Ephod: an instrument used in consulting the deity; cf 1 Sm 23, 6-12; 30, 7; see notes on Ex 28, 6, 15-30. Household idols: images regarded as the tutelary deities of the household; cf Gn 31, 19; Jgs 17, 5; 18, 14, 17f.

3, 5: David, their king: the messianic King of the Davidic line who will restore the kingdom of God's people; cf Jer 23, 5; Ez 34, 23f. The last days: the messianic age.

2, 1-3: These verses (The number . . . Ruhama) (transposed from chapter 2) continue the conditional promise of restoration made in 3, 1-5, reversing the dire predictions of chapter 1; the symbolic names now become names of honor: Jezreel, "God sows"; Ammi, "my people"; Ruhama, "she is pitied."

CHAPTER 3 Triumph of Love

- 1† Again the LORD said to me: Give your love to a woman beloved of a paramour, an adulteress; Even as the LORD loves the people of Israel, though they turn to other gods and are fond of raisin cakes.

2† So I bought her for fifteen pieces of silver and a homer and a lethech of barley. 3 Then I said to her:

"Many days you shall wait for me; you shall not play the harlot Or belong to any man; I in turn will wait for you."

- 4† For the people of Israel shall remain many days without king or prince, Without sacrifice or sacred pillar, without ephod or household idols.

II: ISRAEL'S GUILT AND PUNISHMENT

CHAPTER 4

Crimes of Israel

- 1 Hear the word of the LORD, O people of Israel, for the LORD has a grievance against the inhabitants of the land:
There is no fidelity, no mercy, no knowledge of God in the land.
- 2* False swearing, lying, murder, stealing and adultery!
in their lawlessness, bloodshed follows bloodshed.
- 3 Therefore the land mourns, and everything that dwells in it languishes:
The beasts of the field,
the birds of the air,
and even the fish of the sea perish.

Guilt of the Priests

- 4† But let no one protest, let no one complain;
with you is my grievance, O priests!
- 5 You shall stumble in the day,
and the prophets shall stumble with you at night;
I will destroy your mother.
- 6 My people perish for want of knowledge!
Since you have rejected knowledge,
I will reject you from my priesthood;
Since you have ignored the law of your God,
I will also ignore your sons.
- 7 One and all they sin against me, exchanging their glory for shame.
- 8 They feed on the sin of my people,
and are greedy for their guilt.
- 9* The priests shall fare no better than the people:
I will punish them for their ways,
and repay them for their deeds.
- 10 They shall eat but not be satisfied,
they shall play the harlot but not increase,
Because they have abandoned the LORD to practice harlotry.
- Old wine and new deprive my people of understanding.
- 12† They consult their piece of wood,
and their wand makes pronouncements for them,

For the spirit of harlotry has led them astray;
they commit harlotry, forsaking their God.

- 13 On the mountaintops they offer sacrifice and on the hills they burn incense, Beneath oak and poplar and terebinth,
because of their pleasant shade.
That is why your daughters play the harlot,
and your daughters-in-law are adulteresses.
- 14† Am I then to punish your daughters for their harlotry, your daughters-in-law for their adultery?
You yourselves consort with harlots,
and with prostitutes you offer sacrifice!
So must a people without understanding come to ruin.
- 15† Though you play the harlot, O Israel, let not Judah become guilty!
Come not to Gilgal,
nor up to Beth-aven,
to swear, "As the Lord lives!"
- 16 For Israel is as stubborn as a heifer;
will the LORD now give them broad pastures
as though they were lambs?
- 17† Ephraim is an associate of idols,
let him alone!
- 18 When their carousing is over,
they give themselves to harlotry;
in their arrogance they love shame.
- 19† The wind has bound them up in its pinions;
they shall have only shame from their altars.

4, 2: Ex 20, 13-17.

9: Is 24, 2.

†

4, 4ff: Hosea is particularly severe with the priests in the northern kingdom, who had led the way in the general apostasy from God's law. The prophets here associated with the priests (v 5) were doubtless cult prophets, who were often unworthy of their pretended calling; cf Jer 2, 8; 4, 9f; 6, 13f, 23, 9-40.

4, 12: Wood . . . wand: an idol used in divination.

4, 14: With prostitutes you offer sacrifice: the ritual prostitution practiced at the Canaanite shrine was introduced even into sanctuaries dedicated to the Lord. In companion, the adultery that had become common in Israel was a far less reprehensible crime.

4, 15: Gilgal: not the Gilgal of the south (Jos 4, 19f), but a sanctuary north of Bethel where there was an association of cult prophets (2 Kgs 2, 1ff; 4, 38). Beth-aven: literally, "house of iniquity," Hosea's nickname for Bethel, or a scribal substitute for Bethel, "house of god," in this context. Bethel was one of the royal shrines of Israel, where there was a schismatic public worship of the Lord; cf 1 Kgs 12, 26-30.

4, 17: Ephraim: the heartland of the northern kingdom. During the latter part of Hosea's prophetic career, Ephraim was all that remained of Israel after the Assyrians had overrun Transjordan and Galilee.

4, 19: The Israelites shall be carried from their country as by a whirlwind. To this their idolatry has brought them.

CHAPTER 5
Guilt of the Leaders

- 1*† Hear this, O priests,
Pay attention, O house of Israel,
O household of the king, give ear!
It is you who are called to judgment.
For you have become a snare for Mizpah,
and a net spread upon Tabor.
- 2 In their perversity they have sunk into wickedness,
and I am rejected by them all.
- 3 I know Ephraim,
and Israel is not hidden from me;
Now Ephraim has played the harlot,
Israel is defiled.
- 4 Their deeds do not allow them
to return to their God;
For the spirit of harlotry is in them,
and they do not recognize the
LORD.
- 5 The arrogance of Israel bears witness against him;
Ephraim stumbles in his guilt,
and Judah stumbles with them.
- 6 With their flocks and their herds
they shall go to seek the LORD, but they shall not find him;
he has withdrawn himself from
them.
- 7 They have been untrue to the LORD, for they have begotten illegitimate
children;
Now shall the new moon devour
them
together with their fields.

Political Upheaval†

- 8† Blow the horn in Gibeah,
the trumpet in Ramah!
Sound the alarm in Beth-aven:
"Look behind you, O Benjamin!"
- 9 Ephraim shall become a waste
on the day of chastisement:
Against the tribes of Israel
I announce what is sure to be.
- 10*† The princes of Judah have become like those that move a boundary line;
Upon them I will pour out
my wrath like water.
- 11† Is Ephraim maltreated, his rights violated?
No, he has willingly gone after fith!
- 12† I am like a moth for Ephraim, like maggots for the house of Judah.
- 13† When Ephraim saw his infirmity,
and Judah his sore,

Ephraim went to Assyria,
and Judah sent to the great king.
But he cannot heal you
nor take away your sore.

14 For I am like a lion to Ephraim, like a young lion to the house of Judah;
It is I who rend the prey and depart,
I carry it away and no one can save it from me.

Insincere Conversion

- 15† I will go back to my place until they pay for their guilt and seek my presence.

CHAPTER 6

† In their affliction, they shall look for me:

1 "Come, let us return to the LORD,
For it is he who has rent, but he will heal us;
he has struck us, but he will bind our wounds.

2*† He will revive us after two days;
on the third day he will raise us
up,
to live in his presence.

3 Let us know, let us strive to know
the LORD;
as certain as the dawn is his coming,
and his judgment shines forth like
the light of day!
He will come to us like the rain, like spring rain that waters the
earth."

5, 1: Mi 3, 1.
10: Dt 19, 14; 27, 17.

6, 2: 1 Cor 15, 4.

† Mizpah: probably the Mizpah in Transjordan is meant; cf Jos 11, 8. Tabor: the mountain that dominates the valley of Jezreel.

5, 8-14: This passage refers to the Syro-Ephraimite war of 735-734 B.C., when a coalition of Arameans and Israelites attempted to dethrone the king of Judah. Judah repulsed the attempt with the aid of Assyria, and the latter devastated both Aram and Israel; cf 2 Kgs 16, 5-9. Hosea condemns both Israel and Judah for the war.

5, 8: A vision of invasion, from Gibeah and Ramah in northern Judah, into Israel.

5, 10: Like those that move a boundary line: comparison of the invaders to a classic case of social injustice; cf Dt 19, 14; 27, 17; Prv 23, 10f.

5, 11: Gone after fith: by allying himself with Aram.

5, 12: Moth . . . maggots: internal corruption will work the Lord's punishment on both Israel and Judah.

5, 13: Ephraim went . . . the great king: in 738 B.C. the Israelite King Manahem had to pay tribute to the Assyrian king Tiglath-pileser III, whose vassal he became (2 Kgs 15, 19f). Under the threat of the Syro-Ephraimite invasion King Ahaz of Judah also submitted himself and his country to Tiglath-pileser (2 Kgs 16, 7-9). "The great king" was the title used by the Assyrian kings.

5, 15: The Lord withdraws himself from Israel, hoping for its repentance.

6, 1: In . . . me: this is the last line of ch 5.

6, 2: After two days; on the third day: after a short lapse of time.

- 4† What can I do with you, Ephraim?
What can I do with you, Judah?
Your piety is like a morning cloud, like the dew that early passes
away.
- 5 For this reason I smote them through the prophets,
I slew them by the words of my
mouth;
- 6* For it is love that I desire, not sacrifice,
and knowledge of God rather than
holocausts.
- 7 But they, in their land, violated the covenant;
there they were untrue to me.
- 8 Gilead is a city of evildoers, tracked with blood.
- 9 As brigands ambush a man,
a band of priests slay on the way to Shechem, committing monstrous crime.
- 10 In the house of Israel I have seen a horrible thing:
there harlotry is found in Ephraim,
Israel is defiled.
- 11† For you also, O Judah,
a harvest has been appointed.
- 7 They are all heated like ovens,
and consume their rulers.
All their kings have fallen;
none of them calls upon me.

Foreign Alliances

- 8† Ephraim mingles with the nations, Ephraim is a hearth cake unturned.
- 9 Strangers have sapped his strength,
but he takes no notice of it;
Of gray hairs, too, there is a sprinkling,
but he takes no notice of it.
- 10 The arrogance of Israel bears witness against him;
yet they do not return to the LORD,
their God,
nor seek him, for all that.
- 11 Ephraim is like a dove,
silly and senseless;
They call upon Egypt,
they go to Assyria.
- 12 Even as they go I will spread my net around them,
like birds in the air I will bring them down.
In an instant I will send them captive from their land.

CHAPTER 7

- 1 When I would bring about the restoration of my people,
when I would heal Israel,
The guilt of Ephraim stands out,
the wickedness of Samaria;
They practice falsehood, thieves break in, bandits plunder abroad.
- 2 Yet they do not remind themselves that I remember all their wickedness.
Even now their crimes surround
them,
present to my sight.

Failure of the Monarchy†

- 3 In their wickedness they regale the
king,
the princes too, with their deceits.
- 4 They are all kindled to wrath
like a blazing oven, Whose fire the baker desists from stirring once the dough is kneaded until it has risen.
- 5 On the day of our king,
the princes are overcome with the heat of wine.
He extends his hand among dissemblers;
- 6 the plotters approach with hearts
like ovens.
All the night their anger sleeps;
in the morning it flares like a blazing fire.

Perversity of Israel

- 13 Woe to them, they have strayed from me!
Ruin to them, they have sinned against me!
Though I wished to redeem them,
they spoke lies against me.
- 14† They have not cried to me from their hearts
when they wailed upon their beds;

6: 1 Sm 15, 22; 13: 12, 7.
Eccl 4, 17; Mt 9.

†

6, 4: Piety: the word is translated "love" in 2, 21 and in v 6 below.

6, 11: Harvest: when the land will reap the consequences of its sins.

7, 3-7: This passage refers to the dynastic upheavals of Israel's declining days. Between the death of Jeroboam II and the fall of Samana to the Assyrians, a matter of some twenty-five years, there were four separate dynasties on the throne and as many murdered kings. The prophet compares the Israelite nobles who were inflamed with passion to an overheated oven that consumes what it is supposed to bake; thus the land consumes its kings. Regale: with wine (v 3). Like fire smoldering through the night and blazing up in the morning, the sleeping anger of plotters soon breaks out in open rebellion; the succession of night and morning suggests the short reigns of the various kings of this troubled period.

7, 8: A hearth cake unturned: burnt on one side, half baked on the other, and therefore useless. Israel's decline in power is ascribed to its disastrous meddling in the power politics of the neighboring nations.

7, 14: They lacinated themselves: a common oriental practice in prayers of earnest impetration (1 Kgs 18, 28); the practice was forbidden in Israelite religion (Lv 19, 28; Dt 14, 1).

- For wheat and wine they lacerated themselves, while they rebelled against me.
- 15 Though I trained and strengthened their arms, yet they devised evil against me.
- 16 They have again become useless, like a treacherous bow.
Their princes shall fall by the sword because of the insolence of their tongues;
thus they shall be mocked in the land of Egypt.

CHAPTER 8

- 1 A trumpet to your lips,
You who watch over the house of the LORD!
Since they have violated my covenant,
and sinned against my law,
- 2 While to me they cry out,
"O, God of Israel, we know you!"
- 3 The men of Israel have thrown away what is good;
the enemy shall pursue them.
- 4† They made kings, but not by my authority;
they established princes, but without my approval.
With their silver and gold they made idols for themselves, to their own destruction.
- 5 Cast away your calf, O Samaria!
my wrath is kindled against them;
How long will they be unable to attain innocence in Israel?
- 6 The work of an artisan no god at all,
Destined for the flames—
such is the calf of Samaria!
- 7 When they sow the wind,
they shall reap the whirlwind;
The stalk of grain that forms no ear can yield no flour;
Even if it could,
strangers would swallow it.
- 8 Israel is swallowed up;
he is now among the nations
a thing of no value.
- 9 They went up to Assyria—
a wild ass off on its own—Ephraim bargained for lovers.
- 10 Even though they bargain with the nations,
I will now gather an army;
King and princes shall shortly succumb under the burden.
- 11† When Ephraim made many altars to expiate sin,
his altars became occasions of sin.
- 12 Though I write for him my many ordinances,

they are considered as a stranger's.

- 13 Though they offer sacrifice,
immolate flesh and eat it,
the LORD is not pleased with them.
He shall still remember their guilt
and punish their sins;
they shall return to Egypt.
- 14* Israel has forgotten his maker and built palaces.
Judah, too, has fortified many cities,
but I will send fire upon his cities,
to devour their castles.

CHAPTER 9

Exile without Worship

- 1† Rejoice not, O Israel, exult not like the nations!
For you have been unfaithful to your God, loving a harlot's hire
upon every threshing floor.
- 2 Threshing floor and wine press shall not nourish them,
the new wine shall fail them.
- 3 They shall not dwell in the LORD's land;
Ephraim shall return to Egypt,
and in Assyria they shall eat unclean food.
- 4† They shall not pour libations of wine to the LORD,
or proffer their sacrifices before him.
Theirs will be like mourners' bread,
that makes unclean all who eat of it;
Such food as they have shall be for themselves;
it cannot enter the house of the LORD.
- 5† What will you do on the festival day,
the day of the LORD's feast?

8, 14: Am 2, 5.

† 8, 4-6: Israel's monarchy and separate sanctuary are here associated, as in 1 Kgs 12, 20-33; both were the result of rebellion against the divinely approved Davidic dynasty and the Jerusalem temple with the ark of the covenant. The calf image set up by Jeroboam I in the royal shrines prevented Israel from attaining innocence (vv 5f).

8, 11: The very multiplicity of sanctuaries throughout the land was a danger to the purity of worship. The local shrines were speedily assimilated to the cult places used by the Canaanites, and the Lord was identified with the god Baal worshipped there. Thus the Deuteronomist writers, influenced by prophetic ideas, ended by restricting sacrificial worship to the one temple in Jerusalem.

9, 11: Upon every threshing floor: an allusion to harvest festivals in honor of Baal, to whom the Israelites had attributed the fertility of the land; cf 2, 7.

9, 4: Mourners' bread: bread eaten at funeral rites; cf Dt 26, 13f. Contact with a corpse made a person ritually unclean, together with everything he touched. Such bread could not be offered to the Lord.

9, 5: The Lord's feast: doubtless the autumn feast of Booths, the most important of the Israelite public celebrations; cf Lv 23, 34.

- 6 When they go from the ruins,
Egypt shall gather them in, Memphis shall bury them.
Weeds shall overgrow their silver treasures,
and thorns invade their tents.

The Prophet Ridiculed

- 7 They have come, the days of punishment!
they have come, the days of recompense!
Let Israel know it!
"The prophet is a fool,
the man of the spirit is mad!"
Because your iniquity is great, great, too, is your hostility.

- 8 A prophet is Ephraim's watchman with God,
yet a fowler's snare is on all his
ways,
hostility in the house of his God.
9† They have sunk to the depths of corruption,
as in the days of Gibeah;
He shall remember their iniquity
and punish their sins.

Crime of Baal-peor

- 10† Like grapes in the desert,
I found Israel;
Like the first fruits of the fig tree in its prime,
I considered your fathers.
When they came to Baal-peor and consecrated themselves to the Shame,
they became as abhorrent as the thing they loved.
11 The glory of Ephraim flies away like a bird:
no birth, no carrying in the womb,
no conception.
Were they to bear children,
I would slay the darlings of their womb.
12 Even though they bring up their
children,
I will make them childless, till not one is left.
Woe to them
when I turn away from them!
13 Ephraim, as I saw, was like Tyre, planted in a beautiful spot;
But Ephraim shall bring out his children to the slayer.
14† Give them, O LORD!
give them what?
Give them an unfruitful womb,
and dry breasts!

Crime of Gilgal

- 15*† All their wickedness is in Gilgal;
yes, there they incurred my hatred.

- Because of their wicked deeds
I will drive them out of my house.
I will love them no longer;
all their princes are rebels.
16 Ephraim is stricken, their root is dried up;
they shall bear no fruit.

- 17 My God will disown them because they have not listened to
him;
they shall be wanderers among
the nations.

CHAPTER 10

Punishment of Idolatry

- 1† Israel is a luxuriant vine whose fruit matches its growth.
The more abundant his fruit,
the more altars he built;
The more productive his land,
the more sacred pillars he set up.
2 Their heart is false,
now they pay for their guilt;
God shall break down their altars and destroy their sacred pillars.
3 If they would say,
"We have no king"—
Since they do not fear the LORD,
what can the king do for them?
4† Nothing but make promises, swear false oaths, and make alliances,
While justice grows wild
like wormwood in a plowed field!
5† The inhabitants of Samaria fear for the calf of Beth-aven;
The people mourn for it and its priests wail over it, because the glory has departed from it.
6 It too shall be carried to Assyria, as an offering to the great king.
Ephraim shall be taken into captivity,
Israel be shamed by his schemes.
7 The king of Samaria shall disappear,

15: 1 Sm 8, 5.

† 9, 9: The days of Gibeah: a reference to the outrage committed at Gibeah in the days of the Judges (Jgs 19, 22-30) 9, 10: At Baal-peor (Nm 25, 1-5) the Israelites consecrated themselves to Baal, here called the Shame.

9, 14: An unfruitful womb: this appears to be a reversal of the ancient blessing of Joseph contained in Gn 49, 25f, in which the increase, hence fruitfulness, promised to the patriarch is even signified by the name of his son Ephraim, on whose descendants the prophet now invokes the curse of extinction.

9, 15: Gilgal: see note on 4, 15.

10, 1: Sacred pillars: see note on 3, 4.

10, 4: Justice . . . like wormwood: the administration of justice, which should have been the mainstay of the people, has in corrupt hands become another instrument of oppression; cf Am 6, 13.

10, 5: The calf of Beth-aven: see notes on 4, 15; 8, 4ff.

like foam upon the waters.
 8* The high places of Aven shall be destroyed,
 the sin of Israel;
 thorns and thistles shall overgrow their altars.
 Then they shall cry out to the mountains, "Cover us!"
 and to the hills, "Fall upon us!"

9* Since the days of Gibeah
 you have sinned, O Israel.
 There they took their stand;
 war was not to reach them in Gibeah.

10*† Against the wanton people I came and I chastised them;
 I gathered troops against them when I chastised them for their two crimes.

Time To Seek the Lord

11 Ephraim was a trained heifer, willing to thresh;
 I myself laid a yoke
 upon her fair neck;
 Ephraim was to be harnessed, Judah was to plow,
 Jacob was to break his furrows:
 12* "Sow for yourselves justice,
 reap the fruit of piety;
 Break up for yourselves a new field,
 for it is time to seek the LORD, till he come and rain down justice
 upon you."
 13 But you have cultivated wickedness, reaped perversity,
 and eaten the fruit of falsehood.

Because you have trusted in your chariots,
 and in your many warriors, 14*† Turmoil shall break out among your tribes and all your fortresses shall be ravaged
 As Salman ravaged Beth-arbel in time of war,
 smashing mothers and their children.
 15 So shall it be done to you, Bethel,
 Because of your utter wickedness:
 At dawn the king of Israel shall perish utterly.

CHAPTER 11

When Israel Was a Child

1*† When Israel was a child I loved him, out of Egypt I called my son.
 2 The more I called them,
 the farther they went from me, Sacrificing to the Baals and burning incense to idols.
 3 Yet it was I who taught Ephraim to walk,
 who took them in my arms;

4† I drew them with human cords,
 with bands of love;
 I fostered them like one who raises an infant to his cheeks;
 Yet, though I stooped to feed my child,
 they did not know that I was their healer.

5 He shall return to the land of Egypt, and Assyria shall be his king;
 6 The sword shall begin with his cities and end by consuming his solitudes.
 Because they refused to repent, their own counsels shall devour
 them.
 7 His people are in suspense about returning to him;
 and God, though in unison they cry out to him,
 shall not raise them up.

End of the Exile

8*† How could I give you up, O Ephraim, or deliver you up, O Israel?
 How could I treat you as Admah, or make you like Zebaiim?
 My heart is overwhelmed,
 my pity is stirred.
 9 I will not give vent to my blazing anger,
 I will not destroy Ephraim again;
 For I am God and not man,
 the Holy One present among you;
 I will not let the flames consume
 you.
 10 They shall follow the LORD,
 who roars like a lion;
 When he roars,
 his sons shall come frightened
 from the west,
 11 Out of Egypt they shall come trembling, like sparrows,

10, 8: Is 2, 19; Lk 23,
 30; Rv 6, 16.
 9: Jgs 20, 1.
 10: Jer 4, 3.

12: Is 45, 8.
 14: Jgs 8, 10ff.
 11, 1: Mt 2, 15.
 8: Gn 19, 24f.

† 10, 10: Their two crimes: possibly the outrage described in Jgs 19 is conceived as a double crime, of adultery and murder. Or the prophet regards the proclamation of the monarchy (cf 1 Sm 10, 23f) as a crime.

10, 14: As Salman ravaged Beth-arbel: allusion to an invasion not otherwise mentioned in the Bible. Salman may have been the Moabite king of this name mentioned in an inscription of Tiglath-pileser III. There were several Beth-arbels in Palestine; this one was probably in Transjordan.

11, 1: Out of Egypt: Hosea, like most of the prophets, dates the real beginning of Israel from the time of Moses and the Exodus. Mt 2, 15 applies this text to the return of the Christ Child from Egypt.

11, 4: I drew them . . . with bands of love: not forcing them like draft animals, but drawing them with kindness and affection.

11, 8: Admah . . . Zebaiim: cities destroyed with Sodom and Gomorrah (Dt 29, 22).

from the land of Assyria, like doves;
And I will resettle them in their homes,
says the LORD.

CHAPTER 12

Infidelity of Israel

- 1 Ephraim has surrounded me with lies,
the house of Israel, with deceit;
Judah is still rebellious against God, against the Holy One, who is faithful.
- 2† Ephraim chases the wind,
ever pursuing the gale.
His lies and falsehoods are many:
he comes to terms with Assyria,
and carries oil to Egypt.
- 3† The LORD has a grievance against Israel:
he shall punish Jacob for his conduct,
for his deeds he shall repay him.
- 4* In the womb he supplanted his brother,
and as a man he contended with God;
- 5 He contended with the angel and triumphed,
entreatings him with tears.
At Bethel he met God
and there he spoke with him:
- 6 The LORD, the God of hosts,
the LORD is his name!
- 7 You shall return by the help of your God,
if you remain loyal and do right and always hope in your God.
- 8 A merchant who holds a false balance,
who loves to defraud!
- 9 Though Ephraim says,
"How rich I have become;
I have made a fortune!"
All his gain shall not suffice him for the guilt of his sin.
- 10 I am the LORD, your God,
since the land of Egypt;
I will again have you live in tents,
as in that appointed time.
- 11 I granted many visions and spoke to the prophets, through whom I set forth examples.
- 12 In Gilead is falsehood, they have come to nought,
in Gilgal they sacrifice to bullocks;
Their altars are like heaps of stones
in the furrows of the field.
- 13* When Jacob fled to the land of Aram,
he served for a wife;
for a wife Israel tended sheep.

- 14*† By a prophet the LORD brought Israel out of Egypt, and by a prophet they were protected.
- 15 Ephraim has exasperated his lord; therefore he shall cast his blood-guilt upon him and repay him for his outrage.

CHAPTER 13

- 1 Ephraim's word caused fear,
for he was exalted in Israel;
but he sinned through Baal and died.

Punishment for Ingratitude

- 2 Now they continue to sin, making for themselves molten images,
Silver idols according to their fancy,
all of them the work of artisans.
"To these," they say, "offer sacrifice."
Men kiss calves!
- 3 Therefore, they shall be like a morning cloud or like the dew that early passes away,
Like chaff storm-driven from the threshing floor or like smoke out of the window.
- 4* I am the LORD, your God,
since the land of Egypt;
You know no God besides me,
and there is no savior but me.
- 5 I fed you in the desert,
in the torrid land.
- 6 They ate their fill;
when filled, they became proud of heart and forgot me.
- 7 Therefore, I will be like a lion to them,
like a panther by the road I will keep watch.
- 8 I will attack them like a bear robbed of its young,
and tear their hearts from their breasts;

12, 4: Gn 25, 26, 32, 25.

14: Ex 14, 21f.
13, 4: Is 43, 11.

13: Gn 28, 5; 29, 20.

† 12, 2: He comes . . . Egypt: allusion to the commercial and military pacts with the great powers, consistently condemned by the prophets as derogatory of the Lord's claim on his people.

12, 3-7: Contemporary Israel and the Israel represented by its ancestor Jacob (Israel) are here alternated, a splendid example of the Hebrew concept of "corporate personality" or easy transition from the individual to the community of which he is part. Hosea recalls the history of Jacob as it now appears in Genesis, but with some differences of detail and order.

12, 14: A prophet: Moses.

- I will devour them on the spot like a lion,
as though a wild beast were to rend them.
- 9 Your destruction, O Israel!
who is there to help you?
- 10* Where now is your king, that he may rescue you in all your cities?
And your rulers, of whom you said,
"Give me a king and princes?"
- 11† I give you a king in my anger,
and I take him away in my wrath.
- 12 The guilt of Israel is wrapped up, his sin is stored away.
- 13† The birth pangs shall come for him,
but he shall be an unwise child;
For when it is time he shall not present himself
where children break forth.
- 14*† Shall I deliver them from the power of the nether world?
shall I redeem them from death?
Where are your plagues, O death!
where is your sting, O nether world!
My eyes are closed to compassion.
- 15* Though he be fruitful among his fellows,
an east wind shall come, a wind
from the LORD,
rising from the desert,
That shall dry up his spring,
and leave his fountain dry.
It shall loot his land
of every precious thing.

CHAPTER 14

- 1 Samaria shall expiate her guilt, for she has rebelled against her
God.
They shall fall by the sword, their little ones shall be dashed to pieces,
their expectant mothers shall be ripped open.

Sincere Conversion

- 2 Return, O Israel, to the LORD, your
God;
you have collapsed through your
guilt.
- 3 Take with you words,
and return to the LORD;
Say to him, "Forgive all iniquity, and receive what is good, that we may render as offerings the bullocks from our stalls.

- 4 Assyria will not save us,
nor shall we have horses to mount;
We shall say no more, "Our god,"
to the work of our hands;
for in you the orphan finds compassion."

- 5 I will heal their defection,
I will love them freely;
for my wrath is turned away from
them.

- 6 I will be like the dew for Israel:
he shall blossom like the lily;
He shall strike root like the Lebanon cedar,

- 7 and put forth his shoots.
His splendor shall be like the olive tree and his fragrance like the Lebanon cedar.

- 8 Again they shall dwell in his shade and raise grain;
They shall blossom like the vine,
and his fame shall be like the wine of Lebanon.

- 9 Ephraim! What more has he to do with idols?
I have humbled him, but I will prosper him.

"I am like a verdant cypress tree"—
Because of me you bear fruit!

* * *

- 10† Let him who is wise understand these things;
let him who is prudent know them.
Straight are the paths of the LORD,
in them the just walk,
but sinners stumble in them.

10: 1 Sm 8, 5.
14: 1 Cor 15, 54.

15: Ex 19, 12.

† 13, 11: I give you a king . . . in my wrath: the Lord punishes the people of the northern kingdom by giving them incompetent kings who are soon deposed.

13, 13: Israel's sin is such as to warrant its destruction (v 12), because it refuses to do penance. It will therefore perish as surely as the unborn child which dies in its mother's body because it does not properly employ the only way to safety.

13, 14: Shall . . . nether world: a vigorous affirmation of the Lord's determination to destroy Israel. St. Paul cites these words in a different sense (1 Cor 15, 54f), that of the ultimate victory of life over death in the resurrection of the body on the last day, wrought through the merits of Christ's passion and resurrection.

14, 10: A later addition in the style of the wisdom literature.

JOEL

This prophecy is rich in apocalyptic imagery and strongly eschatological in tone. It was composed about 400 B.C. Its prevailing theme is the day of the Lord.

A terrible invasion of locusts ravaged Judah. So frightful was the scourge that the prophet visualized it as a symbol of the coming day of the Lord. In the face of this threatening catastrophe, the prophet summoned the people to repent, to turn to the Lord with fasting and weeping. They were ordered to convoke a solemn assembly in which the priests would pray for deliverance. The Lord answered their prayer and promised to drive away the locusts and bless the land with peace and prosperity. To these material blessings would be added an outpouring of the spirit on all flesh. St. Peter, in his first discourse before the people at Pentecost (Acts 2, 16-21), sees in the coming of the Holy Spirit the fulfillment of this promise (1, 1-3, 5).

The concluding poem pictures the nations gathered in the Valley of Jehoshaphat, where the Lord is about to pass judgment. Israel's enemies are summoned to hear the solemn indictment; their evil deeds are at last requited. The tumultuous throng assembled in the valley of decision is made up of the enemies of God and they face inevitable destruction. The oracle changes abruptly from the terrifying image of judgment to a vision of Israel restored and forever secure from her enemies. God is both the vindicator of his people and the source of their blessing (4, 1-21).

CHAPTER 1

The Land Invaded. <sup>1</sup> The word of the LORD which came to Joel, the son of Pethuel.

- <sup>2</sup> Hear this, you elders!
Pay attention, all you who dwell
in the land!
Has the like of this happened in your days,
or in the days of your fathers?
- <sup>3</sup> Tell it to your children, and your children to their children,
and their children to the next generation.
- <sup>4</sup>† What the cutter left,
the locust swarm has eaten;
What the locust swarm left,
the grasshopper has eaten;
And what the grasshopper left,
the devourer has eaten.
- <sup>5</sup> Wake up, you drunkards, and weep;
wail, all you drinkers of wine,
Because the juice of the grape will be withheld from your mouths.
- <sup>6</sup>† For a people has invaded my land, mighty and without number;
His teeth are the teeth of a lion,
and his molars those of a lioness.
- <sup>7</sup> He has laid waste my vine,
and blighted my fig tree;
He has stripped it, sheared off its bark;

- its branches are made white.
- <sup>8</sup> Lament like a virgin girt with sack-
cloth
for the spouse of her youth.
- <sup>9</sup> Abolished are offering and libation from the house of the LORD;
In mourning are the priests,
the ministers of the LORD.
- <sup>10</sup> The field is ravaged,
the earth mourns,
Because the grain is ravaged,
the must has failed,
the oil languishes.
- <sup>11</sup> Be appalled, you husbandmen!
wail, you vinedressers!
Over the wheat and the barley, because the harvest of the field has perished.
- <sup>12</sup> The vine has dried up,
the fig tree is withered;
The pomegranate, the date palm also, and the apple,
all the trees of the field are dried
up;
Yes, joy has withered away
from among mankind.

Call to Penance

- <sup>13</sup> Gird yourselves and weep, O priests!
wail, O ministers of the altar!

† 1, 4: Cutter . . . locust . . . grasshopper . . . devourer these names refer to various species of locusts; they can only be approximate.

1, 6: A people: the locusts compared to an invading army.

- Come, spend the night in sackcloth,
O ministers of my God!
The house of your God is deprived of offering and libation.
- 14* Proclaim a fast,
call an assembly;
Gather the elders,
all who dwell in the land,
Into the house of the LORD, your
God,
and cry to the LORD!
- 15 Alas, the day!
for near is the day of the LORD,
and it comes as ruin from the Almighty.
- 16 From before our very eyes has not the food been cut off;
And from the house of our God,
joy and gladness?
- 17 The seed lies shriveled under its
clouds;
the stores are destroyed,
The barns are broken down,
for the grain has failed.
- 18 How the beasts groan!
The herds of cattle are bewil-
dered!
Because they have no pasturage, even the flocks of sheep have perished.
- 19 To you, O LORD, I cry!
for fire has devoured the pastures of the plain,
and flame has enkindled all the trees of the field.
- 20 Even the beasts of the field cry out to you;
For the streams of water are dried
up,
and fire has devoured the pastures of the plain.
- CHAPTER 2
The Day of the Lord
- 1 Blow the trumpet in Zion, sound the alarm on my holy mountain!
Let all who dwell in the land tremble,
for the day of the LORD is coming;
- 2 Yes, it is near, a day of darkness and
of gloom,
a day of clouds and somberness!
Like dawn spreading over the
mountains,
a people numerous and mighty!
Their like has not been from of old,
nor will it be after them,
even to the years of distant generations.
- 3 Before them a fire devours, and after them a flame enkindles;
Like the garden of Eden is the land before them,
and after them a desert waste;
from them there is no escape.
- 4 Their appearance is that of horses;
like steeds they run.
- 5 As with the rumble of chariots
they leap on the mountaintops;
As with the crackling of a fiery flame devouring stubble;
Like a mighty people
arrayed for battle.
- 6 Before them peoples are in torment,
every face blanches.
- 7 Like warriors they run,
like soldiers they scale the wall;
They advance, each in his own lane, without swerving from their paths.
- 8 No one crowds another,
each advances in his own track;
Though they fall into the ditches,
they are not checked.
- 9 They assault the city,
they run upon the wall,
they climb into the houses;
In at the windows
they come like thieves.
- 10* Before them the earth trembles,
the heavens shake;
The sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars withhold their brightness.
- 11* The LORD raises his voice
at the head of his army;
For immense indeed is his camp,
yes, mighty, and it does his bidding.
For great is the day of the LORD, and exceedingly terrible; who can
bear it?
- 12 Yet even now, says the LORD, return to me with your whole
heart,
with fasting, and weeping, and mourning;
- 13* Rend your hearts, not your garments,
and return to the LORD, your God.
For gracious and merciful is he,
slow to anger, rich in kindness,
and relenting in punishment.
- 14* Perhaps he will again relent and leave behind him a blessing, Offerings and libations
for the LORD, your God.
- 15* Blow the trumpet in Zion!
proclaim a fast,
call an assembly;
- 16 Gather the people,
notify the congregation;

1, 14: 2, 15.

2, 10: 4, 15; Is 13, 10;

Ez 32, 7; Mt 24,

29; Mk 13, 24;

Lk 21, 25f.

11: Jer 30, 7; Am 5,

18; Zep 1, 15.

13: Ps 86, 5; Jon 4,

2.

14: Jon 3, 9.

15: 1, 14.

Assemble the elders,
gather the children
and the infants at the breast;
Let the bridegroom quit his room,
and the bride her chamber.
17† Between the porch and the altar let the priests, the ministers of the LORD, weep,
And say, "Spare, O LORD, your people,
and make not your heritage a reproach,
with the nations ruling over them!
Why should they say among the peoples,
'Where is their God?'"

Blessings for God's People. 18 Then the LORD was stirred to concern for his land and took pity on his people. 19 The LORD answered and said to his people:

See, I will send you grain, and wine, and oil,
and you shall be filled with them;
No more will I make you a reproach among the nations.
20† No, the northerner I will remove far from you,
and drive him out into a land arid and waste,
With his van toward the eastern sea, and his rear toward the western
sea;
And his foulness shall go up,
and his stench shall go up.
21 Fear not, O land!
exult and rejoice!
for the LORD has done great
things.
22 Fear not, beasts of the field!
for the pastures of the plain are green;
The tree bears its fruit,
the fig tree and the vine give their yield.
23† And do you, O children of Zion, exult and rejoice in the LORD, your God!
He has given you the teacher of justice:
he has made the rain come down
for you,
the early and the late rain as before.
24 The threshing floors shall be full of grain and the vats shall overflow with wine and oil.
25 And I will repay you for the years
which the locust has eaten,
The grasshopper, the devourer, and
the cutter,

my great army which I sent among you.
26 You shall eat and be filled, and shall praise the name of the
LORD, your God,
Because he has dealt wondrously with you;
my people shall nevermore be put
to shame.
27 And you shall know that I am in the midst of Israel;
I am the LORD, your God, and there is no other;
my people shall nevermore be put
to shame.

CHAPTER 3

1*† Then afterward I will pour out my spirit upon all mankind.
Your sons and daughters shall prophecy,
your old men shall dream dreams,
your young men shall see visions;
2 Even upon the servants and the handmaids,
in those days, I will pour out my
spirit.
3 And I will work wonders in the heavens and on the earth,
blood, fire, and columns of smoke;
4* The sun will be turned to darkness,
and the moon to blood,
At the coming of the Day of the
LORD,
the great and terrible day.
5* Then everyone shall be rescued who calls on the name of the LORD;
For on Mount Zion there shall be a remnant, as the LORD has said,
And in Jerusalem survivors whom the LORD shall call.

23: Hos 10, 12. 4: 2, 10.
3, 1-5: Is 44, 3; Acts 2, 5: Rom 10, 13.
17-21.

† 2, 17: The priests stood in the open space between the outdoor altar of holocausts and the temple building, facing the latter in order thereby to look toward God present in the holy of holies.

2, 20: The northerner: the locusts, that are compared to an invading army, which in Palestine came from the north. cf Jer 1, 14f; 4, 6; Ez 26, 7; 38, 6, 15.

2, 23: The teacher of justice: the rain sent by God to show his fidelity to his promises, and to teach his people to be faithful to his commandments; cf Dt 11, 14. There is also a play on words here between the Hebrew word moreh (teacher) and the Hebrew word yoreh (the early rain). The expression likewise had a messianic connotation; cf Is 30, 20. The founder of the Essene sect of Qumran (second century B.C.) was known as "The Teacher of Justice."

3, 1f: I will pour out my spirit: In the Old Testament the spirit is the gift of God bestowed on those acting as his agents. The promise of the spirit is quoted by St. Peter in Acts 2, 17-21 as fulfilled in an eminent way by the gift of the Holy Spirit, the Third Person of the Blessed Trinity, bestowed on the Apostles.

CHAPTER 4

Judgment upon the Nations

- 1 Yes, in those days, and at that time, when I would restore the fortunes of Judah and Jerusalem,
- 2† I will assemble all the nations and bring them down to the Valley of Jehoshaphat, And I will enter into judgment with them there on behalf of my people and my inheritance, Israel; Because they have scattered them among the nations, and divided my land.
- 3 Over my people they have cast lots; they gave a boy for a harlot, and sold a girl for the wine they drank.

4 Moreover, what are you to me, Tyre and Sidon, and all the regions of Philistia? Would you take vengeance upon me by some action? But if you do take action against me, swiftly, speedily, I will return your deed upon your own head. 5 You took my silver and my gold, and brought my precious treasures into your temples! 6 You sold the people of Judah and Jerusalem to the Greeks, removing them far from their own country! 7 See, I will rouse them from the place into which you have sold them, and I will return your deed upon your own head. 8† I will sell your sons and your daughters to the people of Judah, who shall sell them to the Sabeans, a nation far off. Indeed, the LORD has spoken.

- 9 Declare this among the nations: proclaim a war, rouse the warriors to arms! Let all the soldiers report and march!
- 10† Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning hooks into spears; let the weak man say, "I am a warrior!"
- 11† Hasten and come, all you neighboring peoples, assemble there! [Bring down, O Lord, your warriors!]
- 12 Let the nations bestir themselves and come up to the Valley of Jehoshaphat; For there I will sit in judgment upon all the neighboring nations.
- 13*† Apply the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; Come and tread, for the wine press is full; The vats overflow, for great is their malice.

- 14 Crowd upon crowd in the valley of decision; For near is the day of the LORD in the valley of decision.
- 15* Sun and moon are darkened, and the stars withhold their brightness.
- 16* The LORD roars from Zion, and from Jerusalem raises his voice; The heavens and the earth quake, but the LORD is a refuge to his people, a stronghold to the men of Israel.

Salvation for God's Elect

- 17 Then shall you know that I, the LORD, am your God, dwelling on Zion, my holy mountain; Jerusalem shall be holy, and strangers shall pass through her no more.
- 18*† And then, on that day, the mountains shall drip new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk; And the channels of Judah shall flow with water: A fountain shall issue from the house of the LORD, to water the Valley of Shittim.
- 19 Egypt shall be a waste, and Edom a desert waste, Because of violence done to the people of Judah, because they shed innocent blood in their land.
- 20 But Judah shall abide forever, and Jerusalem for all generations.
- 21 I will avenge their blood, and not leave it unpunished. The LORD dwells in Zion.

4, 13: Rv 14, 15.
15: 2, 10; 3, 4.
16: Jer 25, 30;

Am 1, 2.
18: Am 9, 13; Ez 47,
1-12; Zec 14, 8.

† 4, 2: Valley of Jehoshaphat: a symbolic name of the place of final judgment (v 14). The name Jehoshaphat signifies "Yahweh judges." This place has been popularly identified with the Kidron Valley.

4, 8: Sabeans: a south Arabian people known for their commerce.

4, 10: This imagery is used in the reverse sense in Is 2, 4; Mi 4, 3. Here the warlike weapons are made in response to God's summons to armies which he selected to expel forever the unlawful invaders from the land of his chosen people.

4, 11: Warriors: the angels; cf Zec 14, 5.

4, 13: Because of their numerous crimes, the nations are ripe for punishment. The use of warlike weapons against them is likened to the onslaught on the fields and vines at harvest time.

4, 18: The Valley of Shittim, or "the ravine of the acacia trees"; perhaps a part of the Kidron Valley southeast of Jerusalem; the prophetic picture of a stream of water flowing from a fountain in the temple of Jerusalem is to be found in Ez 47, 1. The Shittim east of the Jordan (see note on Nm 25, 1) is hardly referred to here.

The Book of AMOS

Amos was a shepherd of Tekoa in Judah, who exercised his ministry during the prosperous reign of Jeroboam II (786-746 B.C.). He prophesied in Israel at the great cult center of Bethel, from which he was finally expelled by the priest in charge of this royal sanctuary. The poetry of Amos, who denounces the hollow prosperity of the northern kingdom, is filled with imagery and language taken from his own pastoral background. The book is an anthology of his oracles and was compiled either by the prophet or by some of his disciples.

The prophecy begins with a sweeping indictment of Damascus, Philistia, Tyre, and Edom; but the forthright herdsman saves his climactic denunciation for Israel, whose injustice and idolatry are sins against the light granted to her. Israel could indeed expect the day of Yahweh, but it would be a day of darkness and not light. When Amos prophesied the overthrow of the sanctuary, the fall of the royal house, and the captivity of the people, it was more than Israelite officialdom could bear. The priest of Bethel drove Amos from the shrine—but not before hearing a terrible sentence pronounced upon himself.

Amos is a prophet of divine judgment, and the sovereignty of Yahweh in nature and history dominates his thought. But he was no innovator; his conservatism was in keeping with the whole prophetic tradition calling the people back to the high moral and religious demands of Yahweh's revelation. In common with the other prophets, Amos knew that divine punishment is never completely destructive; it is part of the hidden plan of God to bring salvation to men. The perversity of the human will may retard, but it cannot totally frustrate, this design of a loving God. The last oracle opens up a perspective of restoration under a Davidic king.

The Book of Amos may be divided as follows:

I: Judgment of the Nations (1, 1—2, 16)

II: Words and Woes for Israel (3, 1—6, 14)

III: Symbolic Visions: Threats and Promises (7, 1—9, 8b)

Epilogue: Messianic Perspective (9, 8c-15)

I: JUDGMENT OF THE NATIONS

CHAPTER 1

<sup>1</sup>*† The words of Amos, a shepherd from Tekoa, which he received in vision concerning Israel, in the days of Uzziah, king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam, son of Joash, king of Israel, two years before the earthquake:

<sup>2</sup>* The LORD will roar from Zion,
and from Jerusalem raise his voice:
The pastures of the shepherds will languish,
and the summit of Carmel wither.

Aram

<sup>3</sup>† Thus says the LORD:
For three crimes of Damascus, and for four,
I will not revoke my word;
Because they threshed Gilead with sledges of iron,

<sup>4</sup>† I will send fire upon the house of Hazeel,
to devour the castles of Ben-ha-dad.

<sup>5</sup>† I will break the bar of Damascus;

1, 1: Zec 14, 5,
2: Jer 25, 30,

Jl 3, 16.

† 1, 1: The earthquake: which according to Hebrew tradition marked the crime of Uzziah when he attempted to offer incense in the temple (2 Chr 26, 16-21). Zechariah mentions it several centuries later (Zec 14, 5).

1, 3: For three crimes . . . four: crime after crime, an indefinite number; cf 1, 6. The series of judgments on the foreign nations shows that the Lord demands the observance of the moral order everywhere; Israel and Judah, despite their privileged position, are no exception. I will not revoke my word: God will not withdraw his threat of punishment against each of these nations. They threshed Gilead: the people of Aram under King Hazeel had devastated Gilead; cf 2 Kgs 10, 32f.

1, 4: Fire: devastation caused by the Assyrians (1, 7. 10. 12. 14; 2, 2. 5); cf 1 Sm 15, 18. Hazeel and Ben-hadad: kings of the Arameans whose capital was Damascus (v 5); they fought against Israel (2 Kgs 13, 3), and had long occupied the region of Gilead (v 3) in Transjordan.

1, 5: Bar of Damascus: the beam securing the main gate of the city against invaders, symbol of its defenses. Valley of Aven ("vale of wickedness") and Beth-eden ("house of pleasure"): Aramean territory from southwest to northeast.

I will root out those who live in the Valley of Aven,
And the sceptered ruler of Beth-eden;
the people of Aram shall be exiled to Kir,
says the LORD.

Philistia

6 Thus says the LORD:
For three crimes of Gaza, and for four,
I will not revoke my word;
Because they took captive whole groups
to hand over to Edom, 7 I will send fire upon the wall of Gaza,
to devour her castles;
8 I will root out those who live in Ashdod,
and the sceptered ruler of Ash-
kelon;
I will turn my hand against Ekron, and the last of the Philistines shall perish,
says the Lord God.

Tyre

9† Thus says the LORD:
For three crimes of Tyre, and for four
I will not revoke my word;
Because they delivered whole groups captive to Edom, and did not remember the pact of brotherhood,
10 I will send fire upon the wall of Tyre,
to devour her castles.

Edom

11† Thus says the LORD:
For three crimes of Edom, and for
four,
I will not revoke my word;
Because he pursued his brother with the sword,
choking up all pity;
Because he persisted in his anger and kept his wrath to the end, 12† I will send fire upon Teman, and it will devour the castles of Bozrah.

Ammon

13 Thus says the LORD:
For three crimes of the Ammonites,
and for four,
I will not revoke my word;
Because they ripped open expectant mothers in Gilead,
while extending their territory,
14† I will kindle a fire upon the wall of Rabbah,
and it will devour her castles

Amid clamor on the day of battle and stormwind in a time of tempest.

15 Their king shall go into captivity, he and his princes with him, says
the LORD.

CHAPTER 2

Moab

1† Thus says the LORD:
For three crimes of Moab, and for
four,
I will not revoke my word;
Because he burned to ashes
the bones of Edom's king, 2 I will send fire upon Moab,
to devour the castles of Kerioth;
Moab shall meet death amid uproar and shouts and trumpet blasts.
3 I will root out the judge from her
midst,
and her princes I will slay with him, says the LORD.

Judah

4† Thus says the LORD:
For three crimes of Judah, and for
four,
I will not revoke my word;
Because they spurned the law of the
LORD,
and did not keep his statutes;
Because the lies which their fathers followed
have led them astray,
5 I will send fire upon Judah, to devour the castles of Jerusalem.

Israel†

6† Thus says the LORD:
For three crimes of Israel, and for
four,
I will not revoke my word;
Because they sell the just man for silver,

†

1, 9: Pact of brotherhood: Hiram of Tyre had made a pact with Solomon and called him brother (1 Kgs 5, 12; 9, 13).
1, 11: Pursued his brother: the Edomites were descended from Esau, the brother of Jacob (Gn 25-27); nevertheless they constantly nourished enmity against Jacob's descendants, the Israelites.

1, 12: Teman and Bozrah: two of the chief cities of Edom; cf Jer 49, 20.

1, 14: Rabbah: now called Amman, the modern capital of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan.

2, 1: Here the prophet stresses the gravity of Moab's violation of the Semitic custom of providing honorable burial for the dead.

2, 4: The lies: false gods, who exist only in the minds of their worshipers. The crimes of Judah are infidelity and idolatry, in contrast to the sins for which the surrounding nations are judged.

2, 6-13: The detailed crimes of Israel are placed in strong contrast with the benefits with which the Lord favored his people.

2, 6: A pair of sandals: indicating how cheaply the rich regarded the poor.

- and the poor man for a pair of sandals.
- 7 They trample the heads of the weak into the dust of the earth, and force the lowly out of the way. Son and father go to the same prostitute, profaning my holy name.
- 8† Upon garments taken in pledge they recline beside any altar; And the wine of those who have been fined they drink in the house of their god.
- 9* Yet it was I who destroyed the Amorites before them, who were as tall as the cedars, and as strong as the oak trees. I destroyed their fruit above, and their roots beneath.
- 10* It was I who brought you up from the land of Egypt, and who led you through the desert for forty years, to occupy the land of the Amorites.
- 11† I who raised up prophets among your sons, and nazirites among your young men. Is this not so, O men of Israel? says the LORD.
- 12 But you gave the nazirites wine to drink, and commanded the prophets not to prophesy.
- 13 Beware, I will crush you into the ground as a wagon crushes when laden with sheaves.
- 14 Flight shall perish from the swift, and the strong man shall not retain his strength; The warrior shall not save his life, nor the bowman stand his ground;
- 15 The swift of foot shall not escape, nor the horseman save his life.
- 16 And the most stouthearted of warriors shall flee naked on that day, says the LORD.
- 3 Do two walk together unless they have agreed?
- 4 Does a lion roar in the forest when it has no prey? Does a young lion cry out from its den unless it has seized something?
- 5 Is a bird brought to earth by a snare when there is no lure for it? Does a snare spring up from the ground without catching anything?
- 6† If the trumpet sounds in a city, will the people not be frightened? If evil befalls a city, has not the LORD caused it?
- 7 Indeed, the Lord GOD does nothing without revealing his plan to his servants, the prophets.
- 8 The lion roars— who will not be afraid! The Lord GOD speaks— who will not prophesy!
- 9† Proclaim this in the castles of Ashdod, in the castles of the land of Egypt: "Gather about the mountain of Samaria, and see the great disorders within her, the oppression in her midst."
- 10 For they know not how to do what is right, says the LORD, Storing up in their castles what they have extorted and robbed.
- 11 Therefore, thus says the Lord GOD: An enemy shall surround the land, and strip you of your strength, and pillage your castles,
- 12 Thus says the LORD: As the shepherd snatches from the mouth of the lion a pair of legs or the tip of an ear of his sheep, So the Israelites who dwell in Samaria shall escape

2, 9: Nm 21, 24; Dt 2.
10: Ex 14, 21; Dt 8.

2.14.

II: WORDS AND WOES FOR ISRAEL

CHAPTER 3

First Word. † Hear this word, O men of Israel, that the LORD pronounces over you, over the whole family that I brought up from the land of Egypt:

- 2† You alone have I favored, more than all the families of the earth; Therefore I will punish you for all your crimes.

†

2, 8: Upon garments . . . any altar: usurers kept the garments taken as pledges from the poor; but instead of restoring them to their owners before nightfall (Ex 22, 25; Dt 24, 12), they used them in idolatrous worship. Wine . . . their god: under the guise of a religious ceremony they drink the wine obtained through unjust fines.

2, 11: Nazirites: see note on Nm 6, 1ff.

3, 6: God's choice of Israel brought its own responsibility. The sufferings which sinful man experiences through the permissive will of God are presented here, as elsewhere in the Old Testament, simply as caused by the Lord.

3, 9: Israel's southern neighbors, beyond Judah, are invited by the prophetic orator to witness the moral disorders of God's people.

with the corner of a couch or a piece of a cot.

<sup>13</sup> Hear and bear witness against the house of Jacob, says the Lord God, the God of hosts:

<sup>14</sup> On the day when I punish Israel for his crimes,

I will visit also the altars of Bethel: The horns of the altar shall be broken off and fall to the ground.

<sup>15†</sup> Then will I strike the winter house and the summer house;

The ivory apartments shall be ruined, and their many rooms shall be no more, says the LORD.

CHAPTER 4

Second Word

<sup>1†</sup> Hear this word, women of the mountain of Samaria, you cows of Bashan,

You who oppress the weak
and abuse the needy;
Who say to your lords,
"Bring drink for us!"

<sup>2</sup> The Lord God has sworn by his holiness:

Truly the days are coming upon you

When they shall drag you away with hooks,

the last of you with fishhooks;

<sup>3</sup> You shall go out through the breached walls

each by the most direct way,

And you shall be cast into the mire, says the LORD.

<sup>4†</sup> Come to Bethel and sin, to Gilgal, and sin the more;

Each morning bring your sacrifices,
every third day, your tithes;

<sup>5</sup> Burn leavened food as a thanksgiving sacrifice, proclaim publicly your freewill offerings,

For so you love to do, O men of Israel,

says the Lord God.

<sup>6</sup> Though I have made your teeth clean of food in all your cities, and have made bread scarce in all your dwellings,

Yet you returned not to me, says the LORD.

<sup>7</sup> Though I also withheld the rain from you when the harvest was still three months away;

I sent rain upon one city

but not upon another;

One field was watered by rain,

but another without rain dried up;

<sup>8</sup> Though two or three cities staggered to one city for water that did not quench their thirst;

Yet you returned not to me,

says the LORD.

<sup>9*</sup> I struck you with blight and searing wind;

your many gardens and vineyards,

your fig trees and olive trees the locust devoured;

Yet you returned not to me,

says the LORD.

<sup>10†</sup> I sent upon you a pestilence like that of Egypt, and with the sword I slew your young men;

Your horses I let be captured,

to your nostrils I brought the stench of your camps;

Yet you returned not to me,

says the LORD.

<sup>11*</sup> I brought upon you such upheaval as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah:

you were like a brand plucked from the fire;

Yet you returned not to me,

says the LORD.

<sup>12</sup> So now I will deal with you in my own way, O Israel!

and since I will deal thus with you, prepare to meet your God, O Israel:

<sup>13</sup> Him who formed the mountains, and created the wind, and declares to man his thoughts;

Who made the dawn and the darkness,

and strides upon the heights of the earth:

The LORD, the God of hosts by name.

4, 9: Hg 2, 17.

11: Gn 19, 24.

† 3, 15: Ivory apartments: rooms containing furniture inlaid in ivory, similar to the pieces discovered in the excavations at Samaria.

4, 1: Bashan: the region east of the Sea of Galilee, famous for its rich pasture and fattened herds, to which Amos likens the indolent women of Samaria.

4, 4f: This invitation to the sanctuaries of the northern kingdom is ironical. Pilgrimages to the shrines of Bethel and Gilgal were the more displeasing to God because they were contrary to his will and ineffective toward improvement of morals.

4, 10: Pestilence like that of Egypt: plagues were well known in Egypt; cf Dt 7, 15; 28, 27, 60. Stench of your camps: caused by the unburied bodies.

CHAPTER 5

Third Word

- 1 Hear this word which I utter over you,
a lament, O house of Israel:
- 2 She is fallen, to rise no more,
the virgin Israel;
She lies abandoned upon her land,
with no one to raise her up.
- 3 For thus says the Lord God:
The city that marched out with a thousand shall be left with a hundred, Another that marched out with a hundred shall be left with ten,
of the house of Israel.
- 4 For thus says the Lord
to the house of Israel:
Seek me, that you may live,
5 but do not seek Bethel;
Do not come to Gilgal,
and do not cross to Beer-sheba.
For Gilgal shall be led into exile,
and Bethel shall become nought.
- 6† Seek the Lord, that you may live, lest he come upon the house of Joseph like a fire That shall consume, with none to quench it for the house of Israel:
- 8* He who made the Pleiades and Orion, who turns darkness into dawn,
and darkens day into night;
Who summons the waters of the sea,
and pours them out upon the surface of the earth;
- 9 Who flashes destruction upon the strong,
and brings ruin upon the fortress;
whose name is LORD.

First Woe

- 7 Woe to those who turn judgment to wormwood and cast justice to the ground!
- 10† They hate him who reproves at the gate and abhor him who speaks the truth.
- 11* Therefore, because you have trampled upon the weak and exacted of them levies of grain, Though you have built houses of hewn stone,
you shall not live in them!
Though you have planted choice vineyards,
you shall not drink their wine!
- 12 Yes, I know how many are your crimes,
how grievous your sins:

- Oppressing the just, accepting bribes,
repelling the needy at the gate!
- 13 Therefore the prudent man is silent at this time,
for it is an evil time.
- 14 Seek good and not evil,
that you may live;
Then truly will the LORD, the God of hosts,
be with you as you claim!
- 15* Hate evil and love good,
and let justice prevail at the gate;
Then it may be that the LORD, the God of hosts, will have pity on the remnant of Joseph.
- 16 Therefore, thus says the LORD,
the God of hosts, the Lord:
In every square there shall be lamentation,
and in every street they shall cry,
Alas! Alas!
They shall summon the farmers to wail and professional mourners to lament,
- 17 And in every vineyard there shall be lamentation
when I pass through your midst,
says the LORD.

Second Woe

- 18*† Woe to those who yearn for the day of the LORD!
What will this day of the LORD mean for you?
Darkness and not light!
- 19 As if a man went to flee from a lion,
and a bear should meet him;
Or as if on entering his house
he were to rest his hand against the wall, and a snake should bite him.
- 20 Will not the day of the LORD be darkness and not light, gloom without any brightness?

5, 8: Am 9, 6.
11: Zep 1, 13.
15: Ps 97, 10; Rom

12, 9.
18: Jer 30, 7; Jl 2,
11: Zep 1, 15.

† 5, 6: House of Joseph: the kingdom of Israel or northern kingdom, the chief tribes of which were descended from Ephraim and Manasseh, the sons of Joseph; cf 5, 15; 6, 6. 5, 10: At the gate: see note on Ps 127, 5.

5, 18: Day of the Lord: a technical expression which in earliest times referred to God's special intervention in human affairs. Through it his power and justice triumphed in his people. The present passage is the first instance in which it means a day of punishment of sinners. During the exile it assumed the meaning of a time when God would avenge Israel against her oppressors and bring about her restoration (Jer 50, 27; Ez 30, 3ff). Still later it came to mean the day of final judgment of the world when the good will be rewarded and the wicked punished (Mal 3, 19ff; Jl 2, 1ff; Zep 1, 14ff).

- 21*† I hate, I spurn your feasts,
I take no pleasure in your solemnities;
- 22 Your cereal offerings I will not accept,
nor consider your stall-fed peace offerings.
- 23 Away with your noisy songs!
I will not listen to the melodies of your harps.
But if you would offer me holocausts,
then let justice surge like water,
and goodness like an unfailing stream.
- 24 † Did you bring me sacrifices and offerings
for forty years in the desert, O house of Israel?
- 26† You will carry away Sakkuth, your king,
and Kaiwan, your star god,
the images that you have made for yourselves;
- 27 For I will exile you beyond Damascus, say I, the LORD, the God of hosts by name.
- 8* The Lord God has sworn by his very self,
say I, the LORD, the God of hosts:
I abhor the pride of Jacob,
I hate his castles,
and I give over the city with everything in it;
- 9 Should there remain ten men in a single house, these shall die.
- 10 Only a few shall be left to carry the dead out of the houses;
If one says to a man inside a house, "Is anyone with you?" and he answers, "No one,"
Then he shall say, "Silence!"
for no one must mention the name of the LORD.
- 11 Indeed, the LORD has given the command to shatter the great house to bits, and reduce the small house to rubble.
- 12† Can horses run across a cliff?
or can one plow the sea with oxen?
Yet you have turned judgment into gall,
and the fruit of justice into worm-wood.
- 13† You rejoice in Lodebar, and say, "Have we not, by our own strength, seized for ourselves Karnaim?"
- 14† Beware, I am raising up against you,
O house of Israel,
say I, the LORD, the God of hosts,

CHAPTER 6

Third Woe

- 1*† Woe to the complacent in Zion, to the overconfident on the mount of Samaria, Leaders of a nation favored from the first,
to whom the people of Israel have recourse!
- 2 Pass over to Calneh and see,
go from there to Hamath the great,
and down to Gath of the Philistines!
Are you better than these kingdoms,
or is your territory wider than theirs?
- 3 You would put off the evil day,
yet you hasten the reign of violence!
- 4 Lying upon beds of ivory, stretched comfortably on their couches,
They eat lambs taken from the flock,
and calves from the stall!
- 5 Improvising to the music of the harp,
like David, they devise their own accompaniment.
- 6 They drink wine from bowls and anoint themselves with the best oils;
yet they are not made ill by the collapse of Joseph!
- 7 Therefore, now they shall be the first to go into exile,
and their wanton revelry shall be done away with.

21: Is 1, 11; Jer 6, 20; Mal 1, 12.
6, 1: Lk 6, 24.
8: Jer 51, 14.
25: Acts 7, 42.

† 5, 21-27: The Lord condemns, not ritual worship in itself, but the cult whose exterior rites and solemnity have no relation to interior morality and justice. The Israelites falsely worshiped him as neighboring nations adored Baal or Chamos, deities which were thought to protect their respective peoples against their enemies in return for ritual observances, without any relation to right conduct.

5, 25: The meaning is not certain; according to some, the idea is that during the forty years' wandering in the desert the simple, rudimentary worship of God was accompanied by the practice of justice, in contrast to the elaborate ritual unaccompanied by works of justice in the prophet's time.

5, 26: Sakkuth . . . star god: although the text is uncertain, it seems quite probable that reference is made to the Assyrian deities, Sakkuth, god of war and light, and Kaiwan, the planet Saturn. The people will go into exile, from which these gods have been unable to save them.

6, 1-7: The luxury of the people in Samaria will be punished by exile. They failed to learn the lesson from Calneh, Hamath and Gath at the approach of the powerful and warlike Assyrians.

6, 1: The complacent in Zion . . . the overconfident . . . of Samaria: the proud and self-interested rulers of Judah and Israel.

6, 12: Can horses . . . oxen?: one cannot change the course of nature, as the Israelites attempted to do by their sins of injustice.

6, 13: Lodebar . . . Karnaim: in Transjordan; they had been captured by the Israelites. Perhaps it is in irony that reference is made to these two cities, for the root of the first suggests "nothing" and that of the second, "horns" or "strength."

6, 14: A nation: Assyria.

A nation that shall oppress you from Labo of Hamath even to the Wadi Arabah.

III: SYMBOLIC VISIONS: THREATS AND PROMISES

CHAPTER 7

Vision of Locusts. 1† This is what the Lord God showed me: He was forming a locust swarm when the late growth began to come up (the late growth after the king's mowing). 2 While they were eating all the grass in the land, I said:

Forgive, O Lord God!
How can Jacob stand?
He is so small!

3 And the LORD repented of this. "It shall not be," said the Lord God.

Visions of Fire. 4† Then the Lord God showed me this: he called for a judgment by fire. It had devoured the great abyss, and was consuming the land, 5 when I said:

Cease, O Lord God!
How can Jacob stand?
He is so small!

6 The LORD repented of this. "This also shall not be," said the Lord God.

Visions of the Plummets. 7† Then the Lord God showed me this: he was standing by a wall, plummet in hand. 8 The LORD asked me, "What do you see, Amos?" And when I answered, "A plummet," the Lord said:

See, I will lay the plummet
in the midst of my people Israel;
I will forgive them no longer.

9 The high places of Isaac shall be laid waste, and the sanctuaries of Israel
made desolate;
I will attack the house of Jeroboam with the sword.

Amos and Amaziah. 10 Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, sent word to Jeroboam, king of Israel: "Amos has conspired against you here within Israel; the country cannot endure all his words. 11 For this is what Amos says:

Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall surely be exiled from its land."

12 To Amos, Amaziah said: "Off with you, visionary, flee to the land of Judah! There earn your bread by prophesying, 13 but never again prophesy in Bethel; for it is the king's sanctuary and a royal temple." 14† Amos answered Amaziah, "I was no prophet, nor have I belonged to a company of prophets; I was a shepherd and a dresser of sycamores.

15 The LORD took me from following the flock, and said to me, Go, prophesy to my people Israel. 16 Now hear the word of the LORD!"

You say: prophesy not against Israel, preach not against the house of Isaac.

17 Now thus says the LORD:
Your wife shall be made a harlot in the city,
and your sons and daughters shall fall by the sword;
Your land shall be divided by measuring line,
and you yourself shall die in an unclean land;
Israel shall be exiled far from its land.

CHAPTER 8

Vision of the Fruit Basket. 1 This is what the Lord God showed me: a basket of ripe fruit. 2 "What do you see, Amos?" he asked. I answered, "A basket of ripe fruit." Then the LORD said to me:

The time is ripe to have done with my people Israel;
I will forgive them no longer.

3 The temple songs shall become wallings on that day,
says the Lord God.
Many shall be the corpses, strewn everywhere. Silence!

Against Greed

4 Hear this, you who trample upon the needy and destroy the poor of the land!
5† "When will the new moon be over,"
you ask,
"that we may sell our grain,
and the sabbath, that we may display the wheat?"
We will diminish the ephah,
add to the shekel,
and fix our scales for cheating!
6 We will buy the lowly man for silver,
and the poor man for a pair of sandals;
even the refuse of the wheat we will sell!"

† 7, 1: The king's mowing: the first mowing, a portion of which was payable to the king as a tax.

7, 4: Fire: understood by many as a burning drought.

7, 7: Plummet in hand: signifying that God is about to withdraw his mercy from his people and that the nation is to be measured for destruction.

7, 14†: Amos denies that he belonged to the class of professional prophets; his vocation is due to the personal intervention of the Lord.

8, 5: Ephah: a standard of measure; a little more than a bushel.

- 7† The LORD has sworn by the pride of Jacob:
Never will I forget a thing they have done!
- 8† Shall not the land tremble because of this,
and all who dwell in it mourn,
While it rises up and tosses like the Nile,
and settles back like the river of Egypt?
- 9 On that day, says the Lord GOD,
I will make the sun set at midday and cover the earth with darkness in broad daylight.
- 10* I will turn your feasts into mourning and all your songs into lamentations.
I will cover the loins of all with sack-cloth and make every head bald.
I will make them mourn as for an only son,
and bring their day to a bitter end.
- 11 Yes, days are coming, says the Lord GOD,
when I will send famine upon the land:
Not a famine of bread, or thirst for water,
but for hearing the word of the LORD.
- 12 Then shall they wander from sea to sea and rove from the north to the east
In search of the word of the LORD, but they shall not find it.
- 13 On that day, fair virgins and young men shall faint from thirst;
- 14† Those who swear by the shameful idol of Samaria,
"By the life of your god, O Dan!"
"By the life of your love, O Beer-sheba!"
those shall fall, never to rise again.

CHAPTER 9

Vision of the Altar. †† I saw the Lord standing beside the altar, and he said:

- Strike the bases, so that the door-jambs totter till you break them off on the heads of them all!
Those who are left I will slay with the sword;
not one shall flee,
no survivor shall escape.
- 2* Though they break through to the nether world,
even from there my hand shall bring them out;

- Though they climb to the heavens,
I will bring them down;
- 3† Though they hide on the summit of Carmel,
there too I will hunt them out and take them away;
Though they hide from my gaze in the bottom of the sea,
I will command the serpent there to bite them;
- 4* Though they are led into captivity by their enemies,
there will I command the sword to slay them.
I will fix my gaze upon them for evil, and not for good,
- 5 I, the Lord GOD of hosts.
I melt the earth with my touch,
so that all who dwell on it mourn,
While it all rises up like the Nile,
and settles back like the river of Egypt;
- 6* I have built heaven, my upper chamber,
and established my vault over the earth;
I summon the waters of the sea and pour them upon the surface of the earth,
I, the LORD by name.
- 7*† Are you not like the Ethiopians to me,
O men of Israel, says the LORD?
Did I not bring the Israelites from the land of Egypt
As I brought the Philistines from Caphtor and the Arameans from Kir?
- 8 The eyes of the Lord GOD are on this sinful kingdom;
I will destroy it from off the face of the earth.

Epilogue: Messianic Perspective

But I will not destroy the house of Jacob completely,
says the LORD.

- |                             |                         |
|-----------------------------|-------------------------|
| 8, 10: Tb 2, 6; 1 Mc 1, 41. | 6: Am 5, 8.             |
| 9, 2: Ps 139, 8.            | 7: Dt 2, 23; Jer 47, 4. |
| 4: Jer 44, 11.              |                         |

†

8, 7: The pride of Jacob: the sinful pride detested by God (6, 8), in contrast to God himself, who is the true Pride of Jacob.

8, 8: The figure is based on the annual flooding of the river Nile.

8, 14: Dan and Beer-sheba: the extreme northern and southern limits of the country, where idolatrous worship was offered.

9, 1-8: There will be no escape from God's punishment, symbolized here by the destruction of a building, probably the schismatic temple at Bethel.

9, 3: Serpent: the sea monster of familiar legend, subdued by God at the time of creation and lurking still in the ocean depths; cf Ps 89, 10f.

9, 7: The Ethiopians . . . the Philistines . . . the Arameans: by nature Israel is not different from any other nation. It was not because of any merit on Israel's part that God delivered them from Egypt. Caphtor: the island of Crete.

- 9 For see, I have given the command to sift the house of Israel among all the nations,
As one sifts with a sieve, letting no pebble fall to the
ground.
- 10 By the sword shall all sinners among my people die,
those who say, "Evil will not reach or overtake us."
- 11*† On that day I will raise up
the fallen hut of David;
I will wall up its breaches,
raise up its ruins,
and rebuild it as in the days of old,
- 12 That they may conquer what is left of Edom
and all the nations that shall bear
my name,
say I, the LORD, who will do this.
- 13* Yes, days are coming,
says the LORD,
When the plowman shall overtake the reaper,

- and the vintager, him who sows
the seed;
The juice of grapes shall drip down
the mountains,
and all the hills shall run with it.
- 14 I will bring about the restoration of my people Israel;
they shall rebuild and inhabit
their ruined cities,
Plant vineyards and drink the wine,
set out gardens and eat the fruits.
- 15 I will plant them upon their own
ground;
never again shall they be plucked From the land I have given them, say I, the LORD, your God.

11: Acts 15, 16.

13: Jl 3, 18.

†
9, 11f: In Acts 15, 15ff St. James interprets this passage in a messianic sense. Fallen hut: the kingdom. The nations that shall bear my name: the Gentile peoples who shall be converted to the Lord, that is, conquered by him, and therefore shall bear his name.

The Book of
OBADIAH

The twenty-one verses of this book contain the shortest and sternest prophecy in the Old Testament. Nothing is known of the author, although his oracle against Edom, a long-standing enemy of Israel, indicates a date of composition sometime in the fifth century B.C. During this period the Edomites had been forced to abandon their ancient home near the Gulf of Aqaba and had settled in southern Judah, where they appear among the adversaries of the Jews returning from exile.

The prophecy is a bitter cry for vengeance against Edom for its heinous crimes. The mountain of Esau will be occupied and ravaged by the enemy but Zion shall remain inviolate. Judah and Israel shall again form one nation; and that triumphant refrain of Israelite eschatology will be heard once more: "The Kingdom is the Lord's!" Many of the verses in this prophecy can be paralleled in Jer 49, 7-22, but it is difficult to determine the precise relationship between these similar passages.

Title and Theme

- 1* The vision of Obadiah.
[Thus says the Lord God:]
- Of Edom we have heard a message
from the LORD,
and a herald has been sent among
the nations:
"Up! let us go to war against him!"

Edom Shall Perish

- 2* See, I make you small among the nations;
you are held in dire contempt.
- 3 The pride of your heart has deceived you:
you who dwell in the clefts of the rock,
whose abode is in the heights,
Who say in your heart,
"Who will bring me down to earth?"
- 4 Though you go as high as the eagle, and your nest be set among the stars,
From there will I bring you down,
says the LORD.
- 5*† If thieves came to you, if robbers by night,
how could you be thus destroyed:
would they not steal merely till they had enough?
If vintagers came to you,
would they not leave some gleanings?
- 6 How they search Esau,
seek out his hiding places!
- 7† To the border they drive you—
all your allies;
They deceive you, they overpower you—
those at peace with you;
Those who eat your bread
lay snares beneath you:

- There is no understanding in him!
8*† Shall I not, says the LORD, on that day make the wise men disappear from Edom, and understanding from the mount of Esau?
- 9† Your warriors, O Teman, shall be crushed, till all on Mount Esau are destroyed.

The Cause

- 10*† Because of violence to your brother Jacob, disgrace shall cover you
and you shall be destroyed forever.
- 11† On the day when you stood by,
on the day when aliens carried off
his possessions,
And strangers entered his gates and cast lots over Jerusalem,
you too were one of them.

1, 1: Jer 49, 14.
2†: Jer 49, 15f.
5: Jer 49, 9.

8: Is 29, 14; 1 Cor
1, 19.
10: Gn 27, 41f.

†

5: Something of value may escape the robber, and the vintager always leaves something for the gleaners, but God's devastation of Edom will be complete.

7: There is no understanding in him: Edom's faithless allies assure one another that he does not have sense enough to be able to defend himself.

8: The wise men: Edom was proverbial for its wise men, cf Jer 49, 7.

9: Teman: one of the names used for the land southeast of Palestine, here synonymous with Edom. Esau: here used as the name of the land.

10: Your brother Jacob: Esau, also called Edom, and Jacob, the father of Judah, were the sons of Isaac (Gn 25, 24ff).

11: After the devastation of Judah, Edom occupied the southern part of its territory. Edomites also joined the invading Chaldean forces (13) and assisted them in capturing the people of Judah (14).

- 12 Gaze not upon the day of your brother,
the day of his disaster;
Exult not over the children of Judah
on the day of their ruin; Speak not haughtily
on the day of distress!
- 13 Enter not the gate of my people on the day of their calamity;
Gaze not, you at least, upon his misfortune
on the day of his calamity;
Lay not hands upon his possessions
on the day of his calamity!
- 14 Stand not at the crossroads to slay his refugees; Betray not his fugitives
on the day of distress!

Judgment upon the Nations

- 15* For near is the day of the LORD
for all the nations!
As you have done, so shall it be done
to you,
your deed shall come back upon your own head;
- 16† As you have drunk upon my holy mountain,
so shall all the nations drink continually.
Yes, they shall drink and swallow, and shall become as though they had not been.

Judah Shall Be Restored

- 17† But on Mount Zion there shall be a portion saved;
the mountain shall be holy,
And the house of Jacob shall take possession of those that dispossessed them.
- 18 The house of Jacob shall be a fire,
and the house of Joseph a flame;

- The house of Esau shall be stubble, and they shall set them ablaze and devour them;
Then none shall survive of the house of Esau,
for the LORD has spoken.
- 19 They shall occupy the Negeb, the
mount of Esau,
and the foothills of the Philistines;
And they shall occupy the lands of Ephraim
and the lands of Samaria, and Benjamin shall occupy Gilead.
- 20† The captives of the host of the children of Israel shall occupy the Canaanite land
as far as Zarephath,
And the captives of Jerusalem who are in Sepharad shall occupy the cities of the Negeb.
- 21† And saviors shall ascend Mount Zion
to rule the mount of Esau, and the kingship shall be the LORD'S.

---

15f: Ps 137, 7ff.

†
16: As you have drunk: the Lord addresses the people of Judah. As the people of Jerusalem have drunk the cup of retribution, so shall the nations, and especially Edom (18), suffer punishment. This metaphorical use of drinking the cup of God's wrath is common in the Bible; cf Jb 21, 20; Is 19, 14; Jer 25, 15f.

17f: The Israelites shall be restored and shall occupy the lands of those who oppressed them. The survivors of Judah shall be rejoined by the returned exiles from northern Israel.

20: Zarephath: a town in Phoenicia, north of Tyre; cf 1 Kgs 17, 10. Ezekiel's ideal boundaries of the new Israel (Ez 47, 13ff) extend farther north. Sepharad: probably Sardis in western Asia Minor. The later rabbis thought it to be Spain.

21: Saviors: the victorious Israelites who will rule over their enemies after the fashion of the ancient Judges; cf Jgs 3, 9, 15, 31, 10, 1.

The Book of JONAH

Written in the postexilic era, probably in the fifth century B.C., this book is a didactic story with an important theological message. It concerns a disobedient prophet who attempted to run away from his divine commission, was cast overboard and swallowed by a great fish, rescued in a marvelous manner, and sent on his way to Nineveh, the traditional enemy of Israel. To the surprise of Jonah, the wicked city listened to his message of doom and repented immediately. All, from king to lowliest subject, humbled themselves in sackcloth and ashes. Seeing their repentance, God did not carry out the punishment he had planned for them. Whereupon Jonah complained to God about the unexpected success of his mission; he was bitter because Yahweh, instead of destroying, had led the people to repentance and then spared them.

From this partly humorous story, a very sublime lesson may be drawn. Jonah stands for a narrow and vindictive mentality, all too common among the Jews of that period. Because they were the chosen people, a good many of them cultivated an intolerant nationalism which limited the mercy of God to their nation. It was abhorrent to their way of thinking that nations as wicked as Assyria should escape his wrath.

The prophecy, which is both instructive and entertaining, strikes directly at this viewpoint. It is a parable of mercy, showing that God's threatened punishments are but the expression of a merciful will which moves all men to repent and seek forgiveness. The universality of the story contrasts sharply with the particularistic spirit of many in the postexilic community. The book has also prepared the way for the gospel with its message of redemption for all, both Jew and Gentile.

---

CHAPTER 1

The First Mission. <sup>1*</sup>† This is the word of the LORD that came to Jonah, son of Amittai: <sup>2*</sup> "Set out for the great city of Nineveh, and preach against it; their wickedness has come up before me." <sup>3†</sup> But Jonah made ready to flee to Tarshish away from the LORD. He went down to Joppa, found a ship going to Tarshish, paid the fare, and went aboard to journey with them to Tarshish, away from the LORD.

<sup>4</sup> The LORD, however, hurled a violent wind upon the sea, and in the furious tempest that arose the ship was on the point of breaking up. <sup>5</sup> Then the mariners became frightened and each one cried to his god. To lighten the ship for themselves, they threw its cargo into the sea. Meanwhile, Jonah had gone down into the hold of the ship, and lay there fast asleep. <sup>6</sup> The captain came to him and said, "What are you doing asleep? Rise up, call upon your God! Perhaps God will be mindful of us so that we may not perish."

<sup>7</sup> Then they said to one another, "Come, let us cast lots to find out on whose account we have met with this misfortune." So they cast lots, and thus singled out Jonah. <sup>8</sup> "Tell us," they said, "what is your business? Where do you come from? What is your country, and to what people do you belong?" <sup>9</sup> "I am a Hebrew," Jonah answered them; "I worship the LORD, the God of heaven, who made the sea and the dry land."

<sup>10</sup> Now the men were seized with great fear and said to him, "How could you do such a thing!"—They knew that he was fleeing from the LORD, because he had told them.—<sup>11</sup> "What shall we do with you," they asked, "that the sea may quiet down for us?" For the sea was growing more and more turbulent. <sup>12</sup> Jonah said to them, "Pick me up and throw me into the sea, that it may quiet down for you; since I know it is because of me that this violent storm has come upon you."

<sup>13</sup> Still the men rowed hard to regain the land, but they could not, for the sea grew ever more turbulent. <sup>14†</sup> Then they cried to the LORD: "We beseech you, O LORD, let us not perish for taking this

---

1, 1: 2 Kgs 14, 25.

2: 3, 3; 4, 11.

† 1, 1: Jonah, son of Amittai: a prophet of this name lived at the time of Jeroboam II (786-746 B.C.).

1, 3: Tarshish: identified by many with Tartessus, an ancient Phoenician colony in southwest Spain; precise identification with any particular Phoenician center in the western Mediterranean is uncertain. To the Hebrews it stood for the far west.

1, 14: Since it has pleased the Lord to punish Jonah, the mariners ask that in ridding themselves of him they be not charged with the crime of murder.

man's life; do not charge us with shedding innocent blood, for you, LORD, have done as you saw fit." <sup>15</sup> Then they took Jonah and threw him into the sea, and the sea's raging abated. <sup>16</sup> Struck with great fear of the LORD, the men offered sacrifice and made vows to him.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1*</sup> But the LORD sent a large fish, that swallowed Jonah; and he remained in the belly of the fish three days and three nights. <sup>2</sup> From the belly of the fish Jonah said this prayer to the LORD, his God:

Psalm of Thanksgiving

- <sup>3*</sup> Out of my distress I called to the LORD, and he answered me;
From the midst of the nether world
I cried for help,
and you heard my voice.
- <sup>4*</sup> For you cast me into the deep, into the heart of the sea,
and the flood enveloped me;
All your breakers and your billows passed over me.
- <sup>5*</sup> Then I said, "I am banished from your sight!
yet would I again look upon your holy temple."
- <sup>6*</sup> The waters swirled about me, threatening my life;
the abyss enveloped me;
seaweed clung about my head.
- <sup>7*</sup> Down I went to the roots of the mountains;
the bars of the nether world were closing behind me forever,
But you brought my life up from the pit,
O LORD, my God.
- <sup>8*</sup> When my soul fainted within me,
I remembered the LORD;
My prayer reached you
in your holy temple.
- <sup>9*</sup> Those who worship vain idols forsake their source of mercy.
- <sup>10*</sup> But I, with resounding praise,
will sacrifice to you;
What I have vowed I will pay:
deliverance is from the LORD.

<sup>11</sup> Then the LORD commanded the fish to spew Jonah upon the shore.

CHAPTER 3

Conversion of Nineveh. <sup>1</sup> The word of the LORD came to Jonah a second time: <sup>2</sup> "Set out for the great city of Nineveh, and announce to it the message that I will tell you." <sup>3</sup> So Jonah made ready and went to Nineveh, according to the LORD's bidding. Now Nineveh was an enormously large city; it took three days to go through it. <sup>4</sup>† Jonah began his journey through the city, and had gone but a single day's walk announcing, "Forty days more and Nineveh shall be destroyed," <sup>5*</sup> when the people of Nineveh believed God; they proclaimed a fast and all of them, great and small, put on sackcloth.

<sup>6</sup> When the news reached the king of Nineveh, he rose from his throne, laid aside his robe, covered himself with sackcloth, and sat in the ashes. <sup>7</sup> Then he had this proclaimed throughout Nineveh, by decree of the king and his nobles: "Neither man nor beast, neither cattle nor sheep, shall taste anything; they shall not eat, nor shall they drink water. <sup>8</sup>† Man and beast shall be covered with sackcloth and call loudly to God; every man shall turn from his evil way and from the violence he has in hand. <sup>9*</sup> Who knows, God may relent and forgive, and withhold his blazing wrath, so that we shall not perish." <sup>10</sup> When God saw by their actions how they turned from their evil way, he repented of the evil that he had threatened to do to them; he did not carry it out.

CHAPTER 4

Jonah's Anger: God's Reproof. <sup>1</sup>† But this was greatly displeasing to Jonah, and he became angry. <sup>2*</sup> "I beseech you, LORD," he prayed, "is not this what I said while I was still in my own country? This is why I fled at first to Tarshish. I knew that you are a gracious and merciful God, slow to anger, rich in clemency, loathe to punish. <sup>3*</sup> And now, LORD, please take my life from me; for it is better for me to die than to live." <sup>4</sup> But the LORD asked, "Have you reason to be angry?"

<sup>5</sup> Jonah then left the city for a place to the east of it, where he built himself a hut and waited under it in the shade, to see what would happen to the city.

- |   |                                |
|---|--------------------------------|
| 2, 1: Mt 12, 40; 16, 4;Lk 11, 30; 1 Cor15, 4. | 8: Pss 5, 8; 18, 7;88, 3.  |
| 3: Pss 18, 7; 120,1.                              | 9: Ps 31, 7.                   |
| 4: Ps 42, 8.  | 10: Ps 50, 14.                 |
| 5: Ps 31, 23; Is 38,11.                           | 3, 5: Mt 12, 41; Lk 11,32. |
| 6: Pss 18, 5; 69, 2.                                  | 9: Jl 2, 14.                   |
| 7: Pss 16, 10; 30,4.                              | 4, 2: Ps 86, 5; Jl 2,13.   |
|   | 3: 1 Kgs 19, 4.                |

†

3, 4: Shall be destroyed: the Hebrew expression reminds the reader of the "overthrowing" of the wicked cities, Sodom and Gomorrah, by a special act of God.

3, 8: Beast . . . sackcloth: the animals carried the signs of this repentance, as on occasions of joy they bore garlands.

4, 1: He became angry: because of his narrowly nationalistic vindictiveness, Jonah did not wish the Lord to forgive the Ninevites.

<sup>6</sup>† And when the LORD God provided a gourd plant, that grew up over Jonah's head, giving shade that relieved him of any discomfort, Jonah was very happy over the plant. <sup>7</sup>But the next morning at dawn God sent a worm which attacked the plant, so that it withered. <sup>8</sup>And when the sun arose, God sent a burning east wind; and the sun beat upon Jonah's head till he became faint. Then he asked for death, saying, "I would be better off dead than alive."

<sup>9</sup>But God said to Jonah, "Have you reason to be angry over the plant?" "I have reason to be angry," Jonah answered, "angry enough to die."<sup>10</sup>† Then the LORD said, "You are concerned over the plant which cost you no labor and which you did not raise; it came up in one night and in one night it perished. <sup>11</sup>And should I not be concerned over Nineveh, the great city, in which there are more than a hundred and twenty thousand persons who cannot distinguish their right hand from their left, not to mention the many cattle?"

---

† 4, 6: Gourd plant: the Hebrew word, kikayon means here a wide-leaved plant of the cucumber or castor-bean variety.

4, 10†: Jonah is selfish in bemoaning his personal loss of a shady gourd plant without any concern over the threat of loss of life to the Ninevites through the destruction of their city. If God in his kindness provided the plant for his prophet without the latter's effort or merit, how much more is he disposed to show love and mercy toward all men, Jew and Gentile, when they repent of their sins and implore his pardon! God's providence is also shown here to extend even to animals.

The Book of MICAH

Micah was a contemporary of Isaiah. Of his personal life and call we know nothing except that he came from the obscure village of Moresheth in the foothills. His were the broad vistas of the Judean lowland and the distant sea on the western horizon. With burning eloquence he attacked the rich exploiters of the poor, fraudulent merchants, venal judges, corrupt priests and prophets. To the man of the countryside the vices of the nation seemed centered in its capitals, for both Samaria and Jerusalem are singled out for judgment. An interesting notice in Jer 26, 17f informs us that the reform of Hezekiah was influenced by the preaching of Micah.

The prophecy may be divided into three parts:

- I: The impending judgment of the Lord, followed by an exposition of its causes, Israel's sins. Censure of Judah's leaders for betrayal of their responsibility. (1, 1—3, 12)
- II: The glory of the restored Zion. A prince of David's house will rule over a reunited Israel. (St. Matthew's Nativity narrative points to Christ's birth in Bethlehem as the fulfillment of this prophecy.) A remnant shall survive the chastisement of Judah and her adversaries shall be destroyed. (4, 1—5, 14)
- III: The case against Israel, in which the Lord is portrayed as the plaintiff who has maintained fidelity to the covenant. The somber picture closes with a prayer for national restoration and a beautiful expression of trust in God's pardoning mercy. (6, 1—7, 20)

It should be noted that each of these three divisions begins with reproach and the threat of punishment, and ends on a note of hope and promise.

---

I: PUNISHMENT OF ISRAEL'S SINS

CHAPTER 1

Divine Judgment. <sup>1</sup>The word of the LORD which came to Micah of Moresheth in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah: that is, the vision he received concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.

- <sup>2</sup>*† Hear, O peoples, all of you, give heed, O earth, and all that fills you!
Let the Lord GOD be witness against you,
the Lord from his holy temple!
- <sup>3</sup>* For see, the LORD comes forth from his place,
he descends and treads upon the heights of the earth.
- <sup>4</sup> The mountains melt under him
and the valleys split open,
Like wax before the fire,
like water poured down a slope.
- <sup>5</sup> For the crime of Jacob all this comes to pass, and for the sins of the house of Israel.
What is the crime of Jacob?
Is it not Samaria?

And what is the sin of the house of Judah?

Is it not Jerusalem?

- <sup>6</sup> I will make Samaria a stone heap in the field,
a place to plant for vineyards;
I will throw down into the valley her stones,
and lay bare her foundations.
- <sup>7</sup>*† All her idols shall be broken to pieces,
all her wages shall be burned in the fire,
and all her statues I will destroy.
As the wages of a harlot they were gathered,
and to the wages of a harlot shall they return.
- <sup>8</sup>* For this reason I lament and wail,
I go barefoot and naked;

---

1, 2: Dt 32, 1; Is 1, 2.
3f: Is 26, 21; Na 1,
5; Hb 3, 10.

7: Hos 9, 1.
8: Jb 30, 29.

† 1, 2: His holy temple: God's heavenly temple; the prophet pictures a theophany (3f).

1, 7: The comparison of the unfaithful people with a prostitute, first found in Hosea, is frequent with the prophets; probably ritual prostitution is meant; cf Am 2, 7f; Hos 4, 14.

- I utter lamentation like the jackals, and mourning like the ostriches.
- 9 There is no remedy for the blow she has been struck;
rather, it has come even to Judah,
It reaches to the gate of my people,
even to Jerusalem.
- 10*† Publish it not in Gath, weep not at all;
In Beth-leaphrah
roll in the dust.
- 11 Pass by,
you who dwell in Shaphir!
The inhabitants of Zaanan come not forth from their city.
The lamentation of Beth-ezel finds in you its grounds.
- 12 How can the inhabitants of Maroth hope for good?
For evil has come down from the
LORD
to the gate of Jerusalem.
- 13 Harness steeds to the chariots,
O inhabitants of Lachish;
Lachish, the beginning of sin
for daughter Zion,
Because there were in you
the crimes of Israel.
- 14 Therefore you shall give parting gifts to Moresheth-gath;
Beth-achzib is a deception
to the kings of Israel.
- 15 Yet must I bring to you the conqueror,
O inhabitants of Mareshah;
Even to Adullam shall go
the glory of Israel.
- 16† Make yourself bald, pluck out your hair,
for the children whom you cherish;
Let your baldness be as the eagle's,
because they are exiled from you.
- 4 On that day a satire shall be sung
over you,
and there shall be a plaintive
chant:
"Our ruin is complete,
our fields are portioned out among our captors,
The fields of my people are measured out,
and no one can get them back!"
- 5† Thus you shall have no one to mark out boundaries by lot in the assembly of the LORD.
- 6† "Preach not," they preach,
"let them not preach of these things!"
The shame will not withdraw.
- 7 How can it be said, O house of Jacob,
"Is the LORD short of patience, or are such his deeds?"
Do not my words promise good to him who walks uprightly?
- 8 But of late my people has risen up
as an enemy:
you have stripped off the mantle covering the tunic
Of those who go their way in confidence,
as though it were spoils of war.
- 9† The women of my people you drive
out
from their pleasant houses;
From their children you take away forever the honor I gave them.
- 10† "Up! Be off,
this is no place to rest";
For any trifle you exact
a crippling pledge.
- 11 If one, acting on impulse, should make the futile claim:

---

10. 2 Sm 1, 20.

CHAPTER 2

Social Evils

- 1 Woe to those who plan iniquity, and work out evil on their couches;
In the morning light they accomplish it
when it lies within their power.
- 2† They covet fields, and seize them;
houses, and they take them;
They cheat an owner of his house,
a man of his inheritance.
- 3 Therefore thus says the LORD:
Behold, I am planning against this race an evil
from which you shall not withdraw your necks;
Nor shall you walk with head high,
for it will be a time of evil.

†
1, 10-15: The Judean cities here named were in the vicinity of Moresheth, the region with which Micah was most familiar. They were to experience divine chastisement. In the Hebrew, wordplays on the names of these cities abound. The text is partly obscure.

1, 16: Shaving the head was a sign of mourning; cf Is 3, 24; Am 8, 10.

2, 2: Land monopoly, also denounced by Isaiah, was a chronic vice in Judah. To protect the poor against it, a man's inheritance, his ancestral property, was supposed to be inviolate; cf 1 Kgs 21, 1-4; but the wealthy in their greed were enslaving men for their debts and depriving them of their land.

2, 5: To mark our boundaries by lot: an allusion to the initial distribution of the land of Palestine among the Israelites; cf Jos 13-21. The appropriate punishment of those greedy for land will be the loss of their land to their enemies (v 4), a loss that will be irrevocable.

2, 6f: The words in quotation marks are the protestations of the people against the prophet's predictions of doom.

2, 9: The honor I gave them: their dignity as free Israelites.
2, 10: A crippling pledge: Israelite law forbade exacting pledges for loans that would work hardship on the borrower (Ex 22, 25f; Dt 24, 6.10-13.17); but the law was habitually violated.

- "I pour you wine and strong drink as my prophecy," then he would be the prophet of this people.
- 12† I will gather you, O Jacob, each and every one,
I will assemble all the remnant of Israel;
I will group them like a flock in the fold,
like a herd in the midst of its corral;
they shall not be thrown into panic
by men.
- 13 With a leader to break the path they shall burst open the gate and go out through it;
Their king shall go through before
them,
and the LORD at their head.

CHAPTER 3

Downfall of Present Leaders

- 1 And I said:
Hear, you leaders of Jacob,
rulers of the house of Israel!
Is it not your duty to know what is right,
- 2* You who hate what is good, and love evil?
You who tear their skin from them,
and their flesh from their bones!
- 3 They eat the flesh of my people,
and flay their skin from them,
and break their bones.
They chop them in pieces like flesh
in a kettle,
and like meat in a caldron.
- 4 When they cry to the LORD,
he shall not answer them;
Rather shall he hide his face from them at that time,
because of the evil they have done.
- 5*† Thus says the LORD regarding the prophets
who lead my people astray;
Who, when their teeth have something to bite,
announce peace,
But when one fails to put something in their mouth,
proclaim war against him.
- 6* Therefore you shall have night, not vision,
darkness, not divination;
The sun shall go down upon the
prophets,
and the day shall be dark for
them.
- 7 Then shall the seers be put to shame,
and the diviners confounded;
They shall cover their lips, all of
them,
because there is no answer from
God.

- 8 But as for me, I am filled with power, with the spirit of the LORD,
with authority and with might;
To declare to Jacob his crimes and to Israel his sins.
- 9 Hear this, you leaders of the house of Jacob,
you rulers of the house of Israel!
You who abhor what is just,
and pervert all that is right;
- 10 Who build up Zion with bloodshed,
and Jerusalem with wickedness!
- 11* Her leaders render judgment for a bribe,
her priests give decisions for a salary,
her prophets divine for money,
While they rely on the LORD, saying,
"Is not the LORD in the midst of
us?
No evil can come upon us!"
- 12* Therefore, because of you,
Zion shall be plowed like a field,
and Jerusalem reduced to rubble,
And the mount of the temple
to a forest ridge.

II: THE NEW ISRAEL

CHAPTER 4

The People To Be Restored

- 1*† In days to come the mount of the LORD's house Shall be established higher than the mountains;
it shall rise high above the hills,
And peoples shall stream to it:
- 2 Many nations shall come, and say,
"Come, let us climb the mount of the
LORD,
to the house of the God of Jacob,
That he may instruct us in his ways,
that we may walk in his paths."
For from Zion shall go forth instruction,
and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.
- 3 He shall judge between many peoples
and impose terms on strong and distant nations;
They shall beat their swords into plowshares,

3, 2: Am 2, 7. 11: Ez 22, 27; Zep
5: Ez 13, 10. 3, 3.
6: Jer 15, 9; Am 8. 12: Jer 26, 18.
9, Zec 13, 3. 4, 1ff: Is 2, 2ff.

† 2, 12f: The messianic passage concerning the restoration after the Babylonian exile seems out of place here and is probably a later addition.

3, 5-8: Almost all the prophetic books contain oracles against the false prophets. Here Micah accuses them of prophesying for venal motives and determining the prophecy by the price that is paid them; he contrasts his own disinter-ested preaching of the word of God.

4, 1ff: See note on Is 2, 2ff.

- and their spears into pruning hooks;
 One nation shall not raise the sword against another,
 nor shall they train for war again.
- 4* Every man shall sit under his own vine or under his own fig tree, undisturbed;
 for the mouth of the LORD of hosts has spoken.
- 5 For all the peoples walk each in the name of its god,
 But we will walk in the name of the LORD,
 our God, forever and ever.
- 6 On that day, says the LORD,
 I will gather the lame,
 And I will assemble the outcasts,
 and those whom I have afflicted.
- 7* I will make of the lame a remnant,
 and of those driven far off a strong nation;
 And the LORD shall be king over them on Mount Zion, from now on forever.
- 8† And you, O Magdal-eder, hillock of daughter Zion!
 Unto you shall it come:
 the former dominion shall be restored,
 the kingdom of daughter Jerusalem.
- 9 Now why do you cry out so?
 Are you without a king?
 Or has your counselor perished,
 That you are seized with pains like a woman in travail?
- 10† Writhe in pain, grow faint,
 O daughter Zion,
 like a woman in travail;
 For now shall you go forth from the city
 and dwell in the fields;
 To Babylon shall you go,
 there shall you be rescued.
 There shall the LORD redeem you from the hand of your enemies.
- 11 How many nations are gathered against you!
 They say, "Let her be profaned, let our eyes see Zion's downfall!"
- 12 But they know not the thoughts of the LORD, nor understand his counsel,
 When he has gathered them like sheaves on the threshing floor.
- 13* Arise and thresh, O daughter Zion;
 your horn I will make iron
 And your hoofs bronze,
 that you may crush many peoples;
 You shall devote their spoils to the LORD,
 and their riches to the Lord of the whole earth.

Restoration through the Messiah

- 14† Now fence yourself in, Bat-gader!
 "They have laid siege against us!"
 With the rod they strike on the cheek
 the ruler of Israel.

CHAPTER 5

- 1*† But you, Bethlehem-Ephrathah too small to be among the clans of Judah,
 From you shall come forth for me
 one who is to be ruler in Israel;
 Whose origin is from of old,
 from ancient times.
- 2*† (Therefore the Lord will give them up, until the time
 when she who is to give birth has borne,
 And the rest of his brethren shall return to the children of Israel.)
- 3 He shall stand firm and shepherd his flock
 by the strength of the LORD, in the majestic name of the LORD,
 his God;
 And they shall remain, for now his greatness shall reach to the ends of the earth;
- 4† he shall be peace.

If Assyria invades our country and treads upon our land,
 We shall raise against it seven shepherds,
 eight men of royal rank;

-
- |   |  |
|---|--|
| 4: Hos 14, 8; Am 9, 14.                     | 10, 11.  |
| 7: Is 6, 13; Dn 7, 14; Zep 3, 19; Lk 1, 32. | 5, 1: Ru 1, 2; 1 Sm 17, 12; Mt 2, 6; Jn 7, 42. |
| 13: Is 41, 15; Hos                          | 2f: Is 7, 14; 11, 11.                          |

†

4, 8: Magdal-eder: "tower of the flock," an ancient place name (cf Gn 35, 21), here used symbolically of Jerusalem.
 4, 10: For now . . . your enemies: probably a later addition to the text, when the prediction of exile had been fulfilled in the Babylonian captivity. The prophet sees the exile as the means whereby God will purify and restore his people.
 4, 14: Bat-gader: "fenced-in maiden," another symbolic name for Jerusalem, then under siege from the Assyrians.
 5, 1: In contrast to Bat-gader (4, 14), where the ruler of Israel, the reigning king, is in peril of his life from the Assyrians, is the tiny city and clan of Bethlehem-Ephrathah, from which comes the ancient Davidic dynasty (whose origin is from of old, from ancient times) with its messianic King, one who is to be ruler in Israel.
 5, 2: She who is to give birth: the mother of the Messiah; cf Is 7, 14.
 5, 4f: This passage, expressing confidence in Judah's ability to deliver itself from Assyria, is in contrast with the preceding messianic oracle, which ascribes deliverance to the Lord and his agent. Some believe that here the prophet is quoting the words of the defiant men of Judah. The shepherds and men of royal rank are one and the same: warriors capable of routing Assyria. The same kind of numerical progression is used by Amos (1, 3), and elsewhere in the Bible.

- 5† And they shall tend the land of Assyria with the sword, and the land of Nimrod with the drawn sword;
And we shall be delivered from Assyria,
if it invades our land
and treads upon our borders.
- 6 The remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many peoples,
Like dew coming from the LORD,
like raindrops on the grass,
Which wait for no man,
nor tarry for the sons of men.
- 7 And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the nations,
in the midst of many peoples,
Like a lion among beasts of the forest,
like a young lion among flocks of sheep;
When it passes through, it tramples and tears, and there is none to deliver.
- 8 Your hand shall be lifted above your foes,
and all your enemies shall be destroyed.
- 9† On that day, says the LORD,
I will destroy the horses from your midst
and ruin your chariots;
10 I will demolish the cities of your land and tear down all your fortresses.
11 I will abolish the means of divination from your use,
and there shall no longer be soothsayers among you.
- 12*† I will abolish your carved images and the sacred pillars from your midst;
And you shall no longer adore
the works of your hands.
- 13 I will tear out the sacred poles from your midst,
and destroy your cities.
- 14 I will wreak vengeance in anger and wrath upon the nations that have not hearkened.

III: ADMONITION

CHAPTER 6

Accusation and Answer

- 1* Hear, then, what the LORD says:
Arise, present your plea before the mountains,
and let the hills hear your voice!
2 Hear, O mountains, the plea of the LORD,
pay attention, O foundations of the earth!

For the LORD has a plea against his people,
and he enters into trial with Israel.

- 3* O my people, what have I done to you,
or how have I wearied you? Answer me!
- 4* For I brought you up from the land of Egypt,
from the place of slavery I released you;
And I sent before you Moses,
Aaron, and Miriam.
- 5*† My people, remember what Moab's King Balak planned, and how Balaam, the son of Beor, answered him
. . . from Shittim to Gilgal, that you may know the just deeds of the LORD.
- 6*† With what shall I come before the LORD, and bow before God most high?
Shall I come before him with holocausts, with calves a year old?
- 7† Will the LORD be pleased with thousands of rams, with myriad streams of oil?
Shall I give my first-born for my crime,
the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?
- 8* You have been told, O man, what is good,
and what the LORD requires of you:
Only to do right and to love goodness,
and to walk humbly with your God.

12: Hos 3, 4; 10, 11.	6f: Hos 6, 6; 8, 13.
6, 1: Is 6, 2; Ob 1.	Am 5, 21.
3: Jer 2, 5.	8: Dt 26, 16; Zec 7.
4: Ex 15, 20.	9: Mt 23, 23.
5: Nm 22, 23.

† 5, 5: Nimrod: the legendary ancestor of the Mesopotamians; cf Gn 10, 10ff.

5, 9-13: Part of the messianic restoration will consist in the removal of everything that has drawn Israel away from the Lord; this includes not only the objects of false worship, but also the armaments in which the idolaters had trusted.

5, 12f: Sacred pillars . . . sacred poles: see note on Ex 34, 13.

6, 5: From Shittim to Gilgal: from the east to the west side of the Jordan; the events described in Jos 3—5 are meant. The text is defective; however, it is evident that this verse continues the remembrance of God's deeds of mercy to Israel, beginning with the Exodus (v 4) and extending to the conquest, deeds which have provoked so little response from his people.

6, 6f: The people ask how they shall worship the Lord, proposing the various forms of sacrifice. The prophet replies that sacrifice avails nothing without the true spirit of religion. This is one of the best expressions of the prophetic teaching on religion, the preparation for such New Testament passages as Jas 1, 27.

6, 7: Shall I give my first-born: through Canaanite influence the abominable practice of human sacrifice had been introduced under impious kings (cf 2 Kgs 16, 3; 21, 6).

- 9† Hark! the LORD cries to the city.
[It is wisdom to fear your name!]
Hear, O tribe and city council,
- 12 You whose rich men are full of violence, whose inhabitants speak falsehood with deceitful tongues in their heads!
- 10 Am I to bear any longer criminal hoarding and the meager ephah that is accused?
- 11 Shall I acquit criminal balances, bags of false weights?
- 13 Rather I will begin to strike you with devastation because of your sins.
- 15* You shall sow, yet not reap, tread out the olive, yet pour no oil,
and the grapes, yet drink no wine.
- 14* You shall eat, without being satisfied, food that will leave you empty;
What you acquire, you cannot save;
what you do save, I will deliver up to the sword.
- 16† You have kept the decrees of Omri,
and all the works of the house of Ahab,
and you have walked in their counsels;
Therefore I will deliver you up to ruin,
and your citizens to derision;
and you shall bear the reproach
of the nations.

CHAPTER 7

Condemnation and Prayer

- 1 Alas! I am as when the fruit is gathered, as when the vines have been gleaned;
There is no cluster to eat,
no early fig that I crave.
- 2* The faithful are gone from the earth, among men the upright are no more!
They all lie in wait to shed blood,
each one ensnares the other.
- 3* Their hands succeed at evil;
the prince makes demands,
The judge is had for a price,
The great man speaks as he pleases,
- 4 The best of them is like a brier,
the most upright like a thorn hedge.
The day announced by your watchmen!
your punishment has come;
now is the time of your confusion.
- 5*† Put no trust in a friend,

- have no confidence in a companion;
Against her who lies in your bosom guard the portals of your mouth.
- 6* For the son dishonors his father,
the daughter rises up against her mother,
The daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law,
and a man's enemies are those of his household.
- 7* But as for me, I will look to the LORD,
I will put my trust in God my savior;
my God will hear me!
- 8† Rejoice not over me, O my enemy!
though I have fallen, I will arise;
though I sit in darkness, the LORD is my light.
- 9 The wrath of the LORD I will endure
because I have sinned against him, Until he takes up my cause,
and establishes my right.
He will bring me forth to the light;
I will see his justice.
- 10 When my enemy sees this,
shame shall cover her:
She who said to me,
"Where is the LORD, thy God?"
My eyes shall see her downfall;
now shall she be trampled underfoot,
like the mire in the streets.

- 11† It is the day for building your walls;
on that day the boundary shall be taken away.
- 12* It is the day; and they shall come to you from Assyria and from Egypt,
From Tyre even to the River,
from sea to sea, and from mountain to mountain;
- 13 And the land shall be a waste
because of its citizens,

---

15: Dt 28, 38; Am 5, 11; Hg 1, 6.	3: Is 1, 23. 5: Jer 9, 3.
14: Hos 4, 10.	6: Mt 10, 35f.
7, 2: Is 1, 21; Hos 4, 2.	7: Is 8, 17. 12: Zec 14, 16.

† 6, 9: The city: Jerusalem as the embodiment of the crimes of the entire land.

6, 16: Judah has followed the example of the northern kingdom epitomized in the semipaganism of Omri and his son Ahab (1 Kgs 16, 25-34), copying both the corrupted worship and the social injustice of their reigns.

7, 5f: Corresponding to the widespread civil corruption and apostasy from religion is the breakdown of normal human and family relations.

7, 8f: The unnamed enemy of Judah mentioned in these verses may be Assyria or one of the neighboring countries, such as Edom, which stood by to profit at Judah's downfall.

7, 11f: This prophecy of restoration and repopulation of the promised land by the Jews now in exile appears to be from the period after the destruction of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans (587 B.C.).

as a result of their deeds.

- 14† Shepherd your people with your staff,
the flock of your inheritance,
That dwells apart in a woodland,
in the midst of Carmel.
Let them feed in Bashan and Gil-
ead,
as in the days of old;
- 15 As in the days when you came from the land of Egypt,
show us wonderful signs.
- 16 The nations shall behold and be put
to shame,
in spite of all their strength;
They shall put their hands over their
mouths;
their ears shall become deaf.
- 17 They shall lick the dust like the serpent,
like reptiles on the ground;
They shall come quaking from their fastnesses,
trembling in fear of you [the LORD, our God].
- 18* Who is there like you, the God who removes guilt
and pardons sin for the remnant of his inheritance;
Who does not persist in anger for-
ever,
but delights rather in clemency,
- 19 And will again have compassion on
us,
treading underfoot our guilt?
You will cast into the depths of the sea
all our sins;
- 20* You will show faithfulness to Jacob,
and grace to Abraham,
As you have sworn to our fathers from days of old.

---

18: Jer 10, 6; Acts
10, 43.

20: Ps 105, 6; Is 41,
8; 63, 16.

---

†

7, 14-17: This prayer appears to be from the time after the return from exile (537 B.C.), when the people, few in number, possessed only a fragment of their former land, and were surrounded by hostile nations.

The Book of NAHUM

Shortly before the fall of Nineveh in 612 B.C., Nahum uttered his prophecy against the hated city. To understand the prophet's exultant outburst of joy over the impending destruction it is necessary to recall the savage cruelty of Assyria, which had made it the scourge of the ancient Near East for almost three centuries. The royal inscriptions of Assyria afford the best commentary on the burning denunciation of "the bloody city." In the wake of their conquests, mounds of heads, impaled bodies, enslaved citizens, and avaricious looters testified to the ruthlessness of the Assyrians. Little wonder that Judah joined in the general outburst of joy over the destruction of Nineveh!

But Nahum is not a prophet of unrestrained revenge. God's moral government of the world is asserted. Yahweh is the avenger but he is also merciful, a citadel in the day of distress. Nineveh's doom was a judgment on the wicked city. Before many years passed, Jerusalem too was to learn the meaning of such a judgment.

The Book is divided as follows:

The Lord's Coming in Judgment (1, 2—2, 1.3)

The Fall of Nineveh (2, 2—3, 19)

CHAPTER 1

<sup>1</sup> Oracle about Nineveh. The book of the vision of Nahum of Elkosh.

The Lord's Coming in Judgment

- <sup>2</sup>† A jealous and avenging God is the LORD,
an avenger is the LORD, and angry;
The LORD brings vengeance on his adversaries, and lays up wrath for his enemies;
- <sup>3</sup>* The LORD is slow to anger, yet great in power,
and the LORD never leaves the guilty unpunished.
In hurricane and tempest is his path,
and clouds are the dust at his feet;
- <sup>4</sup>*† He rebukes the sea and leaves it dry,
and all the rivers he dries up.
Withered are Bashan and Carmel,
and the bloom of Lebanon fades;
- <sup>5</sup> The mountains quake before him,
and the hills dissolve;
The earth is laid waste before him,
the world and all who dwell in it.
- <sup>6</sup>*† Before his wrath, who can stand firm, and who can face his blazing anger?
His fury is poured out like fire,
and the rocks are rent asunder before him.
- <sup>7</sup> The LORD is good,
a refuge on the day of distress;
He takes care of those who have recourse to him,
when the flood rages;

He makes an end of his opponents,
and his enemies he pursues with darkness.

- <sup>9</sup>† What are you imputing to the LORD?
It is he who will make an end!
The enemy shall not rise a second time;
- <sup>10</sup> As when a tangle of thornbushes is set aflame, like dry stubble, they shall be utterly consumed.
- <sup>12</sup>† For, says the LORD, be they ever so many and so vigorous,
still they shall be mown down and disappear.
Though I have humbled you,
I will humble you no more.
- <sup>13</sup>* Now will I break his yoke from off you,
and burst asunder your bonds.

1, 3: Ex 19, 16ff.

6: Zep 1, 15; 2, 3.

4: Is 33, 9; Hb 3, 6ff.

13: Is 9, 4; 10, 27.

† 1, 2-8: A poem written in the style of the alphabetic psalms; of Pss 9A; 25; 111; 119. Here, however, most of the verses beginning with the letters of the second half of the alphabet are not preserved.

1, 2: A jealous . . . God: see note on Ex 20, 5.

1, 4: Bashan, Carmel and Lebanon were famous for their forests.

1, 6f: The coming of God in judgment has two aspects: to those who oppose him it will be unbearable; to those who have recourse to him it will bring strength and consolation.

1, 9: What are you imputing to the LORD?: the people of Judah are asked what they think God has in mind.

1, 12f: They: the enemies of Judah. You: Judah. His yoke: the dominion of the Assyrian king over Judah.

- 11† From you he came who devised evil against the LORD,
the scoundrel planner.
- 14† The LORD has commanded regarding you:
no descendant shall come to bear
your name;
From your temple I will abolish the carved and the molten image;
I will make your grave a mockery.

CHAPTER 2

- 1* See, upon the mountains there advances
the bearer of good news, announcing peace!
Celebrate your feasts, O Judah, fulfill your vows!
For nevermore shall you be invaded by the scoundrel; he is completely destroyed.
- 3 The LORD will restore the vine of Jacob,
the pride of Israel,
Though ravagers have ravaged
them
and ruined the tendrils.

The Fall of Nineveh

- 2† The hammer comes up against you;
guard the rampart,
Keep watch on the road, gird your loins,
marshall all your strength!
- 4 The shields of his warriors are crimsoned,
the soldiers colored in scarlet;
Fiery steel are the chariots on the day of his mustering.
The horses are frenzied;
- 5 the chariots dash madly through the streets
And wheel in the squares,
looking like firebrands,
flashing like lightning bolts.
- 6† His picked troops are called,
ranks break at their charge;
To the wall they rush,
the mantelet is set up.
- 7 The river gates are opened,
the palace shudders,
8† Its mistress is led forth captive, and her handmaids, under guard, Moaning like doves,
beating their breasts.
- 9 Nineveh is like a pool
whose waters escape;
"Stop! Stop!"
but none turns back.
- 10 "Plunder the silver, plunder the gold!"
There is no end to the treasure, to their wealth in precious things of every kind!

- 11* Emptiness, desolation, waste; melting hearts and trembling
knees,
Writhing in every frame,
every face blanched!
- 12† Where is the lions' cave,
the young lions' den,
Where the lion went in and out,
and the cub, with no one to disturb
them?
- 13 The lion snatched enough for his cubs,
and strangled for his lionesses;
He filled his dens with prey,
and his caves with plunder.
- 14 I come against you,
says the LORD of hosts;
I will consume in smoke your chariots,
and the sword shall devour your young lions;
Your preying on the land I will bring to an end,
the cry of your lionesses shall be heard no more.

CHAPTER 3

Ruin Imminent and Inevitable

- 1* Woe to the bloody city, all lies, full of plunder, whose looting never stops!
- 2 The crack of the whip, the rumbling sounds of wheels;
horses a-gallop, chariots bound-
ing,
- 3 Cavalry charging,
The flame of the sword, the flash of
the spear,
the many slain, the heaping
corpses,
the endless bodies to stumble upon!
- 4* For the many debaucheries of the
harlot,
fair and charming, a mistress of witchcraft,
Who enslaved nations with her har-lotries,
and peoples by her witchcraft:
- 5*† I am come against you,

2, 1: Is 52, 7; Rom 4: Mi 1, 7; Rv 17,
10, 15, 1f.
11: Jl 2, 6, 5: Is 47, 3; Jer 13,
3, 1; Hb 2, 12, 26; Hos 2, 12

† 1, 11: From you . . . the scoundrel planner: addressed to Nineveh, the capital city of Sennacherib, king of Assyria, who besieged Jerusalem c. 700 B.C.
1, 14: You: the king of Assyria.
2, 2: The hammer comes up against you: the enemy is about to crush Nineveh.
2, 6: Mantelet: a movable shelter protecting the besiegers.
2, 8: Mistress . . . and her handmaids: either the queen of Nineveh with the ladies of her court, or the statue of Ishtar, Nineveh's chief goddess, with her temple prostitutes.
2, 12: The lion: the king of Assyria.
3, 5f: The punishment of adulteresses.

- and I will strip your skirt from you;
 I will show your nakedness to the nations,
 to the kingdoms your shame!
- 6 I will cast filth upon you, disgrace you and put you to shame;
- 7 Till everyone who sees you runs from you, saying,
 "Nineveh is destroyed; who can pity her?
 Where can one find any to console her?"
- 8*† Are you better than No-amon that was set among the streams, Surrounded by waters, with the flood for her rampart and water her wall?
- 9 Ethiopia was her strength, and Egypt, and others without end; Put and the Libyans were her auxiliaries.
- 10 Yet even she went captive into exile, even her little ones were dashed to pieces at the corner of every street; For her nobles they cast lots, and all her great men were put into chains.
- 11* You too, shall drink of this till you faint away; you, too, shall seek a refuge from the foe.
- 12 All your fortresses are but fig trees, bearing early figs That fall, when shaken, into the hungry mouth.
- 13* See, the troops are women in your midst; to your foes the gates of your land are open wide, fire has consumed their bars.
- 14† Draw water for the siege, strengthen your fortresses; Go down into the mud and tread the clay, take hold of the brick mold!
- 15 There the fire shall consume you, the sword shall cut you down.
- Multiply like the grasshoppers, multiply like the locusts!
- 16 Make your couriers more numerous than the stars,
- 17 your garrisons as many as grasshoppers, And your scribes as locust swarms gathered on the rubble fences on a cold day!
- Yet when the sun warms them, the grasshoppers will spread their wings and fly, and vanish, no one knows where.
- 18 Alas! how your shepherds slumber, O king of Assyria, your nobles have gone to rest; Your people are scattered upon the mountains, with none to gather them.
- 19 There is no healing for your hurt, your wound is mortal. All who hear this news of you clap their hands over you; For who has not been overwhelmed, steadily, by your malice?

8: Jer 46, 25.
 11: Mi 2, 11.

13: Jer 51, 30.

†

3, 8: No-amon: No was the Egyptian name of the capital of Upper Egypt, called Thebes by the Greeks; its tutelary deity was Amon. This great city was destroyed by the Assyrians in 663 B.C.

3, 14: An ironic exhortation to prepare the city for a futile defense. Go down . . . brick mold: make bricks for the city walls.

HABAKKUK

This prophecy dates from the years 605-597 B.C., or between the great Babylonian victory at Carchemish and Nebuchadnezzar's invasion of Judah which culminated in the capture of Jerusalem. The situation of Judah was desperate at this time, with political intrigue and idolatry widespread in the small kingdom. The first two chapters consist of a dialogue between the prophet and the Lord. For what may be the first time in Israelite literature, a man questions the ways of God, as Habakkuk calls him to account for his government of the world. To this question God replies that he has prepared a chastising rod, Babylon, which will be the avenging instrument in his hand. There is added the divine assurance that the just Israelite will not perish in the calamities about to be visited on the nation.

The third chapter is a magnificent religious lyric, filled with reminiscences of Israel's past and rich in literary borrowings from the poetry of ancient Canaan, though still expressing authentic Israelite faith. God appears in all his majestic splendor and executes vengeance on Judah's enemies. The prophecy ends with a joyous profession of confidence in the Lord, the Savior.

CHAPTER 1

<sup>1</sup> The oracle which Habakkuk the prophet received in vision.

The Prophet's Complaint and Its Answer

- <sup>2</sup>† How long, O LORD? I cry for help but you do not listen!
I cry out to you, "Violence!"
but you do not intervene.
- <sup>3</sup> Why do you let me see ruin;
why must I look at misery?
Destruction and violence are before
me;
there is strife, and clamorous discord.
- <sup>4</sup> This is why the law is benumbed, and judgment is never rendered:
Because the wicked circumvent the just;
this is why judgment comes forth perverted.
- <sup>5</sup>*† Look over the nations and see,
and be utterly amazed!
For a work is being done in your days
that you would not have believed, were it told.
- <sup>6</sup> For see, I am raising up Chaldea, that bitter and unruly people,
That marches the breadth of the land
to take dwellings not his own.
- <sup>7</sup> Terrible and dreadful is he,
from himself derive his law and his majesty.
- <sup>8</sup>† Swifter than leopards are his horses, and keener than wolves at evening.

His horses prance,
his horsemen come from afar:
They fly like the eagle hastening to devour;

<sup>9</sup> each comes for the rapine,
Their combined onset is that of a stormwind that heaps up captives like sand.

<sup>10</sup> He scoffs at kings, and princes are his laughingstock;
He laughs at any fortress,
heaps up a ramp, and conquers
it.

<sup>11</sup>† Then he veers like the wind and is gone—
this culprit who makes his own strength his god!

1, 5: Acts 13, 41.

† 1, 2-4: Traditionally, these verses have been taken as the prophet's complaint against the internal evils of Judah; the language used is that employed by Amos, Isaiah, and Jeremiah to condemn the social abuses of their day. In vv 5† the Lord answers this complaint by indicating the Chaldean empire as his instrument for punishing his people for these sins.

† 5: Look over the nations and see: after Nabuchadnezzar's defeat of Egypt in 605 B.C., there could be little doubt that it was the Chaldean ambition to dominate the entire Near East.

1, 8: Wolves at evening: the wolf is apparently thought of as more rabid and vicious in the evening when setting out for prey (Jer 5, 6; Zep 3, 3).

1, 11: Veers like the wind: the conquests of the ancient Near East were mainly raiding expeditions to collect tribute. As far as administration of conquered territories was concerned, both the Assyrians and Chaldeans were usually content to install friendly rulers and then depart. This culprit though the Chaldeans were used by God as the agents of his punishment, this did not diminish their own guilt as ruthless marauders.

- 12† Are you not from eternity, O LORD, my holy God, immortal?
O LORD you have marked him for judgment,
O Rock, you have readied him for punishment!
- 13 Too pure are your eyes to look upon
evil,
and the sight of misery you cannot endure.
Why, then, do you gaze on the faithless in silence
while the wicked man devours
one more just than himself?
- 14 You have made man like the fish of
the sea,
like creeping things without a ruler.
- 15† He brings them all up with his hook,
he hauls them away with his net,
He gathers them in his seine;
and so he rejoices and exults.
- 16† Therefore he sacrifices to his net,
and burns incense to his seine;
For thanks to them his portion is generous,
and his repast sumptuous.
- 17 Shall he, then, keep on brandishing his sword
to slay peoples without mercy?

CHAPTER 2

- 1* I will stand at my guard post, and station myself upon the ram-
part,
And keep watch to see what he will say to me,
and what answer he will give to my complaint.
- 2 Then the LORD answered me and said:
Write down the vision
Clearly upon the tablets,
so that one can read it readily.
- 3 For the vision still has its time, presses on to fulfillment, and will not disappoint;
If it delays, wait for it,
it will surely come, it will not be
late.
- 4*† The rash man has no integrity;
but the just man, because of his faith, shall live.
Wealth, too, is treacherous:
the proud, unstable man—
- 5 He who opens wide his throat like
the nether world,
and is insatiable as death,
Who gathers to himself all the na-
tions,
and rallies to himself all the peoples—
- 6 Shall not all these take up a taunt against him,
satire and epigrams about him, to
say:

- Woe to him who stores up what is not his:
how long can it last!
he loads himself down with debts.
- 7 Shall not your creditors rise suddenly?
Shall not they who make you tremble awake?
You shall become their spoil!
- 8 Because you despoiled many peoples
all the rest of the nations shall despoil you;
Because of men's blood shed,
and violence done to the land, to the city and to all who dwell in
it.
- 9 Woe to him who pursues evil gain
for his household, setting his nest on high
to escape the reach of misfortune!
- 10 You have devised shame for your household,
cutting off many peoples, forfeiting your own life:
- 11† For the stone in the wall shall cry
out,
and the beam in the woodwork shall answer it!
- 12* Woe to him who builds a city by bloodshed,
and establishes a town by wickedness!
- 13*† Is not this from the LORD of hosts:
peoples toil for the flames,

2, 1: Ps 85, 9.

4: Rom 1, 17; Gal

3, 11; Heb 10,
38.

12: Ez 24, 9; Na 3,

1

13: Jer 51, 58.

†

1, 12—2, 1: It is generally thought that this complaint is directed against the Chaldeans and their terrible destruction. But it may well be a continuation of 1, 2-4, against the wicked Judahites who have merited God's punishment.

1, 12: O Rock: an ancient title celebrating the Lord's power, cf Ps 18, 32.

1, 15: The he of this and the following verses, to whom is attributed such extensive evil and the destruction of many peoples, may be the wicked of Judah embodied in King Jehoiakim, ally of the powerful Pharaoh Neco of Egypt; the devastation wrought by Jehoiakim and Neco together is condemned.

1, 16: He sacrifices to his net: in v 15 the wicked ruler in question is represented as catching men in a net. This verse alludes to some rite involving the sacrificial veneration of the weapons of war.

2, 4: The just man, because of his faith, shall live: the faith which here enables the virtuous man to survive the impending doom is both a confident belief in God's justice, and patience in awaiting its execution. St. Paul quotes these words (Rom 1, 17; Gal 3, 11; Heb 10, 38) to confirm his teaching that man receives justification and supernatural life through faith in Christ.

2, 11: The palaces, built at the expense of gross injustice (vv 6-10), call down vengeance on their builders. This is typical prophetic language for the condemnation of social crimes within Israel and Judah.

2, 13: Peoples toil for the flames: they build only to have fire consume their work, when they build contrary to God's will.

- and nations grow weary for nought!
- 14* But the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the LORD's glory as water covers the sea.
- 15 Woe to you who give your neighbors a flood of your wrath to drink, and make them drunk, till their nakedness is seen!
- 16 You are filled with shame instead of glory; drink, you too, and stagger! On you shall revert the cup from the LORD's right hand, and utter shame on your glory.
- 17† For the violence done to Lebanon shall cover you, and the destruction of the beasts shall terrify you; Because of men's blood shed, and violence done to the land, to the city and to all who dwell in it.
- 19 Woe to him who says to wood, "Awake!" to dumb stone, "Arise!" Can such a thing give oracles? See, it is overlaid with gold and silver, but there is no life breath in it.
- 18† Of what avail is the carved image, that its maker should carve it? Or the molten image and lying oracle, that its very maker should trust in it, and make dumb idols?
- 20* But the LORD is in his holy temple; silence before him, all the earth!

CHAPTER 3

Canticle

1† Prayer of Habakkuk, the prophet. To a plaintive tune.

- 2† O LORD, I have heard your renown, and feared, O LORD, your work. In the course of the years revive it, in the course of the years make it known; in your wrath remember compassion!
- 3† God comes from Teman, the Holy One from Mount Paran. Covered are the heavens with his glory, and with his praise the earth is filled.
- 4 His splendor spreads like the light; rays shine forth from beside him, where his power is concealed.
- 5 Before him goes pestilence, and the plague follows in his steps.
- 6 He pauses to survey the earth;

- his look makes the nations tremble. The eternal mountains are shattered, the age-old hills bow low along his ancient ways.
- 7 I see the tents of Cushan collapse; trembling are the pavilions of the land of Midian.
- 8 Is your anger against the streams, O LORD? Is your wrath against the streams, your rage against the sea, That you drive the steeds of your victorious chariot? Bared and ready is your bow, filled with arrows is your quiver. Into streams you split the earth; at sight of you the mountains tremble. A torrent of rain descends; the ocean gives forth its roar. The sun forgets to rise, 11* the moon remains in its shelter, At the light of your flying arrows, at the gleam of your flashing spear.
- 12 In wrath you bestride the earth, in fury you trample the nations.
- 13*† You come forth to save your people, to save your anointed one. You crush the heads of the wicked, you lay bare their bases at the neck.
- 14 You pierce with your shafts the heads of their princes whose boast would be of devouring the wretched in their lair.
- 15 You tread the sea with your steeds amid the churning of the deep waters.

14: Is 11, 9,
20: Ps 11, 4.

3, 11: Jos 10, 12,
13: Is 51, 9ff.

† 2, 17: The violence done to Lebanon: the spoliation of the cedar forests of Lebanon, used in lavish building projects by the great conquerors; cf Is 14, 8, 37, 24. The destruction of the beasts: the killing-off of the wild animals through excessive hunting by the same conquerors; cf Bar 3, 16.

2, 18-20: Idolatrous worship is here shown to be folly by contrasting man-made idols with the majesty of the one true God.

3, 1: A later liturgical rubric. So also the end of v 19.
3, 2: In the course of the years revive it: renew today your wondrous deeds of the past.

3, 3-15: Cf the theophanies in Dt 33, 2f; Jgs 5, 4f; Pss 18, 8-16; 68, 8f; 77, 17-21; 97, 1-5; Na 1, 3-6, etc. Conventional language is employed to describe the appearance of the Lord, as in Ex 19, 16-19.

3, 3: Teman: a region in Edom. Mount Paran: in the territory of Edom; or the northern part of the Sinaiic peninsula. The Lord is represented as coming from Sinai, where he had appeared to Moses and given Israel the covenant and the law.

3, 13: Your anointed one: the theocratic king, the head of God's people.

- <sup>16</sup> I hear, and my body trembles;
at the sound, my lips quiver.
Decay invades my bones,
my legs tremble beneath me.
I await the day of distress that will come upon the people who attack us.
- <sup>17</sup> For though the fig tree blossom not nor fruit be on the vines, Though the yield of the olive fail and the terraces produce no nourishment,
Though the flocks disappear from the fold

- and there be no herd in the stalls, <sup>18*</sup> Yet will I rejoice in the LORD and exult in my saving God.
<sup>19</sup> GOD, my Lord, is my strength;
he makes my feet swift as those of hinds
and enables me to go upon the heights.

For the leader; with stringed instruments.

ZEPHANIAH

The title of the prophecy informs us that the ministry of Zephaniah took place during the reign of Josiah (640-609 B.C.). The protest against the worship of false gods, and the condemnation of the pro-Assyrian court ministers who served as regents during Josiah's minority, allow us to place the work in the first decade of the reign. Accordingly, the prophecy of Zephaniah comes rightly before that of Jeremiah, who was probably influenced by it in both language and ideas.

The age of Zephaniah was a time of religious degradation, when the old idolatries reappeared and men worshiped sun, moon, and stars. Rites completely alien to the pure monotheism taught by Moses flourished in Jerusalem. To the corrupt city Zephaniah announced the impending judgment, the day of the Lord. The prophecy may be divided into three sections, corresponding to the three chapters of the book:

The day of the Lord: A day of doom. The last few verses of this oracle give the classic description of the day of the Lord as an overwhelming disaster. The Christian hymn Dies Irae is based on this passage (1, 2-18)

The day of the Lord: A day of judgment of the nations, traditional enemies of God's people (2, 1-15)

Reproach and Promise for Jerusalem: Despite Judah's infidelities, the Lord in his mercy will spare a holy remnant, which will finally enjoy peace. The prophecy closes with a hymn of joy sung by the remnant restored to Zion (3, 1-20)

CHAPTER 1

<sup>1</sup> The word of the LORD which came to Zephaniah, the son of Cushi, the son of Gedaliah, the son of Amariah, the son of Hezekiah, in the days of Josiah, the son of Amon, king of Judah.

The Day of the Lord: A Day of Doom

- <sup>2</sup> I will completely sweep away all things from the face of the earth, says
the LORD.
- <sup>3*</sup> I will sweep away man and beast,
I will sweep away the birds of the sky,
and the fishes of the sea.
I will overthrow the wicked;
I will destroy mankind
from the face of the earth, says
the LORD.
- <sup>4</sup> I will stretch out my hand against Judah,
and against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem;
I will destroy from this place the last vestige of Baal,
the very names of his priests.
- <sup>5*†</sup> And those who adore the host of heaven on the roofs, with those who adore the LORD
but swear by Milcom;
- <sup>6</sup> And those who have fallen away
from the LORD,

and those who do not seek the
LORD.

- <sup>7†</sup> Silence in the presence of the Lord
God!
for near is the day of the LORD,
Yes, the LORD has prepared a slaughter feast,
he has consecrated his guests.
- <sup>8</sup> On the day of the LORD's slaughter feast
I will punish the princes, and the king's sons,
and all that dress in foreign apparel.
- <sup>9†</sup> I will punish, on that day,
all who leap over the threshold,
Who fill the house of their master with violence and deceit.
- <sup>10†</sup> On that day, says the LORD,

1, 3: Hos 4, 3.

5: Jer 8, 2; 19, 13.

† 1, 5: The host of heaven: the stars, the worship of which was introduced into Judah by the Assyrians. Milcom: the god of the Ammonites; cf 1 Kgs 11, 5, 7, 33; 2 Kgs 23, 13.

1, 7: He has consecrated his guests: God has prepared those whom he has invited to share as soldiers in the booty, or as beast and bird scavengers of carrion, on the day of slaughter. Cf Jer 46, 10; Ez 39, 17.

1, 9: Leap over the threshold: the reference is to a superstitious custom of the pagans, witnessed to at least in regard to the worship of Dagon (1 Sm 5, 5).

1, 10: The New Quarter . . . the Mortar: sections of Jerusalem (cf 2 Kgs 22, 14).

- A cry will be heard from the Fish Gate, a wail from the New Quarter,
loud crashing from the hills.
- 11 Wail, O inhabitants of the Mortar!
for all the merchants will be destroyed,
all who weigh out silver, done away with.
- 12† At that time I will explore Jerusalem with lamps;
I will punish the men who thicken on their lees,
Who say in their hearts,
"Neither good nor evil can the LORD do."
- 13* Their wealth shall be given to pillage and their houses to devastation;
They will build houses, but shall not dwell in them,
plant vineyards, but not drink their wine,
- 14 Near is the great day of the LORD, near and very swiftly coming,
Hark, the day of the LORD!
bitter, then, the warrior's cry.
- 15* A day of wrath is that day
a day of anguish and distress,
A day of destruction and desolation,
a day of darkness and gloom,
A day of thick black clouds,
- 16* a day of trumpet blasts and battle alarm Against fortified cities, against battlements on high.
- 17 I will hem men in till they walk like the blind,
because they have sinned against the LORD;
And their blood shall be poured out like dust,
and their brains like dung.
- 18* Neither their silver nor their gold shall be able to save them on the day of the LORD's wrath,
When in the fire of his jealousy
all the earth shall be consumed.
For he shall make an end, yes, a sudden end,
of all who live on the earth.
- Seek justice, seek humility;
perhaps you may be sheltered on the day of the LORD's anger.
- 4*† For Gaza shall be forsaken,
and Ashkelon shall be a waste, Ashdod they shall drive out at midday,
and Ekron shall be uprooted.
- 5† Woe to you who dwell by the sea-coast,
to the Cretan folk!
The word of the LORD is against you,
I will humble you, land of the Philistines, and leave you to perish without an inhabitant!
- 6 The coastland of the Cretans shall become fields for shepherds, and folds for flocks.
- 7 The coast shall belong to the remnant of the house of Judah;
by the sea they shall pasture.
In the houses of Ashkelon at evening
they shall couch their flocks,
For the LORD their God shall visit them,
and bring about their restoration.
- 8 I have heard the revilings uttered by Moab,
and the insults of the Ammonites,
When they reviled my people and made boasts against their territory.
- 9 Therefore, as I live, says the LORD of hosts,
the God of Israel,
Moab shall become like Sodom,
the land of Ammon like Gomorrah:
A field of nettles and a salt pit and a waste forever.
The remnant of my people shall plunder them,
the survivors of my nation possess them.
- 10 Such shall be the requital of their pride, because they reviled and boasted against the people of the LORD of hosts.

CHAPTER 2

The Day of the Lord: A Day of Judgment

- 1† Gather, gather yourselves together,
O nation without shame!
- 2 Before you are driven away, like chaff that passes on;
Before there comes upon you
the blazing anger of the LORD:
Before there comes upon you
the day of the LORD's anger.
- 3 Seek the LORD, all you humble of the earth,
who have observed his law;

13: Am 5, 11.

15: Jer 30, 7; Jl 2,

11; Am 5, 18.

16: Am 2, 2.

18: 3, 8; Ez 7, 19.

2, 4: Am 1, 6ff; Zec 9,

5.

† 1, 12: The men who thicken on their lees: those who are overconfident because, like bottles of wine in which the sediment has settled to the bottom, they have remained at peace and undisturbed for a long time.

2, 1: Nation without shame: Judah.2, 4: Gaza . . . Ashkelon . . . Ashdod . . . Ekron: four of the five cities of the Philistine confederation. The fifth city, Gath, is not mentioned, perhaps because it was already destroyed.2, 5: Cretan folk: the Philistines, who came from Crete; see note on Dt 2, 23.

- 11 The LORD shall inspire them with fear when he makes all the gods of earth to waste away;
Then, each from its own place,
all the coastlands of the nations shall adore him.
- 12† You too, O Cushites, shall be slain by the sword of the LORD.
- 13 He will stretch out his hand against the north,
to destroy Assyria;
He will make Nineveh a waste,
dry as the desert.
- 14* In her midst shall settle in droves
all the wild life of the hollows;
The screech owl and the desert owl shall roost in her columns;
Their call shall resound from the window,
the raven's croak from the doorway.
- 15† Is this the exultant city that dwelt secure;
That told herself,
"There is no other than I!"
How has she become a waste,
a lair for wild beasts?
Whoever passes by her hisses, and shakes his fist!

CHAPTER 3

Reproach and Promise for Jerusalem

- 1 Woe to the city, rebellious and polluted, to the tyrannical city!
- 2* She hears no voice,
accepts no correction;
In the LORD she has not trusted, to her God she has not drawn near.
- 3* Her princes in her midst are roaring lions;
Her judges are wolves of the night that have had no bones to gnaw by morning.
- 4* Her prophets are insolent, treacherous men;
Her priests profane what is holy,
and do violence to the law.
- 5 The LORD within her is just,
who does no wrong;
Morning after morning he renders judgment unfailingly, at dawn.
- 6* I have destroyed nations,
their battlements are laid waste;
I have made their streets deserted, with no one passing through;
Their cities are devastated,
with no man dwelling in them.
- 7 I said, "Surely now you will fear me,
you will accept correction";

- She should not fail to see all I have visited upon her.
Yet all the more eagerly have they done
all their corrupt deeds.
- 8* Therefore, wait for me, says the LORD,
against the day when I arise as accuser;
For it is my decision to gather together the nations,
to assemble the kingdoms,
In order to pour out upon them my wrath,
all my blazing anger;
For in the fire of my jealousy shall all the earth be consumed.
- 9 For then I will change and purify the lips of the peoples,
That they all may call upon the name of the LORD,
to serve him with one accord;
- 10 From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia and as far as the recesses of the North, they shall bring me offerings.
- 11 On that day
You need not be ashamed of all your deeds,
your rebellious actions against me;
For then will I remove from your midst
the proud braggarts,
And you shall no longer exalt yourself on my holy mountain.
- 12* But I will leave as a remnant in your midst
a people humble and lowly,
Who shall take refuge in the name of the LORD;
- 13* the remnant of Israel.
They shall do no wrong
and speak no lies;
Nor shall there be found in their mouths
a deceitful tongue;
They shall pasture and couch their flocks with none to disturb them.
- 14* Shout for joy, O daughter Zion!
sing joyfully, O Israel!
Be glad and exult with all your heart,
O daughter Jerusalem!

14: Is 34, 11.                   6: Jer 2, 15.
3, 2: Jer 2, 30; 7, 28.       8: 1, 18.
3: Ez 22, 27; Mi 3,       12: Hos 14, 4.
11.                               13: Mi 4, 4.
4: Jer 23, 32.               14: Zec 9, 9.

†
2, 12: Cushites: the Egyptians, at this time under a Cushite or Ethiopian dynasty.
2, 15: The exultant city: Nineveh.

- 15 The LORD has removed the judgment against you,
he has turned away your enemies;
The King of Israel, the LORD, is in your midst,
you have no further misfortune to fear.
- 16* On that day, it shall be said to Jerusalem:
Fear not, O Zion, be not discouraged!
- 17 The LORD, your God, is in your midst,
a mighty savior;
He will rejoice over you with gladness,
and renew you in his love,
He will sing joyfully because of you,
as one sings at festivals.
- 18 I will remove disaster from among you,
so that none may recount your disgrace.
- 19* Yes, at that time I will deal with all who oppress you;
I will save the lame,
and assemble the outcasts;
I will give them praise and renown in all the earth, when I bring about their restoration.
- 20 At that time I will bring you home,
and at that time I will gather you;
For I will give you renown and praise,
among all the peoples of the earth,
When I bring about your restoration before your very eyes, says the LORD.
-

16: Mt 14, 27.

19: Mi 4, 6.

The Book of
HAGGAI

Postexilic prophecy begins with Haggai, who received the word of the Lord in the second year of Darius (520 B.C.). The Jews who returned from the exile in Babylonia had encountered formidable obstacles in their efforts to re-establish Jewish life in Judah. The Samaritans had succeeded in blocking the rebuilding of the temple; but after Darius acceded to the throne (522), permission was given to resume the work. At this critical moment, when defeatism and a certain lethargy had overtaken his repatriated countrymen, Haggai came forward with his exhortations to them to complete the great task. The first oracle, an appeal to the Jews, is contained in chapter 1. To this appeal Haggai added a short oracle of encouragement (2, 1-9) for the sake of those who gloomily contrasted the former magnificence of Solomon's temple with the second temple: the Lord would be present in this new abode, and its glory, enhanced by the offerings of the Gentiles, would surpass the ancient splendor.

The prophecy may be divided into five oracles:

The call to rebuild the temple. The economic distress so apparent in Judah is due to the Jews' neglect of the Lord while they provide for their own needs (1, 1-15).

The future glory of the new temple, surpassing that of the old (2, 1-9).

Unworthiness of a people, who may be the Samaritans, to offer sacrifice at the newly restored altar. This oracle is cast in the literary form of a torah, an instruction given the people by a priest (2, 10-14).

A promise of immediate blessings, which follows upon the undertaking (chapter 1) to rebuild the temple (2, 15-19).

A pledge to Zerubbabel, descendant of David, repository of the messianic hopes (2, 20-23).

---

CHAPTER 1

Exhortation to Rebuild the Temple of the Lord. <sup>1*</sup>† On the first day of the sixth month in the second year of King Darius, the word of the LORD came through the prophet Haggai to the governor of Judah, Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel, and to the high priest Joshua, son of Jehozadak:

<sup>2</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts: This people says: "Not now has the time come to rebuild the house of the LORD."

<sup>3</sup> (Then this word of the LORD came through Haggai, the prophet:) <sup>4*</sup>† Is it time for you to dwell in your own paneled houses, while this house lies in ruins?

<sup>5</sup> Now thus says the LORD of hosts: Consider your ways!

<sup>6*</sup> You have sown much, but have brought in little; you have eaten, but have not been satisfied;

You have drunk, but have not been exhilarated;

have clothed yourselves, but not been warmed;

And he who earned wages earned them for a bag with holes in it.

<sup>7</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts: Consider your ways!

<sup>8</sup> Go up into the hill country; bring timber, and build the house That I may take pleasure in it and receive my glory, says the LORD.

<sup>9*</sup> You expected much, but it came to little; and what you brought home, I blew away.

For what cause? says the LORD of hosts.

Because my house lies in ruins, while each of you hurries to his own house.

---

1, 1: Ezz 4, 24; 5, 1;
6, 14.
4: 2 Sm 7, 2.

6: Dt 28, 38ff; Mi 6, 15.
9: 2 Kgs 25, 9.

† 1, 1: The sixth month in the second year: August/September in 520 B.C.

1, 4: The luxury of the homes of the wealthy with their paneled houses contrasts sadly with the ruined state of the Lord's house.

10* Therefore the heavens withheld from you their dew, and the earth her crops.
 11 And I called for a drought upon the land and upon the mountains;
 Upon the grain, and upon the wine, and upon the oil, and upon all that the ground brings forth;
 Upon men and upon beasts, and upon all that is produced by hand.

12† Then Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel, and the high priest Joshua, son of Jehozadak, and all the remnant of the people listened to the voice of the LORD, their God, and to the words of the prophet Haggai, because the LORD, their God, had sent him, and the people feared because of the LORD. 13 And the LORD's messenger, Haggai, proclaimed to the people as the message of the LORD: I am with you, says the LORD.

14 Then the LORD stirred up the spirit of the governor of Judah, Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel, and the spirit of the high priest Joshua, son of Jehozadak, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people, so that they came and set to work on the house of the LORD of hosts, their God, 15 on the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month.

CHAPTER 2

Future Glory of the New Temple. In the second year of King Darius, 1 on the twenty-first day of the seventh month, the word of the LORD came through the prophet Haggai: 2 Tell this to the governor of Judah, Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel, and to the high priest Joshua, son of Jehozadak, and to the remnant of the people:

3 Who is left among you that saw this house in its former glory?
 And how do you see it now?
 Does it not seem like nothing in your eyes?
 4* But now take courage, Zerubbabel, says the LORD, and take courage, Joshua, high priest, son of Jehozadak, And take courage, all you people of the land, says the LORD, and work! For I am with you, says the LORD of hosts.
 5* This is the pact that I made with you when you came out of Egypt, And my spirit continues in your midst;
 do not fear!

6*† For thus says the LORD of hosts: One moment yet, a little while, and I will shake the heavens and the earth, the sea and the dry land.
 7* I will shake all the nations, and the treasures of all the nations will come in, And I will fill this house with glory, says the LORD of hosts.
 8 Mine is the silver and mine the gold, says the LORD of hosts.
 9* Greater will be the future glory of this house than the former, says the LORD of hosts;
 And in this place I will give you peace, says the LORD of hosts.

Offerings of the Unclean Rejected.

10 On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, in the second year of King Darius, the word of the LORD came to the prophet Haggai: 11* Thus says the LORD of hosts: Ask the priests for a decision: 12† If a man carries sanctified flesh in the fold of his garment and the fold touches bread, or pottage, or wine, or oil, or any other food, do they become sanctified? "No," the priests answered. 13* Then Haggai said: If a person unclean from contact with a corpse touches any of these, do they become unclean? The priests answered, "They become unclean." 14 Then Haggai continued:

So is this people, and so is this nation in my sight, says the LORD:
 And so are all the works of their hands;
 and what they offer there is unclean.

Promise of Immediate Blessings.†

15 But now, consider from this day forward. Before there was a stone laid upon a stone in the temple of the LORD, 16* how did you fare?

10: Gn 27, 28; Am 4, 6-9;	Rv 21, 26.
2, 4: Zec 8, 9;	9: Is 2, 2ff; Zec 6, 13.
5: Ex 29, 45; Lv 26, 45;	11: Dt 17, 8-13; Zec 7, 3.
6: Heb 12, 26;	13: Nm 19,
7: Gn 49, 10; Is 60, 5.9.11; Mal 3, 1;	11, 13.22.
	16: Is 5, 10.

† 1, 12: The remnant of the people: a technical term in Haggai and Zechariah for the returned exiles.
 2, 6-9: From the later period of Ezekiel's preaching onward, the temple became, as here, one of the dominant messianic themes. Greater will be the future glory of this house than the former: because Christ will enter it.
 2, 12ff: According to the ritual concepts of the Jews, uncleanness was more contagious than sacredness. Inasmuch as the people were unclean, their offerings became unclean (Nm 19, 22).
 2, 15-19: This prophecy is intimately linked with chapter 1, and should be read with it.

When one went to a heap of grain for twenty measures,
it would yield but ten;

When another went to the vat to draw fifty measures,
there would be but twenty.

<sup>17</sup> I struck you in all the works of your hands with blight, searing wind, and hail,
yet you did not return to me, says
the LORD.

<sup>18</sup>† [Consider from this day forward:
from the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month. From the day on which the temple of the LORD was founded, consider!]

<sup>19</sup> Indeed, the seed has not sprouted, nor have the vine, the fig, the pomegranate
and the olive tree yet borne.
From this day, I will bless!

Pledge to Zerubbabel. <sup>20</sup>† The message of the LORD came a second time to Haggai on the twenty-fourth day of the month: <sup>21</sup> Tell this to Zerubbabel, the governor of Judah:

I will shake the heavens and the
earth;

<sup>22</sup>* I will overthrow the thrones of kingdoms, destroy the power of the kingdoms
of the nations.

I will overthrow the chariots and their riders,
and the riders with their horses shall go down by one another's sword.

<sup>23</sup>*† On that day, says the LORD of
hosts,

I will take you, Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel, my servant, says
the LORD,

And I will set you as a signet ring;
for I have chosen you, says the
LORD of hosts.

22: Ez 38, 21; Dn 2,
44; Zec 14, 13;
Lk 1, 52.

23: Sg 8, 6; Sir 49,
11; Is 42, 1; 44,
1f.

†
2, 18: The ninth month: the ordinal ninth has been copied incorrectly from 2, 10. This note clearly concerns the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month, on which the temple of the Lord was founded (1, 15).

2, 20: The month: probably again the sixth month, as in 1, 15 and 2, 18; see note on the latter.

2, 23: This promise to Zerubbabel, reversing the punishment of his grandfather (Jer 22, 24), is a continuation of the messianic hope; cf Zec 6, 11f.

The Book of
ZECHARIAH

Zechariah's initial prophecy is dated to 520 B.C., the same year as that in which Haggai received the prophetic call. The first eight chapters of the Book of Zechariah contain oracles which certainly belong to him while the last six (sometimes called "Deutero-Zechariah") represent the work of one or more unknown authors. In the prophecies proper to Zechariah eight symbolic visions are recorded, all meant to promote the work of rebuilding the temple and to encourage the returned exiles, especially their leaders, Joshua and Zerubbabel. In the final chapter of this first division Zechariah portrays the messianic future under the figure of a prosperous land to which the nations come in pilgrimage, eager to follow the God of Israel.

The second part of Zechariah is divided into two sections, each with its own introductory title. The first (9—11) consists of oracles whose historical background, date and authorship are extremely difficult to determine. With 9, 9 begins the messianic vision of the coming of the Prince of Peace. The verses describing the triumphant appearance of the humble king are taken up by the four Evangelists to describe the entry of Christ into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday. Chapter 12 is introduced by an oracle proclaiming the victory of God's people over the heathen. The prophecy closes by describing in apocalyptic imagery, the final assault of the enemy on Jerusalem, after which the messianic age begins.

CHAPTER 1

Necessity of Conversion. <sup>1</sup>*† In the second year of Darius, in the eighth month, the word of the LORD came to the prophet Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo: <sup>2</sup>The LORD was indeed angry with your fathers . . . <sup>3</sup>and say to them: Thus says the LORD of hosts: Return to me, says the LORD of hosts, and I will return to you, says the LORD of hosts. <sup>4</sup>* Be not like your fathers whom the former prophets warned: Thus says the LORD of hosts: Turn from your evil ways and from your wicked deeds. But they would not listen or pay attention to me, says the LORD. <sup>5</sup>Your fathers, where are they? And the prophets, can they live forever? <sup>6</sup>* But my words and my decrees, which I entrusted to my servants the prophets, did not these overtake your fathers? Then they repented and admitted: "The LORD of hosts has treated us according to our ways and deeds, just as he had determined he would."

The Four Horsemen. <sup>7</sup>† In the second year of Darius, on the twenty-fourth day of Shebat, the eleventh month, the word of the LORD came to the prophet Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, in the following way: <sup>8</sup>*† I had a vision during the night. There appeared the driver of a red horse, standing among myrtle trees in a shady place, and behind him were red, sorrel, and white horses. <sup>9</sup>Then I asked, "What are these, my lord?"; and the angel who spoke with me answered me, "I will show you what these are." <sup>10</sup>* The man who was standing among the myrtle trees spoke up and said, "These are they whom the LORD has sent to patrol the earth." <sup>11</sup> And they answered the angel of the LORD who was standing among the myrtle trees and said, "We have patrolled the earth; see, the whole earth is tranquil and at rest!"

<sup>12</sup>*† Then the angel of the Lord spoke out and said, "O LORD of hosts, how long will you be without mercy for Jerusalem and the cities of Judah that have felt your anger these seventy years?" <sup>13</sup>* To the angel who spoke with me, the LORD replied with comforting words.

<sup>14</sup>* And the angel who spoke with me said to me, Proclaim: Thus says the LORD of hosts: I am deeply moved for the sake of Jerusalem and Zion, <sup>15</sup>*† and and

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| 1, 1: Ezz 4, 24; 5, 1;6, 14.            | 10: 6, 7.  |
| 4: Jer 25, 5; 35, 15;Mal 3, 7.          | 12: 7, 5; Jer 25, 11;Dn 9, 2.                  |
| 6: Lam 2, 17; Lv26, 14ff; Dt 28,15. | 13: Jer 29, 10.                                    |
| 8: Rv 6, 4.                                 | 14: 8, 2; Jl 2, 18.15: Is 47, 6; Ob 10-14. |

† 1, 1: The second year . . . eighth month: October/November, 520 B.C.
1, 7: The second year . . . eleventh month: January/February, 519 B.C.

1, 8-11: The driver of a red horse: apparently distinct from the man, or angel of the LORD . . . standing among the myrtle trees, who spoke with the prophet. The four horsemen are sent by God to the four corners of the earth (2, 10), to see if the whole earth is at peace.

1, 12: These seventy years: see note on Jer 25, 1-14.
1, 15: The complacent nations: the neighbors of Judah; especially Edom, which enjoyed their present prosperity and security at Judah's expense.

I am exceedingly angry with the complacent nations; whereas I was but a little angry, they added to the harm. <sup>16</sup>† Therefore, says the LORD: I will turn to Jerusalem in mercy; my house shall be built in it, says the LORD of hosts, and a measuring line shall be stretched over Jerusalem. <sup>17</sup>* Proclaim further: Thus says the LORD of hosts: My cities shall again overflow with prosperity; the LORD will again comfort Zion, and again choose Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 2

Four Horns and Four Blacksmiths.

<sup>1</sup>† I raised my eyes and looked; there were four horns. <sup>2</sup> Then I asked the angel who spoke with me what these were. He answered me, "These are the horns that scattered Judah and Israel and Jerusalem."

<sup>3</sup> Then the LORD showed me four blacksmiths. And I asked, "What are these coming to do?" <sup>4</sup> And he said, "Here are the horns that scattered Judah, so that no man raised his head any more; but these have come to terrify them: to cast down the horns of the nations that raised their horns to scatter the land of Judah."

The New Jerusalem. <sup>5</sup>* Again I raised my eyes and looked: there was a man with a measuring line in his hand. <sup>6</sup>* "Where are you going?" I asked. "To measure Jerusalem," he answered; "to see how great is its width and how great its length."

<sup>7</sup> Then the angel who spoke with me advanced, and another angel came out to meet him, <sup>8</sup>*† and said to him, "Run, tell this to that young man: People will live in Jerusalem as though in open country, because of the multitude of men and beasts in her midst. <sup>9</sup> But I will be for her an encircling wall of fire, says the LORD, and I will be the glory in her midst."

<sup>10</sup>† Up, up! Flee from the land of the north, says the LORD; for I scatter you to the four winds of heaven, says the LORD. <sup>11</sup> Up, escape to Zion! you who dwell in daughter Babylon. <sup>12</sup>* For thus said the LORD of hosts (after he had already sent me) concerning the nations that have plundered you: Whoever touches you touches the apple of my eye. <sup>13</sup> See, I wave my hand over them; they become plunder for their slaves. Thus you shall know that the LORD of hosts has sent me.

<sup>14</sup>* Sing and rejoice, O daughter Zion! See, I am coming to dwell among you, says the LORD. <sup>15</sup> Many nations shall join themselves to the LORD on that day, and they shall be his people, and he will dwell among you, and you shall know that the LORD of hosts has sent me to you. <sup>16</sup> The LORD will possess Judah as his portion of the holy land, and he will again choose Jerusalem. <sup>17</sup> Silence, all mankind, in the presence of the LORD! for he stirs forth from his holy dwelling.

CHAPTER 3

Joshua the High Priest. <sup>1</sup>* Then he showed me Joshua the high priest standing before the angel of the LORD, while Satan stood at his right hand to accuse him. <sup>2</sup>* And the angel of the LORD said to Satan, "May the LORD rebuke you, Satan; may the LORD who has chosen Jerusalem rebuke you! Is not this man a brand snatched from the fire?"

<sup>3</sup>† Now Joshua was standing before the angel, clad in filthy garments. <sup>4</sup>* He spoke and said to those who were standing before him, "Take off his filthy garments, and clothe him in festal garments." <sup>5</sup> He also said, "Put a clean miter on his head." And they put a clean miter on his head and clothed him with the garments. Then the angel of the LORD, standing, said, "See, I have taken away your guilt."

<sup>6</sup> The angel of the LORD then gave Joshua this assurance: <sup>7</sup>* "Thus says the LORD of hosts: If you walk in my ways and heed my charge, you shall judge my house and keep my courts, and I will give you access among these standing here. <sup>8</sup>*† Listen, O Joshua, high priest! You and your associates who sit before you are men of good omen. Yes, I will bring my servant the Shoot. <sup>9</sup>*† Look at

16: 8, 3; Ezr 6, 14.	3, 1: Hg 1, 1; 1 Chr
17: Is 51, 3.	21, 1.
2, 5: Rv 11, 1.	2: Rom 8, 33; Jude
6: Dt 28, 64.	9.
8: Ez 36, 11.	4: Lk 15, 22.
12: Dt 32, 10; Ps 17,	8: Is 4, 2; 11, 1; Jer
8.	23, 5; 33, 15.
14: Ez 37, 26.	9: 4, 10.

† 1, 16: Measuring line: not for devastation, as in Is 34, 11, but for reconstruction.

2, 1-4: Four horns: symbolic of the hostile forces which, from the four corners of the earth, invaded and devastated the land of Judah. Four blacksmiths: the powers used by God to destroy these enemies of his people.

2, 8: That young man: the angel or man with a measuring line of v 5.

2, 10: The land of the north: Babylonia (v 11).

3, 3: Filthy garments: symbolic of mourning for the dead, or of national catastrophe, and implying acknowledgment of guilt (v 5).

3, 8: Men of good omen: the restoration of the priesthood is a sign of the coming of the messianic times. My servant the Shoot: identified, in the earliest form of 6, 11f as the prophet composed it, with Zennubabel, direct descendant of King David and builder of the temple; and, as such, a type of the Messiah, cf. Jer 23, 5.

3, 9: One stone with seven facets: apparently the same as the select stone of 4, 10, which seems to be a precious gem. The seven facets are explained in 4, 10 as signifying the Lord's vigilance over the world. I will engrave its inscription: the same Hebrew verb for engrave is used in Ex 28, 9, 11 in regard to the inscriptions on the twelve precious stones of the priestly breastpiece.

the stone that I have placed before Joshua, one stone with seven facets. I will engrave its inscription, says the LORD of hosts, and I will take away the guilt of the land in one day.<sup>10*</sup> On that day, says the LORD of hosts, you will invite one another under your vines and fig trees."

CHAPTER 4

<sup>4</sup> Then I said to the angel who spoke with me, "What are these things, my lord?"<sup>5</sup> And the angel who spoke with me replied, "Do you not know what these things are?" "No, my lord," I answered.<sup>6</sup> Then he said to me, "This is the LORD's message to Zerubbabel: Not by an army, nor by might, but by my spirit, says the LORD of hosts.<sup>7†</sup> What are you, O great mountain? Before Zerubbabel you are but a plain. He shall bring out the capstone amid exclamations of 'Hail, Hail' to it."

<sup>8</sup> This word of the LORD then came to me:<sup>9*</sup> The hands of Zerubbabel have laid the foundations of this house, and his hands shall finish it; then you shall know that the LORD of hosts has sent me to you.<sup>10*</sup> For even they who were scornful on that day of small beginnings shall rejoice to see the select stone in the hands of Zerubbabel. These seven facets are the eyes of the LORD that range over the whole earth.

The Lampstand. <sup>1†</sup> Then the angel who spoke with me returned and awakened me, like a man awakened from his sleep.<sup>2*</sup> "What do you see?" he asked me. "I see a lampstand all of gold, with a bowl at the top," I replied; "on it are seven lamps with their tubes,<sup>3*</sup> and beside it are two olive trees, one on the right and the other on the left."<sup>11</sup> I then asked him, "What are these two olive trees at each side of the lampstand?"<sup>12</sup> And again I asked, "What are the two olive tufts which freely pour out fresh oil through the two golden channels?"<sup>13</sup> "Do you not know what these are?" he said to me. "No, my lord," I answered him.<sup>14</sup> He said, "These are the two anointed who stand by the LORD of the whole earth."

CHAPTER 5

The Flying Scroll. <sup>1††</sup> Then I raised my eyes again and saw a scroll flying.<sup>2</sup> "What do you see?" he asked me. I answered, "I see a scroll flying; it is twenty cubits long and ten cubits wide."<sup>3</sup> Then he said to me: "This is the curse which is to go forth over the whole earth; in accordance with it shall every thief be swept away, and in accordance with it shall every perjurer be expelled from here.<sup>4*</sup> I will send it forth, says the LORD of hosts, and it shall come into the house of the thief, or into the house of him who perjures himself with my name; it shall lodge within his house, consuming it, timber and stones."

The Flying Bushel. <sup>5†</sup> Then the angel who spoke with me came forward and said to me, "Raise your eyes and see what this is that comes forth."<sup>6</sup> "What is it?" I asked. And he answered, "This is a bushel container coming. This is their guilt in all the land."<sup>7</sup> Then a leaden cover was lifted, and there was a woman sitting inside the bushel.<sup>8</sup> "This is Wickedness," he said; and he thrust her inside the bushel, pushing the leaden cover into the opening.<sup>9</sup> Then I raised my eyes and saw two women coming forth with a wind ruffling their wings, for they had wings like the wings of a stork. As they lifted up the bushel into the air,<sup>10</sup> I said to the angel who spoke with me, "Where are they taking the bushel?"<sup>11*</sup> He replied, "To build a temple for it in the land of Shinar; when the temple is ready, they will deposit it there in its place."

CHAPTER 6

Four Chariots. <sup>1†</sup> Again I raised my eyes and saw four chariots coming out from between two mountains; and the mountains were of bronze.<sup>2*</sup> The first chariot had red horses, the second chariot black horses,<sup>3</sup> the third chariot white horses, and the fourth chariot spotted horses—all of them strong horses.<sup>4</sup> I asked the angel who spoke with me,

10: 1 Kgs 4, 25.	3: Rv 11, 4.
4, 7: Ezr 3, 11ff; Ps 118, 22.	5, 1: Ez 2, 9.
9: Ezr 6, 14ff.	11: Lv 19, 12.
10: 3, 9.	11: Gn 11, 2ff.
4, 2: Rv 1, 12.	6, 2: 1, 8; Rv 6, 4.

†, 7: Great mountain: figure of the obstacles confronting Zerubbabel in building the temple. A plain: figure of the ease with which he will overcome these obstacles.

4, 1ff. 11-14: The two anointed: literally, "the two sons of oil," Joshua, the anointed high priest, and Zerubbabel, the anointed prince. Just as the two olive trees in this imagery supply the sacred seven-branched lampstand (Ex 25, 31-40) with oil (v 12), so these two men, in ministering to the community, stand by (serve) the Lord.

5, 1-4: The enormous scroll, thirty feet by fifteen (the dimensions in length and breadth of the portico of Solomon's temple, 1 Kgs 6, 3), contains a list of maledictions on sinners, similar to that in Dt 27, 15-26. The thief and the perjurer represent all sinners, who are expelled from the holy community.

5, 5-11: The woman sealed in the bushel container is a figure of the general corruption of the people of Judah. She is removed from the Holy Land and transported to Shinar, that is, Babylonia, where a dwelling is being prepared for her; this is a symbol of the reign of Wickedness in pagan lands, contrasted with the reign of holiness in the Lord's dwelling on Mount Zion.

6, 1-8: The four chariots represent the angelic hosts sent by the Lord to the four ends of the earth. The chariot with the black horses brings the spirit, i.e., anger of the Lord against the land of the north, Babylonia.

"What are these, my lord?" <sup>5*</sup> The angel said to me in reply, "These are the four winds of the heavens, which are coming forth after being reviewed by the LORD of all the earth." <sup>6</sup> The chariot with the black horses was turning toward the land of the north, the red and the white horses went after them, and the spotted ones went toward the land of the south. <sup>7</sup> As these strong horses emerged, eager to set about patrolling the earth, he said, "Go, patrol the earth!" Then, as they patrolled the earth, <sup>8</sup> he called out to me and said, "See, they that go forth to the land of the north will make my spirit rest in the land of the north."

The Coronation. <sup>9</sup> This word of the LORD then came to me: <sup>10</sup> Take from the returned captives Heldai, Tobijah, Jedaiah; and go the same day to the house of Josiah, son of Zephaniah (these had come from Babylon). <sup>11</sup>† Silver and gold you shall take, and make a crown; place it on the head of [Joshua, son of Jehoazadak, the high priest] Zerubbabel. <sup>12*</sup> And say to him: Thus says the LORD of hosts: Here is a man whose name is Shoot, and where he is he shall sprout, and he shall build the temple of the LORD. <sup>13*</sup> Yes, he shall build the temple of the LORD, and taking up the royal insignia, he shall sit as ruler upon his throne. The priest shall be put at his right hand, and between the two of them there shall be friendly understanding. <sup>14</sup> The crown itself shall be a memorial offering in the temple of the LORD in favor of Heldai, Tobijah, Jedaiah, and the son of Zephaniah. <sup>15*</sup> And they who are from afar shall come and build the temple of the LORD, and you shall know that the LORD of hosts has sent me to you. And if you heed carefully the voice of the LORD your God. . . .

CHAPTER 7

True Fasting. <sup>1</sup> In the fourth year of Darius the king [the word of the LORD came to Zechariah], on the fourth day of Chislew, the ninth month, <sup>2</sup> Bethsarezzer sent Regemmelech and his men to implore favor of the LORD <sup>3*</sup> and to ask the priests of the house of the LORD of hosts, and the prophets, "Must I mourn and abstain in the fifth month as I have been doing these many years?" <sup>4</sup> Thereupon this word of the LORD of hosts came to me: <sup>5*</sup> Say to all the people of the land and to the priests: When you fasted and mourned in the fifth and in the seventh month these seventy years, was it really for me that you fasted? <sup>6</sup> And when you were eating and drinking, was it not for yourselves that you ate, and for yourselves that you drank? <sup>7*</sup> Were not these the words which the LORD spoke through the former prophets, when Jerusalem and the surrounding cities were inhabited and at peace, when the Negeb and the foothills were inhabited? <sup>8</sup> [This word of the LORD came to Zechariah: <sup>9*</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts:] Render true judgment, and show kindness and compassion toward each other. <sup>10*</sup> Do not oppress the widow or the orphan, the alien or the poor; do not plot evil against one another in your hearts. <sup>11*</sup> But they refused to listen; they stubbornly turned their backs and stopped their ears so as not to hear. <sup>12*</sup> And they made their hearts diamondhard so as not to hear the teaching and the message that the LORD of hosts had sent by his spirit through the former prophets. <sup>13*</sup> Then the LORD of hosts in his great anger said that, as they had not listened when he called, so he would not listen when they called, <sup>14*</sup> but would scatter them with a whirlwind among all the nations that they did not know. Thus the land was left desolate after them with no one traveling to and fro; they made the pleasant land into a desert.

CHAPTER 8

In the Days of the Messiah. <sup>1</sup> This word of the LORD of hosts came: Thus says the LORD of hosts:

- <sup>2*</sup> I am intensely jealous for Zion, stirred to jealous wrath for her.
<sup>3*</sup> Thus says the LORD:
 I will return to Zion,
 and I will dwell within Jerusalem;
 Jerusalem shall be called the faithful city,
 and the mountain of the LORD of hosts,
 the holy mountain.

<sup>4</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts: Old men and old women, each with staff in hand because of old age, shall again sit in the

5: Ps 104, 4.	24, 17; Is 1, 17, Jer 5, 28.
12: 3, 8; Eph 2, 20; Heb 3, 3.	11: Neh 9, 29; Hos 4, 16.
13: Ps 110, 4; Heb 3, 1.	12: Ez 11, 19; 36, 26; Neh 9, 29.
15: Eph 2, 19f.	13: Is 1, 15; Mi 3, 4.
7, 3; 8, 19.	14: Dt, 4, 27.
5: Is 58, 5; Rom 14, 6.	8, 2; Na 1, 2.
7: Jer 17, 26.	3: Is 2, 2; Jer 31, 23.
9: Is 58, 6.
10: Ex 22, 21-24; Dt

† 6, 11: Make a crown; place it on the head of [Joshua, son of Jehoazadak, the high priest] Zerubbabel: According to the current Hebrew text, Joshua the high priest is to be crowned. However, since the crown is a sign of royalty, the original text must have had the name of Zerubbabel here, not that of Joshua. In 3, 8 Joshua is a different man from the one called the Shoot, and in v 12 it is upon the Shoot that the crown is to be placed.

7, 1: The fourth year of Darius. . . the fourth day of Chislew, the ninth month: November, 518 B.C.

streets of Jerusalem. <sup>5</sup> The city shall be filled with boys and girls playing in her streets. <sup>6</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts: Even if this should seem impossible in the eyes of the remnant of this people, shall it in those days be impossible in my eyes also, says the LORD of hosts? <sup>7*</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts: Lo, I will rescue my people from the land of the rising sun, and from the land of the setting sun. <sup>8*</sup> I will bring them back to dwell within Jerusalem. They shall be my people, and I will be their God, with faithfulness and justice.

<sup>9*</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts: Let your hands be strong, you who in these days hear these words spoken by the prophets on the day when the foundation of the house of the LORD of hosts was laid for the building of the temple. <sup>10</sup> For before those days there were no wages for men, or hire for beasts; those who came and went had no security from the enemy, for I set every man against his neighbor. <sup>11</sup> But now I will not deal with the remnant of this people as in former days, says the LORD of hosts, <sup>12</sup> for it is the seedtime of peace: the vine shall yield its fruit, the land shall bear its crops, and the heavens shall give their dew; all these things I will have the remnant of the people possess. <sup>13*</sup> Just as you were a curse among the nations, O house of Judah and house of Israel, so will I save you that you may be a blessing; do not fear, but let your hands be strong.

<sup>14*</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts: As I determined to harm you when your fathers provoked me to wrath, says the LORD of hosts, and I did not relent, <sup>15</sup> so again in these days I have determined to favor Jerusalem and the house of Judah; do not fear! <sup>16*</sup> These then are the things you should do: Speak the truth to one another; let there be honesty and peace in the judgments at your gates, <sup>17*</sup> and let none of you plot evil against another in his heart, nor love a false oath. For all these things I hate, says the LORD.

<sup>18</sup> This word of the LORD of hosts came to me: <sup>19†</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts: The fast days of the fourth, the fifth, the seventh, and the tenth months shall become occasions of joy and gladness, cheerful festivals for the house of Judah; only love faithfulness and peace. <sup>20</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts: There shall yet come peoples, the inhabitants of many cities; <sup>21*</sup> and the inhabitants of one city shall approach those of another, and say, "Come! let us go to implore the favor of the LORD"; and, "I too will go to seek the LORD." <sup>22*</sup> Many peoples and strong nations shall come to seek the LORD of hosts in Jerusalem and to implore the favor of the LORD. <sup>23*</sup> Thus says the LORD of hosts: In those days ten men of every nationality, speaking different tongues, shall take hold, yes, take hold of every Jew by the edge of his garment and say, "Let us go with you, for we have heard that God is with you."

CHAPTER 9

Invasion by the Lord†

- 1 An oracle:
The word of the LORD is upon the land of Hadrach, and Damascus is its resting place,
For the cities of Aram are the LORD's,
as are all the tribes of Israel,
2* Hamath also, on its border,
Tyre too, and Sidon, however wise they be.
3 Tyre built herself a stronghold, and heaped up silver like dust,
and gold like the mire of the streets.
4* Lo, the LORD will strip her of her possessions, and smite her power on the sea,
and she shall be devoured by fire.
5 Ashkelon shall see it and be afraid;
Gaza also: she shall be in great anguish;
Ekron, too, for her hope shall come to nought.
The king shall disappear from Gaza,
and Ashkelon shall not be inhabited,
6*† and the baseborn shall occupy Ashdod.
I will destroy the pride of the Philistine 7† and take from his mouth his bloody meat, and his abominations from between his teeth:

7: Is 11, 11; Jer 30, 18.	16: 7, 9. 17: 7, 10.
8: Jer 4, 2.	21: Is 2, 3.
9: Ezr 5, 1; Hg 2, 18.	22: Is 60, 3. 23: Is 66, 23.
13: Is 19, 24; Jer 42, 18; Hg 2, 19; Zep 3, 20.	9, 2: Jer 49, 23. 4: Is 23, 1-18; Ez 26, 1-28, 26. 6: Am 1, 8.
14: Jer 31, 28.

† 8, 19: The fast day of the fourth month recalled the fall of Jerusalem in June, 587 B.C. (2 Kgs 25, 3f); that of the fifth month, the burning of the temple by Nebuzaradan in July of the same year (2 Kgs 25, 8f); that of the seventh month, the murder of Gedaliah in September of the same year (Jer 41, 1f); that of the tenth month, the beginning of the final siege of Jerusalem in January, 588 B.C. (2 Kgs 25, 1).

9, 1-8: Divine judgment is about to fall on the surrounding hostile peoples: Aram (Syria), including the cities of Hadrach and Damascus; Phoenicia, with its cities of Tyre and Sidon; Philistia, with its cities of Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and Ashdod.

9, 6: The baseborn: people of mixed ancestry.
9, 7: Remnant: see note on Hg 1, 12. The Jebusites: the pre-Israelite inhabitants of Jerusalem, conquered by David and incorporated into Israel.

He also shall become a remnant for our God,
and shall be like a family in Judah,
and Ekron shall be like the Jebusites.

- 8† I will encamp by my house as a guard that none may pass to and fro;
No oppressor shall pass over them again,
for now I have regard for their affliction.

Restoration under the Messiah

- 9*† Rejoice heartily, O daughter Zion, shout for joy, O daughter Jerusalem!

See, your king shall come to you;
a just savior is he,
Meek, and riding on an ass,
on a colt, the foal of an ass.

- 10*† He shall banish the chariot from Ephraim,
and the horse from Jerusalem;
The warrior's bow shall be banished,
and he shall proclaim peace to the nations.

His dominion shall be from sea to sea,
and from the River to the ends of the earth.

- 11*† As for you, for the blood of your covenant with me,
I will bring forth your prisoners from the dungeon.

- 12*† In the return to the fortress of the waiting prisoners,
This very day, I will return you double for your exile.

- 13 For I will bend Judah as my bow,
I will arm myself with Ephraim;
I will arouse your sons, O Zion, [against your sons, O Yavan,] and I will use you as a warrior's sword.

- 14 The LORD shall appear over them,
and his arrow shall shoot forth as lightning;

The LORD God shall sound the trumpet, and come in a storm from the south.

- 15 The LORD of hosts shall be a shield over them,
they shall overcome sling stones and trample them underfoot;

They shall drink blood like wine,
till they are filled with it like libation bowls,
like the corners of the altar.

- 16* And the LORD, their God, shall save them on that day, his people, like a flock.

For they are the jewels in a crown raised aloft over his land.

- 17 For what wealth is theirs, and what beauty!
grain that makes the youths flourish,
and new wine, the maidens!

CHAPTER 10

The New Order of Things

- 1* Ask of the LORD rain in the spring season!

It is the LORD who makes storm clouds.

And sends men the pouring rain;
for everyone, grassy fields.

- 2*† For the teraphim speak nonsense,
the diviners have false visions:
Deceitful dreams they tell,
empty comfort they offer.

This is why they wander like sheep, wretched: they have no shepherd.

- 3 My wrath is kindled against the shepherds,

and I will punish the leaders;
For the LORD of hosts will visit his flock,
the house of Judah, and make them his stately war horse.

- 4 From him shall come leader and chief,
from him warrior's bow and every officer.

- 5 They shall all be warriors,
trampling the mire of the streets in battle;

They shall wage war because the LORD is with them,
and shall put the horsemen to rout.

- 6 I will strengthen the house of Judah,
the house of Joseph I will save;

9: Is 62, 11; Jer 23,	12: Is 61, 7.
5; Mt 21, 5; Jn	16: Is 62, 3.
12, 15.	10, 1: Dt 11, 14; Jer
10: Hos 1, 7.	14, 22.
11: Is 42, 7; Ez 24,	2: Jer 10, 8; Ez 34,
8.	5.

† 9, 8: My house: the Holy Land; cf Hos 8, 1, 9, 15; Jer 12, 7.

9, 9: The Messiah will come, not as a conquering warrior, but in lowliness and peace. Not like the last kings of Judah, who rode in chariots and on horses (Jer 17, 25; 22, 4), but like the princes of old (Gn 49, 11; Jgs 5, 10; 10, 4), the Messiah will ride on an ass. The Evangelists see a literal fulfillment of this prophecy in the Savior's triumphant entry into Jerusalem (Mt 21, 4f; Jn 12, 14f).

9, 10: The River: The Euphrates; see note on Ps 72, 8.

9, 11: The blood of your covenant with me: the covenant between the Lord and Israel sealed with sacrificial blood (Ex 24, 8).

9, 12: The waiting prisoners: the exiles awaiting the return to their country, where they will receive a double compensation for the double punishment they had suffered; cf Is 40, 2; 61, 7.

10, 2: Teraphim: household idols, used for divination; cf Gn 31, 19, 34f; Jgs 17, 5, 18, 17f, 20; Ez 21, 26; Hos 3, 4.

- I will bring them back, because I have mercy on them, they shall be as though I had never cast them off, for I am the LORD, their God, and I will hear them.
- 7 Then Ephraim shall be valiant men, and their hearts shall be cheered as by wine. Their children shall see it and be glad, their hearts shall rejoice in the LORD.
- 8* I will whistle for them to come together, and when I redeem them they will be as numerous as before.
- 9 I sowed them among the nations, yet in distant lands they remember me; they shall rear their children and return.
- 10* I will bring them back from the land of Egypt, and gather them from Assyria. I will bring them into Gilead and into Lebanon, but these shall not suffice them;
- 11* I will cross over to Egypt and smite the waves of the sea and all the depths of the Nile shall be dried up. The pride of Assyria shall be cast down, and the scepter of Egypt taken away.
- 12* I will strengthen them in the LORD, and they shall walk in his name, says the LORD.

CHAPTER 11

- 1 Open your doors, O Lebanon, that the fire may devour your cedars!
- 2 Wail, you cypress trees, for the cedars are fallen, the mighty have been despoiled. Wail, you oaks of Bashan, for the impenetrable forest is cut down!
- 3 Hark! the wailing of the shepherds, their glory has been ruined. Hark! the roaring of the young lions, the jungle of the Jordan is laid waste.

Allegory of the Shepherds.† 4 Thus said the LORD, my God: Shepherd the flock to be slaughtered. 5* For they who buy them slay them with impunity; while those who sell them say, "Blessed be the LORD, I have become rich!" Even their own shepherds do not feel for them. 6 (Nor shall I spare the inhabitants of the earth any more, says the LORD. Yes, I will deliver each of them into the power of his neighbor, or into the power of his king; they shall crush the earth, and I will not deliver it out of their power.)

7* So I became the shepherd of the flock to be slaughtered for the sheep merchants. I took two staffs, one of which I called "Favor," and the other, "Bonds," and I fed the flock. 8 In a single month I did away with the three shepherds. I wearied of them, and they behaved badly toward me. 9* "I will not feed you," I said. "What is to die, let it die; what is to perish, let it perish, and let those that are left devour one another's flesh."

10 Then I took my staff "Favor" and snapped it asunder, breaking off the covenant which I had made with all peoples; 11 that day it was broken off. The sheep merchants who were watching me understood that this was the word of the LORD. 12* I said to them, "If it seems good to you, give me my wages; but if not, let it go." And they counted out my wages, thirty pieces of silver. 13* But the LORD said to me, "Throw it in the treasury, the handsome price at which they valued me." So I took the thirty pieces of silver and threw them into the treasury in the house of the LORD.

14 Then I snapped asunder my other staff, "Bonds," breaking off the brotherhood between Judah and Israel. 15 The LORD said to me: This time take the gear of a foolish shepherd. 16* For I will raise up a shepherd in the land who will take no note of those that perish, nor seek the strays, nor heal the injured, nor feed what survives—he will eat the flesh of the fat ones and tear off their hoofs!

- 17* Woe to my foolish shepherd who forsakes the flock! May the sword fall upon his arm and upon his right eye; Let his arm wither away entirely, and his right eye be blind forever!

8: Ez 36, 37,	7: Hos 5, 6,
10: Is 11, 11; 49, 20;	9: Jer 15, 2,
Hos 11, 11,	12: Ez 21, 32; Mt
11: Is 11, 15; Ez 30,	26, 15,
13,	13: Mt 27, 9f,
12: Mt 4, 5,	16: Ez 34, 2ff,
11, 5: Jer 50, 7,	17: Jn 10, 12,

† 11, 4-17: In this allegory the prophet becomes the good shepherd of God's flock, which is being slaughtered; he is the defender of the people exploited by bad rulers. The three shepherds, rulers in general, are to destroy one another in a short time (a single month). The service of the good shepherd is contemptuously valued at thirty pieces of silver, the legal indemnity (Ex 21, 32) for a gored slave. The prophet is thus a type of Christ, whose mission of salvation to his people was appraised by the Sanhedrists, the false shepherds, at the same base price (Mt 26, 14ff). In the case of the prophet as well as of Christ (Mt 27, 5), the money is thrown into the temple treasury, i. e., paid to God, showing thereby how shamefully his divine love and care are requited.

CHAPTER 12

Jerusalem God's Instrument.† 1* An oracle: the word of the LORD concerning Israel. Thus says the LORD, who spreads out the heavens, lays the foundations of the earth, and forms the spirit of man within him: 2* See, I will make Jerusalem a bowl to stupefy all peoples round about. [Judah will be besieged, even Jerusalem.] 3* On that day I will make Jerusalem a weighty stone for all peoples. All who attempt to lift it shall injure themselves badly, and all the nations of the earth shall be gathered against her. 4 On that day, says the LORD, I will strike every horse with fright, and its rider with madness. I will strike blind all the horses of the peoples, but upon the house of Judah I will open my eyes, 5 and the princes of Judah shall say to themselves, "The inhabitants of Jerusalem have their strength in the LORD of hosts, their God." 6* On that day I will make the princes of Judah like a brazier of fire in the woodland, and like a burning torch among sheaves, and they shall devour right and left all the surrounding peoples; but Jerusalem shall still abide on its own site. 7 The LORD shall save the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem may not be exalted over Judah. 8* On that day, the LORD will shield the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the weakling among them shall be like David on that day, and the house of David godlike, like an angel of the LORD before them. 9 On that day I will seek the destruction of all nations that come against Jerusalem.

Messianic Jerusalem. 10*† I will pour out on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and petition; and they shall look on him whom they have thrust through, and they shall mourn for him as one mourns for an only son, and they shall grieve over him as one grieves over a first-born.

11*† On that day the mourning in Jerusalem shall be as great as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the plain of Megiddo. 12 And the land shall mourn, each family apart: the family of the house of David, and their wives; the family of the house of Nathan, and their wives; 13 the family of the house of Levi, and their wives; the family of Semei, and their wives; 14 and all the rest of the families, each family apart, and the wives apart.

CHAPTER 13

The End of Falsehood. 1*† On that day there shall be open to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, a fountain to purify from sin and uncleanness. 2* On that day, says the LORD of hosts, I will destroy the names of the idols from the land, so that they shall be mentioned no more; I will also take away the prophets and the spirit of uncleanness from the land. 3* If a man still prophesies, his parents, father and mother, shall say to him, "You shall not live, because you have spoken a lie in the name of the LORD." When he prophesies, his parents, father and mother, shall thrust him through.

4† On that day, every prophet shall be ashamed to prophesy his vision, neither shall he assume the hairy mantle to mislead, 5* but he shall say, "I am no prophet, I am a tiller of the soil, for I have owned land since my youth."

6† And if anyone asks him, "What are these wounds on your chest?" he shall answer, "With these I was wounded in the house of my dear ones."

The Song of the Sword

7*† Awake, O sword, against my shepherd,

12, 1: Is 42, 5.	13, 1: Heb 9, 14; 1 Pt
2: Is 51, 17; Jer 51,	1, 18f; Rv 1, 5.
7.	2: Mt 5, 12; 2 Pt 2,
3: Mt 21, 44.	1.
6: Ob 18.	3: Dt 18, 20; Mt 3,
8: Ex 32, 34.	5f.
10: Jer 6, 26; Jn 19,	5: Am 7, 14.
34; Rv 1, 7.	7: Mt 26, 31.
11: 2 Chr 35, 22-25.

† 12, 1-9: Under the image of the deliverance of Judah and Jerusalem from invading enemies, the prophet foretells the ultimate victory of God's people in the messianic age.

12, 10: The divine blessings (a spirit of grace and petition) will be poured out on God's people through the intervention of an unnamed sufferer (him whom they have thrust through), similar to the Servant of the Lord in Is 52, 13-53, 12. In Jn 19, 37 the Evangelist sees in this passage a prophecy fulfilled in the piercing of Christ's side.

12, 11: The mourning for the pierced victim in Jerusalem is compared to a lamentation in the plain of Megiddo apparently over a certain personage called Hadadrimmon. The reference is no longer clear. Both Hadad and Rimmon were names of the Semitic storm god, often identified with the god Baal. Some see here a reference to the annual mourning by the pagans over the death of the fertility god. According to others, Hadadrimmon is the name of a place near Megiddo, and the reference would then be to the mourning over the death of King Josiah, who was killed in battle there; cf 2 Chr 35, 22-25.

13, 1: A fountain to purify from sin: in contrast to the lustral water used in ritual purification; cf Nm 19, 9, 13, 20; 31, 23. The Lord himself is the fountain of living water (Jer 2, 13) cf Is 12, 2f.

13, 4: Hairy mantle: worn by prophets as a mark of their calling; cf 2 Kgs 1, 8; Mt 3, 4.

13, 6: Wounds on your chest: literally, "wounds between your hands." The false prophets, like the prophet of Baal (1 Kgs 18, 26), apparently inflicted wounds on themselves, to defend himself against the accusation of being a false prophet, a man will deny having inflicted wounds on himself and say instead that he received them at home, "in the house of my dear ones." In the liturgy this test is applied to Christ in an accommodated sense.

13, 7: When the shepherd is killed, the sheep are scattered. In Mt 26, 31 the Evangelist quotes from this verse, in somewhat different form, the words, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered, as said by Christ shortly before his arrest in the Garden of Olives and the flight of the Apostles.

against the man who is my associate,
says the LORD of hosts.
Strike the shepherd
that the sheep may be dispersed, and I will turn my hand against the little ones.
8 In all the land, says the LORD, two thirds of them shall be cut off and perish,
and one third shall be left.
9* I will bring the one third through
fire,
and I will refine them as silver is refined,
and I will test them as gold is tested.
They shall call upon my name,
and I will hear them.
I will say, "They are my people," and they shall say, "The LORD is my God."

CHAPTER 14

The Fight for Jerusalem.† 1 Lo, a day shall come for the LORD when the spoils shall be divided in your midst. 2 And I will gather all the nations against Jerusalem for battle: the city shall be taken, houses plundered, women ravished; half of the city shall go into exile, but the rest of the people shall not be removed from the city. 3 Then the LORD shall go forth and fight against those nations, fighting as on a day of battle. 4 That day his feet shall rest upon the Mount of Olives, which is opposite Jerusalem to the east. The Mount of Olives shall be cleft in two from east to west by a very deep valley, and half of the mountain shall move to the north and half of it to the south. 5 And the valley of the LORD's mountain shall be filled up when the valley of those two mountains reaches its edge; it shall be filled up as it was filled up by the earthquake in the days of King Uzziah of Judah. Then the LORD, my God, shall come, and all his holy ones with him.

6 On that day there shall no longer be cold or frost. 7* There shall be one continuous day, known to the LORD, not day and night, for in the evening time there shall be light.

8* On that day, living waters shall flow from Jerusalem, half to the eastern sea, and half to the western sea, and it shall be so in summer and in winter. 9* The LORD shall become king over the whole earth; on that day the LORD shall be the only one, and his name the only one.

10* And from Geba to Rimmon in the Negeb, all the land shall turn into a plain; but Jerusalem shall remain exalted in its place. From the Gate of Benjamin to the place of the First Gate, to the Corner Gate; and from the Tower of Hananel to the king's wine presses, 11* they shall occupy her. Never again shall she be doomed; Jerusalem shall abide in security.

12 And this shall be the plague with which the LORD shall strike all the nations that have fought against Jerusalem: their flesh shall rot while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall rot in their sockets, and their tongues shall rot in their mouths.

13 On that day there shall be among them a great tumult from the LORD: every man shall seize the hand of his neighbor, and the hand of each shall be raised against that of his neighbor.

14 Judah also shall fight against Jerusalem. The riches of all the surrounding nations shall be gathered together, gold, silver, and garments, in great abundance.

15 Similar to this plague shall be the plague upon the horses, mules, camels, asses, and upon all the beasts that are in those camps.

16* All who are left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem shall come up year after year to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, and to celebrate the feast of Booths. 17 If any of the families of the earth does not come up to Jerusalem to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, no rain shall fall upon them.

18 And if the family of Egypt does not come up, or enter, upon them shall fall the plague which the LORD will inflict upon all the nations that do not come up to celebrate the feast of Booths. 19 This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all the nations that do not come up to celebrate the feast of Booths.

20 On that day there shall be upon the bells of the horses. "Holy to the LORD." The pots in the house of the LORD shall be as the libation bowls before the altar.

21* And every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holy to the LORD of hosts; and all who come to sacrifice shall take them and cook in them. On that day there shall no longer be any merchant in the house of the LORD of hosts.

9: Jer 30, 22; Ps 66, 10.	12, 38.
14, 7: Rv 21, 23.	11: Jer 31, 40; Rv 22, 3.
8: 13, 1; Ez 47, 1-8; Jl 3, 18.	16: Lv 23, 34-43; Neh 8, 14; Is 60, 6, 9.
9: Dt 6, 4; Eph 4, 5f; Rv 11, 15.	21: Mt 21, 12; Jn 2, 13-16.
10: 12, 6; Neh 3, 6.

† 14, 1-21: An apocalyptic description of the day of the Lord, in which Jerusalem, the figure of God's elect, after much suffering (siege: vv 1ff; riot: v 13; plague: vv 12, 15), is rescued by the Lord (vv 4f) and given great blessings (vv 6-11, 14, 16-21).

MALACHI

This work was composed by an anonymous writer shortly before Nehemiah's arrival in Jerusalem (445 B.C.). Because of the sharp reproaches he was leveling against the priests and rulers of the people, the author probably wished to conceal his identity. To do this he made a proper name out of the Hebrew expression for "My Messenger" (Malachi), which occurs in 1, 1 and 3, 1. The historical value of the prophecy is considerable in that it gives us a picture of life in the Jewish community returned from Babylon, between the period of Haggai and the reform measures of Ezra and Nehemiah. It is likely that the author's trenchant criticism of abuses and religious indifference in the community prepared the way for these necessary reforms.

The chosen people had made a sorry return for divine love. The priests, who should have been leaders, had dishonored God by their blemished sacrifices. In his first chapter, the writer foresees the time when all nations will offer a pure oblation (1, 11)—a prophecy whose fulfillment the Church sees in the Sacrifice of the Mass. The author then turns from priests to people, denouncing their marriages with pagans and their callous repudiation of Israelite wives. Imbued with the rationalist and critical spirit of the times, many had wearied God with the question, "Where is the God of justice?" To this question the prophet replies that the day of the Lord is coming. But first the forerunner must come, who will prepare the soil for repentance and true worship. The Gospel writers point to John the Baptizer, as the forerunner ushering in the messianic age, the true day of the Lord. When the ground is prepared God will appear, measuring out rewards and punishments and purifying the nation in the furnace of judgment. He will create a new order in which the ultimate triumph of good is inevitable.

CHAPTER 1

<sup>1</sup> An oracle. The word of the LORD to Israel through Malachi.

Israel Preferred to Edom

- <sup>2*</sup> I have loved you, says the LORD; but you say, "How have you loved us?"
- <sup>3*†</sup> Was not Esau Jacob's brother? says the LORD: yet I loved Jacob, but hated Esau; I made his mountains a waste, his heritage a desert for jackals.
- <sup>4*</sup> If Edom says, "We have been crushed but we will rebuild the ruins," Thus says the LORD of hosts: They indeed may build, but I will tear down, and they shall be called the land of guilt, the people with whom the LORD is angry forever.
- <sup>5*</sup> Your own eyes shall see it, and you will say, "Great is the LORD, even beyond the land of Israel."

Sins of the Priests and Levites

- <sup>6</sup> A son honors his father, and a servant fears his master;

If then I am a father, where is the honor due to me? And if I am a master, where is the reverence due to me?—

So says the LORD of hosts to you, O priests, who despise his name. But you ask, "How have we despised your name?"

<sup>7</sup> By offering polluted food on my altar! Then you ask, "How have we polluted it?"

By saying the table of the LORD may be slighted!

<sup>8*†</sup> When you offer a blind animal for sacrifice, is this not evil?

1, 2: Dt 7, 6ff; Ez 16; Am 1, 11.
3: Gn 25, 23; Rom 9, 13.
4: Is 34, 5f; 63, 1-

6: Jer 49, 7-22; Ob 21.
5: Is 60.
8: Lv 22, 19-25; Dt 15, 21.

† 1, 3f: The thought passes from the person Esau to his descendants, Edom, and from the person Jacob to his descendants, Israel. Loved: preferred; hated: rejected; cf Gn 25, 21ff. St. Paul uses this passage as an example of God's freedom of choice in calling the Gentiles to the faith (Rom 9, 13).

1, 8: The offering in sacrifice of a lame, sick or blind animal was forbidden in the law (Lv 22, 17-25; Dt 17, 1).

- When you offer the lame or the sick, is it not evil?
Present it to your governor; see if he will accept it,
or welcome you, says the LORD of
hosts.
- 9 So now if you implore God for mercy on us,
when you have done the like
Will he welcome any of you?
says the LORD of hosts.
- 10† Oh, that one among you would shut
the temple gates to keep you from kindling fire on my altar in vain!
I have no pleasure in you, says the
LORD of hosts;
neither will I accept any sacrifice
from your hands,
- 11* For from the rising of the sun, even to its setting,
my name is great among the na-
tions;
And everywhere they bring sacrifice to my name,
and a pure offering;
For great is my name among the nations,
says the LORD of hosts.
- 12 But you behave profanely toward me by thinking
the LORD's table and its offering may be polluted,
and its food slighted.
- 13 You also say, "What a burden!"
and you scorn it, says the LORD
of hosts;
You bring in what you seize, or the lame, or the sick;
yes, you bring it as a sacrifice.
Shall I accept it from your hands?
says the LORD.
- 14 Cursed is the deceiver, who has in his flock a male,
but under his vow sacrifices to the LORD a gelding;
For a great King am I, says the LORD
of hosts,
and my name will be feared
among the nations.
- The dung of your feasts, and you will be carried off with
it.
- 4* Then you will know that I sent you this commandment
because I have a covenant with Levi,
says the LORD of hosts.
- 5* My covenant with him was one of life and peace;
fear I put in him, and he feared
me,
and stood in awe of my name.
- 6* True doctrine was in his mouth, and no dishonesty was found upon his lips;
He walked with me in integrity and
in uprightness,
and turned many away from evil.
- 7* For the lips of the priest are to keep knowledge,
and instruction is to be sought
from his mouth,
because he is the messenger of the LORD of hosts.
- 8 But you have turned aside from the way,
and have caused many to falter
by your instruction;
You have made void the covenant of Levi,
says the LORD of hosts.
- 9 I, therefore, have made you contemptible
and base before all the people,
Since you do not keep my ways,
but show partiality in your decisions.

Sins of the People

- 10*† Have we not all the one Father?
Has not the one God created us?

---

11: Ps 113, 3; Is 59, 19.	6: Dt 33, 8-11. 7: Lv 10, 10†; Dt 17, 9†; Jer 18, 18; Hg 2, 12.
2, 2: Lv 26, 14-45; Dt 28, 15-68.	18: Hg 2, 12.
4: Nm 25, 12†.	10: Mt 23, 9; Jb 31, 15; Eph 4, 6.
5: Nm 25, 12; Ez 37, 26ff.

---

CHAPTER 2

- 1 And now, O priests, this commandment is for you:
If you do not listen,
2* And if you do not lay it to heart, to give glory to my name, says the
LORD of hosts,
I will send a curse upon you and of your blessing I will make a curse.
Yes, I have already cursed it,
because you do not lay it to heart.
- 3† Lo, I will deprive you of the shoulder and I will strew dung in your faces,

† 1, 10†: The imperfect sacrifices offered without sincerity by the people of Judah are displeasing to the Lord. He will rather be pleased with the offerings of the Gentile nations throughout the world (from the rising of the sun, even to its setting), which anticipate the pure offering to be sacrificed in messianic times, the universal Sacrifice of the Mass, as we are told by the Council of Trent.

2, 3: I will deprive you of the shoulder: this part of a sacrificial animal, allotted by the law (Dt 18, 3) to the priests, will be withheld from them.

2, 10-16: Intermarriage of Israelites with foreigners was forbidden according to Dt 7, 1-4. After the exile this law was strictly enforced (Ezr 9-10). Foreign marriages are here portrayed as a violation of the covenant (v 10), which made the sacrifices offered by the offenders unacceptable to God (v. 13). They were all the more reprehensible when accompanied by the divorce of Israelite wives (vv 14ff). This gradual return to the primitive ideal of the indissolubility of marriage was fully realized in New Testament times through the teaching of Christ; cf Mt 19, 3-12.

- Why then do we break faith with each other, violating the covenant of our fathers?
- 11* Judah has broken faith; an abominable thing has been done in Israel and in Jerusalem.
Judah has profaned the temple which the LORD loves,
and has married an idolatrous woman.
- 12 May the LORD cut off from the man who does this both witness and advocate out of the tents of Jacob, and anyone to offer sacrifice to the LORD of hosts!
- 13 This also you do: the altar of the LORD you cover with tears, weeping and groaning, Because he no longer regards your sacrifice
nor accepts it favorably from your hand;
- 14* And you say, "Why is it?"—
Because the LORD is witness between you and the wife of your youth,
With whom you have broken faith though she is your companion, your betrothed wife.
- 15* Did he not make one being, with flesh and spirit:
and what does that one require but godly offspring?
You must then safeguard life that is your own,
and not break faith with the wife of your youth.
- 16 For I hate divorce,
says the LORD, the God of Israel,
And covering one's garment with injustice,
says the LORD of hosts;
You must then safeguard life that is your own,
and not break faith.
- 17 You have wearied the LORD with your words, yet you say, "How have we wearied him?"
By your saying, "Every evildoer is good in the sight of the LORD,
And he is pleased with him";
or else, "Where is the just God?"
- And the messenger of the covenant whom you desire.
Yes, he is coming, says the LORD of hosts.
- 2 But who will endure the day of his coming?
And who can stand when he appears?
For he is like the refiner's fire,
or like the fuller's lye.
- 3* He will sit refining and purifying [silver], and he will purify the sons of Levi,
Refining them like gold or like silver that they may offer due sacrifice to the LORD.
- 4 Then the sacrifice of Judah and Jerusalem will please the LORD, as in days of old, as in years gone by.
- 5 I will draw near to you for judgment, and I will be swift to bear witness Against the sorcerers, adulterers, and perjurers,
those who defraud the hired man of his wages,
Against those who defraud widows and orphans;
those who turn aside the stranger,
and those who do not fear me,
says the LORD of hosts.
- 6† Surely I, the LORD, do not change, nor do you cease to be sons of Jacob.
- 7* Since the days of your fathers you have turned aside from my statutes, and have not kept them.
Return to me, and I will return to you,
says the LORD of hosts.
Yet you say, "How must we return?"
- 8* Dare a man rob God? Yet you are robbing me!
And you say, "How do we rob you?"
In tithes and in offerings!
- 9 You are indeed accursed,
for you, the whole nation, rob me.
- 10*† Bring the whole tithe into the storehouse,

11: Ezr 9, 2; Neh 13, 25.	3: Is 1, 25; Zec 13, 9.
14: Gn 31, 49f; Prv 5, 18ff.	7: Zec 1, 3f; Acts 7, 51.
15: Gn 2, 7.22ff.	8: Neh 13, 10-14
3, 1: Is 40, 3; Mt 11, 10; Mk 1, 2; Lk 1, 17; 7, 27.	10: 2 Chr 31, 10f; Neh 10, 38; 13, 12; Prv 3, 9f.

CHAPTER 3

The Messenger of the Covenant

- 1*† Lo, I am sending my messenger to prepare the way before me;
And suddenly there will come to the temple
the LORD whom you seek,

† 3, 1: My messenger. . . before me: in v 23 this messenger is called Elijah. In Mt 11, 10 these words are quoted by Christ as referring to John the Baptist, who prepared the way for the coming of the Savior; cf Mt 3, 1ff.11f; 17, 11ff; Mk 1, 2-8; Lk 3, 2-18; Jn 1, 31-34.

3, 6f: God is faithful to his promises. He will not abandon the Israelites, who are still his people.

3, 10: Storehouse: the temple treasury.

That there may be food in my house, and try me in this, says the LORD
of hosts:
Shall I not open for you the flood-gates of heaven,
to pour down blessing upon you without measure?
11 For your sake I will forbid the locust to destroy your crops;
And the vine in the field will not be barren,
says the LORD of hosts.
12 Then all nations will call you blessed,
for you will be a delightful land,
says the LORD of hosts.
13 You have defied me in word, says the LORD, "What have we spoken against you?"
14* You have said, "It is vain to serve
God,
and what do we profit by keeping his command,
And going about in penitential dress in awe of the LORD of hosts?" 15 Rather must we call the proud
blessed;
for indeed evildoers prosper,
and even tempt God with impunity."
16* † Then they who fear the LORD spoke with one another,
and the LORD listened attentively;
And a record book was written before him
of those who fear the LORD and trust in his name.
17* And they shall be mine, says the LORD of hosts,
my own special possession, on the day I take action.
And I will have compassion on them,
as a man has compassion on his son who serves him.
18 Then you will again see the distinction
between the just and the wicked;
Between him who serves God,
and him who does not serve him.
19* For lo, the day is coming, blazing like an oven,
when all the proud and all evil-
doers will be stubble,

And the day that is coming will set them on fire,
leaving them neither root nor branch,
says the LORD of hosts.
20* But for you who fear my name, there will arise
the sun of justice with its healing rays;
And you will gambol like calves out of the stall
21 and tread down the wicked;
They will become ashes under the soles of your feet, on the day I take action, says the
LORD of hosts.
22* Remember the law of Moses my servant,
which I enjoined him on Horeb,
The statutes and ordinances for all Israel.
23* † Lo, I will send you
Elijah, the prophet,
Before the day of the LORD comes,
the great and terrible day, 24† To turn the hearts of the fathers to their children,
and the hearts of the children to their fathers,
Lest I come and strike
the land with doom.
*Lo, I will send you
Elijah, the prophet,
Before the day of the LORD comes,
the great and terrible day.*

---

14: Jb 21, 14f; 22,	18; 2 Pt 3, 7.
17: Ps 73, 11f.	20: Lk 1, 78f.
16: Fv 20, 12.	22: Ex 20; Lv 26; Dt
17: Ex 19, 5; Dt 7,	4, 15f.
6; Pss 103, 13;	24: (2, 24) Mt 11,
135, 4.	14; 17, 10; Mk 9,
19: Is 13, 9; 34, 8;	10ff; Lk 1, 17.
Jl 3, 3; Zep 1.

---

† 3, 16: Record book: see note on Ex 32, 32.
3, 23: Elijah: described in 2 Kgs 2, 11 as taken heavenward in a fiery chariot. Here his return to earth seems to be foretold.
Jewish tradition has interpreted this literally; Christ declared it to be fulfilled in the coming of John the Baptizer (Mt 17, 10-13).

3, 24: The words in fine print, a repetition of v 23a-d, have been added by the scribes so that the collection of the twelve minor prophets will not end with the threat of doom.

11 12 13 14 15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23 24
25
26
27
28
29 30
31
32
33 34 35
36
37
38
39 40
41 42
43
44
45
46
47 48
49
50
51
52
53
54
55
56
57
58
59
60
61
62
63
64
65
66
67
68
69
70
71
72
73
74
75 76
77
78
79 80
81
82 83
84
85
86
87
88 89
90
91 92
93
94
95
96
97
98
99 100

101
102
103
104
105
106
107
108
109
110
111
112 113
114
115
116
117
118
119
120
121 122
123
124
125
126
127
128
129
130
131
132
133
134
135
136
137
138
139
140
141
142
143
144
145
146
147
148
149
150
151 152
153
154 155 156
157
158
159
160
161
162
163
164
165
166
167
168
169
170
171
172 173
174
175
176
177
178
179
180
181
182
183
184
185
186
187
188
189
190
191
192
193
194
195
196
197
198
199 200

201

THE NEW TESTAMENT

ALPHABETICAL ORDER

	ABBREV.	PAGE		ABBREV.	PAGE
Acts of the Apostles	Acts	1176	Mark	Mk	1083
Colossians	Col	1269	Matthew	Mt	1047
1 Corinthians	1 Cor	1227	1 Peter	1 Pt	1313
2 Corinthians	2 Cor	1242	2 Peter	2 Pt	1319
Ephesians	Eph	1258	Philemon	Phlm	1293
Galatians	Gal	1251	Philippians	Phil	1264
Hebrews	Heb	1295	Revelation	Rv	1337
James	Jas	1308	Romans	Rom	1212
John (Gospel)	Jn	1139	1 Thessalonians	1 Thes	1274
1 John	1 Jn	1323	2 Thessalonians	2 Thes	1278
2 John	2 Jn	1330	1 Timothy	1 Tim	1281
3 John	3 Jn	1332	2 Timothy	2 Tim	1286
Jude	Jude	1334	Titus	Ti	1290
Luke	Lk	1106

MATTHEW

Matthew's gospel in its present form was written in a Jewish milieu, probably after the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. There are evidences of the fulfillment of the Mosaic law (1, 19; 5, 18), and also references to violence (21, 38-41), to the burning of a city (22, 7), and to punishment in the wake of Jesus' death (27, 25).

There is also the anti-Pharisee and anti-scribe polemic in Matthew which indicates a fairly complete rift between Christians and official Judaism. By the year 85 A.D. Christians were unwelcome in Jewish synagogues—called their synagogues by Matthew to distinguish Jewish from Christian worship (4, 23; 9, 35; 12, 9; 13, 54).

There is thus an ambivalence between Matthew's earlier Jewishness, reflected in the elements of the gospel as they were in the process of formation, and his alienation from Jewish tradition even before these elements were incorporated into the finished gospel.

Ignatius, bishop of Antioch (†110), in his letters to certain churches of Asia Minor, uses several sayings of Jesus found only in this gospel (12, 35; 15, 13; 19, 12). Papias, bishop of Hierapolis in Phrygia, wrote (c 135) that Matthew had compiled a collection of sayings of the Lord "in the Hebrew tongue" (most likely Aramaic), "and each person translated them as he was able." This seems to indicate that various Greek versions of the early collection attributed to Matthew were in existence; one of them may have been the apocryphal gospel of the Hebrews.

Besides the sayings of the Lord, it is certain that the author of Matthew had access to the present Gospel of Mark because of the Marcan verses he uses in chapters 3, 8f, 12-17, 19-22, 24, 26ff. Matthew is obviously an expanded version of Mark, considered the first gospel form to be written. Very few scholars hold that Mark is a condensed version of Matthew.

Both Matthew and Luke, neither of whom can be proved to have copied from the other, seem to have had, besides the Gospel of Mark, another source of some 240 verses which Mark does not include. This source, not found but deduced, is designated simply as Q from Quelle, the German term for "source."

Beginning with a series of reflections relating Jesus and his parentage to the messianism of the Old Testament (1, 1-25), the gospel places his birth in the hostile political environment of the time (2, 1-23). Like the other gospels, Matthew introduces the public ministry of Jesus with a summary of the mission of John the Baptizer (3, 1-17). After the account of the temptation of Jesus (4, 1-11), the gospel reports his teaching and miracles, locating all these in Galilee and its vicinity, exclusive of Jerusalem (4, 12-20, 34). It concludes with the final events and teaching of Jesus, locating them in Jerusalem, and centering them around his passion, death and resurrection (21, 1-28, 20). For this general outline of a gospel, see Acts 1, 21f; 10, 37-41.

The Gospel of Matthew is distinctive for its practice of citing the Old Testament in connection with Jesus' activity and teaching, and for a structured presentation of his doctrine in the form of sermons or discourses (5, 1-7, 29; 10, 5-42; 13, 1-52; 18, 1-35; 24, 1-25, 46). The discourses are followed by collections of miracle-accounts and incidents which reflect Jesus' doctrinal teaching. They are presented by the evangelist in such a way as to be meaningful to the Christian communities of his time.

The gospel as a whole revolves around the concept, no doubt originally developed in Judaeo-Christian circles, that Jesus is the expected Messiah-king of Israel, mysteriously unacceptable to his own people, but no less mysteriously acceptable to many Gentiles.

The universal importance of Christ in this gospel does not derive from the notion of messianic kingship alone, but more especially from his divinity (1, 23; 16, 16; 28, 18). This makes possible his presence in Christian communities in word and sacrament (18, 19; 26, 29) and constitutes him the divine teacher of all nations (28, 19). The bond in Matthew between christology and ecclesiology portrays the mediating mission of the Christian community, that of giving witness to Christ in the world. In the judgment of modern scholars this mission is a theological development within the gospel tradition that requires a date for the Gospel of Matthew later than that of Mark and Luke. Current and more common opinion dates the composition of the Gospel of Matthew between 80-100 A.D., or roughly, 85 A.D. There is also the compelling evidence for the dependence of Matthew on Mark: namely, the 600 of Mark's 661 verses found in Matthew, as well as the relationship of language and order in these two gospels.

The principal divisions of the Gospel of Matthew are as follows:

- I: Prologue: The Coming of the Savior (1, 1—2, 23)
- II: Promulgation of the Reign of God (3, 1—7, 29)
- III: Preaching the Reign of God (8, 1—11, 1)
- IV: Mystery of the Reign of God (11, 2—13, 53)
- V: The Reign Become Church (13, 54—19, 2)
- VI: First Steps in Establishing God's Reign (19, 3—26, 2)
- VII: The Passion and Resurrection (26, 3—28, 20)

I: PROLOGUE: THE COMING OF THE SAVIOR

CHAPTER 1

Genealogy of Jesus. 1*† A family record of Jesus Christ, son of David, son of Abraham. 2*† Abraham was the father of Isaac, Isaac the father of Jacob, Jacob the father of Judah and his brothers.

3* Judah was the father of Perez and Zerah, whose mother was Tamar.

Perez was the father of Hezron, Hezron the father of Ram.

4* Ram was the father of Amminadab, Amminadab the father of Nahshon, Nahshon the father of Salmon.

5* Salmon was the father of Boaz, whose mother was Rahab, Boaz was the father of Obed, whose mother was Ruth.

Obed was the father of Jesse,

6* Jesse the father of King David.

David was the father of Solomon, whose mother had been the wife of Uriah.

7* Solomon was the father of Rehoboam,

Rehoboam the father of Abijah, Abijah the father of Asa.

8* Asa was the father of Jehoshaphat, Jehoshaphat the father of Joram, Joram the father of Uzziah.

9* Uzziah was the father of Jotham, Jotham the father of Ahaz, Ahaz the father of Hezekiah.

10* Hezekiah was the father of Manasseh,

Manasseh the father of Amos, Amos the father of Josiah,

11* Josiah became the father of Jechoniah and his brothers at the time of the Babylonian exile.

12 After the Babylonian exile Jechoniah was the father of Shealtiel, Shealtiel the father of Zerubbabel.

13 Zerubbabel was the father of Abiud, Abiud the father of Eliakim,

14 Eliakim the father of Azor. Azor was the father of Zadok, Zadok the father of Achim, Achim the father of Eliud.

15 Eliud was the father of Eleazar, Eleazar the father of Matthan, Matthan the father of Jacob.

16 Jacob was the father of Joseph the husband of Mary.

It was of her that Jesus who is called the Messiah was born.

- |                       |                       |
|-----------------------|-----------------------|
| 1, 1-17: Lk 3, 23-38. | 6: 2 Sm 12, 24.       |
| 1: 9, 27; Gal 3, 16.  | 7: 1 Kgs 11, 43.      |
| 2: Gn 21, 3; 25, 26;  | 14, 31; 15, 8.        |
| 29, 35; Heb 7,        | 8: 2 Kgs 8, 16.       |
| 14.                   | 9: 2 Chr 26, 23; 27,  |
| 3: Gn 38, 29f; Ru     | 9, 28, 27.            |
| 4, 18, 1 Chr 2,       | 10: 2 Chr 32, 33, 33, |
| 41.                   | 20, 25.               |
| 4: Nm 7, 12; Ru 4,    | 11: 2 Chr 36,         |
| 20.                   | 9ff.20f.              |
| 5: Ru 4, 21.          |                       |

† 1, 1: A family record of Jesus Christ: the Greek may also be taken to mean "book of the history of the origin of Jesus Christ." In this sense the opening verse is a title for the whole gospel, which then begins with the genealogy of Christ, cf Gn 2, 4. Jesus: the Greek and Latin form of the late Hebrew and Aramaic name Jeshua, meaning "The Lord is salvation." Christ: in v 17 and elsewhere, a title from the Greek Christos, which translates the Hebrew Mashiah, "Anointed One," as applied to the expected representative of God on earth. Matthew in v 1 uses "Jesus Christ" as a proper name, as was customary in later Christian circles; cf Jn 1, 17; Phil 2, 11.

1, 2-17: The genealogy points out Jesus' Davidic lineage through Joseph who, however, is called "the husband of Mary" (1, 16), not the father of Jesus. In 1, 18-25, the evangelist explains the reason for the foster paternity of Joseph. The genealogy recalls the messianic hope of Israel by alluding to the divine promises to the patriarchs (2) and to David (6), cf 2 Sm 7, 12-16. It places this hope in the context of Israel's sinfulness by allusion to David's murder of Uriah (6), and also to the Babylonian captivity (11). The constant repetition of the term "was the father of," literally "begot," implies the continuous presence of God in Israel sustaining the faith and hope of the people. For the implication of the divine presence in the Greek term, cf 1 Cor 4, 15; Gal 4, 24.

17† Thus the total number of generations is:
from Abraham to David, fourteen generations;
from David to the Babylonian captivity, fourteen generations;
from the Babylonian captivity to the Messiah, fourteen generations.

The Birth of Jesus.† 18* Now this is how the birth of Jesus Christ came about. When his mother Mary was engaged to Joseph, but before they lived together, she was found with child through the power of the Holy Spirit. 19† Joseph her husband, an upright man unwilling to expose her to the law, decided to divorce her quietly. 20*† Such was his intention when suddenly the angel of the Lord appeared in a dream and said to him: "Joseph, son of David, have no fear about taking Mary as your wife. It is by the Holy Spirit that she has conceived this child. 21 She is to have a son and you are to name him Jesus because he will save his people from their sins." 22† All this happened to fulfill what the Lord had said through the prophet:

23* "The virgin shall be with child and give birth to a son, and they shall call him Emmanuel,"

a name which means "God is with us."

24 When Joseph awoke he did as the angel of the Lord had directed him and received her into his home as his wife.

25*† He had no relations with her at any time before she bore a son, whom he named Jesus.

CHAPTER 2

The Astrologers. † After Jesus' birth in Bethlehem of Judea during the reign of King Herod, astrologers from the east arrived one day in Jerusalem. 2* inquiring, "Where is the newborn king of the Jews? We observed his star at its rising and have come to pay him homage." 3 At this news King Herod became greatly disturbed, and with him all Jerusalem. 4 Summoning all of the chief priests and scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the Messiah was to be born. 5*† "In Bethlehem of Judea," they informed him. "Here is what the prophet has written:

6* 'And you, Bethlehem, land of Judah, are by no means least among the princes of Judah, since from you shall come a ruler who is to shepherd my people Israel.' "

7 Herod called the astrologers aside and found out from them the exact time of the star's appearance. 8 Then he sent them to Bethlehem, after having instructed them: "Go and get detailed information about the child. When you have found him, report it to me so that 18: Lk 1, 27; 2, 5. 25: Lk 2, 7.

20: 2, 13.19; Lk 1, 2, 2; Nm 24, 17.
31.35. 5: Jn 7, 42.
23: Is 7, 14. 6: Mi 5, 1.

† 1, 17: The genealogy is artificially constructed out of three groups of fourteen names each, taken principally from Genesis, Ruth, 1 Chronicles and 2 Kings. The list of names beginning with Abiud in 1, 13 is unknown to the Old Testament. The number 14 is undoubtedly a mnemonic device, perhaps chosen because the numerical value of the three letters of David's name (DVD) yields in Hebrew the sum of 14.

1, 18-25: The evangelist shows that Jesus was introduced into the Davidic line through the divine choice of Joseph as his legal father. Throughout the public ministry of Jesus it was understandably the common opinion that Joseph was the natural father of Jesus; cf 13, 55; Jn 6, 42.

1, 18: Mary was engaged to Joseph: they were living in a state of espousal which usually lasted one year in Galilee.

1, 19: A common opinion from the time of the Church Fathers ascribes to Joseph the fear that Mary's child was a consequence of adultery. The evangelist depicts Joseph in a dilemma: he feels it would not be honorable for him to assume the paternity of the child in view of the requirements of "justice" under Mosaic law; but at the same time he realizes that even a private divorce in the presence of only a few witnesses would eventually expose Mary to the popular suspicion of adultery.

1, 20f: To what extent the angelic visitation of Joseph through a dream is reality or popular description surrounding the divine message to him is subject to discussion. In either case the evangelist makes it abundantly clear to his readers that Joseph accepted Mary as his wife, together with the child, because he saw the will of God expressed in the circumstances. He will save his people from their sins: the child will not be a warrior-king overcoming the enemies of Israel, but will free the people from sin.

1, 22f: This is a prophetic reinterpretation of Is 7, 14, in the light of the facts Matthew has outlined: the original conception of Jesus, his Davidic messianic role in a spiritual sense, Joseph's legal paternity, and the unique presence of God in Jesus, which the Church of the evangelist's time had to come to understand as his divinity. All these things about Jesus that were faintly traced in Is 7, 14 are now seen by Matthew to be fully brought to light as God's plan.

1, 25: He had no relations with her at any time before: the evangelist emphasizes the virginity of the mother of Jesus from the moment of his conception to his birth. He does not concern himself here with the period that followed the birth of Jesus, but merely wishes to show that Joseph fully respected the legal character of the paternity imposed on him by the divine will. Moreover the New Testament makes no mention anywhere of children of Joseph and Mary.

2, 1-23: The episodes which follow the explanation of Jesus' Davidic origin through the legal paternity of Joseph raise the question: Do we have a historical composition with theological overtones or a theological composition resting on a broad historical basis? The latter supposition finds support in the typology of the second chapter of Matthew, which parallels Jesus with Israel and Moses in a way that suggests an influence of extra-biblical Jewish religious traditions.

2, 1: King Herod: called "the Great" because of his political astuteness and his achievements in building, which included the temple in Jerusalem. In 40 B.C. the Roman senate appointed him king of Judea. From then on Herod succeeded in extending his rule to other parts of Palestine. Since Herod is known to have died in 4 B.C., scholars assign 7 or 6 B.C. as the actual date of the birth of Jesus; cf Mt 2, 16. Astrologers from the east: the various personages designated by the Greek term magoi did not include kings. Many think that the allusion is to learned men from Babylon who had contact with Jewish messianism; cf Dn 2, 2.

2, 5f: The citation combines Mi 5, 1 and 2 Sm 5, 2. It emphasizes the fulfillment of Old Testament prophecy concerning Bethlehem, the birthplace of Jesus. For the expression of a current opinion that the Messiah was to come from Bethlehem, cf Jn 7, 42.

I may go and offer him homage too."

<sup>9†</sup> After their audience with the king, they set out. The star which they had observed at its rising went ahead of them until it came to a standstill over the place where the child was. <sup>10</sup> They were overjoyed at seeing the star, <sup>11*†</sup> and on entering the house, found the child with Mary his mother. They prostrated themselves and did him homage. Then they opened their coffers and presented him with gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh.

<sup>12</sup> They received a message in a dream not to return to Herod, so they went back to their own country by another route.

The Flight into Egypt. <sup>13†</sup> After they had left, the angel of the Lord suddenly appeared in a dream to Joseph with the command: "Get up, take the child and his mother, and flee to Egypt. Stay there until I tell you otherwise. Herod is searching for the child to destroy him."

<sup>14</sup> Joseph got up and took the child and his mother and left that night for Egypt. <sup>15*†</sup> He stayed there until the death of Herod, to fulfill what the Lord had said through the prophet:

"Out of Egypt I have called my son."

The Innocents. <sup>16</sup> Once Herod realized that he had been deceived by the astrologers, he became furious. He ordered the massacre of all the boys two years old and under in Bethlehem and its environs, making his calculations on the basis of the date he had learned from the astrologers. <sup>17†</sup> What was said through Jeremiah the prophet was then fulfilled:

<sup>18*</sup> "A cry was heard at Ramah, sobbing and loud lamentation:
Rachel bemoaning her children;
no comfort for her, since they are no more."

The Return to Nazareth. <sup>19</sup> But after Herod's death, the angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt <sup>20*</sup> with the command: "Get up, take the child and his mother, and set out for the land of Israel. Those who had designs on the life of the child are dead." <sup>21</sup> He got up, took the child and his mother, and returned to the land of Israel. <sup>22†</sup> He heard, however, that Archelaus had succeeded his father Herod as king of Judea, and he was afraid to go back there. Instead, because of a warning received in a dream, Joseph went to the region of Galilee. <sup>23*†</sup> There he settled in a town called Nazareth. In this way what was said through the prophets was fulfilled:

"He shall be called a Nazorean."

II: PROMULGATION OF THE REIGN OF GOD

CHAPTER 3

John the Baptizer. † <sup>1*</sup> When John the Baptizer made his appearance as a preacher in the desert of Judea, this was his theme: <sup>2*†</sup> "Reform your lives! The reign of God is at hand." <sup>3*</sup> It was of him that the prophet Isaiah had spoken when he said:

"A herald's voice in the desert:
'Prepare the way of the Lord,
make straight his paths.'"

11: Ps 72, 10f; Is 60, 5f.	4, 34; Jn 19, 19
15: Hos 11, 1.	3, 1-12; Mk 1, 2-8; Lk 3, 2-17.
18: Jer 31, 15.	2: 4, 17; 10, 7;
20: Ex 4, 19.	Acts 2, 38.
23: 13, 54; Lk 2, 39;	3: Is 40, 3.

† 2, 9f: The action of the star implies that in the evangelist's thought it is a supernatural phenomenon. It is a symbol of faith leading the Gentiles to the discovery of Jesus as their king and savior; cf 2 Pt 1, 19.

† 2, 11: The house: Matthew's tradition of the astrologers' visit to a house is unrelated to the place of Jesus' birth as reported in Luke 2, 12. Gold, frankincense and myrrh: such gifts were customary in the Orient as signs of homage. The association of 2, 11 with Ps 72, 10f occasioned the mistaken supposition that the astrologers were kings. For the Old Testament oracles concerning the Gentiles' homage to Yahweh, cf Nm 24, 17; Is 49, 23; 60, 5f.

† 2, 13: Flee to Egypt: from the time of the Maccabees, Egypt had been a customary place of refuge. An earlier example is Jeroboam's flight to Egypt (1 Kgs 11, 40).

† 2, 15: The citation of Hos 11, 1, relates Jesus to Israel. Just as God called Israel out of Egypt to create a people peculiarly his own, so he called Jesus out of Egypt into the land of Israel to accomplish his purpose of creating the new Israel or people of God. The story of the flight into Egypt illustrates the divine concealment of the child so that he might fulfill his role as head of the new Israel.

† 2, 17f: The plaint over the massacre is not ascribed to the people of Bethlehem but figuratively to Rachel bemoaning Israel's exile (Jer 31, 15f). She is comforted by a promise of restoration. A note of consolation seems implied in Matthew's citation, which views the massacre of infants as a guarantee of God's action to create the new people of God through Jesus; cf Rv 6, 9ff.

† 2, 22: Archelaus: i.e., "leader of the people," a son of Herod the Great and brother of Herod Antipas; see note on Acts 4, 27. He ruled as ethnarch of Judea, Samaria and Idumea from 4 B.C. to 6 A.D., when he was deposed by the Emperor Augustus.

† 2, 23: He shall be called a Nazorean: unidentifiable in any Old Testament passage. Jesus' residence in Galilee amid a mixed population of Jews and Gentiles is viewed as a providential indication of his messianic mission to the Gentiles; cf Is 66, 18f; Am 9, 11f.

† 3, 1-17: This narrative is concerned with the prophetic message and person of John (1-5), his baptism (6), his critique of the Pharisees and Sadducees (7-10), his message concerning Jesus (11f), and his baptism of Jesus, with its theological significance (13-17).

† 3, 2: Reform your lives: on the notion of repentance, see note on Acts 2, 38. The reign of God is at hand: literally, "the kingdom of heaven." "Heaven" is a conventional expression which avoids using the divine name. The term invokes God's sovereign authority over the human race. It announces that a new intervention of God is beginning in history which invites Israel to accept the prophetic manifestation of his will through the Baptizer.

4*† John was clothed in a garment of camel's hair, and wore a leather belt around his waist. Grasshoppers and wild honey were his food. 5 At that time Jerusalem, all Judea, and the whole region around the Jordan were going out to him. 6* They were being baptized by him in the Jordan River as they confessed their sins.

7*† When he saw that many of the Pharisees and Sadducees were stepping forward for this bath, he said to them: "You brood of vipers! Who told you to flee from the wrath to come? 8 Give some evidence that you mean to reform. 9* Do not pride yourselves on the claim, 'Abraham is our father.' I tell you, God can raise up children to Abraham from these very stones. 10 Even now the ax is laid to the root of the tree. Every tree that is not fruitful will be cut down and thrown into the fire. 11*† I baptize you in water for the sake of reform, but the one who will follow me is more powerful than I. I am not even fit to carry his sandals. He it is who will baptize you in the Holy Spirit and fire. 12* His winnowing-fan is in his hand. He will clear the threshing floor and gather his grain into the barn, but the chaff he will burn in unquenchable fire."

The Baptism of Jesus.† 13* Later Jesus, coming from Galilee, appeared before John at the Jordan to be baptized by him. 14 John tried to refuse him with the protest, "I should be baptized by you, yet you come to me!" 15 Jesus answered: "Give in for now. We must do this if we would fulfill all of God's demands." So John gave in. 16* After Jesus was baptized, he came directly out of the water. Suddenly the sky opened and he saw the Spirit of God descend like a dove and hover over him. 17* With that, a voice from the heavens said, "This is my beloved Son. My favor rests on him."

CHAPTER 4

The Temptation.† 1* Then Jesus was led into the desert by the Spirit to be tempted by the devil. 2* He fasted forty days and forty nights, and afterward was hungry. 3† The tempter approached and said to him, "If you are the Son of God, command these stones to turn into bread." 4*† Jesus replied, "Scripture has it:

'Not on bread alone is man to live but on every utterance that comes from the mouth of God.'

5 Next the devil took him to the holy city, set him on the parapet of the temple, 6*† and said, "If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down. Scripture has it:

'He will bid his angels take care of you; with their hands they will support you that you may never stumble on a stone.'

7* Jesus answered him, "Scripture also has it:

'You shall not put the Lord your God to the test.'

8 The devil then took him up a very high mountain and displayed before him all the kingdoms of the world in their magnificence, promising, 9* "All these will I bestow on you if you prostrate yourself in homage before me." 10*† At this, Jesus said to him, "Away with you, Satan! Scripture has it:

'You shall do homage to the Lord your God; him alone shall you adore.'

11 At that the devil left him, and angels

4: 11, 7f; Zec 13, 4.	16: Is 11, 2.
6: 21, 25	17: 12, 18; 17, 5; Is 42, 1; 49, 3.
7: 12, 34; 23, 33; Is 59, 5.	4, 1-11: Mk 1, 12f; Lk 4, 1-13.
9: Jn 8, 33, 39; Rom 9, 7f; Gal 4, 21-31.	1: Heb 2, 18.
11: Jn 1, 15, 24-27, 33; Acts 1, 5.	2: Ex 24, 18; 34, 28.
12: 13, 42, 50; Is 41, 16; Jer 15, 7.	4: Dt 8, 3.
13-17: Mk 1, 9-11; Lk 3, 21f; Jn 1, 31-34.	6: Ps 91, 11f.
	7: Dt 6, 16.
	9: 16, 23.
	10: Dt 6, 13.

†

3, 4: The Baptizer's garb recalls that of Elijah in 2 Kgs 1, 8. Jesus speaks of the Baptizer as Elijah who has already come (17, 10ff; Mk 9, 10ff); cf Mal 3, 24.

3, 7-10: John's criticism of the Pharisees and Sadducees implies that they have come to receive baptism for the purpose of gaining popular favor rather than to exercise their religious leadership in a national program of true reform. Matthew sees the Christian community to be the true children of Abraham who fulfill the Baptizer's prophetic words (v 10).

3, 11f: The baptism of John prepares for the purifying action in the Holy Spirit and fire which Jesus will effect; cf Is 1, 25; Zec 13, 9; Mal 3, 2. Refusal of this baptism of Jesus leads to a final judgment of condemnation in unquenchable fire; cf Is 34, 8ff; Jer 7, 20.

3, 13-17: For the theological significance of this account of Jesus' baptism, see note on Mk 1, 9ff.

4, 1-11: An introduction to the gospel proper; see note on Mk 1, 12f. Some regard the account as a Christian reflection on Jesus' messianic role: he refuses to use his miraculous power simply to relieve human need (3f), or to satisfy requests of unbelievers (5ff); he disdains a messianic role (8ff) that would be purely political in its implications. The central theme is the obedience of Jesus to God as he is known through the Old Testament.

4, 3: If you are the Son of God: in the sense of the messianic king of Ps 2.

4, 4: A citation of Dt 8, 3, signifying that the miracles of the Exodus were signs of God's religious, rather than physical, care of Israel.

4, 6f: The tempter here applies to the Messiah verse 11 of Psalm 91 dealing with God's protection of the just. Jesus' reply (Dt 6, 16) teaches that miracles are not to be demanded of God as evidence of his care of man.

4, 10: The citation expresses the basic attitude of worship which every man should have toward God.

came and waited on him.

Jesus in Capernaum.† <sup>12*</sup> When Jesus heard that John had been arrested, he withdrew to Galilee. <sup>13*</sup> He left Nazareth and went down to live in Capernaum by the sea near the territory of Zebulun and Naphtali, <sup>14</sup> to fulfill what had been said through Isaiah the prophet:

<sup>15*</sup> "Land of Zebulun, land of Naphtali along the sea beyond the Jordan, heathen Galilee;

<sup>16*</sup> A people living in darkness has seen a great light.

On those who inhabit a land overshadowed by death, light has arisen."

<sup>17</sup>† From that time on Jesus began to proclaim this theme: "Reform your lives! The kingdom of heaven is at hand."

The First Disciples Called. <sup>18*</sup> As he was walking along the Sea of Galilee he watched two brothers, Simon now known as Peter, and his brother Andrew, casting a net into the sea. They were fishermen. <sup>19</sup>† He said to them, "Come after me and I will make you fishers of men." <sup>20</sup> They immediately abandoned their nets and became his followers. <sup>21</sup> He walked along farther and caught sight of two other brothers, James, Zebedee's son, and his brother John. They too were in their boat, getting their nets in order with their father, Zebedee. <sup>22</sup> He called them, and immediately they abandoned boat and father to follow him.

The Mission of Preaching. <sup>23*</sup> Jesus toured all of Galilee. He taught in their synagogues, proclaimed the good news of the kingdom, and cured the people of every disease and illness. <sup>24</sup> As a consequence of this, his reputation traveled the length of Syria. They carried to him all those afflicted with various diseases and racked with pain: the possessed, the lunatics, the paralyzed. He cured them all. <sup>25*</sup> The great crowds that followed him came from Galilee, the Ten Cities, Jerusalem and Judea, and from across the Jordan.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> When he saw the crowds he went up on the mountainside. After he had sat down his disciples gathered around him, <sup>2</sup> and he began to teach them:

The Beatitudes†

<sup>3*</sup> "How blest are the poor in spirit: the reign of God is theirs.

<sup>4*</sup> Blest too are the sorrowing; they shall be consoled.

<sup>5*</sup> [Blest are the lowly; they shall inherit the land.]

<sup>6*</sup> Blest are they who hunger and thirst for holiness; they shall have their fill.

<sup>7</sup>† Blest are they who show mercy; mercy shall be theirs.

<sup>8</sup>† Blest are the single-hearted for they shall see God.

<sup>9</sup>† Blest too the peacemakers; they shall be called sons of God.

<sup>10</sup>† Blest are those persecuted for holiness' sake; the reign of God is theirs.

<sup>11*</sup> Blest are you when they insult you and persecute you and utter every kind of slander against you because of me.

<sup>12*</sup> Be glad and rejoice, for your reward is great in heaven;

12f: Mk 1, 14f; Lk 4,

14, 31.

13: Jn 2, 12.

15f: Is 9, 1f.

16: Jn 8, 12.

17: 3, 2; Lk 17, 20.

18-22: Mk 1, 16-20; Lk

5, 1-11.

23: 9, 35; Mk 1, 39;

Lk 4, 15, 44.

25: Mk 3, 7; Lk 6,

17-19.

5, 3-12: Lk 6, 20-23.

3, 19, 21, 29; 2 Cor

8, 9.

4: Ps 126, 5; Is 61,

2f; Rv 21, 4.

5: Gn 13, 15; Ps

37, 11; Prv 2,

21.

6: Prv 21, 21.

8: Pss 24, 4f; 73, 1;

Prv 22, 11.

10: 1 Pt 2, 20; 3, 14,

4, 14.

11: Acts, 5, 41.

12: Phil 1, 29; Col 1,

24; Jas 1, 2.

†

4, 12-17: The gospel proper begins here with a summary introduction to the Galilean ministry: the Baptizer is arrested by Herod Antipas (12); Jesus makes Capernaum the center of his activity (13) and preaching (17). The citation from Is 9, 1f identifies the ministry of Jesus as fulfilling the prophecy of the restoration of the northern kingdom, destroyed by the Assyrians in 721 B.C.

4, 17: See note on 3, 2.

4, 19: To be fishers of men requires abandonment of former means of livelihood in order to preach the kingdom of God and testify to its arrival in the name of Jesus, cf 10, 1f. It may be assumed that this complete dedication was accomplished only gradually.

5, 3-12: The beatitudes announce religious happiness for the anawim, i.e., those who lack material goods and stand in need of the spiritual blessings promised by God: cf Dt 24, 14; Pss 37, 14; 40, 18; Is 61, 1. This happiness is to reach its fulfillment through Christ. Recognition of the anawim contrasts with the religious thought of the time which regarded human affliction and sorrow as the punishment of personal sin. For the Christian attitude toward the poor and afflicted, cf Mt 25, 34-46; Jas 2, 15f; 1 Jn 4, 20.

5, 7: Matthew fashions the Sermon on the Mount from the sayings of Jesus concerning Moses and the law. Luke's corresponding Sermon on the Plain (6, 17-49) is differently arranged. A key factor is that Jesus came not to abolish but to fulfill the law and the prophets. Jesus makes greater demands on men than did the law of Moses; but he bestows the justice needed for meeting these demands (Rom 8, 1-11), and his disciples are bound to respond to the divine gift (5, 20, 7, 21, 24-27). Though concerned with the relationship between God and the individual, the social implications of the Sermon on the Mount are evident.

5, 8: The single-hearted: those who serve God loyally for his own sake and not primarily out of self-interest.

5, 9: The peacemakers: those whose lives promote harmony within the human community (1 Thes 5, 14) as contrasted with those who foster strife through violence for personal advantage.

5, 10: For holiness' sake: fidelity to the divine precepts through which holiness is attained is deepened by the test of persecution.

they persecuted the prophets before you in the very same way.

The Disciples.† 13* "You are the salt of the earth. But what if salt goes flat? How can you restore its flavor? Then it is good for nothing but to be thrown out and trampled underfoot.

14* "You are the light of the world. A city set on a hill cannot be hidden. 15* Men do not light a lamp and then put it under a bushel basket. They set it on a stand where it gives light to all in the house. 16* In the same way, your light must shine before men so that they may see goodness in your acts and give praise to your heavenly Father.

The Old Law and the New.† 17* "Do not think that I have come to abolish the law and the prophets. I have come, not to abolish them, but to fulfill them. 18* Of this much I assure you: until heaven and earth pass away, not the smallest letter of the law, not the smallest part of a letter, shall be done away with until it all comes true. 19* That is why whoever breaks the least significant of these commands and teaches others to do so shall be called least in the kingdom of God. Whoever fulfills and teaches these commands shall be great in the kingdom of God. 20* I tell you, unless your holiness surpasses that of the scribes and Pharisees you shall not enter the kingdom of God.

Against Anger. 21* "You have heard the commandment imposed on your forefathers, 'You shall not commit murder; every murderer shall be liable to judgment.' 22* What I say to you is: everyone who grows angry with his brother shall be liable to judgment; any man who uses abusive language toward his brother shall be answerable to the Sanhedrin, and if he holds him in contempt he risks the fires of Gehenna. 23* If you bring your gift to the altar and there recall that your brother has anything against you, 24 leave your gift at the altar, go first to be reconciled with your brother, and then come and offer your gift. 25* Lose no time; settle with your opponent while on your way to court with him. Otherwise your opponent may hand you over to the judge, who will hand you over to the guard, who will throw you into prison. 26 I warn you, you will not be released until you have paid the last penny.

Occasions of Impurity. 27*† "You have heard the commandment, 'You shall not commit adultery.' 28* What I say to you is: anyone who looks lustfully at a woman has already committed adultery with her in his thoughts. 29* If your right eye is your trouble, gouge it out and throw it away! Better to lose part of your body than to have it all cast into Gehenna. 30 Again, if your right hand is your trouble, cut it off and throw it away! Better to lose part of your body than to have it all cast into Gehenna.

Divorce. 31* "It was also said, 'Whenever a man divorces his wife, he must give her a decree of divorce.' 32* What I say to you is: everyone who divorces his wife—lewd conduct is a separate case—forces her to commit adultery. The man who marries a divorced woman likewise commits adultery.

On Oaths.† 33* "You have heard the commandment imposed on your forefathers, 'Do not take a false oath; rather make good to the Lord all your pledges.' 34* What I tell you is: do not swear at all. Do not swear by heaven (it is God's throne), 35* nor by the earth (it is his footstool), nor by Jerusalem (it is the city of the great King); 36 do not swear by your head (you cannot make a single hair white or black). 37* Say, 'Yes' when you mean 'Yes' and 'No' when you mean 'No.' Anything beyond that is from the evil one.

New Law of Retaliation. 38* "You have heard the commandment, 'An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth.' 39* But what I say to you is: offer no resistance to injury. When a person strikes you on 13: Mk 9, 49; Lk 14, 34f.

14: Jn 8, 12.

15: Mk 4, 21; Lk 8, 16; 11, 33.

16: Jn 3, 21.

17: Rom 3, 31.

18: Lk 16, 17.

19: Jas 2, 10.

20: Rom 10, 3.

21: Ex 20, 13; Dt 5, 17.

22: Jas 1, 19f; 3, 6.

23: Sir 28, 2; Mk 11, 25.

25: Prv 17, 14; Lk 12, 58f.

27: Ex 20, 14; Dt 5,

18.

28: Sir 9, 5.

29: 18, 8f; Mk 9,

42, 46.

31: 19, 3-9; Dt 24, 1;

Mal 2, 14f.

32: Lk 16, 18; 1 Cor

7, 10.

33: Lv 19, 12; Nm

30, 3.

34: Ps 11, 4; Sir 23,

9.

35: Is 66, 1.

37: Jas 5, 12.

38: Ex 21, 24; Lv 24,

19f.

39-48: Lk 6, 27-36.

†

5, 13-16: The disciples of Jesus, despite reproach and persecution (11f), make the human community valuable in God's eyes (salt of the earth) and enlighten the world with the light of God's prophetic word, which they preach by word and example (16).

5, 17-20: Jesus' teaching does not reject the old law and the prophets; instead, it illumines the meaning God intended the Old Testament ultimately to have (17). Disregard of even the slightest detail of the law means failure to secure that fullness of the kingdom of God (19) which those achieve who both teach and fulfill the law. In contrast, the false justice of the Pharisees, their lack of true interior holiness, will exclude them from the kingdom (20).

5, 27-32: Women are to be accorded the respect due to their persons as children of the same God as men. The deeper implications of the divine law are seen to prohibit, not merely indecent actions against the religious dignity of the human person, but impure thoughts and desires as well. Jesus here repudiates the norm contained in Dt 24, 1 which allows a husband to dismiss his wife with a written decree of divorce for the purpose of remarriage. See note on Mt 19, 3-8.

5, 33-37: In the ordinary conduct of human affairs, personal trustworthiness should be such that the invocation of the divine name as evidence of truth is altogether unnecessary.

the right cheek, turn and offer him the other. <sup>40</sup> If anyone wants to go to law over your shirt, hand him your coat as well. <sup>41</sup> Should anyone press you into service for one mile, go with him two miles. <sup>42</sup> Give to the man who begs from you. Do not turn your back on the borrower.

Love of Enemies.† <sup>43</sup> "You have heard the commandment, 'You shall love your countryman but hate your enemy.' <sup>44</sup> My command to you is: love your enemies, pray for your persecutors. <sup>45</sup> This will prove that you are sons of your heavenly Father, for his sun rises on the bad and the good, he rains on the just and the unjust. <sup>46</sup> If you love those who love you, what merit is there in that? Do not tax collectors do as much? <sup>47</sup> And if you greet your brothers only, what is so praiseworthy about that? Do not pagans do as much? <sup>48</sup>† In a word, you must be made perfect as your heavenly Father is perfect.

CHAPTER 6

Purity of Intention.† <sup>1</sup> "Be on guard against performing religious acts for people to see. Otherwise expect no recompense from your heavenly Father. <sup>2</sup> When you give alms, for example, do not blow a horn before you in synagogues and streets like hypocrites looking for applause. You can be sure of this much, they are already repaid. <sup>3</sup> In giving alms you are not to let your left hand know what your right hand is doing. <sup>4</sup> Keep your deeds of mercy secret, and your Father who sees in secret will repay you.

Prayer. <sup>5</sup> "When you are praying, do not behave like the hypocrites who love to stand and pray in synagogues or on street corners in order to be noticed. I give you my word, they are already repaid. <sup>6</sup> Whenever you pray, go to your room, close your door, and pray to your Father in private. Then your Father, who sees what no man sees, will repay you. <sup>7</sup> In your prayer do not rattle on like the pagans. They think they will win a hearing by the sheer multiplication of words. <sup>8</sup> Do not imitate them. Your Father knows what you need before you ask him. <sup>9</sup>* This is how you are to pray:

- 'Our Father in heaven,
hallowed be your name,
<sup>10</sup>* your kingdom come,
your will be done
on earth as it is in heaven.
<sup>11</sup>* Give us today our daily bread, <sup>12</sup>* and forgive us the wrong we have done
as we forgive those who wrong us.
<sup>13</sup>* Subject us not to the trial but deliver us from the evil one.'

<sup>14</sup>* "If you forgive the faults of others, your heavenly Father will forgive you yours. <sup>15</sup>* If you do not forgive others, neither will your Father forgive you.

Fasting. <sup>16</sup> "When you fast, you are not to look glum as the hypocrites do. They change the appearance of their faces so that others may see they are fasting. I assure you, they are already repaid. <sup>17</sup> When you fast, see to it that you groom your hair and wash your face. <sup>18</sup> In that way no one can see you are fasting but your Father who is hidden; and your Father who sees what is hidden will repay you.

True Riches.† <sup>19</sup>* "Do not lay up for yourselves an earthly treasure. Moths and rust corrode; thieves break in and steal. <sup>20</sup>* Make it your practice instead to store up heavenly treasure, which neither moths nor rust corrode nor thieves break in and steal. <sup>21</sup> Remember, where your treasure is, there your heart is also. <sup>22</sup>*† The eye is the body's lamp. If your eyes are good, your body will be filled with light; <sup>23</sup> if your eyes are bad, your body will be in darkness. And if your light is darkness, how deep will the darkness be! <sup>24</sup>* No man can serve two masters. He will either hate one and love the other or be attentive to one and despise the other. You cannot give yourself to God and money. <sup>25</sup>* I warn you, then: do not worry about your livelihood, what you are to eat or drink or use for clothing. Is not life more than food? Is not the body more valuable than clothes?

<sup>26</sup>* "Look at the birds in the sky. They do not sow or reap, they gather nothing

41: Lam 3, 30; Rom 12, 19ff.	32-35.
42: Dt 15, 7f.	12: 18, 21f; Sir 28, 2.
43: Lv 19, 18.	2.
46: Lk 6, 32.	13: Jn 17, 15; 2 Thes 3, 3.
48: Lv 11, 44; 19, 2; Jas 1, 4; 1 Pt 1, 16; 1 Jn 3, 3.	14: 18, 35; Sir 28, 1-5; Mk 11, 25.
6, 1: 23, 5; Lk 16, 15.	15: Jas 2, 13.
2: Jn 12, 43.	19: Lk 12, 33.
6: Tb 3, 10f; Dn 6, 11.	20: Jas 5, 2f.
9: Lk 11, 2ff; Jn 17, 26.	22f: Lk 11, 34ff.
10: 26, 42.	24: Lk 16, 13.
11: Prv 30, 8f; Jn 6, 12.	25-33: Lk 12, 22-31.
	26: Pss 145, 15f; 147, 9.

† 5, 43-48: As God invites the unjust to respond to him through the evidence of his love, so the disciples of Jesus must be the bearers of the same love toward their enemies.

5, 48: The perfection of the Father is revealed in his redemptive love of mankind; cf Jn 3, 16; 1 Jn 4, 9ff. For an application of the principle, cf 1 Cor 8, 7-11.

6, 1-6, 16ff: To be of value in the eyes of God, religious duties, public and private, must be performed for the single-hearted purpose of serving God, and not for human esteem.

6, 19ff: A concluding parable to confirm Jesus' teaching on the true service of God; recompense for good works is to be expected from him alone.

6, 22f: A person with proper vision can easily direct the movements of his body. In a similar way, one who makes use of the prophetic vision of Christ can direct his way to God.

into barns; yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are not you more important than they? <sup>27</sup> Which of you by worrying can add a moment to his life-span? <sup>28</sup> As for clothes, why be concerned? Learn a lesson from the way the wild flowers grow. They do not work; they do not spin. <sup>29</sup> Yet I assure you, not even Solomon in all his splendor was arrayed like one of these. <sup>30</sup> If God can clothe in such splendor the grass of the field, which blooms today and is thrown on the fire tomorrow, will he not provide much more for you, O weak in faith! <sup>31</sup> Stop worrying, then, over questions like, 'What are we to eat, or what are we to drink, or what are we to wear?' <sup>32</sup> The unbelievers are always running after these things. Your heavenly Father knows all that you need. <sup>33</sup> Seek first his kingship over you, his way of holiness, and all these things will be given you besides. <sup>34</sup> Enough, then, of worrying about tomorrow. Let tomorrow take care of itself. Today has troubles enough of its own.

CHAPTER 7

Avoiding Judgment. † <sup>1*</sup> "If you want to avoid judgment, stop passing judgment. <sup>2*</sup> Your verdict on others will be the verdict passed on you. The measure with which you measure will be used to measure you. <sup>3</sup> Why look at the speck in your brother's eye when you miss the plank in your own? <sup>4*</sup> How can you say to your brother, 'Let me take that speck out of your eye,' while all the time the plank remains in your own? <sup>5</sup> You hypocrite! Remove the plank from your own eye first; then you will see clearly to take the speck from your brother's eye.

<sup>6*</sup> † "Do not give what is holy to dogs or toss your pearls before swine. They will trample them under foot, at best, and perhaps even tear you to shreds.

The Power of Prayer. † <sup>7*</sup> "Ask, and you will receive. Seek, and you will find. Knock, and it will be opened to you. <sup>8*</sup> For the one who asks, receives. The one who seeks, finds. The one who knocks, enters. <sup>9</sup> Would one of you hand his son a stone when he asks for a loaf, <sup>10</sup> or a poisonous snake when he asks for a fish? <sup>11*</sup> If you, with all your sins, know how to give your children what is good, how much more will your heavenly Father give good things to anyone who asks him!

The Golden Rule. <sup>12*</sup> † "Treat others the way you would have them treat you: this sums up the law and the prophets.

<sup>13*</sup> † "Enter through the narrow gate. The gate that leads to damnation is wide, the road is clear, and many choose to travel it. <sup>14</sup> But how narrow is the gate that leads to life, how rough the road, and how few there are who find it!

<sup>15*</sup> "Be on your guard against false prophets, who come to you in sheep's clothing but underneath are wolves on the prowl. <sup>16*</sup> You will know them by their deeds. Do you ever pick grapes from thornbushes, or figs from prickly plants? Never! <sup>17</sup> Any sound tree bears good fruit, while a decayed tree bears bad fruit. <sup>18*</sup> A sound tree cannot bear bad fruit any more than a decayed tree can bear good fruit. <sup>19*</sup> Every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. <sup>20</sup> You can tell a tree by its fruit. <sup>21*</sup> None of those who cry out, 'Lord, Lord,' will enter the kingdom of God but only the one who does the will of my Father in heaven. <sup>22*</sup> When that day comes, many will plead with me, 'Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in your name? Have we not exorcised demons by its power? Did we not do many miracles in your name as well?' <sup>23*</sup> Then I will declare to them solemnly, 'I never knew you. Out of my sight, you evildoers!'

Conclusion of the Sermon. <sup>24*</sup> "Anyone who hears my words and puts them into practice is like the wise man who built his house on rock. <sup>25*</sup> When the rainy season set in, the torrents came and the winds blew and buffeted his house. It did not collapse; it had been solidly set on rock. <sup>26</sup> Anyone who hears my words but does not put them into practice is like the foolish man who built his house on sandy ground. <sup>27</sup> The rains fell, the torrents came, the winds blew and lashed against his house. It collapsed under all this and was completely ruined."

33: Wis 1, 1.

7, 1: Rom 2, 1f; 1 Cor

4, 5.

2: Wis 12, 22; Mk

4, 24.

4: Jn 8, 7.

6: Prv 23, 9.

7-11: Mk 11, 24; Lk

11, 9-13.

7: 18, 19.

8: Lk 18, 1-8; Jn

14, 13.

11: 1 Jn 5, 14f.

12: Lk 6, 31; Rom

13, 8.

13: Sir 21, 10; Lk

13, 24.

15: 2 Pt 2, 1.

16f: 12, 33; Sir 27, 6;

Lk 6, 43f.

18: Jn 15, 6.

19: 3, 10.

21: Is 29, 13.

22: 25, 11f; Jas 2,

14-17.

23: Ps 5, 5.

24-27: Lk 6, 47ff.

25: Prv 10, 25.

†

7, 1-5: Judgments of condemnation upon one's neighbor and refusal to pardon him entail loss of God's pardon for one's own sins.

7, 6: The teaching of the gospel will be rejected by some precisely because it is holy, and those who teach it will themselves be subjected to attack.

7, 7-11: The persevering prayer of sinful humanity receives a divine response because of the generosity of God.

7, 12: An isolated saying introduced to show that the moral teaching concerning neighbor in the reign of God is the golden rule of true fraternal charity.

7, 13-27: A series of parables warning that only through the good works outlined in the Sermon does man find the way of life that leads to the happiness God has in store for him.

<sup>28†</sup> Jesus finished this discourse and left the crowds spellbound at his teaching. <sup>29*†</sup> The reason was that he taught with authority and not like their scribes.

III: PREACHING THE REIGN OF GOD

CHAPTER 8

The Leper. <sup>1*</sup> When he came down from the mountain, great crowds followed him. <sup>2</sup> Suddenly a leper came forward and did him homage, saying to him, "Sir, if you will to do so, you can cure me." <sup>3</sup> Jesus stretched out his hand and touched him and said, "I do will it. Be cured." Immediately the man's leprosy disappeared. <sup>4*†</sup> Then Jesus said to him: "See to it that you tell no one. Go and show yourself to the priest and offer the gift Moses prescribed. That should be the proof they need."

The Centurion's Servant. <sup>5*</sup> As Jesus entered Capernaum, a centurion approached him with this request: <sup>6</sup> "Sir, my serving boy is at home in bed paralyzed, suffering painfully." <sup>7</sup> He said to him, "I will come and cure him." <sup>8</sup> "Sir," the centurion said in reply, "I am not worthy to have you under my roof. Just give an order and my boy will get better. <sup>9</sup> I am a man under authority myself and I have troops assigned to me. If I give one man the order, 'Dismissed,' off he goes. If I say to another, 'Come here,' he comes. If I tell my slave, 'Do this,' he does it." <sup>10†</sup> Jesus showed amazement on hearing this and remarked to his followers, "I assure you, I have never found this much faith in Israel. <sup>11*</sup> Mark what I say! Many will come from the east and the west and will find a place at the banquet in the kingdom of God with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, <sup>12</sup> while the natural heirs of the kingdom will be driven out into the dark. Wailing will be heard there, and the grinding of teeth." <sup>13</sup> To the centurion Jesus said, "Go home. It shall be done because you trusted." That very moment the boy got better.

Peter's Mother-in-law. <sup>14*</sup> Jesus entered Peter's house and found Peter's mother-in-law in bed with a fever. <sup>15*</sup> He took her by the hand and the fever left her. She got up at once and began to wait on him.

Other Miracles. <sup>16</sup> As evening drew on, they brought him many who were possessed. He expelled the spirits by a simple command and cured all who were afflicted, <sup>17*†</sup> thereby fulfilling what had been said through Isaiah the prophet:

"It was our infirmities he bore, our sufferings he endured."

Conditions for Following Jesus.

<sup>18</sup> Seeing the people crowd around him,

Jesus gave orders to cross to the other shore. <sup>19*</sup> A scribe approached him and said, "Teacher, wherever you go I will come after you." <sup>20†</sup> Jesus said to him, "The foxes have lairs, the birds in the sky have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head." <sup>21</sup> Another, a disciple, said to him, "Lord, let me go and bury my father first." <sup>22†</sup> But Jesus told him, "Follow me, and let the dead bury their dead."

Storm on the Lake. <sup>23*</sup> He got into the boat and his disciples followed him. <sup>24</sup> Without warning a violent storm came

29: Mk 1, 22; Lk 4,	28f.
32; Jn 7, 15ff.	14ff: Mk 1, 29-34; Lk
8, 1-4; Mk 1, 40-44; Lk	4, 38-41.
5, 12ff.	15: 9, 25.
4: Lv 14, 21; Lk 17,	17: Ls 53, 4.
14.	19-22: Lk 9, 57-60.
5-13: Lk 7, 1-10.	23-27: Mk 4, 35-40; Lk
11f: 22, 13; 24, 51;	8, 22-25.
25, 30; Lk 13,

† 7, 28: A general formula used in Matthew at the conclusion of the five collections of the sayings of Jesus (11, 1; 13, 53; 19, 1; 26, 1).

7, 29-9, 38: By means of miracle narratives and other events, Matthew portrays Jesus' unique power in word and action. Jesus uses the twofold chiasm of miracles and prophecy in behalf of the people to invite them to accept the new sovereign rule of God which he proclaims (8, 16-22, 9, 13, 36). The miracle accounts appear in groups of three (8, 1-15; 8, 23-9, 8; 9, 18-34). Other incidents and comments are interspersed between these groupings.

8, 4: See note on Mk 1, 40-45.

8, 10ff: The great trust of the centurion consisted in his honest acceptance of the religious authority of Jesus, displayed in curing the sick. Jesus' comment invites his contemporaries to match the centurion's trust.

8, 17: Matthew sees in Jesus the true servant of Yahweh (Is 53, 4), whose miraculous healings are the external sign of the redemption which Jesus was now accomplishing as he bore, i.e., "took upon himself," our infirmities, i.e., "our sins," to free us from them.

8, 20: Son of Man: an enigmatic title of Christ used in the gospels and in Acts 7, 56. Jesus is reported as using it frequently of himself; it was well adapted to his purpose of both veiling and revealing his person and mission. On the one hand, it simply meant "man" (Ez 2, 1) and emphasized the lowliness of the human condition (8, 20; 11, 19; 20, 28), especially in Christ's humiliation and death (17, 22). On the other hand, it expressed the triumph of Jesus' resurrection (17, 9), his return to glory (24, 30; Dn 7, 13), and his second coming as judge of the world (25, 31).

At his trial before the Sanhedrin, Jesus is described as using the title Son of Man in a well-defined religious sense (26, 64). Though he stood before his accusers as an innocent victim, charged with blasphemy and condemned to die, he prophesied his vindication and future glory, seated at the right hand of the Power, i. e., God, not merely as man but as Lord (Dn 7, 13; Mk 14, 62).

Jewish apocalyptic literature (1 Enoch, 2 Ezra, 2 Baruch) employed the title to describe a unique religious personage endowed with extraordinary spiritual power, who would receive the kingdom from God at the end of time. Early Christian communities held this title in reverence because it reminded them of Jesus' awareness of his double destiny, of humiliation and of glory, in which the Christian community also shares (24, 30f).

8, 22: Jesus has subordinated family ties to the needs of his mission of salvation (8, 20). He requires the same sacrifice of those called to share this mission with him, when other members of the family can perform the deeds of filial piety. These latter are dead only in the sense that they have not received the divine call to separate themselves from family responsibility in order to preach the gospel of the kingdom. They can, however, be Jesus' disciples in another sense.

up on the lake, and the boat began to be swamped by the waves. <sup>25</sup> Jesus was sleeping soundly, so they made their way toward him and woke him: "Lord, save us! We are lost!" <sup>26*</sup> He said to them: "Where is your courage? How little faith you have!" Then he stood up and took the winds and the sea to task. Complete calm ensued; <sup>27</sup> the men were dumbfounded. "What sort of man is this," they said, "that even the winds and the sea obey him?"

Expulsion of the Demons in Gadara. <sup>28*</sup> As he approached the Gadarene boundary, he encountered two men coming out of the tombs. They were possessed by demons and were so savage that no one could travel along that road. <sup>29†</sup> With a sudden shriek they cried: "Why meddle with us, Son of God? Have you come to torture us before the appointed time?" <sup>30</sup> Some distance away a large herd of swine was feeding. <sup>31*</sup> The demons kept appealing to him, "If you expel us, send us into the herd of swine." <sup>32</sup> He answered, "Out with you!" At that they came forth and entered the swine. The whole herd went rushing down the bluff into the sea and were drowned.

<sup>33</sup> The swineherds took to their heels, and upon their arrival in the town related everything that had happened, including the story about the two possessed men. <sup>34</sup> The upshot was that the entire town came out to meet Jesus. When they caught sight of him, they begged him to leave their neighborhood.

CHAPTER 9

A Paralytic at Capernaum. <sup>1*</sup> Then he reentered the boat, made the crossing, and came back to his own town. <sup>2*</sup> There the people at once brought to him a paralyzed man lying on a mat. When Jesus saw their faith he said to the paralytic, "Have courage, son, your sins are forgiven." <sup>3</sup> At that some of the scribes said to themselves, "The man blasphemes." <sup>4</sup> Jesus was aware of what they were thinking and said: "Why do you harbor evil thoughts? <sup>5</sup> Which is less trouble to say, 'Your sins are forgiven' or 'Stand up and walk'? <sup>6*</sup> To help you realize that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins"—he then said to the paralyzed man—"Stand up! Roll up your mat, and go home." <sup>7*</sup> The man stood up and went toward his home. <sup>8†</sup> At the sight, a feeling of awe came over the crowd, and they praised God for giving such authority to men.

Call of Matthew. <sup>9*</sup> As he moved on, Jesus saw a man named Matthew at his post where taxes were collected. He said to him, "Follow me." Matthew got up and followed him. <sup>10*</sup> Now it happened that, while Jesus was at table in Matthew's home, many tax collectors and those known as sinners came to join Jesus and his disciples at dinner. <sup>11</sup> The Pharisees saw this and complained to his disciples, "What reason can the Teacher have for eating with tax collectors and those who disregard the law?" <sup>12</sup> Overhearing the remark, he said: "People who are in good health do not need a doctor; sick people do. <sup>13*†</sup> Go and learn the meaning of the words, 'It is mercy I desire and not sacrifice.' I have come to call, not the self-righteous, but sinners."

The Question of Fasting. <sup>14*</sup> Later on, John's disciples came to him with the objection, "Why is it that while we and the Pharisees fast, your disciples do not?" Jesus said to them: <sup>15</sup> "How can wedding guests go in mourning so long as the groom is with them? When the day comes that the groom is taken away, then they will fast. <sup>16*</sup> Nobody sews a piece of unshrunk cloth on an old cloak; the very thing he has used to cover the hole will pull, and the rip only get worse. <sup>17</sup> People do not pour new wine into old wineskins. If they do, the skins burst, the wine spills out, and the skins are ruined. No, they pour new wine into new wineskins, and in that way both are preserved."

A Dead Girl; a Woman with a Hemorrhage. <sup>18*</sup> Before Jesus had finished speaking to them, a synagogue leader came up, did him reverence, and said: "My daughter has just died. Please come and lay your hand on her and she will come back to life." <sup>19</sup> Jesus stood up

26: Ps 107, 29.	9-13: Mk 2, 14-17; Lk 5, 27-32.
28-34: Mk 5, 1-17; Lk 8, 26-37.	10: 19, 1-10.
31: Lk 4, 34ff; Acts 10, 38.	13: 12, 7; Hos 6, 6.
9, 1-8: Mk 2, 3-12; Lk 5, 18-26.	14-17: Mk 2, 18-22; Lk 5, 33-39.
2: Lk 7, 48.	16: Rom 7, 6; 2 Cor 5, 17.
6: Jn 5, 27.	18-26: Mk 5, 22-43; Lk 8, 41-56.
7: Jn 5, 8f.

† 8, 29: Son of God: see note on Mk 3, 12. Before the appointed time: a phrase peculiar to Matthew in this account. Even in pagan territory the demons already feel the threat of Jesus before the destruction of Satan's power at the end of the world (1 Cor 15, 24f).

9, 8: Such authority to men: the principal issue of Jesus' authority here is the power to forgive sins. Matthew's use of the plural men suggests the power of the Christian community to forgive sins in Jesus' name; cf Acts 2, 38; Jas 5, 16.

9, 13: Jesus' association with tax collectors and violators of the law is conformable to his teaching about the need of repentance (4, 17). He cites Hos 6, 6 to show that love of neighbor gives value to sacrifices offered as evidence of love of God.

9, 14-17: Jesus' presence among men during his public ministry is comparable to that of a bridegroom during the marriage feast. The time of fasting is temporarily set aside until after Jesus' death to bring about those changes in the human person required for assimilating the new doctrinal ideas.

9, 18-26: See note on Mk 5, 21-43.

and followed him, and his disciples did the same. <sup>20</sup> As they were going, a woman who had suffered from hemorrhages for twelve years came up behind him and touched the tassel on his cloak. <sup>21</sup> "If only I can touch his cloak," she thought, "I shall get well." <sup>22</sup> Jesus turned around and saw her and said, "Courage, daughter! Your faith has restored you to health." That very moment the woman got well.

<sup>23</sup> When Jesus arrived at the synagogue leader's house and saw the flute players and the crowd who were making a din, he said, <sup>24</sup> "Leave, all of you! The little girl is not dead. She is asleep." At this they began to ridicule him. <sup>25</sup> When the crowd had been put out he entered and took her by the hand, and the little girl got up. <sup>26</sup> News of this circulated throughout the district.

Two Blind Men.† <sup>27</sup> As Jesus moved on from there, two blind men came after him crying out, "Son of David, have pity on us!" <sup>28</sup> When he got to the house, the blind men caught up with him. Jesus said to them, "Are you confident I can do this?" "Yes, Lord," they told him. <sup>29</sup> At that he touched their eyes and said, "Because of your faith it shall be done to you"; <sup>30</sup> and they recovered their sight. Then Jesus warned them sternly, "See to it that no one knows of this." <sup>31</sup> But they went off and spread word of him through the whole area.

A Possessed Mute. <sup>32</sup> As they were leaving, suddenly some people brought him a mute who was possessed by a demon. <sup>33</sup> Once the demon was expelled the mute began to speak, to the great surprise of the crowds. "Nothing like this has ever been seen in Israel!" they exclaimed. <sup>34</sup> But the Pharisees were saying, "He casts out demons through the prince of demons."

Mission of the Twelve.† <sup>35</sup> Jesus continued his tour of all the towns and villages. He taught in their synagogues, he proclaimed the good news of God's reign, and he cured every sickness and disease. <sup>36</sup> At the sight of the crowds, his heart was moved with pity. They were lying prostrate from exhaustion, like sheep without a shepherd. <sup>37</sup> He said to his disciples: "The harvest is good but laborers are scarce. <sup>38</sup> Beg the harvest master to send out laborers to gather his harvest."

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> Then he summoned his twelve disciples and gave them authority to expel unclean spirits and to cure sickness and disease of every kind.

<sup>2</sup>† The names of the twelve apostles are these: first Simon, now known as Peter, and his brother Andrew; James,

Zebedee's son, and his brother John; <sup>3</sup> Philip and Bartholomew, Thomas and Matthew the tax collector; James, son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus; <sup>4</sup> Simon the Zealot Party member, and Judas Iscariot, who betrayed him. <sup>5</sup> Jesus sent these men on mission as the Twelve, after giving them the following instructions:

"Do not visit pagan territory and do not enter a Samaritan town. <sup>6</sup> Go instead after the lost sheep of the house of Israel. <sup>7</sup> As you go, make this announcement: 'The reign of God is at hand!' <sup>8</sup> Cure the sick, raise the dead, heal the leprous, expel demons. The gift you have received, give as a gift. <sup>9</sup> Provide yourselves with neither gold nor silver nor copper in your belts; <sup>10</sup> no traveling bag, no change of shirt, no sandals, no walking staff. The workman, after all, is worth his keep.

<sup>11</sup> "Look for a worthy person in every town or village you come to and stay with him until you leave. <sup>12</sup>† As you enter his home bless it. <sup>13</sup> If the home is deserving, your blessing will descend on it. If it is not, your blessing will return to you. <sup>14</sup> If anyone does not receive you or listen to what you have to say, leave that house or town, and once outside it shake its dust from your feet. <sup>15</sup>* I assure you, it will go easier for the region of Sodom and Gomorrah on the day of judgment than it will for that town.

<sup>16</sup>* "What I am doing is sending you out like sheep among wolves. You must be clever as snakes and innocent as doves. <sup>17</sup>* Be on your guard with respect

21: 14, 36; Nm 15,	7: 3, 2, 4, 17,
37; Acts 19, 12.	9: Mk 6, 8f; Lk 9,
27: 15, 22.	3, 10, 4.
32ff: 12, 22ff; Lk 11,	10: Lk 10, 7; 1 Cor
14f.	9, 14; 3 Jn 8.
33: Mk 7, 37.	11-15: Mk 6, 10f; Lk 9,
34: 10, 25.	4f; 10, 5-12.
35: Lk 8, 1.	14: Acts 13, 51; 18,
36: Jer 50, 6; Ez 34,	6.
5; Mk 6, 34.	15: 11, 24; Jude 7.
37f: Lk 10, 2; Jn 4,	16: Lk 10, 3; 1 Cor
35.	14, 20.
10, 2-5; Mk 3, 16-19; Lk	17-22: Mk 13, 9-13; Lk
6, 13-16; Acts 1,	21, 12-19; Jn
13.	16, 1-4.
6: 15, 24.	17: Acts 5, 40.

† 9, 27-31: See note on Mk 10, 46-52.
9, 35—10, 1: Having preached and ministered widely in Galilee, Jesus sees the people's need for prophetic leadership; cf Nm 27, 17. He therefore expands his missionary activity by conferring his own powers on certain of his disciples.

10, 2-33: These verses, which conserve Jesus' instructions to his disciples for their missionary activity, constitute a norm for all Christian missionaries. Certain of his prophecies are incorporated into the discourse because they reflected the church's experience (10, 17-21); cf 2 Cor 11, 23ff; Acts 5, 40; 24, 1-23.

10, 12f: The blessing referred to is a wish of peace. The blessing, once invoked, is considered to continue to exist. An undeserving household will not receive it; therefore it returns and benefits the one who uttered it.

to others. They will hale you into court, they will flog you in their synagogues. <sup>18*</sup> You will be brought to trial before rulers and kings, to give witness before them and before the Gentiles on my account. <sup>19*</sup> When they hand you over, do not worry about what you will say or how you will say it. When the hour comes, you will be given what you are to say. <sup>20</sup> You yourselves will not be the speakers; the Spirit of your Father will be speaking in you.

<sup>21*</sup> "Brother will hand over brother to death, and the father his child; children will turn against parents and have them put to death. <sup>22</sup> You will be hated by all on account of me. But whoever holds out till the end will escape death. <sup>23†</sup> When they persecute you in one town, flee to the next. I solemnly assure you, you will not have covered the towns of Israel before the Son of Man comes.

<sup>24*</sup> "No pupil outranks his teacher, no slave his master. <sup>25</sup> The pupil should be glad to become like his teacher, the slave like his master. If they call the head of the house Beelzebub, how much more the members of his household! <sup>26*</sup> Do not let them intimidate you. Nothing is concealed that will not be revealed, and nothing hidden that will not become known. <sup>27</sup> What I tell you in darkness, speak in the light. What you hear in private, proclaim from the housetops.

<sup>28*</sup> "Do not fear those who deprive the body of life but cannot destroy the soul. Rather, fear him who can destroy both body and soul in Gehenna. <sup>29</sup> Are not two sparrows sold for next to nothing? Yet not a single sparrow falls to the ground without your Father's consent. <sup>30</sup> As for you, every hair of your head has been counted; <sup>31</sup> so do not be afraid of anything. You are worth more than an entire flock of sparrows. <sup>32*</sup> Whoever acknowledges me before men I will acknowledge before my Father in heaven. <sup>33*</sup> Whoever disowns me before men I will disown before my Father in heaven.

<sup>34*</sup> "Do not suppose that my mission on earth is to spread peace. My mission is to spread, not peace, but division. <sup>35</sup> I have come to set a man at odds with his father, a daughter with her mother, a daughter-in-law with her mother-in-law: <sup>36</sup> in short, to make a man's enemies those of his own household. <sup>37*</sup> Whoever loves father or mother, son or daughter, more than me is not worthy of me. <sup>38</sup> He who will not take up his cross and come after me is not worthy of me. <sup>39*</sup> He who seeks only himself brings himself to ruin, whereas he who brings himself to nought for me discovers who he is.

<sup>40*</sup> "He who welcomes you welcomes me, and he who welcomes me welcomes him who sent me. <sup>41</sup> He who welcomes a prophet because he bears the name of prophet receives a prophet's reward;

he who welcomes a holy man because he is known to be holy receives a holy man's reward. <sup>42*</sup> And I promise you that whoever gives a cup of cold water to one of these lowly ones because he is a disciple will not want for his reward."

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> When Jesus had finished instructing his twelve disciples, he left that locality to teach and preach in their towns.

IV: MYSTERY OF THE REIGN OF GOD†

The Baptizer's Deputation. <sup>2*</sup> Now John in prison heard about the works Christ was performing, and sent a message by his disciples to ask him. <sup>3†</sup> "Are you 'He who is to come' or do we look for another?" <sup>4</sup> In reply, Jesus said to them: "Go back and report to John what you hear and see: <sup>5*</sup> the blind recover their sight, cripples walk, lepers are cured, the deaf hear, dead men are raised to life, and the poor have the good news preached to them. <sup>6</sup> Blessed is the man who finds no stumbling block in me."

Christ's Witness to John. <sup>7*</sup> As the messengers set off, Jesus began to speak to the crowds about John: "What did you go out to the wasteland to see—a reed swaying in the wind? <sup>8</sup> Tell me, what did you go out to see—someone luxuriously

18: Jn 15, 27.	Rv 3, 5.
19: Ex 4, 11f; Jer 1, 6-10; Lk 12, 11f.	34f: Lk 2, 34; 12, 51f.
21f: 24, 9-13.	37f: 15, 24f; Lk 14, 26f.
24f: Lk 6, 40; Jn 13, 16; 15, 20.	39: Mk 8, 35; Lk 9, 24; Jn 12, 25.
26-33: Lk 12, 2-9.	40: Lk 10, 16; Jn 12, 44; 13, 20.
26: Mk 4, 22; Lk 8, 17; 1 Tm 5, 25.	42: 25, 40; Mk 9, 41.
28: 1 Pt 3, 14; Rv 2, 10.	11, 2-11: Lk 7, 18-28.
32: Lk 12, 8f.	5: 8, 3f; Is 26, 19.
33: Mk 8, 38; Lk 9, 26; 2 Tm 2, 12;	29, 18f; 35, 5f.
	7: 3, 3f.

† 10, 23: The missionaries are not to risk their lives unnecessarily. You will not have covered. . . the Son of Man comes: Jesus implies, not that he expects the parousia (see note on 1 Thes 4, 13-18) and God's final judgment before the termination of his disciples' mission, but rather that the divine plan of Israel's salvation will not be completed before the parousia because of hostility.

11, 2-12, 50: Jesus' messianic role is questioned and rejected. John sends a query to Jesus about his role (11, 2-6). Jesus himself comments on the resistance to his message in certain key cities of Galilee (11, 20-24). The scribes and Pharisees, and even Jesus' relatives, are hostile to him (12, 1-50).

11, 3: John is puzzled because Jesus continues to appeal for repentance rather than inflict final divine punishment on the unrepentant; cf 3, 12.

11, 7-15: In this collection of sayings Jesus eulogizes the strength of John the Baptizer's religious convictions, the austerity of his life (7f), and his unique prophetic role as the messianic precursor (9-15).

dressed? Remember, those who dress luxuriously are to be found in royal palaces. <sup>9</sup> Why then did you go out—to see a prophet? A prophet indeed, and something more! <sup>10*</sup> It is about this man that Scripture says,

'I send my messenger ahead of you to prepare your way before you.'

<sup>11</sup>† "I solemnly assure you, history has not known a man born of woman greater than John the Baptizer. Yet the least born into the kingdom of God is greater than he. <sup>12*</sup>† From John the Baptizer's time until now the kingdom of God has suffered violence, and the violent take it by force. <sup>13</sup> All the prophets as well as the law spoke prophetically until John. <sup>14*</sup> If you are prepared to accept it, he is Elijah, the one who was certain to come. <sup>15</sup> Heed carefully what you hear!

The Wayward Children. <sup>16*</sup> "What comparison can I use to describe this breed? They are like children squatting in the town squares, calling to their playmates:

<sup>17</sup> 'We piped you a tune but you did not dance!

We sang you a dirge but you did not wail!'

<sup>18*</sup> In other words, John appeared neither eating nor drinking, and people say, 'He is mad!' <sup>19*</sup>† The Son of Man appeared eating and drinking, and they say, 'This one is a glutton and drunkard, a lover of tax collectors and those outside the law!' Yet time will prove where wisdom lies."

The Impenitent Towns.† <sup>20*</sup> He began to reproach the towns where most of his miracles had been worked, with their failure to reform: <sup>21</sup> "It will go ill with you, Chorazin! And just as ill with you, Bethsaida! If the miracles worked in you had taken place in Tyre and Sidon, they would have reformed in sackcloth and ashes long ago. <sup>22</sup> I assure you, it will go easier for Tyre and Sidon than for you on the day of judgment. <sup>23*</sup> As for you, Capernaum,

'Are you to be exalted to the skies? You shall go down to the realm of death!'

If the miracles worked in you had taken place in Sodom, it would be standing today. <sup>24*</sup> I assure you, it will go easier for Sodom than for you on the day of judgment."

Jesus and His Father. <sup>25*</sup> On one occasion Jesus spoke thus: "Father, Lord of heaven and earth, to you I offer praise; for what you have hidden from the learned and the clever you have revealed to the merest children. <sup>26</sup> Father, it is true. You have graciously willed it so. <sup>27*</sup>† Everything has been given over to me by my Father. No one knows the Son but the Father, and no one knows the Father but the Son—and anyone to whom the Son wishes to reveal him.

<sup>28*</sup>† "Come to me, all you who are weary and find life burdensome, and I will refresh you. <sup>29*</sup>† Take my yoke upon your shoulders and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble of heart. Your souls will find rest, <sup>30</sup> for my yoke is easy and my burden light."

CHAPTER 12

The Disciples and the Sabbath.

<sup>1*</sup> Once on a sabbath Jesus walked through the standing grain. His disciples felt hungry, so they began to pull off the heads of grain and eat them. <sup>2</sup> When the Pharisees spied this, they protested: "See here! Your disciples are doing what is not permitted on the sabbath." <sup>3*</sup>† He replied: "Have you not read what David did when he and his men were hungry, <sup>4*</sup> how he entered God's house and ate the holy bread, a thing forbidden to him

10: Mal 3, 1; Mk 1,	24: 10, 15.
2: Lk 1, 76f.	25ff: Lk 10, 21f; 1 Cor
12: Lk 16, 16.	1, 26-29
14: 16, 14; 17, 10-	27: Jn 3, 35; 6, 46;
13; Mal 3, 23; Lk	7, 28.
1, 17.	28: Sir 24, 18.
16-19: Lk 7, 31-35.	12, 1-8: Ex 20, 8; Mk 2
18: Lk 1, 15.	23-28; Lk 6, 1-5
19: 9, 10f.	3: 1 Sm 21, 6.
20-24: Lk 10, 12-15.	4: Lv 24, 5-9.
23: Is 14, 13ff.

† 11, 11: Greater than he: the disciples benefit from Jesus' prophetic light, which surpasses that of John.

† 11, 12: A highly enigmatic saying—probably so because of isolation from its original historical context. It contrasts Jesus' message of renewal through repentance and the faith that leads to admission into God's kingdom, with the false messianism of the "holy war" advocated, e.g., by the Zealots and the sectaries of Qumran.

† 11, 19: Time will prove where wisdom lies: neither the austere preaching and penance of John the Baptizer nor the gentle persuasion of Jesus elicits the good will of unbelievers. God's wisdom triumphs over them in the end.

† 11, 20-24: Sayings of Jesus, uttered perhaps during his preaching in these cities, and summarized here. They are directed against those who fail to recognize the presence of God in Jesus so as to avoid repentance.

† 11, 27: This verse has a Johannine ring in thought and style (Jn 3, 16f; 5, 19-23) and uses as introduction a saying of the risen Christ (28, 18). Only God the Father fully comprehends Jesus' mission, and only Jesus fully understands God's saving plan which he gradually unveils to men. This saying may have originated in the instruction of the risen Lord; cf Acts 1, 3.

† 11, 28: Who are weary . . . burdensome: a probable allusion to the moral and legal prescriptions of rabbinic Judaism, which needed to be balanced by prophetic vision in order to give joy and peaceful expectancy to the Mosaic tradition.

† 11, 29: Your souls will find rest: through acceptance of the gospel teaching which satisfies the longings of those who are wearied by the burdens of life.

† 12, 3-6: Jesus responds to the objection of the Pharisees: if they hold so rigidly to their interpretation of the law, they should be critical of David's action (1 Sm 21, 1-6), and also that of the priests who on the sabbath prepare the offerings of the lambs (Nm 28, 9f). If these violations of the law in the temple, God's dwelling, are above criticism, neither should Jesus be criticized, for God is present in him as is manifested through his miracles; cf Jn 10, 38.

and his men or anyone other than priests? <sup>5</sup> Have you not read in the law how the priests on temple duty can break the sabbath rest without incurring guilt? <sup>6</sup> I assure you, there is something greater than the temple here. <sup>7</sup> If you understood the meaning of the text, 'It is mercy I desire and not sacrifice,' you would not have condemned these innocent men. <sup>8</sup>*† The Son of Man is indeed Lord of the sabbath."

A Man with a Shriveled Hand. <sup>9</sup>* He left that place and went into their synagogue. <sup>10</sup>*† A man with a shriveled hand happened to be there, and they put this question to Jesus, hoping to bring an accusation against him: "Is it lawful to work a cure on the sabbath?" <sup>11</sup>* He said in response: "Suppose one of you has a sheep and it falls into a pit on the sabbath. Will he not take hold of it and pull it out?" <sup>12</sup> Well, think how much more precious a human being is than a sheep. Clearly, good deeds may be performed on the sabbath."

<sup>13</sup> To the man he said, "Stretch out your hand." He did so, and it was perfectly restored; it became as sound as the other. <sup>14</sup>* When the Pharisees were outside they began to plot against him to find a way to destroy him. <sup>15</sup>*† Jesus was aware of this, and so he withdrew from that place.

The Mercy of Jesus. <sup>16</sup> Many people followed him and he cured them all, though he sternly ordered them not to make public what he had done. <sup>17</sup> This was to fulfill what had been said through Isaiah the prophet:

- <sup>18</sup>* "Here is my servant whom I have chosen, my loved one in whom I delight.
I will endow him with my spirit and he will proclaim justice to the Gentiles.
- <sup>19</sup> He will not contend or cry out,
nor will his voice be heard in the streets.
- <sup>20</sup> The bruised reed he will not crush;
the smoldering wick he will not quench until judgment is made victorious.
- <sup>21</sup> In his name, the Gentiles will find hope."

Blasphemy of the Pharisees. <sup>22</sup>* A possessed man who was brought to him was blind and mute. He cured the man so that he could speak and see. <sup>23</sup>* All in the crowd were astonished. "Might this not be David's son?" they asked. <sup>24</sup>*† When the Pharisees heard this, they charged, "This man can expel demons only with the help of Beelzebul, the prince of demons." <sup>25</sup>* Knowing their thoughts, he said to them: "A kingdom torn by strife is headed for its downfall. A town or household split into factions cannot last for long. <sup>26</sup> If Satan is expelling Satan, he must be torn by dissension. How, then, can his dominion last? <sup>27</sup> If I expel demons with Beelzebul's help, by whose help do your people expel them? Let them be the ones to judge you. <sup>28</sup>* But if it is by the Spirit of God that I expel demons, then the reign of God has overtaken you.

<sup>29</sup> "How can anyone enter a strong man's house and make off with his property unless he first ties him securely? Only then can he rob his house. <sup>30</sup>* He who is not with me is against me, and he who does not gather with me scatters.

<sup>31</sup>*† "That, I assure you, is why every sin, every blasphemy, will be forgiven men, but blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven. <sup>32</sup> Whoever says anything against the Son of Man will be forgiven, but whoever says anything against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven, either in this age or in the age to come. <sup>33</sup>*† Declare a tree good and

7: 1 Sm 15, 22;	23: 9, 27.
Hos 6, 6.	24: 10, 25; Mk 3, 22.
8: Jn 5, 16f.	25-29: Mk 3, 23-27; Lk
9-15: Mk 3, 1-7.	11, 17-22.
10: Lk 20, 20.	28: Lk 8, 29.
11: Dt 22, 4.	30: Mk 9, 40; Lk 11,
14: Jn 5, 18; 11, 53.	23.
18-21: Is 42, 1-4.	31f: Mk 3, 28ff; Lk
22ff: Lk 9, 32ff, 11,	12, 10.
14f.	33: Lk 6, 43ff.

†

<sup>12</sup>, <sup>8</sup>: See note on Mk 2, 28.

<sup>12</sup>, <sup>10</sup>: Is it lawful to work a cure on the sabbath?: curing on the sabbath was a frequent issue against Jesus in the gospels and one of considerable tension between him and the religious authorities (Jn 7, 23f). The basis of this altercation is not entirely clear. The sabbath healings did not accord with the teaching of the rabbis on the limited degree of aid to be given the sick or injured on that day. It seems, however, from the complete gospel that the issue was more complex than one of mere legalism. The healings produced clamorous crowds and processions of other sick persons (Lk 13, 14), which greatly disturbed the sabbath rest. At times Jesus overrode the sabbath restrictions (Jn 5, 18), challenged the authority of the scribes and Pharisees, and thoroughly involved them in his message. They had no choice but to take a stand, whether favorable or hostile, to Jesus.

<sup>12</sup>, <sup>15-21</sup>: Jesus shows no inclination to counteract the hostility of the Pharisees by any action on his part, such as enlisting popular support against them. Instead he withdraws from that place, even orders those cured not to make public what he had done. The free citation of Is 42, 1-4 is a reflection of the meekness of Jesus, the harbinger of the divine mercy to Jews and Gentiles.

<sup>12</sup>, <sup>24-29</sup>: To the Pharisees' charge that Jesus performs exorcisms by a pact with Satan, he replies by showing that the objection lacks common sense (25f), overlooks the tradition of exorcistic power in Israel (27), and refuses to acknowledge in the person and teaching of Christ, the new reign of God, capable of destroying Satan's power (28f).

<sup>12</sup>, <sup>31f</sup>: The Pharisees are said to attribute Jesus' exorcisms to satanic power and thus to deny the unique presence of God in Jesus. They thereby assign his entire work and teaching to an evil principle, making it anti-God. This is the blasphemy against the Spirit that will not be forgiven, because it negates the evidence of God's saving action in history. However, misunderstandings of Jesus' teaching and misconceptions of his Person due to human error or prejudice will be forgiven (Acts 9, 4f; 1 Tm 1, 13).

<sup>12</sup>, <sup>33-37</sup>: Those who charge that Jesus is in league with Satan reflect a basic evil in themselves that can be cured only by a radical renewal of faith and love.

its fruit good or declare a tree rotten and its fruit rotten, one or the other, for you can tell a tree by its fruit. <sup>34*</sup> How can you utter anything good, you brood of vipers, when you are so evil? The mouth speaks whatever fills the mind. <sup>35</sup> A good man produces good from his store of goodness; an evil man produces evil from his evil store. <sup>36*</sup> I assure you, on judgment day people will be held accountable for every unguarded word they speak. <sup>37</sup> By your words you will be acquitted, and by your words you will be condemned."

The Sign of Jonah. <sup>38†</sup> Some of the scribes and Pharisees then spoke up, saying, "Teacher, we want to see you work some signs." <sup>39*</sup> He answered: "An evil and unfaithful age is eager for a sign! No sign will be given it but that of the prophet Jonah. <sup>40</sup> Just as Jonah spent three days and three nights in the belly of the whale, so will the Son of Man spend three days and three nights in the bowels of the earth. <sup>41†</sup> At the judgment, the citizens of Nineveh will rise with the present generation and be the ones to condemn it. At the preaching of Jonah they reformed their lives; but you have a greater than Jonah here. <sup>42*</sup> At the judgment, the queen of the South will rise with the present generation and be the one to condemn it. She came from the farthest corner of the earth to listen to the wisdom of Solomon; but you have a greater than Solomon here.

<sup>43*†</sup> "When the unclean spirit departs from a man, it roams through arid wastes searching for a place of rest and finding none. <sup>44</sup> Then it says, 'I will go back where I came from,' and returns to find the dwelling unoccupied, though swept and tidied now. <sup>45</sup> Off it goes again to bring back with it this time seven spirits more evil than itself. They move in and settle there. Thus the last state of that man becomes worse than the first. And that is how it will be with this evil generation."

Jesus and His Family. <sup>46*†</sup> He was still addressing the crowds when his mother and his brothers appeared outside to speak with him. <sup>47</sup> Someone said to him, "Your mother and your brothers are standing out there and they wish to speak to you." <sup>48</sup> He said to the one who had told him, "Who is my mother? Who are my brothers?" <sup>49</sup> Then, extending his hand toward his disciples, he said, <sup>50</sup> "There are my mother and my brothers. Whoever does the will of my heavenly Father is brother and sister and mother to me."

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1*</sup>† That same day, on leaving the house, Jesus sat down by the lakeshore.

<sup>2</sup> Such great crowds gathered around him that he went and took his seat in a boat while the crowd stood along the shore. <sup>3</sup> He addressed them at length in parables, speaking in this fashion:

Parable of the Seed. <sup>4</sup> "One day a farmer went out sowing. Part of what he sowed landed on a footpath, where birds came and ate it up. <sup>5</sup> Part of it fell on rocky ground, where it had little soil. It sprouted at once since the soil had no depth, <sup>6</sup> but when the sun rose and scorched it, it began to wither for lack of roots. <sup>7</sup> Again, part of the seed fell among thorns, which grew up and choked it. <sup>8</sup> Part of it, finally, landed on good soil and yielded grain a hundred- or sixty- or thirtyfold. <sup>9</sup> Let everyone heed what he hears!"

<sup>10†</sup> When the disciples got near him, they asked him, "Why do you speak to them in parables?" <sup>11</sup> He answered: "To you has been given a knowledge of the mysteries of the reign of God, but it has not been given to the others. <sup>12*</sup> To the man who has, more will be given until he grows rich; the man who has not, will lose what little he has.

<sup>13*</sup> "I use parables when I speak to them because they look but do not see, they listen but do not hear or understand. <sup>14*</sup> Isaiah's prophecy is fulfilled in them which says:

34: 3, 7; 23, 33; 15, 11f.	8, 19ff.
36f: Jas 3, 1f.	13, 1-14: Mk 4, 1-12; Lk 8, 4-10.
39-42: 16, 4; Jon 2, 1; 3, 5; Lk 11, 29-32.	12: 25, 29; Mk 4, 25; Lk 8, 18; 19, 26.
42: 1 Kgs 10, 1-6.	13: Jn 9, 39.
43ff: Lk 11, 24ff.	14f: Is 6, 9f; Jn 12, 40; Acts 28, 26; Rom 11, 8.
46-50: Mk 3, 31-35; Lk

† 12, 38ff: A current opinion in Judaism (Jn 7, 31) was that the Messiah would perform a unique kind of miracle. This view was not supported by the Old Testament but was apparently adhered to in circles of apocalyptic thought. The only additional sign to be given the faithless is that of Jesus' death and resurrection, typified by the story of Jonah in the belly of the fish. The allusion to Jesus' resurrection could not have been grasped by his audience at the time.

12, 41f: The sayings insist that Jesus' message of repentance has been more forcefully presented than in the preaching of Jonah and that his teaching shows greater divine wisdom than the perceptions of Solomon.

12, 43ff: The religious history of man is a repititious interchange of good and evil. The sayings warn that the option for evil can reach the point of taking full possession of a man.

12, 46-50: See note on Mk 3, 20-35.

13, 1-53: The main theme of this collection of parables is the mystery of the reign or kingship of God, a plan hidden in God and only incompletely manifested to men (10-17, 34f), cf Eph 3, 4ff. The teaching of Jesus reveals that it is God who introduces his reign into history (3-9), intangibly brings it to fruition among men through his power (31f), and will perfect it in his own good time (24-30). A secondary theme encourages adherence to Jesus' teaching despite hardships (18-23), and acceptance of God's toleration of evil (36-43, 47-50). It places the reign proclaimed by Jesus above all the things in human existence which men hold dear (44ff).

13, 10-15: Precisely because the prophetic message is understandable, it can be, and frequently is, rejected (cf Is 6, 9).

'Listen as you will, you shall not understand, look intently as you will, you shall not see.

15 Sluggish indeed is this people's heart.

They have scarcely heard with their ears, they have firmly closed their eyes; otherwise they might see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their hearts, and turn back to me, and I should heal them.'

16* "But blest are your eyes because they see and blest are your ears because they hear. 17 I assure you, many a prophet and many a saint longed to see what you see but did not see it, to hear what you hear but did not hear it.

18* "Mark well, then, the parable of the sower. 19 The seed along the path is the man who hears the message about God's reign without understanding it. The evil one approaches him to steal away what was sown in his mind. 20 The seed that fell on patches of rock is the man who hears the message and at first receives it with joy. 21 But he has no roots, so he lasts only for a time. When some setback or persecution involving the message occurs, he soon falters. 22 What was sown among briars is the man who hears the message, but then worldly anxiety and the lure of money choke it off. Such a one produces no yield. 23* But what was sown on good soil is the man who hears the message and takes it in. He it is who bears a yield of a hundred- or sixty- or thirtyfold."

The Weeds. 24* He proposed to them another parable: "The reign of God may be likened to a man who sowed good seed in his field. 25 While everyone was asleep, his enemy came and sowed weeds through his wheat, and then made off. 26 When the crop began to mature and yield grain, the weeds made their appearance as well. 27 The owner's slaves came to him and said, 'Sir, did you not sow good seed in your field? Where are the weeds coming from?' 28 He answered, 'I see an enemy's hand in this.' His slaves said to him, 'Do you want us to go out and pull them up?' 29 'No,' he replied, 'pull up the weeds and you might take the wheat along with them. 30* Let them grow together until harvest; then at harvest time I will order the harvesters, First collect the weeds and bundle them up to burn, then gather the wheat into my barn.'"

The Mustard Seed and the Leaven.

31* He proposed still another parable: "The reign of God is like a mustard seed which someone took and sowed in his field. 32 It is the smallest seed of all, yet when full-grown it is the largest of plants. It becomes so big a shrub that the birds of the sky come and build their nests in its branches."

33* He offered them still another image: "The reign of God is like yeast which a woman took and kneaded into three measures of flour. Eventually the whole mass of dough began to rise." 34* All these lessons Jesus taught the crowds in the form of parables. He spoke to them in parables only, 35* to fulfill what had been said through the prophet:

"I will open my mouth in parables, I will announce what has lain hidden since the creation of the world."

36 Then, dismissing the crowds, he went home. His disciples came to him with the request, "Explain to us the parable of the weeds in the field." 37 He said in answer: "The farmer sowing good seed is the Son of Man; 38 the field is the world, the good seed the citizens of the kingdom. The weeds are the followers of the evil one 39* and the enemy who sowed them is the devil. The harvest is the end of the world, while the harvesters are the angels. 40 Just as weeds are collected and burned, so will it be at the end of the world. 41* The Son of Man will dispatch his angels to collect from his kingdom all who draw others to apostasy, and all evildoers. 42* The angels will hurl them into the fiery furnace where they will wail and grind their teeth. 43* Then the saints will shine like the sun in their Father's kingdom. Let everyone heed what he hears!

The Treasure and the Pearl. 44* "The reign of God is like a buried treasure which a man found in a field. He hid it again, and rejoicing at his find went and sold all he had and bought that field. 45 Or again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant's search for fine pearls. 46 When he found one really valuable pearl, he went back and put up for sale all that he had and bought it.

Parable of the Net. 47 "The reign of God is also like a dragnet thrown into the lake, which collected all sorts of things. 48 When it was full they hauled it ashore and sat down to put what was worthwhile into containers. What was useless they threw away. 49 That is how it will be at the end of the world. Angels will go out and separate the wicked from the just 50 and hurl the wicked into the

16f: Lk 10, 23f; Acts 22, 15

18-23: Mk 4, 13-20; Lk 8, 11-15.

23: Jn 15, 8, 16.

24: Mk 4, 26.

30: 3, 12; Jn 15, 6.

31f: Mk 4, 30ff; Lk 13, 18f.

33: Lk 13, 20f.

34: Jn 16, 25.

35: Ps 78, 2.

39: Fv 14, 15.

41: Zep 1, 3.

42: 8, 12; Fv 21, 8.

43: Wis 3, 7; Dn 12, 3.

44: 19, 21; Prv 4, 7.

fiery furnace, where they will wail and grind their teeth.

<sup>51</sup>† "Have you understood all this?" "Yes," they answered; <sup>52</sup> to which he replied, "Every scribe who is learned in the reign of God is like the head of a household who can bring from his store-room both the new and the old."

<sup>53</sup>† When Jesus had finished these parables, he moved on from that district.

V: THE REIGN BECOME CHURCH

Jesus at Nazareth. <sup>54</sup>* Jesus next went to his native place and spent his time teaching them in their synagogue. They were filled with amazement, and said to one another, "Where did this man get such wisdom and miraculous powers? <sup>55</sup>*† Isn't this the carpenter's son? Isn't Mary known to be his mother and James, Joseph, Simon, and Judas his brothers? <sup>56</sup> Aren't his sisters our neighbors? Where did he get all this?" <sup>57</sup>* They found him altogether too much for them. Jesus said to them, "No prophet is without honor except in his native place, indeed in his own house." <sup>58</sup> And he did not work many miracles there because of their lack of faith.

CHAPTER 14

Death of the Baptizer. <sup>1</sup>* On one occasion Herod the tetrarch, having heard of Jesus' reputation, <sup>2</sup> exclaimed to his courtiers, "This man is John the Baptizer—it is he in person, raised from the dead; that is why such miraculous powers are at work in him!" <sup>3</sup>* Recall that Herod had had John arrested, put in chains, and imprisoned on account of Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip. <sup>4</sup>* That was because John had told him, "It is not right for you to live with her." <sup>5</sup>* Herod wanted to kill John but was afraid of the people, who regarded him as a prophet. <sup>6</sup> Then on Herod's birthday Herodias' daughter performed a dance before the court which delighted Herod so much <sup>7</sup> that he swore he would grant her anything she asked for. <sup>8</sup> Prompted by her mother she said, "Bring me the head of John the Baptizer on a platter." <sup>9</sup> The king immediately had his misgivings, but because of his oath and the guests who were present he gave orders that the request be granted. <sup>10</sup> He sent the order to have John beheaded in prison. <sup>11</sup> John's head was brought in on a platter and given to the girl, who took it to her mother. <sup>12</sup> Later his disciples presented themselves to carry his body away and bury it. Afterward, they came and informed Jesus.

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand. <sup>13</sup>* When Jesus heard this, he withdrew by boat from there to a deserted place by himself. The crowds heard of it and followed him on foot from the towns. <sup>14</sup> When he disembarked and saw the vast throng, his heart was moved with pity, and he cured their sick. <sup>15</sup> As evening drew on, his disciples came to him with the suggestion: "This is a deserted place and it is already late. Dismiss the crowds so that they may go to the villages and buy some food for themselves." <sup>16</sup> Jesus said to them: "There is no need for them to disperse. Give them something to eat yourselves." <sup>17</sup> "We have nothing here," they replied, "but five loaves and a couple of fish." <sup>18</sup> "Bring them here," he said. <sup>19</sup>† Then he ordered the crowds to sit down on the grass. He took the five loaves and two fish, looked up to heaven, blessed and broke them and gave the loaves to the disciples, who in turn gave them to the people. <sup>20</sup> All those present ate their fill. The fragments remaining, when gathered up, filled twelve baskets. <sup>21</sup> Those who ate were about five thousand, not counting women and children.

Jesus Walks on the Water.† <sup>22</sup>* Immediately afterward, while dismissing the crowds, Jesus insisted that his disciples

54-58: Mk 6, 1-6.	19f.
54: 2, 23; Jn 1, 46.	4: Lv 18, 16; 20,
55: 12, 46; 27, 56;	21.
Jn 6, 42.	5: 21, 26.
57: Jn 4, 44.	13-21: 15, 32-38; Mk 6,
14, 1-12; Mk 6, 14-29; Lk	32-44; Lk 9, 10-
9, 7ff.	17; Jn 6, 1-13.
1: Lk 3, 1.	22-32: Mk 6, 45-51; Jn
3f: Mk 6, 17f; Lk 3.	6, 16-21.

† 13, 51f: Jesus' teaching on the mystery of the kingdom of God is a prophetic development of the doctrine of the Old Testament requiring spiritual discernment for its acceptance; cf 1 Cor 2, 10-16.

13, 53—19, 1: The main purpose in this section of the gospel is to place the Person of Jesus at the very center of the mystery of the reign of God. Beginning with the rejection of Jesus at Nazareth and the execution of John (13, 53—14, 12), the evangelist alludes to the eucharistic mystery in the accounts of the multiplication of the loaves (14, 19; 15, 36), and of the walking on the water (14, 22-33); reports the doctrinal conflict between Jesus and the religious authorities (15, 1-20); raises again the question of the sign of Jonah (16, 1-4; see note on 12, 38ff), later explained to mean the passion, death and resurrection of Jesus (16, 21ff) which must occur before the reign of God reaches a new stage (16, 28). This is the message of the transfiguration (17, 5). A second purpose of the evangelist is to pattern the life of the Christian community after the model-life of Jesus (18, 1-35). This discourse takes its cue from Jesus' role as Servant of Yahweh (Is 42, 1) alluded to in 17, 5. Under the imagery of children, Jesus' disciples are identified with the anawim, who are so profoundly changed that they place the service of God entirely above personal gain; cf 2 Cor 11, 7. These members of the Christian community enjoy the divine favor, which will pursue them should they fall as a result of the entrapments set out for them by others (18, 5-14). This is to be borne in mind if the discipline of the gospel is to be enforced on those members who have deviated from it (18, 15f), if completely recalcitrant, they are to be cut off from the community, if repentant, they may be reinstated because of the limitless forgiveness within the community (18, 17-34).

13, 55: See note on Mk 6, 1-6.

14, 19: The rite of blessing and distribution anticipates the Last Supper.

14, 22-33: See note on Mk 6, 45-52.

get into the boat and precede him to the other side. <sup>23*</sup> When he had sent them away, he went up on the mountain by himself to pray, <sup>24</sup> remaining there alone as evening drew on. Meanwhile the boat, already several hundred yards out from shore, was being tossed about in the waves raised by strong head winds. <sup>25</sup> At about three in the morning, he came walking toward them on the lake. <sup>26</sup> When the disciples saw him walking on the water, they were terrified. "It is a ghost!" they said, and in their fear they began to cry out. <sup>27</sup> Jesus hastened to reassure them: "Get hold of yourselves! It is I. Do not be afraid!" <sup>28†</sup> Peter spoke up and said, "Lord, if it is really you, tell me to come to you across the water." <sup>29</sup> "Come!" he said. So Peter got out of the boat and began to walk on the water, moving toward Jesus. <sup>30</sup> But when he perceived how strong the wind was, becoming frightened, he began to sink and cried out, "Lord, save me!" <sup>31*</sup> Jesus at once stretched out his hand and caught him. "How little faith you have!" he exclaimed. "Why did you falter?" <sup>32</sup> Once they had climbed into the boat, the wind died down. <sup>33*†</sup> Those who were in the boat showed him reverence, declaring, "Beyond doubt you are the Son of God!"

Other Miracles. <sup>34</sup> After making the crossing they reached the shore at Genesaret; <sup>35</sup> and when the men of that place recognized him they spread the word throughout the region. People brought him all the afflicted, <sup>36*</sup> with the plea that he let them do no more than touch the tassel of his cloak. As many as touched it were fully restored to health.

CHAPTER 15

Jesus and the Pharisees. <sup>1*</sup> Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem approached Jesus with the question: <sup>2*</sup> "Why do your disciples act contrary to the tradition of our ancestors? They do not wash their hands, for example, before eating a meal." <sup>3</sup> In reply he said to them: "Why do you for your part act contrary to the commandments of God for the sake of your 'tradition'? <sup>4*</sup> For instance, God has said, 'Honor your father and your mother,' and, 'Whoever curses father or mother shall be put to death.' <sup>5†</sup> Yet you declare, 'Whoever says to his father or his mother, Any support you might have had from me is dedicated to God, <sup>6</sup> need not honor his father or his mother.' This means that for the sake of your tradition you have nullified God's word.

<sup>7</sup> "You hypocrites! How accurately did Isaiah prophesy about you when he said:

<sup>8*</sup> 'This people pays me lip service but their heart is far from me.

<sup>9*</sup> They do me empty reverence, making dogmas out of human precepts.'"

<sup>10*†</sup> He summoned the crowd and said to them: "Give ear and try to understand. <sup>11</sup> It is not what goes into a man's mouth that makes him impure; it is what comes out of his mouth." <sup>12</sup> His disciples approached him and said, "Do you realize the Pharisees were scandalized when they heard your pronouncement?" <sup>13</sup> "Every planting not put down by my heavenly Father will be uprooted," he replied. <sup>14*</sup> "Let them go their way; they are blind leaders of the blind. If one blind man leads another, both will end in a pit." <sup>15</sup> Then Peter spoke up to say, "Explain the parable to us." <sup>16</sup> "Are you, too, still incapable of understanding?" he asked. <sup>17</sup> "Do you not see that everything that enters the mouth passes into the stomach and is discharged into the latrine, <sup>18*</sup> but what comes out of the mouth originates in the mind? It is things like these that make a man impure. <sup>19</sup> From the mind stem evil designs—murder, adulterous conduct, fornication, stealing, false witness, blasphemy. <sup>20</sup> These are the things that make a man impure. As for eating with unwashed hands—that makes no man impure."

The Canaanite Woman. <sup>† 21*</sup> Then Jesus left that place and withdrew to the district of Tyre and Sidon. <sup>22</sup> It happened that a Canaanite woman living in that locality presented herself, crying out to

23: Mk 1, 35.	20: Sir 3, 12;
31: 8, 25f.	Eph 6, 2.
33-36: Mk 6, 53-56.	8: Ps 78, 36f; Is 29,
33: 16, 16.	13.
36: 9, 20ff.	9: Col 2, 23.
15, 1-20: Mk 7, 1-23.	10: Mk 7, 14.
2: Lk 11, 38.	14: 23, 16.19; Lk 6,
4: Ex 20, 12; 21,	39; Jn 9, 40.
17; Lv 20, 9; Dt	18: 12, 34; Ti 1, 15.
5, 16; Prv 20,	21-28: Mk 7, 24-30.

† 14, 28-31: These verses are proper to Matthew. Peter, who exercised the leading role among the Twelve through the decision of Christ (16, 18; Acts 1, 15), had also to find his salvation in Jesus.

14, 33: Beyond doubt you are the Son of God: during the mortal life of Jesus, his divine nature was concealed. The confession therefore cannot be taken as evidence that the disciples comprehended Jesus' divine status at this time (Phil 2, 5-8). In the Old Testament the term "son" of God is applied to those who enjoy God's favor (Ex 4, 23; Ps 2, 7). However, the confession may be the evangelist's retrojection of the post-Easter faith into the time of Jesus' ministry, cf Mt 16, 16.

15, 5†: Property dedicated by vow was considered sacred, and therefore not to be claimed by parents for their support. But since ownership of the property was still retained, the vow and its effect became a mere figment of law and a means of escape from the duty of filial piety. However, rabbinic evidence suggests that such was not the ordinary teaching of the rabbis.

15, 10†: Before God, human guilt or innocence stems from deliberate human decision, not from any (presumed) evil in material creation. How difficult it was to change this mentality of Jesus' contemporaries is evident from Acts 10, 9-16.

15, 21-28: See note on Mk 7, 24-30.

him, "Lord, Son of David, have pity on me! My daughter is terribly troubled by a demon."<sup>23</sup> He gave her no word of response. His disciples came up and began to entreat him, "Get rid of her. She keeps shouting after us."<sup>24</sup> "My mission is only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel," Jesus replied.<sup>25</sup> She came forward then and did him homage with the plea, "Help me, Lord!"<sup>26</sup> But he answered, "It is not right to take the food of sons and daughters and throw it to the dogs."<sup>27</sup> "Please, Lord," she insisted, "even the dogs eat the leavings that fall from their masters' tables."<sup>28</sup> Jesus then said in reply, "Woman, you have great faith! Your wish will come to pass." That very moment her daughter got better.

Jesus Heals the Suffering.<sup>29</sup> Jesus left that place and passed along the Sea of Galilee. He went up onto the mountain-side and sat down there.<sup>30</sup> Large crowds of people came to him bringing with them cripples, the deformed, the blind, the mute, and many others besides. They laid them at his feet and he cured them.<sup>31</sup> The result was great astonishment in the crowds as they beheld the mute speaking, the deformed made sound, cripples walking about, and the blind seeing. They glorified the God of Israel.

Jesus Feeds Four Thousand.†<sup>32</sup> Jesus called his disciples to him and said: "My heart is moved with pity for the crowd. By now they have been with me three days, and have nothing to eat. I do not wish to send them away hungry, for fear they may collapse on the way."

<sup>33</sup> His disciples said to him, "How could we ever get enough bread in this deserted spot to satisfy such a crowd?"

<sup>34</sup> But Jesus asked them, "How many loaves of bread do you have?" "Seven," they replied, "and a few small fish."

<sup>35</sup> Then he directed the crowd to seat themselves on the ground.<sup>36</sup> He took the seven loaves and the fish, and after giving thanks he broke them and gave them to the disciples, who in turn gave them to the crowds.<sup>37</sup> All ate until they were full. When they gathered up the fragments left over, these filled seven hamper.<sup>38</sup> The people who were fed numbered four thousand, apart from women and children.

<sup>39</sup> Then, after he had dismissed the crowds, he got into the boat and went to the district of Magadan.

CHAPTER 16

The Pharisees and Sadducees. <sup>1</sup>* The Pharisees and Sadducees came along, and as a test asked him to show them some sign in the sky. <sup>2</sup> He gave them this reply: ["<sup>1</sup>In the evening you say, 'Red sky at night, the day will be bright'; <sup>3</sup>* but in the morning, 'Sky red and gloomy, the day will be stormy.' If you know how to interpret the look of the sky, can you not read the signs of the times?]

<sup>4</sup>* An evil, faithless age is eager for a sign, but no sign will be given it except that of Jonah." With that he left them abruptly.

The Leaven of the Pharisees. <sup>5</sup>* The disciples discovered when they arrived at the other side that they had forgotten to bring any bread along. <sup>6</sup>* When Jesus said to them, "Be on the lookout against the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees," <sup>7</sup> they could think only, "This is because we have brought no bread."
<sup>8</sup> Jesus knew their thoughts and said, "Why do you suppose it is because you have no bread? How weak your faith is! <sup>9</sup>* Do you still not understand? Do you not remember the five loaves among five thousand and how many baskets-full you picked up? <sup>10</sup>* Or the seven loaves among four thousand and how many hamper-full you retrieved? <sup>11</sup> Why is it you do not see that I was not speaking about bread at all but warning you against the yeast of the Pharisees?"
<sup>12</sup> They finally realized he was not issuing a warning against yeast [used for bread] but against the Pharisees' and Sadducees' teaching.

Peter the Rock. <sup>13</sup>* When Jesus came to the neighborhood of Caesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples this question: "Who do people say that the Son of Man is?" <sup>14</sup>* They replied, "Some say John the Baptizer, others Elijah, still others Jeremiah or one of the prophets."
<sup>15</sup> "And you," he said to them, "who do you say that I am?" <sup>16</sup>*† "You are the 25: 10, 6; Rom 15, 8	5: Mk 8, 14, 6; Lk 12, 1.

28: 8, 10.	9: 14, 17, 21; Jn 6, 9
30: Is 35, 5f.	10: 15, 34, 38.
31: 8, 3.	13-16: Mk 8, 27ff; Lk 9, 18ff.
32-39: Mk 8, 1-10.	14: 14, 2.
37: 16, 10.	16: Jn 6, 69f.
16, 1-10: Mk 8, 11-21.
3: Lk 12, 54.
4: 12, 39; Jn 2, 1.

† 15, 32-38: See note on Mk 8, 1-9.
16, 16-20: To the tradition of Peter's confession at Caesarea Philippi (Mk 8, 27-30), Matthew adds the doctrine of the divinity of Christ, together with Jesus' prophecy that he will successfully build a new Israel, i. e., the Church, upon Peter. Considering the unresolved dispute among the Twelve as to who was the greatest (20, 20-24), it is probable that this prophecy as a whole was made by the risen Christ (Jn 21, 15ff). The importance of the prophecy is seen from the fact that Matthew conserves it three decades after Peter's martyrdom, when his leadership of the Jerusalem community is already a thing of the past. In Matthew, the building of the new Israel on Peter pertains to Jesus' own role in the mystery of the reign of God that has appeared in history; see notes on 13, 1-53; 13, 53-19, 1. Jesus cannot begin to build his church upon Peter until after his death and resurrection (16, 21ff). For Matthew, Jesus' building of the new people of God upon Peter is a continuing reality for the Christian community of his time.

Messiah," Simon Peter answered, "the Son of the living God!"<sup>17†</sup> Jesus replied, "Blest are you, Simon son of Jonah! No mere man has revealed this to you, but my heavenly Father.<sup>18*†</sup> I for my part declare to you, you are 'Rock,' and on this rock I will build my church, and the jaws of death shall not prevail against it.<sup>19*†</sup> I will entrust to you the keys of the kingdom of heaven. Whatever you declare bound on earth shall be bound in heaven; whatever you declare loosed on earth shall be loosed in heaven."<sup>20</sup> Then he strictly ordered his disciples not to tell anyone that he was the Messiah.

First Prophecy of Passion and Resurrection.<sup>21*</sup> From then on Jesus [the Messiah] started to indicate to his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and suffer greatly there at the hands of the elders, the chief priests, and the scribes, and to be put to death, and raised up on the third day.<sup>22</sup> At this, Peter took him aside and began to remonstrate with him. "May you be spared, Master! God forbid that any such thing ever happen to you!"<sup>23</sup> Jesus turned on Peter and said, "Get out of my sight, you satan! You are trying to make me trip and fall. You are not judging by God's standards but by man's."

Doctrine of the Cross.<sup>† 24*</sup> Jesus then said to his disciples: "If a man wishes to come after me, he must deny his very self, take up his cross, and begin to follow in my footsteps.<sup>25*</sup> Whoever would save his life will lose it, but whoever loses his life for my sake will find it.<sup>26</sup> What profit would a man show if he were to gain the whole world and destroy himself in the process? What can a man offer in exchange for his very self?<sup>27*†</sup> The Son of Man will come with his Father's glory accompanied by his angels. When he does, he will repay each man according to his conduct.<sup>28*</sup> I assure you, among those standing here there are some who will not experience death before they see the Son of Man come in his kingship."

CHAPTER 17

Jesus Transfigured.<sup>† 1*</sup> Six days later Jesus took Peter, James, and his brother John and led them up on a high mountain by themselves.<sup>2</sup> He was transfigured before their eyes. His face became as dazzling as the sun, his clothes as radiant as light.<sup>3*</sup> Suddenly Moses and Elijah appeared to them conversing with him.<sup>4</sup> Then Peter said to Jesus, "Lord, how good that we are here! With your permission I will erect three booths here, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah."<sup>5*</sup> He was still speaking when suddenly a bright cloud overshadowed them. Out of the cloud came a voice which said, "This is my beloved Son on whom my favor rests. Listen to him."<sup>6</sup> When they heard this the disciples fell forward on the ground, overcome with fear.<sup>7</sup> Jesus came toward them and laying his hand on them, said, "Get up! Do not be afraid."<sup>8</sup> When they looked up they did not see anyone but Jesus.

The Coming of Elijah.<sup>9*†</sup> As they were coming down the mountainside Jesus commanded them, "Do not tell anyone of the vision until the Son of Man rises from the dead."<sup>10*</sup> The disciples put this question to him: "Why do the scribes claim that Elijah must come first?"<sup>11*</sup> In reply he said: "Elijah is indeed coming, and he will restore everything.<sup>12*</sup> I assure you, though, that Elijah has already come, but they did not recognize him and they did as they pleased with him. The Son of Man will

18: Jn 1, 42,	Jer 17, 10; 2
19: Is 22, 22; Rv 3,	Thes 1, 7,
7,	28: 24, 30; 26, 64,
21-28: Mk 8, 31—9, 1;	17, 1-8: Mk 9, 1-7; Lk 9,
Lk 9, 22-27,	28-36.
21: 17, 22f; 20, 17ff;	3, 28, 2,
13, 33; Acts 10,	5, 3, 17; 2 Pt 1, 17,
40,	9-13: Mk 9, 9f.
24: Lk 14, 27,	10: Mal 3, 23f.
25: Lk 17, 33; Jn 12,	11: Lk 1, 17
25,	12: 11, 14; 16, 21;
27: 25, 31f; Jb 34,	17, 22f.
11; Ps 62, 13;

† 16, 17: Jesus' messianic identity and divinity cannot be truly known from human reason, but only from God's revelation (1 Cor 12, 3).

16, 18: You are "Rock": the Greek petros and its Aramaic equivalent kepha, "rock" is here conferred on Simon as a personal name to indicate his role as the firm foundation on which Jesus builds his church. The jaws of death: literally, "the gates of Sheol" (Nm 16, 33), i. e., death's realm, here used to signify the power or force of evil responsible first for physical then for spiritual death. The new people of God will overcome both forms of death to achieve the glorious entrance into the final kingdom (Rv 20, 4ff).

16, 19: I will entrust . . . kingdom of heaven: i. e., spiritual power to be exercised over the life of God's people, in contrast to the previously mentioned "gates," i. e., the evil power of death that would not prevail against the church. Simon Peter is the keeper of the keys, the one who has power to open and to close, to "bind" and to "loose," to allow and to forbid; cf Is 22, 22. The exercise of this responsibility is here compared to the disciplinary and doctrinal authority of the rabbis who in Jesus' time interpreted the Old Testament for the faith and life of the people. The exact nature of the extraordinary power here conferred became clear through the historical development of the Christian community in terms of the primacy of Peter, i. e., his supreme authority in teaching, governing and sanctifying the people of God. 16, 24ff: See note on Mk 8, 34—9, 1.

16, 27f: These two sayings seem to refer to distinct phases of the kingdom of God: the reign of Christ in and through the new Christian community, with its orientation through faith to the second coming of Christ (27); and the eschatological kingdom of the Father, to be inaugurated when the Son of Man comes in glory at the end of time (28). See note on Mk 9, 1; Acts 1, 11.

17, 1-8: See note on Mk 9, 2-8.

17, 9: Misunderstanding the necessity of the passion, they are not to reveal the vision till after Jesus' resurrection.

suffer at their hands in the same way."

<sup>13</sup> The disciples then realized that he had been speaking to them about John the Baptizer.

The Possessed Boy.† <sup>14*</sup> As they approached the crowd, a man came up to him and knelt before him. <sup>15</sup> "Lord," he said, "take pity on my son, who is demented and in a serious condition. For example, he often falls into the fire and frequently into the water. <sup>16</sup> I have brought him to your disciples but they could not cure him." <sup>17</sup> In reply Jesus said: "What an unbelieving and perverse lot you are! How long must I remain with you? How long can I endure you? Bring him here to me!" <sup>18*</sup> Then Jesus reprimanded him, and the demon came out of him. That very moment the boy was cured.

<sup>19*</sup> The disciples approached Jesus at that point and asked him privately, "Why could we not expel it?" <sup>20*</sup> "Because you have so little trust," he told them. "I assure you, if you had faith the size of a mustard seed, you would be able to say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there,' and it would move. Nothing would be impossible for you. <sup>21</sup> [This kind does not leave but by prayer and fasting.]"

Second Prophecy of the Passion. <sup>22*</sup> When they met again in Galilee, Jesus said to them, "The Son of Man is going to be delivered into the hands of men <sup>23</sup> who will put him to death, and he will be raised up on the third day." At these words they were overwhelmed with grief.

Paying the Temple Tax. <sup>24*</sup> When they entered Capernaum, the collectors of the temple tax approached Peter and said, "Does your master not pay the temple tax?" <sup>25</sup> "Of course he does," Peter replied. Then Jesus on entering the house asked, without giving him time to speak: "What is your opinion, Simon? Do the kings of the world take tax or toll from their sons, or from foreigners?" <sup>26</sup> When he replied, "From foreigners," Jesus observed: "Then their sons are exempt. <sup>27</sup> But for fear of disedifying them go to the lake, throw in a line, and take out the first fish you catch. Open its mouth and you will discover there a coin worth twice the temple tax. Take it and give it to them for you and me."

CHAPTER 18

Against Ambition. <sup>1*</sup> Just then the disciples came up to Jesus with the question, "Who is of greatest importance in the kingdom of God?" <sup>2</sup> He called a little child over and stood him in their midst <sup>3*</sup> and said: "I assure you, unless you change and become like little children, you will not enter the kingdom of God. <sup>4*</sup> Whoever makes himself lowly, becoming like this child, is of greatest importance in that heavenly reign.

Avoiding Scandal. <sup>5</sup> "Whoever welcomes one such child for my sake welcomes me. <sup>6*</sup> On the other hand, it would be better for anyone who leads astray one of these little ones who believe in me, to be drowned by a millstone around his neck, in the depths of the sea. <sup>7</sup> What terrible things will come on the world through scandal! It is inevitable that scandal should occur. Nonetheless, woe to that man through whom scandal comes! <sup>8*</sup> If your hand or foot is your undoing, cut it off and throw it from you! Better to enter life maimed or crippled than be thrown with two hands or two feet into endless fire. <sup>9</sup> If your eye is your downfall, gouge it out and cast it from you! Better to enter life with one eye than be thrown with both into fiery Gehenna.

The Straying Sheep. <sup>10</sup> "See that you never despise one of these little ones. I assure you, their angels in heaven constantly behold my heavenly Father's face. *† <sup>12*</sup> What is your thought on this: A man owns a hundred sheep and one of them wanders away; will he not leave the ninety-nine out on the hills and go in search of the stray? <sup>13</sup> If he succeeds in finding it, believe me he is happier about this one than about the ninety-nine that did not wander away. <sup>14</sup> Just so, it is no part of your heavenly Father's plan that a single one of these little ones shall ever come to grief.

Fraternal Correction.† <sup>15*</sup> "If your brother should commit some wrong against you, go and point out his fault, but keep it between the two of you. If he listens to you, you have won your brother over. <sup>16*</sup> If he does not listen, summon another, so that every case

14-21: Mk 9, 14-29; Lk 9, 37-43.	15, Lk 18, 17.
18: 8, 29.	6: Mk 9, 42; Lk 17, 11.
19: 21, 21; Lk 17, 6.	8f: 5, 30; Mk 9, 43-47.
20: 1 Cor 13, 2.	11: Lk 19, 10.
22f: 16, 21.	12ff: Ez 34, 1ff; Lk 15, 3-7.
24: Ex 30, 15.	15: Lv 19, 17; Sir 19, 13; Gal 6, 1.
18, 1-5: Mk 9, 36f; Lk 9, 46ff.	16: Dt 19, 15; Jn 8, 17; 1 Trn 5, 19f.
3: 19, 14; 1 Cor 14, 20.
4: 23, 12; Mk 10, 17.

†

17, 14-20: See note on Mk 9, 14-29.

18, 11: Omitted here with many MSS.

18, 15-18: Note the transition from fraternal correction to the further action (17) of delivering the obstinate sinner to the authority of the church. Exclusion and readmission of such a one is a function of the power of binding and loosing which belongs to the Christian community. There is no concrete evidence as to how the communities of New Testament times exercised this power.

may stand on the word of two or three witnesses. <sup>17*</sup> If he ignores them, refer it to the church. If he ignores even the church, then treat him as you would a Gentile or a tax collector. <sup>18*</sup> I assure you, whatever you declare bound on earth shall be held bound in heaven, and whatever you declare loosed on earth shall be held loosed in heaven.

The Power of United Prayer. <sup>19*</sup> "Again I tell you, if two of you join your voices on earth to pray for anything whatever, it shall be granted you by my Father in heaven. <sup>20*</sup> Where two or three are gathered in my name, there am I in their midst."

The Merciless Official. <sup>21*</sup> Then Peter came up and asked him, "Lord, when my brother wrongs me, how often must I forgive him? Seven times?" <sup>22</sup> "No," Jesus replied, "not seven times; I say, seventy times seven times. <sup>23*</sup> That is why the reign of God may be said to be like a king who decided to settle accounts with his officials. <sup>24</sup> When he began his auditing, one was brought in who owed him a huge amount. <sup>25</sup> As he had no way of paying it, his master ordered him to be sold, along with his wife, his children, and all his property, in payment of the debt. <sup>26</sup> At that the official prostrated himself in homage and said, 'My lord, be patient with me and I will pay you back in full.' <sup>27</sup> Moved with pity, the master let the official go and wrote off the debt. <sup>28</sup> But when that same official went out he met a fellow servant who owed him a mere fraction of what he himself owed. He seized him and throttled him. 'Pay back what you owe,' he demanded. <sup>29</sup> His fellow servant dropped to his knees and began to plead with him, 'Just give me time and I will pay you back in full.' <sup>30</sup> But he would hear none of it. Instead, he had him put in jail until he paid back what he owed. <sup>31</sup> When his fellow servants saw what had happened they were badly shaken, and went to their master to report the whole incident. <sup>32</sup> His master sent for him and said, 'You worthless wretch! I canceled your entire debt when you pleaded with me. <sup>33*</sup> Should you not have dealt mercifully with your fellow servant, as I dealt with you?' <sup>34</sup> Then in anger the master handed him over to the torturers until he paid back all that he owed. <sup>35*</sup> My heavenly Father will treat you in exactly the same way unless each of you forgives his brother from his heart."

CHAPTER 19

<sup>14</sup> When Jesus had finished this discourse, he left Galilee and came to the district of Judea across the Jordan.

<sup>2</sup> Great crowds followed him and he cured them there.

VI: FIRST STEPS IN ESTABLISHING GOD'S REIGN

The Question of Divorce. <sup>3</sup> Some Pharisees came up to him and said, to test him, "May a man divorce his wife for any reason whatever?" <sup>4*</sup> He replied, "Have you not read that at the beginning the Creator made them male and female <sup>5*</sup> and declared, 'For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and cling to his wife, and the two shall become as one?' <sup>6</sup> Thus they are no longer two but one flesh. Therefore, let no man separate what God has joined." <sup>7*</sup> They said to him, "Then why did Moses command divorce and the promulgation of a divorce decree?" <sup>8</sup> "Because of your stubbornness Moses let you divorce your wives," he replied; "but at the beginning it was not that way. <sup>9**†</sup> I now say to you, whoever divorces his wife (lewd conduct is a separate case) and marries another commits adultery, and the man who marries a divorced woman commits adultery."

<sup>10</sup> His disciples said to him, "If that is the case between man and wife, it is bet-

17: 1 Cor 5, 9-13.	19, 1-9: Mk 10, 1-12.
18: Jn 20, 23.	4: Gn 1, 27.
19: 7, 7f; Jn 15, 7.	5: Gn 2, 24; 1 Cor
20: 1 Cor 5, 4.	6, 16; 7, 10; Eph
21: 6, 12; Lk 17, 4.	5, 31.
23: 25, 19; Sir 28, 4.	7: Dt 24, 1-4.
33: 1 Jn 4, 11.	9: 5, 32; Lk 16, 18;
35: 6, 12; Jas 2, 13.	1 Cor 7, 11.

†

<sup>19, 3-8</sup> The Pharisees wish to force Jesus to take sides on the question of divorce for the purpose of remarriage. (The stringent position at the time was that of the school of Shammai, while leniency was advocated by the school of Hillel.) In reply, Jesus proclaims the indissolubility of marriage, citing Gn 1, 27 and 2, 24. He declares this scriptural doctrine to be God's ultimate intent for marriage in human society, explaining that the divorce granted in the Old Testament was due to the stubbornness of the Jews, i. e., to their cultural mores, which God in his wisdom chose to leave unlightened. Let no man separate what God has joined: not by mere legislation, for neither civil law, nor social custom, nor mutual consent forges the unbreakable bond, but rather the divine involvement in the union of marriage. The citation of Gn 2, 24 indicates that in the divine "joining together," God ratifies the mutual love of persons; their sexual union serves as a pledge of exclusive fidelity to each other; cf Mk 10, 2-12, Lk 16, 18; 1 Cor 7, 10f. For reflection on the theological implications of the Lord's new teaching, cf Eph 5, 21-33.

<sup>19, 9</sup> Lewd conduct is a separate case: literally "except for pornea," i. e., immorality, fornication, even incest. A growing number of scholars consider this to refer to Christians who, prior to their conversion, had married within the prohibited degree of blood relationship as stated in Lv 18, 6-18. The same position seems to be taken in Acts 15, 20. As it stands, however, this Matthean clause of exception and that of 5, 32 cannot easily be reconciled with the absolute prohibition of divorce repeated in Mk 10, 11f and Lk 16, 18. Whatever may have been the situation prevailing among the Christians for whom Matthew wrote, the more stringent understanding of Jesus' words prevailed throughout the church.

CHAPTER 20

ter not to marry."<sup>11</sup> He said, "Not everyone can accept this teaching, only those to whom it is given to do so."<sup>12</sup> Some men are incapable of sexual activity from birth; some have been deliberately made so; and some there are who have freely renounced sex for the sake of God's reign. Let him accept this teaching who can."

Jesus Blesses the Children.†<sup>13*</sup> At one point, children were brought to him so that he could place his hands on them in prayer. The disciples began to scold them,<sup>14*</sup> but Jesus said, "Let the children come to me. Do not hinder them. The kingdom of God belongs to such as these."<sup>15</sup> And he laid his hands on their heads before he left that place.

The Danger of Riches. 16*† Another time a man came up to him and said, "Teacher, what good must I do to possess everlasting life?"<sup>17*</sup> He answered, "Why do you question me about what is good? There is One who is good. If you wish to enter into life, keep the commandments."<sup>18*</sup> "Which ones?" he asked. Jesus replied, "'You shall not kill'; 'You shall not commit adultery'; 'You shall not steal'; 'You shall not bear false witness';<sup>19*</sup> 'Honor your father and your mother'; and 'Love your neighbor as yourself.'"<sup>20</sup> The young man said to him, "I have kept all these; what do I need to do further?"<sup>21*</sup>† Jesus told him, "If you seek perfection, go, sell your possessions, and give to the poor. You will then have treasure in heaven. Afterward, come back and follow me."<sup>22</sup> Hearing these words, the young man went away sad, for his possessions were many.

<sup>23*</sup>† Jesus said to his disciples: "I assure you, only with difficulty will a rich man enter into the kingdom of God."<sup>24*</sup> I repeat what I said: it is easier for a camel to pass through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God."<sup>25</sup> When the disciples heard this they were completely overwhelmed, and exclaimed, "Then who can be saved?"

<sup>26</sup> Jesus looked at them and said, "For man it is impossible; but for God all things are possible."<sup>27*</sup>† Then it was Peter's turn to say to him: "Here we have put everything aside to follow you. What can we expect from it?"<sup>28*</sup> Jesus said to them: "I give you my solemn word, in the new age when the Son of Man takes his seat upon a throne befitting his glory, you who have followed me shall likewise take your places on twelve thrones to judge the twelve tribes of Israel."<sup>29</sup> Moreover, everyone who has given up home, brothers or sisters, father or mother, wife or children or property for my sake will receive many times as much and inherit everlasting life.

<sup>30*</sup> Many who are first shall come last, and the last shall come first.

The Laborers in the Vineyard.†

<sup>1</sup> "The reign of God is like the case of the owner of an estate who went out at dawn to hire workmen for his vineyard.<sup>2</sup> After reaching an agreement with them for the usual daily wage, he sent them out to his vineyard.<sup>3</sup> He came out about midmorning and saw other men standing around the marketplace without work,<sup>4</sup> so he said to them, 'You too go along to my vineyard and I will pay you whatever is fair.'<sup>5</sup> At that they went away. He came out again around noon and midafternoon and did the same.<sup>6</sup> Finally, going out in late afternoon he found still others standing around. To these he said, 'Why have you been standing here idle all day?'<sup>7</sup> 'No one has hired us,' they told him. He said, 'You go to the vineyard too.'<sup>8</sup> When evening came the owner of the vineyard said to his foreman, 'Call the workmen and give them their pay, but begin with the last group and end with the first.'<sup>9</sup> When those hired late in the afternoon came up they received a full day's pay,<sup>10</sup> and when the first group appeared they supposed they would get more;<sup>11</sup> yet they received the same daily wage. Thereupon they complained to the owner,<sup>12</sup> 'This last group did only an hour's work, but you have put them on the same

13ff: Mk 10, 13-16.	24: 7, 14.
14: 18, 3.	27-30: Mk 10, 28-31,
16-29: Mk 10, 17-30;	Lk 18, 28ff.
Lk 18, 18-30.	27: 4, 20, 22.
17-20: Lk 10, 25-28.	28: Dn 7, 22; Rv 3,
18: Ex 20, 12-16; Dt	21; 20, 4.
5, 16-20.	30: 19, 30; 20, 16;
19: Jn 13, 34.	Mk 10, 31; Lk
21: 6, 20; 13, 44ff.	13, 30.
23-26: Mk 10, 23-27.

†

19, 12: This verse is proper to Matthew. While there is no consensus on its meaning, some exegetes understand it to refer to voluntary and perpetual celibacy for members of the Christian community who wish to dedicate themselves completely to the kingdom of God; cf Mt 13, 44ff; 19, 29.

19, 13ff: Children were the symbol Jesus used for the anawim, the poor in spirit or the lowly, within the Christian community; see note on 5, 3-12. Like the apostles, these have surrendered personal possessions (16-30) for total dedication to his ministry.

19, 16: See note on Mk 10, 17f.

19, 21: The young man is invited to join the anawim.

19, 23-26: Jesus' contemporaries consider wealth a sign of divine favor. When he denies this and shows that wealth can even obstruct the spiritual perception of his message, the disciples conclude that virtually no one can be saved. Jesus replies that the rich as well as the poor are dependent on God for their salvation.

19, 27-30: Voluntary renunciation of home, property and relatives for the sake of Christ will evoke the divine generosity in this life and in the next.

20, 1-34: A development of the thought of 19, 30: God requires service of his followers while reserving to himself the modes and occasions of his generosity (1-16). He makes the same requirement of Jesus himself (17ff) and of his apostles (20-28), without indicating what will be the nature of God's generous return. The cure of the blind man (29-34) shows that Jesus is still the servant of men as he proceeds to his death in Jerusalem.

basis as us who have worked a full day in the scorching heat.' <sup>13</sup> 'My friend,' he said to one in reply, 'I do you no injustice. You agreed on the usual wage, did you not?' <sup>14</sup> Take your pay and go home. I intend to give this man who was hired last the same pay as you. <sup>15</sup> I am free to do as I please with my money, am I not? Or are you envious because I am generous?' <sup>16</sup> Thus the last shall be first and the first shall be last."

Third Prophecy: Passion and Resurrection. <sup>17</sup> As Jesus was starting to go up to Jerusalem, he took the Twelve aside on the road and said to them: <sup>18</sup> "We are going up to Jerusalem now. There the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and scribes, who will condemn him to death. <sup>19</sup> They will turn him over to the Gentiles, to be made sport of and flogged and crucified. But on the third day he will be raised up."

The Mother of James and John. <sup>20</sup> The mother of Zebedee's sons came up to him accompanied by her sons, to do him homage and ask of him a favor. <sup>21</sup> "What is it you want?" he said. She answered, "Promise me that these sons of mine will sit, one at your right hand and the other at your left, in your kingdom." <sup>22</sup> In reply Jesus said, "You do not know what you are asking. Can you drink of the cup I am to drink of?" "We can," they said. <sup>23</sup> He told them, "From the cup I drink of, you shall drink. But sitting at my right hand or my left is not mine to give. That is for those to whom it has been reserved by my Father." <sup>24</sup> The other ten, on hearing this, became indignant at the two brothers. <sup>25</sup> Jesus then called them together and said: "You know how those who exercise authority among the Gentiles lord it over them; their great ones make their importance felt. <sup>26</sup> It cannot be like that with you. Anyone among you who aspires to greatness must serve the rest, <sup>27</sup> and whoever wants to rank first among you must serve the needs of all. <sup>28</sup> Such is the case with the Son of Man who has come, not to be served by others, but to serve, to give his own life as a ransom for the many."

The Two Blind Men at Jericho. <sup>29</sup> As they were leaving Jericho a large crowd followed him, <sup>30</sup> and suddenly two blind men sitting by the roadside, who heard that Jesus was passing by, began to shout, "Lord, Son of David, have pity on us!" <sup>31</sup> The crowd began to scold them in an effort to reduce them to silence, but they only shouted the louder, "Lord, Son of David, have pity on us!" <sup>32</sup> Jesus then stopped and called out to them, "What do you want me to do for you?" <sup>33</sup> "Lord," they told him, "open our eyes!" <sup>34</sup> Moved with compassion, Jesus touched their eyes, and immediately they could see; and they became his followers.

CHAPTER 21

Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem. <sup>1</sup> As they drew near Jerusalem, entering Bethphage on the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent off two disciples <sup>2</sup> with the instructions: "Go into the village straight ahead of you and you will immediately find an ass tethered and her colt with her. Untie them and lead them back to me. <sup>3</sup> If anyone says a word to you, say, 'The Master needs them.' Then he will let them go at once." <sup>4</sup> This came about to fulfill what was said through the prophet:

<sup>5</sup>† "Tell the daughter of Zion,
Your king comes to you without display astride an ass, astride a colt, the foal of a beast of burden."

<sup>6</sup> So the disciples went off and did what Jesus had ordered; <sup>7</sup> they brought the ass and the colt and laid their cloaks on them, and he mounted. <sup>8</sup> The huge crowd spread their cloaks on the road, while some began to cut branches from the trees and lay them along his path. <sup>9</sup>† The groups preceding him as well as those following kept crying out:

"Hosanna to the Son of David!
Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!
Hosanna in the highest!"

<sup>10</sup> As he entered Jerusalem the whole city was stirred to its depths, demanding, "Who is this?" <sup>11</sup> And the crowd kept answering, "This is the prophet Jesus from Nazareth in Galilee."

Cleaning out the Temple. <sup>12</sup>* Jesus

20, 16; 19, 30.	30: 9, 27.
17ff: 16, 21; 17, 22f;	21, 1-9: Mk 11, 1-9; Lk
Mk 10, 32ff; Lk	19, 28-38; Jn
18, 31ff.	12, 12-15.
19: Acts 10, 40.	5: Is 62, 11; Zec 9,
20-28: Mk 10, 35-45.	9.
24-27: Lk 22, 25ff.	8: 2 Kgs 9, 13.
27: Mk 9, 35; Jn 13,	9: Ps 118, 25f.
14.	12-16: Mk 11, 15-18;
28: 26, 28; Rom 5,	Lk 19, 45ff; Jn 2,
6: 1 Tm 2, 6.	14ff.
29-34: Mk 10, 46-52;	12: Neh 13, 8.
Lk 18, 35-43.

†

21, 1-11: See note on Mk 11, 1-11.

21, 5: A free citation of Is 62, 11 and Zec 9, 9 indicating that Jesus entered Jerusalem as king of peace, riding, not the horse, symbol of the conqueror (Jer 22, 4), but the ass, the work beast of the poor.

21, 9: A citation of Ps 118, 25f used for the purpose of acknowledging Jesus to be the Messiah and son of David. See note on Mk 11, 1-11. God save (the Hebrew Hōsi'ah-nā literally "Do save!"): meant here as an acclamation or shout of praise honoring Jesus as the Savior.

21, 12-22: See notes on Mk 11, 15-19 and on Mk 11, 12ff, in that order.

entered the temple precincts and drove out all those engaged there in buying and selling. He overturned the money-changers' tables and the stalls of the dove-sellers,<sup>13*</sup> saying to them: "Scripture has it, but you are turning it into a den of thieves."<sup>14</sup> The blind and the lame came to him inside the temple area and he cured them.<sup>15</sup> The chief priests and the scribes became indignant when they observed the wonders he worked, and how the children were shouting out in the temple precincts, "Hosanna to the Son of David!"<sup>16*</sup> "Do you hear what they are saying?" they asked him. Jesus said to them, "Of course I do! Did you never read this:

'My house shall be called a house of prayer,'

'From the speech of infants and children
you have framed a hymn of praise?'"

<sup>17</sup> With that he left them and went out of the city to Bethany, where he spent the night.

Jesus Curses a Fig Tree. <sup>18*</sup> At dawn, as Jesus was returning to the city, he felt hungry.<sup>19*</sup> Seeing a fig tree by the roadside he went over to it, but found nothing there except leaves. He said to it, "Never again shall you produce fruit!"; and it withered up instantly.<sup>20*</sup> The disciples were dumbfounded when they saw this. They asked, "Why did the fig tree wither up so quickly?"<sup>21*</sup> Jesus said: "Believe me, if you trust and do not falter, not only will you do what I did to the fig tree, but if you say to this mountain, 'Be lifted up and thrown into the sea,' even that will happen.<sup>22*</sup> You will receive all that you pray for, provided you have faith."

The Authority of Jesus. <sup>23*</sup> After Jesus had entered the temple precincts, and while he was teaching, the chief priests and elders of the people came up to him and said: "On what authority are you doing these things? Who has given you this power?"<sup>24</sup> Jesus answered: "I too will ask a question. If you answer it for me, then I will tell you on what authority I do the things I do.<sup>25*</sup> What was the origin of John's baptism? Was it divine or merely human?" They thought to themselves, "If we say 'divine,' he will ask us, 'Then why did you not put faith in it?';<sup>26*</sup> while if we say, 'merely human,' we shall have reason to fear the people, who all regard John as a prophet."<sup>27</sup> So their answer to Jesus was, "We do not know." He said in turn, "Then neither will I tell you on what authority I do the things I do.

Parable of the Two Sons. <sup>28</sup> "What do you think of this case? There was a man who had two sons. He approached the elder and said, 'Son, go out and work in the vineyard today.'<sup>29</sup> The son replied, 'I am on my way, sir'; but he never went.<sup>30</sup> Then the man came to his second son and said the same thing. This son said in reply, 'No, I will not'; but afterward he regretted it and went.<sup>31*</sup> Which of the two did what the father wanted?" They said, "The second." Jesus said to them, "I assure you that tax collectors and prostitutes are entering the kingdom of God before you.<sup>32</sup> When John came preaching a way of holiness, you put no faith in him; but the tax collectors and the prostitutes did believe in him. Yet even when you saw that, you did not repent and believe in him.

Parable of the Tenants. <sup>33*</sup> "Listen to another parable. There was a property owner who planted a vineyard, put a hedge around it, dug out a vat, and erected a tower. Then he leased it out to tenant farmers and went on a journey.<sup>34</sup> When vintage time arrived he dispatched his slaves to the tenants to obtain his share of the grapes.<sup>35</sup> The tenants responded by seizing the slaves. They beat one, killed another, and stoned a third.<sup>36</sup> A second time he dispatched even more slaves than before, but they treated them the same way.<sup>37</sup> Finally he sent his son to them, thinking, 'They will respect my son.'<sup>38*</sup> When they saw the son, the tenants said to one another, 'Here is the one who will inherit everything. Let us kill him and then we shall have his inheritance!'<sup>39*</sup> With that they seized him, dragged him outside the vineyard, and killed him.<sup>40</sup> What do you suppose the owner of the vineyard will do to those tenants when he comes?"<sup>41</sup> They replied, "He will bring that wicked crowd to a bad end and lease his vineyard out to others who will see to it that he has grapes at vintage time."<sup>42*</sup> Jesus said to them, "Did you never read in the Scriptures,

'The stone which the builders rejected has become the keystone of the structure.
It was the Lord who did this and we find it marvelous to behold?'"

13: Is 56, 7; Jer 7, 11.
16: Ps 8, 2; Wis 10, 21.
18-22: Mk 11, 12ff-20, 24.
19: Jer 8, 13; Lk 13, 6-9.
20: Hos 9, 16.
21: 17, 20; Lk 17, 6.
22: 7, 7; 1 Jn 3, 22.
23-27: Mk 11, 27-33; Lk 20, 1-8.
23: 28, 18; Jn 2, 18.
25: Jn 3, 27.
26: 14, 5; 21, 32.
31: Lk 7, 29f.
33-46: Is 5, 1-7; Mk 12, 1-12; Lk 20, 9-19.
38: 26, 4; 27, 1; Jn 3, 16; 11, 53.
39: Heb 13, 12.
42: Dn 2, 45; Ps 118, 22; Is 28, 16; Acts 4, 11; Rom 9, 33; 1 Pt 2, 4-7.

43* For this reason, I tell you, the kingdom of God will be taken away from you and given to a nation that will yield a rich harvest. 44 [The man who falls upon that stone will be smashed to bits; and he on whom it falls will be crushed.]”

45 When the chief priests and the Pharisees heard these parables, they realized he was speaking about them. 46 Although they sought to arrest him, they had reason to fear the crowds who regarded him as a prophet.

CHAPTER 22

The Wedding Banquet. 1 Jesus began to address them, once more using parables. 2* “The reign of God may be likened to a king who gave a wedding banquet for his son. 3 He dispatched his servants to summon the invited guests to the wedding, but they refused to come. 4 A second time he sent other servants, saying: ‘Tell those who were invited, See, I have my dinner prepared! My bullocks and corn-fed cattle are killed; everything is ready. Come to the feast.’ 5 Some ignored the invitation and went their way, one to his farm, another to his business. 6* The rest laid hold of his servants, insulted them, and killed them. 7 At this the king grew furious and sent his army to destroy those murderers and burn their city. 8 Then he said to his servants: ‘The banquet is ready, but those who were invited were unfit to come. 9 That is why you must go out into the byroads and invite to the wedding anyone you come upon.’ 10 The servants then went out into the byroads and rounded up everyone they met, bad as well as good. This filled the wedding hall with banqueters.

11 “When the king came in to meet the guests, however, he caught sight of a man not properly dressed for a wedding feast. 12 ‘My friend,’ he said, ‘how is it you came in here not properly dressed?’ The man had nothing to say. 13* The king then said to the attendants, ‘Bind him hand and foot and throw him out into the night to wail and grind his teeth.’ 14† The invited are many, the elect are few.”

Paying Tax to the Emperor. 15* Then the Pharisees went off and began to plot how they might trap Jesus in speech. 16 They sent their disciples to him, accompanied by Herodian sympathizers, who said: “Teacher, we know you are a truthful man and teach God’s way sincerely. You court no one’s favor and do not act out of human respect. 17 Give us your opinion, then, in this case. Is it lawful to pay tax to the emperor or not?” 18 Jesus recognized their bad faith and said to them, “Why are you trying to trip me up, you hypocrites? 19 Show me the coin used for the tax.” When they handed him a small Roman coin, 20 he asked them, “Whose head is this, and whose inscription?” 21* “Caesar’s,” they replied. At that he said to them, “Then give to Caesar what is Caesar’s, but give to God what is God’s.” 22 Taken aback by this reply, they went off and left him.

The Sadducees and the Resurrection. 23* That same day some Sadducees, who hold there is no resurrection, came to him with a question: 24* “Teacher, Moses declared, ‘If a man dies without children, his brother must take the wife and produce offspring for his brother.’ 25 Once there were seven brothers. The eldest died after marrying, and since he had no children, left his wife to his brother. 26 The same thing happened to the second, the third, and so on, down to the seventh. 27 Last of all the woman died too. 28 At the resurrection, whose wife will she be, since all seven of them married her?” 29 Jesus replied: “You are badly misled because you fail to understand the Scriptures and the power of God. 30 When people rise from the dead, they neither marry nor are given in marriage but live like angels in heaven. 31 As to the fact that the dead are raised, have you not read what God said to you,

32* ‘I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob?’

He is the God of the living, not of the dead.” 33 The crowds who listened were spellbound by his teaching.

The Great Commandment. 34* When the Pharisees heard that he had silenced the Sadducees, they assembled in a body; 35 and one of them, a lawyer, in an attempt to trip him up, asked him, 36* “Teacher, which commandment of the law is the greatest?” 37* Jesus said to him:

“You shall love the Lord your God with your whole heart, with your whole soul, and with all your mind.”

43: Rom 11, 11.	Lk 20, 27-38;
22, 2: Prv 9, 1-6; Rv	Acts 23, 8.
19, 9.	23: Jn 11, 25.
2-9: Lk 14, 16-24.	24: Gn 38, 8; Dt 25,
6: 21, 35.	5.
13: 8, 12; 25, 30.	32: Ex 3, 6.
15-22: Mk 12, 13-17;	34-40: Mk 12, 28-34;
Lk 20, 20-26.	Lk 10, 25-28.
15: Lk 11, 54.	34: Jn 13, 34f.
21: Rom 13, 7.	36: 1 Jn 4, 21.
23-33: Mk 12, 18-27;	37: Dt 6, 5.

† 22, 14: The failure of Israel to accept Jesus’ prophetic message deserved the punishment of deprivation—a warning of divine judgment against Christians who fail to live according to their faith.

<sup>38</sup> This is the greatest and first commandment. <sup>39</sup>* The second is like it;

'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.'

<sup>40</sup>* On these two commandments the whole law is based, and the prophets as well."

The Son of David. <sup>41</sup>* In turn Jesus put a question to the assembled Pharisees, <sup>42</sup>* "What is your opinion about the Messiah? Whose son is he?" "David's," they answered. <sup>43</sup> He said to them, "Then how is it that David under the Spirit's influence calls him 'lord,' as he does:

<sup>44</sup>* "The Lord said to my lord, Sit at my right hand, until I humble your enemies beneath your feet?"

<sup>45</sup> If David calls him 'lord,' how can he be his son?" <sup>46</sup>* No one could give him an answer; therefore no one dared, from that day on, to ask him any questions.

CHAPTER 23

Hypocrisy of the Scribes and Pharisees. <sup>1</sup>*† Then Jesus told the crowds and his disciples: <sup>2</sup>* "The scribes and the Pharisees have succeeded Moses as teachers; <sup>3</sup>* therefore, do everything and observe everything they tell you. But do not follow their example. <sup>4</sup>* Their words are bold but their deeds are few. They bind up heavy loads, hard to carry, to lay on other men's shoulders, while they themselves will not lift a finger to budge them. <sup>5</sup>* All their works are performed to be seen. They widen their phylacteries and wear huge tassels. <sup>6</sup>* They are fond of places of honor at banquets and the front seats in synagogues, <sup>7</sup>* of marks of respect in public and of being called 'Rabbi.' <sup>8</sup>† As to you, avoid the title 'Rabbi.' One among you is your teacher, the rest are learners. <sup>9</sup> Do not call anyone on earth your father. Only one is your father, the One in heaven. <sup>10</sup> Avoid being called teachers. Only one is your teacher, the Messiah. <sup>11</sup>* The greatest among you will be the one who serves the rest. <sup>12</sup>* Whoever exalts himself shall be humbled, but whoever humbles himself shall be exalted.

<sup>13</sup>* "Woe to you scribes and Pharisees, you frauds! You shut the doors of the kingdom of God in men's faces, neither entering yourselves nor admitting those who are trying to enter.† <sup>15</sup> Woe to you scribes and Pharisees, you frauds! You travel over sea and land to make a single convert, but once he is converted you make a devil of him twice as wicked as yourselves. <sup>16</sup>* It is an evil day for you, blind guides! You declare, 'If a man swears by the temple it means nothing, but if he swears by the gold of the temple he is obligated.' <sup>17</sup> Blind fools! Which is more important, the gold or the temple which makes it sacred? <sup>18</sup> Again you declare, 'If a man swears by the altar it means nothing, but if he swears by the gift on the altar he is obligated.' <sup>19</sup>* How blind you are! Which is more important, the offering or the altar which makes the offering sacred? <sup>20</sup>* The man who swears by the altar is swearing by it and by everything on it. <sup>21</sup> The man who swears by the temple is swearing by it and by him who dwells there. <sup>22</sup> The man who swears by heaven is swearing by God's throne and by him who is seated on that throne. <sup>23</sup>* Woe to you scribes and Pharisees, you frauds! You pay tithes on mint and herbs and seeds while neglecting the weightier matters of the law, justice and mercy and good faith. It is these you should have practiced, without neglecting the others.

<sup>24</sup>* "Blind guides! You strain out the gnat and swallow the camel! <sup>25</sup>* Woe to you scribes and Pharisees, you frauds! You cleanse the outside of cup and dish, and leave the inside filled with loot and lust! <sup>26</sup> Blind Pharisee! First cleanse the inside of the cup so that its outside may be clean. <sup>27</sup>* Woe to you scribes and Pharisees, you frauds! You are like whitewashed tombs, beautiful to look at on the outside but inside full of filth and dead men's bones. <sup>28</sup>* Thus you present to view a holy exterior while hypocrisy and evil fill you within. <sup>29</sup> Woe to you scribes and Pharisees, you frauds! You erect tombs for the prophets and deco-

39: Lv 19, 18; Jas 2, 8	7: Lk 20, 46.
40: Rom 13, 8ff; Gal 5, 14	11: 20, 26.
41-46: Mk 12, 35ff.	12: 18, 4; Lk 1, 52f; 14, 11; 18, 14
42: 9, 27.	13: Jer 8, 8.
44: Ps 110, 1; Acts 2, 35; Heb 1, 13	16: 15, 14; Jn 9, 38-41.
46: Lk 20, 40.	19: 15, 14.
23, 1: Rom 2, 22f.	20: 5, 33-37; Sir 23, 9.
3: Rom 2, 23f.	23: Dt 14, 22; Lk 11, 42.
4: Lk 11, 46.	25: Mk 7, 4f; Lk 11 39f; Ti 1, 15
5: 6, 1-6; Ex 13, 9; Nm 15, 38; Dt 6, 8.	27: Acts 23, 3.
6: Mk 12, 38f; Lk 11, 43.	28: Lk 16, 15; 18, 9.

† 23, 1-36: These strong criticisms of the scribes and Pharisees are found also in Mk 12, 38ff. The collection of them in Matthew is probably explained by a hostility that had developed between Judaism and Christianity. See note on Acts 8, 3. It may also be that some members of the Judeo-Christian communities still adhered to certain ideas and practices of the Pharisees which are here reprobated.

23, 8ff: Typical hyperbolic speech of the time. It does not reject authority in principle, but authoritarianism; not the use of titles, but the failure to acknowledge that authority exists to serve God, his anointed One, and one's neighbor rate the monuments of the saints. <sup>30*</sup> You say, 'Had we lived in our forefathers' time we would not have joined them in shedding the prophets' blood.' <sup>31*</sup> Thus you show that you are the sons of the prophets' murderers. <sup>32</sup> Now it is your turn: fill up the vessel measured out by your forefathers. <sup>33*</sup> Vipers' nest! Brood of serpents! How can you escape condemnation to Gehenna? <sup>34*</sup> For this reason I shall send you prophets and wise men and scribes. Some you will kill and crucify, others you will flog in your synagogues and hunt down from city to city; <sup>35</sup> until retribution overtakes you for all the blood of the just ones shed on earth, from the blood of holy Abel to the blood of Zechariah son of Barachiah, whom you murdered between the temple building and the altar. <sup>36</sup> All this, I assure you, will be the fate of the present generation. <sup>37*</sup> O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, murderess of prophets and stoner of those who were sent to you! How often have I yearned to gather your children, as a mother bird gathers her young under her wings, but you refused me. <sup>38*</sup> Recall the saying: 'You will find your temple deserted.' <sup>39</sup> I tell you, you will not see me from this time on until you declare, 'Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!'"

23, 14: Omitted here with many MSS.

CHAPTER 24

Beginning of Calamities.† <sup>1*</sup> Jesus left the temple precincts then, and his disciples came up and pointed out to him the buildings of the temple area. <sup>2*</sup> His comment was: "Do you see all these buildings? I assure you, not one stone will be left on another—it will all be torn down." <sup>3</sup> While he was seated on the Mount of Olives, his disciples came up to him privately and said: "Tell us, when will all this occur? What will be the sign of your coming and the end of the world?" <sup>4*</sup> In reply Jesus said to them: "Be on guard! Let no one mislead you. <sup>5</sup> Many will come attempting to impersonate me. 'I am the Messiah!' they will claim, and they will deceive many. <sup>6*</sup> You will hear of wars and rumors of wars. Do not be alarmed. Such things are bound to happen, but that is not yet the end. <sup>7</sup> Nation will rise against nation, one kingdom against another. There will be famine and pestilence and earthquakes in many places. <sup>8</sup> These are the early stages of the birth pangs. <sup>9*</sup> They will hand you over to torture and kill you. <sup>10*</sup> Indeed, you will be hated by all nations on my account. Many will falter then, betraying and hating one another. <sup>11</sup> False prophets will rise in great numbers to mislead many. <sup>12</sup> Because of the increase of evil, the love of most will grow cold. <sup>13*</sup> The man who holds out to the end, however, is the one who will see salvation. <sup>14*</sup> This good news of the kingdom will be proclaimed throughout the world as a witness to all the nations. Only after that will the end come.

The Final Test. <sup>15*</sup> "When you see the abominable and destructive thing which the prophet Daniel foretold standing on holy ground (let the reader take note!), <sup>16*</sup> those in Judea must flee to the mountains. <sup>17*</sup> If a man is on the roof terrace, he must not come down to get anything out of his house. <sup>18</sup> If a man is in the field, he must not turn back to pick up his cloak. <sup>19</sup> It will be hard on pregnant or nursing mothers in those days. <sup>20</sup> Keep praying that you will not have to flee in winter or on a sabbath, <sup>21*</sup> for those days will be more filled with anguish than any from the beginning of the world until now or in all ages to come. <sup>22</sup> Indeed, if the period had not been shortened, not a human being would be saved. For the sake of the chosen, however, the days will be shortened. <sup>23*</sup> If anyone tells you at that time, 'Look, the Messiah is here,' or 'He is there,' do not believe it. <sup>24*</sup> False messiahs and false prophets will appear, performing signs and wonders so great as to mislead even the chosen if that were possible. <sup>25</sup> Remember, I have told you all about it beforehand; <sup>26</sup> so if they tell you, 'Look, he is in the desert,' do not go out there; or 'He is in the innermost rooms,' do not believe it. <sup>27</sup> As the lightning from the east flashes to the west, so will the coming of the Son of Man be. <sup>28*</sup> Where the carcass lies, there the vultures gather.

Coming of the Son of Man. <sup>29*</sup> "Immediately after the stress of that period, 'the sun will be darkened, the moon will not shed her light, the stars will fall from the sky, and the hosts of heaven will be shaken loose.' <sup>30*</sup> Then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and 'all the clans of earth will strike their breasts' as they see 'the Son of Man

30: Lk 11, 47.

31: Acts 7, 52.

33: 3, 7; 12, 34.

34f: 5, 12; 2 Chr 24,

21f; 36, 16; Lk

11, 49ff; Rv 18,

24.

37ff: Lk 13, 34f; 19,

41-44.

37: 21, 35; 22, 6.

38: 26, 5f.

24, 1-51: Mk 13, 1-37; Lk

21, 5-36.

2: Lk 19, 44.

4f: Lk 21, 8.

6: Jer 51, 46.

9: 10, 17.

10: 10, 21.

13: 10, 22.

14: Rom 10, 18.

15: Dn 11, 31; 12,

11; Mk 13, 14.

16: Lk 21, 20.

17: Lk 17, 31.

21: Dn 12, 1.

23: Lk 17, 23; 2

Thes 2, 3ff.

24: 2 Pt 2, 1ff; 1 Jn

4, 1.

28: Lk 17, 37.

29: Is 13, 10; Ez 32,

7; Am 8, 9; Lk

21, 25.

30: Dn 7, 13; 1 Thes

4, 16; Rv 1, 7.

†

24, 1-51: See note on Mk 13, 1-37.

coming on the clouds of heaven' with power and great glory. <sup>31*</sup> He will dispatch his angels 'with a mighty trumpet blast, and they will assemble his chosen from the four winds, from one end of the heavens to the other.' <sup>32*</sup> From the fig tree learn a lesson. When its branch grows tender and sprouts leaves, you realize that summer is near. <sup>33</sup> Likewise, when you see all these things happening, you will know that he is near, standing at your door. <sup>34</sup> I assure you, the present generation will not pass away until all this takes place. <sup>35*</sup> The heavens and the earth will pass away but my words will not pass.

The Need for Watchfulness. <sup>36*</sup> "As for the exact day or hour, no one knows it, neither the angels in heaven nor the Son, but the Father only. <sup>37</sup> The coming of the Son of Man will repeat what happened in Noah's time. <sup>38</sup> In the days before the flood people were eating and drinking, marrying and being married, right up to the day Noah entered the ark. <sup>39*</sup> They were totally unconcerned until the flood came and destroyed them. So will it be at the coming of the Son of Man. <sup>40</sup> Two men will be out in the field; one will be taken and one will be left. <sup>41</sup> Two women will be grinding meal; one will be taken and one will be left. <sup>42*</sup> Stay awake, therefore! You cannot know the day your Lord is coming.

<sup>43*</sup> "Be sure of this: if the owner of the house knew when the thief was coming he would keep a watchful eye and not allow his house to be broken into. <sup>44</sup> You must be prepared in the same way. The Son of Man is coming at the time you least expect. <sup>45</sup> Who is the faithful, far-sighted servant whom the master has put in charge of his household to dispense food at need? <sup>46</sup> Happy that servant whom his master discovers at work on his return! <sup>47</sup> I assure you, he will put him in charge of all his property. <sup>48</sup> But if the servant is worthless and tells himself, 'My master is a long time in coming,' <sup>49</sup> and begins to beat his fellow servants, to eat and drink with drunkards, <sup>50</sup> that man's master will return when he is not ready and least expects him. <sup>51*</sup> He will punish him severely and settle with him as is done with hypocrites. There will be wailing then and grinding of teeth.

CHAPTER 25

Parable of the Ten Virgins. † "The reign of God can be likened to ten bridesmaids who took their torches and went out to welcome the groom. <sup>2</sup> Five of them were foolish, while the other five were sensible. <sup>3</sup> The foolish ones, in taking their torches, brought no oil along, <sup>4</sup> but the sensible ones took flasks of oil as well as their torches. <sup>5</sup> The groom delayed his coming, so they all began to nod, then to fall asleep. <sup>6</sup> At midnight someone shouted, 'The groom is here! Come out and greet him!' <sup>7</sup> At the outcry all the virgins woke up and got their torches ready. <sup>8</sup> The foolish ones said to the sensible, 'Give us some of your oil. Our torches are going out.' <sup>9</sup> But the sensible ones replied, 'No, there may not be enough for you and us. You had better go to the dealers and buy yourselves some.' <sup>10</sup> While they went off to buy it the groom arrived, and the ones who were ready went in to the wedding with him. Then the door was barred. <sup>11*</sup> Later the other bridesmaids came back. 'Master, master!' they cried. 'Open the door for us.' <sup>12</sup> But he answered, 'I tell you, I do not know you.' <sup>13*</sup> The moral is: keep your eyes open, for you know not the day or the hour.

Parable of the Silver Pieces. <sup>14*</sup> "The case of a man who was going on a journey is similar. He called in his servants and handed his funds over to them according to each man's abilities. <sup>15</sup> To one he disbursed five thousand silver pieces, to a second two thousand, and to a third a thousand. Then he went away. <sup>16</sup> Immediately the man who received the five thousand went to invest it and made another five. <sup>17</sup> In the same way, the man who received the two thousand doubled his figure. <sup>18</sup> The man who received the thousand went off instead and dug a hole in the ground, where he buried his master's money. <sup>19</sup> After a long absence, the master of those servants came home and settled accounts with them. <sup>20</sup> The man who had received the five thousand came forward bringing the additional five. 'My lord,' he said, 'you let me have five thousand. See, I have made five thousand more.' <sup>21*</sup> His master said to him, 'Well done! You are an industrious and reliable servant. Since you were dependable in a small matter I will put you in charge of larger affairs. Come, share your master's joy!' <sup>22</sup> The man who had received the two thousand then stepped forward. 'My lord,' he said, 'you entrusted me with two thousand and I have made two thou-

- |                                  |                        |
|----------------------------------|------------------------|
| 31: 1 Cor 15, 52.                | 43-51: Lk 12, 39-46.   |
| 32: Mk 13, 28; Lk 21, 29.        | 43: 1 Thes 5, 6.       |
| 35: Is 40, 8; 51, 6; Heb 12, 27. | 51: 13, 42; 25, 30.    |
| 36: Acts 1, 7.                   | 25, 11: Lk 13, 25.     |
| 39: Gn 7, 11-23; 2 Pt 3, 6.      | 13: 24, 42; Mk 13, 33. |
| 42: 25, 13; Rv 3, 3.             | 14-30: Lk 19, 12-27.   |
|                                  | 21: Lk 16, 10.         |

†

25, 1-46: The parables teach that the Christian community is to be ever ready to meet the Lord at his second coming (1-13); to function with a sense of personal responsibility for divine gifts received (14-30); and to be constantly aware of the primacy of love of neighbor (31-46).

sand more.' <sup>23</sup> His master said to him, 'Cleverly done! You too are an industrious and reliable servant. Since you were dependable in a small matter I will put you in charge of larger affairs. Come, share your master's joy!'

<sup>24</sup> "Finally the man who had received the thousand stepped forward. 'My lord,' he said, 'I knew you were a hard man. You reap where you did not sow and gather where you did not scatter, <sup>25</sup> so out of fear I went off and buried your thousand silver pieces in the ground. Here is your money back.' <sup>26</sup> His master exclaimed: 'You worthless, lazy lout! You know I reap where I did not sow and gather where I did not scatter. <sup>27</sup> All the more reason to deposit my money with the bankers, so that on my return I could have had it back with interest. <sup>28</sup> You, there! Take the thousand away from him and give it to the man with the ten thousand. <sup>29*</sup> Those who have will get more until they grow rich, while those who have not will lose even the little they have. <sup>30</sup> Throw this worthless servant into the darkness outside, where he can wail and grind his teeth.'

The Last Judgment. <sup>31*</sup> "When the Son of Man comes in his glory, escorted by all the angels of heaven, he will sit upon his royal throne, <sup>32*</sup> and all the nations will be assembled before him. Then he will separate them into two groups, as a shepherd separates sheep from goats. <sup>33</sup> The sheep he will place on his right hand, the goats on his left. <sup>34</sup> The king will say to those on his right: 'Come. You have my Father's blessing! Inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the creation of the world. <sup>35*</sup> For I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me drink. I was a stranger and you welcomed me, <sup>36*</sup> naked and you clothed me. I was ill and you comforted me, in prison and you came to visit me.' <sup>37</sup> Then the just will ask him: 'Lord, when did we see you hungry and feed you or see you thirsty and give you drink? <sup>38</sup> When did we welcome you away from home or clothe you in your nakedness? <sup>39</sup> When did we visit you when you were ill or in prison?' <sup>40*</sup> The king will answer them: 'I assure you, as often as you did it for one of my least brothers, you did it for me.'

<sup>41*</sup> "Then he will say to those on his left: 'Out of my sight, you condemned, into that everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels! <sup>42*</sup> I was hungry and you gave me no food, I was thirsty and you gave me no drink. <sup>43</sup> I was away from home and you gave me no welcome, naked and you gave me no clothing. I was ill and in prison and you did not come to comfort me.' <sup>44</sup> Then they in turn will ask: 'Lord, when did we see you hungry or thirsty or away from home or naked or ill or in prison and not attend you in your needs?' <sup>45</sup> He will answer them: 'I assure you, as often as you neglected to do it to one of these least ones, you neglected to do it to me.' <sup>46*</sup> These will go off to eternal punishment and the just to eternal life."

CHAPTER 26†

Epilogue. <sup>1</sup> Now when Jesus had finished all these discourses, he declared to his disciples, <sup>2*</sup> "You know that in two days' time it will be Passover, and that the Son of Man is to be handed over to be crucified."

VII: THE PASSION AND RESURRECTION

The Conspiracy. <sup>3</sup> At that time the chief priests and elders of the people were assembled in the palace of the high priest, whose name was Caiaphas. <sup>4*</sup> They plotted to arrest Jesus by some trick and kill him; <sup>5</sup> but they said, "Not during the festival, for fear of a riot among the people."

The Anointing at Bethany. <sup>6*</sup> While Jesus was in Bethany at the house of Simon the leper, <sup>7</sup> a woman carrying a jar of costly perfume came up to him at table and began to pour it on his head. <sup>8</sup> When the disciples saw this they grew indignant, protesting: "What is the point of such extravagance? <sup>9</sup> This could have been sold for a good price and the money given to the poor." <sup>10</sup> Jesus became aware of this and said to them: "Why do you criticize the woman? It is a good deed she has done for me. <sup>11*</sup> The poor you will always have with you but you will not always have me. <sup>12</sup> By pouring this perfume on my body, she has contributed toward my burial preparation. <sup>13</sup> I assure you, wherever the good news is proclaimed throughout the world, what she did will be spoken of as her memorial."

<sup>14*</sup> Then one of the Twelve whose name was Judas Iscariot went off to the chief priests <sup>15</sup> and said, "What are you willing to give me if I hand him over to you?" They paid him thirty pieces of sil-

29: 13, 12; Mk 4, 25;
Lk 8, 18; 19, 26.
31: 16, 27.
32: 2 Cor 5, 10.
35: Is 58, 7.
36: Ez 18, 7ff; Heb
13, 3.
40: 10, 40.
41: 7, 23; Lk 13, 27.
42: Jb 22, 7; Jas 2,

14-17.
46: Dn 12, 2.
26, 2-5: Mk 14, 1f; Lk 22,
1f.
4: Jn 11, 47-53.
6-13: Mk 14, 3-9; Jn
12, 1-8.
11: Dt 15, 11.
14ff: Mk 14, 10f; Lk
22, 3-6.

†

26, 1-75: See note on Mk 14, 1-15, 57.

ver, <sup>16*</sup> and from that time on he kept looking for an opportunity to hand him over.

Passover Preparation. <sup>17*</sup> On the first day of the feast of Unleavened Bread, the disciples came up to Jesus and said, "Where do you wish us to prepare the Passover supper for you?" <sup>18</sup> He said, "Go to this man in the city and tell him, 'The Teacher says, My appointed time draws near. I am to celebrate the Passover with my disciples in your house.'"

<sup>19</sup> The disciples then did as Jesus had ordered, and prepared the Passover supper.

The Betrayer. <sup>20*</sup> When it grew dark he reclined at table with the Twelve. <sup>21</sup> In the course of the meal he said, "I assure you, one of you is about to betray me." <sup>22</sup> Distressed at this, they began to say to him one after another, "Surely it is not I, Lord?" <sup>23*</sup> He replied: "The man who has dipped his hand into the dish with me is the one who will hand me over. <sup>24*</sup> The Son of Man is departing, as Scripture says of him, but woe to that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed. Better for him if he had never been born."

<sup>25</sup> Then Judas, his betrayer, spoke: "Surely it is not I, Rabbi?" Jesus answered, "It is you who have said it."

The Holy Eucharist. <sup>26*</sup> During the meal Jesus took bread, blessed it, broke it, and gave it to his disciples. "Take this and eat it," he said, "this is my body." <sup>27*</sup> Then he took a cup, gave thanks, and gave it to them. "All of you must drink from it," he said, <sup>28*</sup> "for this is my blood, the blood of the covenant, to be poured out in behalf of many for the forgiveness of sins. <sup>29</sup> I tell you, I will not drink this fruit of the vine from now until the day when I drink it new with you in my Father's reign." <sup>30*</sup> Then, after singing songs of praise, they walked out to the Mount of Olives.

Peter's Denial Foretold. <sup>31*</sup> Jesus then said to them, "Tonight your faith in me will be shaken, for Scripture has it:

'I will strike the shepherd and the sheep of the flock will be dispersed.'

<sup>32*</sup> But after I am raised up, I will go to Galilee ahead of you." <sup>33</sup> Peter responded, "Though all may have their faith in you shaken, mine will never be shaken!" <sup>34*</sup> Jesus said to him, "I give you my word, before the cock crows tonight you will deny me three times." <sup>35*</sup> Peter replied, "Even though I have to die with you, I will never disown you." And all the other disciples said the same.

The Agony in the Garden. <sup>36*</sup> Then Jesus went with them to a place called Gethsemani. He said to his disciples, "Stay here while I go over there and pray." <sup>37</sup> He took along Peter and Zebedee's two sons, and began to experience sorrow and distress. Then he said to them, <sup>38</sup> "My heart is nearly broken with sorrow. Remain here and stay awake with me." <sup>39*</sup> He advanced a little and fell prostrate in prayer. "My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass me by. Still, let it be as you would have it, not as I." <sup>40*</sup> When he returned to his disciples, he found them asleep. He said to Peter, "So you could not stay awake with me for even an hour?" <sup>41</sup> Be on guard, and pray that you may not undergo the test. The spirit is willing but nature is weak."

<sup>42*</sup> Withdrawing a second time, he began to pray: "My Father, if this cannot pass me by without my drinking it, your will be done!" <sup>43</sup> Once more, on his return, he found them asleep; they could not keep their eyes open. <sup>44</sup> He left them again, withdrew somewhat, and began to pray a third time, saying the same words as before. <sup>45</sup> Finally he returned to his disciples and said to them: "Sleep on now. Enjoy your rest! The hour is on us when the Son of Man is to be handed over to the power of evil men. <sup>46*</sup> Get up! Let us be on our way! See, my betrayer is here."

Jesus Arrested. <sup>47*</sup> While he was still speaking, Judas, one of the Twelve, arrived accompanied by a great crowd with swords and clubs. They had been sent by the chief priests and elders of the people. <sup>48</sup> His betrayer had arranged to give them a signal, saying, "The man I shall embrace is the one; take hold of him." <sup>49*</sup> He immediately went over to Jesus, said to him, "Peace, Rabbi," and embraced him. <sup>50</sup> Jesus answered, "Friend, do what you are here for!" At that moment they stepped forward to lay hands on Jesus, and arrested him. <sup>51</sup> Suddenly one of those who accompanied Jesus put his hand to his sword, drew it, and slashed at the high priest's servant, cutting off his ear. <sup>52</sup> Jesus said to him: "Put back your sword where it belongs. Those who use the sword are sooner or later destroyed by it. <sup>53</sup> Do you not suppose I can call on my Father to provide at a moment's notice more than 16: 27, 3f; Gn 37, 28.

17-24: Mk 14, 21; Lk

22, 7-14, 21ff.

20f: Jn 13, 21-26.

23: Jn 13, 18.

24: Jn 17, 12.

26-29: Mk 14, 22-25;

Lk 22, 18ff; 1

Cor 11, 23ff.

26: Jn 6, 51-58.

27: 1 Cor 10, 16.

28: Is 53, 12.

30-35: Mk 14, 26-31.

31: Zec 13, 7; Jn 16,

32.

32: Mk 16, 7.

34: Lk 22, 33f; Jn

13, 37f.

35: 26, 69-75.

36-46: Mk 14, 32-42;

Lk 22, 40-46.

36: Jn 18, 1; Heb 5,

7ff.

39: 6, 10.

40: Jn 4, 34; 6, 38;

Phil 2, 8.

42: Heb 10, 9.

46: Jn 14, 31.

47-56: Mk 14, 43-49;

Lk 22, 47-53; Jn

18, 3-11.

49: Prv 27, 6.

twelve legions of angels? <sup>54</sup> But then how would the Scriptures be fulfilled which say it must happen this way?"

<sup>55</sup> At that very time Jesus said to the crowd: "Am I a brigand, that you have come armed with swords and clubs to arrest me? From day to day I sat teaching in the temple precincts, yet you never arrested me. <sup>56</sup> Nonetheless, all this has happened in fulfillment of the writings of the prophets." Then all the disciples deserted him and fled.

Jesus before the Sanhedrin. <sup>57*</sup> Those who had apprehended Jesus led him off to Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and elders were convened. <sup>58</sup> Peter kept following him at a distance as far as the high priest's residence. Going inside, he sat down with the guards to see the outcome. <sup>59</sup> The chief priests, with the whole Sanhedrin, were busy trying to obtain false testimony against Jesus so that they might put him to death. <sup>60</sup> They discovered none, despite the many false witnesses who took the stand. Finally two came forward <sup>61*</sup> who stated: "This man has declared, 'I can destroy God's sanctuary and rebuild it in three days.'" <sup>62</sup> The high priest rose to his feet and addressed him: "Have you no answer to the testimony leveled against you?" <sup>63*</sup> But Jesus remained silent. The high priest then said to him: "I order you to tell us under oath before the living God whether you are the Messiah, the Son of God." <sup>64*</sup> Jesus answered: "It is you who say it. But I tell you this: Soon you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of the Power and coming on the clouds of heaven." <sup>65</sup> At this the high priest tore his robes: "He has blasphemed! What further need have we of witnesses? <sup>66</sup> Remember, you heard the blasphemy. What is your verdict?" They answered, "He deserves death!" <sup>67*</sup> Then they began to spit in his face and hit him. Others slapped him, saying: <sup>68</sup> "Play the prophet for us, Messiah! Who struck you?"

Peter's Denial. <sup>69*</sup> Peter was sitting in the courtyard when one of the serving girls came over to him and said, "You too were with Jesus the Galilean." <sup>70</sup> He denied it in front of everyone: "I do not know what you are talking about!" <sup>71</sup> When he went out to the gate another girl saw him and said to those nearby, "This man was with Jesus the Nazorean." <sup>72</sup> Again he denied it with an oath: "I do not know the man!" <sup>73</sup> A little while later some bystanders came over to Peter and said, "You are certainly one of them! Even your accent gives you away!" <sup>74</sup> At that he began cursing, and swore, "I do not even know the man!" Just then a cock began to crow <sup>75*</sup> and Peter remembered the prediction Jesus had made: "Before the cock crows, you will deny me three times." He went out and began to weep bitterly.

CHAPTER 27

<sup>1*</sup> At daybreak all the chief priests and the elders of the people took formal action against Jesus to put him to death. <sup>2</sup> They bound him and led him away to be handed over to the procurator Pilate.

The End of Judas. <sup>3*</sup> Then Judas, who had handed him over, seeing that Jesus had been condemned, began to regret his action deeply. He took the thirty pieces of silver back to the chief priests and elders and said, <sup>4</sup> "I did wrong to deliver up an innocent man!" They retorted, "What is that to us? It is your affair!" <sup>5</sup> So Judas flung the money into the temple and left. He went off and hanged himself. <sup>6</sup> The chief priests picked up the silver, observing, "It is not right to deposit this in the temple treasury since it is blood money." <sup>7</sup> After consultation, they used it to buy the potter's field as a cemetery for foreigners. <sup>8</sup> That is why that field, even today, is called Blood Field. <sup>9</sup> On that occasion, what was said through Jeremiah the prophet was fulfilled:

"They took the thirty pieces of silver, the value of a man with a price on his head, a price set by the Israelites, <sup>10</sup> and they paid it out for the potter's field just as the Lord had commanded me."

Jesus before Pilate. <sup>11*</sup> Jesus was arraigned before the procurator, who questioned him: "Are you the king of the Jews?" Jesus responded, "As you say." <sup>12*</sup> Yet when he was accused by the chief priests and elders, he had made no reply. <sup>13</sup> Then Pilate said to him, "Surely you hear how many charges they bring against you?" <sup>14</sup> He did not answer him on a single count, much to the procurator's surprise.

<sup>15*</sup> Now on the occasion of a festival

57-68: Mk 14, 53-65;	75: 26, 34.
Lk 22, 54; Jn 18,	27, 1f; Mk 15, 1; Lk 22,
12-24.	66; 23, 1; Jn 18,
61: Jn 2, 19.	28.
63-66: Lk 22, 67-71.	3: 26, 15.
63: Is 53, 7.	11-14: Mk 15, 2-5; Lk
64: 16, 27; Dn 7, 13.	23, 2f; Jn 18,
67: Wis 2, 19; Is 50,	29-38.
65; Lk 22, 63f.	12: Wis 2, 19.
69-75: Mk 14, 66-72;	15-26: Mk 15, 6-15; Lk
Lk 22, 55-62; Jn	23, 17-25; Jn
18, 17f.	18, 39f.

† 27, 3-10: The tragic death of Judas is elsewhere related only in Acts 1, 18; see note. Despite differences in the accounts, there is agreement in essentials: a plot of land near Jerusalem, popularly called the "Field of Blood," was purchased with the money Judas received for betraying Jesus, and the traitor died an infamous death. Matthew's free citation of Jer 18, 2f; 19, 1f; 32, 6-15 and Zec 11, 13 shows that he regards Judas' death as a divine judgment.

the procurator was accustomed to release one prisoner, whom the crowd would designate. <sup>16</sup> They had at the time a notorious prisoner named Barabbas. <sup>17</sup> Since they were already assembled, Pilate said to them, "Which one do you wish me to release for you, Barabbas or Jesus the so-called Messiah?" <sup>18</sup> He knew, of course, that it was out of jealousy that they had handed him over.

<sup>19</sup>† While he was still presiding on the bench, his wife sent him a message: "Do not interfere in the case of that holy man. I had a dream about him today which has greatly upset me."

<sup>20</sup>* Meanwhile, the chief priests and elders convinced the crowds that they should ask for Barabbas and have Jesus put to death. <sup>21</sup> So when the procurator asked them, "Which one do you wish me to release for you?" they said, "Barabbas." <sup>22</sup> Pilate said to them, "Then what am I to do with Jesus, the so-called Messiah?" "Crucify him!" they all cried. <sup>23</sup> He said, "Why, what crime has he committed?" But they only shouted the louder, "Crucify him!" <sup>24</sup> Pilate finally realized that he was making no impression and that a riot was breaking out instead. He called for water and washed his hands in front of the crowd, declaring as he did so, "I am innocent of the blood of this just man. The responsibility is yours." <sup>25</sup>*† The whole people said in reply, "Let his blood be on us and on our children." <sup>26</sup> At that, he released Barabbas to them. Jesus, however, he first had scourged; then he handed him over to be crucified.

The Crowning with Thorns. <sup>27</sup>* The procurator's soldiers took Jesus inside the praetorium and collected the whole cohort around him. <sup>28</sup> They stripped off his clothes and wrapped him in a scarlet military cloak. <sup>29</sup>* Weaving a crown out of thorns they fixed it on his head, and stuck a reed in his right hand. Then they began to mock him by dropping to their knees before him, saying, "All hail, king of the Jews!" <sup>30</sup>* They also spat at him. Afterward they took hold of the reed and kept striking him on the head. <sup>31</sup> Finally, when they had finished making a fool of him, they stripped him of the cloak, dressed him in his own clothes, and led him off to crucifixion.

The Way of the Cross. <sup>32</sup>* On their way they met a Cyrenian named Simon. This man they pressed into service to carry the cross. <sup>33</sup>* Upon arriving at a site called Golgotha (a name which means Skull Place), <sup>34</sup> they gave him a drink of wine flavored with gall, which he tasted but refused to drink.

The Crucifixion. <sup>35</sup>* When they had crucified him, they divided his clothes among them by casting lots; <sup>36</sup> then they

sat down there and kept watch over him. <sup>37</sup> Above his head they had put the charge against him in writing: "THIS IS JESUS, KING OF THE JEWS." <sup>38</sup>* Two insurgents were crucified along with him, one at his right and one at his left. <sup>39</sup>* People going by kept insulting him, tossing their heads <sup>40</sup>* and saying: "So you are the one who was going to destroy the temple and rebuild it in three days! Save yourself, why don't you? Come down off that cross if you are God's Son!" <sup>41</sup> The chief priests, the scribes, and the elders also joined in the jeering: <sup>42</sup> "He saved others but he cannot save himself! So he is the king of Israel! Let's see him come down from that cross and then we will believe in him." <sup>43</sup>* He relied on God; let God rescue him now if he wants to. After all, he claimed, "I am God's Son." <sup>44</sup> The insurgents who had been crucified with him kept taunting him in the same way.

The Death of Jesus. <sup>45</sup> From noon onward, there was darkness over the whole land until midafternoon. <sup>46</sup>* Then toward midafternoon Jesus cried out in a loud tone, "Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani?", that is, "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" <sup>47</sup> This made some of the bystanders who heard it remark, "He is invoking Elijah!" <sup>48</sup>* Immediately one of them ran off and got a sponge. He soaked it in cheap wine, and sticking it on a reed, tried to make him drink. <sup>49</sup>* Meanwhile the rest said, "Leave him alone. Let's see whether Elijah comes to his rescue." <sup>50</sup> Once again Jesus cried out in a loud voice, and then gave up his spirit.

<sup>51</sup>*† Suddenly the curtain of the sanctuary was torn in two from top to bottom. <sup>52</sup>* The earth quaked, boulders split,

20: Acts 3, 14.	35: Ps 22, 19.
25: Acts 18, 6.	38: Lk 22, 37.
27-31: Mk 15, 16-20;	39: Ps 22, 8.
Jn 19, 2f.	40: Jn 2, 19.
29: 27, 11.	43: Ps 22, 9.
30: Is 50, 6.	46: Ps 22, 2.
32: Mk 15, 21; Lk	48: Lk 23, 36; Jn 19,
23, 36.	29.
33-50: Mk 15, 22-34;	49: Ps 69, 21.
Lk 23, 32-38;	51: Heb 6, 19.
44ff; Jn 19,	52: 1 Pt 3, 18.
17ff, 23f, 28ff.

† 27, 19f: This passage is proper to Matthew. The episode concerning Pilate's wife accords with evidence that women sometimes intervened in the political affairs of the Roman world. Her concern is for the welfare of her husband rather than of Jesus; for this reason she does not wish Pilate to become involved in the religious affairs of the Jews.

27, 25: Let his blood be on us and on our children: probably the evangelist's commentary on the responsibility for Jesus' death, cf Jer 51, 35.

27, 51ff: The tearing of the sanctuary veil between the holy place and the holy of holies symbolizes a break with the past; the other phenomena portend the resurrection of all men, the final cosmic event of human history; cf Is 13, 9f; 34, 4; Dn 12, 2; Jl 2, 10.

tombs opened. <sup>53</sup> Many bodies of saints who had fallen asleep were raised. After Jesus' resurrection they came forth from their tombs and entered the holy city and appeared to many. <sup>54*</sup> The centurion and his men who were keeping watch over Jesus were terror-stricken at seeing the earthquake and all that was happening, and said, "Clearly this was the Son of God!"

<sup>55*</sup> Many women were present looking on from a distance. They had followed Jesus from Galilee to attend to his needs. <sup>56*</sup> Among them were Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of Zebedee's sons.

The Burial. <sup>57*</sup> When evening fell, a wealthy man from Arimathea arrived, Joseph by name. He was another of Jesus' disciples, <sup>58</sup> and had gone to request the body of Jesus. Thereupon Pilate issued an order for its release. <sup>59</sup> Taking the body, Joseph wrapped it in fresh linen <sup>60*</sup> and laid it in his own new tomb which had been hewn from a formation of rock. Then he rolled a huge stone across the entrance of the tomb and went away. <sup>61</sup> But Mary Magdalene and the other Mary remained sitting there, facing the tomb.

Precautions of the Chief Priests. † <sup>62</sup> The next day, the one following the Day of Preparation, the chief priests and the Pharisees called at Pilate's residence. <sup>63</sup> "Sir," they said, "we have recalled that that impostor while he was still alive made the claim, 'After three days I will rise.' <sup>64*</sup> You should issue an order having the tomb kept under surveillance until the third day. Otherwise his disciples may go and steal him and tell the people, 'He has been raised from the dead!' This final imposture would be worse than the first." <sup>65</sup> Pilate told them, "You have a guard. Go and secure the tomb as best you can." <sup>66</sup> So they went and kept it under surveillance of the guard, after fixing a seal to the stone.

CHAPTER 28

The Women at the Tomb. † <sup>1*</sup> After the sabbath, as the first day of the week was dawning, Mary Magdalene came with the other Mary to inspect the tomb. <sup>2</sup> Suddenly there was a mighty earthquake, as the angel of the Lord descended from heaven. He came to the stone, rolled it back, and sat on it. <sup>3*</sup> In appearance he resembled a flash of lightning while his garments were as dazzling as snow. <sup>4</sup> The guards grew paralyzed with fear of him and fell down like dead men. <sup>5</sup> Then the angel spoke, addressing the women: "Do not be frightened. I know you are looking for Jesus the crucified, <sup>6</sup> but he is not here. He has been raised, exactly as he promised. Come and see the place where he was laid. <sup>7*</sup> Then go quickly and tell his disciples: 'He has been raised from the dead and now goes ahead of you to Galilee, where you will see him.' That is the message I have for you."

<sup>8</sup> They hurried away from the tomb half-overjoyed, half-fearful, and ran to carry the good news to his disciples. <sup>9</sup> Suddenly, without warning, Jesus stood before them and said, "Peace!" The women came up and embraced his feet and did him homage. <sup>10*</sup> At this Jesus said to them, "Do not be afraid! Go and carry the news to my brothers that they are to go to Galilee, where they will see me."

Tale of the Guards and Chief Priests. † <sup>11</sup> As the women were returning, some of the guard went into the city and reported to the chief priests all that had happened. <sup>12</sup> They, in turn, convened with the elders and worked out their strategy, giving the soldiers a large bribe <sup>13</sup> with the instructions: "You are to say, 'His disciples came during the night and stole him while we were asleep.' <sup>14</sup> If any word of this gets to the procurator, we will straighten it out with him and keep you out of trouble." <sup>15</sup> The soldiers pocketed the money and did as they had been instructed. This is the story that circulates among the Jews to this very day.

Commission of the Apostles. <sup>16†</sup> The eleven disciples made their way to Galilee, to the mountain to which Jesus had summoned them. <sup>17†</sup> At the sight of him, those who had entertained doubts fell 54ff: Mk 15, 39ff; Lk 23, 47ff.	60: Is 53, 9.

55: Jn 19, 25.	64: Acts 10, 40.
56: 13, 55.	28, 1-8: Mk 16, 1-8; Lk 24, 1-10.
57-61: Mk 15, 42-47; Lk 23, 50ff; Jn 19, 38-42.	3: 17, 2.
	7: 26, 32.
	10: Acts 1, 3.

† 27, 62-66: This account is proper to Matthew. It is thought to have originated among Judaeo-Christians in response to a Jewish allegation that Jesus' disciples had stolen the body. Matthew wishes to emphasize the supernatural character of Jesus' departure from the tomb, to which there was no human witness; cf 28, 2ff.

28, 1-20: See note on Lk 24, 1-53.

28, 11-15: The chief priests and elders are not concerned with the resurrection itself, which they simply deem impossible, but with the repercussions on the people of the apostolic preaching concerning the resurrection.

28, 16: The tradition of Jesus' appearance to his disciples in Galilee is also reflected in Jn 21, 1-23.

28, 17: Those who had entertained doubts: literally, "but some doubted"; probably a summary allusion to the initial doubts of the disciples over the reality of the resurrection; cf Lk 24, 22ff.38; Jn 20, 27. The resurrection narratives are characterized by a condensed description of events.

down in homage. <sup>18</sup> Jesus came forward and addressed them in these words:

“Full authority has been given to me both in heaven and on earth;

<sup>19*</sup> † go, therefore, and make disciples of all the nations.

Baptize them in the name ‘of the Father,
and of the Son,
and of the Holy Spirit.’

<sup>20*</sup> † Teach them to carry out everything I have commanded you.

And know that I am with you always, until the end of the world!”

19: Mk 16, 15f; Lk
24, 47.

20: Jn 14, 18-21.

†

28, 19: Go, therefore, and make . . . the nations: some regard these words as an interpretation of Jesus' final instructions in the light of the church's early change from a mission to the Jews to one in behalf of the Gentiles; see Introduction to Acts. Baptize them . . . Holy Spirit: The baptismal formula reflects the church's gradual understanding of God as three Persons (Acts 2, 38; 2 Cor 13, 13).

28, 20: The apostles are to teach the world not merely the doctrine of the resurrection but the historical teaching of Jesus. This the evangelist Matthew obviously considers to be contained in the gospel he has written. I am with you always: The power of the risen Christ (18) will ever sustain those whom he has commissioned to preach the "good news" of salvation to the world.

MARK

The gospel of Mark is invaluable for grasping the essential characteristics of Jesus' public ministry. The gospels of Matthew and Luke are better understood in the light of the data provided by Mark because of their direct dependence on him. Like the other evangelists, Mark, in addressing himself to Christian readers, places his gospel within the framework of Christian tradition on the identity of Jesus which developed during the course of the apostolic teaching. In Mark's day, the title "Christ" had already become part of Jesus' proper name; for the Gentile Christian it had the religious implication of "savior" or "redeemer" rather than "Messiah," which would be meaningless to all but Jews; cf Rom 9, 5. The title "Son of God" had become the most characteristic name of Jesus, designating him as the God-man; cf Rom 1, 1-4.

The gospel of Mark revolves around the two titles "Christ" and "Son of God." The evangelist shows how the Christian community's faith in Jesus as Savior harmonized with his own knowledge of his divine destiny to suffer, die, and rise again. The miraculous powers of Jesus which so mystified his contemporaries find their satisfactory explanation in the doctrine of Jesus' divinity, which the Christian community grasped only after his resurrection. Although the gospel of Mark is developed in connection with Christian faith in Jesus as redeemer and Son of God, its contents indicate the historical reality of the person and ministry of Jesus in a manner less refined by theological reflection than the accounts of the other evangelists. In Mark, the person of Jesus is depicted with an unaffected naturalness. He reacts to events with authentic human emotion: apprehension (1, 44), anger (3, 5), triumph (4, 40), sympathy (5, 36; 6, 34), surprise (5, 30; 6, 6), admiration (7, 29), sadness (14, 33f), indignation (14, 48f). His disciples take positions toward him that are critical (4, 38; 5, 31; 6, 37; 8, 4.32) or inattentive (7, 16f). He acknowledges that there are things he does not know, e.g., the appointed time for the end of the world, known only to the Father (13, 32); cf also 5, 30; 6, 38.

From a literary standpoint this gospel is divided into clearly distinguishable parts: the title (1, 1), the prologue (1, 2-13), the ministry of Jesus (1, 14-13, 37), his passion, death, and burial (14, 1-15, 47), his resurrection, the commission of the apostles, and his ascension (16, 1-20).

The account of the ministry is doctrinal rather than chronological or geographical. The reader's attention is fixed on the mystery of Jesus' person. The average man recognizes in the teaching of Jesus something authentically new (1, 22), and he is thoroughly impressed by Jesus' curative powers (1, 37f; 3, 8-11). The religious leaders are disconcerted when Jesus challenges them on their own ground (2, 16-3, 6). The relatives of Jesus fear for his safety (3, 20f), and his disciples discover that their understanding of him is deficient (4, 36-40; 6, 47-52). Jesus accepts the title of prophet, but he lays no explicit claim to the role of Messiah; he even imposes silence concerning his miracles (1, 44; 5, 43; 7, 36; 8, 26).

At Caesarea Philippi Jesus departs from this reticence and elicits two admissions from his disciples: one is that popular opinion concedes him the role of prophet; the other is that the disciples themselves consider him to be the Messiah (8, 27-30). At this point Mark's gospel reaches its first climax concerning the identity of Jesus, to which it has been building up. Jesus proceeds beyond the messianic confession of his disciples to state clearly his own prophetic understanding of his role: it is the divine will that he should suffer and die at the hands of the Sanhedrin. The mystery of the crucified Messiah, which is a stumbling block to the Jews (1 Cor 1, 23), is traced by Mark to Jesus' self-awareness throughout his ministry. Though the remainder of the gospel incorporates an occasional miracle story (9, 17-27; 10, 46-52; 11, 12ff.20f), and much of Jesus' teaching, it is dominated by his self-revelation as the chosen instrument who is to suffer, die, and rise again (9, 9f.31f; 10, 32ff; 12, 1-12; 14, 1-16, 8). Within the passion narrative, the second and chief climax of Jesus' self-revelation occurs when, in the inquest before the high priest, he is shown by Mark to express the church's faith that he is both Messiah and the Son of God (14, 62).

Mark's geographical framework places the ministry of Jesus not only in the Galilean area (1, 14—6, 13), but outside it as well (6, 30—10, 31). The journey to Jerusalem begins in 10, 32 and ends in 11, 1 near that city, where the final days of the ministry are to be spent (11, 1—15, 37).

According to Papias (†135 A.D.), the author of the second gospel was Mark who served as Peter's "interpreter" (editor of Petrine material?). Irenaeus (c 202), Clement of Alexandria (c 215), Tertullian (c 220), and Origen (c 254) attest a similar relationship. There is no need to reject the identification of the author with that John Mark whom the New Testament associates with St. Paul (Acts 12, 25; 15, 37, 39; Col 4, 10; 2 Tm 4, 11; Phlm 24) and with St. Peter (Acts 12, 12; 1 Pt 5, 13).

The Petrine influence on Mark should not be exaggerated. Modern scholarship has shown quite clearly that Mark's sources cannot be explained solely in terms of Peter's preaching. On the basis of manuscript and stylistic evidence, Mk 16, 9-20 derives from a hand other than Mark's. The gospel originally ended at 16, 8. The so-called longer ending (vv 9-20), which the Council of Trent declared to be inspired and canonical, was known to Justin Martyr (c 165), Tatian (c 170), and Irenaeus (c 202).

Data in the gospel clearly indicate that it was intended for Gentile Christian readers (7, 3f.11), or at least readers unfamiliar with Jewish customs; nonetheless, the place of composition is uncertain. Following the suggestion of Clement of Alexandria and Origen, the majority of modern scholars consider the gospel to have been written in Rome. The date of composition is c 70 A.D.

The gospel of Mark has contributed much to other gospels for the Christian understanding of Jesus and his ministry.

The principal divisions of the gospel of Mark are as follows:

- I: Prologue: Preparation for the Ministry of Jesus (1, 1-13)
- II: The Mystery of Jesus (1, 14—8, 26)
- III: The Mystery Begins To Be Revealed (8, 27—9, 32)
- IV: The Full Revelation of the Mystery (9, 33—16, 20)

I: PROLOGUE: PREPARATION FOR THE MINISTRY OF JESUS

CHAPTER 1

<sup>1</sup>† Here begins the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. <sup>2</sup>*† In Isaiah the prophet it is written:

John the Baptizer

<sup>3</sup>*† "I send my messenger before you to prepare your way:
a herald's voice in the desert, crying,

'Make ready the way of the Lord, clear him a straight path.'"

<sup>4</sup> Thus it was that John the Baptizer appeared in the desert, proclaiming a baptism of repentance which led to the forgiveness of sins. <sup>5</sup>† All the Judean countryside and the people of Jerusalem went out to him in great numbers. They were being baptized by him in the Jordan River as they confessed their sins. <sup>6</sup>† John was clothed in camel's hair, and wore a leather belt around his waist. His food was grasshoppers and wild honey.

<sup>7</sup>† The theme of his preaching was: "One more powerful than I is to come after me. I am not fit to stoop and untie his sandal straps. <sup>8</sup>* I have baptized you in water; he will baptize you in the Holy Spirit."

- 1, 2-8: Mt 3, 1-11; Lk 3, 2-16.
- 2: Mal 3, 1.
- 3: Is 40, 3; Jn 1,

- 23.
- 8: Jn 1, 27; Acts 1, 5; 11, 16.

† 1, 1: This verse is probably the title of the entire gospel, which Mark regards as the account of Jesus' ministry of redemption. Several important early manuscripts lack the phrase Son of God; its authenticity, however, is accepted by most modern scholars.

1, 2f: Portions of Exodus (23, 20), Malachi (3, 1) and Isaiah (40, 3) are combined here; cf Mt 11, 10; Lk 7, 26. Mark mentions only Isaiah.

1, 3f: The historical concept of God's fulfillment of prophecy is the same as in Matthew. See note on Mt 3, 1. On repentance, see note on Acts 2, 38.

1, 5: See note on Mt 3, 11f. They confessed their sins: whether the confession was explicit and individual or general and collective is not determinable from the text.

1, 6: Clothed in camel's hair . . . waist: see note on Mt 3, 4.

1, 7f: Here the figure of Jesus is kept foremost in the Baptizer's preaching. He is the One more powerful who is to come. Matthew (3, 7-10) and Luke (3, 7-14) add elements of warning against those who hear the invitation to repentance and fail to heed it.

The Baptism of Jesus.†<sup>9*</sup> During that time, Jesus came from Nazareth in Galilee and was baptized in the Jordan by John.<sup>10</sup> Immediately on coming up out of the water he saw the sky rent in two and the Spirit descending on him like a dove.<sup>11*</sup> Then a voice came from the heavens: "You are my beloved Son. On you my favor rests."

The Temptation.†<sup>12*</sup> At that point the Spirit sent him out toward the desert.<sup>13</sup> He stayed in the wasteland forty days, put to the test there by Satan. He was with the wild beasts, and angels waited on him.

II: THE MYSTERY OF JESUS

Call of the First Disciples.†<sup>14*</sup> After John's arrest, Jesus appeared in Galilee proclaiming the good news of God:<sup>15*</sup> "This is the time of fulfillment. The reign of God is at hand! Reform your lives and believe in the gospel!"

<sup>16*</sup>† As he made his way along the Sea of Galilee, he observed Simon and his brother Andrew casting their nets into the sea; they were fishermen.<sup>17</sup> Jesus said to them, "Come after me; I will make you fishers of men."<sup>18</sup> They immediately abandoned their nets and became his followers.<sup>19</sup> Proceeding a little farther along, he caught sight of James, Zebedee's son, and his brother John. They too were in their boat putting their nets in order.<sup>20</sup> He summoned them on the spot. They abandoned their father Zebedee, who was in the boat with the hired men, and went off in his company.<sup>21*</sup>† Shortly afterward they came to Capernaum, and on the sabbath he entered the synagogue and began to teach.<sup>22*</sup> The people were spellbound by his teaching because he taught with authority, and not like the scribes.

Cure of a Demoniac.†<sup>23</sup> There appeared in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit that shrieked:<sup>24</sup> "What do you want of us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are—the holy One of God!"<sup>25</sup> Jesus rebuked him sharply: "Be quiet! Come out of the man!"<sup>26</sup> At that the unclean spirit convulsed the man violently and with a loud shriek came out of him.<sup>27</sup> All who looked on were amazed. They began to ask one another: "What does this mean? A completely new teaching in a spirit of authority! He gives orders to unclean spirits and they obey!"<sup>28</sup> From that point on his reputation spread throughout the surrounding region of Galilee.

Peter's Mother-in-law.†<sup>29*</sup> Immediately upon leaving the synagogue, he entered the house of Simon and Andrew with James and John.<sup>30</sup> Simon's mother-in-law lay ill with a fever, and the first thing they did was to tell him about her.<sup>31</sup> He went over to her and grasped her hand and helped her up, and the fever left her. She immediately began to wait on them.

Other Miracles.†<sup>32</sup> After sunset, as evening drew on, they brought him all who were ill, and those possessed by demons.<sup>33</sup> Before long the whole town was gathered outside the door.<sup>34†</sup> Those whom he cured, who were variously af-

9ff: Mt 3, 13-17; Lk 3, 21f; Jn 1, 32f.	16-20: Mt 4, 18-22; Lk 5, 2-11.
11: Ps 2, 7.	21-28: Lk 4, 31-37.
12: Mt 4, 1-11; Lk 4, 1-13.	22: Mt 7, 28f.
14: Mt 4, 12-17.	29-34: Mt 8, 14ff; Lk 4, 38-41.
15: Mt 3, 2.

† 9ff: The synoptic gospels concentrate on the baptism of Jesus, while the fourth gospel (Jn 1, 24-37) is concerned with the role of the Baptizer in identifying Jesus as the One who is to come. The synoptics ascribe directly to God the Father the identification of Jesus as "servant of Yahweh." The dove is the symbol of the Holy Spirit (Mk 1, 10), derived perhaps from the image of the creative spirit of God hovering over the waters (Gn 1, 2). The intimation is that Jesus, possessor of the Spirit, is the creator of the new people of God. The occasion of Jesus' baptism is the response to the prayer in Is 64, 1 for the heavens to open and rain down messianic salvation (1, 10). The designation of Jesus as God's Son reflects the early Christian usage of Ps 2, 7, which sees the sonship there spoken of as prophetically fulfilled in Jesus' resurrection.

1, 12f: Jesus, possessor of the Spirit, is directed irresistibly to a confrontation with Satan over the course of forty days. Both angels and wild beasts are present. Though the sense of the imagery is uncertain, some evidence in New Testament times shows demons symbolized by wild beasts. Following the extra-biblical Jewish literary tradition of holy men subjected to temptation, Mark depicts Jesus as the faithful servant of Yahweh, loyal to God in his time of trial (Heb 2, 14-18). The temptation narrative expresses, in terms of a drama, Jesus' ministry, passion and death as a conflict with satanic power.

1, 14f: Jesus appeared . . . the good news of God: a summary statement concerning Jesus' preaching, to introduce his public ministry. This is the time of fulfillment: the period in human history appointed by God for making good his messianic promises. The reign of God is at hand: see note on Mt 3, 1. Though some scholars maintain that Jesus proclaimed the kingdom as imminent but not yet arrived, it is more probable that he announced it as actually arrived yet awaiting future development. Reform your lives: see note on Acts 2, 38.

1, 16-20: See note on Mt 4, 19.

1, 21f: The people realize that Jesus presents himself as a prophet who does not depend on rabbinic tradition for his teaching.

1, 23-28: This account of exorcism is the first of four such narratives in Mark (5, 1-20; 7, 24-30; 9, 14-27). The gospel also contains several allusions to Jesus' numerous exorcisms (1, 34, 39; 3, 11f), and records a debate between Jesus and the scribes over their meaning (3, 22-30). Matthew and Luke present some of the same traditional accounts as Mark but add no new ones. Note that Jesus neither declares diabolical "possession" to be a phenomenon in Israel nor contests any affirmation of the presence of diabolic beings. When the scribes accuse Jesus of performing exorcisms by the power of Satan, they imply that there are diabolic manifestations among the sick brought to Jesus. Apart from the case of the Syro-Phoenician woman's daughter (see note on 7, 24-30), nowhere is Jesus asked precisely to perform an exorcism.

1, 34: Because they knew him: probably the knowledge which the demons had about Jesus is to be understood in the broad sense, i.e., they are reported as having recognized Jesus as their enemy without having specific knowledge of his actual identity.

flicted, were many, and so were the demons he expelled. But he would not permit the demons to speak, because they knew him. <sup>35</sup>* Rising early the next morning, he went off to a lonely place in the desert; there he was absorbed in prayer. <sup>36</sup> Simon and his companions managed to track him down, and <sup>37</sup> when they found him, they told him, "Everybody is looking for you!" <sup>38</sup> He said to them: "Let us move on to the neighboring villages so that I may proclaim the good news there also. That is what I have come to do." <sup>39</sup> So he went into their synagogues preaching the good news and expelling demons throughout the whole of Galilee.

A Leper.† <sup>40</sup>* A leper approached him with a request, kneeling down as he addressed him: "If you will to do so, you can cure me." <sup>41</sup>* Moved with pity, Jesus stretched out his hand, touched him, and said: "I do will it. Be cured." <sup>42</sup>* The leprosy left him then and there, and he was cured. <sup>43</sup> Jesus gave him a stern warning and sent him on his way. <sup>44</sup>* "Not a word to anyone, now," he said. "Go off and present yourself to the priest and offer for your cure what Moses prescribed. That should be a proof for them." <sup>45</sup> The man went off and began to proclaim the whole matter freely, making the story public. As a result of this, it was no longer possible for Jesus to enter a town openly. He stayed in desert places; yet people kept coming to him from all sides.

CHAPTER 2

A Paralytic at Capernaum.† <sup>1</sup>* He came back to Capernaum after a lapse of several days and word got around that he was at home. <sup>2</sup> At that they began to gather in great numbers. There was no longer any room for them, even around the door. <sup>3</sup> While he was delivering God's word to them, some people arrived bringing a paralyzed man to him. The four who carried him <sup>4</sup> were unable to bring him to Jesus because of the crowd, so they began to open up the roof over the spot where Jesus was. When they had made a hole, they let down the mat on which the paralytic was lying. <sup>5</sup> When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralyzed man, "My son, your sins are forgiven." <sup>6</sup> Now some of the scribes were sitting there asking themselves: <sup>7</sup>* "Why does the man talk in that way? He commits blasphemy! Who can forgive sins except God alone?" <sup>8</sup> Jesus was immediately aware of their reasoning, though they kept it to themselves, and he said to them: "Why do you harbor these thoughts? <sup>9</sup> Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Stand up, pick up your mat, and walk again'? <sup>10</sup> That you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins" (he said to the paralyzed man), <sup>11</sup> "I command you: Stand up! Pick up your mat and go home." <sup>12</sup> The man stood and picked up his mat and went outside in the sight of everyone. They were awestruck; all gave praise to God, saying, "We have never seen anything like this!"

The Call of Levi. <sup>13</sup>* Another time, while he went walking along the lakeshore, people kept coming to him in crowds and he taught them. <sup>14</sup>* As he moved on he saw Levi the son of Alphaeus at his tax collector's post, and said to him, "Follow me." Levi got up and became his follower. <sup>15</sup>† While Jesus was reclining to eat in Levi's house, many tax collectors and those known as sinners joined him and his disciples at dinner. The number of those who followed him was large. <sup>16</sup> When the scribes who belonged to the Pharisee party saw that he was eating with tax collectors and offenders against the law, they complained to his disciples, "Why does he eat with such as these?" <sup>17</sup> Overhearing the remark, Jesus said to them, "People who are healthy do not need a doctor; sick people do. I have come to call sinners, not the self-righteous."

The Question of Fasting.† <sup>18</sup> Now John's disciples and the Pharisees were accustomed to fast. People came to Jesus with the objection, "Why do John's disciples and those of the Pharisees fast while yours do not?" <sup>19</sup> Jesus replied: "How can the guests at a wedding fast as long as the groom is still among them? So long as the groom stays with them, they cannot fast. <sup>20</sup> The day will come, however, when the groom will be taken away from them; on that day they will fast. <sup>21</sup> No one sews a patch of unshrunk cloth on an old cloak. If he should do so, the very thing he has used to cover the hole would pull away—the

35-39: Lk 4, 42ff.	2, 1-12: Mt 9, 2-8; Lk 5,
40-44: Mt 8, 2ff; Lk 5,	18-26.
12ff.	7: Is 43, 25.
41: 5, 30.	13: 4, 1.
42: Lk 17, 14.	14-17: Mt 9, 9-13; Lk 5,
44: Lv 14, 2-32.	27-32.

†

1, 40-45: For the various forms of skin disease, cf Lv 13, 1-50 and the note on Lv 13, 2ff. Jesus shows concern for the proper interpretation of his miracles. He assumes that the priests will perceive the messianic significance of the miracle. On the "messianic secret" involved in this narrative, see note on 8, 27-30.

2, 1-12: Besides his power over demonic spirits and physical illness, Jesus manifests his power to forgive sins. This miracle story constitutes a transition to the conflict narratives which follow. Once Christians believed in the divinity of Jesus after his resurrection, they realized that he forgave sins through the power he had conferred on the community; cf Mt 9, 8.

2, 15ff: See note on Mt 9, 13.

2, 18-22: See note on Mt 9, 14-17.

new from the old—and the tear would get worse.<sup>22</sup> Similarly, no man pours new wine into old wineskins. If he does so, the wine will burst the skins and both wine and skins will be lost. No, new wine is poured into new skins.<sup>23</sup>

The Disciples and the Sabbath. 23*† It happened that he was walking through standing grain on the sabbath, and his disciples began to pull off heads of grain as they went along.<sup>24</sup> At this the Pharisees protested: "Look! Why do they do a thing not permitted on the sabbath?"<sup>25</sup> He said to them: "Have you never read what David did when he was in need and he and his men were hungry?"<sup>26</sup> How he entered God's house in the days of Abiathar the high priest and ate the holy bread which only the priests were permitted to eat? He even gave it to his men."<sup>27</sup> Then he said to them: "The sabbath was made for man, not man for the sabbath.<sup>28</sup>† That is why the Son of Man is lord even of the sabbath."

CHAPTER 3

A Man with a Withered Hand.† 1* He returned to the synagogue where there was a man whose hand was shriveled up.<sup>2</sup> They kept an eye on Jesus to see whether he would heal him on the sabbath, hoping to be able to bring an accusation against him.<sup>3</sup> He addressed the man with the shriveled hand: "Stand up here in front!"<sup>4</sup> Then he said to them: "Is it permitted to do a good deed on the sabbath—or an evil one? To preserve life—or destroy it?" At this they remained silent.<sup>5</sup> He looked around at them with anger, for he was deeply grieved that they had closed their minds against him. Then he said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." The man did so and his hand was perfectly restored.<sup>6</sup> When the Pharisees went outside, they immediately began to plot with the Herodians how they might destroy him.

The Mercy of Jesus. 7* Jesus withdrew toward the lake with his disciples. A great crowd followed him from Galilee,<sup>8</sup> and an equally great multitude came to him from Judea, Jerusalem, Idumea, Transjordan, and the neighborhood of Tyre and Sidon, because they had heard what he had done.<sup>9</sup> In view of their numbers, he told his disciples to have a fishing boat ready for him so that he could avoid the press of the crowd against him.<sup>10</sup>* Because he had cured many, all who had afflictions kept pushing toward him to touch him.<sup>11</sup>* Unclean spirits would catch sight of him, fling themselves down at his feet, and shout, "You are the Son of God!"<sup>12</sup>† while he kept ordering them sternly not to reveal who he was.

Choice of the Twelve.† 13* He then went up the mountain and summoned the men he himself had decided on, who came and joined him.<sup>14</sup>* He named twelve as his companions whom he would send to preach the good news;<sup>15</sup> they were likewise to have authority to expel demons.<sup>16</sup> He appointed the Twelve as follows:<sup>17</sup>* Simon to whom he gave the name Peter; James, son of Zebedee; and John, the brother of James (he gave these two the name Boanerges, or "sons of thunder");<sup>18</sup> Andrew, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, James son of Alphaeus; Thaddaeus, Simon of the Zealot party,<sup>19</sup> and Judas Iscariot, who betrayed him.

Blasphemy of the Scribes.† 20* He returned to the house with them and again the crowd assembled, making it impossible for them to get any food whatever.<sup>21</sup>* When his family heard of this they came to take charge of him, saying, "He is out of his mind";<sup>22</sup>* while the scribes who arrived from Jerusalem asserted, "He is possessed by Beelzebul," and "He expels demons with the help of the prince of demons."<sup>23</sup> Summoning them, he then began to speak to them by way of examples: "How can Satan expel Satan?"<sup>24</sup> If a kingdom is torn by civil strife, that kingdom cannot last.<sup>25</sup> If a household is divided according to loyalties, that household will not survive.<sup>26</sup> Similarly, if Satan has suffered mutiny in his ranks and is torn by dissension, he cannot endure; he is finished.<sup>27</sup> No

23-28: Mt 12, 1-8; Lk 6, 1-5,	10: 5, 30.
24: Dt 23, 25.	11: 1, 34; Lk 4, 41.
26: 1 Sm 21, 2-7; Lv 24, 5-9.	13-19: Mt 10, 1-4; Lk 6, 12-16.
27: 2 Mc 5, 19.	14: 6, 7.
3, 1-6: Mt 12, 9-14; Lk 6, 6-11.	17: Mt 16, 18; Jn 1, 42.
5: Lk 14, 4.	20: 2, 2.
7-12: Mt 4, 23ff; Lk 6, 17ff.	21: Jn 10, 20.
	22-30: Mt 12, 24-32; Lk 11, 15-22.

†

2, 23-27: See note on Mt 12, 3-6.

2, 28: This statement seems to be an editorial addition to teach that the early Christian community's freedom from Jewish sabbath regulations relies on the authority of Jesus, now fully vindicated by his resurrection and ascension. On the title Son of Man, see note on 8, 31ff.

3, 1-6: See note on Mt 12, 10.

3, 12: Jesus refuses to receive witness concerning his identity from evil spirits. Since this identity can be known only from divine revelation, Mark does not ascribe true knowledge of Jesus to evil spirits. See note on Mt 16, 17.

3, 13-19: Within the circle of Jesus' disciples, the Twelve were given a privileged position. They alone were present with Jesus at the Last Supper (14, 17). Later they exercised leadership over the primitive community in Jerusalem (Acts 1, 26; 2, 14; 5, 20f), and were responsible for the information about Jesus that developed into the gospel tradition (Acts 6, 2, 4).

3, 20-35: Reactions to the person and teaching of Jesus are varied: the crowds are favorable to him (1, 27.37.45; 2, 15; 3, 8); the scribes and Pharisees are increasingly hostile (2, 13—3, 6); his relatives are unbelieving (3, 20f). Faith in Jesus' prophetic word creates a relationship superior to that between himself and his relatives.

one can enter a strong man's house and despoil his property unless he has first put him under restraint. Only then can he plunder his house.

<sup>28*</sup> "I give you my word, every sin will be forgiven mankind and all the blasphemies men utter, <sup>29</sup> but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit will never be forgiven. He carries the guilt of his sin without end." <sup>30</sup> He spoke thus because they had said, "He is possessed by an unclean spirit."

Jesus and His Family. <sup>31*</sup> His mother and his brothers arrived, and as they stood outside they sent word to him to come out. <sup>32</sup> The crowd seated around him told him, "Your mother and your brothers and sisters are outside asking for you." <sup>33</sup> He said in reply, "Who are my mother and my brothers?" <sup>34</sup> And gazing around him at those seated in the circle he continued, "These are my mother and my brothers. <sup>35</sup> Whoever does the will of God is brother and sister and mother to me."

CHAPTER 4

Parable of the Seed. <sup>1*†</sup> On another occasion he began to teach beside the lake. Such a huge crowd gathered around him that he went and sat in a boat on the water, while the crowd remained on the shore nearby. <sup>2</sup> He began to instruct them at great length, by the use of parables, and in the course of his teaching said: <sup>3</sup> "Listen carefully to this. A farmer went out sowing. <sup>4</sup> Some of what he sowed landed on the footpath, where the birds came along and ate it. <sup>5</sup> Some of the seed landed on rocky ground where it had little soil; it sprouted immediately because the soil had no depth. <sup>6</sup> Then, when the sun rose and scorched it, it began to wither for lack of roots. <sup>7</sup> Again, some landed among thorns, which grew up and choked it off, and there was no yield of grain. <sup>8</sup> Some seed, finally, landed on good soil and yielded grain that sprang up to produce at a rate of thirty- and sixty- and a hundredfold." <sup>9</sup> Having spoken this parable, he added: "Let him who has ears to hear me, hear!"

<sup>10†</sup> Now when he was away from the crowd, those present with the Twelve questioned him about the parables. <sup>11</sup> He told them: "To you the mystery of the reign of God has been confided. To the others outside it is all presented in parables, <sup>12*</sup> so that they will look intently and not see, listen carefully and not understand, lest perhaps they repent and be forgiven."

<sup>13*</sup> He said to them: "You do not understand this parable? How then are you going to understand other figures like it? <sup>14</sup> What the sower is sowing is the word.

<sup>15</sup> Those on the path are the ones to whom, as soon as they hear the word, Satan comes to carry off what was sown in them. <sup>16</sup> Similarly, those sown on rocky ground are people who on listening to the word accept it joyfully at the outset. <sup>17</sup> Being rootless, they last only a while. When some pressure or persecution overtakes them because of the word, they falter. <sup>18</sup> Those sown among thorns are another class. They have listened to the word, <sup>19</sup> but anxieties over life's demands, and the desire for wealth, and cravings of other sorts come to choke it off; it bears no yield. <sup>20</sup> But those sown on good soil are the ones who listen to the word, take it to heart, and yield at thirty- and sixty- and a hundredfold."

Purpose of This Teaching. † <sup>21*</sup> He said to them: "Is a lamp acquired to be put under a bushel basket or hidden under a bed? Is it not meant to be put on a stand? <sup>22*</sup> Things are hidden only to be revealed at a later time; they are covered so as to be brought out into the open. <sup>23</sup> Let him who has ears to hear me, hear!" <sup>24*</sup> He said to them another time: "Listen carefully to what you hear. In the measure you give you shall receive, and more besides. <sup>25*</sup> To those who have, more will be given; from those who have not, what little they have will be taken away."

Seed Grows of Itself. † <sup>26*</sup> He also said:

28: Lk 12, 10.	8, 11-15.
31-35: Mt 12, 46-50; Lk 8, 19ff.	21-25: Lk 8, 16ff.
4,1-12: Mt 13, 18-23; Lk 8, 4-10.	21: Mt 5, 15; Lk 11, 33.
1: 2, 13; Lk 5, 1.	22: Mt 10, 26; Lk 12, 2.
12: Is 6, 9; Jn 12, 40; Acts 28, 26; Rom 11, 8.	24: Mt 7, 2; Lk 6, 38.
13-20: Mt 13, 18-23; Lk 8, 12; Lk 19, 26.	25: Mt 13, 12; Lk 19, 26.
	26-29: Jas 5, 7.

†

4, 1-34: See note on Mt 13, 1-53 for the sense of the parables of the sower, the mustard seed, and the leaven.

4, 10ff: In Mt 13, 10, attention centers on the method of teaching in parables. Jesus gives the same response here as he gave there. The light shed by the parables on the reign of God, though real, is far from complete. For the disciples, well-disposed to accept the teaching, questions are answered; not so for the crowds, ill-prepared at this time to abandon their false preconceptions. Thus Mark indicates a gradual unveiling of the mystery, beginning with the parables and continuing as a slow realization on the part of hearers that the traditional conceptions about God's reign were false and contrary to his plan; cf Mt 13, 33. Divine wisdom is described as justified in this procedure in terms of Is 6, 9f.

4, 21-25: These sayings, found in other contexts as well (Mt 5, 15; 7, 2; 10, 26; 13, 12), are here presented as commentary on the revelation of the reign of God. Jesus' teaching in parables begins this revelation (21); time and events will make it more clear (22). Acceptance of the original light gives promise of more in the future (24). Conversely, rejection of that light results in greater obscurity and misunderstanding (25).

4, 26-29: This parable is found only in Mark. Through the ministry of Jesus, God's sovereign rule over men is made manifest. It comes without warning; it is destined to spread throughout the world and to continue for the length of time set by God.

"This is how it is with the reign of God. A man scatters seed on the ground. <sup>27</sup> He goes to bed and gets up day after day. Through it all the seed sprouts and grows without his knowing how it happens. <sup>28</sup> The soil produces of itself first the blade, then the ear, finally the ripe wheat in the ear. <sup>29</sup> When the crop is ready he wields the sickle, for the time is ripe for harvest."

The Mustard Seed. <sup>30*</sup> He went on to say: "What comparison shall we use for the reign of God? What image will help to present it? <sup>31</sup> It is like mustard seed which, when planted in the soil, is the smallest of all the earth's seeds, <sup>32</sup> yet once it is sown, springs up to become the largest of shrubs, with branches big enough for the birds of the sky to build nests in its shade." <sup>33†</sup> By means of many such parables he taught them the message in a way they could understand. <sup>34</sup> To them he spoke only by way of parable, while he kept explaining things privately to his disciples.

The Storm on the Sea. <sup>35*</sup> That day as evening drew on he said to them, "Let us cross over to the farther shore." <sup>36</sup> Leaving the crowd, they took him away in the boat in which he was sitting, while the other boats accompanied him. <sup>37</sup> It happened that a bad squall blew up. The waves were breaking over the boat and it began to ship water badly. <sup>38</sup> Jesus was in the stern through it all, sound asleep on a cushion. They finally woke him and said to him, "Teacher, does it not matter to you that we are going to drown?" <sup>39</sup> He awoke and rebuked the wind and said to the sea: "Quiet! Be still!" The wind fell off and everything grew calm. <sup>40</sup> Then he said to them, "Why are you so terrified? Why are you lacking in faith?" <sup>41*</sup> A great awe overcame them at this. They kept saying to one another, "Who can this be that the wind and the sea obey him?"

CHAPTER 5

Expulsion of the Devils in Gerasa.

<sup>1*</sup> They came to Gerasene territory on the other side of the lake. <sup>2</sup> As he got out of the boat, he was immediately met by a man from the tombs who had an unclean spirit. <sup>3</sup> The man had taken refuge among the tombs; he could no longer be restrained even with a chain. <sup>4</sup> In fact, he had frequently been secured with handcuffs and chains, but had pulled the chains apart and smashed the fetters. No one had proved strong enough to tame him. <sup>5</sup> Uninterruptedly night and day, amid the tombs and on the hillsides, he screamed and gashed himself with stones. <sup>6</sup> Catching sight of Jesus at a distance, he ran up and did him homage, <sup>7</sup> shrieking in a loud voice, "Why meddle with me, Jesus, Son of God Most High? I implore you in God's name, do not torture me!" <sup>8</sup> (Jesus had been saying to him, "Unclean spirit, come out of the man!") <sup>9*</sup> "What is your name?" Jesus asked him. "Legion is my name," he answered. "There are hundreds of us." <sup>10</sup> He pleaded hard with Jesus not to drive them away from that neighborhood.

<sup>11</sup> It happened that a large herd of swine was feeding there on the slope of the mountain. <sup>12</sup> "Send us into the swine," they begged him. "Let us enter them." <sup>13</sup> He gave the word, and with it the unclean spirits came out and entered the swine. The herd of about two thousand went rushing down the bluff into the lake, where they began to drown. <sup>14</sup> The swineherds ran off and brought the news to field and village, and the people came to see what had happened. <sup>15</sup> As they approached Jesus, they caught sight of the man who had been possessed by Legion sitting fully clothed and perfectly sane, and they were seized with fear. <sup>16</sup> The spectators explained what had happened to the possessed man, and told them about the swine. <sup>17</sup> Before long they were begging him to go away from their district. <sup>18</sup> As Jesus was getting into the boat, the man who had been possessed was pressing to accompany him. <sup>19</sup> Jesus did not grant his request, but told him instead: "Go home to your family and make it clear to them how much the Lord in his mercy has done for you." <sup>20</sup> At that the man went off and began to proclaim throughout the Ten Cities what Jesus had done for him. They were all amazed at what they heard.

The Daughter of Jairus; the Woman with a Hemorrhage. <sup>21*</sup> Now when Jesus had crossed back to the other side again in the boat, a large crowd gath-

30-32: Mt 13, 31f; Lk 13, 18f.	5, 1-17: Mt 8, 28-34; Lk 8, 26-37.
35-40: Mt 8, 18, 23-27; Lk 8, 22-25.	9: Mt 12, 45; Lk 8, 2; 11, 26.
41: 1, 27.	21: 2, 13.

† 4, 33f: See note on 4, 10ff.
4, 35-41: The sequence of action in this event is rearranged in Mt 8, 23-27 to teach the Christian community what great trust in Jesus it must have in time of peril. In Mark, the disciples' panic is reflected in their reproachful question to Jesus. He in return interprets the event for them as showing the need for absolute confidence in him.

5, 21-43: This narrative is significant for Christology. Jesus knows that a cure has occurred in favor of someone who touched him; he does not know the person's identity (30). Informed of the death of Jairus' daughter, he decides his course of action from the development of events; he recognizes in them the divine will to raise the girl to life (35f). His assertion, The child is not dead. She is asleep, leaves the girl's condition unclear (38), so that he can more easily prohibit the witnesses from speaking of the event as an unmistakable manifestation of his power to raise the dead (43).

CHAPTER 6

ered around him and he stayed close to the lake. <sup>22*</sup> One of the officials of the synagogue, a man named Jairus, came near. Seeing Jesus, he fell at his feet <sup>23</sup> and made this earnest appeal: "My little daughter is critically ill. Please come and lay your hands on her so that she may get well and live." <sup>24</sup> The two went off together and a large crowd followed, pushing against Jesus.

<sup>25</sup> There was a woman in the area who had been afflicted with a hemorrhage for a dozen years. <sup>26</sup> She had received treatment at the hands of doctors of every sort and exhausted her savings in the process, yet she got no relief; on the contrary, she only grew worse. <sup>27</sup> She had heard about Jesus and came up behind him in the crowd and put her hand to his cloak. <sup>28</sup> "If I just touch his clothing," she thought, "I shall get well." <sup>29</sup> Immediately her flow of blood dried up and the feeling that she was cured of her affliction ran through her whole body. <sup>30</sup> Jesus was conscious at once that healing power had gone out from him. Wheeling about in the crowd, he began to ask, "Who touched my clothing?" <sup>31</sup> His disciples said to him, "You can see how this crowd hems you in, yet you ask, 'Who touched me?'" <sup>32</sup> Despite this, he kept looking around to see the woman who had done it. <sup>33</sup> Fearful and beginning to tremble now as she realized what had happened, the woman came and fell in front of him and told him the whole truth. <sup>34*</sup> He said to her, "Daughter, it is your faith that has cured you. Go in peace and be free of this illness."

<sup>35</sup> He had not finished speaking when people from the official's house arrived saying, "Your daughter is dead. Why bother the Teacher further?" <sup>36</sup> Jesus disregarded the report that had been brought and said to the official: "Fear is useless. What is needed is trust." <sup>37</sup> He would not permit anyone to follow him except Peter, James, and James' brother John. <sup>38</sup> As they approached the house of the synagogue leader, Jesus was struck by the noise of people wailing and crying loudly on all sides. <sup>39*</sup> He entered and said to them: "Why do you make this din with your wailing? The child is not dead. She is asleep." <sup>40</sup> At this they began to ridicule him. Then he put them all out.

Jesus took the child's father and mother and his own companions and entered the room where the child lay. <sup>41</sup> Taking her hand, he said to her, "Talitha, koum," which means, "Little girl, get up." <sup>42</sup> The girl, a child of twelve, stood up immediately and began to walk around. At this the family's astonishment knew no bounds. <sup>43</sup> He enjoined them strictly not to let anyone know about it, and told them to give her something to eat.

Jesus at Nazareth.† <sup>1*</sup> He departed from there and returned to his own part of the country followed by his disciples.

<sup>2</sup> When the sabbath came he began to teach in the synagogue in a way that kept his large audience amazed. They said: "Where did he get all this? What kind of wisdom is he endowed with? How is it that such miraculous deeds are accomplished by his hands?" <sup>3*</sup> Is this not the carpenter, the son of Mary, a brother of James and Joses and Judas and Simon? Are not his sisters our neighbors here?" They found him too much for them. <sup>4*</sup> Jesus' response to all this was: "No prophet is without honor except in his native place, among his own kindred, and in his own house." <sup>5</sup> He could work no miracle there, apart from curing a few who were sick by laying hands on them, <sup>6</sup> so much did their lack of faith distress him. He made the rounds of the neighboring villages instead, and spent his time teaching.

Mission of the Twelve. <sup>7*</sup> Jesus summoned the Twelve and began to send them out two by two, giving them authority over unclean spirits. <sup>8</sup> He instructed them to take nothing on their journey but a walking stick—no food, no traveling bag, not a coin in the purses in their belts. <sup>9</sup> They were, however, to wear sandals. "Do not bring a second tunic," he said, <sup>10</sup> and added: "Whatever house you find yourself in, stay there until you leave the locality. <sup>11</sup> If any place will not receive you or hear you, shake its dust from your feet in testimony against them as you leave." <sup>12</sup> With that they went off, preaching the need of repentance. <sup>13*</sup> They expelled many demons, anointed the sick with oil, and worked many cures.

Death of the Baptizer. <sup>14*</sup> King Herod came to hear of Jesus, for his reputation had become widespread and people were saying, "John the Baptizer has

---

22-43: Mt 9, 18-26; Lk 8, 41-56.	46: Jn 6, 42.
34: Lk 7, 50.	4: Jn 4, 44.
39f: Acts 9, 40.	7-11: Mt 10, 1, 9-14; Lk 9, 1; 10, 4-11.
6, 1-6: Mt 13, 54-58; Lk 4, 16-30.	13: Jas 5, 14.
3: 15, 40; Mt 12,	14f: Lk 9, 7f.
	14-29: Mt 14, 1-12.

† 6, 1-6: The townsmen of Jesus were not disposed to believe in him because he had not first exercised his power of miracles in their midst (2f). Is this not the carpenter. . . our neighbors here?: some manuscripts have, "Is this not the carpenter's son?" The question about the brothers of Jesus and his sisters (v 3) cannot easily be decided on linguistic grounds. Greek-speaking Semites use the terms adelphos and adelphē, not only in the ordinary sense of blood brother and sister, but also for nephew, niece, half-brother, half-sister, and cousin. The question of meaning here would not have arisen but for the faith of the church in Mary's perpetual virginity.

been raised from the dead; that is why such miraculous powers are at work in him."<sup>15</sup> Others were saying, "He is Elijah"; still others, "He is a prophet equal to any of the prophets."<sup>16</sup> On hearing of Jesus, Herod exclaimed, "John, whose head I had cut off, has been raised up!"<sup>17</sup> Herod was the one who had ordered John arrested, chained, and imprisoned on account of Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip, whom he had married.<sup>18</sup> That was because John had told Herod, "It is not right for you to live with your brother's wife."<sup>19</sup> Herodias harbored a grudge against him for this and wanted to kill him but was unable to do so.<sup>20</sup> Herod feared John, knowing him to be an upright and holy man, and kept him in custody. When he heard him speak he was very much disturbed; yet he felt the attraction of his words.<sup>21</sup> Herodias had her chance one day when Herod held a birthday dinner for his court circle, military officers, and the leading men of Galilee.<sup>22</sup> Herodias' own daughter came in at one point and performed a dance which delighted Herod and his guests. The king told the girl, "Ask for anything you want and I will give it to you."<sup>23</sup> He went so far as to swear to her: "I will grant you whatever you ask, even to half my kingdom!"<sup>24</sup> She went out and said to her mother, "What shall I ask for?" The mother answered, "The head of John the Baptizer."<sup>25</sup> At that the girl hurried back to the king's presence and made her request: "I want you to give me, at once, the head of John the Baptizer on a platter."<sup>26</sup> The king bitterly regretted the request; yet because of his oath and the presence of the guests, he did not want to refuse her.<sup>27</sup> He promptly dispatched an executioner, ordering him to bring back the Baptizer's head.<sup>28</sup> The man went and beheaded John in the prison. He brought in the head on a platter and gave it to the girl, and the girl gave it to her mother.<sup>29</sup> Later, when his disciples heard about this, they came and carried his body away and laid it in a tomb.

Return of the Disciples.<sup>30</sup> The apostles returned to Jesus and reported to him all that they had done and what they had taught.<sup>31</sup> He said to them, "Come by yourselves to an out-of-the-way place and rest a little." People were coming and going in great numbers, making it impossible for them to do so much as eat.<sup>32</sup> So Jesus and the apostles went off in the boat by themselves to a deserted place.<sup>33</sup> People saw them leaving, and many got to know about it. People from all the towns hastened on foot to the place, arriving ahead of them.

Jesus Feeds Five Thousand.<sup>34</sup> Upon disembarking Jesus saw a vast crowd. He pitied them, for they were like sheep without a shepherd; and he began to teach them at great length.<sup>35</sup> It was now getting late and his disciples came to him with a suggestion: "This is a deserted place and it is already late.<sup>36</sup> Why do you not dismiss them so that they can go to the crossroads and villages around here and buy themselves something to eat?"<sup>37</sup> "You give them something to eat," Jesus replied. At that they said, "Are we to go and spend two hundred days' wages for bread to feed them?"<sup>38</sup> "How many loaves have you?" Jesus asked. "Go and see." When they learned the number they answered, "Five, and two fish."<sup>39</sup> He told them to make the people sit down on the green grass in groups or parties.<sup>40</sup> The people took their places in hundreds and fifties, neatly arranged like flower beds.<sup>41</sup> Then, taking the five loaves and the two fish, Jesus raised his eyes to heaven, pronounced a blessing, broke the loaves, and gave them to the disciples to distribute. He divided the two fish among all of them<sup>42</sup> and they ate until they had their fill.<sup>43</sup> They gathered up enough leftovers to fill twelve baskets, besides what remained of the fish.<sup>44</sup> Those who had eaten the loaves numbered five thousand men.

Jesus Walks on the Water.<sup>45</sup> Immediately afterward he insisted that his disciples get into the boat and precede him to the other side toward Bethsaida, while he dismissed the crowd.<sup>46</sup> When he had taken leave of them, he went off to the mountain to pray.<sup>47</sup> As evening drew on, the boat was far out on the lake while he was alone on the land.<sup>48</sup> Then, seeing them tossed about as they tried to row with the wind against them, he came walking toward them on the water; the time was between three and six in the morning. He meant to pass them by.<sup>49</sup> When they saw him walking on the lake, they thought it was a ghost and they began to cry out.<sup>50</sup> They had all seen him and were terrified. He hastened to reassure them: "Get hold of yourselves! It is I. Do not be afraid!"<sup>51</sup> He got into the boat with them and the wind died down. They were taken aback by these happenings,<sup>52</sup> for they had not

15: Mt 16, 14.

17: Lk 3, 19f.

18: Lv 18, 16.

23: Est 5, 3.

27f: Lk 9, 9.

31: 3, 20; Mt 14, 13;

Lk 9, 10.

32-44: Mt 14, 13-21; Lk

9, 10-17; Jn 6,

1-13.

45-51: Mt 14, 22-32; Jn

6, 15-21.

52: 4, 13.

†

6, 45-52: Mt 14, 22-33 and Jn 6, 15-21, as well as Mark, place the event of Jesus' walking on the sea after the miracle of the loaves and fish. The disciples would not have been so astonished at it had they understood the meaning of the multiplication of the loaves (51f). But contrast Matthew's conclusion in 14, 33.

understood about the loaves. On the contrary, their minds were completely closed to the meaning of the events.

Other Miracles.†<sup>53</sup> After making the crossing they came ashore at Gennesaret, and tied up there.<sup>54</sup> As they were leaving the boat people immediately recognized him.<sup>55</sup> The crowds scurried about the adjacent area and began to bring in the sick on bedrolls to the place where they heard he was.<sup>56*</sup> Wherever he put in an appearance, in villages, in towns, or at crossroads, they laid the sick in the market places and begged him to let them touch just the tassel of his cloak. All who touched him got well.

CHAPTER 7

Jesus and the Pharisees. 1*† The Pharisees and some of the experts in the law who had come from Jerusalem gathered around him. 2 They had observed a few of his disciples eating meals without having purified—that is to say, washed—their hands. 3 The Pharisees, and in fact all Jews, cling to the custom of their ancestors and never eat without scrupulously washing their hands. 4 Moreover, they never eat anything from the market without first sprinkling it. There are many other traditions they observe—for example, the washing of cups and jugs and kettles. 5 So the Pharisees and the scribes questioned him: “Why do your disciples not follow the tradition of our ancestors, but instead take food without purifying their hands?” 6* He said to them: “How accurately Isaiah prophesied about you hypocrites when he wrote,

‘This people pays me lip service but their heart is far from me.

7 Empty is the reverence they do me because they teach as dogmas mere human precepts.’

8 You disregard God’s commandment and cling to what is human tradition.”

9 He went on to say: “You have made a fine art of setting aside God’s commandment in the interests of keeping your traditions! 10* For example, Moses said, ‘Honor your father and your mother’; and in another place, ‘Whoever curses father or mother shall be put to death.’ 11 Yet you declare, ‘If a person says to his father or mother, Any support you might have had from me is korban’ (that is, dedicated to God), 12 you allow him to do nothing more for his father or mother. 13 That is the way you nullify God’s word in favor of the traditions you have handed on. And you have many other such practices besides.” 14* He summoned the crowd again and said to them: “Hear me, all of you, and try to understand. 15 Nothing that enters a man from outside can make him impure; that which comes out of him, and only that, constitutes impurity. 16 Let everyone heed what he hears!”

17* When he got home, away from the crowd, his disciples questioned him about the proverb. 18 “Are you, too, incapable of understanding?” he asked them. “Do you not see that nothing that enters a man from outside can make him impure? 19* It does not penetrate his being, but enters his stomach only and passes into the latrine.” Thus did he render all foods clean. 20 He went on: “What emerges from within a man, that and nothing else is what makes him impure. 21* Wicked designs come from the deep recesses of the heart: acts of fornication, theft, murder, 22 adulterous conduct, greed, maliciousness, deceit, sensuality, envy, blasphemy, arrogance, an obtuse spirit. 23 All these evils come from within and render a man impure.”

A Canaanite Woman. 24*† From that place he went off to the territory of Tyre and Sidon. He retired to a certain house and wanted no one to recognize him; however, he could not escape notice. 25 Soon a woman, whose small daughter had an unclean spirit, heard about him. She approached him and crouched at his feet. 26* The woman who was Greek—a Syro-Phoenician by birth—began to beg him to expel the demon from her daughter. 27 He told her: “Let the sons of the household satisfy themselves at table first. It is not right to take the food of the children and throw it to the dogs.”

56: 5, 27f; Acts 5, 15.	14-23: Mt 15, 10-20. 17: 4, 10, 13.
7, 1-30: Mt 15, 1-28.	19: Acts 10, 15.
6: Is 29, 13.	21: Jer 17, 9.
10: Ex 21, 17; Lv 20, 9; Dt 5, 16; Eph 6, 2.	24-30: Mt 15, 21-28. 26: Mt 8, 29.

† 6, 53-56: This summary statement conveys the popular faith in Jesus. Came ashore at Gennesaret: in Jn 6, 24 the name of the place is Capernaum, an apparent indication of two traditions underlying the account.

7, 1-23: The reference to ceremonial washings (2ff) reflects, no doubt, the opposition of the early Christian communities to them. Jesus is described as criticizing the overconcern of the scribes and Pharisees for their traditions to the neglect of the commandments enunciated in the Scriptures (6ff); see note on Mt 15, 5f. Even among Gentile Christians scruples existed concerning the moral implications supposedly inherent in the eating of certain foods (Rom 14, 2f, 6), a fact that accounts for the editorial observation in Mk 7, 19.

7, 24-30: The Syro-Phoenician woman ascribes her daughter’s illness to an evil spirit. The mind of the time was inclined to attribute the more baffling sicknesses to satanic power. Without contesting the woman’s assertion, Jesus pronounces the curing word in the same terms: The demon has already left your daughter.

Jewish authors sometimes used the term “dogs” of Gentiles to express their scorn of paganism. Because the woman’s subtle response acknowledges her dependence on the God of Israel, whom Jesus represents, he cures her daughter.

<sup>28</sup> "Please, Lord," she replied, "even the dogs under the table eat the family's leavings." <sup>29</sup> Then he said to her, "For such a reply, be off now! The demon has already left your daughter." <sup>30</sup> When she got home, she found the child lying in bed and the demon gone.

Healing of a Deaf-mute. <sup>31*</sup> He then left Tyrian territory and returned by way of Sidon to the Sea of Galilee, into the district of the Ten Cities. <sup>32</sup> Some people brought him a deaf man who had a speech impediment and begged him to lay his hand on him. <sup>33</sup> Jesus took him off by himself away from the crowd. He put his fingers into the man's ears and, spitting, touched his tongue; <sup>34</sup> then he looked up to heaven and emitted a groan. He said to him, "Ephphatha!" (that is, "Be opened!") <sup>35</sup> At once the man's ears were opened; he was freed from the impediment, and began to speak plainly. <sup>36</sup> Then he enjoined them strictly not to tell anyone; but the more he ordered them not to, the more they proclaimed it. <sup>37*</sup> Their amazement went beyond all bounds: "He has done everything well! He makes the deaf hear and the mute speak!"

CHAPTER 8

Jesus Feeds Four Thousand. <sup>1*†</sup> At about that time another large crowd assembled, and they were without anything to eat. He called the disciples over to him and said: <sup>2</sup> "My heart is moved with pity for the crowd. By now they have been with me three days and have nothing to eat. <sup>3</sup> If I send them home hungry, they will collapse on the way. Some of them have come a great distance." <sup>4</sup> His disciples replied, "How can anyone give these people sufficient bread in this deserted spot?" <sup>5</sup> Still he asked them, "How many loaves do you have?" "Seven," they replied. <sup>6</sup> Then he directed the crowd to take their places on the ground. Taking the seven loaves he gave thanks, broke them, and gave them to his disciples to distribute, and they handed them out to the crowd. <sup>7</sup> They also had a few small fish; asking a blessing on the fish, he told them to distribute these also. <sup>8</sup> The people in the crowd ate until they had their fill; then they gathered up seven wicker baskets of leftovers. <sup>9</sup> Those who had eaten numbered about four thousand.

<sup>10</sup> He dismissed them and got into the boat with his disciples to go to the neighborhood of Dalmanutha.

The Pharisees Ask a Sign. <sup>11*†</sup> The Pharisees came forward and began to argue with him. They were looking for some heavenly sign from him as a test. <sup>12</sup> With a sigh from the depths of his spirit he said, "Why does this age seek a sign? I assure you, no such sign will be given it!" <sup>13</sup> Then he left them, got into the boat again, and went off to the other shore.

The Leaven of the Pharisees. <sup>14*</sup> They had forgotten to bring any bread along; except for one loaf they had none with them in the boat. <sup>15†</sup> So when he instructed them, "Keep your eyes open! Be on your guard against the yeast of the Pharisees and the yeast of Herod," <sup>16</sup> they concluded among themselves that it was because they had no bread. <sup>17*</sup> Aware of this he said to them, "Why do you suppose that it is because you have no bread? Do you still not see or comprehend? Are your minds completely blinded? <sup>18*</sup> Have you eyes but no sight? Ears but no hearing? <sup>19</sup> Do you remember when I broke the five loaves for the five thousand, how many baskets of fragments you gathered up?" They answered, "Twelve." <sup>20</sup> "When I broke the seven loaves for the four thousand, how many full hampers of fragments did you collect?" They answered, "Seven." <sup>21</sup> He said to them again, "Do you still not understand?"

A Blind Man at Bethsaida. <sup>22</sup> When they arrived at Bethsaida, some people brought him a blind man and begged him to touch him. <sup>23*</sup> Jesus took the blind man's hand and led him outside the village. Putting spittle on his eyes he laid his hands on him and asked, "Can you see anything?" <sup>24</sup> The man opened his 31-37: Mt 15, 29ff.

37: Mt 15, 31.

8, 1-10: Mt 15, 32-39; 6, 34-44.

11ff: Mt 12, 38f; 16,

1-4.

11: Lk 11, 16.

14f: Mt 16, 5f; Lk 12,

1.

17: 4, 13.

18: Jer 5, 21; Ez 12,

2.

23: 7, 33; Jn 9, 6.

†

7, 31-37: The actions attributed to Jesus (33f) were used by healers of the time, who considered them effective in themselves. With Jesus, however, they have a sacramental purpose inasmuch as they are effective by his power through his relation to the Father; cf. Jn 11, 41, 17, 1.

8, 1-9: Many scholars regard this as a second version of the one multiplication of loaves, set in a Gentile context because of the eucharistic significance which the early Christian communities saw in it. Note that in this account Jesus' initiative in feeding the crowd is emphasized; the disciples appear helpless except in dependence on him (2f).

8, 11f: The Pharisees object that the miracles wrought by Jesus are unsatisfactory as proof of the arrival of God's reign. This is comparable to the complaint in Jn 6, 30f. Jesus replies that a request for a sign which originates in human distrust will not be provided.

8, 15: Be on your guard against the yeast . . . of Herod: Mt 16, 12 explains the leaven as the teaching of the religious authorities; Lk 12, 1 takes it to symbolize their hypocrisy. In the light of Mk 8, 11f, the reference here is to their deep-seated hostility toward Jesus, which for different reasons Herod also shares.

8, 22-26: Jesus' actions and the gradual cure of the blind man probably have the same purpose as in the case of the deaf man; see note on 7, 31-37. Some authors regard the cure as an intended symbol of the gradual enlightenment of the disciples concerning the difference between Jesus' teaching and the views of the authorities.

eyes and said, "I can see people but they look like walking trees!"<sup>25</sup> Then a second time Jesus laid hands on his eyes, and he saw perfectly; his sight was restored and he could see everything clearly.<sup>26</sup> Jesus sent him home with the admonition, "Do not even go into the village."

III: THE MYSTERY BEGINS TO BE REVEALED

The Messiah.†<sup>27*</sup> Then Jesus and his disciples set out for the villages around Caesarea Philippi. On the way he asked his disciples this question: "Who do people say that I am?"<sup>28</sup> They replied, "Some, John the Baptizer, others, Elijah, still others, one of the prophets."<sup>29</sup> "And you," he went on to ask, "who do you say that I am?" Peter answered him, "You are the Messiah!"<sup>30</sup> Then he gave them strict orders not to tell anyone about him.

First Teaching of the Paschal Event.<sup>31*†</sup> He began to teach them that the Son of Man had to suffer much, be rejected by the elders, the chief priests, and the scribes, be put to death, and rise three days later.<sup>32</sup> He said these things quite openly. Peter then took him aside and began to remonstrate with him.<sup>33</sup> At this he turned around and, eyeing the disciples, reprimanded Peter: "Get out of my sight, you satan! You are not judging by God's standards but by man's!"

The Doctrine of the Cross.†<sup>34*</sup> He summoned the crowd with his disciples and said to them: "If a man wishes to come after me, he must deny his very self, take up his cross, and follow in my steps.<sup>35*</sup> Whoever would preserve his life will lose it, but whoever loses his life for my sake and the gospel's will preserve it.<sup>36</sup> What profit does a man show who gains the whole world and destroys himself in the process?<sup>37</sup> What can a man offer in exchange for his life?<sup>38*</sup> If anyone in this faithless and corrupt age is ashamed of me and my doctrine, the Son of Man will be ashamed of him when he comes with the holy angels in his Father's glory."

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> He also said to them: "I assure you, among those standing here there are some who will not taste death until they see the reign of God established in power."

Jesus Transfigured.†<sup>2*</sup> Six days later, Jesus took Peter, James, and John off by themselves with him and led them up a high mountain. He was transfigured before their eyes<sup>3</sup> and his clothes became dazzlingly white—whiter than the work of any bleacher could make them.<sup>4</sup> Elijah appeared to them along with Moses; the two were in conversation with Jesus.<sup>5</sup> Then Peter spoke to Jesus: "Rabbi, how good it is for us to be here! Let us erect three booths on this site, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah."<sup>6</sup> He hardly knew what to say, for they were all overcome with awe.<sup>7</sup> A cloud came, overshadowing them, and out of the cloud a voice: "This is my Son, my beloved. Listen to him."<sup>8</sup> Suddenly looking around they no longer saw anyone with them—only Jesus.

On the Coming of Elijah.<sup>9*</sup> As they were coming down the mountain, he strictly enjoined them not to tell anyone what they had seen, before the Son of Man had risen from the dead.<sup>10</sup> They kept this word of his to themselves, though they continued to discuss what "to rise from the dead" meant.<sup>11*</sup> Finally they put to him this question: "Why do the scribes claim that Elijah

27ff: Mt 16, 13-16; Lk 9, 18ff.	38: Mt 10, 33; Lk 12, 8.
31-38: Mt 16, 21-27; Lk 9, 22-26.	9, 2-13: Mt 17, 1-13; Lk 9, 28-36.
34: Mt 10, 38f; 16, 24-27; Lk 14, 26f.	9: 8, 31.
35: Jn 12, 25.	11f: Is 53, 3; Mal 3, 23.

† 8, 27-30: This episode marks a turning point in Mark's portrait of Jesus in his public ministry. Varieties of popular opinion concerning him concur in regarding him as a prophet. The disciples, by contrast, believe him to be the Messiah. He is described as acknowledging this identification, but prohibits them from making his messianic office known.

8, 31f: Son of Man: an enigmatic title. Jewish apocryphal tradition (1 Enoch, 4 Ezra, 2 Baruch) uses it to describe a unique religious personage, a messiah with extraordinary spiritual endowments. Jesus' use of it seems to derive from Ez 2, where it is a title of humility, and Dn 7, 13f, where it indicates a clearly messianic figure. It expresses for him his twofold destiny, of suffering (8, 31; 9, 11, 31; 10, 33; 12, 31; 14, 21) and of glory (8, 38; 12, 36; 14, 62). Peter, along with the other disciples, fails (despite his confession) to grasp the association of suffering and death with the office of Messiah.

8, 34—9, 1: Mt 16, 24-28 and Lk 9, 23-27 place these sayings in the same context as Mark, namely, Peter's messianic confession and Jesus' rebuke to Peter and the disciples in the prophecy of the passion. Mark and Luke apply the doctrine of the cross to Christians in general. The disciples are instructed to sacrifice even life itself to follow Jesus (34). To strengthen their waning confidence, Jesus foretells that some of them will live to see the arrival of the reign of God in power (9, 1).

9, 2-8: The synoptic gospels place the transfiguration of Jesus six days after the first prediction of his passion and death and his instruction to the disciples on the doctrine of the cross (Mt 17, 1-8; Lk 9, 28-36). Thus it counterbalances the prediction of the passion by affording certain of the disciples' insight into the divine glory which he possessed. His glory will overcome his death and that of his disciples; cf 2 Pt 1, 16f; 2 Cor 3, 18. The heavenly voice (6) prepares the disciples to understand that in the divine plan Jesus must die ignominiously before his messianic glory is made manifest; cf Lk 24, 25ff. The appearance of Moses and Elijah indicates that the purpose of both the law and the prophets was to prepare for Christ.

must come first?"<sup>12</sup> He told them: "Elijah will indeed come first and restore everything. Yet why does Scripture say of the Son of Man that he must suffer much and be despised?"<sup>13*</sup> Let me assure you, Elijah has already come. They did entirely as they pleased with him, as the Scriptures say of him."

A Possessed Boy.†<sup>14*</sup> As they approached the disciples, they saw a large crowd standing around, and scribes in lively discussion with them.<sup>15</sup> Immediately on catching sight of Jesus, the whole crowd was overcome with awe. They ran up to greet him.<sup>16</sup> He asked them, "What are you discussing among yourselves?"<sup>17</sup> "Teacher," a man in the crowd replied, "I have brought my son to you because he is possessed by a mute spirit.<sup>18</sup> Whenever it seizes him it throws him down; he foams at the mouth and grinds his teeth and becomes rigid. Just now I asked your disciples to expel him, but they were unable to do so."<sup>19</sup> He replied by saying to the crowd, "What an unbelieving lot you are! How long must I remain with you? How long can I endure you? Bring him to me."<sup>20</sup> When they did so the spirit caught sight of Jesus and immediately threw the boy into convulsions. As he fell to the ground he began to roll around and foam at the mouth.<sup>21</sup> Then Jesus questioned the father: "How long has this been happening to him?" "From childhood," the father replied.<sup>22</sup> "Often it throws him into fire and into water. You would think it would kill him. If out of the kindness of your heart you can do anything to help us, please do!"<sup>23</sup> Jesus said, "If you can? Everything is possible to a man who trusts."<sup>24</sup> The boy's father immediately exclaimed, "I do believe! Help my lack of trust!"<sup>25</sup> Jesus, on seeing a crowd rapidly gathering, reprimanded the unclean spirit by saying to him, "Mute and deaf spirit, I command you: Get out of him and never enter him again!"<sup>26</sup> Shouting, and throwing the boy into convulsions, it came out of him; the boy became like a corpse, which caused many to say, "He is dead."<sup>27</sup> But Jesus took him by the hand and helped him to his feet.<sup>28</sup> When Jesus arrived at the house his disciples began to ask him privately, "Why is it that we could not expel it?"<sup>29</sup> He told them, "This kind you can drive out only by prayer."

Second Teaching: Passion and Resurrection.†<sup>30*</sup> They left that district and began a journey through Galilee, but he did not want anyone to know about it.<sup>31*</sup> He was teaching his disciples in this vein: "The Son of Man is going to be delivered into the hands of men who will put him to death; three days after his death he will rise."<sup>32*</sup> Though they failed to understand his words, they were afraid to question him.

IV: THE FULL REVELATION OF THE MYSTERY

Against Ambition and Envy.

<sup>33*</sup>† They returned to Capernaum and Jesus, once inside the house, began to ask them, "What were you discussing on the way home?"<sup>34</sup> At this they fell silent, for on the way they had been arguing about who was the most important.<sup>35*</sup> So he sat down and called the Twelve around him and said, "If anyone wishes to rank first, he must remain the last one of all and the servant of all."<sup>36</sup> Then he took a little child, stood him in their midst, and putting his arms around him, said to them,<sup>37*</sup> "Whoever welcomes a child such as this for my sake welcomes me. And whoever welcomes me welcomes, not me, but him who sent me."<sup>38*</sup>† John said to him, "Teacher, we saw a man using your name to expel demons and we tried to stop him because he is not of our company."<sup>39</sup> Jesus said in reply: "Do not try to stop him. No man who performs a miracle using my name can at the same time speak ill of me."<sup>40*</sup> Anyone who is not against us is with us.<sup>41*</sup> Any man who gives you a drink of water because you belong to Christ will not, I assure you, go without his reward.<sup>42*</sup>† But it would be better if anyone who leads astray one of these simple believers were to be plunged in the sea

13: 1 Kgs 19, 2-10.	Jn 13, 20.
14-29: Mt 17, 14-21; Lk 9, 37-44.	38-41: Nm 11, 28; 1 Cor 12, 3; Lk 9, 49f.
30: Jn 7, 1.	40: Mt 12, 30.
31: 8, 31; Mt 17, 22; Lk 9, 44.	41: Mt 10, 42; 1 Cor 3, 23.
32: Lk 9, 45.	42-47: Mt 5, 29f; 18, 6-9.
33-37: Mt 18, 1-5; Lk 9, 46ff.	42: Lk 17, 2.
35: Mt 20, 27.
37: Mt 10, 40; 18, 5;

† 9, 14-29: The disciples' failure to effect a cure seems to reflect unfavorably on Jesus (14-18). In response, he exposes their lack of trust in God (19) and scores their neglect of prayer, i. e., of the conscious reliance on God's power when acting in Jesus' name. Mark and Matthew (17, 14-18) concur on this point; Luke (9, 37-43) centers attention on Jesus' sovereign power.

9, 30ff: Although the disciples heard Jesus' new prediction concerning his passion, they failed to accept its truth because they did not understand his messianic role.

9, 33-37: The evangelist probably intends this incident and the sayings that follow as a commentary on the disciples' lack of understanding (9, 32). Their role in Jesus' work is one of service, especially to the poor and lowly. For this concept of the child, see note on Mt 19, 13ff.

9, 38-41: Jesus warns against jealousy and intolerance toward good works, such as exorcism, performed in his name by those whose faith is imperfect. The saying in 9, 40 is a broad principle of the divine tolerance: God repays men for the smallest courtesies they show to those who teach in Jesus' name.

9, 42-50: A collection of Jesus' sayings, rather loosely connected. Vv 44 and 46 are omitted here as additions to the text taken from v 48 and a modified citation of Is 66, 24. The concluding sayings in vv 49f probably allude to the sacrifices required for loyal adherence to the teaching of Jesus. For the imagery of salt, cf Lv 2, 13 and note.

with a great millstone fastened around his neck.

<sup>43</sup> "If your hand is your difficulty, cut it off! Better for you to enter life maimed than to keep both hands and enter Gehenna with its unquenchable fire.† <sup>45</sup> If your foot is your undoing, cut it off! Better for you to enter life crippled than to be thrown into Gehenna with both feet.† <sup>47</sup> If your eye is your downfall, tear it out! Better for you to enter the kingdom of God with one eye than to be thrown with both eyes into Gehenna, <sup>48</sup>* where 'the worm dies not and the fire is never extinguished.' <sup>49</sup> Everyone will be salted with fire. <sup>50</sup>* Salt is excellent in its place; but if salt becomes tasteless, how can you season it? Keep salt in your hearts and you will be at peace with one another."

CHAPTER 10

† From there he moved on to the districts of Judea and across the Jordan. Once more crowds gathered around him, and as usual he began to teach them.

The Question of Divorce. <sup>2</sup>* Then some Pharisees came up and as a test began to ask him whether it was permissible for a husband to divorce his wife. <sup>3</sup> In reply he said, "What command did Moses give you?" <sup>4</sup>* They answered, "Moses permitted divorce and the writing of a decree of divorce." <sup>5</sup> But Jesus told them: "He wrote that commandment for you because of your stubbornness. <sup>6</sup>* At the beginning of creation God made them male and female; <sup>7</sup>* for this reason a man shall leave his father and mother <sup>8</sup> and the two shall become as one. They are no longer two but one flesh. <sup>9</sup> Therefore let no man separate what God has joined." <sup>10</sup> Back in the house again, the disciples began to question him about this. <sup>11</sup>* He told them, "Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against her; <sup>12</sup> and the woman who divorces her husband and marries another commits adultery."

Jesus Blesses the Children. <sup>13</sup>*† People were bringing their little children to him to have him touch them, but the disciples were scolding them for this. <sup>14</sup> Jesus became indignant when he noticed it and said to them: "Let the children come to me and do not hinder them. It is just such as these that the kingdom of God belongs. <sup>15</sup>* I assure you that whoever does not accept the reign of God like a little child shall not take part in it." <sup>16</sup> Then he embraced them and blessed them, placing his hands on them.

The Danger of Riches. <sup>17</sup>*† As he was setting out on a journey a man came running up, knelt down before him and asked, "Good Teacher, what must I do to share in everlasting life?" <sup>18</sup> Jesus answered, "Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone. <sup>19</sup>* You know the commandments:

'You shall not kill;
You shall not commit adultery;
You shall not steal;
You shall not bear false witness;
You shall not defraud;
Honor your father and your mother.'

<sup>20</sup> He replied, "Teacher, I have kept all these since my childhood." <sup>21</sup> Then Jesus looked at him with love and told him, "There is one thing more you must do. Go and sell what you have and give to the poor; you will then have treasure in heaven. After that, come and follow me." <sup>22</sup> At these words the man's face fell. He went away sad, for he had many possessions. <sup>23</sup>*† Jesus looked around and said to his disciples, "How hard it is for the rich to enter the kingdom of God!" <sup>24</sup> The disciples could only marvel at his words. So Jesus repeated what he had said: "My sons, how hard it is to enter the kingdom of God! <sup>25</sup> It is easier for a camel to pass through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God."

<sup>26</sup> They were completely overwhelmed at this, and exclaimed to one another, "Then who can be saved?" <sup>27</sup> Jesus fixed his gaze on them and said, "For man it is impossible but not for God. With God all things are possible."

<sup>28</sup>† Peter was moved to say to him, "We have put aside everything to follow you!" <sup>29</sup> Jesus answered: "I give you my word, there is no one who has given up home, brothers or sisters, mother or father, children or property, for me and for the gospel <sup>30</sup> who will not receive in this present age a hundred times as many homes, brothers and sisters, mothers, children and property—and persecution besides—and in the age to 48: Is 66, 24.	18; 1 Cor 7, 10f.

50: Lv 2, 13; Mt 5, 13; Lk 14, 34f;	13-16: Mt 19, 13ff; Lk 18, 15ff.
Col 4, 6.	13: Lk 9, 47.
10, 2-12: Mt 19, 3-9.	15: Mt 18, 3.
4: Dt 24, 1-4.	17-31: Mt 19, 16-30; Lk 18, 18-30.
6: Gn 1, 27.	19: Ex 20, 12-16; Dt 5, 16-21.
7f: Gn 2, 24; 1 Cor 6, 16; Eph 5, 31.	23: Prv 11, 28.
11f: Mt 5, 32; Lk 16,

† 9, 44-46: Not found in many manuscripts.
10, 1-12: See notes on Mt 19, 3-8 and 19, 9.
10, 13-16: See note on Mt 19, 13ff.
10, 17f: Jesus' repudiation of the term "good" is probably in response to the man's implication that Jesus will reveal to him the secret of eternal life. What Jesus requires of the man is not necessarily congenial to his ideas. The remainder of the story in vv 19-22 bears out the point.
10, 23-27: See note on Mt 19, 23-26.
10, 28-31: See note on Mt 19, 27-30.

come, everlasting life. <sup>31*</sup> Many who are first shall come last, and the last shall come first."

Third Teaching: Passion and Resurrection.† <sup>32*</sup> The disciples were on the road going up to Jerusalem, with Jesus walking in the lead. Their mood was one of wonderment, while that of those who followed was fear. Taking the Twelve aside once more, he began to tell them what was going to happen to him. <sup>33</sup> "We are on our way up to Jerusalem, where the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and the scribes. <sup>34</sup> They will condemn him to death and hand him over to the Gentiles, who will mock him and spit at him, flog him, and finally kill him. But three days later he will rise."

Ambition of James and John. <sup>35</sup>† Zebedee's sons, James and John, approached him. "Teacher," they said, "we want you to grant our request." <sup>36</sup> "What is it?" he asked. <sup>37</sup> They replied, "See to it that we sit, one at your right and the other at your left, when you come into your glory." <sup>38</sup> Jesus told them, "You do not know what you are asking. Can you drink the cup I shall drink or be baptized in the same bath of pain as I?" <sup>39</sup> "We can," they told him. Jesus said in response, "From the cup I drink of you shall drink; the bath I am immersed in you shall share. <sup>40</sup> But as for sitting at my right or my left, that is not mine to give; it is for those to whom it has been reserved." <sup>41</sup> The other ten, on hearing this, became indignant at James and John. <sup>42*</sup> Jesus called them together and said to them: "You know how among the Gentiles those who seem to exercise authority lord it over them; their great ones make their importance felt. <sup>43</sup> It cannot be like that with you. Anyone among you who aspires to greatness must serve the rest; <sup>44</sup> whoever wants to rank first among you must serve the needs of all. <sup>45</sup> The Son of Man has not come to be served but to serve—to give his life in ransom for the many."

The Blind Bartimaeus.† <sup>46*</sup> They came to Jericho next, and as he was leaving that place with his disciples and a sizable crowd, there was a blind beggar Bartimaeus ("son of Timaeus") sitting by the roadside. <sup>47</sup> On hearing that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to call out, "Jesus, Son of David, have pity on me!" <sup>48</sup> Many people were scolding him to make him keep quiet, but he shouted all the louder, "Son of David, have pity on me!" <sup>49</sup> Then Jesus stopped and said, "Call him over." So they called the blind man over, telling him as they did so, "You have nothing to fear from him! Get up! He is calling you!" <sup>50</sup> He threw aside his cloak, jumped up and came to Jesus. <sup>51</sup> Jesus asked him, "What do you want me to do for you?" "Rabboni," the blind man said, "I want to see." <sup>52</sup> Jesus said in reply, "Be on your way. Your faith has healed you." Immediately he received his sight and started to follow him up the road.

CHAPTER 11

Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem.† <sup>1*</sup> Then, as they neared Bethphage and Bethany on the Mount of Olives, close to Jerusalem, he sent off two of his disciples <sup>2</sup> with the instruction: "Go to the village straight ahead of you, and as soon as you enter it you will find tethered there a colt on which no one has ridden. Untie it and bring it back. <sup>3</sup> If anyone says to you, 'Why are you doing that?' say, 'The Master needs it but he will send it back here at once.'" <sup>4</sup> So they went off, and finding a colt tethered out on the street near a gate, they untied it. <sup>5</sup> Some of the bystanders said to them, "What do you mean by untying that colt?" <sup>6</sup> They answered as Jesus had told them to, and the men let them take it. <sup>7</sup> They brought the colt to Jesus and threw their cloaks across its back, and he sat on it. <sup>8</sup> Many people spread their 31: Mt 19, 30; Lk 13, 30.	42-45: Lk 22, 25ff.

32ff: 8, 31; Mt 20, 17ff; Lk 18, 31ff.	46-52: Mt 20, 29-34; Lk 18, 35-43.
35-45: Mt 20, 20-28.	11, 1-10: Mt 21, 1-9; Lk 19, 29-38; Jn 12, 12-15.
38: Lk 12, 50.

†

<sup>10, 32ff.</sup> The disciples are apprehensive because Jesus, after prophesying his execution in Jerusalem, now proceeds deliberately to confront it (Lk 9, 51; Jn 11, 18). No doubt the prophecies in the synoptic tradition about the passion of Christ have been schematized through the influence of the event of the crucifixion. There seems to be no question, however, that frequent repetition of a passion prophecy by Jesus was part of the original tradition.

<sup>10, 35-45:</sup> If Mark has placed this narrative in its actual historical context (cf Mt 20, 20), the petition of James and John becomes dramatic: they declare themselves ready to risk death with Jesus provided he will guarantee to them the highest positions in the kingdom. While accepting their pledge to suffer with him, Jesus observes that it lies beyond his personal authority to make such concessions (35-40). If not in its actual historical context, the petition of James and John has been placed here by the evangelist to align the sacrifices required of disciples with the personal sacrifice made by Jesus. Whatever authority the disciples exercise is to be viewed, like the authority of Jesus (v 45), in terms of service to others rather than as a sign of personal eminence (42ff).

<sup>10, 46-52:</sup> The synoptic gospels locate this event at Jericho on Jesus' last journey to Jerusalem (Mt 20, 29-34; Lk 18, 35-43). The blind man, unaffected by what he heard of Jesus' lowly condition, accords him the messianic title, "Son of David." He requests a cure in order that he may see Jesus. On this basis his sight is restored.

<sup>11, 1-11:</sup> The nature of Jesus' entry into Jerusalem is not entirely clear in the synoptic tradition. In Jn 12, 12f the popular excitement upon his arrival in the city is associated with his raising of Lazarus to life (Jn 12, 18). This explains the acclaim Jesus receives on entering the city. In Mk 11, 9f the greeting Jesus receives stops short of proclaiming him Messiah. He is greeted rather as the prophet of the coming messianic kingdom; cf Mt 21, 11. Matthew introduces the notion of fulfillment of Old Testament prophecy (Zec 9, 9).

cloaks on the road, while others spread reeds which they had cut in the fields.<sup>9*</sup> Those preceding him as well as those who followed cried out:

"Hosanna!

Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!

<sup>10</sup> Blessed is the reign of our father David to come!
Hosanna in the highest!"

<sup>11*</sup> He entered Jerusalem and went into the temple precincts. He inspected everything there, but since it was already late in the afternoon, he went out to Bethany accompanied by the Twelve.

Jesus Curses a Fig Tree.† <sup>12*</sup> The next day when they were leaving Bethany he felt hungry. <sup>13</sup> Observing a fig tree some distance off, covered with foliage, he went over to see if he could find anything on it. When he reached it he found nothing but leaves; it was not the time for figs. <sup>14</sup> Then addressing it he said, "Never again shall anyone eat of your fruit!" His disciples heard all this.

Cleansing of the Temple. <sup>15*</sup>† When they reached Jerusalem he entered the temple precincts and began to drive out those who were engaged in buying and selling. He overturned the money-changers' tables and the stalls of the men selling doves; <sup>16</sup> moreover, he would not permit anyone to carry things through the temple area.

<sup>17*</sup> Then he began to teach them: "Does not Scripture have it,

'My house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples'—?

but you have turned it into a den of thieves." <sup>18</sup> The chief priests and the scribes heard of this and began to look for a way to destroy him. They were at the same time afraid of him because the whole crowd was under the spell of his teaching. <sup>19*</sup> When evening drew on, Jesus and his disciples went out of the city.

<sup>20*</sup> Early next morning, as they were walking along, they saw the fig tree withered to its roots. <sup>21</sup> Peter remembered and said to him, "Rabbi, look! The fig tree you cursed has withered up."

<sup>22</sup> In reply Jesus told them: "Put your trust in God. <sup>23*</sup> I solemnly assure you, whoever says to this mountain, 'Be lifted up and thrown into the sea,' and has no inner doubts but believes that what he says will happen, shall have it done for him. <sup>24*</sup> I give you my word, if you are ready to believe that you will receive whatever you ask for in prayer, it shall be done for you. <sup>25*</sup> When you stand to pray, forgive anyone against whom you have a grievance so that your heavenly Father may in turn forgive you your faults."†

The Authority of Jesus.† <sup>27*</sup> They returned once more to Jerusalem. As he was walking in the temple precincts the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders approached him <sup>28</sup> and said to him, "On what authority are you doing these things? Who has given you the power to do them?" <sup>29</sup> Jesus said to them, "I will ask you a question. If you give me an answer, I will tell you on what authority I do the things I do. <sup>30</sup> Tell me, was John's baptism of divine origin or merely from men?" <sup>31</sup> They thought to themselves, "If we say 'divine,' he will ask, 'Then why did you not put faith in it?'" <sup>32</sup> But can we say, 'merely human?'" (They had reason to fear the people, who all regarded John as a true prophet.) <sup>33</sup> So their answer to Jesus was, "We do not know." In turn, Jesus said to them, "Then neither will I tell you on what authority I do the things I do."

CHAPTER 12

Parable of the Tenants. <sup>1*</sup> He began to address them once more in parables: "A man planted a vineyard, put a hedge around it, dug out a vat, and erected a tower. Then he leased it to tenant farmers and went on a journey. <sup>2</sup> In due time he dispatched a man in his service to the tenants to obtain from them his share of produce from the vineyard. <sup>3</sup> But they seized him, beat him, and sent 9f: 2 Sm 7, 16; Ps 118, 26;	23: Mt 17, 20f; Lk 17, 6.

11: Mt 21, 10, 17;	24: Mt 7, 7; Jn 11, 22; 14, 13.
12ff: Mt 21, 18ff; Lk 13, 6-9.	25: Mt 6, 14, 18, 35.
15-18: Mt 21, 12f; Lk 19, 45f; Jn 2, 14ff.	27-33: Mt 21, 23-27; Lk 20, 1-8.
17: Is 56, 7; Jer 7, 11.	12, 1-12: Mt 21, 33-46; Lk 20, 9-19.
19: Lk 21, 37.	1: Is 5, 1-7; Jer 2, 21.
20-24: Mt 21, 20ff.

† 11, 12ff: Jesus' search for fruit on the fig tree recalls the prophets' earlier use of this image to designate Israel, cf Jer 8, 13; Ez 17, 24; Jl 1, 7; Hos 9, 10. Cursing the fig tree is a parable in action representing Christ's judgment on barren Israel for failing to receive his teaching.

† 11, 15-19: The expulsion of the buyers and sellers from the temple does not seem to be properly understood if regarded simply as an objection to the practice within the temple precincts, for it was fairly well controlled by the religious authorities. The key to an understanding of the incident is the citation of Is 56, 7 and Jer 7, 11. Both prophets objected that the worship in the temple was not consistent with true conversion. Jesus' action is a symbol of God's judgment against the abuses of his temple, due to the priests' failure to instruct the people in the meaning of temple worship.

† 11, 26: Omitted with many MSS.
† 11, 27—12, 27: For a similar series of conflicts see Mk 2, 1—3, 6. The parable of the vineyard tenants (Mt 21, 33-46; Lk 20, 9-19) indicates Jesus' self-awareness of his unique divine sonship (12, 1-12). His superior wisdom sees no conflict between Roman taxation and Israel's worship of God (12, 13-17). His prophetic insight exposes the specious arguments against resurrection of the dead adduced by the Sadducees, who fail to understand that the messianic promises benefit here and hereafter all who have hoped in God (12, 18-27).

him off empty-handed. <sup>4</sup> The second time he sent them another servant; him too they beat over the head and treated shamefully. <sup>5</sup> He sent yet another and they killed him. So too with many others: some they beat; some they killed. <sup>6</sup> He still had one to send—the son whom he loved. He sent him to them as a last resort, thinking, 'They will have to respect my son.' <sup>7</sup> But those tenants said to one another, 'Here is the one who will inherit everything. Come, let us kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.' <sup>8</sup> Then they seized and killed him and dragged him outside the vineyard. <sup>9</sup> What do you suppose the owner of the vineyard will do? He will come and destroy those tenants and turn his vineyard over to others. <sup>10*</sup> Are you not familiar with this passage of Scripture:

'The stone rejected by the builders has become the keystone of the structure.

<sup>11</sup> It was the Lord who did it and we find it marvelous to behold?'

<sup>12</sup> They wanted to arrest him at this, yet they had reason to fear the crowd. (They knew well enough that he meant the parable for them.) Finally they left him and went off.

Tribute to the Emperor. <sup>13*</sup> They next sent some Pharisees and Herodians after him to catch him in his speech.

<sup>14</sup> The two groups came and said to him: "Teacher, we know you are a truthful man, unconcerned about anyone's opinion. It is evident you do not act out of human respect but teach God's way of life sincerely. Is it lawful to pay the tax to the emperor or not? Are we to pay or not to pay?" <sup>15</sup> Knowing their hypocrisy he said to them, "Why are you trying to trip me up? Bring me a coin and let me see it." <sup>16</sup> When they brought one, he said to them, "Whose head is this and whose inscription is it?" "Caesar's," they told him. <sup>17*</sup> At that Jesus said to them, "Give to Caesar what is Caesar's, but give to God what is God's." Their amazement at him knew no bounds.

The Sadducees and the Resurrection. <sup>18</sup> Then some Sadducees who hold there is no resurrection came to him with a question: <sup>19*</sup> "Teacher, we were left this in writing by Moses: 'If anyone's brother dies leaving a wife but no child, his brother must take the wife and produce offspring for his brother.' <sup>20</sup> There were these seven brothers. The eldest took a wife and died, leaving no children. <sup>21</sup> The second took the woman, and he too died childless. The same thing happened to the third; <sup>22</sup> in fact none of the seven left any children behind. Last of all, the woman also died. <sup>23</sup> At the resurrection, when they all come back to life, whose wife will she be? All seven married her." <sup>24</sup> Jesus said: "You are badly misled, because you fail to understand the Scriptures or the power of God. <sup>25</sup> When people rise from the dead, they neither marry nor are given in marriage but live like angels in heaven. <sup>26*</sup> As to the raising of the dead, have you not read in the book of Moses, in the passage about the burning bush, how God told him,

'I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob?'

<sup>27</sup> He is the God of the living, not of the dead. You are very much mistaken."

The Great Commandment. <sup>28*</sup> One of the scribes came up, and when he heard them arguing he realized how skillfully Jesus answered them. He decided to ask him, "Which is the first of all the commandments?" <sup>29</sup> Jesus replied: "This is the first:

'Hear, O Israel! The Lord our God is Lord alone!

<sup>30*</sup> Therefore you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your mind, and with all your strength.'

<sup>31*</sup> This is the second,

'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.'

There is no other commandment greater than these." <sup>32</sup> The scribe said to him: "Excellent, Teacher! You are right in saying, 'He is the One, there is no other than he.' <sup>33*</sup> Yes, 'to love him with all our heart, with all our thoughts and with all our strength, and to love our neighbor as ourselves' is worth more than any burnt offering or sacrifice." <sup>34*</sup> Jesus approved the insight of this answer and told him, "You are not far from the reign of God." And no one had the courage to ask him any more questions.

The Son of David. <sup>35*†</sup> As Jesus was

10f: Ps 118, 22f; Is 28, 16,	31: Lv 19, 18; Rom 13, 9; Gal 5, 14; Jas 2, 8,
13-27: Mt 22, 15-33; Lk 20, 20-39.	33: Dt 6, 4; Ps 40, 7f.
13: Mk 3, 6.	34: Mt 22, 46; Lk 20, 40.
17: Rom 13, 7.	35f: Mt 22, 41-45; Lk 20, 41-44.
19: Dt 25, 5.
26: Ex 3, 6.
28-34: Mt 22, 34-40.
30: Dt 6, 4f.

†

<sup>12, 35-44:</sup> Jesus questions the claim of the scribes about the Davidic descent of the Messiah, not to deny it (Mt 1, 1; Acts 2, 20, 34; Rom 1, 3; 2 Tm 2, 8), but to imply that he is more than this. His superiority derives from his transcendent origin (35f), to which David himself attested when he addressed the Messiah with the name reserved for Yahweh (Ps 110, 1).

Jesus was pained by the scribes' abuse of religious position (38f). At the same time he was deeply sympathetic toward the religious generosity of the poor (41-44).

teaching in the temple precincts he went on to say: "How can the scribes claim, 'The Messiah is David's son'?"<sup>36*</sup> David himself, inspired by the Holy Spirit, said,

"The Lord said to my Lord: Sit at my right hand until I make your enemies your footstool."

<sup>37</sup> If David himself addresses him as 'Lord,' in what sense can he be his son? The majority of the crowd heard this with delight.

Hypocrisy of the Opponents of Jesus.<sup>38*</sup> In the course of his teaching he said: "Be on guard against the scribes, who like to parade around in their robes and accept marks of respect in public,<sup>39</sup> front seats in the synagogues, and places of honor at banquets.<sup>40</sup> These men devour the savings of widows and recite long prayers for appearance's sake; it is they who will receive the severest sentence."

The Widow's Mite.<sup>41*</sup> Taking a seat opposite the treasury, he observed the crowd putting money into the collection box. Many of the wealthy put in sizable amounts;<sup>42</sup> but one poor widow came and put in two small copper coins worth a few cents.<sup>43</sup> He called his disciples over and told them: "I want you to observe that this poor widow contributed more than all the others who donated to the treasury.<sup>44</sup> They gave from their surplus wealth, but she gave from her want, all that she had to live on."

CHAPTER 13

Questions about the Temple.† <sup>1*</sup> As he was making his way out of the temple area, one of his disciples said to him, "Teacher, look at the huge blocks of stone and the enormous buildings!"<sup>2</sup> Jesus said to him, "You see these great buildings? Not one stone will be left upon another—all will be torn down."<sup>3</sup> While he was seated on the Mount of Olives facing the temple, Peter, James, John, and Andrew began to question him privately.<sup>4</sup> "Tell us, when will this occur? What will be the sign that all this is coming to an end?"

Beginning of Calamities.<sup>5*</sup> Jesus began his discourse: "Be on your guard. Let no one mislead you.<sup>6</sup> Any number will come attempting to impersonate me. 'I am he,' they will claim, and will lead many astray.<sup>7</sup> When you hear about wars and threats of war, do not yield to panic. Such things are bound to happen, but this is not yet the end.<sup>8</sup> Nation will rise against nation, one kingdom against another. There will be earthquakes in various places and there will be famine. This is but the onset of the pains of labor.<sup>9</sup> Be constantly on your guard. They will hand you over to the courts. You will be beaten in synagogues. You will be arraigned before governors and kings on my account and have to testify to your faith before them.<sup>10</sup> But the good news must first be proclaimed to all the Gentiles.<sup>11*</sup> When men take you off into custody, do not worry beforehand about what to say. In that hour, say what you are inspired to say. It will not be yourselves speaking but the Holy Spirit.<sup>12</sup> Brother will hand over brother for execution and likewise the father his child; children will turn against their parents and have them put to death.<sup>13</sup> Because of my name, you will be hated by everyone. Nonetheless, the man who holds out till the end is the one who will come through safe.

The Supreme Tribulation.<sup>14*</sup> "When you see the abominable and destructive presence standing where it should not be—let the reader take note!—those in Judea must flee to the mountains.<sup>15*</sup> If a man is on the roof terrace, he must not come down or enter his house to get anything out of it.<sup>16</sup> If a man is in the field, he must not turn back to pick up his cloak.<sup>17</sup> It will go badly with pregnant and nursing women in those days.<sup>18</sup> Keep praying that none of this happens in winter.<sup>19*</sup> Those times will be more distressful than any between God's work of creation and now, and for all time to come.<sup>20</sup> Indeed, had the Lord not shortened the period, not a person would be saved. But for the sake of those he has chosen, he has shortened the days.<sup>21</sup> If anyone tells you at that time, 'Look, the Messiah is here!' 'Look, he is there!'—do not believe it.<sup>22</sup> False messiahs and false prophets will appear performing signs and wonders to mislead, if it were possible, even the chosen.<sup>23</sup> So

36: Ps 110, 1.	2, 3.
38ff: Mt 23, 1-7; Lk 11, 43; 20, 45ff.	11ff: Mt 10, 19-22; Lk 12, 11f.
41-44: Lk 21, 1-4.	14: Dn 9, 27; Mt 24, 15.
13, 1-37: Mt 24, 1-51; Lk 21, 5-36.	15: Lk 17, 31.
5: Eph 5, 6; 2 Thes	19: Dn 12, 1.

† 13, 1-37: This chapter and its parallels (Mt 24, 1-44; Lk 21, 5-36) express the principal New Testament thought on the second coming of Christ; cf 1 Thes 4, 13-18 and note. Each of the three evangelists in his own way relates the second coming to Jesus' prophecy of the destruction of Jerusalem. The abominable and destructive presence (Dn 9, 27), i.e., the profanation of the temple by the Roman power, will be the sign of imminent destruction. Jesus urges flight from Jerusalem rather than defense of the city through misguided messianic hope (14-23). Intervention will only occur after the destruction (24-27), which itself is to occur before the end of the first Christian generation (28-31). No one but the Father knows the precise time, nor that of Jesus' second coming (32), hence the necessity of constant vigilance (33-37). The chronological proximity of the second coming and the destruction of the temple is not determined (2-27). Luke sets the second coming at a later date, in the times of the Gentiles (Lk 21, 24).

be constantly on guard! I have told you about it beforehand.

Last Act of the Drama. <sup>24*</sup> "During that period after trials of every sort the sun will be darkened, the moon will not shed its light, <sup>25</sup> stars will fall out of the skies, and the heavenly hosts will be shaken. <sup>26*</sup> Then men will see the Son of Man coming in the clouds with great power and glory. <sup>27</sup> He will dispatch his angels and assemble his chosen from the four winds, from the farthest bounds of earth and sky. <sup>28*</sup> Learn a lesson from the fig tree. Once the sap of its branches runs high and it begins to sprout leaves, you know that summer is near. <sup>29</sup> In the same way, when you see these things happening, you will know that he is near, even at the door. <sup>30</sup> I assure you, this generation will not pass away until all these things take place. <sup>31</sup> The heavens and the earth will pass away but my words will not pass.

Need for Watchfulness. <sup>32</sup> "As to the exact day or hour, no one knows it, neither the angels in heaven nor even the Son, but only the Father. <sup>33*</sup> Be constantly on the watch! Stay awake! You do not know when the appointed time will come. <sup>34*</sup> It is like a man traveling abroad. He leaves home and places his servants in charge, each with his own task; and he orders the man at the gate to watch with a sharp eye. <sup>35</sup> Look around you! You do not know when the master of the house is coming, whether at dusk, at midnight, when the cock crows, or at early dawn. <sup>36</sup> Do not let him come suddenly and catch you asleep. <sup>37</sup> What I say to you, I say to all: Be on guard!"

CHAPTER 14

The Official Decision. <sup>† 1*</sup> The feasts of Passover and Unleavened Bread were to be observed in two days' time, and therefore the chief priests and scribes began to look for a way to arrest him by some trick and kill him. <sup>2</sup> Yet they pointed out, "Not during the festival, or the people may riot."

The Anointing at Bethany. <sup>3*</sup> When Jesus was in Bethany reclining at table in the house of Simon the leper, a woman entered carrying an alabaster jar of perfume made from expensive aromatic nard. Breaking the jar, she began to pour the perfume on his head. <sup>4</sup> Some were saying to themselves indignantly: "What is the point of this extravagant waste of perfume? <sup>5</sup> It could have been sold for over three hundred silver pieces and the money given to the poor." They were infuriated at her. <sup>6</sup> But Jesus said: "Let her alone. Why do you criticize her? She has done me a kindness. <sup>7</sup> The poor you will always have with you and you can be generous to them whenever you wish, but you will not always have me. <sup>8</sup> She has done what she could. By perfuming my body she is anticipating its preparation for burial. <sup>9</sup> I assure you, wherever the good news is proclaimed throughout the world, what she has done will be told in her memory."

The Betrayal. <sup>10*</sup> Then Judas Iscariot, one of the Twelve, went off to the chief priests to hand Jesus over to them. <sup>11</sup> Hearing what he had to say, they were jubilant and promised to give him money. He for his part kept looking for an opportune way to hand him over.

Passover Preparation. <sup>12*</sup> On the first day of Unleavened Bread, when it was customary to sacrifice the paschal lamb, his disciples said to him, "Where do you wish us to go to prepare the Passover supper for you?" <sup>13</sup> He sent two of his disciples with these instructions: "Go into the city and you will come upon a man carrying a water jar. Follow him. <sup>14</sup> Whatever house he enters, say to the owner, 'The Teacher asks, Where is my guest room where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?'" <sup>15</sup> Then he will show you an upstairs room, spacious, furnished, and all in order. That is the 24-27: Mt 24, 29ff; Lk 21, 25ff.	34: Mt 25, 14-30; Lk 19, 12-27.

24: Is 13, 10; Ez 32, 7; Jl 2, 10.	14, 1f: Mt 26, 2-5; Lk 22, 1f.
26: 14, 62; Dn 7, 13f.	3-9: Mt 26, 6-13; Jn 12, 1-8.
28-32: Mt 24, 32-36; Lk 21, 29-33.	10f: Mt 26, 14ff.
33-37: Mt 24, 42, 25, 13ff.	12-16: Mt 26, 17ff; Lk 22, 7-11.

† 14, 1—15, 47: In this solemn narrative the principal facts of the sufferings and death of Jesus are interwoven with implications of their religious significance. The facts include: a plan to arrest Jesus secretly and thus prevent tumult (1ff); facilitation of the plan through Judas' betrayal (10f); the arrest of Jesus (43-47); inquest before the Sanhedrin and indictment for blasphemy (55-64); transfer to Pilate's court and the insinuation of political sedition (15, 1-5); official and popular demand for Jesus' condemnation and crucifixion; Pilate's consent under pressure (15, 6-15); the mockery, scourging and crucifixion (15, 15-27); death on the cross (15, 29-39); and burial by Joseph of Arimathea (15, 42-47).

Jesus is described as interpreting the events of his passion as follows: the anointing at Bethany as a preparation for his death (14, 3-9); his celebration of the Passover (12-16) as the inauguration of a new and lasting covenant in which his body and blood are to be shared in the form of bread and wine, symbols of his passion and death (22ff). He prophesies Peter's denial and the apostles' desertion and subsequent reunion (26ff). Jesus declares his acceptance of the passion to be in conformity with his Father's will (32-42), and confesses his awareness of what was foretold by the Scriptures concerning him (48f). He refuses to throw himself on the mercy of Pilate (15, 2-5) and rejects the drug that would cloud his mind to the reality of the crucifixion (36). He prays Psalm 22 from the cross (34). The Roman centurion's tribute to Jesus' courage (39) is actually a concluding Marcan confession of faith, put on Gentile lips.

The religious cast of the Marcan passion narrative derives from the consistent theme of fulfillment of prophecy, even concerning the conduct of Jesus' disciples. Though complete in itself, this narrative is closely joined to the account of Jesus' ministry. One single item remains to be fulfilled: the prophecy of his future vindication (14, 62).

place you are to get ready for us." <sup>16</sup> The disciples went off. When they reached the city they found it just as he had told them, and they prepared the Passover supper.

The Betrayer. <sup>17*</sup> As it grew dark he arrived with the Twelve. <sup>18</sup> They reclined at table, and in the course of the meal Jesus said, "I give you my word, one of you is about to betray me, yes, one who is eating with me." <sup>19</sup> They began to say to him sorrowfully, one by one, "Surely not I!" <sup>20</sup> He said, "It is one of the Twelve—a man who dips into the dish with me." <sup>21</sup> The Son of Man is going the way the Scripture tells of him. Still, accused by that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed. It were better for him had he never been born."

The Holy Eucharist. <sup>22*</sup> During the meal he took bread, blessed and broke it, and gave it to them. "Take this," he said, "this is my body." <sup>23</sup> He likewise took a cup, gave thanks and passed it to them, and they all drank from it. <sup>24</sup> He said to them: "This is my blood, the blood of the covenant, to be poured out on behalf of many. <sup>25</sup> I solemnly assure you, I will never again drink of the fruit of the vine until the day when I drink it new in the reign of God."

<sup>26</sup> After singing songs of praise, they walked out to the Mount of Olives.

Peter's Denial Foretold. <sup>27*</sup> Jesus then said to them: "Your faith in me shall be shaken, for Scripture has it,

'I will strike the shepherd and the sheep will be dispersed.'

<sup>28</sup> But after I am raised up, I will go to Galilee ahead of you." <sup>29</sup> Peter said to him, "Even though all are shaken in faith, it will not be that way with me."

<sup>30</sup> Jesus answered, "I give you my assurance, this very night before the cock crows twice, you will deny me three times." <sup>31</sup> But Peter kept reasserting vehemently, "Even if I have to die with you, I will not deny you." They all said the same.

The Agony in the Garden. <sup>32*</sup> They went then to a place named Gethsemani. "Sit down here while I pray," he said to his disciples; <sup>33</sup> at the same time he took along with him Peter, James, and John. <sup>34</sup> Then he began to be filled with fear and distress. He said to them, "My heart is filled with sorrow to the point of death. Remain here and stay awake."

<sup>35</sup> He advanced a little and fell to the ground, praying that if it were possible this hour might pass him by. <sup>36</sup> He kept saying, "Abba (O Father), you have the power to do all things. Take this cup away from me. But let it be as you would have it, not as I." <sup>37</sup> When he returned he found them asleep. He said to Peter, "Asleep, Simon? You could not stay awake for even an hour?" <sup>38*</sup> Be on guard and pray that you may not be put to the test. The spirit is willing but nature is weak." <sup>39</sup> Going back again he began to pray in the same words. <sup>40</sup> Once again he found them asleep on his return. They could not keep their eyes open, nor did they know what to say to him. <sup>41</sup> He returned a third time and said to them, "Still sleeping? Still taking your ease? It will have to do. The hour is on us. You will see that the Son of Man is to be handed over to the clutches of evil men. <sup>42</sup> Rouse yourselves and come along. See! My betrayer is near."

Jesus Arrested. <sup>43*</sup> Even while he was still speaking, Judas, one of the Twelve, made his appearance accompanied by a crowd with swords and clubs; these people had been sent by the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders. <sup>44</sup> The betrayer had arranged a signal for them, saying, "The man I shall embrace is the one; arrest him and lead him away, taking every precaution." <sup>45</sup> He then went directly over to him and said, "Rabbi!" and embraced him. <sup>46</sup> At this, they laid hands on him and arrested him. <sup>47</sup> One of the bystanders drew his sword and struck the high priest's slave, cutting off his ear. <sup>48</sup> Addressing himself to them, Jesus said: "You have come out to arrest me armed with swords and clubs as if against a brigand. <sup>49</sup> I was within your reach daily, teaching in the temple precincts, yet you never arrested me. But now, so that the Scriptures may be fulfilled . . ." <sup>50</sup> With that, all deserted him and fled. <sup>51</sup> There was a young man following him who was covered by nothing but a linen cloth. As they seized him <sup>52</sup> he left the cloth behind and ran off naked.

Jesus before the Sanhedrin. <sup>53*</sup> Then they led Jesus off to the high priest, and all the chief priests, the elders and the scribes came together. <sup>54</sup> Peter followed him at a distance right into the high priest's courtyard, where he found a seat with the temple guard and began to warm himself at the fire. <sup>55</sup> The chief priests with the whole Sanhedrin were busy soliciting testimony against Jesus that would lead to his death, but they could not find any. <sup>56</sup> Many spoke against him falsely under oath but their testimony did not agree. <sup>57</sup> Some, for instance, on taking the stand, testified falsely by alleging, <sup>58*</sup> "We heard him

---

17-21: Mt 26, 20-24; Lk 22, 21ff; Jn 13, 21-26;	22, 40-46. 32: Jn 18, 1. 38: Rom 7, 5.
22-25: Mt 26, 26-30; Lk 22, 19f; 1 Cor 11, 23ff.	43-50: Mt 26, 47-56; Lk 22, 47-53; Jn 18, 3-11.
27-31: Mt 26, 31-35; Lk 22, 31-34; Jn 13, 36ff.	53-65: Mt 26, 57-68; Lk 22, 54, 63ff; Jn 18, 12f.
27: Zec 13, 7; Jn 16, 32.	58: 15, 29, 2 Cor 5, 1.
32-42: Mt 26, 36-46; Lk

declare, 'I will destroy this temple made by human hands,' and 'In three days I will construct another not made by human hands.'" <sup>59</sup> Even so, their testimony did not agree.

<sup>60</sup> The high priest rose to his feet before the court and began to interrogate Jesus: "Have you no answer to what these men testify against you?" <sup>61</sup> But Jesus remained silent; he made no reply. Once again the high priest interrogated him: "Are you the Messiah, the Son of the Blessed One?" <sup>62</sup>* Then Jesus answered: "I am; and you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of the Power and coming with the clouds of heaven." <sup>63</sup> At that the high priest tore his robes and said: "What further need do we have of witnesses? <sup>64</sup> You have heard the blasphemy. What is your verdict?" They all concurred in the verdict "guilty," with its sentence of death. <sup>65</sup>* Some of them then began to spit on him. They blindfolded him and hit him, saying, "Play the prophet!" while the officers manhandled him.

Peter's Denial. <sup>66</sup>* While Peter was down in the courtyard, one of the servant girls of the high priest came along. <sup>67</sup> When she noticed Peter warming himself, she looked at him more closely and said, "You too were with Jesus of Nazareth." <sup>68</sup> But he denied it: "I do not know what you are talking about! What are you getting at?" Then he went out into the gateway. [At that moment a cock crowed.] <sup>69</sup> The servant girl, keeping an eye on him, started again to tell the bystanders, "This man is one of them." <sup>70</sup> Once again he denied it. A little later the bystanders said to Peter once more, "You are certainly one of them! You are a Galilean, are you not?" <sup>71</sup> He began to curse, and to swear, "I do not even know the man you are talking about!" <sup>72</sup>* Just then a second cockcrow was heard and Peter recalled the prediction Jesus had made to him, "Before the cock crows twice you will deny me three times." He broke down and began to cry.

CHAPTER 15

Jesus before Pilate. <sup>1</sup>* As soon as it was daybreak the chief priests, with the elders and scribes (that is, the whole Sanhedrin), reached a decision. They bound Jesus, led him away, and handed him over to Pilate. <sup>2</sup> Pilate interrogated him: "Are you the king of the Jews?" "You are the one who is saying it," Jesus replied. <sup>3</sup> The chief priests, meanwhile, brought many accusations against him. <sup>4</sup> Pilate interrogated him again: "Surely you have some answer? See how many accusations they are leveling against you." <sup>5</sup> But greatly to Pilate's surprise, Jesus made no further response.

<sup>6</sup>* Now on the occasion of a festival he would release for them one prisoner—any man they asked for. <sup>7</sup> There was a prisoner named Barabbas jailed along with the rebels who had committed murder in the uprising. <sup>8</sup> When the crowd came up to press their demand that he honor the custom, <sup>9</sup> Pilate rejoined, "Do you want me to release the king of the Jews for you?" <sup>10</sup> He was aware, of course, that it was out of jealousy that the chief priests had handed him over. <sup>11</sup> Meanwhile, the chief priests incited the crowd to have him release Barabbas instead. <sup>12</sup> Pilate again asked them, "What am I to do with the man you call the king of the Jews?" <sup>13</sup> They shouted back, "Crucify him!" <sup>14</sup> Pilate protested, "Why? What crime has he committed?" They only shouted the louder, "Crucify him!" <sup>15</sup> So Pilate, who wished to satisfy the crowd, released Barabbas to them; and after he had had Jesus scourged, he handed him over to be crucified.

The Crowning with Thorns. <sup>16</sup>* The soldiers now led Jesus away into the hall known as the praetorium; at the same time they assembled the whole cohort. <sup>17</sup> They dressed him in royal purple, then wove a crown of thorns and put it on him, <sup>18</sup> and began to salute him, "All hail! King of the Jews!" <sup>19</sup> Continually striking Jesus on the head with a reed and spitting at him, they genuflected before him and pretended to pay him homage. <sup>20</sup> When they had finished mocking him, they stripped him of the purple, dressed him in his own clothes, and led him out to crucify him.

The Way of the Cross: the Crucifixion. <sup>21</sup>* A man named Simon of Cyrene, the father of Alexander and Rufus, was coming in from the fields, and they pressed him into service to carry the cross. <sup>22</sup>* When they brought Jesus to the site of Golgotha (which means "Skull Place"), <sup>23</sup> they tried to give him wine drugged with myrrh, but he would not take it. <sup>24</sup>* Then they crucified him and divided up his garments by rolling dice for them to see what each should take. <sup>25</sup> It was about nine in the morning when they crucified him. <sup>26</sup> The inscription proclaiming his offense read, "THE KING OF THE JEWS."

<sup>27</sup>* With him they crucified two insurgents, one at his right and one at his

62: 13, 26; Ps 110,	23, 17-25; Jn
1: Dn 7, 13; Mt	18, 39f.
24, 30,	16-20: Mt 27, 27-31; Jn
65: Lk 22, 63ff.	19, 21.
66-72: Mt 26, 69-75; Lk	21: Mt 27, 32; Lk 23,
22, 55-62; Jn	26.
18, 16ff, 25ff.	22-38: Mt 27, 33-51; Lk
72: Jn 13, 38.	23, 32-46; Jn
15, 1-5: Mt 27, 11-14; Lk	19, 17ff.
23, 1ff.	24: Ps 22, 18.
1: Jn 18, 28.	27: Lk 23, 33.
6-15: Mt 27, 15-26; Lk

left.† 29* People going by kept insulting him, tossing their heads and saying, "Ha, ha! So you were going to destroy the temple and rebuild it in three days! 30 Save yourself now by coming down from that cross!" 31 The chief priests and the scribes also joined in and jeered: "He saved others but he cannot save himself! 32* Let the 'Messiah,' the 'king of Israel,' come down from that cross here and now so that we can see it and believe in him!" The men who had been crucified with him likewise kept taunting him.

Death of Jesus. 33 When noon came, darkness fell on the whole countryside and lasted until midafternoon. 34* At that time Jesus cried in a loud voice, "Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani?" which means "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" 35 A few of the bystanders who heard it remarked, "Listen! He is calling on Elijah!" 36 Someone ran off, and soaking a sponge in sour wine, stuck it on a reed to try to make him drink. The man said, "Now let's see whether Elijah comes to take him down."

37 Then Jesus, uttering a loud cry, breathed his last. 38 At that moment the curtain in the sanctuary was torn in two from top to bottom. 39* The centurion who stood guard over him, on seeing the manner of his death, declared, "Clearly this man was the Son of God!" 40* There were also women present looking on from a distance. Among them were Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James the younger and Joses, and Salome. 41 These women had followed Jesus when he was in Galilee and attended to his needs. There were also many others who had come up with him to Jerusalem.

The Burial. 42* As it grew dark (it was Preparation Day, that is, the eve of the sabbath), 43 Joseph from Arimathea arrived—a distinguished member of the Sanhedrin. He was another who looked forward to the reign of God. He was bold enough to seek an audience with Pilate and urgently requested the body of Jesus. 44 Pilate was surprised that Jesus should have died so soon. He summoned the centurion and inquired whether Jesus was already dead. 45 Learning from him that he was dead, Pilate released the corpse to Joseph. 46 Then, having bought a linen shroud, Joseph took him down, wrapped him in the linen, and laid him in a tomb which had been cut out of rock. Finally he rolled a stone across the entrance of the tomb. 47 Meanwhile, Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joses observed where he had been laid.

CHAPTER 16

The Women at the Tomb.† 1* When the sabbath was over, Mary Magdalene,

Mary the mother of James, and Salome bought perfumed oils with which they intended to go and anoint Jesus. 2 Very early, just after sunrise, on the first day of the week they came to the tomb. 3 They were saying to one another, "Who will roll back the stone for us from the entrance to the tomb?" 4 When they looked, they found that the stone had been rolled back. (It was a huge one.) 5* On entering the tomb they saw a young man sitting at the right, dressed in a white robe. 6 This frightened them thoroughly, but he reassured them: "You need not be amazed! You are looking for Jesus of Nazareth, the one who was crucified. He has been raised up; he is not here. See the place where they laid him. 7* Go now and tell his disciples and Peter, 'He is going ahead of you to Galilee, where you will see him just as he told you.'" 8 They made their way out and fled from the tomb bewildered and trembling; and because of their great fear, they said nothing to anyone.

The Longer Ending: 16, 9-20.† 9* Jesus rose from the dead early on the first day of the week. He first appeared to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven demons. 10* She went to announce the good news to his followers, who were now grieving and weeping. 11 But when they heard that he was alive and had been seen by her, they refused to believe it. 12* Later on, as two of them were walking along on their way to the country, he was revealed to them completely changed in appearance. 13 These

29: Jn 2, 19.	1-10.
32: Lk 23, 39.	1†: Mt 28, 1; Lk 23, 56.
34: Ps 22, 2.	5: Jn 20, 12.
39ff: Mt 27, 54ff; Lk 23, 47ff.	7: 14, 28.
40: 6, 3; Lk 8, 2f.	9-20: Mt 28, 1-10; Jn 20, 11-18.
42-47: Mt 27, 57-61; Lk 23, 50-56; Jn 19, 38-42.	10†: Lk 24, 10†; Jn 20, 18.
16, 1-8: Mt 28, 1-8; Lk 24, 1-10; Jn 20,	12ff: Lk 24, 13-35.

†

15, 28: Omitted with many manuscripts.
16, 1-8: The purpose of this narrative is to show, in the mystery of Jesus' resurrection, the fulfillment of Jesus' prophecy before the Sanhedrin. The women find the tomb empty and an angel stationed there announces to them what has happened: He has been raised up; he is not here. They are told to proclaim the news to Peter and the disciples in order to prepare them for a reunion with him. Mark's composition of the gospel ends at 16, 8 with the women silenced by the mystery. This abrupt termination causes many to believe that the original ending of this gospel may have been lost. See note on vv 9-20.

16, 9-20: This passage, termed "the longer ending" to the Marcan gospel by comparison with a much briefer conclusion found in some less important manuscripts, has traditionally been accepted as an inspired part of the gospel. Early citations of it by the Fathers indicate that it was composed in the first century, although vocabulary and style argue strongly that it was written by someone other than Mark. It is a general résumé of the material concerning the appearances of the risen Jesus, reflecting, in particular, traditions found in Luke (24) and John (20).

men retraced their steps and announced the good news to the others; but the others put no more faith in them than in Mary Magdalene. <sup>14*</sup> Finally, as they were at table, Jesus was revealed to the Eleven. He took them to task for their disbelief and their stubbornness, since they had put no faith in those who had seen him after he had been raised.

<sup>15*</sup> Then he told them: "Go into the whole world and proclaim the good news to all creation. <sup>16</sup> The man who believes in it and accepts baptism will be saved; the man who refuses to believe in it will be condemned. <sup>17</sup> Signs like these will accompany those who have professed their faith: they will use my name to expel demons, they will speak entirely new languages, <sup>18*</sup> they will be able to handle serpents, they will be able to drink deadly poison without harm, and the sick upon whom they lay their hands will recover." <sup>19*</sup> Then, after speaking to them, the Lord Jesus was taken up into heaven and took his seat at God's right hand. <sup>20*</sup> The Eleven went forth and preached everywhere. The Lord continued to work with them throughout and confirm the message through the signs which accompanied them.

The Shorter Ending †. They promptly reported to Peter and his companions all that had been announced to them.

Later on it was through them that Jesus himself sent out from east to west the sacred and immortal proclamation of eternal salvation.

The Freer Logion ††. They offered this excuse: "This lawless and faithless age is under Satan, who does not allow what is unclean and dominated by spirits to grasp the true power of God. Therefore," they said to Christ, "reveal your just authority now." Christ replied: "The measure of the years of Satan's power has been fulfilled, but other terrible things are imminent. Yet it was for the sake of sinners that I was handed over to death, that they might return to the truth and sin no more, and inherit the spiritual and immortal glory of justification in heaven."

---

14: Lk 24, 36-49; 1

Cor 15, 5.

15: 13, 10; Mt 28,

18ff; Lk 24, 47;

Jn 20, 21.

18: Mt 10, 1; Lk 10,

19; Acts 28, 3-6.

19: Lk 24, 50-53.

20: 1 Tm 3, 16.

†

† Found after Mark 16, 8 before the Longer Ending, in some late Greek manuscripts as well as some ancient versions.

†† Found after Mark 16, 14 in a fourth-fifth century manuscript preserved in the Freer Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. This ending was known to St. Jerome.

LUKE

In accordance with the custom of Greek writers of the time, Luke introduces his gospel narrative with a brief preface (1, 1-4) probably intended to cover the Acts of the Apostles as well. Luke here alludes to his predecessors and stresses the care with which he has collected and judged his material. He regards those who wrote the gospel message before him as comprising two groups: "eyewitnesses and ministers of the word," i.e., the Twelve, who were the fundamental source of the gospel tradition (1, 2; Acts 1, 21f; 10, 39); and the "many," who attempted to arrange the preaching and teaching of the Twelve in narrative form (1, 1). Luke places himself in the latter group (1, 3)—not eyewitnesses like the Twelve, but catechists and writers who had familiarized themselves with the traditions about Jesus (the gospel) and the experiences of the Christian communities (Acts of the Apostles).

Luke dedicates his two books to a certain Theophilus (1, 3; Acts 1, 1)—a common name in the Greek world meaning "God's friend." This personage, whether a literary figure signifying Gentiles as such, or a historical individual with some degree of political importance, has received information on Christian teaching. Luke sees him either as a person of influence favorably disposed toward Christian teaching and worthy of more information, or as a Christian seeking more knowledge concerning the practical implications of his faith (1, 4). Perhaps this ambiguity concerning the religious status of Theophilus is deliberate; compare Lk 1, 4 with Acts 18, 25; 21, 21.24.

Many scholars discern in the Lucan gospel and Acts an apologetic strain presumably directed against unfounded criticisms of Christian teaching. Written after the persecution of Nero that began in 64 A.D. and caused hostility toward Christians throughout the empire, Luke-Acts reveal that Jesus himself was accounted innocent by the Roman governor Pontius Pilate (Lk 23, 4.15.22), and that St. Paul, founder of many Christian communities in the empire, was often acquitted by the Roman magistrates of charges against him (Acts 16, 36; 18, 12-17; 25, 26; 26, 32).

The evangelist portrays Christianity, not as a political movement, nor as a sect organized for an initiated few, but as a religious faith open to all men. His portrait of Jesus, drawn from the gospel tradition, manifests the Savior's concern for humanity (10, 25-37; 13, 10-16; 14, 12ff; 15, 11-32), and his identification with the poor (9, 57f; 12, 13-21), the outcast (15, 1f; 17, 11-19), and the criminal (19, 1-10; 23, 39-43). Although the apologetic thought in Luke's writings must be acknowledged, it was nevertheless not his chief purpose to produce an apology for Christianity.

Unlike the other evangelists, Luke presents no main thesis. He is content to let the material of the gospel narrative speak for itself without any argumentative intrusion of his own. The correct understanding of the importance of the Christian gospel is delicately introduced into the traditional material. By aligning Jesus' birth (2, 1ff) and the preaching of John the Baptizer (3, 1f) with the facts of secular history, the evangelist indicates that the gospel tradition did not originate in a myth about gods, but was lived out by Jesus of Nazareth in the real world wherein all men are born, struggle over the meaning of their existence, and die. He depicts Jesus as resolutely facing the reality which that world had in store for him (9, 51). Luke also, in harmony with the growing realization of the Christian communities of his time, removes the concept of the proximate parousia so prominent in Mark 13. But neither these concepts nor any particular aspects of Jesus' teaching that Luke chooses to emphasize are presented in any but a serene fashion. His reverence extends, not only to Jesus as God's Son (1, 35), and to the invisible persons of the Father (11, 2) and the Holy Spirit (11, 13), but also to humanity itself as the fruitful recipient of God's word.

No other evangelist has placed such emphasis on the prophetic word of Jesus; no other is so optimistic over the favorable response it is destined to receive. Nothing that the divine word enacts in history can fail (1, 37). The word of Jesus on love of enemies (6, 27-42) is seen as the only weapon which the small Christian communities of Luke's time possess to combat the forces of persecution. The word of God is the teaching of Jesus, to be planted in the hearts of men (8, 11). And it is the function of the Christian community (24, 27) to confront humanity with this word, which undergoes vicissitudes but inevitably finds out those who will hear, believe, and act (8, 15.21; 11, 28).

Most scholars agree that Luke made use of Mark's gospel as one of his sources; some even consider it to be Luke's principal source, to which he added other material (Lk 1—2; 6, 20—8, 3; 9, 51—18, 14) including an independently derived passion-narrative (22, 1—24, 53). In the view of others, Luke used Mark only as a supplementary source for rounding out the material he took from other traditions. Certainly, Luke's aim was not to improve upon Mark's account of the public ministry of Jesus, but rather to provide material for those like Theophilus, God's friends, desirous of living out the message of Jesus in the world.

Early Christian tradition ascribes the companion volumes of the Lucan gospel and Acts of the Apostles to approximately 75 A.D., and identifies the author with Luke the physician, friend of St. Paul, mentioned in Col 4, 14; Phlm 24; and 2 Tim 4, 11.

The Gospel of Luke is divided as follows:

Preface (1, 1-4)

- I: The Infancy Narrative (1, 5—2, 52)
- II: Preparation for the Public Ministry (3, 1—4, 13)
- III: The Ministry in Galilee (4, 14—9, 50)
- IV: The Journey through Perea (9, 51—19, 27)
- V: The Jerusalem Ministry (19, 28—21, 38)
- VI: The Passion of Jesus (22, 1—23, 56)
- VII: Appearances after the Resurrection (24, 1-53)

PREFACE

CHAPTER 1

<sup>1</sup>* Many have undertaken to compile a narrative of the events which have been fulfilled in our midst, <sup>2</sup> precisely as those events were transmitted to us by the original eyewitnesses and ministers of the word. <sup>3</sup> I too have carefully traced the whole sequence of events from the beginning, and have decided to set it in writing for you, Theophilus, <sup>4</sup> so that Your Excellency may see how reliable the instruction was that you received.

I: THE INFANCY NARRATIVE†

Announcement of the Birth of John.

<sup>5</sup>* In the days of Herod, king of Judea, there was a priest named Zechariah of the priestly class of Abijah; his wife was a descendant of Aaron named Elizabeth. <sup>6</sup> Both were just in the eyes of God, blamelessly following all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord. <sup>7</sup>* They were childless, for Elizabeth was sterile; moreover, both were advanced in years.

<sup>8</sup> Once, when it was the turn of Zechariah's class and he was fulfilling his functions as a priest before God, <sup>9</sup>* it fell to him by lot according to priestly usage to enter the sanctuary of the Lord and offer incense. <sup>10</sup> While the full assembly of people was praying outside at the incense hour, <sup>11</sup> an angel of the Lord appeared to him, standing at the right of the altar of incense. <sup>12</sup> Zechariah was deeply disturbed upon seeing him, and overcome by fear.

<sup>13</sup>* The angel said to him: "Do not be frightened, Zechariah; your prayer has been heard. Your wife Elizabeth shall bear a son whom you shall name John. <sup>14</sup> Joy and gladness will be yours, and many will rejoice at his birth; <sup>15</sup>* for he will be great in the eyes of the Lord. He

1, 1-4: Acts 1, 1; 1 Cor	5f.
15, 3.	9: Ex 30, 7.
5: 1 Chr 24, 10.	13: 1, 57.60.63; Mt
7: Gn 18, 11; Jgs	1, 20.
13, 2-5; 1 Sm 1,	15: Nm 6, 2f.

† 1, 5—2, 52: Beneath the simple beauty of Luke's infancy narrative there lies a remarkable depth of theological reflection. It centers about the similarity and the contrast between the religious mission of John the Baptizer and that of Jesus. By presenting the parallel announcements of their conception and birth (1, 5-25; 1, 26-38; 1, 57f; 2, 1-20) and the parallel narratives of their circumcision (1, 59-63; 2, 21), to which are added prophecies concerning the unique religious importance of Jesus (2, 22-40), the evangelist brings into sharp focus the transcendence of Jesus' person and mission over John's.

This parallelism in literary structure, along with the pervading use of Old Testament passages and ideas, conveys the basically theological character of the infancy gospel.

Mary is presented as the virgin divinely chosen in Israel to be the mother of Jesus and to experience the mystery and the spiritual benefits of his redemptive mission (1, 34-38.42.45-55; 2, 19.35.51). She is the prefigurement of the life and destiny of the Christian community.

will never drink wine or strong drink, and he will be filled with the Holy Spirit from his mother's womb. <sup>16*</sup> Many of the sons of Israel will be brought back to the Lord their God. <sup>17*</sup> God himself will go before him, in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of fathers to their children and the rebellious to the wisdom of the just, and to prepare for the Lord a people well-disposed."

<sup>18</sup> Zechariah said to the angel: "How am I to know this? I am an old man; my wife too is advanced in age." <sup>19</sup> The angel replied: "I am Gabriel, who stand in attendance before God. I was sent to speak to you and bring you this good news. <sup>20†</sup> But now you will be mute—unable to speak—until the day these things take place, because you have not trusted my words. They will all come true in due season." <sup>21</sup> Meanwhile, the people were waiting for Zechariah, wondering at his delay in the temple. <sup>22</sup> When he finally came out he was unable to speak to them, and they realized that he had seen a vision inside. He kept making signs to them, for he remained speechless.

<sup>23</sup> Then, when his time of priestly service was over, he went home.

<sup>24</sup> Afterward, his wife Elizabeth conceived. She went into seclusion for five months, saying: <sup>25</sup> "In these days the Lord is acting on my behalf; he has seen fit to remove my reproach among men."

Announcement of the Birth of Jesus.

<sup>26</sup> In the sixth month, the angel Gabriel was sent from God to a town of Galilee named Nazareth, <sup>27*</sup> to a virgin betrothed to a man named Joseph, of the house of David. The virgin's name was Mary. <sup>28*†</sup> Upon arriving, the angel said to her: "Rejoice, O highly favored daughter! The Lord is with you. Blessed are you among women." <sup>29</sup> She was deeply troubled by his words, and wondered what his greeting meant. <sup>30†</sup> The angel went on to say to her: "Do not fear, Mary. You have found favor with God. <sup>31</sup> You shall conceive and bear a son and give him the name Jesus. <sup>32*</sup> Great will be his dignity and he will be called Son of the Most High. The Lord God will give him the throne of David his father. He will rule over the house of Jacob forever <sup>33*</sup> and his reign will be without end."

<sup>34†</sup> Mary said to the angel, "How can this be since I do not know man?"

<sup>35*†</sup> The angel answered her: "The Holy Spirit will come upon you and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; hence, the holy offspring to be born will be called Son of God. <sup>36</sup> Know that Elizabeth your kinswoman has conceived a son in her old age; she who was thought to be sterile is now in her sixth month, <sup>37*</sup> for nothing is impossible with God."

<sup>38</sup> Mary said: "I am the servant of the Lord. Let it be done to me as you say." With that the angel left her.

The Visit. <sup>39</sup> Thereupon Mary set out, proceeding in haste into the hill country to a town of Judah, <sup>40</sup> where she entered Zechariah's house and greeted Elizabeth. <sup>41</sup> When Elizabeth heard Mary's greeting, the baby leapt in her womb. Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit <sup>42*</sup> and cried out in a loud voice: "Blest are you among women and blest is the fruit of your womb. <sup>43</sup> But who am I that the mother of my Lord should come to me? <sup>44</sup> The moment your greeting sounded in my ears, the baby leapt in my womb for joy. <sup>45</sup> Blest is she who trusted that the Lord's words to her would be fulfilled."

Mary's Canticle

<sup>46*</sup> Then Mary said:

"My being proclaims the greatness of the Lord,

<sup>47</sup> my spirit finds joy in God my savior,

<sup>48*</sup> For he has looked upon his servant in her lowliness; all ages to come shall call me blessed.

<sup>49</sup> God who is mighty has done great things for me, holy is his name;

16: 1, 76.	35: Mt 1, 20.
17: Sir 48, 10; Mal	37: Gn 18, 14; Jer
3, 23f; Mt 17,	32, 27; Mt 19,
10-13.	26.
27: Mt 1, 18.	42: Jgs 5, 24; Jdt
28: Flu 2, 4; Jdt 13,	13, 18.
18.	46: Is 61, 10.
32: Is 9, 6; Mi 4, 7.	48: 11, 27; Ps 113,
33: Dn 2, 44; 7, 14.	7.

† 1, 20: Though Zechariah's punishment is usually thought to have been due to unbelief in the angelic message concerning the child's conception, the sign he was asking for (1, 18) may have been some proof within his own lifetime of the child's future prophetic role.

1, 28: Highly favored daughter: Mary is to be the recipient of the divine favor, i. e., of the sanctifying power of God, in view of her office of mother of the Messiah, which the angel announces to her.

1, 30-34: The angel's message to Mary (30f) shows a certain similarity to the announcements made to some sterile women of the Old Testament who by God's intervention became the mothers of personages illustrious in salvation history: Sarah, mother of Isaac (Gn 17, 16, 19); Samson's mother (Jgs 13, 2f); Hannah, mother of Samuel (1 Sm 1, 9-20). Mary, however, who is betrothed but not yet married (27), cannot be called sterile. Her question, then, directs itself precisely to the issue of divine favor in her case (30-33). How is she to know that the child she is now to conceive will be the Son of the Most High?

1, 34: I do not know man: i. e., as husband. Scholars generally explain this verse as a literary form emphasizing the faith of the first century church in the virginal conception and birth of the Messiah.

1, 35f: The overshadowing of Mary recalls the cloud that covered with glory the Meeting Tent (Ex 40, 34f) and the temple of the Lord (1 Kgs 8, 10; Hg 2, 7). The descent of the Holy Spirit upon her, the designation of her child as Son of God, are further signs of God's favor. As a divine pledge of this, she is informed of the approaching maternity of her aged and hitherto sterile cousin Elizabeth.

- 50* His mercy is from age to age on those who fear him.
 51* "He has shown might with his arm; he has confused the proud in their inmost thoughts.
 52* He has deposed the mighty from their thrones and raised the lowly to high places.
 53* The hungry he has given every good thing, while the rich he has sent empty away.
 54* He has upheld Israel his servant, ever mindful of his mercy;
 55* Even as he promised our fathers, promised Abraham and his descendants forever."

56 Mary remained with Elizabeth about three months and then returned home.

57 When Elizabeth's time for delivery arrived, she gave birth to a son. 58 Her neighbors and relatives, upon hearing that the Lord had extended his mercy to her, rejoiced with her. 59* When they assembled for the circumcision of the child on the eighth day, they intended to name him after his father Zechariah. 60 At this his mother intervened, saying, "No, he is to be called John."

61 They pointed out to her, "None of your relatives has this name." 62 Then, using signs, they asked the father what he wished him to be called.

63* He signaled for a writing tablet and wrote the words, "His name is John." This astonished them all. 64* At that moment his mouth was opened and his tongue loosed, and he began to speak in praise of God.

65 Fear descended on all in the neighborhood; throughout the hill country of Judea these happenings began to be recounted to the last detail. 66 All who heard stored these things up in their hearts, saying, "What will this child be?" and, "Was not the hand of the Lord upon him?"

Zechariah's Canticle. 67 Then Zechariah his father, filled with the Holy Spirit, uttered this prophecy:

- 68* "Blessed be the Lord the God of Israel because he has visited and ransomed his people.
 69 He has raised a horn of saving strength for us in the house of David his servant, 70* As he promised through the mouths of his holy ones, the prophets of ancient times:
 71* Salvation from our enemies and from the hands of all our foes.
 72* He has dealt mercifully with our fathers

- and remembered the holy covenant he made,
 73 The oath he swore to Abraham our father he would grant us:
 74 that, rid of fear and delivered from the enemy,
 75 We should serve him devoutly and through all our days be holy in his sight.
 76* And you, O child, shall be called prophet of fear of the Most High; For you shall go before the Lord to prepare straight paths for him,
 77 Giving his people a knowledge of salvation in freedom from their sins,
 78* All this is the work of the kindness of our God; he, the Dayspring, shall visit us in his mercy
 79 To shine on those who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace."

80 The child grew up and matured in spirit. He lived in the desert until the day when he made his public appearance in Israel.

CHAPTER 2

Birth of Jesus. 1† In those days Caesar Augustus published a decree ordering a census of the whole world. 2 This first census took place while Quirinius was governor of Syria. 3 Everyone went to register, each to his own town. 4* And so Joseph went from the town of Nazareth in Galilee to Judea, to David's town of Bethlehem—because he was of the house and lineage of David—5* to register with Mary, his espoused wife, who was with child.

6 While they were there the days of

50: Ps 103, 17.	68: Pss 74, 12; 111, 9.
51: Ps 138, 6; Jb 5, 12.	70: Jer 30, 10.
52: Ps 75, 8.	71: Ps 106, 10.
53: Ps 107, 9.	72f: Lv 26, 42; Mi 7, 20.
54: Ps 98, 3; Is 41, 9.	76f: 1, 16; Is 40, 3; Mal 3, 1; Mt 11, 10.
55: Gn 13, 15; 22, 18.	78f: Is 42, 7; Jn 8, 12; 2 Pt 1, 19.
59: Gn 17, 10; Lv 12, 3.	2, 4: Mi 5, 2; Mt 2, 6.
63: 1, 13.	5: Mt 1, 18.
64: 1, 20.

† 2, 1-5: Luke introduces the census to explain the time of Jesus' birth at Bethlehem. Scholars interpret inscriptions found near Tivoli in 1764, and at Antioch in Pisidia in 1912, to point to Cyrius as governor of Syria between the years 10 and 8 B.C. The census may well have been inaugurated by him and hence named after him, even if continued and completed under Saturninus, his successor (8-6 B.C.).

her confinement were completed. <sup>7†</sup> She gave birth to her first-born son and wrapped him in swaddling clothes and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the place where travelers lodged.

The Shepherds. <sup>8</sup> There were shepherds in that region, living in the fields and keeping night watch by turns over their flocks. <sup>9</sup> The angel of the Lord appeared to them as the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were very much afraid. <sup>10</sup> The angel said to them: "You have nothing to fear! I come to proclaim good news to you—tidings of great joy to be shared by the whole people. <sup>11*</sup> This day in David's city a savior has been born to you, the Messiah and Lord. <sup>12*</sup> Let this be a sign to you: in a manger you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes." <sup>13</sup> Suddenly, there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying,

<sup>14*†</sup> "Glory to God in high heaven, peace on earth to those on whom his favor rests."

<sup>15</sup> When the angels had returned to heaven, the shepherds said to one another: "Let us go over to Bethlehem and see this event which the Lord has made known to us." <sup>16</sup> They went in haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the baby lying in the manger; <sup>17</sup> once they saw, they understood what had been told them concerning this child. <sup>18</sup> All who heard of it were astonished at the report given them by the shepherds.

<sup>19</sup> Mary treasured all these things and reflected on them in her heart. <sup>20*</sup> The shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen, in accord with what had been told them.

Circumcision of Jesus. <sup>21*</sup> When the eighth day arrived for his circumcision, the name Jesus was given the child, the name the angel had given him before he was conceived.

Presentation in the Temple. <sup>22*</sup> When the day came to purify them according to the law of Moses, the couple brought him up to Jerusalem so that he could be presented to the Lord, <sup>23*</sup> for it is written in the law of the Lord, "Every first-born male shall be consecrated to the Lord." <sup>24</sup> They came to offer in sacrifice "a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons," in accord with the dictate in the law of the Lord.

<sup>25</sup> There lived in Jerusalem at the time a certain man named Simeon. He was just and pious, and awaited the consolation of Israel, and the Holy Spirit was upon him. <sup>26</sup> It was revealed to him by the Holy Spirit that he would not experience death until he had seen the Anointed of the Lord. <sup>27</sup> He came to the temple now, inspired by the Spirit, and when the parents brought in the child Jesus to perform for him the customary ritual of the law, <sup>28</sup> he took him in his arms and blessed God in these words:

<sup>29</sup> "Now, Master, you can dismiss your servant in peace;
you have fulfilled your word.

<sup>30*</sup> For my eyes have witnessed your saving deed

<sup>31</sup> displayed for all the peoples to see:

<sup>32</sup> A revealing light to the Gentiles,
the glory of your people Israel."

<sup>33</sup> The child's father and mother were marveling at what was being said about him. <sup>34*</sup> Simeon blessed them and said to Mary his mother: "This child is destined to be the downfall and the rise of many in Israel, a sign that will be opposed—<sup>35*</sup> and you yourself shall be pierced with a sword—so that the thoughts of many hearts may be laid bare."

The Prophetess. <sup>36</sup> There was also a certain prophetess, Anna by name, daughter of Phanuel of the tribe of Asher. She had seen many days, having lived seven years with her husband after her marriage <sup>37</sup> and then as a widow until she was eighty-four. She was constantly in the temple, worshiping day and night in fasting and prayer. <sup>38</sup> Coming on the scene at this moment, she gave thanks to God and talked about the child to all who looked forward to the deliverance of Jerusalem.

<sup>39*</sup> When the pair had fulfilled all the prescriptions of the law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee and their own town of Nazareth. <sup>40</sup> The child grew in size and strength, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon him.

The Finding in the Temple. <sup>41*</sup> His parents used to go every year to Jerusalem for the feast of the Passover, <sup>42</sup> and when he was twelve they went up for the celebration as was their custom.

<sup>43</sup> As they were returning at the end of

11: Mt 1, 21.

12: Is 9, 5f.

14: 19, 38.

20: 5, 26; 7, 16.

21: 1, 31; Gn 17, 12;

Mt 1, 21.

22: Lv 12, 2-6.

23f: Ex 13, 2; Lv 12,

8.

30ff: Is 46, 13; 49, 6;

52, 10; Jn 8, 12.

34: 12, 51ff.

35: Jn 9, 39; 19,

25ff; Rom 9, 33;

1 Pt 2, 7.

39: Mt 2, 23.

41: Ex 23, 15.

†

2, 7: Her first-born son: a reference to the preferential status of the eldest son rather than an implication of subsequent offspring. In Israel the rights of primogeniture—authority, responsibility, succession—accrued to the first-born. He was considered holy; he belonged to God (Ex 13, 1f, 14f; 22, 28; 34, 19f) and had to be redeemed, i.e., ransomed by an offering of five shekels made to the sanctuary (Nm 3, 47f; 18, 5f).

2, 14: Those on whom his favor rests: an allusion to the mystery of divine election that bestows the gift of faith upon people of divine choice. To these, the messianic mission of Jesus also brings a special gift of peace, the restored friendship between God and man.

the feast, the child Jesus remained behind unknown to his parents. <sup>44</sup> Thinking he was in the party, they continued their journey for a day, looking for him among their relatives and acquaintances.

<sup>45</sup> Not finding him, they returned to Jerusalem in search of him. <sup>46</sup> On the third day they came upon him in the temple sitting in the midst of the teachers, listening to them and asking them questions. <sup>47*</sup> All who heard him were amazed at his intelligence and his answers.

<sup>48</sup> When his parents saw him they were astonished, and his mother said to him: "Son, why have you done this to us? You see that your father and I have been searching for you in sorrow." <sup>49</sup> He said to them: "Why did you search for me? Did you not know I had to be in my Father's house?" <sup>50</sup> But they did not grasp what he said to them.

<sup>51</sup> He went down with them then, and came to Nazareth, and was obedient to them. His mother meanwhile kept all these things in memory. <sup>52*</sup> Jesus, for his part, progressed steadily in wisdom and age and grace before God and men.

II: PREPARATION FOR THE PUBLIC MINISTRY

CHAPTER 3

John the Baptizer. <sup>1†</sup> In the fifteenth year of the rule of Tiberius Caesar, when Pontius Pilate was procurator of Judea, Herod tetrarch of Galilee, Philip his brother tetrarch of the region of Ituraea and Trachonitis, and Lysanias tetrarch of Abilene, <sup>2†</sup> during the high-priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas, the word of God was spoken to John son of Zechariah in the desert. <sup>3*</sup> He went about the entire region of the Jordan proclaiming a baptism of repentance which led to the forgiveness of sins, <sup>4*</sup> as is written in the book of the words of Isaiah the prophet:

"A herald's voice in the desert, crying,

'Make ready the way of the Lord,
Clear him a straight path.

<sup>5</sup> Every valley shall be filled

And every mountain and hill shall be leveled.

The windings shall be made straight
And the rough ways smooth,

<sup>6</sup> And all mankind shall see the salvation of God.'"

<sup>7</sup> He would say to the crowds that came out to be baptized by him: "You brood of vipers! Who told you to flee from the wrath to come? <sup>8</sup> Give some evidence that you mean to reform. Do not begin by saying to yourselves, 'Abraham is our father.' I tell you, God can raise up children to Abraham from these stones. <sup>9</sup> Even now the ax is laid to the root of the tree. Every tree that is not fruitful will be cut down and thrown into the fire."

<sup>10*</sup> The crowds asked him, "What ought we to do?" <sup>11</sup> In reply he said, "Let the man with two coats give to him who has none. The man who has food should do the same."

<sup>12</sup> Tax collectors also came to be baptized, and they said to him, "Teacher, what are we to do?" <sup>13</sup> He answered them, "Exact nothing over and above your fixed amount."

<sup>14</sup> Soldiers likewise asked him, "What about us?" He told them, "Don't bully anyone. Denounce no one falsely. Be content with your pay."

<sup>15*†</sup> The people were full of anticipation, wondering in their hearts whether John might be the Messiah. <sup>16*</sup> John answered them all by saying: "I am baptizing you in water, but there is one to come who is mightier than I. I am not fit to loosen his sandal strap. He will baptize you in the Holy Spirit and in fire. <sup>17*</sup> His winnowing-fan is in his hand to clear his threshing floor and gather the wheat into his barn; but the chaff he will burn in unquenchable fire." <sup>18</sup> Using exhortations of this sort, he preached the good news to the people.

<sup>19*</sup> Herod the tetrarch was censured by John on the subject of Herodias, his brother's wife, and for all his other crimes. <sup>20</sup> He added to his guilt by shutting John up in prison.

Baptism of Jesus. <sup>21*†</sup> When all the people were baptized, and Jesus was at prayer after likewise being baptized, the skies opened <sup>22*</sup> and the Holy Spirit descended on him in visible form like a dove. A voice from heaven was heard to say: "You are my beloved Son. On you my favor rests."

Genealogy of Jesus. <sup>23*</sup> When Jesus

47: 4, 22.	16: Jn 1, 27; Acts 1,
52: 2, 19.	5; 11, 16.
3, 3-10: Mt 3, 1-10; Mk	17: Mt 3, 12.
1, 2-6.	19f: Mt 14, 3; Mk 6,
4: Is 40, 3ff; Jn 1,	17f.
23.	21f: Mt 3, 13-17; Jn
10f: Acts 2, 37; Jas	1, 32f.
2, 15; 1 Jn 3, 17.	22: 2 Pt 1, 17.
15-18: Mt 3, 11f; Mk 1,	23-38: Mt 1, 1-17.
7f; Acts 13, 25.	23: Mt 13, 55.

†

3, 1: In the fifteenth year . . . Caesar: This chronological datum enables scholars to calculate that John the Baptizer began his mission sometime between 27 and 29 A.D.

3, 2-18: See notes on the verses in Mt 3, 1-17. The Lucan account of the Baptizer's mission gives examples which clarify the meaning of repentance (3, 10-14).

3, 15: This popular conception concerning John the Baptizer closely resembles that in John 1, 20-25.

3, 21f: See note on Mk 1, 9f.

3, 23-38: Luke traces the genealogy of Jesus to Adam in order to identify Jesus with all humanity; Matthew (1, 1-16) traces it to Abraham to identify Jesus with Israel.

began his work he was about thirty years of age, being—so it was supposed—the son of Joseph, son of Heli,<sup>24</sup> son of Matthat, son of Levi, son of Melchi, son of Jannai, son of Joseph,<sup>25</sup> son of Mattathias, son of Amos, son of Nahum, son of Esli, son of Naggai,<sup>26</sup> son of Maath, son of Mattathias, son of Semein, son of Josech, son of Joda,<sup>27</sup> son of Joanan, son of Rhesa, son of Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel, son of Neri,<sup>28</sup> son of Melchi, son of Addi, son of Cosam, son of Elmadam, son of Er,<sup>29</sup> son of Joshua, son of Eliezer, son of Jorim, son of Matthat, son of Levi,<sup>30</sup> son of Simeon, son of Judah, son of Joseph, son of Jonam, son of Eliakim,<sup>31</sup> son of Melea, son of Menna, son of Mattatha, son of Nathan, son of David,<sup>32</sup> son of Jesse, son of Obed, son of Boaz, son of Sala, son of Nahshon,<sup>33*</sup> son of Amminadab, son of Admin, son of Arni, son of Hezron, son of Perez, son of Judah,<sup>34</sup> son of Jacob, son of Isaac, son of Abraham, son of Terah, son of Nahor,<sup>35</sup> son of Serug, son of Reu, son of Peleg, son of Eber, son of Shelah,<sup>36</sup> son of Cainan, son of Arphaxad, son of Shem, son of Noah, son of Lamech,<sup>37</sup> son of Methuselah, son of Enoch, son of Jared, son of Mahalaleel, son of Cainan,<sup>38</sup> son of Enos, son of Seth, son of Adam, son of God.

CHAPTER 4

Temptation in the Desert.† <sup>1*</sup> Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, then returned from the Jordan and was conducted by the Spirit into the desert <sup>2</sup> for forty days, where he was tempted by the devil. During that time he ate nothing, and at the end of it he was hungry. <sup>3</sup> The devil said to him, "If you are the Son of God, command this stone to turn into bread." <sup>4*</sup> Jesus answered him, "Scripture has it, 'Not on bread alone shall man live.'" <sup>5</sup> Then the devil took him up higher and showed him all the kingdoms of the world in a single instant. <sup>6*</sup> He said to him, "I will give you all this power and the glory of these kingdoms; the power has been given to me and I give it to whomever I wish. <sup>7</sup> Prostrate yourself in homage before me, and it shall all be yours." <sup>8*</sup> In reply, Jesus said to him, "Scripture has it,

'You shall do homage to the Lord your God; him alone shall you adore.' "

<sup>9</sup> Then the devil led him to Jerusalem, set him on the parapet of the temple, and said to him, "If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down from here, <sup>10*</sup> for Scripture has it,

'He will bid his angels watch over you';

<sup>11</sup> and again,

'With their hands they will support you, that you may never stumble on a stone.' "

<sup>12*</sup> Jesus said to him in reply, "It also says, 'You shall not put the Lord your God to the test.' "

<sup>13*</sup> When the devil had finished all the tempting he left him, to await another opportunity.

III: THE MINISTRY IN GALILEE

Beginning of Preaching.† <sup>14*</sup> Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit to Galilee, and his reputation spread throughout the region. <sup>15</sup> He was teaching in their synagogues, and all were loud in his praise.

<sup>16*</sup> He came to Nazareth where he had been reared, and entering the synagogue on the sabbath as he was in the habit of doing, he stood up to do the reading. <sup>17</sup> When the book of the prophet Isaiah was handed him, he unrolled the scroll and found the passage where it was written:

<sup>18*</sup> "The spirit of the Lord is upon me; therefore he has anointed me. He has sent me to bring glad tidings to the poor, to proclaim liberty to captives, Recovery of sight to the blind and release to prisoners,

<sup>19</sup> To announce a year of favor from the Lord."

<sup>20</sup> Rolling up the scroll he gave it back to the assistant and sat down. All in the synagogue had their eyes fixed on him.

<sup>21</sup> Then he began by saying to them, "Today this Scripture passage is fulfilled in your hearing." <sup>22</sup> All who were present spoke favorably of him; they marveled at the appealing discourse which came from his lips. They also asked, "Is not this Joseph's son?"

27: 1 Chr 3, 17.

10: Ps 91, 11f.

33: Gn 38, 29; Ru 4, 18.

12: Dt 6, 16.

13: Jn 13, 2, 27.

4, 1-13: Mt 4, 1-11; Mk

14: 5, 15; Mt 3, 16.

1, 12f.

16-30: Mt 13, 53-58.

4: Dt 8, 3.

Mk 6, 1-6.

6: Jer 27, 5; Rv 13,

18: Is 61, 1f; Mt 3,

2f.

16.

8: Dt 6, 13.

†

4, 1-13: See note on Mt 4, 1-11.

4, 14-30: After noting Jesus' initial popularity throughout Galilee, Luke combines, into a single scene laid at Nazareth, the favorable reception given his announcement of the arrival of the messianic era (16-22), the objections to him which Jesus senses in the attitude of his townsmen (23-27; see note on Mk 6, 1-6), and their personal attack on him for refusing to work many miracles for them because of their lack of faith (28ff). Luke intends the entire scene to be prophetic of the ultimate rejection of Jesus by his contemporaries.

<sup>23</sup> He said to them, "You will doubtless quote me the proverb, 'Physician, heal yourself,' and say, 'Do here in your own country the things we have heard you have done in Capernaum.'" <sup>24</sup> But in fact," he went on, "no prophet gains acceptance in his native place. <sup>25</sup> Indeed, let me remind you, there were many widows in Israel in the days of Elijah when the heavens remained closed for three and a half years and a great famine spread over the land. <sup>26</sup> It was to none of these that Elijah was sent, but to a widow of Zarephath near Sidon. <sup>27</sup>* Recall, too, the many lepers in Israel in the time of Elisha the prophet; yet not one was cured except Naaman the Syrian."

<sup>28</sup> At these words the whole audience in the synagogue was filled with indignation. <sup>29</sup>* They rose up and expelled him from the town, leading him to the brow of the hill on which it was built <sup>30</sup>* and intending to hurl him over the edge. But he went straight through their midst and walked away.

Jesus Teaches in Capernaum. <sup>31</sup>* He then went down to Capernaum, a town of Galilee, where he began instructing them on the sabbath day. <sup>32</sup>* They were spellbound by his teaching, for his words had authority.

Cure of a Demoniac. <sup>33</sup>† In the synagogue there was a man with an unclean spirit, who shrieked in a loud voice: <sup>34</sup> "Leave us alone! What do you want of us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are: the Holy One of God." <sup>35</sup> Jesus said to him sharply, "Be quiet! Come out of him." At that, the demon threw him to the ground before everyone's eyes and came out of him without doing him any harm. <sup>36</sup> All were struck with astonishment, and they began saying to one another: "What is there about his speech? He commands the unclean spirits with authority and power, and they leave." <sup>37</sup> His renown kept spreading through the surrounding country.

<sup>38</sup>* Leaving the synagogue, he entered the house of Simon. Simon's mother-in-law was in the grip of a severe fever, and they interceded with him for her. <sup>39</sup> He stood over her and addressed himself to the fever, and it left her. She got up immediately and waited on them.

<sup>40</sup>* At sunset, all who had people sick with a variety of diseases took them to him, and he laid hands on each of them and cured them. <sup>41</sup> Demons departed from many, crying out as they did so, "You are the Son of God!" He rebuked them and did not allow them to speak because they knew that he was the Messiah.

<sup>42</sup>* The next morning he left the town and set out into the open country. The crowds went in search of him, and when they found him they tried to keep him from leaving them. <sup>43</sup> But he said to them, "To other towns I must announce the good news of the reign of God, because that is why I was sent." <sup>44</sup> And he continued to preach in the synagogues of Judea.

CHAPTER 5

Call of the First Disciples.† <sup>1</sup>* As he stood by the Lake of Gennesaret, and the crowd pressed in on him to hear the word of God, <sup>2</sup> he saw two boats moored by the side of the lake; the fishermen had disembarked and were washing their nets. <sup>3</sup> He got into one of the boats, the one belonging to Simon, and asked him to pull out a short distance from the shore; then, remaining seated, he continued to teach the crowds from the boat. <sup>4</sup>* When he had finished speaking he said to Simon, "Put out into deep water and lower your nets for a catch." <sup>5</sup> Simon answered, "Master, we have been hard at it all night long and have caught nothing; but if you say so, I will lower the nets." <sup>6</sup> Upon doing this they caught such a great number of fish that their nets were at the breaking point. <sup>7</sup> They signaled to their mates in the other boat to come and help them. These came, and together they filled the two boats until they nearly sank.

<sup>8</sup> At the sight of this, Simon Peter fell at the knees of Jesus saying, "Leave me, Lord. I am a sinful man." <sup>9</sup> For indeed, amazement at the catch they had made seized him and all his shipmates, <sup>10</sup> as well as James and John, Zebedee's sons, who were partners with Simon. Jesus said to Simon, "Do not be afraid. From now on you will be catching men." <sup>11</sup> With that they brought their boats to land, left everything, and became his followers.

Cure of a Leper.† <sup>12</sup>* On one occasion in a certain town, a man full of leprosy came to him. Seeing Jesus, he bowed down to the ground and said to him,

27: 2 Kgs 5, 14.

29: Jn 7, 30.

30: Jn 8, 59.

31-37: Mt 4, 13; Mk 1, 21-28.

32: Mt 7, 28f.

38f: Mt 8, 14ff; Mk 1, 29f.

40f: Mt 8, 16; Mk 1, 32f.

42f: Mk 1, 35-38.

5, 1-11: Mt 4, 18-22; Mk 1, 16-20.

4: Jn 21, 6.

12f: Mt 8, 2ff; Mk 1, 40-44.

†

4, 33-37: See note on Mk 1, 23-28.

5, 1-11: This scene of the miraculous catch of fish parallels the call of the disciples in Mt 4, 18-22; Mk 1, 16-20. Probably it is related to the miraculous catch after the resurrection, mentioned in Jn 21, 1-8, to which it bears a certain affinity. The final mandate which the risen Christ gave Simon Peter and the other disciples is here anticipated by Luke in an account which portrays Simon's leadership of the disciples and their role of continuing the spiritual mission of Jesus.

5, 12f: See note on Mk 1, 40-45.

"Lord, if you will to do so, you can cure me." <sup>13</sup> Jesus stretched out his hand to touch him and said, "I do will it. Be cured." Immediately the leprosy left him. <sup>14*</sup> Jesus then instructed the man: "Tell no one, but go and show yourself to the priest. Offer for your healing what Moses prescribed; that should be a proof for them." <sup>15</sup> His reputation spread more and more, and great crowds gathered to hear him and to be cured of their maladies. <sup>16</sup> He often retired to deserted places and prayed.

A Paralyzed Man Cured. † <sup>17*</sup> One day Jesus was teaching, and the power of the Lord made him heal. Sitting close by were Pharisees and teachers of the law who had come from every village of Galilee and from Judea and Jerusalem. <sup>18</sup> Some men came along carrying a paralytic on a mat. They were trying to bring him in and lay him before Jesus; <sup>19</sup> but they found no way of getting him through because of the crowd, so they went up on the roof. There they let him down with his mat through the tiles into the middle of the crowd before Jesus. <sup>20</sup> Seeing their faith, Jesus said, "My friend, your sins are forgiven you."

<sup>21</sup> The scribes and the Pharisees began a discussion, saying: "Who is this man who utters blasphemies? Who can forgive sins but God alone?" <sup>22</sup> Jesus, however, knew their reasoning and answered them by saying: "Why do you harbor these thoughts? <sup>23</sup> Which is easier: to say, 'Your sins are forgiven you,' or to say, 'Get up and walk?' <sup>24</sup> In any case, to make it clear to you that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins"—he then addressed the paralyzed man: "I say to you, get up! Take your mat with you, and return to your house."

<sup>25</sup> At once the man stood erect before them. He picked up the mat he had been lying on and went home praising God. <sup>26</sup> At this they were all seized with astonishment. Full of awe, they gave praise to God, saying, "We have seen incredible things today!"

The Call of Levi. <sup>27*</sup> Afterward he went out and saw a tax collector named Levi sitting at his customs post. He said to him, "Follow me." <sup>28</sup> Leaving everything behind, Levi stood up and became his follower. <sup>29*</sup> After that Levi gave a great reception for Jesus in his house, in which he was joined by a large crowd of tax collectors and others at dinner. <sup>30</sup> The Pharisees and the scribes of their party said to his disciples, "Why do you eat and drink with tax collectors and non-observers of the law?" <sup>31</sup> Jesus said to them, "The healthy do not need a doctor; sick people do. <sup>32</sup> I have not come to invite the self-righteous to a change of heart, but sinners."

The Question of Fasting. † <sup>33*</sup> They said to him: "John's disciples fast frequently and offer prayers; the disciples of the Pharisees do the same. Yours, on the contrary, eat and drink freely." <sup>34</sup> Jesus replied: "Can you make guests of the groom fast while the groom is still with them? <sup>35</sup> But when the days come that the groom is removed from their midst, they will surely fast in those days."

<sup>36</sup> He then proposed to them this figure: "No one tears a piece from a new coat to patch an old one. If he does, he will only tear the new coat, and the piece taken from it will not match the old. <sup>37</sup> Moreover, no one pours new wine into old wineskins. Should he do so, the new wine will burst the old skins, the wine will spill out, and the skins will be lost. <sup>38</sup> New wine should be poured into fresh skins. <sup>39</sup> No one, after drinking old wine, wants new. He says, 'I find the old wine better.'"

CHAPTER 6

The Disciples and the Sabbath.

<sup>1*</sup> † Once on a sabbath Jesus was walking through the standing grain. His disciples were pulling off grain-heads, shelling them with their hands, and eating them. <sup>2</sup> Some of the Pharisees asked, "Why are you doing what is prohibited on the sabbath?" <sup>3</sup> Jesus said to them: "Have you not read what David did when he and his men were hungry—<sup>4*</sup> how he entered God's house and took and ate the holy bread and gave it to his men, even though only priests are allowed to eat it?" <sup>5</sup> Then he said to them, "The Son of Man is Lord even of the sabbath."

<sup>6*</sup> † On another sabbath he came to teach in a synagogue where there was a man whose right hand was withered. <sup>7</sup> The scribes and Pharisees were on the watch to see if he would perform a cure on the sabbath so that they could find a charge against him. <sup>8</sup> He knew their thoughts, however, and said to the man whose hand was withered, "Get up and stand here in front." The man rose and remained standing. <sup>9</sup> Jesus said to them, "I ask you, is it lawful to do good on the sabbath—or evil? To preserve life—or destroy it?" <sup>10</sup> He looked around at them

14: Lv 14, 2-32.

17-26: Mt 9, 1-8; Mk 2, 1-12.

27-38: Mt 9, 9-17; Mk 2, 14-22.

29-32: Mt 9, 10-13; Mk 2, 15ff.

33-39: Mt 9, 14-17; Mk 2, 18-22.

6, 1-5: Mt 12, 1-8; Mk 2, 23-28.

4: 1 Sm 21, 7.

6-11: 14, 1-6; Mt 12, 9-14; Mk 3, 1-6.

†
5, 17-26: See note on Mk 2, 1-12.
5, 33-39: See note on Mt 9, 14-17.
6, 1-5: See note on Mt 12, 3-6.
6, 6-11: See note on Mt 12, 10.

all and said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." The man did so and his hand was perfectly restored.

<sup>11</sup> At this they became frenzied and began asking one another what could be done to Jesus.

Choice of the Twelve.† <sup>12*</sup> Then he went out to the mountain to pray, spending the night in communion with God.

<sup>13</sup> At daybreak he called his disciples and selected twelve of them to be his apostles: <sup>14</sup> Simon, to whom he gave the name Peter, and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew, <sup>15</sup> Matthew and Thomas, James son of Alphaeus, and Simon called the Zealot, <sup>16</sup> Judas son of James, and Judas Iscariot, who turned traitor.

The Great Discourse. <sup>17*</sup> Coming down the mountain with them, he stopped at a level stretch where there were many of his disciples; a large crowd of people was with them from all Judea and Jerusalem and the coast of Tyre and Sidon, <sup>18</sup> people who came to hear him and be healed of their diseases. Those who were troubled with unclean spirits were cured; <sup>19</sup> indeed, the whole crowd was trying to touch him because power went out from him which cured all. <sup>20*</sup>† Then, raising his eyes to his disciples, he said:

"Blest are you poor; the reign of God is yours.

Blest are you who hunger; <sup>21</sup> you shall be filled.

Blest are you who are weeping; you shall laugh.

<sup>22</sup> "Blest shall you be when men hate you, when they ostracize you and insult you and proscribe your name as evil because of the Son of Man. <sup>23</sup> On the day they do so, rejoice and exult, for your reward shall be great in heaven. Thus it was that their fathers treated the prophets.

<sup>24*</sup> "But woe to you rich, for your consolation is now.

<sup>25*</sup> Woe to you who are full; you shall go hungry.

Woe to you who laugh now; you shall weep in your grief.

<sup>26</sup> "Woe to you when all speak well of you. Their fathers treated the false prophets in just this way.

Love of One's Enemy. <sup>27*</sup> "To you who hear me, I say: Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you; <sup>28*</sup> bless those who curse you and pray for those who maltreat you. <sup>29*</sup> When someone slaps you on one cheek, turn and give him the other; when someone takes your coat, let him have your shirt as well. <sup>30</sup> Give to all who beg from you. When a man takes what is yours, do not demand it back. <sup>31*</sup> Do to others what you would have them do to you. <sup>32*</sup> If you love those who love you, what credit is that to you? Even sinners love those who love them. <sup>33</sup> If you do good to those who do good to you, how can you claim any credit? Sinners do as much. <sup>34*</sup> If you lend to those from whom you expect repayment, what merit is there in it for you? Even sinners lend to sinners, expecting to be repaid in full.

<sup>35</sup> "Love your enemy and do good; lend without expecting repayment. Then will your recompense be great. You will rightly be called sons of the Most High, since he himself is good to the ungrateful and the wicked.

<sup>36</sup> "Be compassionate, as your Father is compassionate. <sup>37*</sup> Do not judge, and you will not be judged. Do not condemn, and you will not be condemned. Pardon, and you shall be pardoned. <sup>38*</sup> Give, and it shall be given to you. Good measure pressed down, shaken together, running over, will they pour into the fold of your garment. For the measure you measure with will be measured back to you."

<sup>39*</sup> He also used images in speaking to them: "Can a blind man act as guide to a blind man? Will they not both fall into a ditch? <sup>40*</sup> A student is not above his teacher; but every student when he has finished his studies will be on a par with his teacher.

<sup>41*</sup> "Why look at the speck in your brother's eye when you miss the plank in your own? <sup>42</sup> How can you say to your brother, 'Brother, let me remove the speck from your eye,' yet fail yourself to see the plank lodged in your own? Hypocrite, remove the plank from your own eye first; then you will see clearly enough to remove the speck from your brother's eye.

12-16: Mt 10, 1-4; Mk 3, 13-19.

17ff: Mt 4, 24f; Mk 3, 7-12.

20-23: Mt 5, 1-12.

24: Is 5, 8-12; Am 6, 1.

25: Prv 14, 13; Is 65, 13f; Jas 5, 1.

27: Mt 5, 44.

28: 1 Pt 3, 9.

29f: Mt 5, 39-42.

31: Mt 7, 12.

32: Mt 5, 46.

34: Dt 15, 8; Mt 5, 42.

37: Mt 7, 1; Jas 2, 13.

38: Mk 4, 24.

39: Mt 15, 14.

40: Mt 10, 24; Jn 13, 16.

41f: Mt 7, 3ff.

†

6, 12-16: See note on Mk 3, 13-19.

6, 20-49: The Lucan Sermon on the Plain characterizes the Christian as distinctive for his poverty (20-23), cautious against the dangers of wealth (24f), loving toward his enemy (27-38), critical of himself (39-45), and obedient to the teaching of Jesus (46-49). It is reasonable to assume that this Lucan arrangement of Jesus' teaching was addressed to the economically deprived and politically threatened Christian communities of Asia Minor and Greece. It thus possesses a special poignancy, born of Luke's faith in the inevitable victory of the Christian message in a hostile environment, provided Christians accept their poverty in the spirit of Christ and endeavor to conquer their persecutors by the love they show them. The sermon seems to intimate a relevance between the actual situation of the Christian communities it addresses and the teaching of Jesus.

<sup>43*</sup> "A good tree does not produce decayed fruit any more than a decayed tree produces good fruit. <sup>44</sup> Each tree is known by its yield. Figs are not taken from thornbushes, nor grapes picked from brambles. <sup>45</sup> A good man produces goodness from the good in his heart; an evil man produces evil out of his store of evil. Each man speaks from his heart's abundance. <sup>46*</sup> Why do you call me 'Lord, Lord,' and not put into practice what I teach you? <sup>47*</sup> Any man who desires to come to me will hear my words and put them into practice. I will show you with whom he is to be compared. <sup>48</sup> He may be likened to the man who, in building a house, dug deeply and laid the foundation on a rock. When the floods came the torrent rushed in on that house, but failed to shake it because of its solid foundation. <sup>49</sup> On the other hand, anyone who has heard my words but not put them into practice is like the man who built his house on the ground without any foundation. When the torrent rushed upon it, it immediately fell in and was completely destroyed."

CHAPTER 7

Cure of the Centurion's Servant.†

<sup>1*</sup> When he had finished this discourse in the hearing of the people, he entered Capernaum. <sup>2</sup> A centurion had a servant he held in high regard, who was at that moment sick to the point of death. <sup>3</sup> When he heard about Jesus he sent some Jewish elders to him, asking him to come and save the life of his servant. <sup>4</sup> Upon approaching Jesus they petitioned him earnestly. <sup>5</sup> "He deserves this favor from you," they said, "because he loves our people, and even built our synagogue for us." <sup>6</sup> Jesus set out with them. When he was only a short distance from the house, the centurion sent friends to tell him: "Sir, do not trouble yourself, for I am not worthy to have you enter my house. <sup>7</sup> That is why I did not presume to come to you myself. Just give the order and my servant will be cured. <sup>8</sup> I too am a man who knows the meaning of an order, having soldiers under my command. I say to one, 'On your way,' and off he goes; to another, 'Come here,' and he comes; to my slave, 'Do this,' and he does it." <sup>9*</sup> Jesus showed amazement on hearing this, and turned to the crowd which was following him to say, "I tell you, I have never found so much faith among the Israelites." <sup>10</sup> When the deputation returned to the house, they found the servant in perfect health.

The Widow's Son.† <sup>11</sup> Soon afterward he went to a town called Naim, and his disciples and a large crowd accompanied him. <sup>12</sup> As he approached the gate of the town a dead man was being carried out, the only son of a widowed mother. A considerable crowd of townsmen were with her. <sup>13</sup> The Lord was moved with pity upon seeing her and said to her, "Do not cry." <sup>14</sup> Then he stepped forward and touched the litter; at this, the bearers halted. He said, "Young man, I bid you get up." <sup>15</sup> The dead man sat up and began to speak. Then Jesus gave him back to his mother. <sup>16*</sup> Fear seized them all and they began to praise God. "A great prophet has risen among us," they said; and, "God has visited his people." <sup>17*</sup> This was the report that spread about him throughout Judea and the surrounding country.

Jesus' Testimony. <sup>18*†</sup> The disciples of John brought their teacher word of all these happenings. Summoning two of them, <sup>19</sup> John sent them to ask the Lord, "Are you 'He who is to come' or are we to expect someone else?" <sup>20</sup> When the men came to him they said, "John the Baptizer sends us to you with this question: 'Are you 'He who is to come' or do we look for someone else?'" <sup>21</sup> (At that time he was curing many of their diseases, afflictions, and evil spirits; he also restored sight to many who were blind.) <sup>22*</sup> Jesus gave this response: "Go and report to John what you have seen and heard. The blind recover their sight, cripples walk, lepers are cured, the deaf hear, dead men are raised to life, and the poor have the good news preached to them. <sup>23</sup> Blest is that man who finds no stumbling block in me."

<sup>24†</sup> When the messengers of John had set off, Jesus began to speak about him to the crowds. "What did you go out to see in the desert—a reed swayed by the wind? <sup>25</sup> What, really, did you go out to see—someone dressed luxuriously? Remember, those who dress in luxury and eat in splendor are to be found in royal palaces. <sup>26</sup> Then what did you go out to see—a prophet? He is that, I assure you, and something more. <sup>27*</sup> This is the man of whom Scripture says, 43ff: Mt. 7, 16ff; 12, 33ff.	16: 1 Kgs 17, 23; Mt 16, 14; Jn 4, 19.

46: Mt 7, 21; Rom 2, 13; Jas 1, 22.	17: 4, 14.
47ff: Mt 7, 24-27.	18-27: Mt 11, 2-11.
7, 1-10: Mt 8, 5-13.	22: Is 35, 5f.
9: Mt 8, 10.	27: Is 40, 3; Mal 3, 1.

† 7, 1-10: The placement of this event after the Sermon on the Plain (6, 46-49) serves as an example of that practical acknowledgment of Jesus' authority which is recommended at the conclusion of the sermon.

7, 11-17: This account of the raising to life of the widow's son prepares for Jesus' response about his ministry, made to the inquiring disciples of John the Baptizer (20:22). The observation in 7, 15, Jesus gave him back to his mother, relates the mission of Jesus to that of Elijah (1 Kgs 17, 23).

7, 18-23: See note on Mt 11, 3.

7, 24-35: See notes on Mt 11, 7-15; 11, 11; 11, 19.

'I send my messenger ahead of you to prepare your way before you.'

<sup>28</sup> I assure you, there is no man born of woman greater than John. Yet the least born into the kingdom of God is greater than he."

John's Baptism. <sup>29*</sup> The entire populace that had heard Jesus, even the tax collectors, gave praise to God, for they had received from John the baptismal bath he administered. <sup>30</sup> The Pharisees and the lawyers, on the other hand, by failing to receive his baptism defeated God's plan in their regard.

Christ's Verdict. <sup>31*</sup> "What comparison can I use for the men of today? What are they like? <sup>32</sup> They are like children squatting in the city squares and calling to their playmates,

'We piped you a tune but you did not dance,
we sang you a dirge but you did not wail.'

<sup>33</sup> I mean that John the Baptizer came neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and you say, 'He is mad!' <sup>34</sup> The Son of Man came and he both ate and drank, and you say, 'Here is a glutton and a drunkard, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!' <sup>35</sup> God's wisdom is vindicated by all who accept it."

The Penitent Woman. † <sup>36*</sup> There was a certain Pharisee who invited Jesus to dine with him. Jesus went to the Pharisee's home and reclined to eat. <sup>37*</sup> A woman known in the town to be a sinner learned that he was dining in the Pharisee's home. She brought in a vase of perfumed oil <sup>38</sup> and stood behind him at his feet, weeping so that her tears fell upon his feet. Then she wiped them with her hair, kissing them and perfuming them with the oil. <sup>39</sup> When his host, the Pharisee, saw this, he said to himself, "If this man were a prophet, he would know who and what sort of woman this is that touches him—that she is a sinner." <sup>40</sup> In answer to his thoughts, Jesus said to him, "Simon, I have something to propose to you." "Teacher," he said, "speak."

<sup>41</sup> "Two men owed money to a certain money-lender; one owed a total of five hundred coins, the other fifty. <sup>42</sup> Since neither was able to repay, he wrote off both debts. Which of them was more grateful to him?" <sup>43</sup> Simon answered, "He, I presume, to whom he remitted the larger sum." Jesus said to him, "You are right."

<sup>44</sup> Turning then to the woman, he said to Simon: "You see this woman? I came to your home and you provided me with no water for my feet. She has washed my feet with her tears and wiped them with her hair. <sup>45</sup> You gave me no kiss, but she has not ceased kissing my feet since I entered. <sup>46</sup> You did not anoint my head with oil, but she has anointed my feet with perfume. <sup>47</sup> I tell you, that is why her many sins are forgiven—because of her great love. Little is forgiven the one whose love is small."

<sup>48*</sup> He said to her then, "Your sins are forgiven"; <sup>49</sup> at which his fellow guests began to ask among themselves, "Who is this that he even forgives sins?" <sup>50</sup> Meanwhile he said to the woman, "Your faith has been your salvation. Now go in peace."

CHAPTER 8

The Women Who Served. † <sup>1*</sup> After this he journeyed through towns and villages preaching and proclaiming the good news of the kingdom of God. The Twelve accompanied him, <sup>2*</sup> and also some women who had been cured of evil spirits and maladies: Mary called the Magdalene, from whom seven devils had gone out, <sup>3</sup> Joanna, the wife of Herod's steward Chuza, Susanna, and many others who were assisting them out of their means.

Parable of the Sower. † <sup>4†</sup> A large crowd was gathering, with people resorting to him from one town after another. He spoke to them in a parable: <sup>5</sup> "A farmer went out to sow some seed. In the sowing, some fell on the footpath where it was walked on and the birds of the air ate it up. <sup>6</sup> Some fell on rocky ground, sprouted up, then withered through lack of moisture. <sup>7</sup> Some fell among briars, and the thorns growing up with it stifled it. <sup>8</sup> But some fell on good soil, grew up, and yielded grain a hundredfold."

As he said this he exclaimed: "Let everyone who has ears attend to what he has heard." <sup>9*</sup> His disciples began asking him what the meaning of this parable might be. <sup>10*</sup> He replied, "To you the mysteries of the reign of God have been confided, but to the rest in parables that,

29: Mt 21, 32.	8, 1: 4, 43; Mk 1, 39.
31-35: Mt 11, 16-19.	2: 24, 10; Mt 27,
36: 11, 37; 14, 1.	55f; Mk 15, 40f;
37ff: Mt 26, 6-13; Mk	16, 9; Jn 19, 25.
14, 3-9; Jn 12,	9-15: Mt 13, 10-23;
1-8.	Mk 4, 10-20.
37: Mt 21, 32.	10: Is 6, 9; Jn 12,
48: Mt 9, 2.	40; Acts 28, 26.

†

7, 36-50: Jesus admits both the gravity of the woman's sins and the relative justice of Simon. But he points out her superiority to the Pharisee, for she expresses the love that stems from repentance, whereas Simon's pride prevents him from acknowledging his real, though lesser, sinfulness.

8, 1ff: Luke notes Jesus' acceptance of the aid of women during his ministry. The evangelist probably also has in mind their contributions to the early Christian communities.

8, 4-15: On the meaning of the parable of the sower and its explanation, see the note on Mt 13, 1-53.

'Seeing they may not perceive, and hearing they may not understand.'

<sup>11</sup> This is the meaning of the parable. The seed is the word of God. <sup>12</sup> Those on the footpath are people who hear, but the devil comes and takes the word out of their hearts lest they believe and be saved. <sup>13</sup> Those on the rocky ground are the ones who, when they hear the word, receive it with joy. They have no root; they believe for a while, but fall away in time of temptation. <sup>14</sup> The seed fallen among briars are those who hear, but their progress is stifled by the cares and riches and pleasures of life and they do not mature. <sup>15</sup> The seed on good ground are those who hear the word in a spirit of openness, retain it, and bear fruit through perseverance.

Parable of the Lamp. <sup>16*</sup> "No one lights a lamp and puts it under a bushel basket or under a bed; he puts it on a lampstand so that whoever comes in can see it. <sup>17*</sup> There is nothing hidden that will not be exposed, nothing concealed that will not be known and brought to light. <sup>18*</sup> Take heed, therefore, how you hear: to the man who has, more will be given; and he who has not, will lose even the little he thinks he has."

True Kindred of Jesus. <sup>19*</sup> His mother and brothers came to be with him, but they could not reach him because of the crowd. <sup>20</sup> He was told, "Your mother and your brothers are standing outside and they wish to see you." <sup>21*</sup> He told them in reply, "My mother and my brothers are those who hear the word of God and act upon it."

Calming of the Tempest. <sup>22*</sup> One day he got into a boat with his disciples and said to them, "Let us cross over to the far side of the lake." So they set out, <sup>23</sup> and as they sailed he slept. A wind-storm descended on the lake, and they began to ship water and to be in danger. <sup>24</sup> They came to awaken him, saying, "Master, master, we are lost!" He awoke and rebuked the wind and the tumultuous waves. The waves subsided and it grew calm. <sup>25</sup> Then he asked them, "Where is your faith?" Filled with fear and admiration, they said to one another, "What sort of man can this be who commands even the winds and the sea and they obey him?"

The Gerasene Demoniac. <sup>26*</sup> They sailed to the country of the Gerasenes, which is opposite Galilee. <sup>27</sup> When he came to land, he was met by a man from the town who was possessed by demons. For a long time he had not worn any clothes; he did not live in a house, but among the tombstones. <sup>28*</sup> On seeing Jesus he began to shriek; then he fell at his feet and exclaimed at the top of his voice, "Jesus, Son of God Most High, why do you meddle with me? Do not torment me, I beg you." <sup>29</sup> By now Jesus was ordering the unclean spirit to come out of the man. This spirit had taken hold of him many a time. The man used to be tied with chains and fetters, but he would break his bonds and the demon would drive him into places of solitude. <sup>30</sup> "What is your name?" Jesus demanded. "Legion," he answered, because the demons who had entered him were many. <sup>31</sup> They pleaded with him not to order them back to the abyss. <sup>32</sup> It happened that a large herd of swine was feeding nearby on the hillside, and the demons asked him to permit them to enter the swine. This he granted. <sup>33</sup> The demons then came out of the man and entered the swine, and the herd charged down the bluff into the lake, where they drowned.

<sup>34</sup> When the swineherds saw what had happened, they took to their heels and brought the news to the town and country roundabout. <sup>35</sup> The people went out to see for themselves what had happened. Coming on Jesus, they found the man from whom the devils had departed sitting at his feet dressed and in his full senses; this sight terrified them. <sup>36</sup> They were told by witnesses how the possessed man had been cured. <sup>37</sup> Shortly afterward, the entire population of the Gerasene territory asked Jesus to leave their neighborhood, for a great fear had seized them; so he got into the boat and went back across the lake.

<sup>38</sup> The man from whom the devils had departed asked to come with him. <sup>39</sup> but he sent him away with the words, "Go back home and recount all that God has done for you." The man went all through the town making public what Jesus had done for him.

Jairus' Child; a Hemorrhage Victim. †

<sup>40*</sup> On his return, Jesus was welcomed by the crowd; indeed, they were all waiting for him. <sup>41</sup> A man named Jairus, who was chief of the synagogue, came up and fell at Jesus' feet, begging that he come to his home <sup>42</sup> because his only daughter,

16ff: Mk 4, 21-25.	22-25: Mt 8, 23-27, Mk 4, 35-41.
16: 11, 33; Mt 5, 15.
17: 12, 2; Mt 10, 26.	26-39: Mt 8, 28-34; Mk 5, 1-20.
18: 19, 26; Mt 13, 12; 25, 29.	28: 4, 34; Mt 4, 3.
19ff: Mt 12, 46-50; Mk 3, 31-35.	40-56: Mt 9, 18-26; Mk 5, 21-43.
21: 11, 27f.

† 8, 19ff: This passage is to be understood in the light of Luke's theological conception of the mother of Jesus as the figure or type of the Christian community. She acquiesces fully, as the Christian should, to the mystery of God's word; cf 1, 38.

8, 22-25: See note on Mk 4, 35-41.

8, 26-39: See note on Mk 1, 23-28 concerning the exorcisms performed by Jesus.

8, 40-56: See note on Mk 5, 21-43.

a girl of about twelve, was dying. As Jesus went, the crowds almost crushed him. <sup>43</sup> A woman with a hemorrhage of twelve years' duration, incurable at any doctor's hands, <sup>44</sup> came up behind him and touched the tassel on his cloak. Immediately her bleeding stopped. <sup>45</sup> Jesus asked, "Who touched me?" Everyone disclaimed doing it, while Peter said, "Lord, the crowds are milling and pressing around you!" <sup>46*</sup> Jesus insisted, "Someone touched me; I know that power has gone forth from me." <sup>47</sup> When the woman saw that her act had not gone unnoticed, she came forward trembling. Falling at his feet, she related before the whole assemblage why she had touched him and how she had been instantly cured. <sup>48</sup> Jesus said to her, "Daughter, it is your faith that has cured you. Now go in peace."

<sup>49</sup> He was still speaking when a man came from the ruler's house with the announcement, "Your daughter is dead; do not bother the Teacher further." <sup>50</sup> Jesus heard this, and his response was: "Fear is useless; what is needed is trust and her life will be spared." <sup>51</sup> Once he had arrived at the house, he permitted no one to enter with him except Peter, John, James, and the child's parents. <sup>52</sup> While everyone wept and lamented her, he said, "Stop crying for she is not dead but asleep." <sup>53</sup> They laughed at him, being certain she was dead. <sup>54</sup> He took her by the hand and spoke these words: "Get up, child." <sup>55</sup> The breath of life returned to her and she got up immediately; whereupon he told them to give her something to eat. <sup>56</sup> Her parents were astounded, but he ordered them not to tell anyone what had happened.

CHAPTER 9

Mission of the Twelve. <sup>1*</sup> Jesus now called the Twelve together and gave them power and authority to overcome all demons and to cure diseases. <sup>2</sup> He sent them forth to proclaim the reign of God and heal the afflicted. <sup>3</sup> Jesus advised them: "Take nothing for the journey, neither walking staff nor traveling bag; no bread, no money. No one is to have two coats. <sup>4*</sup> Stay at whatever house you enter and proceed from there. <sup>5*</sup> When people will not receive you, leave that town and shake its dust from your feet as a testimony against them." <sup>6</sup> So they set out and went from village to village, spreading the good news everywhere and curing diseases.

Herod Learns of Jesus. <sup>7*</sup> Herod the tetrarch heard of all that was happening and was perplexed, for some were saying, "John has been raised from the dead"; <sup>8</sup> others, "Elijah has appeared"; and still others, "One of the prophets of old has risen." <sup>9</sup> But Herod said, "John I beheaded. Who is this man about whom I hear all these reports?" He was very curious to see him.

Multiplication of the Loaves. <sup>10*</sup> The apostles on their return related to Jesus all they had accomplished. Taking them with him, he retired to a town called Bethsaida, <sup>11</sup> but the crowds found this out and followed him. He received them and spoke to them of the reign of God, and he healed all who were in need of healing.

<sup>12</sup> As sunset approached the Twelve came and said to him, "Dismiss the crowd so that they can go into the villages and farms in the neighborhood and find themselves lodging and food, for this is certainly an out-of-the-way place." <sup>13</sup> He answered them, "Why do you not give them something to eat yourselves?" They replied, "We have nothing but five loaves and two fish. Or shall we ourselves go and buy food for all these people?" <sup>14</sup> (There were about five thousand men.) Jesus said to his disciples, "Have them sit down in groups of fifty or so." <sup>15</sup> They followed his instructions and got them all seated. <sup>16</sup> Then, taking the five loaves and the two fish, Jesus raised his eyes to heaven, pronounced a blessing over them, broke them, and gave them to his disciples for distribution to the crowd. <sup>17</sup> They all ate until they had enough. What they had left, over and above, filled twelve baskets.

Peter's Profession of Faith. <sup>18*</sup> One day when Jesus was praying in seclusion and his disciples were with him, he put the question to them, "Who do the crowds say that I am?" <sup>19</sup> "John the Baptist," they replied, "and some say Elijah, while others claim that one of the prophets of old has returned from the dead." <sup>20</sup> "But you—who do you say that I am?" he asked them. Peter said in reply, "The Messiah of God." <sup>21</sup> He strictly forbade them to tell this to anyone. <sup>22*</sup> "The Son of Man," he said, "must first endure many sufferings, be rejected by the elders, the high priests and the scribes, and be put to death, and then be raised up on the third day."

46: 6, 19. 10-17: Mt 14, 13-21;
9, 1-6: Mt 10, 1, 8-14; Mk 6, 30-44; Jn 6, 1-13.
Mk 3, 13-16; 6, 7-13. 18-21: Mt 16, 13-20;
4, 10, 7. Mk 8, 27-30.
5: Acts 13, 51. 22: 24, 7, 26; Mt 16, 21; Mk 8, 31.
7ff: Mt 14, 1f; Mk 6, 14ff.

†

9, 18-22: Luke omits reference to Caesarea Philippi (Mt 16, 13; Mk 8, 27) as the locale of Peter's confession. This is because his chief interest in the event centers upon Jesus' awareness of his messianic identity in his onward movement toward Jerusalem (not away from it) to achieve the climax of his mission through the passion and resurrection.

Conditions of Discipleship.† 23* Jesus said to all: "Whoever wishes to be my follower must deny his very self, take up his cross each day, and follow in my steps. 24* Whoever would save his life will lose it, and whoever loses his life for my sake will save it. 25 What profit does he show who gains the whole world and destroys himself in the process? 26* If a man is ashamed of me and my doctrine, the Son of Man will be ashamed of him when he comes in his glory and that of his Father and his holy angels. 27* I assure you, there are some standing here who will not taste death until they see the reign of God."

Jesus Transfigured.† 28* About eight days after saying this he took Peter, John and James, and went up onto a mountain to pray. 29 While he was praying, his face changed in appearance and his clothes became dazzlingly white. 30 Suddenly two men were talking with him—Moses and Elijah. 31 They appeared in glory and spoke of his passage, which he was about to fulfill in Jerusalem. 32 Peter and those with him had fallen into a deep sleep; but awakening, they saw his glory and likewise saw the two men who were standing with him. 33 When these were leaving, Peter said to Jesus, "Master, how good it is for us to be here. Let us set up three booths, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." (He did not really know what he was saying.) 34 While he was speaking, a cloud came and overshadowed them, and the disciples grew fearful as the others entered it. 35* Then from the cloud came a voice which said, "This is my Son, my Chosen One. Listen to him." 36 When the voice fell silent, Jesus was there alone. The disciples kept quiet, telling nothing of what they had seen at that time to anyone.

A Possessed Boy.† 37* The following day they came down from the mountain and a large crowd met them. 38 Suddenly a man from the crowd exclaimed: "Teacher, I beg you to look at my son; he is my only child. 39 A spirit takes possession of him and with a sudden cry throws him into a convulsion and makes him foam at the mouth, then abandons him in his shattered condition. 40 I asked your disciples to cast out the spirit but they could not." 41 Jesus said in reply: "What an unbelieving and perverse lot you are! How long must I remain with you? How long can I endure you? Bring your son here to me." 42 As he was being brought, the spirit threw him into convulsions on the ground. Jesus then rebuked the unclean spirit, cured the boy, and restored him to his father. 43 And all who saw it marveled at the greatness of God.

Second Prediction of the Passion. In the midst of their amazement at that he was doing, Jesus said to his disciples: 44*† "Pay close attention to what I tell you: The Son of Man must be delivered into the hands of men." 45 They failed, however, to understand this warning; its meaning was so concealed from them they did not grasp it at all, and they were afraid to question him about the matter.

Against Ambition.† 46* A discussion arose among them as to which of them was the greatest. 47 Jesus, who knew their thoughts, took a little child and placed it beside him, 48* after which he said to them, "Whoever welcomes this little child on my account welcomes me, and whoever welcomes me welcomes him who sent me; for the least one among you is the greatest."

49† It was John who said, "Master, we saw a man using your name to expel demons, and we tried to stop him because he is not of our company." 50 Jesus told him in reply, "Do not stop him, for any man who is not against you is on your side."

IV: THE JOURNEY THROUGH PEREA

Samaritan Inhospitality. 51*† As the time approached when he was to be taken from this world, he firmly re-

23-26: Mt 16, 24-28; Mk 8, 34-38; 9, 1.	37-43: Mt 17, 14-18; Mk 9, 14-27.
23: 14, 27; Mt 10, 38.	44†: Mt 17, 22†; Mk 9, 30ff.
24: 17, 33; Mt 10, 39; Jn 12, 25f.	46†: Mt 18, 1-5; Mk 9, 33-37.
26: 12, 9; Mt 10, 33.	48: Mt 10, 40; 18, 5; Jn 13, 20.
27: Mt 16, 28; Mk 9, 1.	51: 13, 22; 17, 11; 18, 31; 19, 28; 24, 51.
28-36: Mt 17, 1-9; Mk 9, 2-10.
35: 2 Pt 1, 17.

†

9, 23-27: See note on Mk 8, 34—9, 1.
9, 28-36: See note on Mk 9, 2-8. Lk 9, 31 explicitly associates the transfiguration with Jesus' passion and resurrection.
9, 37-43: See note on Mk 9, 14-29.
9, 44†: See note on Mk 9, 30ff.
9, 46†: See note on Mk 9, 33-37.
9, 49†: See note on Lk 9, 38-41.
9, 51—18, 14: This section, composed mainly of sayings, parables and incidents found only in Luke, is derived from special sources at Luke's disposal and has come to be called "the great insertion." The evangelist presents these things within the framework of a geographical theme of Jesus' last journey to Jerusalem (9, 53-57; 10, 1; 13, 22-33; 17, 11). The several incidents recounted show the superior wisdom of Jesus, e.g., his response to the lawyer concerning the way to eternal life (10, 25-28), and his defense of healing on the sabbath (13, 10-17; 14, 1-6).
The principal themes of Jesus' teaching in this section concern the sacrifices required for discipleship (9, 57-62); God's action in history directing the gospel message to the simple ones (10, 21); reliance on persevering prayer (11, 1-13; 18, 1-8); the supreme value of man's response to God's word (10, 38-42; 11, 27f); the gravity of the refusal to repent (11, 29-32; 13, 1-5); the sinfulness of hypocrisy (11, 37—12, 3); the threat to salvation presented by material wealth (12, 13-34; 16, 1-15, 19-31); constant readiness for divine judgment (12, 35-48, 54-59; 13, 6-9, 22-30; 14, 16-24; 17, 20-37); and the bestowal of the divine mercy upon sinners (15, 3-32).

solved to proceed toward Jerusalem, and sent messengers on ahead of him. <sup>52</sup> These entered a Samaritan town to prepare for his passing through, <sup>53</sup> but the Samaritans would not welcome him because he was on his way to Jerusalem. <sup>54</sup> When his disciples James and John saw this, they said, "Lord, would you not have us call down fire from heaven to destroy them?" <sup>55</sup> He turned toward them only to reprimand them. <sup>56</sup> Then they set off for another town.

The Apostles' Requirements. <sup>57*</sup> As they were making their way along, someone said to him, "I will be your follower wherever you go." <sup>58</sup> Jesus said to him, "The foxes have lairs, the birds of the sky have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head." <sup>59</sup> To another he said, "Come after me." The man replied, "Let me bury my father first." <sup>60</sup> Jesus said to him, "Let the dead bury their dead; come away and proclaim the kingdom of God." <sup>61*</sup> Yet another said to him, "I will be your follower, Lord, but first let me take leave of my people at home." <sup>62</sup> Jesus answered him, "Whoever puts his hand to the plow but keeps looking back is unfit for the reign of God."

CHAPTER 10

Mission of the Seventy-two. <sup>1</sup> After this, the Lord appointed a further seventy-two and sent them in pairs before him to every town and place he intended to visit. <sup>2*</sup> He said to them: "The harvest is rich but the workers are few; therefore ask the harvest-master to send workers to his harvest. <sup>3*</sup> Be on your way, and remember: I am sending you as lambs in the midst of wolves. <sup>4*</sup> Do not carry a walking staff or traveling bag; wear no sandals and greet no one along the way. <sup>5</sup> On entering any house, first say, 'Peace to this house.' <sup>6</sup> If there is a peaceable man there, your peace will rest on him; if not, it will come back to you. <sup>7*</sup> Stay in the one house eating and drinking what they have, for the laborer is worth his wage. Do not move from house to house.

<sup>8</sup> "Into whatever city you go, after they welcome you, eat what they set before you, <sup>9*</sup> and cure the sick there. Say to them, 'The reign of God is at hand.' <sup>10*</sup> If the people of any town you enter do not welcome you, go into its streets and say, <sup>11*</sup> 'We shake the dust of this town from our feet as testimony against you. But know that the reign of God is near.' <sup>12</sup> I assure you, on that day the fate of Sodom will be less severe than that of such a town. <sup>13*</sup> It will go ill with you, Chorazin! And just as ill with you Bethsaida! If the miracles worked in your midst had occurred in Tyre and Sidon, they would long ago have reformed in sackcloth and ashes. <sup>14</sup> It will go easier on the day of judgment for Tyre and Sidon than for you. <sup>15*</sup> And as for you, Capernaum, 'Are you to be exalted to the skies? You shall be hurled down to the realm of death!'

<sup>16*</sup> "He who hears you, hears me. He who rejects you, rejects me. And he who rejects me, rejects him who sent me."

<sup>17</sup> The seventy-two returned in jubilation saying, "Master, even the demons are subject to us in your name." <sup>18*</sup> He said in reply: "I watched Satan fall from the sky like lightning. <sup>19*</sup> See what I have done; I have given you power to tread on snakes and scorpions and all the forces of the enemy, and nothing shall ever injure you. <sup>20*</sup> Nevertheless, do not rejoice so much in the fact that the devils are subject to you as that your names are inscribed in heaven."

Hymn of Praise. <sup>21*</sup> At that moment Jesus rejoiced in the Holy Spirit and said: "I offer you praise, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because what you have hidden from the learned and the clever you have revealed to the merest children.

<sup>22</sup> "Yes, Father, you have graciously willed it so. Everything has been given over to me by my Father. No one knows the Son except the Father and no one knows the Father except the Son—and anyone to whom the Son wishes to reveal him."

Privilege of the Disciples. <sup>23*</sup> Turning to his disciples he said to them privately: "Blest are the eyes that see what you see. <sup>24</sup> I tell you, many prophets and kings wished to see what you see but did not see it, and to hear what you hear but did not hear it."

The Good Samaritan. <sup>25*</sup> On one occasion a lawyer stood up to pose him this problem: "Teacher, what must I do to inherit everlasting life?" <sup>26</sup> Jesus answered him: "What is written in the law? How do you read it?" <sup>27*</sup> He replied:

"You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul,
with all your strength,
and with all your mind;
and your neighbor as yourself."

57-60: Mt 8, 19-22.
61: 1 Kgs 19, 19ff.
10, 2: Mt 9, 37; Jn 4, 35.
3: Mt 10, 16.
4-7: 9, 3ff.
7: Mt 10, 10; 1 Trm 5, 18.
9: Mt 3, 2; 4, 17.
10: Mt 10, 7.
11: Acts 13, 51.
13: Mt 11, 21-24.
15: Is 14, 13ff.

16: Mt 10, 40; Jn 13, 20.
18: Is 14, 12.
19: Ps 91, 13; Rv 12, 9.
20: Rv 20, 12.
21f: Mt 11, 25ff.
23f: Mt 13, 16f.
25-28: Mt 22, 34-39; Mk 12, 28-31.
25: Mt 19, 16.
27: Lv 19, 18; Dt 6, 5.

28* Jesus said, "You have answered correctly. Do this and you shall live." 29 But because he wished to justify himself he said to Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?" 30 Jesus replied: "There was a man going down from Jerusalem to Jericho who fell prey to robbers. They stripped him, beat him, and then went off leaving him half-dead. 31 A priest happened to be going down the same road; he saw him but continued on. 32 Likewise there was a Levite who came the same way; he saw him and went on. 33 But a Samaritan who was journeying along came on him and was moved to pity at the sight. 34 He approached him and dressed his wounds, pouring in oil and wine. He then hoisted him on his own beast and brought him to an inn, where he cared for him. 35 The next day he took out two silver pieces and gave them to the innkeeper with the request: 'Look after him, and if there is any further expense I will repay you on my way back.'

36 "Which of these three, in your opinion, was neighbor to the man who fell in with the robbers?" 37 The answer came, "The one who treated him with compassion." Jesus said to him, "Then go and do the same."

Martha and Mary. 38* On their journey Jesus entered a village where a woman named Martha welcomed him to her home. 39 She had a sister named Mary, who seated herself at the Lord's feet and listened to his words. 40 Martha, who was busy with all the details of hospitality, came to him and said, "Lord, are you not concerned that my sister has left me to do the household tasks all alone? Tell her to help me."

41 The Lord in reply said to her: "Martha, Martha, you are anxious and upset about many things; 42 one thing only is required. Mary has chosen the better portion and she shall not be deprived of it."

CHAPTER 11

The Our Father. 1 One day he was praying in a certain place. When he had finished, one of his disciples asked him, "Lord, teach us to pray, as John taught his disciples." 2* He said to them, "When you pray, say:

"Father,
hallowed be your name,
your kingdom come.

3 Give us each day our daily bread.

4 Forgive us our sins for we too forgive all who do us
wrong;
and subject us not to the trial."

Two Parables on Prayer. 5 Jesus said to them: "If one of you knows someone who comes to him in the middle of the night and says to him, 'Friend, lend me three loaves, 6 for a friend of mine has come in from a journey and I have nothing to offer him'; 7 and he from inside should reply, 'Leave me alone. The door is shut now and my children and I are in bed. I cannot get up to look after your needs'— 8 I tell you, even though he does not get up and take care of the man because of friendship, he will do so because of his persistence, and give him as much as he needs.

9* "So I say to you, 'Ask and you shall receive; seek and you shall find; knock and it shall be opened to you.'

10 "For whoever asks, receives; whoever seeks, finds; whoever knocks, is admitted. 11 What father among you will give his son a snake if he asks for a fish, 12 or hand him a scorpion if he asks for an egg? 13 If you, with all your sins, know how to give your children good things, how much more will the heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask him."

Jesus and Beelzebul. 14* Jesus was casting out a devil which was mute, and when the devil was cast out the dumb man spoke. The crowds were amazed at this. 15 Some of them said, "It is by Beelzebul, the prince of devils, that he casts out devils." 16* Others, to test him, were demanding of him a sign from heaven.

17 Because he knew their thoughts, he said to them: "Every kingdom divided against itself is laid waste. Any house torn by dissension falls. 18 If Satan is divided against himself, how can his kingdom last?—since you say it is by Beelzebul that I cast out devils. 19 If I cast out devils by Beelzebul, by whom do your people cast them out? In such case, let them act as your judges. 20* But if it is by the finger of God that I cast out devils, then the reign of God is upon you.

21 "When a strong man fully armed guards his courtyard, his possessions go undisturbed. 22 But when someone stronger than he comes and overpowers him, such a one carries off the arms on which he was relying and divides the spoils. 23* He who is not with me is against me, and he who does not gather with me scatters.

24* "When an unclean spirit has gone out of a man, it wanders through arid wastes searching for a resting-place; failing to find one, it says, 'I will go back to where I came from.' 25 It then returns, to find the house swept and tidied. 26 Next it goes out and returns with seven 28: Lv 18, 5; Prv 19, 16.

Mk 3, 22-27.

16: Mt 16, 1; Mk 8, 11.

38: Jn 11, 1f.

11, 2ff; Mt 6, 9-13.

20: Mt 12, 28.

9-13: Mt 7, 7-11.

23: Mt 12, 30.

9: Mk 11, 24.

24ff: Mt 12, 43ff.

14-22: Mt 12, 22-29;

other spirits far worse than itself, who enter in and dwell there. The result is that the last state of the man is worse than the first."

True Happiness. <sup>27</sup> While he was saying this a woman from the crowd called out, "Blest is the womb that bore you and the breasts that nursed you!" <sup>28*</sup> "Rather," he replied, "blest are they who hear the word of God and keep it."

The Sign of Jonah. <sup>29*</sup> While the crowds pressed around him he began to speak to them in these words: "This is an evil age. It seeks a sign. But no sign will be given it except the sign of Jonah. <sup>30</sup> Just as Jonah was a sign for the Ninevites, so will the Son of Man be a sign for the present age. <sup>31*</sup> The queen of the South will rise at the judgment along with the men of this generation, and she will condemn them. She came from the farthest corner of the world to listen to the wisdom of Solomon, but you have a greater than Solomon here. <sup>32*</sup> At the judgment, the citizens of Nineveh will rise along with the present generation, and they will condemn it. For at the preaching of Jonah they reformed, but you have a greater than Jonah here.

Parable of the Lamp. <sup>33*</sup> "One who lights a lamp does not put it in the cellar or under a bushel basket, but rather on a lampstand, so that they who come in may see the light. <sup>34</sup> The eye is the lamp of your body. When your eyesight is sound, your whole body is lighted up, but when your eyesight is bad, your body is in darkness. <sup>35</sup> Take care, then, that your light is not darkness. <sup>36</sup> If your whole body is lighted up and not partly in darkness, it will be as fully illumined as when a lamp shines brightly for you."

Hypocrisy of Pharisees and Lawyers. <sup>37*</sup> As he was speaking, a Pharisee invited him to dine at his house. He entered and reclined at table. <sup>38*</sup> Seeing this, the Pharisee was surprised that he had not first performed the ablutions prescribed before eating. <sup>39*</sup> The Lord said to him: "You Pharisees! You cleanse the outside of cup and dish, but within you are filled with rapaciousness and evil. <sup>40</sup> Fools! Did not he who made the outside make the inside too? <sup>41</sup> But if you give what you have as alms, all will be wiped clean for you. <sup>42*</sup> Woe to you Pharisees! You pay tithes on mint and rue and all the garden plants, while neglecting justice and the love of God. These are the things you should practice, without omitting the others. <sup>43*</sup> Woe to you Pharisees! You love the front seats in synagogues and marks of respect in public. <sup>44*</sup> Woe to you! You are like hidden tombs over which men walk unawares."

<sup>45</sup> In reply one of the lawyers said to him, "Teacher, in speaking this way you insult us too." <sup>46*</sup> Jesus answered: "Woe

to you lawyers also! You lay impossible burdens on men but will not lift a finger to lighten them. <sup>47*</sup> Woe to you! You build the tombs of the prophets, but it was your fathers who murdered them. <sup>48</sup> You show that you stand behind the deeds of your fathers: they committed the murders and you erect the tombs. <sup>49*</sup> That is why the wisdom of God has said, 'I will send them prophets and apostles, and some of these they will persecute and kill'; <sup>50</sup> so that this generation will have to account for the blood of all the prophets shed since the foundation of the world. <sup>51*</sup> Their guilt stretches from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah, who met his death between the altar and the sanctuary! Yes, I tell you, this generation will have to account for it. <sup>52*</sup> Woe to you lawyers! You have taken away the key of knowledge. You yourselves have not gained access, yet you have stopped those who wished to enter!"

<sup>53*</sup> After he had left this gathering, the scribes and Pharisees began to manifest fierce hostility to him and to make him speak on a multitude of questions, <sup>54</sup> setting traps to catch him in his speech.

CHAPTER 12

Courage under Persecution. <sup>1*</sup> Meanwhile a crowd of thousands had gathered, so dense that they were treading on one another. He began to speak first to his disciples: "Be on guard against the yeast of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy. <sup>2*</sup> There is nothing concealed that will not be revealed, nothing hidden that will not be made known. <sup>3*</sup> Everything you have said in the dark will be heard in the daylight; what you have whispered in locked rooms will be proclaimed from the rooftops.

<sup>4*</sup> I say to you who are my friends: Do not be afraid of those who kill the body and can do no more. <sup>5</sup> I will show you whom you ought to fear. Fear him who has power to cast into Gehenna after he has killed. Yes, I tell you, fear him. <sup>6</sup> Are not five sparrows sold for a few pennies? Yet not one of them is neglected by God.

- |                      |                         |
|----------------------|-------------------------|
| 28: Rv 1, 3.         | 44: Mt 23, 27.          |
| 29-32: Mt 12, 38-42. | 46: Mt 23, 4.           |
| 29: Mt 16, 1; Mk 9,  | 47f: Mt 23, 29ff.       |
| 11f; Jn 6, 30f.      | 49ff: Mt 23, 34ff.      |
| 31: 1 Kgs 10, 1-10.  | 51: Gn 4, 8; 2 Chr      |
| 32: Jon 3, 5.        | 24, 20ff.               |
| 33: 8, 16; Mt 5, 15; | 52: Mt 23, 13.          |
| Mk 4, 21.            | 53: 6, 11; Mt 22,       |
| 37: 7, 36; 14, 1.    | 15f.                    |
| 38: Mt 15, 2; Mk 7,  | 12, 1; Mt 16, 6, 12; Mk |
| 2, 5.                | 8, 15.                  |
| 39: Mt 23, 25f.      | 2-9: Mt 10, 26-33.      |
| 42: Mt 23, 23.       | 2, 8, 17.               |
| 43: 20, 46; Mt 23,   | 3: Mk 4, 22.            |
| 6f; Mk 12, 38f.      |                         |

<sup>7</sup> In very truth, even the hairs of your head are counted! Fear nothing, then. You are worth more than a flock of sparrows.

<sup>8</sup> "I tell you, whoever acknowledges me before men—the Son of Man will acknowledge him before the angels of God. <sup>9</sup>* But the man who has disowned me in the presence of men will be disowned in the presence of the angels of God. <sup>10</sup>* Anyone who speaks against the Son of Man will be forgiven, but whoever blasphemes the Holy Spirit will never be forgiven. <sup>11</sup>* When they bring you before synagogues, rulers and authorities, do not worry about how to defend yourselves or what to say. <sup>12</sup> The Holy Spirit will teach you at that moment all that should be said."

Trust in God, Not in Possessions.

<sup>13</sup> Someone in the crowd said to him, "Teacher, tell my brother to give me my share of our inheritance." <sup>14</sup> He replied, "Friend, who has set me up as your judge or arbiter?" <sup>15</sup> Then he said to the crowd, "Avoid greed in all its forms. A man may be wealthy, but his possessions do not guarantee him life."

<sup>16</sup> He told them a parable in these words: "There was a rich man who had a good harvest. <sup>17</sup> 'What shall I do?' he asked himself. 'I have no place to store my harvest. <sup>18</sup> I know!' he said. 'I will pull down my grain bins and build larger ones. All my grain and my goods will go there. <sup>19</sup>* Then I will say to myself: You have blessings in reserve for years to come. Relax! Eat heartily, drink well. Enjoy yourself.' <sup>20</sup> But God said to him, 'You fool! This very night your life shall be required of you. To whom will all this piled-up wealth of yours go?' <sup>21</sup>* That is the way it works with the man who grows rich for himself instead of growing rich in the sight of God."

Dependence on Providence. <sup>22</sup>* He said to his disciples: "That is why I warn you, Do not be concerned for your life, what you are to eat, or for your body, what you are to wear. <sup>23</sup> Life is more important than food and the body more than clothing. <sup>24</sup> Consider the ravens: they do not sow, they do not reap, they have neither cellar nor barn—yet God feeds them. How much more important you are than the birds! <sup>25</sup> Which of you by worrying can add a moment to his life-span? <sup>26</sup> If the smallest things are beyond your power, why be anxious about the rest?"

<sup>27</sup> "Or take the lilies: they do not spin, they do not weave; but I tell you, Solomon in all his splendor was not arrayed like any one of them. <sup>28</sup> If God clothes in such splendor the grass of the field, which grows today and is thrown on the fire tomorrow, how much more will he provide for you, O weak in faith! <sup>29</sup> It is not for you to be in search of what you are to eat or drink. Stop worrying. <sup>30</sup> The unbelievers of this world are always running after these things. Your Father knows that you need such things. <sup>31</sup> Seek out instead his kingship over you, and the rest will follow in turn.

The Heart's Treasure. <sup>32</sup> "Do not live in fear, little flock. It has pleased your Father to give you the kingdom. <sup>33</sup>* Sell what you have and give alms. Get purses for yourselves that do not wear out, a never-failing treasure with the Lord which no thief comes near nor any moth destroys. <sup>34</sup> Wherever your treasure lies, there your heart will be.

Preparedness for the Master's Return. <sup>35</sup> "Let your belts be fastened around your waists and your lamps be burning ready. <sup>36</sup>* Be like men awaiting their master's return from a wedding, so that when he arrives and knocks, you will open for him without delay. <sup>37</sup> It will go well with those servants whom the master finds wide-awake on his return. I tell you, he will put on an apron, seat them at table, and proceed to wait on them. <sup>38</sup> Should he happen to come at midnight or before sunrise and find them prepared, it will go well with them. <sup>39</sup>* You know as well as I that if the head of the house knew when the thief was coming he would not let him break into his house. <sup>40</sup> Be on guard, therefore. The Son of Man will come when you least expect him."

<sup>41</sup> Peter said, "Do you intend this parable for us, Lord, or do you mean it for everyone?" <sup>42</sup>* The Lord said, "Who in your opinion is that faithful, farsighted steward whom the master will set over his servants to dispense their ration of grain in season? <sup>43</sup> That servant is fortunate whom his master finds busy when he returns. <sup>44</sup> Assuredly, his master will put him in charge of all his property. <sup>45</sup> But if the servant says to himself, 'My master is taking his time about coming,' and begins to abuse the housemen and servant girls, to eat and drink and get drunk, <sup>46</sup> that servant's master will come back on a day when he does not expect him, at a time he does not know. He will punish him severely and rank him among those undeserving of trust. <sup>47</sup> The slave who knew his master's wishes but did not prepare to fulfill them will get a severe beating, <sup>48</sup> whereas the one who did not know them and who nonetheless

9: 9, 26; Mk 8, 38; 2 Tm 2, 12.
10: Mt 12, 31f; Mk 3, 28f.
11f: 21, 12-15; Mt 10, 17-20; Mk 13, 11.
19: Pvr 27, 1; Sir 11, 24; 1 Tm 6, 17.
21: Mt 6, 19f.
22-31: Mt 6, 25-33.
22: Ps 55, 23; 1 Pt 5, 7.
33: Mt 6, 20f; 19, 21.
36ff: Mk 13, 34f.
36: Mt 25, 1-13.
39f: Mt 24, 43f.
42-46: Mt 24, 45-51.

deserved to be flogged will get off with fewer stripes. When much has been given a man, much will be required of him. More will be asked of a man to whom more has been entrusted.

<sup>49</sup> "I have come to light a fire on the earth. How I wish the blaze were ignited! <sup>50</sup>* I have a baptism to receive. What anguish I feel till it is over! <sup>51</sup>* Do you think I have come to establish peace on the earth? I assure you, the contrary is true; I have come for division. <sup>52</sup> From now on, a household of five will be divided three against two and two against three; <sup>53</sup>* father will be split against son and son against father, mother against daughter and daughter against mother, mother-in-law against daughter-in-law, daughter-in-law against mother-in-law."

Signs of the Times. <sup>54</sup>* He said to the crowds: "When you see a cloud rising in the west, you say immediately that rain is coming—and so it does. <sup>55</sup> When the wind blows from the south, you say it is going to be hot—and so it is. <sup>56</sup> You hypocrites! If you can interpret the portents of earth and sky, why can you not interpret the present time? <sup>57</sup> Tell me, why do you not judge for yourselves what is just? <sup>58</sup>* When you are going with your opponent to appear before a magistrate, try to settle with him on the way lest he turn you over to the judge, and the judge deliver you up to the jailer, and the jailer throw you into prison. <sup>59</sup> I warn you, you will not be released from there until you have paid the last penny."

CHAPTER 13

Providential Calls to Penance. <sup>1</sup> At that time, some were present who told him about the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mixed with their sacrifices. <sup>2</sup> He said in reply: "Do you think that these Galileans were the greatest sinners in Galilee just because they suffered this? <sup>3</sup> By no means! But I tell you, you will all come to the same end unless you reform. <sup>4</sup> Or take those eighteen who were killed by a falling tower in Siloam. Do you think they were more guilty than anyone else who lived in Jerusalem? <sup>5</sup>* Certainly not! But I tell you, you will all come to the same end unless you reform."

The Barren Fig Tree. <sup>6</sup> Jesus spoke this parable: "A man had a fig tree growing in his vineyard, and he came out looking for fruit on it but did not find any. <sup>7</sup> He said to the vinedresser, 'Look here! For three years now I have come in search of fruit on this fig tree and found none. Cut it down. Why should it clutter up the ground?' <sup>8</sup> In answer, the man said, 'Sir, leave it another year, while I hoe around it and manure it; <sup>9</sup> then perhaps it will bear fruit. If not, it shall be cut down.'"

A Sabbath Cure. <sup>10</sup>* On a sabbath day he was teaching in one of the synagogues. <sup>11</sup> There was a woman there who for eighteen years had been possessed by a spirit which drained her strength. She was badly stooped—quite incapable of standing erect. <sup>12</sup> When Jesus saw her, he called her to him and said, "Woman, you are free of your infirmity." <sup>13</sup> He laid his hand on her, and immediately she stood up straight and began thanking God.

<sup>14</sup>* The chief of the synagogue, indignant that Jesus should have healed on the sabbath, said to the congregation, "There are six days for working. Come on those days to be cured, not on the sabbath." <sup>15</sup>* The Lord said in reply, "O you hypocrites! Which of you does not let his ox or ass out of the stall on the sabbath to water it? <sup>16</sup> Should not this daughter of Abraham here who has been in the bondage of Satan for eighteen years have been released from her shackles on the sabbath?" <sup>17</sup> At these words, his opponents were covered with confusion; meanwhile, everyone else rejoiced at the marvels Jesus was accomplishing.

Parable of the Mustard Seed. <sup>18</sup>* Then he said: "What does the reign of God resemble? To what shall I liken it? <sup>19</sup> It is like mustard seed which a man took and planted in his garden. It grew and became a large shrub and the birds of the air nested in its branches."

Parable of the Yeast. <sup>20</sup>* He went on: "To what shall I compare the reign of God? <sup>21</sup> It is like yeast which a woman took to knead into three measures of flour until the whole mass of dough began to rise."

The Narrow Door. <sup>22</sup> He went through cities and towns teaching—all the while making his way toward Jerusalem. <sup>23</sup> Someone asked him, "Lord, are they few in number who are to be saved?" <sup>24</sup>* He replied: "Try to come in through the narrow door. Many, I tell you, will try to enter and be unable. <sup>25</sup>* When once the master of the house has risen to lock the door and you stand outside knocking and saying, 'Sir, open for us,' he will say in reply, 'I do not know where you come from.' <sup>26</sup> Then you will begin to say, 'We ate and drank in your company. You taught in our streets.' <sup>27</sup>* But 50: 9, 22.

51ff: Mt 10, 34ff.
51: 2, 34.
53: Mt 7, 6.
54: Mt 16, 2f.
58: Mt 5, 25.
13, 5: Jn 8, 24.
10-17: 14, 1-6.

14: Ex 20, 8f.
15: 14, 5; Mt 12, 11.
18f: Mt 13, 31f; Mk 4, 30ff.
20f: Mt 13, 33.
24: Mt 7, 13f.
25: Mt 25, 10ff.
27: Mt 7, 23; 25, 41.

he will answer, 'I tell you, I do not know where you come from. Away from me, you evildoers!'

<sup>28*</sup> "There will be wailing and grinding of teeth when you see Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and all the prophets safe in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves rejected. <sup>29</sup> People will come from the east and the west, from the north and the south, and will take their place at the feast in the kingdom of God. <sup>30*</sup> Some who are last will be first and some who are first will be last."

Herod the Fox. <sup>31</sup> It was then that certain Pharisees came to him. "Go on your way!" they said. "Leave this place! Herod is trying to kill you." <sup>32</sup> His answer was: "Go tell that fox, 'Today and tomorrow I cast out devils and perform cures, and on the third day my purpose is accomplished. <sup>33</sup> For all that, I must proceed on course today, tomorrow, and the day after, since no prophet can be allowed to die anywhere except in Jerusalem.'

Apostrophe to Jerusalem. <sup>34*</sup> "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, you slay the prophets and stone those who are sent to you! How often have I wanted to gather your children together as a mother bird collects her young under her wings, and you refused me! <sup>35*</sup> Your temple will be abandoned. I say to you, you shall not see me until the time comes when you say, 'Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.'"

CHAPTER 14

Cure and a Lesson in Humility.

<sup>1*</sup> When Jesus came on a sabbath to eat a meal in the house of one of the leading Pharisees, they observed him closely.

<sup>2</sup> Directly in front of him was a man who suffered from dropsy. <sup>3*</sup> Jesus asked the lawyers and the Pharisees, "Is it lawful to cure on the sabbath or not?" <sup>4</sup> At this they kept silent. He took the man, healed him, and sent him on his way. <sup>5*</sup> Then he addressed himself to them: "If one of you has a son or an ox and he falls into a pit, will he not immediately rescue him on the sabbath day?" <sup>6</sup> This they could not answer.

<sup>7</sup> He went on to address a parable to the guests, noticing how they were trying to get the places of honor at the table:

<sup>8*</sup> "When you are invited by someone to a wedding party, do not sit in the place of honor in case some greater dignitary has been invited. <sup>9</sup> Then the host might come and say to you, 'Make room for this man,' and you would have to proceed shamefacedly to the lowest place. <sup>10</sup> What you should do when you have been invited is go and sit in the lowest place, so that when your host approaches you he will say, 'My friend, come up higher.' This will win you the esteem of your fellow guests. <sup>11*</sup> For everyone who exalts himself shall be humbled and he who humbles himself shall be exalted."

The Poor. <sup>12*</sup> He said to the one who had invited him: "Whenever you give a lunch or dinner, do not invite your friends or brothers or relatives or wealthy neighbors. They might invite you in return and thus repay you. <sup>13</sup> No, when you have a reception, invite beggars and the crippled, the lame and the blind. <sup>14</sup> You should be pleased that they cannot repay you, for you will be repaid in the resurrection of the just." <sup>15</sup> At these words one in the party said to him, "Happy is he who eats bread in the kingdom of God." <sup>16*</sup> Jesus responded: "A man was giving a large dinner and he invited many. <sup>17</sup> At dinner time he sent his servant to say to those invited, 'Come along, everything is ready now.' <sup>18</sup> But they began to excuse themselves, one and all. The first one said to the servant, 'I have bought some land and must go out and inspect it. Please excuse me.' <sup>19</sup> Another said, 'I have bought five yoke of oxen and I am going out to test them. Please excuse me.' <sup>20</sup> A third said, 'I am newly married and so I cannot come.' <sup>21</sup> The servant returning reported all this to his master. The master of the house grew angry at the account. He said to his servant, 'Go out quickly into the streets and alleys of the town and bring in the poor and the crippled, the blind and the lame.' <sup>22</sup> The servant reported, after some time, 'Your orders have been carried out, my lord, and there is still room.' <sup>23</sup> The master then said to the servant, 'Go out into the highways and along the hedgerows and force them to come in. I want my house to be full, <sup>24</sup> but I tell you that not one of those invited shall taste a morsel of my dinner.'"

<sup>25</sup> On one occasion when a great crowd was with him, he turned to them and said, <sup>26*</sup> "If anyone comes to me without turning his back on his father and mother, his wife and his children, his brothers and sisters, indeed his very self, he cannot be my follower. <sup>27*</sup> Anyone who does not take up his cross and follow me cannot be my disciple. <sup>28</sup> If one of you decides to build a tower, will he not first sit down and calculate the outlay to see if he has enough money to complete the project? <sup>29</sup> He will do that

28: Mt 8, 11f.
30: Mt 19, 30; 20, 16; Mk 10, 31.
34f: 19, 41-44; Mt 23, 37ff.
35: Ps 118, 26.
14, 1-6: 6, 6-11; 13, 10-17.
3: Mk 3, 4.
5: Mt 12, 11.
8f: Prv 25, 6f.
11: 18, 14; Mt 23, 12.
12: 6, 32-35.
16-23: Mt 22, 2-10.
26: Mt 10, 37.
27: 9, 23; Mt 10, 38.
16, 24; Mk 8, 34.

for fear of laying the foundation and then not being able to complete the work; for all who saw it would jeer at him, <sup>30</sup> saying, "That man began to build what he could not finish."

<sup>31</sup> "Or if a king is about to march on another king to do battle with him, will he not sit down first and consider whether, with ten thousand men, he can withstand an enemy coming against him with twenty thousand? <sup>32</sup> If he cannot, he will send a delegation while the enemy is still at a distance, asking for terms of peace. <sup>33</sup> In the same way, none of you can be my disciple if he does not renounce all his possessions. <sup>34</sup> Salt is good, but if salt loses its flavor what good is it for seasoning? <sup>35</sup> It is fit for neither the soil nor the manure heap; it has to be thrown away. Let him who hears this, heed it."

CHAPTER 15

Parable of Divine Mercy. <sup>1</sup> The tax collectors and sinners were all gathering around to hear him, <sup>2</sup> at which the Pharisees and the scribes murmured, "This man welcomes sinners and eats with them." <sup>3</sup> Then he addressed this parable to them: <sup>4</sup> "Who among you, if he has a hundred sheep and loses one of them, does not leave the ninety-nine in the wasteland and follow the lost one until he finds it? <sup>5</sup> And when he finds it, he puts it on his shoulders in jubilation. <sup>6</sup> Once arrived home, he invites friends and neighbors in and says to them, 'Rejoice with me because I have found my lost sheep.' <sup>7</sup> I tell you, there will likewise be more joy in heaven over one repentant sinner than over ninety-nine righteous people who have no need to repent."

<sup>8</sup> "What woman, if she has ten silver pieces and loses one, does not light a lamp and sweep the house in a diligent search until she has retrieved what she lost? <sup>9</sup> And when she finds it, she calls in her friends and neighbors to say, 'Rejoice with me! I have found the silver piece I lost.' <sup>10</sup> I tell you, there will be the same kind of joy before the angels of God over one repentant sinner."

The Prodigal Son. <sup>11</sup> Jesus said to them: "A man had two sons. <sup>12</sup> The younger of them said to his father, 'Father, give me the share of the estate that is coming to me.' So the father divided up the property. <sup>13</sup> Some days later this younger son collected all his belongings and went off to a distant land, where he squandered his money on dissolute living. <sup>14</sup> After he had spent everything, a great famine broke out in that country and he was in dire need. <sup>15</sup> So he attached himself to one of the propertied class of the place, who sent him to his farm to take care of the pigs. <sup>16</sup> He longed to fill his belly with the husks that were fodder for the pigs, but no one made a move to give him anything. <sup>17</sup> Coming to his senses at last, he said: "How many hired hands at my father's place have more than enough to eat, while here I am starving! <sup>18</sup> I will break away and return to my father, and say to him, Father, I have sinned against God and against you; I no longer deserve to be called your son. <sup>19</sup> Treat me like one of your hired hands." <sup>20</sup> With that he set off for his father's house. While he was still a long way off, his father caught sight of him and was deeply moved. He ran out to meet him, threw his arms around his neck, and kissed him. <sup>21</sup> The son said to him, 'Father, I have sinned against God and against you; I no longer deserve to be called your son.' <sup>22</sup> The father said to his servants: 'Quick! bring out the finest robe and put it on him; put a ring on his finger and shoes on his feet. <sup>23</sup> Take the fatted calf and kill it. Let us eat and celebrate <sup>24</sup> because this son of mine was dead and has come back to life. He was lost and is found.' Then the celebration began."

<sup>25</sup> "Meanwhile the elder son was out on the land. As he neared the house on his way home, he heard the sound of music and dancing. <sup>26</sup> He called one of the servants and asked him the reason for the dancing and the music. <sup>27</sup> The servant answered, 'Your brother is home, and your father has killed the fatted calf because he has him back in good health.' <sup>28</sup> The son grew angry at this and would not go in; but his father came out and began to plead with him."

<sup>29</sup> "He said to his father in reply: 'For years now I have slaved for you. I never disobeyed one of your orders, yet you never gave me so much as a kid goat to celebrate with my friends. <sup>30</sup> Then, when this son of yours returns after having gone through your property with loose women, you kill the fatted calf for him.'

<sup>31</sup> "My son," replied the father, 'you are with me always, and everything I have is yours. <sup>32</sup> But we had to celebrate and rejoice! This brother of yours was dead, and has come back to life. He was lost, and is found.' "

CHAPTER 16

The Wily Manager. <sup>1</sup> Another time he said to his disciples: "A rich man had a manager who was reported to him for

34: Mt 5, 13; Mk 9, 50.
15, 2-7; Mt 9, 10-13.
2: 19, 7.
4f: Mt 18, 12ff.
6: 19, 10.
7: Ez 18, 23; 33, 11.

dissipating his property. <sup>2</sup> He summoned him and said, 'What is this I hear about you? Give me an account of your service, for it is about to come to an end.' <sup>3</sup> The manager thought to himself, 'What shall I do next? My employer is sure to dismiss me. I cannot dig ditches. I am ashamed to go begging. <sup>4</sup> I have it! Here is a way to make sure that people will take me into their homes when I am let go.'

<sup>5</sup> "So he called in each of his master's debtors, and said to the first, 'How much do you owe my master?' <sup>6</sup> The man replied, 'A hundred jars of oil.' The manager said, 'Take your invoice, sit down quickly, and make it fifty.' <sup>7</sup> Then he said to a second, 'How much do you owe?' The answer came, 'A hundred measures of wheat,' and the manager said, 'Take your invoice and make it eighty.'

<sup>8</sup> "The owner then gave his devious employee credit for being enterprising! Why? Because the worldly take more initiative than the other-worldly when it comes to dealing with their own kind.

Right Use of Money. <sup>9</sup> "What I say to you is this: Make friends for yourselves through your use of this world's goods, so that when they fail you, a lasting reception will be yours. <sup>10</sup> If you can trust a man in little things, you can also trust him in greater; while anyone unjust in a slight matter is also unjust in greater. <sup>11</sup> If you cannot be trusted with elusive wealth, who will trust you with lasting? <sup>12</sup> And if you have not been trustworthy with someone else's money, who will give you what is your own?

<sup>13</sup> "No servant can serve two masters. Either he will hate the one and love the other or be attentive to the one and despise the other. You cannot give yourself to God and money." <sup>14</sup> The Pharisees, who were avaricious men, heard all this and began to deride him. <sup>15</sup> He said to them: "You justify yourselves in the eyes of men, but God reads your hearts. What man thinks important, God holds in contempt.

The Law. <sup>16</sup> "The law and the prophets were in force until John. From his time on, the good news of God's kingdom has been proclaimed, and people of every sort are forcing their way in. <sup>17</sup> It is easier for the heavens and the earth to pass away than for a single stroke of a letter of the law to pass. <sup>18</sup> Everyone who divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery. The man who marries a woman divorced from her husband likewise commits adultery.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. <sup>19</sup> "Once there was a rich man who dressed in purple and linen and feasted splendidly every day. <sup>20</sup> At his gate lay a beggar named Lazarus who was covered with sores. <sup>21</sup> Lazarus longed to eat the scraps that fell from the rich man's table. The dogs even came and licked his sores. <sup>22</sup> Eventually, the beggar died. He was carried by angels to the bosom of Abraham. The rich man likewise died and was buried. <sup>23</sup> From the abode of the dead where he was in torment, he raised his eyes and saw Abraham afar off, and Lazarus resting in his bosom.

<sup>24</sup> "He called out, 'Father Abraham, have pity on me. Send Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water to refresh my tongue, for I am tortured in these flames.' <sup>25</sup> "My child," replied Abraham, 'remember that you were well off in your lifetime, while Lazarus was in misery. Now he has found consolation here, but you have found torment. <sup>26</sup> And that is not all. Between you and us there is fixed a great abyss, so that those who might wish to cross from here to you cannot do so, nor can anyone cross from your side to us.'

<sup>27</sup> "Father, I ask you, then," the rich man said, 'send him to my father's house <sup>28</sup> where I have five brothers. Let him be a warning to them so that they may not end in this place of torment.' <sup>29</sup> Abraham answered, 'They have Moses and the prophets. Let them hear them.' <sup>30</sup> 'No, Father Abraham,' replied the rich man. 'But if someone would only go to them from the dead, then they would repent.' <sup>31</sup> Abraham said to him, 'If they do not listen to Moses and the prophets, they will not be convinced even if one should rise from the dead.' "

CHAPTER 17

Four Sayings of Jesus. <sup>1</sup> He said to his disciples: "Scandals will inevitably arise, but woe to him through whom they come. <sup>2</sup> He would be better off thrown into the sea with a millstone around his neck than giving scandal to one of these little ones.

<sup>3</sup> "Be on your guard. If your brother does wrong, correct him; if he repents, forgive him. <sup>4</sup> If he sins against you seven times a day, and seven times a day turns back to you saying, 'I am sorry,' forgive him."

<sup>5</sup> The apostles said to the Lord, "Increase our faith," <sup>6</sup> and he answered: "If you had faith the size of a mustard seed, you could say to this sycamore, 'Be uprooted and transplanted into the sea,' and it would obey you.

16, 9: 12, 33; Sir 29,

12.

10: 19, 17; Mt 25,

21.

15: 18, 9-14.

16: Mt 11, 12.

17: Mt 5, 18.

18: Mt 5, 32, 19, 9;

Mk 10, 11f; 1

Cor 7, 10f.

25: 6, 24f.

31: Jn 5, 46f.

17, 1f; Mt 18, 6f.

4: Mt 18, 21f.

6: Mt 21, 21; Mk

11, 23.

<sup>7</sup> "If one of you had a servant plowing or herding sheep and he came in from the fields, would you say to him, 'Come and sit down at table?' <sup>8</sup> Would you not rather say, 'Prepare my supper. Put on your apron and wait on me while I eat and drink. You can eat and drink afterward?' <sup>9</sup> Would he be grateful to the servant who was only carrying out his orders? <sup>10</sup> It is quite the same with you who hear me. When you have done all you have been commanded to do, say, 'We are useless servants. We have done no more than our duty.'"

Ten Lepers. <sup>11</sup> On his journey to Jerusalem he passed along the borders of Samaria and Galilee. <sup>12</sup> As he was entering a village, ten lepers met him. Keeping their distance, <sup>13</sup> they raised their voices and said, "Jesus, Master, have pity on us!" <sup>14</sup> When he saw them, he responded, "Go and show yourselves to the priests." On their way there they were cured. <sup>15</sup> One of them, realizing that he had been cured, came back praising God in a loud voice. <sup>16</sup> He threw himself on his face at the feet of Jesus and spoke his praises. This man was a Samaritan.

<sup>17</sup> Jesus took the occasion to say, "Were not all ten made whole? Where are the other nine?" <sup>18</sup> Was there no one to return and give thanks to God except this foreigner?" <sup>19</sup> He said to the man, "Stand up and go your way; your faith has been your salvation."

Coming of the Reign of God. <sup>20</sup> Once, on being asked by the Pharisees when the reign of God would come, he replied: "You cannot tell by careful watching when the reign of God will come. <sup>21</sup> Neither is it a matter of reporting that it is 'here' or 'there.' The reign of God is already in your midst."

Day of the Son of Man. <sup>22</sup> He said to the disciples: "A time will come when you will long to see one day of the Son of Man but will not see it. <sup>23</sup> They will tell you he is to be found in this place or that. Do not go running about excitedly. <sup>24</sup> The Son of Man in his day will be like the lightning that flashes from one end of the sky to the other. <sup>25</sup> First, however, he must suffer much and be rejected by the present age. <sup>26</sup> As it was in the days of Noah, so will it be in the days of the Son of Man. <sup>27</sup> They ate and drank, they took husbands and wives, right up to the day Noah entered the ark—and when the flood came, it destroyed them all. <sup>28</sup> It was much the same in the days of Lot: they ate and drank, they bought and sold, they built and planted. <sup>29</sup> But on the day Lot left Sodom, fire and brimstone rained down from heaven and destroyed them all.

<sup>30</sup> "It will be like that on the day the Son of Man is revealed. <sup>31</sup> On that day, if a man is on the rooftop and his belongings are in the house, he should not go down to get them; neither should the man in the field return home. <sup>32</sup> Remember Lot's wife. <sup>33</sup> Whoever tries to preserve his life will lose it; whoever loses it will keep it. <sup>34</sup> I tell you, on that night there will be two men in one bed; one will be taken and the other left. <sup>35</sup> Two women will be grinding grain together; one will be taken and the other left." † <sup>37</sup> "Where, Lord?" they asked him, and he answered, "Wherever the carcass is, there will the vultures gather."

CHAPTER 18

The Corrupt Judge. <sup>1</sup> He told them a parable on the necessity of praying always and not losing heart: <sup>2</sup> "Once there was a judge in a certain city who respected neither God nor man. <sup>3</sup> A widow in that city kept coming to him saying, 'Give me my rights against my opponent.' <sup>4</sup> For a time he refused, but finally he thought, 'I care little for God or man, <sup>5</sup> but this widow is wearing me out. I am going to settle in her favor or she will end by doing me violence.'" <sup>6</sup> The Lord said, "Listen to what the corrupt judge has to say. <sup>7</sup> Will not God then do justice to his chosen who call out to him day and night? Will he delay long over them, do you suppose? <sup>8</sup> I tell you, he will give them swift justice. But when the Son of Man comes, will he find any faith on the earth?"

The Pharisee and the Tax Collector. <sup>9</sup> He then spoke this parable addressed to those who believed in their own self-righteousness while holding everyone else in contempt: <sup>10</sup> "Two men went up to the temple to pray; one was a Pharisee, the other a tax collector. <sup>11</sup> The Pharisee with head unbowed prayed in this fashion: 'I give you thanks, O God, that I am not like the rest of men—grasping, crooked, adulterous—or even like this tax collector. <sup>12</sup> I fast twice a week. I pay tithes on all I possess.'" <sup>13</sup> The other man, however, kept his distance, not even daring to raise his eyes to heaven. All he did was beat his breast and say, 'O God, be merciful to me, a

14: 5, 14; Lv 13, 9-

34; Mt 8, 4; Mk

1, 44.

23f: Mt 24, 23, 26;

Mk 13, 21.

24: Mt 24, 27.

26f: Gn 6-8; Mt 24,

37f.

28f: Gn 19, 1-29.

31: 21, 21; Mt 24,

17f; Mk 13, 15f.

32: Gn 19, 26.

33: 9, 24; Mt 10, 39;

Mk 8, 35; Jn 12,

25.

35: Mt 24, 40f.

37: Mt 24, 28.

18, 9: 16, 15; Mt 23,

28.

†

17, 36: Omitted here with many MSS.

sinner.' <sup>14*</sup> Believe me, this man went home from the temple justified but the other did not. For everyone who exalts himself shall be humbled while he who humbles himself shall be exalted."

Jesus and the Children; a Rich Man.
<sup>15*</sup>† They even brought babies to be touched by him. When the disciples saw this, they scolded them roundly; <sup>16</sup> but Jesus called for the children, saying: "Let the little children come to me. Do not shut them off. The reign of God belongs to such as these. <sup>17</sup> Trust me when I tell you that whoever does not accept the kingdom of God as a child will not enter into it."

<sup>18*</sup>† One of the ruling class asked him then, "Good teacher, what must I do to share in everlasting life?" <sup>19</sup> Jesus said to him, "Why call me 'good'? None is good but God alone. <sup>20*</sup> You know the commandments:

"You shall not commit adultery.
You shall not kill.
You shall not steal.
You shall not bear dishonest witness.
Honor your father and your mother."

<sup>21</sup> He replied, "I have kept all these since I was a boy."

<sup>22*</sup> When Jesus heard this he said to him: "There is one thing further you must do. Sell all you have and give to the poor. You will have treasure in heaven. Then come and follow me." <sup>23</sup> On hearing this he grew melancholy, for he was a very rich man. <sup>24</sup>† When Jesus observed this he said: "How hard it will be for the rich to go into the kingdom of God! <sup>25</sup> Indeed, it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven."

<sup>26</sup> His listeners asked him, "Who, then, can be saved?" <sup>27</sup> to which he replied, "Things that are impossible for men are possible for God." <sup>28</sup>† Peter said, "We have left all we own to become your followers." <sup>29*</sup> His answer was, "I solemnly assure you, there is no one who has left home or wife or brothers, parents or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God <sup>30</sup> who will not receive a plentiful return in this age and life everlasting in the age to come."

<sup>31*</sup>† Taking the Twelve aside, he said to them: "We must now go up to Jerusalem so that all that was written by the prophets concerning the Son of Man may be accomplished. <sup>32</sup> He will be delivered up to the Gentiles. He will be mocked and outraged and spat upon. <sup>33*</sup> They will scourge him and put him to death, and on the third day he will rise again."

<sup>34</sup> They understood nothing of this. His utterance remained obscure to them, and they did not grasp his meaning.

<sup>35*</sup>† As he drew near Jericho a blind man sat at the side of the road begging. <sup>36</sup> Hearing a crowd go by the man asked, "What is that?" <sup>37</sup> The answer came that Jesus of Nazareth was passing by. <sup>38</sup> He shouted out, "Jesus, Son of David, have pity on me!" <sup>39*</sup> Those in the lead sternly ordered him to be quiet, but he cried out all the more, "Son of David, have pity on me!" <sup>40</sup> Jesus halted and ordered that he be brought to him. When he had come close, Jesus asked him, <sup>41</sup> "What do you want me to do for you?" "Lord," he answered, "I want to see." <sup>42</sup> Jesus said to him, "Receive your sight. Your faith has healed you." <sup>43</sup> At that very moment he was given his sight and began to follow him, giving God the glory. All the people witnessed it and they too gave praise to God.

CHAPTER 19

Zacchaeus the Tax Collector. <sup>1</sup> Entering Jericho, he passed through the city. <sup>2</sup> There was a man there named Zacchaeus, the chief tax collector and a wealthy man. <sup>3</sup> He was trying to see what Jesus was like, but being small of stature, was unable to do so because of the crowd. <sup>4</sup> He first ran on in front, then climbed a sycamore tree which was along Jesus' route, in order to see him. <sup>5</sup> When Jesus came to the spot he looked up and said, "Zacchaeus, hurry down. I mean to stay at your house today." <sup>6</sup> He quickly descended, and welcomed him with delight. <sup>7</sup> When this was observed, everyone began to murmur, "He has gone to a sinner's house as a guest." <sup>8</sup> Zacchaeus stood his ground and said to the Lord: "I give half my belongings, Lord, to the poor. If I have defrauded anyone in the least, I pay him back fourfold." <sup>9*</sup> Jesus said to him: "Today salvation has come to this house, for this is what it means to be a son of Abraham. <sup>10*</sup> The Son of Man has come to search out and save what was lost."

14: 14, 11; Mt 23, 12.	17ff: Mk 10, 32ff.
15ff: Mt 19, 13ff.	33: Acts 3, 18.
18-30: Mt 19, 16-29; Mk 10, 17-30.	35-43: Mt 20, 29-34; Mk 10, 46-52.
20: Ex 20, 12-16; Dt 5, 16-20.	39: Mt 9, 27.
22: 12, 33.	19, 9: Mt 21, 31.
29: 14, 26.	10: 15, 6, 9; Mt 18, 11
31ff: 9, 22; Mt 20,

†
18, 15ff: See note on Mt 19, 13ff.
18, 18-21: See note on Mk 10, 17f.
18, 24-27: See note on Mt 19, 23-26.
18, 28ff: See note on Mt 19, 27-30.
18, 31-34: See note on Mk 10, 32ff.
18, 35-43: See note on Mk 10, 46-52.

Parable of the Sums of Money.†

<sup>11</sup>* While they were listening to these things he went on to tell a parable, because he was near Jerusalem where they thought that the reign of God was about to appear. <sup>12</sup> He said: "A man of noble birth went to a faraway country to become its king, and then return. <sup>13</sup> He summoned ten of his servants and gave them sums of ten units each, saying to them, 'Invest this until I get back.' <sup>14</sup> But his fellow citizens despised him, and they immediately sent a deputation after him with instructions to say, 'We will not have this man rule over us.' <sup>15</sup> He returned, however, crowned as king. Then he sent for the servants to whom he had given the money, to learn what profit each had made. <sup>16</sup> The first presented himself and said, 'Lord, the sum you gave me has earned you another ten.' <sup>17</sup>* 'Good man!' he replied. 'You showed yourself capable in a small matter. For that you can take over ten villages.' <sup>18</sup> The second came and said, 'Your investment, my lord, has netted you five.' <sup>19</sup> His word to him was, 'Take over five villages.' <sup>20</sup> The third came in and said: 'Here is your money, my lord, which I hid for safekeeping.' <sup>21</sup> You see, I was afraid of you because you are a hard man. You withdraw what you never deposited. You reap what you never sowed.' <sup>22</sup> To him the king said: 'You worthless lout! I intend to judge you on your own evidence. You knew I was a hard man, withdrawing what I never deposited, reaping what I never sowed! <sup>23</sup> Why, then, did you not put my money out on loan, so that on my return I could get it back with interest?' <sup>24</sup> He said to those standing around, 'Take from him what he has, and give it to the man with the ten.' <sup>25</sup> 'Yes, but he already has ten,' they said. <sup>26</sup>* He responded with, 'The moral is: whoever has will be given more, but the one who has not will lose the little he has.' <sup>27</sup> Now about those enemies of mine who do not want me to be king, bring them in and slay them in my presence.'"

V: THE JERUSALEM MINISTRY*Messianic Entry into Jerusalem.

<sup>28</sup>*† Having spoken thus he went ahead with his ascent to Jerusalem. <sup>29</sup> As he approached Bethphage and Bethany on the mount called Olivet, he sent two of the disciples <sup>30</sup> with these instructions: "Go into the village straight ahead of you. Upon entering it you will find an ass tied there which no one has yet ridden. Untie it and lead it back. <sup>31</sup> If anyone should ask you, 'Why are you untying the beast?' say, 'The Master has need of it.'"

<sup>32</sup> They departed on their errand and found things just as he had said. <sup>33</sup> As they untied the ass, its owners said to them, "Why are you doing that?" <sup>34</sup> They explained that the Master needed it. <sup>35</sup> Then they led the animal to Jesus, and laying their cloaks on it, helped him mount. <sup>36</sup> They spread their cloaks on the roadway as he moved along; <sup>37</sup> and on his approach to the descent from Mount Olivet, the entire crowd of disciples began to rejoice and praise God loudly for the display of power they had seen, <sup>38</sup>* saying:

"Blessed is he who comes as king
in the name of the Lord!
Peace in heaven and glory in the highest!"

<sup>39</sup>* Some of the Pharisees in the crowd said to him, "Teacher, rebuke your disciples." <sup>40</sup> He replied, "If they were to keep silence, I tell you the very stones would cry out."

Lamentation for Jerusalem.†

<sup>41</sup>* Coming within sight of the city, he wept over it and said: <sup>42</sup> "If only you had known the path to peace this day; but you have completely lost it from view! <sup>43</sup>* Days will come upon you when your enemies encircle you with a rampart, hem you in, and press you hard from every side. <sup>44</sup>* They will wipe you out, you and your children within your walls, and leave not a stone on a stone within you, because you failed to recognize the time of your visitation."

The Traders Expelled. <sup>45</sup>*† Then he entered the temple and began ejecting the traders <sup>46</sup>* saying: "Scripture has it,

11-27: Mt 25, 14-30.

17: 16, 10.

26: 8, 18; Mt 13, 12;

Mk 4, 25.

28-38: Mt 21, 1-9; Mk

11, 1-10; Jn 12,

12-15.

38: Ps 118, 26.

39f: Mt 21, 15f.

41-44: 13, 34f.

43: Is 29, 3.

44: 21, 6; Mt 24, 2;

Mk 13, 2.

45f: Mt 21, 12f; Mk

11, 15ff; Jn 2,

14ff.

46: Is 56, 7; Jer 7,

11.

† 19, 11-27: The parable of the sums of money presents two principal ideas: 1) Jesus is the Messiah-king; he understands this office to be a religious one despite the opposition of his contemporaries (19, 12-15). The reign of God is actually present in his person and teaching. 2) In exercising his messianic kingship Jesus demands the response of men to the gifts of God. The kingdom will appear in its permanent form when Christ renders the final judgment on humanity's response to him (19, 15-27).

19, 28-38: See note on Mk 11, 1-11.

19, 41-44: This lamentation over Jerusalem implies that Jesus has previously visited the city in his public ministry, a fact that is brought out only in John (2, 13; 5, 1; 7, 10, 14; 10, 22; 12, 12).

Here the thought of the impending destruction of Jerusalem because of its refusal to accept the Messiah is contrasted with the city's potentiality as the principal center of the Christian message. Jerusalem became that center for only a short time, as the Acts attest (9, 31; 12, 1-5); the city was destroyed in 70 A. D. The allusions here are drawn from Jeremiah: v 42 (Jer 6, 8.10.14); v 43 (Jer 6, 6); v 44 (Jer 6, 2.11.17.21).

19, 45f: See note on Mk 11, 15-19.

'My house is meant for a house of prayer'

but you have made it 'a den of thieves.' "

<sup>47</sup> He was teaching in the temple area from day to day. The chief priests and scribes meanwhile were looking for a way to destroy him, as were the leaders of the people, <sup>48</sup> but they had no idea how to achieve it, for indeed the entire populace was listening to him and hanging on his words.

CHAPTER 20

The Authority of Jesus. <sup>1*</sup>† One day when he was teaching the people in the temple and proclaiming the good news, the high priests and Pharisees, accompanied by the elders, approached him <sup>2*</sup> with the question, "Tell us, by what authority do you do these things? In other words, who has authorized you?" <sup>3</sup> He replied, "Let me put a question for you to answer: <sup>4</sup> Did the baptism of John come from God or from men?" <sup>5</sup> They held a brief conference during which someone said, "If we answer, 'From God,' he will say, 'Then why do you not believe in it?'; <sup>6</sup> whereas if we say, 'From men,' the people will stone us, so convinced are they that John was a prophet." <sup>7</sup> They ended by replying they did not know where it came from. <sup>8</sup> Jesus said to them, "In that case, neither will I tell you by whose authority I act."

Parable of the Tenants. <sup>9*</sup> He then began to tell the people the following parable: "A man planted a vineyard, leased it to tenant farmers, and went away for a long time. <sup>10</sup> At vintage time he sent a servant to the tenant farmers to receive his share of the crop from them; but they beat him and sent him away empty-handed. <sup>11</sup> He sent a second servant whom they also beat. Him too they sent away empty-handed, after treating him shamefully. <sup>12</sup> He sent still a third, whom they likewise maltreated before driving him away. <sup>13</sup> The owner of the vineyard asked himself, 'What am I to do now? Perhaps if I send the son I love, they will respect him.'

<sup>14</sup> "But when the tenant farmers saw the son, they reflected, 'This is the heir. Let us kill him so that the inheritance will be ours.' <sup>15</sup> With that, they dragged him outside the vineyard and killed him. What fate do you suppose the owner of the vineyard has in store for them? <sup>16</sup> I will tell you. He will make an end to those tenant farmers and give the vineyard to others."

When they heard this they said, "God forbid!" <sup>17*</sup> He looked directly at them and said, "What do the Scriptures mean when they say,

'The stone which the builders rejected has become the keystone of the structure?'

<sup>18</sup> The man who falls on that stone will be smashed to pieces. It will make dust of anyone on whom it falls." <sup>19</sup> At these words the scribes and high priests tried to get their hands on him, but they were afraid of the people. They were well aware that he had told the parable with them in mind.

Tribute to the Emperor. <sup>20*</sup> Waiting their chance, they sent spies to him in the guise of honest men to trap him in speech, so that they might then hand him over to the office and authority of the procurator. <sup>21</sup> They put to him this problem: "Teacher, we know that your words and your doctrine are completely forthright, that you are no respecter of persons but teach the way of God in truth. <sup>22</sup> May we pay tax to the emperor or not?" <sup>23</sup> Realizing their duplicity he said, <sup>24</sup> "Show me a coin. Whose head is this? Whose inscription do you read?" "Caesar's," they replied, <sup>25*</sup> to which he said, "Then give to Caesar what is Caesar's, but give to God what is God's." <sup>26</sup> They were unable to trap him publicly in speech. His answer completely disconcerted them and reduced them to silence.

Resurrection of the Dead. <sup>27*</sup> Some Sadducees came forward (the ones who claim there is no resurrection) <sup>28*</sup> to pose this problem to him: "Master, Moses prescribed that if a man's brother dies leaving a wife and no child, the brother should marry the widow and raise posterity to his brother. <sup>29</sup> Now there were seven brothers. <sup>30</sup> The first one married and died childless. <sup>31</sup> Next, the second brother married the widow, then the third, and so on. All seven died without leaving her any children. <sup>32</sup> Finally the widow herself died. <sup>33</sup> At the resurrection, whose wife will she be? Remember, seven married her."

<sup>34</sup> Jesus said to them: "The children of this age marry and are given in marriage, <sup>35</sup> but those judged worthy of a place in the age to come and of resurrection from the dead do not. <sup>36</sup> They become like angels and are no longer liable to death. Sons of the resurrection, they are sons of God. <sup>37*</sup> Moses in the passage

20, 1-8: Mt 21, 23-27; 20-26: Mt 22, 15-22;
Mk 11, 27-33; Mk 12, 13-17;
2: Acts 4, 7; 25: Rom 13, 7.
9-19: Mt 21, 33-46; 27-38: Mt 22, 23-33;
Mk 12, 1-12; Mk 12, 18-27.
17: Ps 118, 22; Is 28: Dt 25, 5;
28, 16; 37: Ex 3, 6, 15f.

† 20, 1-40: See note on Mk 11, 27-12, 27.

about the bush showed that the dead rise again when he called the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. <sup>38</sup> God is not the God of the dead but of the living. All are alive for him."

<sup>39</sup> Some of the scribes responded, "Well said, Teacher." <sup>40</sup> They did not dare ask him anything else.

Jesus, Son and Lord of David. <sup>41</sup>† Jesus then said to them: "How can they say that the Messiah is the son of David? <sup>42</sup>* Does not David himself say in the psalms,

'The Lord said to my lord: Sit at my right hand

<sup>43</sup> while I make your enemies your footstool?'

<sup>44</sup> Now if David accords him the title 'lord,' how can he be his son?'"

The Scribes Condemned. <sup>45</sup> In the hearing of all the people, Jesus said to his disciples: <sup>46</sup>* "Beware of the scribes, who like to parade around in their robes, and love marks of respect in public, front seats in synagogues, and places of honor at banquets. <sup>47</sup> These men are going through the savings of widows while they recite long prayers to keep up appearances. The heavier sentence will be theirs."

CHAPTER 21

The Widow's Mite. <sup>1</sup>* He glanced up and saw the rich putting their offerings into the treasury, <sup>2</sup> and also a poor widow putting in two copper coins. At that he said: <sup>3</sup> "I assure you, this poor widow has put in more than all the rest. <sup>4</sup> They make contributions out of their surplus, but she from her want has given what she could not afford—every penny she had to live on."

The Cataclysm To Come. <sup>5</sup>† Some were speaking of how the temple was adorned with precious stones and votive offerings. <sup>6</sup> He said, "These things you are contemplating—the day will come when not one stone will be left on another, but it will all be torn down."<sup>7</sup> They asked him, "When will this be, Teacher? And what will be the sign that it is going to happen?" <sup>8</sup> He said, "Take care not to be misled. Many will come in my name saying, 'I am he' and 'The time is at hand.' Do not follow them. <sup>9</sup> Neither must you be perturbed when you hear of wars and insurrections. These things are bound to happen first, but the end does not follow immediately."

<sup>10</sup> He said to them further: "Nation will rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom. <sup>11</sup> There will be great earthquakes, plagues, and famines in various places—and in the sky fearful omens and great signs. <sup>12</sup>* But before any of this, they will manhandle and persecute you, summoning you to synagogues and prisons, bringing you to trial before kings and governors, all because of my name. <sup>13</sup> You will be brought to give witness on account of it. <sup>14</sup> I bid you resolve not to worry about your defense beforehand. <sup>15</sup>* For I will give you words and a wisdom which none of your adversaries can take exception to or contradict. <sup>16</sup> You will be delivered up even by your parents, brothers, relatives and friends, and some of you will be put to death. <sup>17</sup> All will hate you because of me, <sup>18</sup> yet not a hair of your head will be harmed. <sup>19</sup> By patient endurance you will save your lives.

Siege and Fall of Jerusalem. <sup>20</sup>* "When you see Jerusalem encircled by soldiers, know that its devastation is near. <sup>21</sup>* Those in Judea at the time must flee to the mountains; those in the heart of the city must escape it; those in the country must not return. <sup>22</sup> These indeed will be days of retribution, when all that is written must be fulfilled.

<sup>23</sup> "The women who are pregnant or nursing at the breast will fare badly in those days! The distress in the land and the wrath against this people will be great. <sup>24</sup> The people will fall before the sword; they will be led captive in the midst of the Gentiles. Jerusalem will be trampled by the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled.

Coming of the Son of Man. <sup>25</sup>* "There will be signs in the sun, the moon, and the stars. On the earth, nations will be in anguish, distraught at the roaring of the sea and the waves. <sup>26</sup> Men will die of fright in anticipation of what is coming upon the earth. The powers in the heavens will be shaken. <sup>27</sup>* After that, men will see the Son of Man coming on a cloud with great power and glory. <sup>28</sup> When these things begin to happen, stand erect and hold your heads high, for your deliverance is near at hand."

Parable of the Fig Tree. <sup>29</sup>* Then he told them a parable: "Notice the fig tree, or any other tree. <sup>30</sup> You observe them when they are budding, and know for yourselves that summer is near. <sup>31</sup> Likewise when you see all the things happening of which I speak, know that the reign

41-44: Mt 22, 41-45;	20-23: Mt 24, 15-20;
Mk 12, 35ff.	Mk 13, 14-18.
42: Ps 110, 1.	21: 17, 31.
46: 11, 43; Mt 23,	25ff: Mt 24, 29f; Mk
6f; Mk 12, 38ff.	13, 24ff.
21, 1-4; Mk 12, 41-44.	25: Is 13, 10; Ez 32,
5-19: Mt 24, 1-14; Mk	7; Jl 4, 15.
13, 1-13.	27: Dn 7, 13.
12-15: 12, 11f; Mt 10,	29-33: Mt 24, 32-35;
17-20.	Mk 13, 28-31.
15: Acts 6, 10.

†

20, 41—21, 4: See note on Mk 12, 35-44.
21, 5-36: See note on Mk 13, 1-37.

of God is near. <sup>32*</sup> Let me tell you this: the present generation will not pass away until all this takes place. <sup>33</sup> The heavens and the earth will pass away, but my words will not pass.

<sup>34*</sup> "Be on guard lest your spirits become bloated with indulgence and drunkenness and worldly cares. The great day will suddenly close in on you like a trap. <sup>35</sup> The day I speak of will come upon all who dwell on the face of the earth. <sup>36</sup> So be on the watch. Pray constantly for the strength to escape whatever is in prospect, and to stand secure before the Son of Man."

Last Days of Jesus. <sup>37</sup> He would teach in the temple by day, and leave the city to spend the night on the Mount of Olives. <sup>38</sup> At daybreak all the people came to hear him in the temple.

VI: THE PASSION OF JESUS†

1. The Paschal Meal

CHAPTER 22

The Council and the Betrayal. <sup>1*</sup> The feast of Unleavened Bread known as the Passover was drawing near, <sup>2</sup> and the high priests and scribes began to look for some way to dispose of him; but they were afraid of the people. <sup>3*</sup> Then Satan took possession of Judas, the one called Iscariot, a member of the Twelve. <sup>4*</sup> He went off to confer with the chief priests and officers about a way to hand him over to them. <sup>5</sup> They were delighted, and agreed to give him money. <sup>6</sup> He accepted, then kept looking for an opportunity to hand him over without creating a disturbance.

The Passover Preparation. <sup>7*</sup> The day of Unleavened Bread arrived on which it was appointed to sacrifice the paschal lamb. <sup>8</sup> Accordingly, Jesus sent Peter and John off with the instruction, "Go and prepare our Passover supper for us." <sup>9</sup> They asked him, "Where do you want us to get it ready?" <sup>10</sup> He explained to them: "Just as you enter the city, you will come upon a man carrying a water jar. Follow him into the house he enters, and say to the owner, <sup>11</sup> 'The Teacher asks you: Do you have a guest room where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?' <sup>12</sup> That man will show you an upstairs room, spacious and furnished. It is there you are to prepare." <sup>13</sup> They went off and found everything just as he had said; and accordingly they prepared the Passover supper.

The Holy Eucharist. <sup>14</sup> When the hour arrived, he took his place at table, and the apostles with him. <sup>15</sup> He said to them: "I have greatly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer. <sup>16</sup> I tell you, I will not eat again until it is fulfilled in the kingdom of God."

<sup>17</sup> Then taking a cup he offered a blessing in thanks and said: "Take this and divide it among you; <sup>18*</sup> I tell you, from now on I will not drink of the fruit of the vine until the coming of the reign of God."

<sup>19*</sup> Then, taking bread and giving thanks, he broke it and gave it to them, saying: "This is my body to be given for you. Do this as a remembrance of me."

<sup>20</sup> He did the same with the cup after eating, saying as he did so: "This cup is the new covenant in my blood, which will be shed for you."

The Betrayer. <sup>21*</sup> "And yet the hand of my betrayer is with me at this table. <sup>22</sup> The Son of Man is following out his appointed course, but woe to that man by whom he is betrayed." <sup>23</sup> Then they began to argue among themselves as to which of them would do such a deed.

Who Is Greatest? <sup>24</sup> A dispute arose among them about who should be regarded as the greatest. <sup>25*</sup> He said: "Earthly kings lord it over their people. Those who exercise authority over them are called their benefactors. <sup>26</sup> Yet it cannot be that way with you. Let the greater among you be as the junior, the leader as the servant. <sup>27*</sup> Who, in fact, is the greater—he who reclines at table or he who serves the meal? Is it not the one who reclines at table? Yet I am in your midst as the one who serves you. <sup>28†</sup> You are the ones who have stood loyally by me in my temptations. <sup>29</sup> I for my part assign to you the dominion my Father has assigned to me. <sup>30*</sup> In my kingdom you will eat and drink at my

32: 9, 27; Mt 16, 28.	19f: Mt 26, 26ff; Mk
34: 1; Thes 5, 3.	14, 22ff; 1 Cor
22, 1f: Mt 26, 2, 5; Mk	11, 23ff.
14, 1f.	21ff: Mt 26, 20-25;
3: Jn 13, 2, 27.	Mk 14, 17-21;
4f: Mt 26, 14ff; Mk	Jn 13, 21-30.
14, 10f.	25ff: Mt 20, 25-28;
7-13: Mt 26, 17ff; Mk	Mk 10, 42ff.
14, 12-16.	27: Jn 13, 4-15.
18: Mt 26, 29; Mk	30: Mt 19, 28.
14, 25.

†

22, 1—23, 56. Certain features of this narrative of the passion of Jesus are distinctive of Luke. There are omissions the flight of the disciples at the arrest of Jesus (Mk 14, 50ff) the false witnesses (Mk 14, 55-59), which many consider a Marcan insertion into traditional materials, the mistreatment at the hands of the Roman soldiery (Mk 15, 16-20), the offering of a narcotic to Jesus before the crucifixion (Mk 15, 23), and the praying of Psalm 22 from the cross (Mk 15, 34ff).

Additions found in Luke include the elements of Jesus' farewell address at the Last Supper (22, 15, 25-30, 35-38), reference to the angel at the agony, which heightens the religious solemnity of the scene (22, 43); Jesus' look at Peter after his denial (22, 61); the appearance of Jesus before Herod (23, 6-11); his conversation with the women of Jerusalem (23, 27-31); and his words from the cross (23, 34, 43, 46).

Luke depicts Jesus throughout his passion as the innocent victim (23, 4, 14, 22, 47) of satanic activity (22, 3), who forgives his enemies (22, 51, 23, 34) and accepts his suffering and death as the will of his Father (23, 46).

22, 28: My temptations: both from Satan (4, 13) and from the enemies of Jesus who served the purposes of Satan

table, and you will sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

Peter's Denials Foretold. <sup>31</sup> "Simon, Simon! Remember that Satan has asked for you, to sift you all like wheat. <sup>32</sup> But I have prayed for you that your faith may never fail. You in turn must strengthen your brothers." <sup>33</sup> "Lord," he said to him, "at your side I am prepared to face imprisonment and death itself." <sup>34</sup> Jesus replied, "I tell you, Peter, the cock will not crow today until you have three times denied that you know me."

<sup>35</sup>* He asked them, "When I sent you on mission without purse or traveling bag or sandals, were you in need of anything?" "Not a thing," they replied. <sup>36</sup> He said to them: "Now, however, the man who has a purse must carry it; the same with the traveling bag. And the man without a sword must sell his coat and buy one. <sup>37</sup>* It is written in Scripture,

'He was counted among the wicked,' and this, I tell you, must come to be fulfilled in me. All that has to do with me approaches its climax." <sup>38</sup> They said, "Lord, here are two swords!" He answered, "Enough."

2. The Passion, Death and Burial

The Agony in the Garden. <sup>39</sup>* Then he went out and made his way, as was his custom, to the Mount of Olives; his disciples accompanied him. <sup>40</sup> On reaching the place he said to them, "Pray that you may not be put to the test." <sup>41</sup> He withdrew from them about a stone's throw, then went down on his knees and prayed in these words: <sup>42</sup> "Father, if it is your will, take this cup from me; yet not my will but yours be done." <sup>43</sup> An angel then appeared to him from heaven to strengthen him. <sup>44</sup> In his anguish he prayed with all the greater intensity, and his sweat became like drops of blood falling to the ground. <sup>45</sup> Then he rose from prayer and came to his disciples, only to find them asleep, exhausted with grief. <sup>46</sup> He said to them, "Why are you sleeping? Wake up, and pray that you may not be subjected to the trial."

Jesus Arrested. <sup>47</sup>* While he was still speaking a crowd came, led by the man named Judas, one of the Twelve. He approached Jesus to embrace him. <sup>48</sup> Jesus said to him, "Judas, would you betray the Son of Man with a kiss?" <sup>49</sup> When the companions of Jesus saw what was going to happen, they said, "Lord, shall we use the sword?" <sup>50</sup> One of them went so far as to strike the high priest's servant and cut off his right ear. <sup>51</sup> Jesus said in answer to their question, "Enough!" Then he touched the ear and healed the man. <sup>52</sup> But to those who had come out against him—the chief priests, the chiefs of the chief guard, and the ancients—Jesus said, "Am I a criminal that you come out after me armed with swords and clubs? <sup>53</sup> When I was with you day after day in the temple you never raised a hand against me. But this is your hour—the triumph of darkness!"

Peter's Denial. <sup>54</sup>* They led him away under arrest and brought him to the house of the high priest, while Peter followed at a distance. <sup>55</sup> Later they lighted a fire in the middle of the courtyard and were sitting beside it, and Peter sat among them. <sup>56</sup> A servant girl saw him sitting in the light of the fire. She gazed at him intently, then said, <sup>57</sup> "This man was with him." He denied it, saying, "Woman, I do not know him." <sup>58</sup> A little while later someone else saw him and said, "You are one of them too." But Peter said, "No, sir, not I!" <sup>59</sup> About an hour after that another spoke more insistently: "This man was certainly with him, for he is a Galilean." <sup>60</sup> Peter responded, "My friend, I do not know what you are talking about." At the very moment he was saying this, a cock crowed. <sup>61</sup>* The Lord turned around and looked at Peter, and Peter remembered the word that the Lord had spoken to him, "Before the cock crows today you will deny me three times." <sup>62</sup> He went out and wept bitterly.

Jesus before the Sanhedrin. <sup>63</sup>* Meanwhile the men guarding Jesus amused themselves at his expense. <sup>64</sup> They blindfolded him first, slapped him, and then taunted him: "Play the prophet; which one struck you?" <sup>65</sup> And they directed many other insulting words at him.

<sup>66</sup>* At daybreak, the elders of the people, the chief priests, and the scribes assembled again. Once they had brought him before their council, they said, "Tell us, are you the Messiah?" <sup>67</sup> He replied, "If I tell you, you will not believe me, <sup>68</sup> and if I question you, you will not answer. <sup>69</sup> This much only will I say: 'From now on, the Son of Man will have his seat at the right hand of the Power of God.'" <sup>70</sup>* "So you are the Son of God?" they asked in chorus. He answered, "It is you who say I am." <sup>71</sup> They said, "What need have we of witnesses? We have heard it from his own mouth."

34: 22, 61: Mt 26, 33ff; Mk 14, 29ff; Jn 13, 36ff.
 35: 10, 4; Mt 10, 9.
 37: 23, 32; Lk 53, 12.
 39-46: Mt 26, 30, 36-46; Mk 14, 26, 32-42.
 47-53: Mt 26, 47-56; Mk 14, 43-50; Jn 18, 3-11.
 54-62: Mt 26, 58, 69-75; Mk 14, 54, 66-72; Jn 18, 15-18, 25ff.
 61: 22, 34; Mt 26, 34; Mk 14, 30; Jn 13, 38.
 63f: Mt 26, 67ff; Mk 14, 65.
 66-71: Mt 26, 59-66; Mk 14, 55-64.
 66: Mt 27, 1; Mk 15, 1.
 70: Wis 2, 13; Jn 10, 30.

CHAPTER 23

Jesus before Pilate. <sup>1*</sup> Then the entire assembly rose up and led him before Pilate. <sup>2*</sup> They started his prosecution by saying, "We found this man subverting our nation, opposing the payment of taxes to Caesar, and calling himself the Messiah, a king." <sup>3*</sup> Pilate asked him, "Are you the king of the Jews?" He answered, "That is your term." <sup>4</sup> Pilate reported to the chief priests and the crowds, "I do not find a case against this man." <sup>5</sup> But they insisted, "He stirs up the people by his teaching throughout the whole of Judea, from Galilee, where he began, to this very place." <sup>6</sup> On hearing this Pilate asked if the man was a Galilean; <sup>7</sup> and when he learned that he was under Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, who also happened to be in Jerusalem at the time.

<sup>8</sup> Herod was extremely pleased to see Jesus. From the reports about him he had wanted for a long time to see him, and he was hoping to see him work some miracle. <sup>9</sup> He questioned Jesus at considerable length, but Jesus made no answer. <sup>10</sup> The chief priests and scribes were at hand to accuse him vehemently. <sup>11</sup> Herod and his guards then treated him with contempt and insult, after which they put a magnificent robe on him and sent him back to Pilate. <sup>12</sup> Herod and Pilate, who had previously been set against each other, became friends from that day.

Jesus Again before Pilate. <sup>13</sup> Pilate then called together the chief priests, the ruling class, and the people, <sup>14*</sup> and said to them: "You have brought this man before me as one who subverts the people. I have examined him in your presence and have no charge against him arising from your allegations. <sup>15</sup> Neither has Herod, who therefore has sent him back to us; obviously this man has done nothing that calls for death. <sup>16</sup> Therefore I mean to release him, once I have taught him a lesson." † <sup>18*</sup> The whole crowd cried out, "Away with this man; release Barabbas for us!" <sup>19</sup> This Barabbas had been thrown in prison for causing an uprising in the city, and for murder. <sup>20</sup> Pilate addressed them again, for he wanted Jesus to be the one he released.

<sup>21</sup> But they shouted back, "Crucify him, crucify him!" <sup>22</sup> He said to them for the third time, "What wrong is this man guilty of? I have not discovered anything about him that calls for the death penalty. I will therefore chastise him and release him." <sup>23</sup> But they demanded with loud cries that he be crucified, and their shouts increased in violence. <sup>24*</sup> Pilate then decreed that what they demanded should be done. <sup>25</sup> He released the one they asked for, who had been thrown in prison for insurrection and murder, and delivered Jesus up to their wishes.

The Way of the Cross. <sup>26*</sup> As they led him away, they laid hold of one Simon the Cyrenean who was coming in from the fields. They put a crossbeam on Simon's shoulder for him to carry along behind Jesus. <sup>27</sup> A great crowd of people followed him, including women who beat their breasts and lamented over him. <sup>28</sup> Jesus turned to them and said: "Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me. Weep for yourselves and for your children. <sup>29</sup> The days are coming when they will say, 'Happy are the sterile, the wombs that never bore and the breasts that never nursed.' <sup>30*</sup> Then they will begin saying to the mountains, 'Fall on us,' and to the hills, 'Cover us.' <sup>31</sup> If they do these things in the green wood, what will happen in the dry?"

The Crucifixion. <sup>32*</sup> Two others who were criminals were led along with him to be crucified. <sup>33*</sup> When they came to Skull Place, as it was called, they crucified him there and the criminals as well, one on his right and the other on his left. <sup>34*</sup> [Jesus said, "Father, forgive them; they do not know what they are doing."] They divided his garments, rolling dice for them.

<sup>35*</sup> The people stood there watching, and the leaders kept jeering at him, saying, "He saved others; let him save himself if he is the Messiah of God, the chosen one." <sup>36*</sup> The soldiers also made fun of him, coming forward to offer him their sour wine <sup>37</sup> and saying, "If you are the king of the Jews, save yourself." <sup>38*</sup> There was an inscription over his head:

"THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS."

<sup>39*</sup> One of the criminals hanging in crucifixion blasphemed him: "Aren't you the Messiah? Then save yourself and us." <sup>40</sup> But the other one rebuked him: "Have you no fear of God, seeing you are under the same sentence? <sup>41</sup> We deserve it, after all. We are only paying 23, 1: Mt 27, 1f; Jn 18, 28.	15, 20f.

2-6: Mt 27, 11-14; Mk 15, 2-5; Jn 18, 29-38.	30: Hos 10, 8; Rv 6, 16.
2: 20, 22-25; Acts 17, 7, 24, 5.	32: 22, 37; Is 53, 12
3: Mt 27, 11; Mk 15, 2; Jn 18, 33.	33f: Mt 27, 33; Mk 15, 22f; Jn 19, 17.
14: Jn 19, 4.	34: Ps 22, 19; Acts 7, 60.
18-25: Mt 27, 15-26; Mk 15, 7-15; Jn 18, 39-19, 16.	35-38: Mt 27, 39-43; Mk 15, 29-32.
24f: Acts 3, 14f.	36: Mt 27, 48.
26: Mt 27, 31f; Mk	38: Jn 19, 19.
	39: Mt 27, 44; Mk 15, 32.

† 23, 17: Omit with some MSS. Others read: "At the festival time he had to release a prisoner to them."

the price for what we've done, but this man has done nothing wrong." <sup>42</sup> He then said, "Jesus, remember me when you enter upon your reign." <sup>43</sup> And Jesus replied, "I assure you: this day you will be with me in paradise."

Jesus Dies on the Cross. <sup>44</sup>* It was now around midday, and darkness came over the whole land until midafternoon with an eclipse of the sun. <sup>45</sup> The curtain in the sanctuary was torn in two. <sup>46</sup>* Jesus uttered a loud cry and said,

"Father, into your hands I commend my spirit."

After he said this, he expired. <sup>47</sup>* The centurion, upon seeing what had happened, gave glory to God by saying, "Surely this was an innocent man." <sup>48</sup> When the crowd which had assembled for this spectacle saw what had happened, they went home beating their breasts. <sup>49</sup>* All his friends and the women who had accompanied him from Galilee were standing at a distance watching everything.

The Burial. <sup>50</sup>* There was a man named Joseph, an upright and holy member of the Sanhedrin, <sup>51</sup> who had not been associated with their plan or their action. He was from Arimathea, a Jewish town, and he looked expectantly for the reign of God. <sup>52</sup> This man approached Pilate with a request for Jesus' body. <sup>53</sup> He took it down, wrapped it in fine linen, and laid it in a tomb hewn out of the rock, in which no one had yet been buried.

<sup>54</sup> That was the Day of Preparation, and the sabbath was about to begin. <sup>55</sup> The women who had come with him from Galilee followed along behind. They saw the tomb and how his body was buried. <sup>56</sup>* Then they went home to prepare spices and perfumes. They observed the sabbath as a day of rest, in accordance with the law.

VII: APPEARANCES AFTER THE RESURRECTION†

CHAPTER 24

The Women at the Tomb. <sup>1</sup>* On the first day of the week, at dawn, the women came to the tomb bringing the spices they had prepared. <sup>2</sup> They found the stone rolled back from the tomb; <sup>3</sup> but when they entered the tomb, they did not find the body of the Lord Jesus. <sup>4</sup> While they were still at a loss over what to think of this, two men in dazzling garments stood beside them. <sup>5</sup> Terrified, the women bowed to the ground. The men said to them: "Why do you search for the Living One among the dead? <sup>6</sup> He is not here; he has been raised up. Remember what he said to you while he was still in Galilee—<sup>7</sup>* that the Son of Man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and on the third day rise again." <sup>8</sup> With this reminder, his words came back to them.

<sup>9</sup>* On their return from the tomb, they told all these things to the Eleven and the others. <sup>10</sup>* The women were Mary of Magdala, Joanna, and Mary the mother of James. The other women with them also told the apostles, <sup>11</sup> but the story seemed like nonsense and they refused to believe them. <sup>12</sup>* Peter, however, got up and ran to the tomb. He stooped down but could see nothing but the wrappings. So he went away full of amazement at what had occurred.

Emmaus. <sup>13</sup>* Two of them that same day were making their way to a village named Emmaus seven miles distant from Jerusalem, <sup>14</sup> discussing as they went all that had happened. <sup>15</sup> In the course of their lively exchange, Jesus approached and began to walk along with them. <sup>16</sup>* However, they were re-

44ff: Mt 27, 45-50; Mk 15, 33-37.	24, 1-8: Mt 28, 1-8; Mk 16, 1-8.
46: Ps 31, 6; Jn 19, 30; Acts 7, 60.	1ff: Jn 20, 1ff.
47: Mt 27, 54; Mk 15, 39.	7: 9, 22; Mt 16, 21; 17, 22f; Mk 9, 31.
49: 24, 10.	9ff: Mk 16, 10f.
50-55: Mt 27, 57-61; Mk 15, 42-47; Jn 19, 38-41.	10: 8, 2f.
56: Mk 16, 1.	12: Jn 20, 3-7.
	13: Mk 16, 12f.
	16: Jn 20, 14, 21, 4.

† 24, 1-53: The resurrection narratives in the gospels do not derive directly from the primitive stage when the apostolic testimony was as yet unchallenged by the unbeliever. They reflect a somewhat later period, when the average Christian was aware of the unbeliever's principal counter-arguments against the doctrine of the resurrection; namely, that Jesus' disciples had removed his body from the tomb, or that they were victims of visionary or other objectively unreal experiences. The gospels and the tradition that preceded them carefully interwove the data of the resurrection with the replies to these arguments, so that Christians might remain in peaceful possession of their faith.

The narratives, then, begin with the account of the women's visit to the tomb—no doubt to make clear that up to this point the male disciples of Jesus had not come near the tomb (1-8). The reaction of the disciples to the women's report reveals that they did not anticipate Jesus' immediate resurrection (10f), much less think of creating a resurrection myth by removal of the body. The stress on the incredulity of the disciples (11, 25.41; cf Mt 28, 17; Jn 20, 24-29) depicts them as men not easily convinced of the resurrection event: They thought they were seeing a ghost (37). But their experience of his presence for the duration of meals (42f; cf Jn 20, 9-13), and their conversation with him in which they recognized that his earlier teaching actually culminated in these new circumstances (44; cf Jn 20, 21, 21, 15ff), required the acceptance of the one before them as Jesus of Nazareth, who had returned to life after undergoing the reality of death.

The greater problem of the disciples in accepting the fact of the resurrection was, no doubt, its messianic implications. These new and unanticipated concepts presented an extraordinary challenge to the faith of Israel, a point that Luke's resurrection narrative is careful to make (25ff.44-47). In addition to the apologetic response to the denials of the resurrection, Luke (44-49), like Matthew (28, 19f) and John (20, 21ff), incorporates into his gospel the instructions of the risen Jesus concerning the mission of the disciples and of the Christian community.

strained from recognizing him. <sup>17</sup> He said to them, "What are you discussing as you go your way?" <sup>18</sup> They halted, in distress, and one of them, Cleopas by name, asked him, "Are you the only resident of Jerusalem who does not know the things that went on there these past few days?" <sup>19</sup> He said to them, "What things?" They said: "All those that had to do with Jesus of Nazareth, a prophet powerful in word and deed in the eyes of God and all the people; <sup>20</sup> how our chief priests and leaders delivered him up to be condemned to death, and crucified him. <sup>21</sup> We were hoping that he was the one who would set Israel free. Besides all this, today, the third day since these things happened, <sup>22</sup> some women of our group have just brought us some astonishing news. They were at the tomb before dawn <sup>23</sup> and failed to find his body, but returned with the tale that they had seen a vision of angels who declared he was alive. <sup>24</sup> Some of our number went to the tomb and found it to be just as the women said, but him they did not see."

<sup>25</sup> Then he said to them, "What little sense you have! How slow you are to believe all that the prophets have announced! <sup>26</sup> Did not the Messiah have to undergo all this so as to enter into his glory?" <sup>27</sup> Beginning, then, with Moses and all the prophets, he interpreted for them every passage of Scripture which referred to him. <sup>28</sup> By now they were near the village to which they were going, and he acted as if he were going farther. <sup>29</sup> But they pressed him: "Stay with us. It is nearly evening—the day is practically over." So he went in to stay with them.

<sup>30</sup> When he had seated himself with them to eat, he took bread, pronounced the blessing, then broke the bread and began to distribute it to them. <sup>31</sup> With that their eyes were opened and they recognized him; whereupon he vanished from their sight. <sup>32</sup> They said to one another, "Were not our hearts burning inside us as he talked to us on the road and explained the Scriptures to us?" <sup>33</sup> They got up immediately and returned to Jerusalem, where they found the Eleven and the rest of the company assembled. They were greeted with, <sup>34</sup> "The Lord has been raised! It is true!

He has appeared to Simon." <sup>35</sup> Then they recounted what had happened on the road and how they had come to know him in the breaking of bread.

Jesus Appears to the Eleven. <sup>36</sup> While they were still speaking about all this, he himself stood in their midst [and said to them, "Peace to you."]. <sup>37</sup> In their panic and fright they thought they were seeing a ghost. <sup>38</sup> He said to them, "Why are you disturbed? Why do such ideas cross your mind? <sup>39</sup> Look at my hands and my feet; it is really I. Touch me, and see that a ghost does not have flesh and bones as I do." <sup>40</sup> As he said this he showed them his hands and feet. <sup>41</sup> They were still incredulous for sheer joy and wonder, so he said to them, "Have you anything here to eat?" <sup>42</sup> They gave him a piece of cooked fish, <sup>43</sup> which he took and ate in their presence. <sup>44</sup> Then he said to them, "Recall those words I spoke to you when I was still with you: everything written about me in the law of Moses and the prophets and psalms had to be fulfilled." <sup>45</sup> Then he opened their minds to the understanding of the Scriptures.

<sup>46</sup> He said to them: "Thus it is written that the Messiah must suffer and rise from the dead on the third day. <sup>47</sup> In his name, penance for the remission of sins is to be preached to all the nations, beginning at Jerusalem. <sup>48</sup> You are witnesses of this. See, <sup>49</sup> I send down upon you the promise of my Father. Remain here in the city until you are clothed with power from on high."

The Ascension. <sup>50</sup> Then he led them out near Bethany, and with hands upraised, blessed them. <sup>51</sup> As he blessed, he left them, and was taken up to heaven. <sup>52</sup> They fell down to do him reverence, then returned to Jerusalem filled with joy. <sup>53</sup> There they were to be found in the temple constantly, speaking the praises of God.

19: Mt 2, 23; Acts 2, 22.

21: 1, 54; 2, 38.

25f: 18, 31; Acts 3, 24.

27: 1 Pt 1, 10f.

36: Jn 20, 19f.

40f: Jn 21, 9f.13.

46: 9, 22.

47: Mt 3, 2, 28, 19f; Mk 16, 15f; Acts 10, 41.

49: Jn 14, 26; Acts 1, 4; 2, 3f.

50f: Mk 16, 19; Acts 1, 9ff.

JOHN

The reputed author of the fourth gospel was John, son of Zebedee, who published it at Ephesus in the last years of his life. Within the Christian community, this is the only important tradition that has come down from antiquity concerning this gospel. In its essentials the tradition is found in Irenaeus ("Adversus Haereses," 3:1, 1) toward the close of the second century. He claims to have had it from Polycarp of Smyrna, who knew John. Thus "the beloved disciple" himself becomes identified as the source of the tradition (19, 35; 21, 24); cf 19, 26f.

While the attestation of this tradition is impressive, it should be remembered that for the ancients authorship was a much broader concept than it is today. In their time a man could be called the "author" of a work if he was the authority behind it, even though he did not write it. Modern critical analysis makes it difficult to accept the idea that the gospel as it now stands was written by one man. Chapter 21 seems to have been added after the gospel was completed (20, 30f); it exhibits a Greek style somewhat different from the rest of the work. The Prologue (1, 1-18) was apparently an independent hymn, subsequently adapted to serve as a preface to the gospel. Within the gospel itself there are signs of some disorder; e.g., there are two endings to Jesus' discourse at the Last Supper (14, 31; 18, 1).

To solve these problems, scholars have proposed various rearrangements that would produce a smoother order. However, more and more students of this gospel are coming to believe that the inconsistencies were probably produced by subsequent editing in which homogeneous materials were added to a shorter original. Other difficulties for the theory of eyewitness authorship are presented by the gospel's highly developed theology, and by certain elements of its literary style. For instance, some of the miracles of Jesus have been worked into highly effective dramatic scenes (ch 9); there has been a careful attempt to have the miracles followed by discourses which explain them (chs 5 and 6); the sayings of Jesus have been woven into long discourses of a quasi-poetic form resembling the speeches of personified Wisdom in the Old Testament.

How can the ancient tradition about the authorship of the fourth gospel be reconciled with modern biblical scholarship? Many scholars, Protestant and Catholic, are coming to accept a theory which tries to do justice to both. This proposes that behind the fourth gospel there was an ancient tradition of the words and deeds of Jesus, a tradition of real historical value, similar in general to, but independent of, the traditions that underlie the synoptic gospels. Thus, just as the name "Peter" has been associated with one of the traditions behind the synoptic gospels, so the name "John, son of Zebedee," may well be attached to the tradition behind the fourth gospel. John, as one of the three privileged disciples who were closest to Jesus, may have preserved and preached this basic tradition about Jesus.

The theory further proposes that it was one of John's disciples who actually developed the tradition into the pattern of the gospel as we know it. Perhaps, under John's guidance, this disciple was the real evangelist: an artistic and theological genius, who gave to the tradition the distinctive literary features which we call "Johannine," and who used the gospel message to respond to the pressing theological needs of his time. All of this would have required the selection and reworking of details from the tradition, and would probably have been based on a long history of Johannine preaching.

Later, the theory continues, still another disciple of John was responsible for the editing of the evangelist's original gospel. He is often called the disciple-redactor, or editor, to distinguish him from the disciple-evangelist. This man added other material which had come down from the wide circle of Johannine disciples (the Prologue and chapter 21), and seems to have included a large body of material from the disciple-evangelist which had not been incorporated into the original edition of the gospel. For instance, if the Last Discourse of Jesus in the original edition came to an end at 14, 31, the redactor added three more chapters of Last Discourse material (15-17), quite like the material in chapter 14 and even duplicating it.

But since he did not wish to tamper with the original gospel, he let the original conclusion of 14, 31 stand.

Such a theory respects the ancient tradition that John the Apostle was the authority behind the gospel. It also explains, on the basis of critical analysis, that a disciple of John, here called the disciple-evangelist, was not an eyewitness, and that more than one hand was involved in the writing of the gospel. Moreover it teaches us how to evaluate what we find therein. This gospel contains many valid historical details about Jesus not found in the synoptic gospels: e.g., that after his baptism by John, Jesus was engaged in a baptizing ministry before he changed exclusively to preaching (3, 22); that Jesus' public ministry lasted for several years (see note on 2, 13); that he traveled to Jerusalem on various feasts and met serious opposition long before his death (2, 14ff; chs 5 and 7—10); that he was put to death on the day before Passover (18, 28). These events are not always in order, however, because of the development and editing that ensued.

The fourth gospel is not simply history; the narrative has been organized and adapted to serve the evangelist's theological purposes as well. Among them are: opposition to the synagogue and to such of John the Baptizer's sectarians as tried to exalt their master at Jesus' expense; desire to show that Jesus was the Messiah; desire to convince Christians that their religious belief and practice must be rooted in Jesus. Such theological purposes have caused the evangelist to bring to the fore motifs which, as can be seen by comparison with the synoptic gospels, were not so clear in the synoptic account of Jesus' ministry, e.g., the explicit emphasis on his divinity.

The polemic between the synagogue and the church influenced Johannine language toward harshness especially by reason of the hostility toward Jesus manifested by the authorities—Pharisees and Sadducees—who are referred to frequently as "the Jews" (see note on Jn 1, 19). Such opponents are even described in Jn 8, 44 as springing from their father the devil, whose conduct they imitate in opposing God by rejecting the One whom God has sent. Today, there is a very real effort by Christians and Jews to understand and respect one another and thus to eliminate all embittered criticism.

The final editing of the gospel and arrangement in its present form probably dates between 90 and 100 A.D. Ephesus is still favored by most scholars as the place of composition, though some have proposed the Syrian city of Antioch.

The chief divisions of the Gospel of John are as follows:

- I: Prologue (1, 1-18)
- II: The Book of Signs (1, 19—12, 50)
- III: The Book of Glory (13, 1—20, 31)
- IV: Appendix: The Resurrection Appearance in Galilee (21, 1-25)

I: PROLOGUE†

CHAPTER 1

- 1* In the beginning was the Word; the Word was in God's presence, and the Word was God.
- 2 He was present to God in the beginning.

1, 1: 10, 30; Gn 1, 1-5; Prv 8, 22-25;

1 Jn 1, 1f; Rv 19, 14.

†

1, 1-18: The Prologue is a hymn, formally poetic in style—perhaps originally an independent composition and only later adapted and edited to serve as an overture to the gospel. Its closest parallel is found in the christological hymns in Col 1, 15-20; Phil 2, 6-11; 1 Tm 3, 16. The Roman writer Pliny (111 A.D.) mentions the Christians of Asia Minor as singing hymns to Christ as a god. Commentators are divided on whether the initial reference to the earthly ministry of Jesus Christ is in 1, 9 or 1, 14.

1, 1: In the beginning: these, the first words of Gn 1, 1, serve as the Hebrew title of that book. Here, however, they introduce the two verses describing the situation before creation. Was: three times in the first verse this verb is used of the Word. First, it indicates timeless existence; next, relationship to the Father; finally, identity with God.

- 3*† Through him all things came into being, and apart from him nothing came to be.
 4* Whatever came to be in him, found life, life for the light of men.
 5*† The light shines on in darkness, a darkness that did not overcome it.

6*† There was a man named John sent by God, 7* who came as a witness to testify to the light, so that through him all men might believe—<sup>8</sup> but only to testify to the light, for he himself was not the light. 9*† The real light which gives light to every man was coming into the world.

- 10 He was in the world, and through him the world was made, yet the world did not know who he was.
 11† To his own he came, yet his own did not accept him.
 12*† Any who did accept him he empowered to become children of God.

These are they who believe in his name—<sup>13</sup>† who were begotten not by blood, nor by carnal desire, nor by man's willing it, but by God.

- 14*† The Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us, and we have seen his glory: The glory of an only Son coming from the Father, filled with enduring love.

15*† John testified to him by proclaiming: "This is he of whom I said, 'The one who comes after me ranks ahead of me, for he was before me.'"

- 16† Of his fullness we have all had a share—love following upon love.

17*† For while the law was given through Moses, this enduring love came through Jesus Christ. 18* No one has ever seen God. It is God the only Son, ever at the Father's side, who has revealed him.

II: THE BOOK OF SIGNS

Testimony of John to the Envoys.

10† The testimony John gave when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask, "Who are you?" 20* was the direct statement, "I am not the

3: Ps 33, 9; 1 Cor 8, 6; Col 1, 15; Heb 1, 2.	12: Gal 3, 26; 4, 6f; 1 Jn 3, 2.
4: 5, 26.	13: 3, 5f.
5: 3, 19; 8, 12; 1 Jn 2, 8.	14: 1 Jn 1, 2.
6: Mt 3, 1; Mk 1, 4; Lk 3, 2f.	15: 1, 30; 3, 27-30.
7: 1, 19-34.	17: Dt 33, 4.
9: 8, 12; 12, 46.	18: 6, 46; Ex 33, 20; 1 Jn 4, 12.
	20: 3, 28; Acts 13, 25.

† 1, 3f: In the Clementine Vulgate, the words whatever came to be are put at the end of v 3: "Apart from him, nothing came into being which came to be. In him was life, etc." The best evidence favors the division given above. Found life: literally "was life."

1, 3: The creation was through the Word and in the Word; cf Col 1, 16.

1, 5: Overcome: if this translation is accepted, hostility between darkness and light is indicated, perhaps a reference to the sin of Gn 3. Other possible translations—"grasp," "comprehend," "receive"—are preferred by those who regard the verse as referring to the ministry of Jesus.

1, 6f: These are more prosaic than the other verses of the Prologue, and their content is intrusive, separating 5 from 9 or 10. Vv 6ff, perhaps including 9, are to be regarded as a parenthetical addition by the Johannine editor of the hymn. For him, the reference to the ministry of Jesus came after 6f.

1, 9: The earlier versions make every man (instead of the light) the subject of coming into the world.

1, 11: His own: in 11a, a neuter expression, probably meaning his own country, the Holy Land; in 11b, his own is masculine, and refers to Israel or to the Jews.

1, 12: Empowered: or "gave authority." These are they who believe in his name, etc.: many regard these verses as part of the final edition rather than of the original hymn.

1, 13: Who were begotten: some minor textual witnesses and some early Fathers read "he who was begotten"—a reference to Jesus. This is probably a free adaptation of the text to illustrate the virgin birth. Not by blood . . . desire: no human agency, male or female, begets God's children. That is done through baptism and the Holy Spirit; cf 3, 5.

1, 14: Made his dwelling: literally, "set up his tent, or tabernacle." In the Exodus the tabernacle or tent of meeting was the site of God's dwelling among men (Ex 25, 8f), now that site is the Word-made-flesh. Glory: the glory of God (the visible manifestation of his majesty in power), which once filled the tabernacle (Ex 40, 34) and the temple (1 Kgs 8, 10f.27), is now centered in Jesus. Filled with enduring love: it is not clear whether filled modifies glory or Word or only Son. The two words love and enduring (often translated "grace and truth") represent two Old Testament terms used to describe the dealings of the God of the covenant with Israel (Ex 34, 6); love signifying God's love in choosing Israel and his steadfast expression of that love in the covenant; enduring signifying his faithfulness to his covenant promises. Jesus is a new manifestation of God's covenant, enduring love, replacing the old; cf v 16.

1, 15: This verse, of the same nature as 6f, seems to be drawn from v 30; it interrupts vv 14 and 16, which belong together.

1, 16: Love following upon love: the endless accumulation of God's goodness in Jesus. Other possible translations are: "love in place of love"—the love manifested in Jesus replacing the love manifested in Moses (cf 1, 17)—and "love for love"—our love corresponding to Jesus' love.

1, 17: Many commentators regard these verses as explanation rather than part of the pre-Prologue hymn. God the only Son: other MSS read "the Son, the only one" or "the only Son." Ever at the Father's side: literally, "in [to] the bosom of the Father."

1, 19: The Jews: throughout most of the gospel, with the notable exception of chapters 11 and 12, the "Jews" are not the Jewish people as such. They are the hostile authorities, the Pharisees and Sadducees, particularly those in Jerusalem, who refuse to believe in Jesus. The use of the term reflects the atmosphere at the end of the first century, when polemics expressed the hostility between the synagogue and the church.

Messiah." 21† They questioned him further, "Who, then? Elijah?" "I am not Elijah," he answered. "Are you the Prophet?" "No," he replied.

22 Finally they said to him: "Tell us who you are, so that we can give some answer to those who sent us. What do you have to say for yourself?" 23* He said, quoting the prophet Isaiah, "I am

'a voice in the desert, crying out: Make straight the way of the Lord!'"

24† Those whom the Pharisees had sent 25 proceeded to question him further: "If you are not the Messiah, nor Elijah, nor the Prophet, why do you baptize?" 26* John answered them: "I baptize with water. There is one among you whom you do not recognize—27 the one who is to come after me—the strap of whose sandal I am not worthy to unfasten."

28† This happened in Bethany, across the Jordan, where John was baptizing. His Testimony to Jesus. 29† The next day, when John caught sight of Jesus coming toward him, he exclaimed:

"Look! There is the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world!

30*† It is he of whom I said:

'After me is to come a man who ranks ahead of me, because he was before me.'

31 I confess I did not recognize him, though the very reason I came baptizing with water was that he might be revealed to Israel."

32*† John gave this testimony also:

"I saw the Spirit descend like a dove from the sky, and it came to rest on him.

33* But I did not recognize him. The one who sent me to baptize with water told me, 'When you see the Spirit descend and rest on someone, it is he who is to baptize with the Holy Spirit.' 34*† Now I have seen for myself and have testified, 'This is God's chosen One.'"

The First Disciples. 35 The next day John was there again with two of his disciples. 36 As he watched Jesus walk by he said, "Look! There is the Lamb of God!" 37† The two disciples heard what he said, and followed Jesus. 38 When Jesus turned around and noticed them following him, he asked them, "What are you looking for?" They said to him, "Rabbi (which means Teacher), where do you stay?" 39† "Come and see," he answered. So they went to see where he was lodged, and stayed with him that day. (It was about four in the afternoon.)

40 One of the two who had followed him after hearing John was Simon Peter's brother Andrew. 41*† The first thing

he did was seek out his brother Simon and tell him, "We have found the Messiah!" (This term means the Anointed.) 42* He brought him to Jesus, who looked at him and said, "You are Simon, son of John; your name shall be Cephas (which is rendered Peter)."

43† The next day he wanted to set out for Galilee, but first he came upon Philip. "Follow me," Jesus said to him. 44 Now Philip was from Bethsaida, the same town as Andrew and Peter. 45 Philip sought out Nathanael and told him, "We have found the one Moses spoke of in the law—the prophets too—Jesus, son of Joseph, from Nazareth." 46 Nathanael's

23: Is 40, 3; Mt 3, 3;	3, 21f.
Mk 1, 2; Lk 3, 4.	33: Mt 3, 11; Mk 1,
26: Mt 3, 11; Mk 1,	8; Lk 3, 16.
8; Lk 3, 16.	34: Is 42, 1; Mt 3,
30: 1, 15; Mt 3, 11;	17; Mk 1, 11; Lk
Mk 1, 7; Lk 3,	9, 35.
16.	41: 4, 25.
32: Is 11, 2; Mt 3,	42: Mt 16, 18; Mk 3,
16; Mk 1, 10; Lk	16.

†

1, 21: "Elijah?" "I am not": the Baptizer himself did not claim to be Elijah returned to earth; with greater insight, Jesus (Mt 11, 14) explained the Baptizer's career as fulfilling the role Malachi (4, 5) attributed to Elijah. The Prophet: probably the prophet like Moses of Dt 18, 15; cf Acts 3, 22.

1, 24: Those whom the Pharisees had sent: it would be very unusual for the priestly and levitical envoys of v 19 to have been of the Pharisees' party rather than that of the Sadducees. Some would translate: "There were some Pharisees sent," or "Some of the Pharisees' party were sent." If the latter translation is correct, the evangelist has simplified party distinctions, since the Sadducees were no longer important in the late first century.

1, 28: Bethany, across the Jordan: this is not the Bethany near Jerusalem (11, 18); the actual site is unknown. "Bethabara" ("place of crossing over") is read by the Old Syriac, and Origen accepted it as the correct reading.

1, 29: The Lamb of God: perhaps, for the Baptizer this meant the great apocalyptic lamb who would destroy evil in the world (Rv 17, 14). The evangelist may see a reference to the paschal lamb, and/or to the suffering servant led like a lamb to the slaughter as an offering for sin (Is 53, 7, 10).

1, 30: He was before me: preexistence is a Johannine theme (1, 1; 8, 58; 17, 5).

1, 32: John the Evangelist does not actually describe the baptism of Jesus, but the occasion of the vision narrated here is almost certainly to be understood as the baptism.

1, 34: God's chosen One: the better Greek MSS have "God's Son." The heavenly voice in the synoptic gospels proclaims: "This is my beloved Son" (Mt 3, 17; Mk 1, 11; Lk 3, 22). It is difficult to see why scribes would change "God's Son" to "God's chosen One," and easy to see why for harmonizing and theological purposes a change in the opposite direction would be made. Chosen One is probably a reference to the Servant of Yahweh (Is 42, 1).

1, 37: Two disciples: one is Andrew (v 40); the other, unnamed here, is traditionally identified as John, son of Zebedee. See note on 13, 23.

1, 39: Four in the afternoon: literally, the tenth hour. The evangelists seem to use the Roman method of reckoning time, the hours from sunrise (6 A.M.) are counted as the daylight hours. Some suggest that it was a Friday afternoon; the next day, beginning at sunset, would be the sabbath, which was why they stayed with him.

1, 41: The reading of first is uncertain: our interpretation follows the best MSS, including the early papyri. The Messiah: the actual Aramaic word mesīha—"anointed one"—appears in the Greek as the transliterated messias here and in 4, 25. Elsewhere the Greek translation christos is used.

1, 43: The subject of the first two verbs is not clear; grammatically it could be Peter, but logically it is probably Jesus response to that was, "Can anything good come from Nazareth?" and Philip replied, "Come, see for yourself." 47† When Jesus saw Nathanael coming toward him, he remarked, "This man is a true Israelite. There is no guile in him." 48 "How do you know me?" Nathanael asked him. "Before Philip called you," Jesus answered, "I saw you under the fig tree." 49* "Rabbi," said Nathanael, "you are the Son of God; you are the king of Israel." 50† Jesus responded: "Do you believe just because I told you I saw you under the fig tree? You will see much greater things than that."

51 He went on to tell them, "I solemnly assure you, you shall see the sky opened and the angels of God ascending and descending on the Son of Man."

CHAPTER 2

The Wedding at Cana. 1* On the third day there was a wedding at Cana in Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there. 2 Jesus and his disciples had likewise been invited to the celebration. 3 At a certain point the wine ran out, and Jesus' mother told him, "They have no more wine." 4† Jesus replied, "Woman, how does this concern of yours involve me? My hour has not yet come." 5 His mother instructed those waiting on table, "Do whatever he tells you." 6† As prescribed for Jewish ceremonial washings, there were at hand six stone water jars, each one holding fifteen to twenty-five gallons. 7 "Fill those jars with water," Jesus ordered, at which they filled them to the brim. 8† "Now," he said, "draw some out and take it to the waiter in charge." They did as he instructed them. 9 The waiter in charge tasted the water made wine, without knowing where it had come from; only the waiters knew, since they had drawn the water. Then the waiter in charge called the groom over 10 and remarked to him: "People usually serve the choice wine first; then when the guests have been drinking awhile, a lesser vintage. What you have done is keep the choice wine until now." 11* Jesus performed this first of his signs at Cana in Galilee. Thus did he reveal his glory, and his disciples believed in him.

12† After this he went down to Capernaum, along with his mother and brothers [and his disciples] but they stayed there only a few days.

Cleansing of the Temple.† 13* As the Jewish Passover was near, Jesus went up to Jerusalem. 14† In the temple precincts he came upon people engaged in selling oxen, sheep and doves, and others seated changing coins. 15† He made a [kind of] whip of cords and drove sheep and oxen alike out of the temple area, and knocked over the moneychangers' tables, spilling their coins. 16 He told those who were selling doves: "Get them out of here! Stop turning my Father's house into a marketplace!" 17* His disciples recalled the words of Scripture: "Zeal for your house consumes me."

18* At this the Jews responded, "What sign can you show us authorizing you to do these things?" 19*† "Destroy this temple," was Jesus' answer, "and in three days I will raise it up." 20 They retorted, "This temple took forty-six years to build, and you are going to raise it up in three days!" 21 Actually he was talking about the temple of his body. 22* Only after Jesus had been raised

49: 12, 13.	11, 15ff; Lk 19,
2, 1: 4, 46.	45f.
4: 7, 30; 8, 20; 12,	17: Ps 69, 10.
23; 13, 1.	18: 6, 30.
11: 4, 54.	19: Mt 26, 61.
13-22: Mt 21, 12f; Mk	22: 5, 39.

†

1, 47: A true Israelite: Jacob was the first to bear the name "Israel" (Gn 22, 28ff), but Jacob was a man of guile (Gn 27, 35).

1, 50: You will see . . . these verses may be a play on the name "Israel," which was popularly interpreted as "a man who sees God." There may be a reference in v 51 to Jacob's ladder (Gn 28, 12). I solemnly assure you: literally, "Amen, amen." The double "amen" is characteristic of John.

2, 4: Woman: this form of address, normally given by Jesus to the women he encountered during his ministry (Mt 15, 28; Lk 13, 12) is entirely courteous. However, there is no attestation of a son's use of "woman," without any qualification, to address his mother, and so some commentators suggest a symbolic meaning. Mary is again called "woman" in 19, 26, and the mother of the Messiah in Rv 12, 1-5 is described as "a woman clothed with the sun." Is there symbolic reference to Eve, "the woman" of Genesis? How does this concern of yours involve me?: literally, "What is this to me and to you?"—a Hebrew expression; e.g., 2 Kgs 3, 13, where it denies the speaker's involvement in a project proposed by another. My hour has not yet come: the translation of this as a question ("Has not my hour now come?") is quite unlikely from a comparison with 7, 6, 30. The hour is the hour of Jesus' passion, death, resurrection and ascension (13, 1).

2, 6: Fifteen to twenty-five gallons: literally, "two or three measures"; the measure in question was of eight or nine gallons.

2, 8: Waiter in charge: it is not clear if the official is a majordomo, or a friend of the family who acted as master of ceremonies; see Sir 32, 1.

2, 12: This transitional verse may be a harmonization with the synoptic tradition in Lk 4, 31 and Mt 4, 13. There are many textual variants.

2, 13: Passover: this is the first Passover mentioned in John, a second is mentioned in 6, 4, a third in 13, 1. If these chronological indications are to be taken literally, they point to a ministry of at least two years.

2, 14ff: This is almost certainly the same cleansing the other gospels place in the last days of Jesus' life (Mt, on the day Jesus entered Jerusalem; Mk, on the next day). The order of events in the gospel narratives is often determined by theological motives rather than by chronological data.

2, 15: Sheep and oxen: in John the cleansing is a more violent attack on the temple, because the animals necessary for sacrifice are expelled.

2, 19: This saying is reported by the false witnesses in the synoptic account of Jesus' trial before Caiaphas (Mk 14, 58; Mt 26, 61); see also Mk 15, 29; Acts 6, 14. According to John, Jesus says that it is the Jewish authorities themselves who will destroy the temple; the false witnesses say that Jesus threatened to destroy it.

from the dead did his disciples recall that he had said this, and come to believe the Scripture and the word he had spoken.

<sup>23*</sup> While he was in Jerusalem during the Passover festival, many believed in his name, for they could see the signs he was performing. <sup>24</sup> For his part, Jesus would not trust himself to them because he knew them all. <sup>25</sup> He needed no one to give him testimony about human nature. He was well aware of what was in man's heart.

CHAPTER 3

Nicodemus. <sup>1*</sup> A certain Pharisee named Nicodemus, a member of the Jewish Sanhedrin, <sup>2*</sup> came to him at night. "Rabbi," he said, "we know you are a teacher come from God, for no man can perform signs and wonders such as you perform unless God is with him." <sup>3†</sup> Jesus gave him this answer:

"I solemnly assure you,
no one can see the reign of God unless he is begotten from above."

<sup>4*</sup> "How can a man be born again once he is old?" retorted Nicodemus. "Can he return to his mother's womb and be born over again?" <sup>5†</sup> Jesus replied:

"I solemnly assure you,
no one can enter into God's kingdom without being begotten of water and Spirit.

<sup>6*</sup> Flesh begets flesh,
Spirit begets spirit.

<sup>7</sup> Do not be surprised that I tell you you must all be begotten from above.

<sup>8*†</sup> The wind blows where it will.
You hear the sound it makes but you do not know where it comes from,

or where it goes.
So it is with everyone begotten of the Spirit."

<sup>9</sup> "How can such a thing happen?"
asked Nicodemus. <sup>10</sup> Jesus responded:
"You hold the office of teacher of Israel and still you do not understand these matters?"

<sup>11*</sup> "I solemnly assure you,
we are talking about what we know, we are testifying to what we have
seen,

but you do not accept our testimony.

<sup>12*</sup> If you do not believe when I tell you about earthly things, how are you to believe when I tell you about those of heaven?"

<sup>13*†</sup> No one has gone up to heaven except the One who came down from there—
the Son of Man [who is in heaven].

<sup>14*†</sup> Just as Moses lifted up the serpent in the desert,
so must the Son of Man be lifted up,

<sup>15†</sup> that all who believe may have eternal life in him.

<sup>16*†</sup> Yes, God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him may not die
but may have eternal life.

<sup>17*†</sup> God did not send the Son into the world
to condemn the world, but that the world might be saved through him.

<sup>18</sup> Whoever believes in him avoids condemnation,
but whoever does not believe is already condemned for not believing in the name of God's only Son.

<sup>19*†</sup> The judgment of condemnation is this:
the light came into the world, but men loved darkness rather than light
because their deeds were wicked.

<sup>20*</sup> Everyone who practices evil hates the light;
he does not come near it
for fear his deeds will be exposed.

23: 4, 45.	12: 6, 62ff; Wis 9,
3, 1: 7, 50f; 19, 39.	16f.
2: 9, 16, 33; 10, 21.	13: 1, 18.
4: 1, 13.	14: Nm 21, 9; Wis
6: 6, 63; 1 Cor 15,	16, 5ff.
44-50.	16: 1 Jn 4, 9.
8: Acts 2, 2ff.	17: 12, 47.
11: 3, 32, 34; 8, 14;	19: 8, 12.
Mt 11, 27.	20: Jb 24, 13-17.

† 3, 3: Begotten: the Greek verb can mean "born" from a female principle, or "begotten" by a male principle. As in 1, 13, John primarily means it as "begotten," though many early versions translate it as "born" or even, with heightened baptismal symbolism, "reborn." From above: the Greek term anōthen means both "again" and "from above." V 31 below shows that Jesus means it as "from above," but Nicodemus misunderstands. (A misunderstanding that brings out Jesus' teaching is a common literary device in John.)

3, 5: The Council of Trent declared that water here is not a metaphor but means real water. This passage has had an important role in baptismal theology.

3, 8: Wind: the Greek word pneuma means both "wind" and "spirit." We can see from the context that John is playing on the double meaning, with wind as the primary companion.

3, 13: Has gone up to heaven: the seeming reference to the ascension in the past tense is difficult but tenses in John seem to be somewhat timeless; see 8, 58. Who is in heaven: if this is a true reading, it may be compared to 1, 18.

3, 14: Lifted up: the first of three references (8, 28; 12, 32) to the "lifting up" of Jesus the Son of Man: i.e., in crucifixion, resurrection, and ascension. These are comparable to the three references to the passion and resurrection in the synoptics (Mk 8, 31; 9, 30; 10, 31).

3, 15: This might be translated "that everyone who believes in him may have eternal life." Eternal life, used here for the first time in John, stresses the quality of the life rather than its duration.

3, 16: Gave: a reference to both the incarnation and the death of Jesus; cf Rom 8, 32.

3, 17ff: Condemn . . . judgment: the same Greek root is involved, and it has both shades of meaning. Jesus' coming provokes judgment; his purpose is to save, but some condemn themselves by turning from the light.

3, 19: John stresses that judgment is not only a matter of the future but is partially realized here and now.

21* But he who acts in truth comes into the light, to make clear that his deeds are done in God."

Final Witness of the Baptizer.

22*† Later on, Jesus and his disciples came into Judean territory, and he spent some time with them there baptizing. 23† John too was baptizing at Aenon near Salim where water was plentiful, and people kept coming to be baptized. 24 (John, of course, had not yet been thrown into prison.) 25† A controversy about purification arose between John's disciples and a certain Jew. 26 So they came to John, saying, "Rabbi, the man who was with you across the Jordan—the one about whom you have been testifying—is baptizing now, and everyone is flocking to him." 27*† John answered:

"No one can lay hold on anything unless it is given him from on high.

28* You yourselves are witnesses to the fact that I said: 'I am not the Messiah; I am sent before him.'

29*† "It is the groom who has the bride. The groom's best man waits there listening for him and is overjoyed to hear his voice. That is my joy, and it is complete. He must increase, while I must decrease.

Discourse Concluded†

31 "The One who comes from above is above all;

the one who is of the earth is earthly, and he speaks on an earthly plane. The One who comes from heaven [who is above all]

32* testifies to what he has seen and heard, but no one accepts his testimony.

33* Whoever does accept this testimony certifies that God is truthful.

34 For the One whom God has sent speaks the words of God; he does not ration his gift of the Spirit.

35* The Father loves the Son and has given everything over to him.

36 Whoever believes in the Son has life eternal. Whoever disobeys the Son will not see life, but must endure the wrath of God."

CHAPTER 4

1 Now when Jesus learned that the Pharisees had heard that he was winning over and baptizing more disciples than John 2† (in fact, however, it was not Jesus himself who baptized, but his disciples), 3 he left Judea and started back for Galilee again.

The Samaritan Woman. 4 He had to pass through Samaria, 5*† and his journey brought him to a Samaritan town named Shechem near the plot of land which Jacob had given to his son Joseph. 6 This was the site of Jacob's well. Jesus, tired from his journey, sat down at the well.

The hour was about noon. 7 When a Samaritan woman came to draw water, Jesus said to her, "Give me a drink." 8 (His disciples had gone off to the town to buy provisions.) 9*† The Samaritan woman said to him, "You are a Jew. How can you ask me, a Samaritan and a woman, for a drink?" (Recall that Jews have nothing to do with Samaritans.) 10† Jesus replied:

"If only you recognized God's gift, and who it is that is asking you for a drink, you would have asked him instead, and he would have given you living water."

11 "Sir," she challenged him, "you do not have a bucket and this well is deep. Where do you expect to get this flowing water? 12 Surely you do not pretend to be greater than our ancestor Jacob, who

21: Mt 5, 14ff.	32: 3, 11.
22f: 4, 1f.	33f: 8, 26; 1 Jn 5, 10.
27: 19, 11; 2 Cor 3, 5; Heb 5, 4.	35: Mt 28, 18.
28: Lk 3, 15.	4, 5: Gn 33, 18f.
29: Mt 9, 15.	9: Sir 50, 25f; Mt 10, 5.

† 3, 22: Baptizing: that after his baptism Jesus conducted a baptizing ministry is not mentioned by the synoptics; cf 4, 2.

3, 23: Aenon near Salim: uncertain site, either in the upper Jordan valley or in Samaria.

3, 25: Controversy: perhaps this dispute concerned the relative value of the two baptisms or the value of baptism vs. Jewish purifications (2, 6).

3, 27: No one: it is more likely that this refers to Jesus than to the Baptizer.

3, 29: Groom's best man: the one who arranged the wedding and acted as go-between for groom and bride.

3, 31-36: It is uncertain whether these words are spoken by the Baptizer, by Jesus, or by the evangelist. Perhaps an originally independent discourse of Jesus has been brought here by way of comment on the two preceding scenes of ch 3. His gift: it is uncertain to whom the "his" refers: to God or to Jesus.

4, 2: An editorial refinement on 3, 22, perhaps against followers of the Baptizer in the late first century who exalted the Baptizer above Jesus.

4, 5f. Shechem: Most MSS have Sychar which St. Jerome identifies with Shechem. He may be correct in saying that copyists mistakenly put "Sychar" for "Shechem." Jacob's well (unmentioned in the Old Testament) is the well of Shechem. The town is situated in the valley between Mounts Gerizim and Ebal; cf Dt 27: Jos 3, 30.

4, 9: Samaritan women were regarded as ritually impure, and therefore Jews were forbidden to drink from any vessel they had handled.

4, 10f: Living water: Jesus is speaking of the water of life; the woman thinks of flowing water, so much more desirable than stale cistern water. This is a typical example of Johannine use of a hearer's misunderstanding; cf note on 3, 3.

gave us this well and drank from it with his sons and his flocks?"<sup>13</sup> Jesus replied:

"Everyone who drinks this water will be thirsty again.

14* But whoever drinks the water I give him will never be thirsty; no, the water I give shall become a fountain within him, leaping up to provide eternal life."

15 The woman said to him, "Give me this water, sir, so that I shall not grow thirsty and have to keep coming here to draw water."

16 He said to her, "Go, call your husband, and then come back here." 17 "I have no husband," replied the woman. "You are right in saying you have no husband!" Jesus exclaimed. 18 "The fact is, you have had five, and the man you are living with now is not your husband. What you said is true."

19† "Sir," answered the woman, "I can see you are a prophet. 20† Our ancestors worshiped on this mountain, but you people claim that Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship God."

21 Jesus told her:

"Believe me, woman, an hour is coming when you will worship the Father neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem.

22* You people worship what you do not understand, while we understand what we worship;

after all, salvation is from the Jews.

23† Yet an hour is coming, and is already here, when authentic worshipers will worship the Father in Spirit and truth.

Indeed, it is just such worshipers the Father seeks.

24 God is Spirit, and those who worship him must worship in Spirit and truth."

25† The woman said to him: "I know there is a Messiah coming." (This term means Anointed.) "When he comes, he will tell us everything." 26* Jesus replied, "I who speak to you am he."

27 His disciples, returning at this point, were surprised that Jesus was speaking with a woman. No one put a question, however, such as "What do you want of him?" or "Why are you talking with her?" 28 The woman then left her water jar and went off into the town. She said to the people: 29 "Come and see someone who told me everything I ever did! Could this not be the Messiah?" 30 At that they set out from the town to meet him.

31 Meanwhile the disciples were urging him, "Rabbi, eat something." 32 But he told them:

"I have food to eat of which you do not know."

33 At this the disciples said to one another, "Do you suppose that someone has brought him something to eat?"

34* Jesus explained to them:

"Doing the will of him who sent me and bringing his work to completion is my food.

35*† Do you not have a saying:

'Four months more and it will be harvest!'

Listen to what I say:

Open your eyes and see!

The fields are shining for harvest!

36*† The reaper already collects his wages and gathers a yield for eternal life, that sower and reaper may rejoice together.

37 Here we have the saying verified: 'One man sows; another reaps.'

38 I sent you to reap what you had not worked for. Others have done the labor, and you have come into their gain."

39 Many Samaritans from that town believed in him on the strength of the woman's word of testimony: "He told me everything I ever did." 40 The result was that, when these Samaritans came to him, they begged him to stay with them awhile. So he stayed there two days, 41 and through his own spoken word many more came to faith. 42 As they told the woman: "No longer does our faith depend on your story. We have heard for ourselves, and we know that this really is the Savior of the world."

Return to Galilee. 43 When the two days were over, he left for Galilee.

44*† (Jesus himself had testified that no

14: 6, 35; 7, 37ff; JI	35: Mt 9, 37f; Lk 10, 2
4: 18.
22: 2 Kgs 17, 27.	36: Ps 126, 5f.
26: 9, 37.	44: Mt 13, 57.
34: 6, 38; 17, 4.

† 4, 19: Sir: the original word (used also in v 11) means either "Sir" or "Lord"; here the latter term may be more appropriate if the woman is moving toward faith.

4, 20: The Samaritans included among the ten commandments the obligation to worship on Mount Gerizim. It was an ancient holy place. "Ebal" is probably an anti-Samaritan Jewish emendation of "Gerizim"; cf Dt 27, 4.

4, 23: In Spirit and truth: this is not a reference to an interior worship within man's spirit. The Spirit is the Spirit of truth (14, 16f), the Spirit given by God which reveals truth and raises up man to worship God on the appropriate level. This idea presupposes the "begetting by Spirit" in 3, 5.

4, 25: The expectations of the Samaritans are expressed here in more familiar Jewish terminology. They did not expect a messianic King of the house of David but a prophet like Moses (Dt 18, 15).

4, 35: This is probably a proverb rather than a real time indication; cf Mt 9, 37f.

4, 36: Already: it is possible that this word belongs at the end of v 35.

4, 44: The parenthetical verse is probably the reminiscence of a tradition similar to that in Mk 6, 4.

one esteems a prophet in his own country.)<sup>45</sup> When he arrived in Galilee, the people there welcomed him. They themselves had been at the feast and had seen all that he had done in Jerusalem on that occasion.

Second Sign at Cana. <sup>46†</sup> He went to Cana in Galilee once more, where he had made the water wine. At Capernaum there happened to be a royal official whose son was ill. <sup>47</sup> When he heard that Jesus had come back from Judea to Galilee, he went to him and begged him to come down and restore health to his son, who was near death. <sup>48*</sup> Jesus replied, "Unless you people see signs and wonders, you do not believe."<sup>49</sup> "Sir," the royal official pleaded with him, "come down before my child dies."<sup>50†</sup> Jesus told him, "Return home. Your son will live." The man put his trust in the word Jesus spoke to him, and started for home.

<sup>51</sup> He was on his way there when his servants met him with the news that his boy was going to live. <sup>52</sup> When he asked them at what time the boy had shown improvement, they told him, "The fever left him yesterday afternoon about one."<sup>53†</sup> It was at that very hour, the father realized, that Jesus had told him, "Your son is going to live." He and his whole household thereupon became believers. <sup>54*</sup> This was the second sign that Jesus performed on returning from Judea to Galilee.

CHAPTER 5

Cure on a Sabbath Feast. <sup>1*†</sup> Later, on the occasion of a Jewish feast, Jesus went up to Jerusalem. <sup>2†</sup> Now in Jerusalem by the Sheep Pool there is a place with the Hebrew name Bethesda. Its five porticoes <sup>3†</sup> were crowded with sick people lying there blind, lame or disabled <sup>4†</sup> [waiting for the movement of the water]. <sup>5</sup> There was one man who had been sick for thirty-eight years. <sup>6</sup> Jesus, who knew he had been sick a long time, said when he saw him lying there, "Do you want to be healed?" <sup>7</sup> "Sir," the sick man answered, "I do not have anyone to plunge me into the pool once the water has been stirred up. By the time I get there, someone else has gone in ahead of me."<sup>8</sup> Jesus said to him, "Stand up! Pick up your mat and walk!"<sup>9</sup> The man was immediately cured; he picked up his mat and began to walk.

The day was a sabbath. <sup>10*†</sup> Consequently, some of the Jews began telling the man who had been cured, "It is the sabbath, and you are not allowed to carry that mat around."<sup>11</sup> He explained: "It was the man who cured me who told me, 'Pick up your mat and walk.'" <sup>12</sup> "This person who told you to pick it up and walk," they asked, "who is he?"<sup>13</sup> The man who had been restored to health had no idea who it was. The crowd in that place was so great that Jesus had been able to slip away.

<sup>14†</sup> Later on, Jesus found him in the temple precincts and said to him: "Remember, now, you have been cured. Give up your sins so that something worse may not overtake you."<sup>15</sup> The man went off and informed the Jews that Jesus was the one who had cured him.

Discourse on His Sabbath Work. <sup>16*</sup> It was because Jesus did things such as this on the sabbath that they began to persecute him. <sup>17†</sup> But he had an answer for them:

48: Mt 12, 38.
54: 2, 11.
5, 1: 6, 4.

10: Ex 20, 8; Jer 17,
21-27.
16: 7, 23; Mt 12, 8.

† 4, 46-52: The story of the royal official's son is probably a third version of the story of the centurion's boy (Mt 8, 5-13) or servant (Lk 7, 1-10) found in slightly different forms in the synoptic tradition. The variants are inconsequential details, of sort that could arise in oral tradition.

4, 50f53: Live: this theme of life will be commented on by Jesus in 5, 21ff.

4, 53: The author ends a section by referring back to its beginning (2, 11).

5, 1: This was probably not a winter feast or the people would not have been in open porticoes. The reference later in the discourse to Moses (5, 45f) leads some scholars to think that the feast was Pentecost (fifty days after Passover; the feast of the giving of the law to Moses on Sinai). Another suggestion is Passover. All that John emphasizes is that it was a sabbath.

5, 2: Another possible translation is "Now in Jerusalem, by the Sheep [Gate], there is a pool with the Hebrew name Bethesda." The name of the region was given to the pool as well. Variants of Bethesda are "Bethsaida" and "Be(T)zatha." This pool with its five porticoes has been excavated in recent years in the area northeast of the temple.

5, 3: Some good Western MSS, including St. Jerome's Vulgate, have the additional phrase [waiting for the movement of the water]. We may conclude from v 7 that there was an intermittent spring in the pool that bubbled up occasionally. People attributed a curative value to the turbulence produced by the spring.

5, 4: Toward the end of the second century in the West, and among the fourth-century Greek Fathers, there is knowledge of an additional verse: "For [from time to time] an angel of the Lord used to come down into the pool, and the water was stirred up, so the first one to get in [after the bubbling of the water] was healed of whatever sickness he had had." The appearance of the angel is probably a popular explanation of the turbulence and the healing powers attributed to it. This verse is missing in our best early Greek witnesses, and the earliest versions; it is not to be found in St. Jerome's original Vulgate. The vocabulary of the verse is markedly non-Johannine.

5, 10: Carrying a sleeping mat on the sabbath was specifically forbidden in rabbinic law.

5, 14: Give up your sins: Jesus never draws a one-to-one connection between sin and sickness or misfortune, cf Jn 9, 3; Lk 12, 1-5. Nevertheless he regards sickness as part of the evil introduced into the world by sin, and his mission is to destroy the kingdom of evil in all its forms (Mk 2, 8-11).

5, 17: The sabbath observance was based on God's resting after the six days of creation, but the Jewish theologians were perfectly aware that divine providence remained active on the sabbath, keeping all things in existence. It was obvious that on the sabbath God gave life in birth and took it away in death. Jesus is claiming the same right to work as the Father, and, in the discourse that follows, the same power over life and death.

"My Father is at work until now, and I am at work as well."

<sup>18</sup> The reason why the Jews were even more determined to kill him was that he not only was breaking the sabbath but, worse still, was speaking of God as his own Father, thereby making himself God's equal.

The Work of the Son

<sup>19</sup> This was Jesus' answer:

"I solemnly assure you,
the Son cannot do anything by himself—

he can do only what he sees the Father doing.

For whatever the Father does,
the Son does likewise.

<sup>20*</sup> For the Father loves the Son and everything the Father does he shows him.

Yes, to your great wonderment,
he will show him even greater works than these.

<sup>21*</sup> Indeed, just as the Father raises the dead and grants life, so the Son grants life to those to whom he wishes.

<sup>22*</sup> The Father himself judges no one,
but has assigned all judgment to the Son,

<sup>23</sup> so that all men may honor the Son just as they honor the Father.
He who refuses to honor the Son refuses to honor the Father who sent him.

<sup>24*</sup> I solemnly assure you,
the man who hears my word and has faith in him who sent me possesses eternal life.
He does not come under condemnation,

but has passed from death to life.

<sup>25*</sup> I solemnly assure you,
an hour is coming, has indeed come,
when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God,
and those who have heeded it shall live.

<sup>26*</sup> Indeed, just as the Father possesses life in himself, so has he granted it to the Son to have life in himself.

<sup>27*</sup> The Father has given over to him power to pass judgment because he is Son of Man;

<sup>28*</sup> no need for you to be surprised at this,

for an hour is coming in which all those in their tombs shall hear his voice and come forth.

<sup>29*</sup> Those who have done right shall rise to live;

the evildoers shall rise to be damned.

<sup>30*</sup> I cannot do anything of myself.
I judge as I hear,
and my judgment is honest because I am not seeking my own will but the will of him who sent me.

Witnesses to Jesus

<sup>31*</sup> "If I witness on my own behalf, you cannot verify my testimony;
<sup>32†</sup> but there is another who is testifying on my behalf, and the testimony he renders me I know can be verified.

<sup>33*</sup> You have sent to John,
who has testified to the truth.

<sup>34</sup> (Not that I myself accept such human testimony—
I refer to these things only for your salvation.)

<sup>35*†</sup> He was the lamp, set aflame and burning bright, and for a while you exulted willingly in his light.

<sup>36*</sup> Yet I have testimony greater than John's, namely, the works the Father has given me to accomplish.

These very works which I perform testify on my behalf that the Father has sent me.

<sup>37*</sup> Moreover, the Father who sent me has himself given testimony on my behalf.

His voice you have never heard,
his form you have never seen, <sup>38</sup> neither do you have his word abiding in your hearts because you do not believe the One he has sent.

<sup>39*†</sup> Search the Scriptures
in which you think you have eternal life—

they also testify on my behalf.
<sup>40</sup> Yet you are unwilling to come to me to possess that life.

20: 3, 35.

21: Dt 32, 29; 2 Kgs

5, 7; Wis 16, 13.

22: Acts 10, 42.

24: 3, 18.

25: 8, 51; 11, 25f.

26: 3, 35; 1 Jn 5, 11.

27: 5, 22; Dn 7, 13.

28: 11, 43.

29: Mt 16, 27; Acts

24, 15; 2 Cor 5,

10.

30: 6, 38.

31f: 8, 13f, 18.

33: 1, 19-27; Mt 11,

10f.

35: 1, 8; Sir 48, 1.

36: 10, 25.

37: 8, 18; Dt 4,

12, 15; 1 Jn 5, 9

39: 12, 16; 19, 28;

20, 9.

† 5, 32: Another: this is generally understood to be the Father who in four different ways gives testimony to Jesus, as indicated in the verse groupings 33f; 36; 37f; 39f.

5, 35: Lamp: this may reflect the description of Elijah in Sir 48, 1.

5, 39: Search: this may be a statement: "You search the Scriptures because you think [them] to have eternal life."

Unbelief of Jesus' Hearers

- 41† "It is not that I accept human praise—
- 42* it is simply that I know you, and you do not have the love of God in your hearts.
- 43* I have come in my Father's name, yet you do not accept me. But let someone come in his own name and him you will accept.
- 44* How can people like you believe, when you accept praise from one another yet do not seek the glory that comes from the One [God]?
- 45 Do not imagine that I will be your accuser before the Father; the one to accuse you is Moses on whom you have set your hopes.
- 46* If you believed Moses you would then believe me, for it was about me that he wrote.
- 47 But if you do not believe what he wrote, how can you believe what I say?"

CHAPTER 6

Multiplication of the Loaves at Passover. 1*† Later on, Jesus crossed the Sea of Galilee [to the shore] of Tiberias; 2 a vast crowd kept following him because they saw the signs he was performing for the sick. 3 Jesus then went up the mountain and sat down there with his disciples. 4* The Jewish feast of Passover was near; 5† when Jesus looked up and caught sight of a vast crowd coming toward him, he said to Philip, "Where shall we buy bread for these people to eat?" 6 (He knew well what he intended to do but he asked this to test Philip's response.) 7 Philip replied, "Not even with two hundred days' wages could we buy loaves enough to give each of them a mouthful!"

8 One of Jesus' disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, remarked to him, 9 "There is a lad here who has five barley loaves and a couple of dried fish, but what good is that for so many?" 10 Jesus said, "Get the people to recline." Even though the men numbered about five thousand, there was plenty of grass for them to find a place on the ground. 11* Jesus then took the loaves of bread, gave thanks, and passed them around to those reclining there; he did the same with the dried fish, as much as they wanted. 12 When they had had enough, he told his disciples, "Gather up the crusts that are left over so that nothing will go to waste." 13* At this, they gathered twelve baskets full of pieces left over by those who had been fed with the five barley loaves.

14† When the people saw the sign he had performed they began to say, "This is undoubtedly the Prophet who is to come into the world." 15* At that, Jesus realized that they would come and carry him off to make him king, so he fled back to the mountain alone.

Walking on the Sea. 16* As evening drew on, his disciples came down to the lake. 17 They embarked, intending to cross the lake toward Capernaum. By this time it was dark, and Jesus had still not joined them; 18 moreover, with a strong wind blowing, the sea was becoming rough. 19† Finally, when they had rowed three or four miles, they sighted Jesus approaching the boat, walking on the water. They were frightened, 20† but he told them, "It is I; do not be afraid." 21† They wanted to take him into the boat, but suddenly it came aground on the shore they had been approaching.

22† The crowd remained on the other side of the lake. The next day they realized that there had been only one boat there and that Jesus had not left in it with his disciples; rather, they had set out by themselves. 23† Then some boats came out from Tiberias near the place where they had eaten the bread after the Lord had given thanks. 24 Once the crowd saw that neither Jesus nor his dis-

42: 1 Jn 2, 15.	9, 10-17.
43: Mt 24, 24.	4, 2, 13; 11, 55.
44: 12, 43.	11; 21, 13.
46: 5, 39; Dt 18, 15;	13; 2 Kgs 4, 42ff.
Lk 16, 31; 24,	15; 18, 36.
44.	16-21; Mt 14, 22-33;
6, 1-13; Mt 14, 13-21;	Mk 6, 45-52.
Mk 6, 32-44; Lk

† 5, 41: Praise: the same Greek word means "praise" (from men) and "glory" (from God). There will be a play on this in v 44.

6, 1: Of Tiberias: if the bracketed clause is omitted, "Tiberias" stands in awkward apposition as another name of the lake. It was only considerably later than Jesus' time that this name was given to the lake, since the city of Tiberias was completed only just before Jesus' ministry. If the clause is left in, then the multiplication took place near Tiberias.

6, 5ff: The Gospels of John and Luke have only one account of a multiplication of loaves and fish; Mark and Matthew have two accounts.

6, 14: The Prophet: probably the prophet like Moses (see note on 1, 21). Jesus, like Moses, had fed the people miraculously.

6, 19: Walking on the water: the Greek would permit a translation "on the seashore" or "by the sea." This would eliminate the miraculous from the story and leave it pointless. In Mt 14, 24-25, it is quite clear that Jesus walked upon the sea.

6, 20: It is I: literally, "I am"—perhaps the expression intended to connote divinity; see note on 8, 24.

6, 21: It is not clear whether Jesus got into the boat, or whether the sudden arrival at the shore is presented as miraculous. Possibly both are intended.

6, 22ff: These verses have many variants in the manuscripts and are awkward and somewhat illogical. Were all five thousand transported? There may be several forms of the account combined in our present readings.

6, 23: From Tiberias near the place: it is not clear whether Tiberias is near the place or the boats came near to the place; cf v 1 and the note there.

ciples were there, they too embarked in the boats and went to Capernaum looking for Jesus.

Discourse on the Bread of Life.

<sup>25</sup> When they found him on the other side of the lake, they said to him, "Rabbi, when did you come here?" <sup>26</sup> Jesus answered them:

"I assure you,
you are not looking for me because you have seen signs
but because you have eaten your fill of the loaves.

<sup>27</sup> You should not be working for perishable food but for food that remains unto life eternal, food which the Son of Man will give you;
it is on him that God the Father has set his seal."

<sup>28</sup> At this they said to him, "What must we do to perform the works of God?"

<sup>28</sup> Jesus replied:

"This is the work of God:
have faith in the One whom he sent."

<sup>30*</sup> "So that we can put faith in you," they asked him, "what sign are you going to perform for us to see? What is the 'work' you do? <sup>31*</sup>† Our ancestors had manna to eat in the desert; according to Scripture, 'He gave them bread from the heavens to eat.'" <sup>32*</sup> Jesus said to them:

"I solemnly assure you,
it was not Moses who gave you bread from the heavens;
it is my Father who gives you the real heavenly bread.

<sup>33</sup>† God's bread comes down from heaven and gives life to the world."

<sup>34</sup> "Sir, give us this bread always," they besought him.

<sup>35*</sup>† Jesus explained to them:

"I myself am the bread of life.
No one who comes to me shall ever be hungry,
no one who believes in me shall ever thirst.

<sup>36</sup> But as I told you—though you have seen me, you still do not believe.

<sup>37</sup>† All that the Father gives me shall come to me;

<sup>38*</sup> no one who comes will I ever reject, because it is not to do my own will that I have come down from heaven, but to do the will of him who sent me.

<sup>39*</sup>† It is the will of him who sent me that I should lose nothing of what he has given me;
rather, that I should raise it up on the last day.

<sup>40*</sup> Indeed, this is the will of my Father, that everyone who looks upon the Son and believes in him shall have eternal life.
Him I will raise up on the last day."

<sup>41</sup> At this the Jews started to murmur in protest because he claimed, "I am the bread that came down from heaven."

<sup>42*</sup> They kept saying: "Is this not Jesus, the son of Joseph? Do we not know his father and mother? How can he claim to have come down from heaven?"

<sup>43</sup> "Stop your murmuring," Jesus told them.

<sup>44</sup> "No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draws him;

I will raise him up on the last day.

<sup>45*</sup> It is written in the prophets:
'They shall all be taught by God,'
Everyone who has heard the Father and learned from him comes to me.

<sup>46*</sup> Not that anyone has seen the Father—
only the one who is from God has seen the Father.

<sup>47</sup> Let me firmly assure you,
he who believes has eternal life.

<sup>48</sup> I am the bread of life.

<sup>49</sup> Your ancestors ate manna in the desert, but they died.

<sup>50</sup> This is the bread that comes down from heaven for a man to eat and never die.

<sup>51*</sup>† I myself am the living bread come down from heaven.
If anyone eats this bread
he shall live forever;

30: Mt 16, 1-4; Lk 11, 29f.	18, 9.
31: Ex 16, 4f; Ps 78, 24.	40: 1 Jn 2, 25.
32: Mt 6, 11.	42: Mt 13, 54-57; Mk 6, 1-4.
35: Is 55, 1ff.	45: Is 54, 13.
38: 4, 34; Mt 26, 39; Heb 10, 9.	46: 7, 29; Ex 33, 20.
39: 10, 28f; 17, 12;	51: Mt 26, 26f; Lk 22, 19.

† 6, 31: There is evidence that the Jews believed the miracle of the manna would be repeated in the last days; hence their challenge to discover whether these were the last days.
6, 33: God's bread comes down: the Greek is ambiguous for it literally reads, "God's bread is that which [or he who] comes down," etc.

6, 35: What does Jesus mean by "the bread of life"? Because of the emphasis on believing and teaching in vv 35-50, most scholars today think of the bread in these verses as primarily a figurative reference to Jesus' revelation or teaching. There may well be a secondary reference to the Eucharist. In vv 51-58, however, the eucharistic theme comes to the fore. Many, then, place a break in the discourse between vv 50 and 51.

6, 37, 39: All that . . . nothing: for a reason not totally clear, the evangelist uses the neuter in these verses. Some think it is a grammatical peculiarity with no special significance; others see it as a reading indicative of universality.

6, 51: The last two lines of v 51 may be compared to the Lucan eucharistic formula (22, 19): "This [bread] is my body which is given for you."

the bread I will give is my flesh, for the life of the world."

<sup>52</sup> At this the Jews quarreled among themselves, saying, "How can he give us his flesh to eat?" <sup>53</sup> Thereupon Jesus said to them:

"Let me solemnly assure you,
if you do not eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood,

you have no life in you.

<sup>54</sup> † He who feeds on my flesh and drinks my blood
has life eternal and I will raise him up on the last day.

<sup>55</sup> For my flesh is real food and my blood real drink.
<sup>56</sup> The man who feeds on my flesh
and drinks my blood
remains in me, and I in him.

<sup>57</sup> * † Just as the Father who has life sent
me
and I have life because of the Father,
so the man who feeds on me
will have life because of me.
<sup>58</sup> This is the bread that came down from heaven.
Unlike your ancestors who ate and died nonetheless,
the man who feeds on this bread shall live forever."

<sup>59</sup> He said this in a synagogue instruction at Capernaum.

Effect of the Discourse. † <sup>60</sup> After hearing his words, many of his disciples remarked, "This sort of talk is hard to endure! How can anyone take it seriously?" <sup>61</sup> Jesus was fully aware that his disciples were murmuring in protest at what he had said. "Does it shake your faith?" he asked them.

<sup>62</sup> † "What, then, if you were to see the Son of Man ascend to where he was before . . . ?

<sup>63</sup> † It is the spirit that gives life;
the flesh is useless.
The words I spoke to you are spirit and life.

<sup>64</sup> Yet among you there are some who do not believe."

(Jesus knew from the start, of course, the ones who refused to believe, and the one who would hand him over.) <sup>65</sup> † He went on to say:

"This is why I have told you that no one can come to me unless it is granted him by the Father."

<sup>66</sup> From this time on, many of his disciples broke away and would not remain in his company any longer. <sup>67</sup> Jesus then said to the Twelve, "Do you want to leave me too?" <sup>68</sup> Simon Peter answered him, "Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life. <sup>69</sup> * We have come to believe; we are convinced that you are God's holy one."

<sup>70</sup> Jesus replied, "Did I not choose the Twelve of you myself? Yet one of you is a devil." <sup>71</sup> * † (He was talking about Judas, son of Simon the Iscariot, who, though one of the Twelve, was going to hand Jesus over.)

CHAPTER 7

Feast of Booths. <sup>1</sup> After this, Jesus moved about within Galilee. He had decided not to travel in Judea because some of the Jews were looking for a chance to kill him. <sup>2</sup> * † However, as the Jewish feast of Booths drew near, <sup>3</sup> † his brothers had this to say: "You ought to leave here and go to Judea so that your disciples there may see the works you are performing. <sup>4</sup> No one who wishes to be known publicly keeps his actions hidden. If you are going to do things like these, you may as well display yourself to the world at large." <sup>5</sup> (As a matter of fact, not even his brothers had much confidence in him.) <sup>6</sup> † Jesus answered them:

"It is not yet the right time for me, whereas the time is always right for
you.

57: 5, 26,	7, 2: Lv 23, 34; Nm
69: 11, 27; Mt 16,	29, 12; Zec 14,
16,	16-19.
71: 13, 2, 27.

† 6, 54-58: Feeds: the verb that John uses in these verses is not the regular verb "to eat," but a very realistic verb with a rather crude connotation of "munch, gnaw." This may be part of John's emphasis on the reality of the flesh and blood of Jesus; cf v 55.

6, 57: Because of me: this can mean either "from me" (as the source) or "for my sake" (as the reason).

6, 60ff: These verses seem to refer more to the themes of vv 35-50, than to those of vv 51-58.

6, 62: This unfinished conditional sentence is obscure. Probably there is a reference to vv 49-51. Jesus claims to be the bread that comes down from heaven; this claim provokes incredulity (v 60); and so Jesus asks what will be said when he goes up to heaven.

6, 63: Spirit . . . flesh: probably not a reference to the eucharistic flesh of Jesus but to the supernatural and the natural, as in 3, 6.

6, 65: I have told: presumably, this is a reference to v 44 combined with v 37.

6, 71: Here and in 13, 2, 26, it is not entirely clear whether Iscariot (man from Kenoth?) modifies Judas or Simon.

7, 2: Booths: the autumn harvest feast lasting eight days, during which the people lived in huts. This was looked on as a reminiscence of their ancestors' life in tents in the desert after the Exodus. The Hebrew name for this festival and its booths is Sukloth.

7, 3: Brothers: these relatives are never portrayed as disciples until after the resurrection (Acts 1, 14). Mt 13, 55 and Mk 6, 3 give the names of four of them.

7, 6: Time: a synonym for "hour" (see 2, 4), the period of Jesus' death and resurrection. The Christian reader of the gospel understands the theological play on words; this feast does not yet mark the time of Jesus' glorification; he will not die at this time.

7 The world is incapable of hating you, but it does hate me because of the evidence I bring against it that what it does is evil.

8† Go up yourselves to the festival. I am not going up to this festival because the time is not yet ripe for me." 9 Having said this, he stayed on in Galilee. 10 However, once his brothers had gone up to the festival he too went up, but as if in secret and not for all to see.

11 During the festival, naturally, the Jews were looking for him, asking, "Where is that troublemaker?" 12 Among the crowds there was much guarded debate about him. Some maintained, "He is a good man," while others kept saying, "Not at all—he is only misleading the crowd!" 13* No one dared talk openly about him, however, for fear of the Jews.

First Episode. 14 The feast was half over by the time Jesus went into the temple area and began to teach. 15*† The Jews were filled with amazement and said, "How did this man get his education when he had no teacher?" 16 This was Jesus' answer:

"My doctrine is not my own; it comes from him who sent me.

17 Any man who chooses to do his will will know about this doctrine—namely, whether it comes from God or is simply spoken on my own.

18 Whoever speaks on his own is bent on self-glorification. The man who seeks glory for him who sent him is truthful;

there is no dishonesty in his heart.

19 Moses has given you the law, has he not?

Yet not one of you keeps it.

Why do you look for a chance to kill me?"

20*† "You are mad!" the crowd retorted. "Who wants to kill you?" 21 Jesus answered:

"I have performed a single work and you profess astonishment over it.

22* Moses gave you circumcision (though it did not originate with Moses but with the patriarchs). And so, even on a sabbath you circumcise a man.

23* If a man can be circumcised on the sabbath to prevent a violation of Mosaic law, how is it you are angry with me for curing a whole man on the sabbath?

24 Stop judging by appearances and make an honest judgment."

25 This led some of the people of Jerusalem to remark: "Is this not the one they want to kill?" 26† Here he is speaking in public and they don't say a word to him! Perhaps even the authorities have decided that this is the Messiah. 27* Still, we know where this man is from. When the Messiah comes, no one is supposed to know his origins."

28* At this, Jesus, who was teaching in the temple area, cried out:

"So you know me, and you know my origins? The truth is, I have not come of myself.

I was sent by One who has the right to send, and him you do not know.

29* I know him because it is from him I come: he sent me."

30* At this they tried to seize him, but no one laid a finger on him because his hour had not yet come. 31* Many in the crowd came to believe in him. They kept saying, "When the Messiah comes, can he be expected to perform more signs than this man?" 32 The Pharisees overheard this debate about him among the crowd, and the chief priests and Pharisees together sent temple guards to arrest him.

33* Jesus then said to them:

"Only a little while longer am I to be with you, then I am going away to him who sent me.

34* You will look for me, but you will not find me; where I am you cannot come."

35† This caused the Jews to exclaim among themselves: "Where does he intend to go that we will not find him? Surely he is not going off to the Diaspora

13: 9, 22; 12, 42.

15: Lk 2, 47.

20: 10, 20.

22: Gn 17, 10.

23: 5, 2-9; 16; Mt 12,

11f; Lk 14, 5.

27: Heb 7, 3.

28: 8, 19.

29: 6, 46; 8, 55.

30: 7, 44; 8, 20; Lk

4, 29f.

31: 2, 11; 10, 42; 11,

45.

33: 13, 33; 16, 16

34: 8, 21; Prv 1, 28.

†

7, 8: I am not going up: another play on words. "Go up" refers to his elevation in crucifixion, resurrection and ascension; cf 20, 17.

7, 15: Education: literally, "How does he know letters . . . ?" Children were taught to read and write by means of the Scriptures. But here more than Jesus' literacy is being discussed; the people are wondering how he can teach like a rabbi. Rabbis were trained by other rabbis and loved to quote their teachers.

7, 20: Mad: literally, "You have a demon." The insane were thought to possess or be possessed by a demonic spirit. One has to determine from the context whether the charge in our terms is one of insanity or of possession.

7, 26: Authorities: the Sanhedrin members; the same term is used to describe Nicodemus (3, 1).

7, 35: Diaspora: the Jews living outside Palestine. Greeks: probably refers to the Gentiles in the Mediterranean area. cf 12, 20.

among the Greeks, to teach them?<sup>36</sup> What does he mean by saying, 'You will look for me, but you will not find me,' and, 'Where I am you cannot come'?"

Second Episode. <sup>37†</sup> On the last and greatest day of the festival, Jesus stood up and cried out:

"If anyone thirsts, let him come to me;

let him drink <sup>38*</sup> who believes in me. Scripture has it:

'From within him rivers of living water shall flow.'

<sup>39*†</sup> (Here he was referring to the Spirit, whom those that came to believe in him were to receive. There was, of course, no Spirit as yet, since Jesus had not yet been glorified.)

<sup>40</sup> Some in the crowd who heard these words began to say, "This must be the Prophet."<sup>41</sup> Others were claiming, "He is the Messiah." But an objection was raised: "Surely the Messiah is not to come from Galilee?" <sup>42*</sup> Does not Scripture say that the Messiah, being of David's family, is to come from Bethlehem, the village where David lived?"

<sup>43</sup> In this fashion the crowd was sharply divided over him. <sup>44</sup> Some of them even wanted to apprehend him. However, no one laid hands on him.

<sup>45</sup> When the temple guards came back, the chief priests and Pharisees asked them, "Why did you not bring him in?"

<sup>46</sup> "No man ever spoke like that before," the guards replied. <sup>47</sup> "Do not tell us you too have been taken in!" the Pharisees retorted. <sup>48</sup> "You do not see any of the Sanhedrin believing in him, do you? Or the Pharisees?" <sup>49</sup> Only this lot, that knows nothing about the law—and they are lost anyway!" <sup>50*</sup> One of their own number, Nicodemus (the man who had come to him), spoke up to say, <sup>51*</sup> "Since when does our law condemn any man without first hearing him and knowing the facts?" <sup>52</sup> "Do not tell us you are a Galilean too," they taunted him. "Look it up. You will not find the Prophet coming from Galilee."

CHAPTER 8

The Adulteress. † <sup>7:53</sup> [Then each went off to his own house, <sup>1*</sup> while Jesus went out to the Mount of Olives. <sup>2</sup> At daybreak he reappeared in the temple area; and when the people started coming to him, he sat down and began to teach them. <sup>3</sup> The scribes and the Pharisees led a woman forward who had been caught in adultery. They made her stand there in front of everyone. <sup>4</sup> "Teacher," they said to him, "this woman has been caught in the act of adultery. <sup>5*</sup> In the law, Moses ordered such women to be stoned. What do you have to say about the case?" <sup>6†</sup> (They were posing this question to trap him, so that they could have something to accuse him of.) Jesus bent down and started tracing on the ground with his finger. <sup>7*</sup> When they persisted in their questioning, he straightened up and said to them, "Let the man among you who has no sin be the first to cast a stone at her."<sup>8</sup> A second time he bent down and wrote on the ground. <sup>9</sup> Then the audience drifted away one by one, beginning with the elders. This left him alone with the woman, who continued to stand there before him. <sup>10*</sup> Jesus finally straightened up and said to her, "Woman, where did they all disappear to? Has no one condemned you?" <sup>11*</sup> "No one, sir," she answered. Jesus said, "Nor do I condemn you. You may go. But from now on, avoid this sin.]"

Third Episode. <sup>12*</sup> Jesus spoke to them once again:

"I am the light of the world.

No follower of mine shall ever walk in darkness;

no, he shall possess the light of life."

<sup>13</sup> This caused the Pharisees to break in with: "You are your own witness. Such testimony cannot be valid." <sup>14*</sup> Jesus answered:

"What if I am my own witness?
My testimony is valid nonetheless,

38: 4, 10, 14; 19, 34;	5: Lv 20, 10; Dt 22,
Is 12, 3.	22ff.
39: 16, 7.	7: Mt 7, 1-5.
42: 2 Sm 7, 12; Ps	10: Ez 33, 11.
89, 4f; Mi 5, 1;	11: 5, 14.
Mt 2, 5f.	12: 1, 5, 9; 12, 46; Ex
50: 3, 1; 19, 39.	13, 22; Is 42, 6.
51: Dt 1, 16f.	14: 5, 31.
8, 1f; Lk 2, 37f.

†

7, 37f: Last and greatest day: probably the seventh day, since the eighth was a day of rest after the feast. There is some MS evidence for the omission of greatest as a copyist's clarification.

The translation given makes Christ the source of the living water. Another reading is possible which makes the believer himself the source; in that case a period is placed after drink and what remains becomes an independent sentence, "He who believes in me," etc. Scripture has it is not an exact citation of any passage. Perhaps the reference is to the rock that Moses tapped during the Exodus. From within him: literally, "from his belly."

7, 39: No spirit as yet: in relation to the Christian, the sending of the Spirit was not to take place until Jesus' death, resurrection, and ascension; cf 20, 22.

7, 53ff: The story of the adulteress is missing from the best early Greek MSS. Where it does appear, it is found in different places in different MSS: here, or after 7, 36; or at the end of this gospel; or after Lk 21, 38. It seems to have been preserved largely in Western and Latin circles. There are many non-Johannine features in the language, and there are also many doubtful readings. It appears in Jerome's Vulgate. However, it is certainly out of place here; it fits better with the general situation in Lk 21, 38. The Catholic Church accepts it as inspired Scripture.

8, 6: Tracing: or "writing" or "recording"; whether Jesus was writing something meaningful is not clear.

because I know where I came from and where I am going; you know neither the one nor the other.

15*† You pass judgment according to appearances but I pass judgment on no man.

16*† Even if I do judge, that judgment of mine is valid because I am not alone: I have at my side the One who sent me [the Father].

17* It is laid down in your law that evidence given by two persons is valid.

18* I am one of those testifying in my behalf, the Father who sent me is the other."

19* They pressed him: "And where is this 'Father' of yours?" Jesus replied:

"You know neither me nor my Father. If you knew me, you would know my Father too."

20* He spoke these words while teaching at the temple treasury. Still, he went unapprehended, because his hour had not yet come.

Warning to Unbelievers. 21* Again he said to them:

"I am going away. You will look for me but you will die in your sins. Where I am going you cannot come."

22 At this some of the Jews began to ask, "Does he mean he will kill himself when he claims, 'Where I am going you cannot come'?" 23* He went on:

"You belong to what is below; I belong to what is above. You belong to this world—a world which cannot hold me.

24† That is why I said you would die in your sins. You will surely die in your sins unless you come to believe that I AM."

25*† "Who are you, then?" they asked him. Jesus answered:

"What I have been telling you from the beginning.

26* I could say much about you in condemnation, but no, I only tell the world what I have heard from him, the truthful One who sent me."

27 They did not grasp that he was speaking to them of the Father. 28* Jesus continued:

"When you lift up the Son of Man, you will come to realize that I AM and that I do nothing by myself.

I say only what the Father has taught me.

29 The One who sent me is with me. He has not deserted me since I always do what pleases him."

30 Because he spoke this way, many came to believe in him.

Jesus and Abraham. 31 Jesus then went on to say to those Jews who believed in him:

"If you live according to my teaching,

32* you are truly my disciples; then you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free."

33* "We are descendants of Abraham," was their answer. "Never have we been slaves to anyone. What do you mean by saying, 'You will be free'?" 34 Jesus answered them:

"I give you my assurance, everyone who lives in sin is the slave of sin.

35* (No slave has a permanent place in the family, but the son has a place there forever.)

36 That is why, if the son frees you, you will really be free.

37† I realize you are one of Abraham's stock.

Nonetheless, you are trying to kill me because my word finds no hearing among you.

38† I tell you what I have seen in the Father's presence; you do what you have heard from your father."

15: 12, 47.

16: 5, 30.

17: Dt 17, 6; 19, 15;

Nm 35, 30.

18: 5, 23, 37.

19: 7, 28; 14, 7, 15,

21.

20: 7, 30.

21: 7, 34; 13, 33.

23: 3, 31; 17, 14, 18.

36.

25: 10, 24.

26: 12, 50.

28: 3, 14; 12, 34.

32: Is 42, 7; Gal 4,

31.

33: Mt 3, 9.

35: Gn 21, 10; Gal

4, 30.

†

8, 15: Appearances: literally, "according to the flesh."

8, 16: The last line is literally, "but I and the One who sent me [the Father]."

8, 24, 28: I AM: an expression which late Jewish tradition understands as a name for God; cf 8, 58.

8, 25: What I have been telling you from the beginning: this is a very unclear verse and several other translations are possible: (I am) "what I say to you"; "How is it that I speak to you at all?" The earliest attested reading (Bodmer Papyrus P 66) has, "I told you at the beginning what I am also telling you (now)."

8, 37: Finds no hearing: or "finds no place in you"; "does not continue in you"; "takes no hold in you."

8, 38: The translation given in the last understands the second part of the verse to be a sarcastic reference to the descent of the Jews from their father, the devil. There are good grounds, however, for another translation in which (as in the first part of the verse) father means God: "you should do what you have heard from the Father."

<sup>39</sup> They retorted, "Our father is Abraham." Jesus told them:

"If you were Abraham's children, you would be following Abraham's example.

<sup>40</sup>† The fact is, you are trying to kill me, a man who has told you the truth which I have heard from God. Abraham did nothing like that.

<sup>41</sup>† Indeed you are doing your father's works!"

They cried, "We are no illegitimate breed! We have but one father and that is God himself." <sup>42</sup>* Jesus answered:

"Were God your father you would love me, for I came forth from God, and am here.

I did not come of my own will; it was he who sent me

<sup>43</sup> Why do you not understand what I say?

It is because you cannot bear to hear my word.

<sup>44</sup>*† The father you spring from is the devil, and willingly you carry out his wishes.

He brought death to man from the beginning, and has never based himself on truth;

the truth is not in him. Lying speech is his native tongue; he is a liar and the father of lies.

<sup>45</sup> But because I deal in the truth, you give me no credence.

<sup>46</sup>* Can any one of you convict me of sin?

If I am telling the truth, why do you not believe me?

<sup>47</sup>* Whoever is of God hears every word God speaks. The reason you do not hear is that you are not of God."

<sup>48</sup>† The Jews answered, "Are we not right after all, in saying you are a Samaritan, and possessed besides?"

<sup>49</sup> Jesus replied:

"I am not possessed. However, I revere my Father, while you fail to respect me.

<sup>50</sup>* I seek no glory for myself; there is one who seeks it, and it is he who judges.

<sup>51</sup>* I solemnly assure you, if a man is true to my word he shall never see death."

<sup>52</sup> "Now we are sure you are possessed," the Jews retorted. "Abraham is dead. The prophets are dead. Yet you claim, 'A man shall never know death if he keeps my word.'" <sup>53</sup>* Surely you do not pretend to be greater than our father Abraham, who died! Or the prophets, who died! Whom do you make yourself out to be?" <sup>54</sup> Jesus answered:

"If I glorify myself, that glory comes to nothing.

He who gives me glory is the Father, the very one you claim for your God, even though you do not know him. But I know him.

<sup>55</sup>* Were I to say I do not know him, I would be no better than you—a liar! Yes, I know him well, and I keep his word.

<sup>56</sup>*† Your father Abraham rejoiced that he might see my day. He saw it and was glad."

<sup>57</sup>† At this the Jews objected: "You are not yet fifty! How can you have seen Abraham?" <sup>58</sup>* Jesus answered them:

"I solemnly declare it: before Abraham came to be, I AM."

<sup>59</sup>* At that they picked up rocks to throw at Jesus, but he hid himself and slipped out of the temple precincts.

CHAPTER 9

The Man Born Blind. <sup>1</sup>*† As he walked along, he saw a man who had been blind from birth. <sup>2</sup> His disciples asked him, "Rabbi, was it his sin or that of his parents that caused him to be born blind?"

<sup>3</sup>* "Neither," answered Jesus:

"It was no sin, either of this man or of his parents.

42: 1 Jn 5, 1.	40.47, 11, 25f.
44: 3, 1f; Wis 1, 13;	53: 4, 12.
2, 24; Acts 13,	55: 7, 28f.
10; 1 Jn 3, 8-15.	56: Mt 13, 17; Lk 17,
46: Heb 4, 15; 1 Pt	22.
2, 22.	58: 1, 30; 17, 5.
47: 10, 26; 1 Jn 4,	59: 10, 31.39; 11, 8;
6.	Lk 4, 29f.
50: 7, 18.	9, 1f; Is 42, 7.
51: 5, 24-29; 6,	3: 11, 4.

† 8, 40: Nowhere else in the New Testament is Jesus described as a man in this broad sense. Probably the phrase is a Semitic expression for "someone."

8, 41: Illegitimate: literally, "of fornication"; in the Old Testament, fornication signifies the worship of false gods.

8, 44: The father of lies: literally, "of him [i.e., the liar]" or "of it [i.e., the lie]."

8, 48: Samaritan: the Samaritans were noted for an interest in magical powers; see Simon Magus in Acts 7, 14-24.

8, 56: He saw it: presumably this is a reference to the birth of Jacob (Israel), which was the beginning of the fulfillment of the promises concerning Abraham's seed; see Gn 17, 7 and 21, 6. But there may also be a reference to a popular Jewish tradition that Abraham saw all of his descendants.

8, 57: There is equally good evidence for reading: "How can Abraham have seen you?"

9, 1: It is difficult to be certain where or when this scene took place. The similarity of 9, 5 and 8, 12 may indicate that the scene is also part of the "Booths" setting. The next time indication is in 10, 22, three months after the feast of Booths. The evangelist may have given to this story a secondary baptismal symbolism by stressing that the man was born blind and was healed by the waters of the pool (v 7).

Rather, it was to let God's works show forth in him.

- 4* We must do the deeds of him who sent me while it is day. The night comes on when no one can work.
- 5* While I am in the world I am the light of the world."

6* With that Jesus spat on the ground, made mud with his saliva, and smeared the man's eyes with the mud. 7† Then he told him, "Go, wash in the pool of Siloam." (This name means "One who has been sent.") So the man went off and washed, and came back able to see.

8 His neighbors and the people who had been accustomed to see him begging began to ask, "Isn't this the fellow who used to sit and beg?" 9 Some were claiming it was he; others maintained it was not but someone who looked like him. The man himself said, "I am the one." 10 They said to him then, "How were your eyes opened?" 11 He answered: "That man they call Jesus made mud and smeared it on my eyes, telling me to go to Siloam and wash. When I did go and wash, I was able to see." 12 "Where is he?" they asked. He replied, "I have no idea."

13 Next, they took the man who had been born blind to the Pharisees. 14† (Note that it was on a sabbath that Jesus had made the mud paste and opened his eyes.) 15 The Pharisees, in turn, began to inquire how he had recovered his sight. He told them, "He put mud on my eyes. I washed it off, and now I can see." 16* This prompted some of the Pharisees to assert, "This man cannot be from God because he does not keep the sabbath." Others objected, "If a man is a sinner, how can he perform signs like these?" They were sharply divided over him. 17 Then they addressed the blind man again: "Since it was your eyes he opened, what do you have to say about him?" "He is a prophet," he replied.

18 The Jews refused to believe that he had really been born blind and had begun to see, until they summoned the parents of this man who now could see. 19 "Is this your son?" they asked, "and if so, do you attest that he was blind at birth? How do you account for the fact that now he can see?" 20 The parents answered: "We know this is our son, and we know he was blind at birth. 21 But how he can see now, or who opened his eyes, we have no idea. Ask him. He is old enough to speak for himself." 22*† (His parents answered in this fashion because they were afraid of the Jews, who had already agreed among themselves that anyone who acknowledged Jesus as the Messiah would be put out of the synagogue. 23* That was why his parents said, "He is of age—ask him.")

24† A second time they summoned the man who had been born blind and said to him, "Give glory to God! First of all, we know this man is a sinner." 25 "I do not know whether he is a sinner or not," he answered. "I know this much: I was blind before; now I can see." 26 They persisted: "Just what did he do to you? How did he open your eyes?" 27 "I have told you once, but you would not listen to me," he answered them. "Why do you want to hear it all over again? Do not tell me you want to become his disciples too?" 28 They retorted scornfully: "You are the one who is that man's disciple. We are disciples of Moses. 29 We know that God spoke to Moses, but we have no idea where this man comes from." 30 He came back at them: "Well, this is news! You do not know where he comes from, yet he opened my eyes. 31* We know that God does not hear sinners, but that if someone is devout and obeys his will, he listens to him. 32 It is unheard of that anyone ever gave sight to a person blind from birth. 33 If this man were not from God, he could never have done such a thing." 34 "What!" they exclaimed, "You are steeped in sin from your birth, and you are giving us lectures?" With that they threw him out bodily.

35 When Jesus heard of his expulsion, he sought him out and asked him, "Do you believe in the Son of Man?" 36 He answered, "Who is he, sir, that I may believe in him?" 37* "You have seen him," Jesus replied. "He is speaking to you now." [38]† ["I do believe, Lord," he said, and bowed down to worship him. 39* Then Jesus said:]

"I came into this world to divide it, to make the sightless see and the seeing blind."

40* Some of the Pharisees around him

4: 11, 9f; 12, 35f.	22: 7, 13.
5: 8, 12.	23: 12, 42.
6: 5, 11; Mk 7, 33;	31: 10, 21.
8, 23.	37: 4, 26.
16: 3, 2; Mt 12, 10f;	39: Mt 13, 13f.
Lk 13, 10f; 14,	40: Mt 15, 14; 23,
1-4.	26; Rom 2, 19.

† 9, 7: One who has been sent: a reference to Jesus, sent by the Father.

9, 14: In using spittle, and in kneading mud, Jesus had broken the sabbath rules laid down by the scribes.

9, 22†: This parenthetical explanation seems to envisage a situation during the writer's lifetime after Jesus' ministry. Rejection from the synagogue of those Jews who confessed Jesus as the Messiah seems to have begun in the late eighties, when the curse against the minim or heretics was introduced.

9, 24: Give glory to God: this oath formula before taking testimony is attested in Jos 7, 19.

9, 38: This verse, omitted in important MSS, may be an addition from a baptismal liturgy.

picked this up, saying, "You are not calling us blind, are you?"<sup>41</sup> To which Jesus replied:

"If you were blind there would be no sin in that. 'But we see,' you say, and your sin remains.

CHAPTER 10

The Good Shepherd

1*† "Truly I assure you: Whoever does not enter the sheep-fold through the gate but climbs in some other way is a thief and a marauder.
 2 The one who enters through the gate is shepherd of the sheep;
 3 the keeper opens the gate for him. The sheep hear his voice as he calls his own by name and leads them out.
 4* When he has brought out [all] those that are his, he walks in front of them, and the sheep follow him because they recognize his voice.
 5 They will not follow a stranger; such a one they will flee, because they do not recognize a stranger's voice."

6† Even though Jesus used this figure with them, they did not grasp what he was trying to tell them. † He therefore said [to them again]:

"My solemn word is this: I am the sheeppate.

8 All who came before me were thieves and marauders whom the sheep did not heed.
 9* I am the gate. Whoever enters through me will be safe. He will go in and out, and find pasture.
 10 The thief comes only to steal and slaughter and destroy, I came that they might have life and have it to the full.
 11*† I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd lays down his life for the sheep.
 12* The hired hand—who is no shepherd nor owner of the sheep—catches sight of the wolf coming and runs away, leaving the sheep to be snatched and scattered by the wolf.
 13 That is because he works for pay; he has no concern for the sheep.
 14 "I am the good shepherd. I know my sheep and my sheep know me

15 in the same way that the Father knows me and I know the Father; for these sheep I will give my life.
 16*† I have other sheep that do not belong to this fold. I must lead them, too, and they shall hear my voice. There shall be one flock then, one shepherd.
 17* The Father loves me for this: that I lay down my life to take it up again.
 18* No one takes it from me; I lay it down freely. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it up again. This command I received from my Father."

19 Because of these words, the Jews were sharply divided once more. 20* Many were claiming: "He is possessed by a devil—out of his mind! Why pay any attention to him?" 21* Others maintained: "These are not the words of a madman. Surely a devil cannot open the eyes of the blind!"

Feast of the Dedication. 22*† It was winter, and the time came for the feast of the Dedication in Jerusalem. 23† Jesus was walking in the temple area, in Solomon's Portico, 24*† when the Jews gath-

10, 1-5: Jer 23, 1ff; Ez 34, 1-31.	14f.
4: Mt 2, 12f.	17: Heb 10, 10.
9: Ps 23, 1ff; Is 49, 9f.	18: 19, 11.
11: Heb 13, 20.	20: 7, 20; 8, 48.
12: Zec 11, 17.	21: 3, 2.
16: Jer 23, 3; Eph 2,	22: 1 Mc 4, 54, 59.
	24: Lk 22, 67.

† 10, 1: The exact time when these parables were spoken is difficult to determine—whether at the feast of Booths, as in chapters 7—9, or at the feast of the Dedication, as in 10, 22; but they continue the theme of attack on the Pharisees that ends chapter 9.

10, 6: Figure: John uses a different word for illustrative speech than the "parable" of the synoptics, but the idea is the same.

10, 7-10: In 7f, the figure is of a gate for the shepherd to come to the sheep; in 9f, of a gate for the sheep to go in and out.

10, 11, 14: The normal Greek word for good does not occur here. Were not the expression good shepherd traditional, it might be preferable to translate "model" or "noble" shepherd.

10, 16: Other sheep: the Gentiles, God's dispersed children destined to be gathered into one (11, 52). One flock: St. Jerome in the Vulgate translates "one fold," but there is no evidence in Greek or Latin to support this reading. Translating the Greek word as "sheep-hard" would bring out the wordplay involved as the Greek terms for "flock" and "shepherd" are as much alike as "sheep-hard" and "shepherd."

10, 22: Feast of the Dedication: held in December, three months after the feast of Booths (7, 2), to celebrate the Mac-cabees' rededication of the altar and reconsecration of the temple in 164 B.C., after their desecration by the Syrians (1 Mc 4, 36-59). Under its Hebrew name, Hanukkah, this feast is still a regular part of Jewish religious observance.

10, 23: Solomon's Portico was on the east side of the temple area and would offer protection from the cold winds sweeping in from the desert.

10, 24: Keep us in suspense: the literal translation of the words is "How long will you take away our life?" Cf 11, 48f.

ered around him and said, "How long are you going to keep us in suspense? If you really are the Messiah, tell us so in plain words." <sup>25*</sup> Jesus answered:

"I did tell you, but you do not believe. The works I do in my Father's name give witness in my favor, <sup>26*</sup> but you refuse to believe because you are not my sheep.

<sup>27</sup> My sheep hear my voice. I know them, and they follow me.

<sup>28*</sup> I give them eternal life, and they shall never perish. No one shall snatch them out of my hand.

<sup>29*†</sup> My Father is greater than all, in what he has given me, and there is no snatching out of his hand.

<sup>30*</sup> The Father and I are one."

<sup>31*</sup> When some of the Jews again reached for rocks to stone him, <sup>32</sup> Jesus protested to them, "Many good deeds have I shown you from the Father. For which of these do you stone me?" <sup>33*</sup> "It is not for any 'good deed' that we are stoning you," the Jews retorted, "but for blaspheming. You who are only a man are making yourself God." <sup>34*†</sup> Jesus answered:

"Is it not written in your law, 'I have said, You are gods'?
<sup>35</sup> If it calls those men gods to whom God's word was addressed—and Scripture cannot lose its force—<sup>36*†</sup> do you claim that I blasphemed when, as he whom the Father consecrated and sent into the world, I said, 'I am God's Son'?

<sup>37</sup> If I do not perform my Father's works,

<sup>38*</sup> but if I do perform them, even though you put no faith in me, put faith in these works, so as to realize what it means that the Father is in me and I in him."

<sup>39</sup> At these words they again tried to arrest him, but he eluded their grasp.

Return to the Jordan. <sup>40*</sup> Then he went back across the Jordan to the place where John had been baptizing earlier, and while he stayed there <sup>41</sup> many people came to him. "John may never have performed a sign," they commented, "but whatever John said about this man was true." <sup>42</sup> In that place, many came to believe in him.

CHAPTER 11

The Raising of Lazarus. <sup>1*†</sup> There was a certain man named Lazarus who was sick. He was from Bethany, the village of Mary and her sister Martha. <sup>2</sup> (This Mary whose brother Lazarus was sick was the one who anointed the Lord with perfume and dried his feet with her hair.) <sup>3</sup> The sisters sent word to Jesus to inform him, "Lord, the one you love is sick." <sup>4</sup> Upon hearing this, Jesus said:

"This sickness is not to end in death; rather it is for God's glory, that through it the Son of God may be glorified."

<sup>5</sup> Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus very much. <sup>6</sup> Yet, after hearing that Lazarus was sick, he stayed on where he was for two days more. <sup>7</sup> Finally he said to his disciples, "Let us go back to Judea." <sup>8*</sup> "Rabbi," protested the disciples, "with the Jews only recently trying to stone you, you are going back up there again?" <sup>9*</sup> Jesus answered:

"Are there not twelve hours of daylight?"

If a man goes walking by day he does not stumble because he sees the world bathed in light.

<sup>10†</sup> But if he goes walking at night he will stumble since there is no light in him."

<sup>11</sup> After uttering these words, he added, "Our beloved Lazarus has fallen asleep, but I am going there to wake him." <sup>12</sup> At this the disciples objected, "Lord, if he is asleep his life will be saved." <sup>13*</sup> Jesus had been speaking about his death, but they thought he meant sleep in the sense of slumber. <sup>14</sup> Finally Jesus said plainly: "Lazarus is dead. <sup>15</sup> For your sakes I am glad I was not there, that you may come

25: 5, 36.	36: 5, 18.
26: 8, 47.	38: 14, 10f.20.
28: Dt 32, 39.	40: 1, 28.
29: Wis 3, 1; Is 43, 13.	11, 1f; 12, 1-8; Lk 10, 38f.
30: 1, 1; 12, 45; 14, 9.	8: 8, 59; 10, 31.
31: 8, 59.	9f; 12, 35; 1 Jn 2, 10.
33: 5, 18; 19, 7.	9: 8, 12; 9, 4.
34: Ps 82, 6.	13: Mt 9, 24.

† 10, 29: The textual evidence for the first clause is very divided; it may also be translated: "As for the Father, what he has given me is greater than all."

10, 34: This is a reference to the judges who, since they exercised the divine prerogative to judge (Dt 1, 17), were called "gods"; cf Ex 21, 6, besides Ps 82, 6 from which the quotation comes.

10, 36: Consecrated: may be a reference to the theme of the Hanukkah feast; see note on 10, 22. In place of the rededicated temple altar, Jesus is consecrated by the Father.

11, 1: Bethany: a town near Jerusalem (v 18), distinct from Bethany in the Transjordan (1, 28). Among the synopses, only Luke (10, 38) writes of Mary and Martha, but he locates the scene involving them in the journey from Galilee toward Jerusalem.

11, 10: No light in him: the ancient Palestinians apparently did not grasp clearly the entry of light through the eye, but seem to have thought of it as being in the eye; cf Lk 11, 34; Mt 6, 23.

to believe. In any event, let us go to him."<sup>16†</sup> Then Thomas (the name means "Twin") said to his fellow disciples, "Let us go along, to die with him."

<sup>17</sup> When Jesus arrived at Bethany, he found that Lazarus had already been in the tomb four days. <sup>18</sup> The village was not far from Jerusalem—just under two miles—<sup>19*</sup> and many Jewish people had come out to console Martha and Mary over their brother. <sup>20</sup> When Martha heard that Jesus was coming she went to meet him, while Mary sat at home. <sup>21*</sup> Martha said to Jesus, "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would never have died. <sup>22</sup> Even now, I am sure that God will give you whatever you ask of him." <sup>23</sup> "Your brother will rise again," Jesus assured her. <sup>24*</sup> "I know he will rise again," Martha replied, "in the resurrection on the last day." <sup>25*</sup> Jesus told her:

"I am the resurrection and the life: <sup>26</sup> whoever believes in me, though he should die, will come to life; and whoever is alive and believes in me will never die.

Do you believe this?" <sup>27*</sup> "Yes, Lord," she replied. "I have come to believe that you are the Messiah, the Son of God: he who is to come into the world."

<sup>28</sup> When she had said this she went back and called her sister Mary. "The Teacher is here, asking for you," she whispered. <sup>29</sup> As soon as Mary heard this, she got up and started out in his direction. <sup>30</sup> (Actually Jesus had not yet come into the village but was still at the spot where Martha had met him.) <sup>31</sup> The Jews who were in the house with Mary consoling her saw her get up quickly and go out, so they followed her, thinking she was going to the tomb to weep there. <sup>32</sup> When Mary came to the place where Jesus was, seeing him, she fell at his feet and said to him, "Lord, if you had been here my brother would never have died." <sup>33†</sup> When Jesus saw her weeping, and the Jews who had accompanied her also weeping, he was troubled in spirit, moved by the deepest emotions.

<sup>34</sup> "Where have you laid him?" he asked. "Lord, come and see," they said. <sup>35*</sup> Jesus began to weep, <sup>36</sup> which caused the Jews to remark, "See how much he loved him!" <sup>37</sup> But some said, "He opened the eyes of that blind man. Why could he not have done something to stop this man from dying?" <sup>38</sup> Once again troubled in spirit, Jesus approached the tomb.

It was a cave with a stone laid across it. <sup>39</sup> "Take away the stone," Jesus directed. Martha, the dead man's sister, said to him, "Lord, it has been four days now; surely there will be a stench!"

<sup>40</sup> Jesus replied, "Did I not assure you that if you believed you would see the glory of God displayed?" <sup>41</sup> They then took away the stone and Jesus looked upward and said:

"Father, I thank you for having heard me.

<sup>42*</sup> I know that you always hear me but I have said this for the sake of the crowd, that they may believe that you sent me."

<sup>43</sup> Having said this, he called loudly, "Lazarus, come out!" <sup>44</sup> The dead man came out, bound head and foot with linen strips, his face wrapped in a cloth. "Untie him," Jesus told them, "and let him go free."

Session of the Sanhedrin. <sup>45</sup> This caused many of the Jews who had come to visit Mary, and had seen what Jesus did, to put their faith in him. <sup>46</sup> Some others, however, went to the Pharisees and reported what Jesus had done. <sup>47*†</sup> The result was that the chief priests and the Pharisees called a meeting of the Sanhedrin. "What are we to do," they said, "with this man performing all sorts of signs? <sup>48</sup> If we let him go on like this, the whole world will believe in him. Then the Romans will come in and sweep away our sanctuary and our nation." <sup>49*†</sup> One of their number named Caiaphas, who was high priest that year, addressed them at this point: "You have no understanding whatever! <sup>50†</sup> Can you not see that it is better for you to have one man die [for the people] than to have the whole nation destroyed?" <sup>51</sup> (He did not say this on his own. It was rather as high priest for that year that he prophesied that Jesus would die for the nation—<sup>52</sup> and not for this nation only, but to gather into one all the dispersed children of God.)

<sup>53*</sup> From that day onward there was

19: 12, 9, 17f.	47: 12, 19; Mt 26,
21: 11, 32.	3ff; Lk 22, 2;
24: 5, 29.	Acts 4, 16.
25: 5, 24; 8, 51.	49f: 18, 13f.
27: 1, 9; 6, 69.	53: 5, 18; 7, 1; Mt
35: Lk 19, 41.	12, 14.
42: 12, 30.

† 11, 16: The name means "Twin"; or "Thomas, the one called Didymus." "Thomas" is derived from the Hebrew word for twin; "Didymus," a Greek personal name of the time, from the Greek word for twin.

11, 33: He was troubled in spirit . . . deepest emotions: probably signifies that Jesus was angry, perhaps at the lack of faith or at the presence of evil (death).

11, 47: What are we to do?: could be the rhetorical "Why are we doing nothing?"

11, 49: The year: emphasizes the conjunction of the office and the year. The Jews attributed a gift of prophecy, sometimes unconscious, to the high priest.

11, 50: For the people: this phrase is omitted in some impressive patristic witnesses, and may be a gloss. If it is original, Caiaphas meant "in place of the people"; but in v 51, John takes it to mean "on behalf of."

a plan afoot to kill him. <sup>54</sup>† In consequence, Jesus no longer moved about freely in Jewish circles. He withdrew instead to a town called Ephraim in the region near the desert, where he stayed with his disciples.

The Last Passover. <sup>55</sup>* The Jewish Passover was near, which meant that many people from the country went up to Jerusalem for Passover purification. <sup>56</sup> They were on the lookout for Jesus, various people in the temple vicinity saying to each other, "What do you think? Is he likely to come for the feast?" <sup>57</sup> (The chief priests and the Pharisees had given orders that anyone who knew where he was should report it, so that they could apprehend him.)

CHAPTER 12

Anointing at Bethany. <sup>1</sup>* Six days before Passover Jesus came to Bethany, the village of Lazarus whom Jesus had raised from the dead. <sup>2</sup>* There they gave him a banquet, at which Martha served. Lazarus was one of those at table with him. <sup>3</sup>*† Mary brought a pound of costly perfume made from genuine aromatic nard, with which she anointed Jesus' feet. Then she dried his feet with her hair, and the house was filled with the ointment's fragrance. <sup>4</sup> Judas Iscariot, one of his disciples (the one about to hand him over), protested: <sup>5</sup>† "Why was not this perfume sold? It could have brought three hundred silver pieces, and the money have been given to the poor." <sup>6</sup>* (He did not say this out of concern for the poor, but because he was a thief. He held the purse, and used to help himself to what was deposited there.) <sup>7</sup>† To this Jesus replied: "Leave her alone. Let her keep it against the day they prepare me for burial. <sup>8</sup> The poor you always have with you, but me you will not always have."

<sup>9</sup>*† The great crowd of Jews discovered he was there and came out, not only because of Jesus but also to see Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead. <sup>10</sup> The fact was, the chief priests planned to kill Lazarus too, <sup>11</sup>* because many Jews were going over to Jesus and believing in him on account of Lazarus.

Entry into Jerusalem. <sup>12</sup>* The next day the great crowd that had come for the feast heard that Jesus was to enter Jerusalem, <sup>13</sup>*† so they got palm branches and came out to meet him. They kept shouting:

"Hosanna!

Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!

Blessed is the king of Israel!"

<sup>14</sup> Jesus found a donkey and mounted it, in accord with Scripture:

<sup>15</sup>* "Fear not, O daughter of Zion! Your king approaches you on a donkey's colt."

<sup>16</sup>* (At first, the disciples did not understand all this, but after Jesus was glorified they recalled that the people had done to him precisely what had been written about him.)

<sup>17</sup>† The crowd that was present when he called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead kept testifying to it. <sup>18</sup> The crowd came out to meet him because they heard he had performed this sign. <sup>19</sup>*† The Pharisees remarked to one another, "See, there is nothing you can do! The whole world has run after him."

The Coming of Jesus' Hour.

<sup>20</sup>† Among those who had come up to worship at the feast were some Greeks. <sup>21</sup>* They approached Philip, who was from Bethsaida in Galilee, and put this request to him: "Sir, we should like to see Jesus." <sup>22</sup>* Philip went to tell Andrew; Philip and Andrew in turn came to inform Jesus. <sup>23</sup>* Jesus answered them:

55: 2, 13; 5, 1; 6, 4; 18, 28.	11, 1-10; Lk 19, 28-40.
12, 1-11: Mt 26, 6-13; Mk 14, 3-9.	13: 1, 49; Ps 118, 26; Rv 7, 9.
1f: 11, 1.	26; Zec 9, 9.
2: Lk 10, 38ff.	16: 2, 22.
3: 11, 2.	19: 11, 47f; Mt 21, 16.
6: 13, 29.	21: 1, 43.
9: 11, 19.	22: 1, 40.
11: 11, 45.	23: 2, 4.
12-19: Mt 21, 1-16; Mk

†

11, 54: Ephraim is usually located about twelve miles north-east of Jerusalem, as the mountains descend into the Jordan valley.

12, 1ff: This is probably the same scene of anointing that we find in Mk 14, 3-9. The anointing reported in Lk 7, 36-38 is part of a different scene. Details from these various episodes may have become interchanged.

12, 3: Perfume made from genuine aromatic nard: this phrase, found also in Mk 14, 3, is of uncertain meaning.

12, 5: Silver pieces: literally, "denarii." A denarius is a day's wage in Mt 20, 2.

12, 7: An obscure verse. It could be taken to mean that Mary was to keep the perfume for Jesus' future burial, though Mk 14, 8 and Jn 19, 39 seem to rule out a future reference. The present scene probably represents Jesus' embalming in a figurative sense.

12, 9: The expression the great crowd, here and in v 12, is even more awkward in Greek than in English; many textual witnesses have smoothed it out by omitting the article. It seems to have the function of uniting the crowd of the entry scene with the witnesses of the Lazarus miracle.

12, 13: See Psalm 118, 25f, and the note there on Hosanna.

12, 17f: There seem to be two different crowds in these verses. There are good witnesses to the text which have another reading for v 17: "Then the crowd that was with him began to testify that he had called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead."

12, 18: The whole world: the sense is that everyone is following Jesus, but John has an ironic play on world: he alludes to the universality of salvation (3, 17; 4, 42).

12, 20: Graeks: not used here in a nationalistic sense. These are Gentile proselytes to Judaism; cf 7, 35.

- "The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified.
- 24*† I solemnly assure you, unless the grain of wheat falls to the earth and dies, it remains just a grain of wheat. But if it dies, it produces much fruit.
- 25*† The man who loves his life loses it, while the man who hates his life in this world preserves it to life eternal.
- 26* If anyone would serve me, let him follow me; where I am, there will my servant be. If anyone serves me, him the Father will honor.
- 27* My soul is troubled now, yet what should I say—Father, save me from this hour? But it was for this that I came to this hour.
- 28* Father, glorify your name!"

Then a voice came from the sky:

"I have glorified it, and will glorify it again."

29 When the crowd of bystanders heard the voice, they said it was thunder. Others maintained, "An angel was speaking to him."<sup>30*</sup> Jesus answered, "That voice did not come for my sake, but for yours.

- 31* "Now has judgment come upon this world, now will this world's prince be driven out,
- 32* and I—once I am lifted up from earth—will draw all men to myself."

33 (This statement indicated the sort of death he had to die.)<sup>34*</sup>† The crowd objected to his words: "We have heard it said in the law that the Messiah is to remain forever. How can you claim that the Son of Man must be lifted up? Just who is this 'Son of Man'?"<sup>35*</sup> Jesus answered:

"The light is among you only a little longer.

Walk while you still have it or darkness will come over you. The man who walks in the dark does not know where he is going.

- 36 While you have the light, keep faith in the light; thus you will become sons of light."

After this utterance, Jesus left them and went into hiding.

Evaluation of the Ministry.<sup>37</sup> Despite his many signs performed in their presence, they refused to believe in him.<sup>38*</sup>† This was to fulfill the word of the prophet Isaiah:

"Lord, who has believed what has reached our ears? To whom has the might of the Lord been revealed?"

<sup>39</sup> The reason they could not believe was that, as Isaiah says elsewhere:

- 40* "He has blinded their eyes, and numbed their hearts, lest they see or comprehend, or have a change of heart—and I should heal them."

<sup>41*</sup> Isaiah uttered these words because he had seen Jesus' glory, and it was of him he spoke.

<sup>42*</sup> There were many, even among the Sanhedrin, who believed in him; but they refused to admit it because of the Pharisees, for fear they might be ejected from the synagogue. <sup>43*</sup> They preferred the praise of men to the glory of God.

Summary Proclamation

44* Jesus proclaimed aloud:

"Whoever puts faith in me believes not so much in me as in him who sent me;

45* and whoever looks on me is seeing him who sent me.

46* I have come to the world as its light, to keep anyone who believes in me from remaining in the dark.

47* If anyone hears my words and does not keep them,

I am not the one to condemn him, for I did not come to condemn the world but to save it.

24: Is 53, 10ff; 1 Cor 15, 36.

25: Mt 16, 25; Mk 8, 35; Lk 9, 24.

26: 14, 3; 17, 24; Mt 16, 24.

27: 6, 38; 18, 11; Lk 22, 42; Heb 5, 7f.

28: 2, 11; 17, 5.

30: 11, 42; 16, 11.

31: Lk 10, 18; Rv 12, 9.

32: 3, 14; 8, 28.

34: Ps 89, 5; Is 9, 6; Dn 7, 14.

35: 9, 4; Jb 5, 14.

38: Is 53, 1; Rom 10, 16.

40: Mt 13, 13f; Is 6, 9f.

41: 5, 39; Is 6, 1.4.

42: 9, 22.

43: 5, 44.

44: 13, 20; 14, 1.

45: 14, 7f.

46: 1, 9; 8, 12.

47: 3, 17.

† 12, 24: It remains just a grain of wheat: literally, "it remains alone."

12, 25: His life: the Greek word psyche refers to a man's natural life. It does not mean "soul," for Hebrew anthropology did not postulate body/soul dualism in the way that is familiar to us.

12, 34: There is no passage in the Old Testament that states precisely that the Messiah is to remain forever. Perhaps the closest is Ps 89, 37.

12, 38ff: John gives a historical explanation of Jewish disbelief, not a psychological one. The Old Testament had to be fulfilled in the New; the disbelief that met Isaiah's message was a foreshadowing of the disbelief that Jesus encountered. In 12, 42 and also in 3, 20, we see that there is no negation of freedom.

- 48* Whoever rejects me and does not accept my words already has his judge, namely, the word I have spoken—it is that which will condemn him on the last day.
- 49* For I have not spoken on my own; no, the Father who sent me has commanded me what to say and how to speak.
- 50 Since I know that his commandment means eternal life, whatever I say is spoken just as he instructed me."

III: THE BOOK OF GLORY

CHAPTER 13

The Washing of the Feet. 1* Before the feast of Passover, Jesus realized that the hour had come for him to pass from this world to the Father. He had loved his own in this world, and would show his love for them to the end. 2*† The devil had already induced Judas, son of Simon Iscariot, to hand him over; and so, during the supper, 3* Jesus—fully aware that he had come from God and was going to God, the Father who had handed everything over to him—<sup>4</sup> rose from the meal and took off his cloak. He picked up a towel and tied it around himself. 5† Then he poured water into a basin and began to wash his disciples' feet and dry them with the towel he had around him. 6 Thus he came to Simon Peter, who said to him, "Lord, are you going to wash my feet?" 7 Jesus answered, "You may not realize now what I am doing, but later you will understand." 8 Peter replied, "You shall never wash my feet!" "If I do not wash you," Jesus answered, "you will have no share in my heritage." 9 "Lord," Simon Peter said to him, "then not only my feet, but my hands and head as well." 10*† Jesus told him, "The man who has bathed has no need to wash [except for his feet]; he is entirely cleansed, just as you are; though not all." 11* (The reason he said, "Not all are washed clean," was that he knew his betrayer.)

12 After he had washed their feet, he put his cloak back on and reclined at table once more. He said to them:

- "Do you understand what I just did for you?"
- 13 You address me as 'Teacher' and 'Lord,' and fittingly enough, for that is what I am.
- 14 But if I washed your feet—I who am Teacher and Lord—then you must wash each other's feet.
- 15* What I just did was to give you an example: as I have done, so you must do.

- 16*† I solemnly assure you, no slave is greater than his master; no messenger outranks the one who sent him.
- 17 Once you know all these things, blest will you be if you put them into practice.

Role of Judas

- 18* "What I say is not said of all, for I know the kind of men I chose. My purpose here is the fulfillment of Scripture: 'He who partook of bread with me has raised his heel against me.'"
- 19 I tell you this now, before it takes place, so that when it takes place you may believe that I AM.
- 20* I solemnly assure you, he who accepts anyone I send accepts me, and in accepting me accepts him who sent me."

21* After saying this, Jesus grew deeply troubled. He went on to give this testimony:

"I tell you solemnly, one of you will betray me."

- 22 The disciples looked at one another, puzzled as to whom he could mean. 23*† One of them, the disciple whom Jesus loved, reclined close to him as they ate. 24 Simon Peter signaled him to ask Jesus whom he meant. 25 He leaned back

48: Lk 10, 16.	16: 15, 20; Mt 10,
49: 14, 10,31; Dt 18,	24; Lk 6, 40.
18f.	18: Ps 41, 10.
13, 1: 2, 4, 7, 30; 8, 20;	20: Mt 10, 40; Mk 9,
Mt 26, 17.	37; Lk 9, 48.
2: 6, 71; 17, 12; Mt	21-30: Mt 26, 22-25;
26, 20; Lk 22, 3.	Mk 14, 18-21;
3: 3, 35.	Lk 22, 21ff.
10: 15, 3.	23: 19, 26, 20, 2, 21,
11: 6, 70.	7, 20.
15: Lk 22, 27.

† 13, 2: Induced: literally, "The devil put into the heart that Judas should hand him over." It is uncertain into whose heart, Judas' or the devil's.

13, 5: Basin: the exact vessel is not certain, but it was used for washing, perhaps by pouring, in which case the translation should be "pitcher."

13, 10: Bathed: many have suggested that this passage is a symbolic reference to baptism. The Greek root involved is used in baptismal contexts in 1 Cor 6, 11; Eph 5, 26; Ti 3, 5; Heb 10, 22. The washing of the feet was connected with baptism in early Christian liturgy.

13, 16: Messenger: the Greek has apostolos, the only occurrence of the term in John. It is not used in the technical sense here.

13, 23: The disciple whom Jesus loved is mentioned in 19, 26; 20, 2; 21, 7. A disciple, called another disciple or the other disciple, is mentioned in 18, 15 and 20, 2; and in the latter reference he is identified with the disciple whom Jesus loved. There is also an unnamed disciple in 1, 35-40. It has been traditional to identify the disciple thus variously referred to as St. John.

against Jesus' chest and said to him, "Lord, who is he?" <sup>26</sup> Jesus answered, "The one to whom I give the bit of food I dip in the dish." He dipped the morsel, then took it and gave it to Judas, son of Simon Iscariot. <sup>27*</sup> Immediately after, Satan entered his heart. Jesus addressed himself to him, "Be quick about what you are to do." <sup>28</sup> (Naturally, none of those reclining at table understood why Jesus said this to him. <sup>29*</sup> A few had the idea that, since Judas held the common purse, Jesus was telling him to buy what was needed for the feast, or to give something to the poor.) <sup>30</sup> No sooner had Judas eaten the morsel than he went out. It was night.

<sup>31</sup>† Once Judas had left, Jesus said:

"Now is the Son of Man glorified and God is glorified in him.

<sup>32*</sup>† [If God has been glorified in him,] God will, in turn, glorify him in himself, and will glorify him soon.

<sup>33*</sup> My children, I am not to be with you much longer.

You will look for me, but I say to you now what I once said to the Jews:

"Where I am going, you cannot come."

<sup>34*</sup> I give you a new commandment: Love one another.

Such as my love has been for you, so must your love be for each other.

<sup>35</sup> This is how all will know you for my disciples: your love for one another."

Peter's Denial Predicted. <sup>36*</sup> "Lord," Simon Peter said to him, "where do you mean to go?" Jesus answered:

"I am going where you cannot follow me now;

later on you shall come after me."

<sup>37</sup> "Lord," Peter said to him, "why can I not follow you now? I will lay down my life for you!" <sup>38*</sup> "You will lay down your life for me, will you?" Jesus answered. "I tell you truly, the cock will not crow before you have three times disowned me!

CHAPTER 14

Last Discourse

<sup>1</sup> "Do not let your hearts be troubled. Have faith in God and faith in me.

<sup>2</sup>† In my Father's house there are many dwelling places; otherwise, how could I have told you that I was going to prepare a place for you?

<sup>3*</sup> I am indeed going to prepare a place for you, and then I shall come back to take you with me, that where I am you also may be. <sup>4</sup> You know the way that leads where I go."

<sup>5</sup> "Lord," said Thomas, "we do not know where you are going. How can we know the way?" <sup>6</sup> Jesus told him:

"I am the way, and the truth, and the life;

no one comes to the Father but through me.

<sup>7*</sup>† If you really knew me, you would know my Father also.

From this point on you know him; you have seen him."

<sup>8</sup> "Lord," Philip said to him, "show us the Father and that will be enough for us." <sup>9*</sup> "Philip," Jesus replied, "after I have been with you all this time, you still do not know me?

"Whoever has seen me has seen the Father.

How can you say, 'Show us the Father'?"

<sup>10*</sup> Do you not believe that I am in the Father and the Father is in me?

The words I speak are not spoken of myself;

it is the Father who lives in me accomplishing his works.

<sup>11*</sup> Believe me that I am in the Father and the Father is in me, or else, believe because of the works I do.

<sup>12</sup> I solemnly assure you, the man who has faith in me will do the works I do, and greater far than these.

Why? Because I go to the Father,

<sup>13*</sup> and whatever you ask in my name I will do, so as to glorify the Father in the Son.

27: 13, 2; Lk 22, 3.

29: 12, 5f.

32: 17, 1-5.

33: 7, 33; 8, 21.

34: 15, 12f.17; Lv

19, 18.

36: Mk 14, 27; Lk

22, 33.

38: 18, 27; Mt 26,

33ff; Mk 14,

29ff; Lk 22, 33f.

14, 3: 12, 26; 17, 24.

7: 8, 19; 12, 45.

9: 1, 18; 10, 30; 12,

45.

10: 1, 1; 12, 49.

11: 10, 38.

13: 15, 7, 16; 16,

23f; Mt 7, 7-11.

†

13, 31-38: These verses form an introduction to the last discourse of Jesus, which runs through chapters 14-17. In it John has collected Jesus' words to his own (cf 13, 1). There are indications that several speeches have been fused together, e.g., in 14, 31 and 17, 1.

13, 32: God will . . . glorify him in himself: the concluding word probably refers to the Father rather than to Jesus; cf 17, 5, 21.

14, 2: A number of MSS omit that in this sentence, thus giving different inflections of meaning to the verse, with three distinct statements in it.

14, 7: An alternative reading is: "If you know me, then you know my Father also." The form in the text above is a rebuke akin to 8, 19.

- 14 Anything you ask me in my name I will do.
- 15*† If you love me and obey the commands I give you,
- 16**† I will ask the Father and he will give you another Paraclete—to be with you always:
- 17*† the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot accept, since it neither sees him nor recognizes him;
but you can recognize him because he remains with you and will be within you.
- 18 I will not leave you orphaned; I will come back to you.
- 19*† A little while now and the world will see me no more;
but you see me as one who has life, and you will have life.
- 20 On that day you will know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you.
- 21* He who obeys the commandments he has from me is the man who loves me; and he who loves me will be loved by my Father.
I too will love him and reveal myself to him."
- 22† Judas (not Judas Iscariot) said to him, "Lord, why is it that you will reveal yourself to us and not to the world?"
- 23* Jesus answered:

- "Anyone who loves me will be true to my word, and my Father will love him; we will come to him and make our dwelling place with him.
- 24 He who does not love me does not keep my words.
Yet the word you hear is not mine; it comes from the Father who sent me.
- 25 This much have I told you while I was still with you;
- 26* the Paraclete, the Holy Spirit whom the Father will send in my name, will instruct you in everything, and remind you of all that I told you.
- 27*† 'Peace' is my farewell to you; my peace is my gift to you; I do not give it to you as the world gives peace.
Do not be distressed or fearful.
- 28 You have heard me say, 'I go away for a while, and I come back to you.'
If you truly loved me you would rejoice to have me go to the Father, for the Father is greater than I.
- 29* I tell you this now, before it takes place,

- so that when it takes place you may believe.
- 30 I shall not go on speaking to you longer;
the Prince of this world is at hand. He has no hold on me,
- 31* but the world must know that I love the Father and do as the Father has commanded me.
Come, then! Let us be on our way.

CHAPTER 15

The Vine and the Branches

- 1*† "I am the true vine and my Father is the vinegrower.
- 2† He prunes away every barren branch, but the fruitful ones he trims clean to increase their yield.
- 3* You are clean already, thanks to the word I have spoken to you.

15: 15, 10; Wis 6,	23: Rv 3, 20.
18: 1 Jn 2, 3.	26: 15, 26; 16, 13f
16: 15, 26.	27: Eph 2, 14-18
17: 16, 13; Mt 28,	29: 13, 19, 16, 4.
20: 2 Jn 1f.	31: 6, 38.
19: 16, 16.	15, 1: Is 5, 1.
21: 16, 27; 1 Jn 2,	3: 13, 10.
5, 3, 24.

† 14, 15: There is attestation for several other readings of this verse: "If you love me, keep my commandments" or "If you love me, you will keep my commandments."

14, 16: Another Paraclete: evidently Jesus is the first Paraclete; see 1 Jn 2, 2, where Jesus is a Paraclete in the sense of heavenly intercessor. However, this verse could be translated: "another, a Paraclete." The Johannine term paraclete derived from Greek legal terminology is used secularly as a defense attorney, a spokesman, an intercessor, although none of these terms fits precisely in John. The Paraclete in John is a teacher, a witness to Jesus, and a prosecutor of the world. He represents the continued presence on earth of the Jesus who has returned to the Father.

14, 17: The Greek word for "Spirit" is neuter, and while we use personal pronouns in English ("he," "his," "him"), most Greek MSS employ "it."

14, 19: The last part can be made a separate sentence: "Because I have life, you also will have life."

14, 22: Not Judas Iscariot: other readings are "Judas the Cananean" and "Judas Thomas." Perhaps the original had simply "Judas." There is a Judas son of James in the Lucan lists of the Twelve (Lk 6, 16; Acts 1, 13), but there is no corresponding name in the Matthean or Marcan lists.

14, 27: Peace: Jesus gives to his disciples the traditional Hebrew salutation "Shalom"; but his shalom is a gift of salvation and not a conventional word of farewell, as it is among other men.

15, 1: In the Bible Israel is spoken of as a vineyard (Is 5, 1-7; Mt 21, 33-46) and as a vine (Jer 2, 21). The identification of the vine as the son of man in Ps 80, 16, and Wisdom's description of herself as a vine in Sir 24, 17, are important background for Jesus' use of this figure as a self-description. In the synoptic account of the institution of the Eucharist at the Last Supper, we hear of "the fruit of the vine" (Mk 12, 25). The Didache refers to the eucharistic cup as "the holy vine of David your servant revealed through Jesus Christ." Consequently there may be secondary eucharistic symbolism here.

15, 2: Prunes away . . . trims clean: in Greek there is a play on two related verbs, airein and kathairein.

- 4† Live on in me, as I do in you.
No more than a branch can bear fruit of itself
apart from the vine,
can you bear fruit
apart from me.
- 5* I am the vine, you are the branches.
He who lives in me and I in him,
will produce abundantly,
for apart from me you can do nothing.
- 6* A man who does not live in me is like a withered, rejected branch, picked up to be thrown in the fire and burnt.
- 7* If you live in me,
and my words stay part of you,
you may ask what you will—
it will be done for you.
- 8* My Father has been glorified in your bearing much fruit and becoming my disciples.

A Disciple's Love

- 9* "As the Father has loved me,
so I have loved you.
Live on in my love.
- 10* You will live in my love
if you keep my commandments, even as I have kept my Father's commandments,
and live in his love.
- 11* All this I tell you that my joy may be yours and your joy may be complete.
- 12* This is my commandment:
love one another
as I have loved you.
- 13*† There is no greater love than this:
to lay down one's life for one's friends.
- 14 You are my friends
if you do what I command you.
- 15* I no longer speak of you as slaves, for a slave does not know what his master is about.
Instead, I call you friends, since I have made known to you all that I heard from my Father.
- 16* It was not you who chose me,
it was I who chose you
to go forth and bear fruit.
Your fruit must endure,
so that all you ask the Father in my name
he will give you.
- 17* The command I give you is this,
that you love one another.

The World's Hate†

- 18* "If you find that the world hates you, know it has hated me before you.
- 19* If you belonged to the world,
it would love you as its own;
the reason it hates you is that you do not belong to the world.

- But I chose you out of the world.
- 20*† Remember what I told you:
no slave is greater than his master.
They will harry you
as they harried me.
They will respect your words
as much as they respected mine.
- 21*† All this they will do to you because of my name, for they know nothing of him who
sent me.
- 22*† If I had not come to them and spoken to them,
they would not be guilty of sin;
now, however, their sin cannot be excused.
- 23* To hate me is to hate my Father.
- 24* Had I not performed such works among them
as no one has ever done before,
they would not be guilty of sin;
but as it is, they have seen,
and they go on hating me and my Father.
- 25† However, this only fulfills the text in their law:
'They hated me without cause.'
- 26*† When the Paraclete comes, the Spirit of truth who comes from the Father—

---

5: Ps 127, 1.	16: 14, 13; Dt 7, 6.
6: Ez 15, 6f; 19, 10ff; 3, 10.	17: 13, 34; 1 Jn 3, 23; 4, 21.
7: 14, 13; 1 Jn 5, 14.	18: 7, 7; 1 Jn 3, 13; 19: 17, 14ff; 1 Jn 4, 5.
8: Mt 5, 16.	20: 13, 16; Mt 10, 24.
9: 17, 23.	21: 8, 19; 16, 3.
10: 8, 29; 14, 15.	22: 8, 21, 24.
11: 16, 22; 17, 13.	23: 5, 23; 1 Jn 2, 23.
12: 13, 34.	24: 3, 2; 9, 32.
13: Rom 5, 6ff; 1 Jn 3, 16.	26: 14, 26.
15: Rom 8, 15; Gal 4, 7.

---

† 15, 4-7: Live on in . . . live in . . . stay part of: these all represent the same Greek expression for "remain in."
 15, 13: For one's friends: in 9-13a, the words for love are related to the Greek agapan. In 13b-15, the words for love are related to the Greek philein. For John, the two roots are synonymous and mean "to love." The word philos in vv 13ff, is here translated "friend."
 15, 18: The section 15, 18—16, 4 has numerous parallels with predictions of persecution made by Jesus in the synoptic gospels—especially with Mt 10, 17-25.
 15, 20: What I told you: a reference to 13, 16.
 15, 21: Because of my name: the idea of persecution because of Jesus' name is frequent in the New Testament (Mt 10, 22; 24, 9; Acts 9, 14). For John, association with Jesus' name implies union with Jesus.
 15, 22, 24: Jesus' words (spoken) and deeds (works performed) are the great motives of credibility. They have seen . . . go on hating: probably means they have seen his works and still have hated; but the Greek can be read: "have seen both me and my Father and still have hated both me and my Father."
 15, 25: Law: a larger concept than the Pentateuch, for the reference is to Ps 35, 19 or 69, 5. See notes on 10, 34; 12, 34.
 15, 26: Comes from the Father: refers to the mission of the Spirit to men, not to the eternal procession of the Spirit. Compare 14, 26, where the Father, not Jesus, is said to send the Spirit.

and whom I myself will send from the Father—
 he will bear witness on my behalf.
 27*† You must bear witness as well,
 for you have been with me from the beginning.

CHAPTER 16

1 "I have told you all this to keep your faith from being shaken.
 2*† Not only will they expel you from synagogues;
 a time will come when anyone who puts you to death will claim to be serving God!
 3* All this they will do [to you] because they knew neither the Father nor me.
 4* But I have told you these things that when their hour comes you may remember my telling you of them.

Jesus' Departure; Coming of the Paraclete

"I did not speak of this with you from the beginning because I was with you.
 5† Now that I go back to him who sent me, not one of you asks me, 'Where are you going?'
 6 Because I have had all this to say to you,
 you are overcome with grief.
 7* Yet I tell you the sober truth: It is much better for you that I go. If I fail to go, the Paraclete will never come to you, whereas if I go,
 I will send him to you.
 8† When he comes,
 he will prove the world wrong about sin,
 about justice,
 about condemnation.
 9* About sin—
 in that they refuse to believe in me;
 10 about justice—
 from the fact that I go to the Father and you can see me no more;
 11* about condemnation—
 for the prince of this world has been condemned.
 12 I have much more to tell you, but you cannot bear it now.
 13*† When he comes, however, being the Spirit of truth
 he will guide you to all truth. He will not speak on his own, but will speak only what he hears,
 and will announce to you the things to come.
 14 In doing this he will give glory to me, because he will have received from me

 what he will announce to you.
 15 All that the Father has belongs to me.
 That is why I said that what he will announce to you
 he will have from me.
 16* Within a short time you will lose sight of me,
 but soon after that you shall see me again."

The Return of Jesus. 17† At this, some of his disciples asked one another: "What can he mean, 'Within a short time you will lose sight of me, but soon after that you will see me'? And did he not say that he is going back to the Father?"
 18 They kept asking: "What does he mean by this 'short time'? We do not know what he is talking about." 19 Since Jesus was aware that they wanted to question him, he said: "You are asking one another about my saying, 'Within a short time you will lose sight of me, but soon after that you will see me.'

20*† "I tell you truly:
 you will weep and mourn while the world rejoices;
 you will grieve for a time,
 but your grief will be turned into joy.

27: Lk 1, 2; Acts 1, 8.	7: 14, 16, 26.
16, 2: 9, 22, 12, 42; Mt 10, 17; Lk 21, 12; Acts 26, 11.	9: 8, 21-24; 15, 22, 11: 12, 31, 13: 14, 26.
3: 15, 21.	16: 7, 33; 14, 19.
4: 13, 19; 14, 29.	20: Ps 126, 6.

† 15, 27: You . . . as well: this witness of the disciples is not different or distinct from that of the Paraclete, rather, it extenuates the Paraclete's internal witness.
 16, 2: Time is literally "hour"—not "the hour" of Jesus but the period of persecution.

16, 5: Not one of you asks me: the difficulty of reconciling this with Simon Peter's question in 13, 36 and Thomas' words in 14, 5, strengthens the supposition that the last discourse has been made up of several collections of Johannine material.

16, 8-11: These verses illustrate the forensic character of the Paraclete's role: in the forum of the disciples' conscience he prosecutes the world. He leads believers to see (a) that the basic sin of men was and is their refusal to believe in Jesus; (b) that, although Jesus was found guilty and apparently died in disgrace, in reality justice has triumphed, for Jesus has returned to his Father; (c) finally, that it is the prince of this world, Satan, who has been condemned through Jesus' death (12, 32).

16, 13: Announce to you the things to come: this is not necessarily a reference to new future predictions, the Greek verb is used in Daniel for interpretation, in relation to the present and the future, of what has already happened. The Paraclete makes Jesus' message continually relevant for each generation.

16, 17: The disciples are puzzled by the contrast between their seeing Jesus soon again (v 16) and his return to the Father (v 10), presumably to stay.

16, 20: Jesus does not discuss the short time mentioned in v 18, but the contrast between sorrow and joy implicit in v 16. The grief of this verse and the pain of the next are the same Greek word as the grief of v 6. The promise of joy will be fulfilled in 20, 20.

- 21* When a woman is in labor she is sad that her time has come. When she has borne her child, she no longer remembers her pain for joy that a man has been born into the world.
- 22* In the same way, you are sad for a time, but I shall see you again; then your hearts will rejoice with a joy no one can take from you.
- 23*† On that day you will have no questions to ask me.
I give you my assurance, whatever you ask the Father, he will give you in my name.
- 24 Until now you have not asked for anything in my name.
Ask and you shall receive, that your joy may be full.
- 25*† I have spoken these things to you in veiled language.
A time will come when I shall no longer do so, but shall tell you about the Father in plain speech.
- 26* On that day you will ask in my name and I do not say that I will petition the Father for you.
- 27 The Father already loves you, because you have loved me and have believed that I came from God.
- 28* [I did indeed come from the Father;]
I came into the world.
Now I am leaving the world to go to the Father."

29 "As last you are speaking plainly," his disciples exclaimed, "without talking in veiled language!"<sup>30†</sup> We are convinced that you know everything. There is no need for anyone to ask you questions. We do indeed believe you came from God."<sup>31</sup> Jesus answered them:

- "Do you really believe?"
- 32* An hour is coming—has indeed already come—when you will be scattered and each will go his way, leaving me quite alone. (Yet I can never be alone; the Father is with me.)
- 33* I tell you all this that in me you may find peace. You will suffer in the world. But take courage! I have overcome the world."

CHAPTER 17

Completion of Jesus' Work

1*† After he had spoken these words, Jesus looked up to heaven and said:

- "Father, the hour has come! Give glory to your Son that your Son may give glory to you,
- 2*† inasmuch as you have given him authority over all mankind, that he may bestow eternal life on those you gave him.
- 3*† (Eternal life is this: to know you, the only true God, and him whom you have sent, Jesus Christ.)
- 4 I have given you glory on earth by finishing the work you gave me to do.
- 5* Do you now, Father, give me glory at your side, a glory I had with you before the world began.
- 6† I have made your name known to those you gave me out of the world.
These men you gave me were yours; they have kept your word.
- 7 Now they realize that all that you gave me comes from you.
- 8 I entrusted to them the message you entrusted to me, and they received it.
They have known that in truth I came from you,

21: Is 26, 17f; Jer 31, 13,	Mt 26, 31, 33; 14, 27,
22: 14, 19, 15, 11;	17, 1: 13, 31.
20, 20,	2: 3, 35; Mt 28, 18,
23: 14, 13,	3: Wis 14, 7; 1 Jn 5, 20,
25: Mt 13, 34f.	5: 12, 28; Phil 2, 6, 9ff.
26: 14, 13,
28: 1, 1,
32: 8, 29; Zec 13, 7;

† 16, 23: Having no questions to ask is a matter of seeking or not seeking understanding. "Ask and you shall receive" is a matter of petitioning.

16, 25: In veiled language: may be a reference to the parabolic comparisons of the vine and the branches (15, 1-16) and the woman in labor (16, 21).

16, 30: The reference is seemingly to the fact that Jesus could anticipate their question in v 19. The disciples naively think they have the full understanding that is the climax of "the hour" of Jesus' death, resurrection and ascension (v 25), but the only part of the hour that is at hand for them is their share in the passion (v 32).

17, 1-26: Since the sixteenth century this part of the last discourse has been called the "high priestly prayer" of Jesus. Here his words are addressed directly to the Father rather than to the disciples, who only overhear. Although still in the world (13), Jesus looks on his earthly ministry as a thing of the past (4, 12). Whereas Jesus has hitherto stated that the disciples could not follow him (13, 33, 36), now he wishes them to be with him in union with the Father (12ff). He is crossing the threshold of eternity.

17, 1: The action of looking up to heaven and the address Father are typical of Jesus at prayer; cf 11, 41.

17, 2: Another possible interpretation is to treat the first line of the verse as parenthetical and the second as an appositive to the clause that ends v 1: that your Son may give glory to you (inasmuch . . . mankind), that he may bestow eternal life. . . .

17, 3: This verse was clearly added in the editing of the gospel, for Jesus would hardly have referred to himself as Jesus Christ.

17, 6: I have made your name known: perhaps the name is I AM; cf 8, 24, 28, 58; 13, 19.

they have believed it was you who sent me.

Prayer for the Disciples

- 9 "For these I pray—not for the world
but for these you have given me,
for they are really yours.
- 10* (Just as all that belongs to me is yours, so all that belongs to you is mine.)
It is in them that I have been glorified.
- 11† I am in the world no more,
but these are in the world
as I come to you.
O Father most holy,
protect them with your name which you have given me
[that they may be one, even as we are one].
- 12*† As long as I was with them,
I guarded them with your name which you gave me.
I kept careful watch,
and not one of them was lost, none but him who was destined to be lost—
in fulfillment of Scripture.
- 13* Now, however, I come to you;
I say all this while I am still in the world
that they may share my joy completely.
- 14* I gave them your word, and the world has hated them for
it;
they do not belong to the world
[any more than I belong to the world].
- 15*† I do not ask you to take them out of the world,
but to guard them from the evil one.
- 16 They are not of the world,
any more than I belong to the world.
- 17*† Consecrate them by means of truth—
'Your word is truth.'
- 18 As you have sent me into the world,
so I have sent them into the world;
- 19 I consecrate myself for their sakes
now,
that they may be consecrated in truth.

Prayer for All Believers

- 20 "I do not pray for them alone.
I pray also for those who will believe in me through their word,
- 21*† that all may be one as you, Father, are in me, and I in
you;
I pray that they may be [one] in us,
that the world may believe that you
sent me.

- 22 I have given them the glory you gave
me
that they may be one, as we are one—
- 23 I living in them, you living in me—
that their unity may be complete.
So shall the world know that you
sent me,
and that you loved them as you loved me.
- 24*† Father,
all those you gave me
I would have in my company
where I am,
to see this glory of mine
which is your gift to me, because of the love you bore me before the world began.
- 25* Just Father,
the world has not known you,
but I have known you;
and these men have known that you
sent me.
- 26† To them I have revealed your name, and I will continue to reveal it so that your love for me may live
in them,
and I may live in them."

CHAPTER 18

Jesus Arrested.† 1* After this discourse, Jesus went out with his disciples across the Kidron Valley. There was a garden there, and he and his disciples entered it. 2 The place was familiar to Judas as well (the one who was to hand

10: 16, 15; 2 Thes	17: 1 Pt 1, 22.
1, 10, 12.	21: 10, 30; 14,
12: 13, 18; 18, 9; Ps	10f.20.
41, 10; Mt 26,	24: 14, 3; 1 Thes 4,
24; Acts 1, 16.	17.
13: 15, 11.	25: 1, 10.
14: 15, 19.	18, 1: Mt 26, 30, 36;
15: Mt 6, 13; 1 Jn 5,	Mk 14, 26, 32; Lk
18.	22, 39.

† 17, 11: Protect them with your name which you have given me; here and in the next verse, some witnesses read: "Protect with your name those whom you have given to me."

17, 12: Scripture: Jn 13, 18 cites Ps 41, 10.
17, 15: Note the resemblance to the petition of the Our Father, "deliver us from the evil one." Both probably refer to the devil rather than to abstract evil.

17, 17: Your word is truth: seemingly a citation from the Greek form of Ps 119, 142, as found in Codex Sinaiticus.
17, 21: For other Johannine passages on unity, see 10, 16; 11, 52. The world (21, 23) is once more to be challenged by the mission of the disciples and given the opportunity of self-judgment inasmuch as it will either accept or reject Jesus.

17, 24: Where I am: Jesus prays for the believers ultimately to join him in heaven. Then they will not see his glory as in a mirror but clearly (2 Cor 3, 18; 1 Jn 3, 2).

17, 26: Will continue to reveal: through the Paraclete.

18, 1-13: John does not mention the agony in the garden and the kiss of Judas, nor does he identify the place as Gethsemani or the Mount of Olives.

18, 1: Jesus went out: see 14, 31, where it seems he is leaving the supper room. Kidron Valley: literally, "the winter-flowing Kidron"; this wadi has water only during the winter rains.

him over) because Jesus had often met there with his disciples. <sup>3*</sup>† Judas took the cohort as well as guards supplied by the chief priests and the Pharisees, and came there with lanterns, torches and weapons. <sup>4</sup> Jesus, aware of all that would happen to him, stepped forward and said to them, "Who is it you want?" <sup>5</sup>† "Jesus the Nazorean," they replied. "I am he," he answered. (Now Judas, the one who was to hand him over, was there with them.) <sup>6</sup> As Jesus said to them, "I am he," they retreated slightly and fell to the ground. <sup>7</sup> Jesus put the question to them again, "Who is it you want?" "Jesus the Nazorean," they repeated. <sup>8</sup> "I have told you, I am he," Jesus said. "If I am the one you want, let these men go." <sup>9*</sup>† (This was to fulfill what he had said, "I have not lost one of those you gave me.")

<sup>10</sup>† Then Simon Peter, who had a sword, drew it and struck the slave of the high priest, severing his right ear. (The slave's name was Malchus.) <sup>11</sup>† At that Jesus said to Peter, "Put your sword back in its sheath. Am I not to drink the cup the Father has given me?"

<sup>12</sup> Then the soldiers of the cohort, their tribune, and the Jewish guards arrested Jesus and bound him. <sup>13*</sup>† They led him first to Annas, the father-in-law of Caiaphas who was high priest that year. <sup>14*</sup> (It was Caiaphas who had proposed to the Jews the advantage of having one man die for the people.)

Peter's First Denial. <sup>15*</sup>† Simon Peter, in company with another disciple, kept following Jesus closely. This disciple, who was known to the high priest, stayed with Jesus as far as the high priest's courtyard, <sup>16</sup> while Peter was left standing at the gate. The disciple known to the high priest came out and spoke to the woman at the gate, and then brought Peter in. <sup>17</sup> This servant girl who kept the gate said to Peter, "Are you not one of this man's followers?" "Not I," he replied.

<sup>18</sup> Now the night was cold, and the servants and the guards who were standing around had made a charcoal fire to warm themselves by. Peter joined them and stood there warming himself.

The Inquiry before Annas. <sup>19</sup> The high priest questioned Jesus, first about his disciples, then about his teaching. <sup>20*</sup>† Jesus answered by saying:

"I have spoken publicly to any who would listen.

I always taught in a synagogue or in the temple area where all the Jews come together. There was nothing secret about anything I said.

<sup>21</sup> Why do you question me? Question those who heard me when I spoke. It should be obvious that they will know what I said." <sup>22*</sup> At this reply, one of the guards who was standing nearby gave Jesus a sharp blow on the face. "Is that the way to answer the high priest?" he said. <sup>23</sup> Jesus replied, "If I said anything wrong produce the evidence, but if I spoke the truth why hit me?" <sup>24*</sup>† Annas next sent him, bound, to the high priest Caiaphas.

The Further Denials. <sup>25*</sup> All through this, Simon Peter had been standing there warming himself. They said to him, "Are you not a disciple of his?" He denied it and said, "I am not!" <sup>26</sup> "But did I not see you with him in the garden?" insisted one of the high priest's slaves—as it happened, a relative of the man whose ear Peter had severed. <sup>27</sup>† Peter denied it again. At that moment a cock began to crow.

3: Mt 26, 47-51;	20: 7, 26; Is 48, 16;
Mk 14, 43f; Lk	Lk 19, 47; 22,
22, 47.	53.
9: 6, 39; 17, 12.	22: Acts 23, 2.
13: Lk 3, 2.	24: Mt 26, 57.
14: 11, 49f.	25f: Mt 26, 69-75; Lk
15f: Mt 26, 58, 69f;	22, 55-62; Mk
Mk 14, 54, 66f;	14, 66-72.
Lk 22, 54.

† 18, 3: Cohort: seems to refer to Roman troops, the full cohort of 600 soldiers or the maniple of 200 under their tribune (v 12). In this case John is hinting at Roman collusion in the action against Jesus before he was brought to Pilate.

18, 5: Nazorean: The form found in Matthew is here used in preference to the Nazarene of Mark. I am he: this Ego eimi may be intended by the evangelist as an expression of divinity; see note on 8, 24. John sets the confusion of the arresting party against the background of Jesus' divine majesty.

18, 9: The citation may refer to 17, 12; 6, 39; or 10, 28.

18, 10: Only John gives the names of the two antagonists; both John and Luke mention the right ear.

18, 11: The theme of the cup is found in the synoptic account of the agony (Mk 14, 36) and parallels.

18, 13: Annas: only John mentions an inquiry before Annas, who is presumably the high priest of vv 16 and 19. Patriarch of a family of high priests, he had been deposed by the Romans in 15 A.D.; but since, according to Jewish law, the office was for life, Annas may still have been the legitimate high priest in the eyes of many. Luke (3, 2) and Acts (4, 6) mention him in terms of high priesthood. There have been many attempts by scribes and commentators to rearrange or interpret the verses of John so that Caiaphas does the interrogating. It may be said with reasonable certainty that this nighttime interrogation before Annas is not the same as the trial before Caiaphas placed by Matthew and Mark at night and by Luke in the morning.

18, 15f: Another disciple: many scholars identify him with the other disciple of 20, 2, who is the beloved disciple; see note on 13, 23. But how would a Galilean fisherman be known to the high priest? An early (but unlikely) tradition has it that John was himself a priest. See note on 19, 25 for John's possible relation to Mary, who had priestly relatives.

18, 15: Courtyard: the Greek word can mean this or "palace."

18, 20: I always taught . . . in the temple area: in the synoptics a similar statement appears in the garden scene (Mk 14, 49).

18, 24: Caiaphas: John may leave room here for the trial before Caiaphas not narrated by him but dealt with in the synoptic gospels. Details paralleling those of the synoptic trial are scattered throughout John.

18, 27: Cockcrow was the third Roman division of the night lasting from 12 to 3 A.M.

The Trial before Pilate. <sup>28</sup>† At day-break they brought Jesus from Caiaphas to the praetorium. They did not enter the praetorium themselves, for they had to avoid ritual impurity if they were to eat the Passover supper. <sup>29</sup> Pilate came out to them. "What accusation do you bring against this man?" he demanded. <sup>30</sup> "If he were not a criminal," they retorted, "we would certainly not have handed him over to you." <sup>31</sup>† At this Pilate said, "Why do you not take him and pass judgment on him according to your law?" "We may not put anyone to death," the Jews answered. <sup>32</sup>*† (This was to fulfill what Jesus had said indicating the sort of death he had to die.)

<sup>33</sup> Pilate went back into the praetorium and summoned Jesus. "Are you the King of the Jews?" he asked him. <sup>34</sup> Jesus answered, "Are you saying this on your own, or have others been telling you about me?" <sup>35</sup> "I am no Jew!" Pilate retorted. "It is your own people and the chief priests who have handed you over to me. What have you done?" <sup>36</sup>* Jesus answered:

"My kingdom does not belong to this world.

If my kingdom were of this world, my subjects would be fighting to save me from being handed over to the Jews.

As it is, my kingdom is not here."

<sup>37</sup>*† At this Pilate said to him, "So, then, you are a king?" Jesus replied:

"It is you who say I am a king.

The reason I was born, the reason why I came into the world, is to testify to the truth.

Anyone committed to the truth hears my voice."

<sup>38</sup> "Truth!" said Pilate. "What does that mean?"

After this remark, Pilate went out again to the Jews and said to them: "Speaking for myself, I find no case against this man. <sup>39</sup>*† Recall your custom whereby I release someone to you at Passover time. Do you want me to release to you the King of the Jews?" <sup>40</sup>† They shouted back, "We want Barabbas, not this one!" (Barabbas was an insurrectionist.)

CHAPTER 19

<sup>1</sup>*† Pilate's next move was to take Jesus and have him scourged. <sup>2</sup> The soldiers then wove a crown of thorns and fixed it on his head, throwing around his shoulders a cloak of royal purple. <sup>3</sup> Repeatedly they came up to him and said, "All hail, king of the Jews!", slapping his face as they did so.

<sup>4</sup>* Pilate went out a second time and said to the crowd: "Observe what I do. I am going to bring him out to you to make you realize that I find no case [against him]." <sup>5</sup>* When Jesus came out wearing the crown of thorns and the purple cloak, Pilate said to them, "Look at the man!" <sup>6</sup>* As soon as the chief priests and the temple guards saw him they shouted, "Crucify him! Crucify him!" Pilate said, "Take him and crucify him yourselves; I find no case against him." <sup>7</sup>*† "We have our law," the Jews responded, "and according to that law he must die because he made himself God's Son." <sup>8</sup> When Pilate heard this kind of talk, he was more afraid than ever.

<sup>9</sup>* Going back into the praetorium, he said to Jesus, "Where do you come from?" Jesus would not give him any answer. <sup>10</sup>* "Do you refuse to speak to me?" Pilate asked him. "Do you not know that I have the power to release you and the power to crucify you?"

<sup>11</sup>* Jesus answered:

"You would have no power over me whatever unless it were given you from above.

28-40: Mt 27, 11-25;

Mk 15, 1-15; Lk

23, 1-4.13-25.

32: 3, 14; 8, 28; 12,

32f.

36: 1, 10; 8, 23.

37: 8, 47.

39f: Mt 27, 15; Lk 23,

20.

19, 1-16: Mt 27, 27-31;

Mk 15, 16-21;

Lk 23, 13-25.

4, 18, 38.

5: Is 52, 14.

6: 18, 31; 19, 15.

7: 10, 33-36; Lv

24, 16.

9: 7, 28.

11: 3, 27; 10, 18.

†

18, 28: Daybreak: literally, "the early hour," or fourth Roman division of the night, 3 to 6 A.M.; here presumably about 6 A.M. Praetorium: the residence of the Roman governor in Jerusalem was either the Herodian palace on the western hill or the fortress Antonia near the temple. The Passover supper: the synoptic gospels give the impression that the Thursday night supper was the Passover meal (Mk 14, 12), for John that meal is still to be eaten Friday night.

18, 31: We may not put anyone to death: only John gives this reason for their bringing Jesus to Pilate. Jewish sources are not clear on the competence of the Sanhedrin at this period to sentence and to execute for political crimes.

18, 32: The Jewish punishment for blasphemy was stoning (Lv 24, 16). In coming to the Romans to ensure that Jesus would be crucified, the Jewish authorities fulfilled his prophecy that he would be lifted up, cf 12, 32f.

18, 37: It is you who say I am a king: see Mt 26, 64 for a similar response to the high priest. It is a reluctant affirmative, equaling "Yes, but the terminology is yours."

18, 39: This privilege connected with Passover is not clearly attested outside the gospels.

18, 40: Insurrectionist: a guerrilla warrior fighting both for nationalistic aims and for gain, Barabbas had been arrested for murder in a recent insurrection (Mk 15, 7).

19, 1: Luke places the mockery of Jesus at the midpoint in the trial when Jesus was sent to Herod. Mark and Matthew place the scourging and mockery at the end of the trial after the sentence of death. Scourging was an integral part of the crucifixion penalty.

19, 7: Made himself God's Son: this question was not raised in John's account of the Jewish interrogations of Jesus as it was in the synoptic account. Nevertheless, see 5, 18, 8, 53; 10, 36.

That is why he who handed me over to you is guilty of the greater sin."

<sup>12*</sup>† After this, Pilate was eager to release him, but the Jews shouted, "If you free this man you are no 'Friend of Caesar.' Anyone who makes himself a king becomes Caesar's rival." <sup>13</sup>† Pilate heard what they were saying, then brought Jesus outside and took a seat on a judge's bench at the place called the Stone Pavement—Gabbatha in Hebrew. <sup>14</sup>† (It was the Preparation Day for Passover, and the hour was about noon.) He said to the Jews, "Look at your king!" <sup>15</sup> At this they shouted, "Away with him! Away with him! Crucify him!" "What!" Pilate exclaimed. "Shall I crucify your king?" The chief priests replied, "We have no king but Caesar." <sup>16</sup>† In the end, Pilate handed Jesus over to be crucified.

Crucifixion and Death. Jesus was led away, and <sup>17</sup>*† carrying the cross by himself, went out to what is called the Place of the Skull (in Hebrew, Golgotha). <sup>18</sup> There they crucified him, and two others with him: one on either side, Jesus in the middle. <sup>19</sup>† Pilate had an inscription placed on the cross which read,

JESUS THE NAZAREAN
THE KING OF THE JEWS

<sup>20</sup> This inscription, in Hebrew, Latin, and Greek, was read by many of the Jews, since the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city. <sup>21</sup>* The chief priests of the Jews tried to tell Pilate, "You should not have written, 'The King of the Jews.' Write instead, 'This man claimed to be King of the Jews.'" <sup>22</sup> Pilate answered, "What I have written, I have written."

<sup>23</sup>*† After the soldiers had crucified Jesus they took his garments and divided them four ways, one for each soldier. There was also his tunic, but this tunic was woven in one piece from top to bottom and had no seam. <sup>24</sup> They said to each other, "We should not tear it. Let us throw dice to see who gets it." (The purpose of this was to have the Scripture fulfilled:

"They divided my garments among them;
for my clothing they cast lots.")

And this was what the soldiers did.

<sup>25</sup>*† Near the cross of Jesus there stood his mother, his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene. <sup>26</sup>† Seeing his mother there with the disciple whom he loved, Jesus said to his mother, "Woman, there is your son." <sup>27</sup> In turn he said to the disciple, "There is your mother." From that hour onward, the disciple took her into his care.

<sup>28</sup>*† After that, Jesus realizing that everything was now finished, said to fulfill the Scripture, "I am thirsty." <sup>29</sup>† There was a jar there, full of common

12: Acts 17, 7,	24.
17-22: Mt 27, 32-37;	25: Mt 27, 55; Mk
Mk 15, 21-26;	15, 40f; Lk 8, 2;
Lk 23, 26, 33.	23, 49.
21: 18, 33; Lk 19,	28f: Mt 27, 48ff; Mk
14.	15, 36f.
23f: Ps 22, 19; Mt	28: Ps 22, 16, 69,
27, 35; Mk 15,	22.

† 19, 12: 'Friend of Caesar': a technical Roman term of honor.

19, 13: Took a seat: many scholars think this should be translated transitively, "sat him down." In John's thought, Jesus is the real judge of men, and they suggest that John portrays him seated on the judgment bench. We find this tradition in the second century. Stone Pavement: under the fortress Antonia, one of the conjectured locations of the praetorium, a tremendous stone pavement has been uncovered. The Aramaic word Gabbatha probably means "ridge, elevation."

19, 14: Preparation Day for Passover: the synoptics describe this as Friday (Mk 15, 42). Noon: Mk 15, 25 has Jesus crucified "at the third hour," which means either 9 A.M. or the period from 9 to 12. Noon, the time when, according to John, Jesus was sentenced to death, was the hour at which the priests began to slaughter Passover lambs in the temple; see Jn 1: 29.

19, 16: In the end, Pilate handed Jesus over to be crucified: according to the sequence this would seem to mean "handed him over to the chief priests." Lk 23, 25 has a similar ambiguity. There is a polemic tendency in the later gospels to place the guilt of the crucifixion solely on the Jewish authorities and to excuse the Romans from blame. Actually, John later mentions the Roman soldiers, and it was to these soldiers that Pilate handed Jesus over.

19, 17: Carrying the cross by himself: this is a different picture from that of the synoptics, especially Lk 23, 26, where Simon of Cyrene is made to bear the cross, walking behind Jesus. In John's theology Jesus remained master of his destiny (10, 18). Place of the Skull: the Latin word for skull is Calvaria; hence "Calvary." Golgotha is actually an Aramaic rather than a Hebrew word.

19, 19: The inscription or "title," found here in its technical form, appears with slightly different words in each of the four gospels. Only John mentions its polyglot character and Pilate's role in keeping the title unchanged.

19, 23: Perhaps this seamless tunic is meant to recall the tunic of the high priest which Josephus (Antiquities III, 8, 4) says was without seam. Rv 1, 13 shows Jesus in priestly robes. The synoptics do not have the details about Jesus' garments.

19, 25: It is not clear whether three or four women are meant (i.e., whether Mary the wife of Clopas is or is not in apposition with his mother's sister); the Syriac tradition has four women. Only John mentions the mother of Jesus. The synoptics have a group of women at a distance from the cross (Mk 15, 40). If his mother's sister is not Mary the wife of Clopas, is she to be identified with Salome of the synoptic account? Salome was the mother of James and John, the sons of Zebedee; and thus these two disciples would have been Jesus' cousins.

19, 26: This scene is to be read in the light of the Cana story in chapter 2. The presence of the mother of Jesus, the use of woman, and the mention of the hour, are elements of both scenes. Now that the hour has come, Mary (a symbol of the church?) is given a role as the mother of Christians (personified by the beloved disciple).

19, 28: The Scripture: it is not certain whether the fulfillment is in the scene of 25-27, or in the I am thirsty of 28. If the latter, Pss 69, 22 and 22, 16 deserve consideration.

19, 29: Common wine: John does not mention the drugged wine, a narcotic which Jesus refused as the crucifixion began (Mk 15, 25), but only this final gesture of kindness at the end (Mk 15, 36). Hyssop, a small plant, is scarcely suitable for carrying a sponge (Mark mentions a reed) and may be a symbolic reference to the hyssop used to put the blood of the paschal lamb on the doorpost of the Hebrews (Ex 12, 22).

wine. They stuck a sponge soaked in this wine on some hyssop and raised it to his lips. <sup>30*</sup>† When Jesus took the wine, he said, "Now it is finished." Then he bowed his head, and delivered over his spirit.

The Blood and Water. <sup>31*</sup> Since it was the Preparation Day the Jews did not want to have the bodies left on the cross during the sabbath, for that sabbath was a solemn feast day. They asked Pilate that the legs be broken and the bodies be taken away. <sup>32</sup> Accordingly, the soldiers came and broke the legs of the men crucified with Jesus, first of the one, then of the other. <sup>33</sup> When they came to Jesus and saw that he was already dead, they did not break his legs. <sup>34*</sup>† One of the soldiers thrust a lance into his side, and immediately blood and water flowed out. <sup>35*</sup>† (This testimony has been given by an eyewitness, and his testimony is true. He tells what he knows is true, so that you may believe.) <sup>36*</sup>† These events took place for the fulfillment of Scripture:

"Break none of his bones."

<sup>37*</sup>† There is still another Scripture passage which says:

"They shall look on him whom they have pierced."

Burial.† <sup>38*</sup> Afterward, Joseph of Arimathea, a disciple of Jesus (although a secret one for fear of the Jews), asked Pilate's permission to remove Jesus' body. Pilate granted it, so they came and took the body away. <sup>39*</sup> Nicodemus (the man who had first come to Jesus at night) likewise came, bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes which weighed about a hundred pounds. <sup>40</sup> They took Jesus' body, and in accordance with Jewish burial custom bound it up in wrappings of cloth with perfumed oils. <sup>41</sup> In the place where he had been crucified there was a garden, and in the garden a new tomb in which no one had ever been buried. <sup>42</sup> Because of the Jewish Preparation Day they buried Jesus there, for the tomb was close at hand.

CHAPTER 20

Peter and the Disciple. <sup>1*</sup>† Early in the morning on the first day of the week, while it was still dark, Mary Magdalene came to the tomb. She saw that the stone had been moved away, <sup>2</sup> so she ran off to Simon Peter and the other disciple (the one Jesus loved) and told them, "The Lord has been taken from the tomb! We don't know where they have put him!" <sup>3</sup>† At that, Peter and the other disciple started out on their way toward the tomb. <sup>4</sup> They were running side by side, but then the other disciple outran

Peter and reached the tomb first. <sup>5</sup> He did not enter but bent down to peer in, and saw the wrappings lying on the ground. <sup>6*</sup>† Presently, Simon Peter came along behind him and entered the tomb. He observed the wrappings on the ground <sup>7*</sup> and saw the piece of cloth which had covered the head not lying with the wrappings, but rolled up in a place by itself. <sup>8</sup> Then the disciple who had arrived first at the tomb went in. He saw and believed. <sup>9*</sup>† (Remember, as yet they did not understand the Scripture that Jesus had to rise from the dead.) <sup>10</sup> With this, the disciples went back home.

Mary Magdalene. <sup>11</sup> Meanwhile, Mary stood weeping beside the tomb. Even as she wept, she stooped to peer inside, <sup>12</sup> and there she saw two angels in dazzling robes. One was seated at the head and the other at the foot of the place where Jesus' body had lain.

30: 4, 34; 10, 18; 17, 4; Lk 23, 46.	Mk 15, 42-46; Lk 23, 50-54.
31: Ex 12, 16; Dt 21, 23.	39: 3, 1f; 7, 50.
34: Nm 20, 11; 1 Jn 5, 6.	20, 1-18: Mt 28, 1-10; Mk 16, 1-11; Lk 24, 1-11.
35: 7, 37ff; 21, 24.	1: 19, 25.
36: Ex 12, 46; Nm 9, 12; Ps 34, 21.	6: Lk 24, 12.
37: Nm 21, 9; Zec 12, 10; Rv 1, 7.	7: 11, 44; 19, 40.
38-42: Mt 27, 57-60;	9: Acts 2, 26f; 1 Cor 15, 4.

† 19, 30: Delivered over his spirit: it is awkward in English to preserve the possible double nuance of dying (giving up the last breath or spirit) and that of passing on the Holy Spirit; see 7, 39, which connects the giving of the Spirit with Jesus' glorious return to the Father.

† 19, 34f: John probably emphasizes these verses to show the reality of Jesus' death, against the Docetic heretics. In the blood and water there may also be a symbolic reference to the Eucharist and Baptism.

† 19, 35: He tells: it is not certain from the Greek that this he is the eyewitness of the first part of the sentence.

† 19, 36: The scriptural reference is probably to Ex 12, 46 (Nm 9, 12), which has directions for dealing with the Passover lamb. That Jesus is the Paschal Lamb is a Johannine theme, and thus at the end of the gospel we are called back to 1, 29. There may also be a reference to Ps 34, 21, describing God's safeguarding of an innocent man.

† 19, 37: John cites Zec 12, 10 (also cited in Rv 1, 7), but not exactly according to either the standard Hebrew reading or the Greek Old Testament. There was a Jewish tradition of uncertain date that this text referred to the Messiah.

† 19, 38-42: In the first three gospels there is no embalming on Friday. In Matthew and Luke the women come to the tomb on Sunday morning precisely to anoint Jesus.

† 20, 1: Still dark: according to Mark the sun had risen, and Matthew speaks of the first rays of light.

† 20, 3-10: The basic narrative is told of Peter alone in Lk 24, 12, a verse missing in important MSS and which may be borrowed from tradition similar to John. Lk 24, 24 also generally reflects this story.

† 20, 6-8: There was some special feature about the state of the burial wrappings that caused the beloved disciple to believe. Some suggest that Jesus had passed through them without their being unrolled.

† 20, 9: Probably a general reference to the Scriptures is intended, as in Lk 24, 26 and 1 Cor 15, 4. Some individual Old Testament passages suggested are Ps 16, 10; Hos 6, 2; Jon 1, 17, 2, 1.

<sup>13</sup> "Woman," they asked her, "why are you weeping?" She answered them, "Because the Lord has been taken away, and I do not know where they have put him."<sup>14</sup>* She had no sooner said this than she turned around and caught sight of Jesus standing there. But she did not know him.<sup>15</sup>* "Woman," he asked her, "why are you weeping? Who is it you are looking for?" She supposed he was the gardener, so she said, "Sir, if you are the one who carried him off, tell me where you have laid him and I will take him away."<sup>16</sup> Jesus said to her, "Mary!" She turned to him and said [in Hebrew], "Rabbouni!" (meaning "Teacher").<sup>17</sup>*† Jesus then said: "Do not cling to me, for I have not yet ascended to the Father. Rather, go to my brothers and tell them, 'I am ascending to my Father and your Father, to my God and your God!'"<sup>18</sup> Mary Magdalene went to the disciples. "I have seen the Lord!" she announced. Then she reported what he had said to her.

Appearance to the Disciples. <sup>19</sup>† On the evening of that first day of the week, even though the disciples had locked the doors of the place where they were for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood before them. "Peace be with you," he said.<sup>20</sup>*† When he had said this, he showed them his hands and his side. At the sight of the Lord the disciples rejoiced.<sup>21</sup>*† "Peace be with you," he said again.

"As the Father has sent me,
so I send you."

<sup>22</sup>† Then he breathed on them and said:

"Receive the Holy Spirit.

<sup>23</sup>*† If you forgive men's sins,
they are forgiven them;
if you hold them bound,
they are held bound."

Thomas. <sup>24</sup> It happened that one of the Twelve, Thomas (the name means "Twin"), was absent when Jesus came.<sup>25</sup>* The other disciples kept telling him: "We have seen the Lord!" His answer was, "I will never believe it without probing the nailprints in his hands, without putting my finger in the nailmarks and my hand into his side."

<sup>26</sup>* A week later, the disciples were once more in the room, and this time Thomas was with them. Despite the locked doors, Jesus came and stood before them. "Peace be with you," he said;<sup>27</sup> then, to Thomas: "Take your finger and examine my hands. Put your hand into my side. Do not persist in your unbelief, but believe!"<sup>28</sup>† Thomas said in response, "My Lord and my God!"<sup>29</sup>* Jesus then said to him:

"You became a believer because you saw me.

Blest are they who have not seen and have believed."

Conclusion.† <sup>30</sup> Jesus performed many other signs as well—signs not recorded here—in the presence of his disciples.<sup>31</sup>*† But these have been recorded to help you believe that Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God, so that through this faith you may have life in his name.

14: 21, 4; Lk 24, 16.	23: Mt 16, 19; 18, 18.
15ff: Mt 28, 9f.	25: 1 Jn 1, 1.
17: Acts 1, 9.	26: 21, 14.
20: 14, 27.	29: 4, 48; Lk 1, 45.
21: 17, 18; Mt 28, 19; Mk 16, 15; Lk 24, 47f.	31: 1 Jn 5, 13.

† 20, 17: Do not cling to me: literally "Don't keep touching me." See Mt 28, 9, where the women take hold of his feet. I have not yet ascended: for John and many of the New Testament writers, the ascension in the theological sense of going to the Father to be glorified took place with the resurrection as one action. This scene in John dramatizes such an understanding, for by Easter night Jesus is glorified and can give the Spirit. Therefore his ascension takes place immediately after he has talked to Mary. In such a view, the ascension after forty days described in Acts 1, 1-11 would be simply the termination of earthly appearances. My Father and your Father: this echoes Ru 1, 16, Your people shall be my people, and your God my God. The Father of Jesus will now become the Father of the disciples because, once ascended, Jesus can give them the Spirit that comes from the Father and beget them as God's children (3, 5). That is why he calls them my brothers.

20, 19: The disciples: by implication from v 24, this means ten of the Twelve. Lk 24, 33 mentions a larger group; Mk 16, 14 refers to the Eleven. Presumably they are in Jerusalem; see Lk 24, 33. The "upper room" is first mentioned in Acts 1, 13, as the place to which the Eleven came forty days later, after Jesus' final departure. Peace be with you: although this could be an ordinary greeting, John intends here to echo 14, 27. The theme of rejoicing in v 20 echoes 16, 22.

20, 20: Hands and . . . side: Lk 24, 39f mentions "hands and feet"; cf Ps 22, 17.

20, 21: By means of this sending, the Eleven were made apostles, that is, "those sent": cf 17, 18. A solemn mission or "sending" is also the subject of the post-resurrection appearances to the Eleven in Mt 28, 19; Lk 24, 47; Mk 16, 15.

20, 22: According to the Second Council of Constantinople, the Spirit was truly given here and the breathing on the disciples was not merely symbolic. This action recalls Gn 2, 7, where God breathed on man and gave him the natural spirit or life-force; in John it is the life-source for supernatural life that is given. The apostles are recreated as new men, sons of God. The further giving of the Spirit in chapter 2 of Acts is a more public charism for the church.

20, 23: The Council of Trent defined that the power to forgive sins given here is the same power exercised in the Sacrament of Penance. See Mt 16, 19 and 18, 18. If you hold them bound, they are held bound: the reference of they, them, not wholly clear in the Greek, is more probably to sins than to men.

20, 28: The Second Council of Constantinople defined that this confession of Thomas referred to Christ and was not simply an expression of glory to God the Father. Lord and God are two Old Testament titles of God (Ps 35, 23).

20, 30f: These verses are clearly a conclusion to the gospel.

20, 31: See 1 Jn 5, 13. To help you believe: it is difficult to determine whether the Greek should be read "that you may continue to believe" (i.e., the readers are Christians) or "that you may come to believe" (i.e., perhaps the readers are non-Christians).

IV: APPENDIX: THE RESURRECTION APPEARANCE IN GALILEE

CHAPTER 21†

The Fishermen. <sup>1*</sup> Later, at the Sea of Tiberias, Jesus showed himself to the disciples [once again]. This is how the appearance took place. <sup>2†</sup> Assembled were Simon Peter, Thomas ("the Twin"), Nathanael (from Cana in Galilee), Zebedee's sons, and two other disciples. <sup>3*†</sup> Simon Peter said to them, "I am going out to fish." "We will join you," they replied, and went off to get into their boat. All through the night they caught nothing. <sup>4</sup> Just after daybreak Jesus was standing on the shore, though none of the disciples knew it was Jesus. <sup>5*</sup> He said to them, "Children, have you caught anything to eat?" "Not a thing," they answered. <sup>6</sup> "Cast your net off to the starboard side," he suggested, "and you will find something." So they made a cast, and took so many fish they could not haul the net in. <sup>7</sup> Then the disciple Jesus loved cried out to Peter, "It is the Lord!" On hearing it was the Lord, Simon Peter threw on some clothes—he was stripped—and jumped into the water.

<sup>8</sup> Meanwhile the other disciples came in the boat, towing the net full of fish. Actually they were not far from land—no more than a hundred yards.

<sup>9*†</sup> When they landed, they saw a charcoal fire there with a fish laid on it and some bread. <sup>10</sup> "Bring some of the fish you just caught," Jesus told them. <sup>11†</sup> Simon Peter went aboard and hauled ashore the net loaded with sizable fish—one hundred fifty-three of them! In spite of the great number, the net was not torn.

<sup>12†</sup> "Come and eat your meal," Jesus told them. Not one of the disciples presumed to inquire, "Who are you?" for they knew it was the Lord. <sup>13*</sup> Jesus came over, took the bread and gave it to them, and did the same with the fish. <sup>14†</sup> This marked the third time that Jesus appeared to the disciples after being raised from the dead.

Peter the Shepherd. <sup>15*</sup> When they had eaten their meal, Jesus said to Simon Peter, "Simon, son of John, do you love me more than these?" "Yes, Lord," he said, "you know that I love you." At which Jesus said, "Feed my lambs."

<sup>16</sup> A second time he put his question, "Simon, son of John, do you love me?" "Yes, Lord," Peter said, "you know that I love you." Jesus replied, "Tend my sheep."

<sup>17*</sup> A third time Jesus asked him, "Simon, son of John, do you love me?" Peter was hurt because he had asked a third time, "Do you love me?" So he said to him: "Lord, you know everything. You know well that I love you." Jesus said to him, "Feed my sheep."

<sup>18*†</sup> "I tell you solemnly:
as a young man
you fastened your belt
and went about as you pleased;
but when you are older
you will stretch out your hands, and another will tie you fast and carry you off against your will."

<sup>19*</sup> (What he said indicated the sort of death by which Peter was to glorify God.) When Jesus had finished speaking he said to him, "Follow me."

The Beloved Disciple. <sup>20*</sup> Peter turned around at that, and noticed that the disciple whom Jesus loved was following (the one who had leaned against Jesus' chest during the supper and said, "Lord, which one will hand you over?").

<sup>21</sup> Seeing him, Peter was prompted to ask Jesus, "But Lord, what about him?"

<sup>22</sup> "Suppose I want him to stay until I come," Jesus replied, "how does that

21, 1: Mt 26, 32; 28, 7.	20, 28.
3: Mt 4, 18; Lk 5, 4-10.	17: 13, 37f; 18, 17-25f; Mt 16, 17f; Lk 22, 31f.
5: Lk 24, 41.	18: 2 Pt 1, 14.
9: Lk 24, 41ff.	19: 13, 36.
13: Lk 24, 42.	20: 13, 25.
15: Lk 5, 10; Acts

† 21, 1-23: There are many non-Johannine peculiarities in this chapter, some suggesting Lucan Greek style, yet there are many Johannine features as well. Perhaps the tradition was ultimately derived from John but preserved by some disciple other than the writer of the rest of the gospel. The appearances narrated seem to be independent of those in chapter 20. Even if a later addition, the chapter was added before publication of the gospel, for it appears in all MSS.

21, 2: Zebedee's sons: the only mention by name of James and John in this gospel. Perhaps the phrase was inserted to identify the two other disciples. The anonymity of the latter phrase is more Johannine (1, 35).

21, 3-6: This may be a variant of Luke's account of the catch of fish (5, 1-11), which he joined with the call of the first disciples.

21, 9, 12f: It is strange that Jesus already has fish since none have yet been brought ashore. This meal may have had eucharistic significance for early Christians since v 13 recalls John 6, 11, which uses the vocabulary of Jesus' action at the Last Supper.

21, 11: The exact number, 153, is probably meant to have a symbolic meaning, perhaps in relation to the apostles' mission to catch men. The net which was not torn may represent the church.

21, 12: Not one . . . presumed: is Jesus' appearance strange to them? See Lk 24, 16; Mk 16, 12; Jn 20, 14.

21, 14: This verse connects chapters 20 and 21.

21, 15ff: In these three verses there is a remarkable variety of synonyms: two different Greek verbs for love; two verbs for feed/tend; two or three nouns for sheep; two verbs for know. Apparently there is no difference of meaning. The First Vatican Council cited this verse in defining that the nsen Jesus gave Peter the jurisdiction of supreme shepherd and ruler over the whole flock.

21, 15: More than these: probably "more than these disciples do" rather than "more than you love these things [fishing, etc.]."

21, 18: A figurative reference to the crucifixion of Peter.

concern you? Your business is to follow me." <sup>23</sup>† This is how the report spread among the brothers that this disciple was not going to die. Jesus never told him, as a matter of fact, that the disciple was not going to die; all he said was, "Suppose I want him to stay until I come [how does that concern you]?"

Conclusion. <sup>24</sup>*† It is this same disciple who is the witness to these things; it is he who wrote them down and his testimony, we know, is true. <sup>25</sup>* There are still many other things that Jesus did, yet if they were written about in detail, I doubt there would be room enough in the entire world to hold the books to record them.

---

24: 15, 27; 19, 35.

25: 20, 30.

† 21, 23: This whole scene takes on more significance if the disciple is already dead. The death of the apostolic generation caused problems in the church because of a belief that Jesus was to have returned first. Loss of faith sometimes resulted; cf 2 Pt 3, 4.

† 21, 24: Who wrote them down: this does not necessarily mean he wrote them with his own hand. The same expression is used in 19, 9 of Pilate, who certainly did not write the inscription himself. We know: it is probably not the beloved disciple of v 7 who speaks here as we.

THE ACTS

OF THE APOSTLES

Luke is the only one of the evangelists who supplements his gospel with a second volume describing the origin and spread of the Christian communities in New Testament times. He attributes the establishment of these churches to the action of the Holy Spirit, specifically upon Peter (2, 14-18; 4, 8; 15, 8) and Paul (13, 2ff; 16, 6, 20, 22f). Peter was the leading member of the Twelve (1, 13, 26) and the recognized authority over the Judaeo-Christian communities (12, 17; 15, 6-12). Paul eventually joined the church at Antioch (11, 25f), which subsequently commissioned him and Barnabas to undertake the spread of the gospel to Asia Minor. This missionary venture generally failed to win the Jews of the diaspora to the gospel, but enjoyed a measure of success among the Gentiles (13, 14—14, 27). Paul's refusal to impose the Mosaic law upon his Gentile converts provoked very strong objection among the Judaeo-Christians of Jerusalem (15, 1), but both Peter and James supported his position (15, 6-21). Paul's second and third missionary journeys (16, 36—21, 16) resulted in the same pattern: of failure among the Jews generally but of some success among the Gentiles.

In Acts, Luke has provided a broad survey of the church's development from the resurrection of Jesus to Paul's first Roman imprisonment, the point at which the book ends. Originally a Judaeo-Christian community in Jerusalem, the church was placed in circumstances impelling it to include within its membership people of other cultures: the Samaritans (8, 4-25), at first an occasional Gentile (8, 26-40, 10, 1-48), and finally the Gentiles on principle (11, 20f). Fear on the part of the Jewish people that Christian messianism, particularly as preached to the Gentiles, threatened their own cultural heritage caused them to be suspicious of Paul's gospel (15, 1-5; 13, 42-45; 28, 17-24). The inability of Christian missionaries to allay this apprehension inevitably created a situation wherein the gospel was preached more and more to the Gentiles. Toward the end of Paul's career, the Christian communities, with the exception of those in Palestine itself (9, 31), were mainly of Gentile membership.

In the development of the church from a Judaeo-Christian origin in Jerusalem, with its roots in Jewish religious tradition, to a series of Christian communities among the Gentiles of the Roman Empire, Luke perceives the action of God in history laying open the hearts of all mankind to the divine message of salvation. His approach to the history of the church is predominantly theological. He conceives of the church as a mystery of God introduced into history through the apostolic preaching (1, 21f), which was forced to adapt itself to circumstances and so to carry forward the predestined spread of God's word among men, again in history. His preoccupation with the mystery of the church as the bearer of the word of salvation rules out of his book detailed histories of the various members of the Twelve as well as of the churches founded by Paul. Only the main lines of the roles of Peter and Paul serve Luke's interest. Nonetheless, the historical data he utilizes are of value for the understanding of the church's early life and development and as general background to the Pauline epistles. In the interpretation of Acts, care must be exercised to determine Luke's theological aims and interests and to evaluate his historical data without either exaggerating their literal accuracy or underestimating their factual worth. Concerning the date of Acts, see Introduction of the Gospel according to Luke.

The book of the Acts of the Apostles is divided as follows:

- I: Prologue (1, 1-14)*
  - II: The Community in Jerusalem Finds Maturity in the Spirit (1, 15—5, 42)*
  - III: Spread of the Church through Persecution in Jerusalem (6, 1—8, 3)*
  - IV: The Community Carries the Message to Samaria, Syria and Cyprus (8, 4—12, 24)*
  - V: Mission of Barnabas and Saul (12, 25—15, 35)*
  - VI: Paul's Mission to the Gentiles (15, 36—21, 14)*
  - VII: Paul the Prisoner Bears Witness to the Resurrection (21, 15—28, 31)*
-

I: PROLOGUE

CHAPTER 1†

Jesus' Final Instructions and Ascension. <sup>1*</sup> In my first account, Theophilus, I dealt with all that Jesus did and taught <sup>2*</sup> until the day he was taken up to heaven, having first instructed the apostles he had chosen through the Holy Spirit. <sup>3*</sup> In the time after his suffering he showed them in many convincing ways that he was alive, appearing to them over the course of forty days and speaking to them about the reign of God. <sup>4*†</sup> On one occasion when he met with them, he told them not to leave Jerusalem: "Wait, rather, for the fulfillment of my Father's promise, of which you have heard me speak. <sup>5*</sup> John baptized with water, but within a few days you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit."

<sup>6</sup> While they were with him they asked, "Lord, are you going to restore the rule to Israel now?" <sup>7*†</sup> His answer was: "The exact time is not yours to know. The Father has reserved that to himself. <sup>8*</sup> You will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes down on you; then you are to be my witnesses in Jerusalem, throughout Judea and Samaria, yes, even to the ends of the earth." <sup>9*†</sup> No sooner had he said this than he was lifted up before their eyes in a cloud which took him from their sight.

<sup>10*</sup> They were still gazing up into the heavens when two men dressed in white stood beside them. <sup>11*</sup> "Men of Galilee," they said, "why do you stand here looking up at the skies? This Jesus who has been taken from you will return, just as you saw him go up into the heavens."

<sup>12*</sup> After that they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet near Jerusalem—a mere sabbath's journey away. <sup>13</sup> Entering the city, they went to the upstairs room where they were staying: Peter and John and James and Andrew; Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew; James son of Alphaeus; Simon, the Zealot party member, and Judas son of James. <sup>14</sup> Together they devoted themselves to constant prayer. There were some women in their company, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and his brothers.

II: THE COMMUNITY IN JERUSALEM FINDS MATURITY IN THE SPIRIT

Matthias Chosen. <sup>15</sup> At one point during those days, Peter stood up in the center of the brothers; there must have been a hundred and twenty gathered together. <sup>16*</sup> "Brothers," he said, "the saying in Scripture uttered long ago by the Holy Spirit through the mouth of David was destined to be fulfilled in Judas, the one who guided those that arrested Jesus. <sup>17</sup> He was one of our number and he had been given a share in this ministry of ours.

<sup>18†</sup> "That individual bought a piece of land with his unjust gains, and fell headlong upon it. His body burst wide open, all his entrails spilling out. <sup>19</sup> This event came to be known by the inhabitants of Jerusalem, who named the property Field of Blood—'Akeldama' in their own language.

<sup>20*</sup> "It is written in the Book of Psalms,

1, 1; Lk 1, 1-4.	8: 2, 2; Is 43, 10;
2: Mt 28, 19f; Lk	Mt 28, 19.
24, 51; 1 Tm 3,	9: 2 Kgs 2, 11; Mk
16.	16, 19.
4: Jn 14, 26.	10: Jn 20, 17.
5: 11, 16; Mt 3, 11;	11: Lk 24, 51; Eph
Mk 1, 8; Lk 3,	4, 8ff; 1 Pt 3, 22.
16; Jn 1, 26;	12ff: Lk 6, 14ff.
Eph 1, 13.	16: Lk 22, 47.
7: Mt 24, 36; 1	20: Pss 69, 26; 109,
Thes 5, 1f.	8, Jn 17, 12.

† 1, 1-26: This introductory material connects Acts with Luke's gospel (1, 1f); shows that the apostles were instructed by the risen Jesus (1, 3ff); points out that the parousia or renewed presence of Jesus will occur as certainly as his resurrection occurred (1, 6-11); and lists the members of the Twelve, stressing their role as a body of divinely mandated witnesses to his life, teaching, and resurrection (1, 12-26).
 1, 3: In many convincing ways: the meaning of the Greek is that the apostles received evidence of Jesus' resurrection decisive enough to eliminate doubt from their minds (Lk 24, 36-49). This divinely offered proof, however, entailed more than an appeal to human reason. It included prophetic illumination which rendered the apostles certain that the appearances of the risen Christ were actions of God manifesting himself to their human experience. Appearing to them over the course of forty days: Christian tradition considered especially sacred the interval in which the appearances and instructions of the risen Jesus occurred, and expressed it therefore in terms of the sacred number forty; cf Dt 8, 2.

According to John (20, 17), the ascension of Jesus to the kingdom of his Father took place on the day of his resurrection. Luke writes from a different perspective and speaks of a visible ascension of Jesus after forty days. For John, the ascension means primarily the risen Jesus' new existence with the Father, and the appearances are those of the risen and ascended One. For Luke, the ascension marks the end of the appearances of Jesus except for the extraordinary appearance to Paul.

1, 4: My Father's promise: the Holy Spirit, as is clear from 1, 5. This gift of the Spirit formed part of the instructions of the risen Jesus on the kingdom of God, of which Luke speaks in 1, 3. Probably this instruction is the source of the material on the Holy Spirit in Jn 15, 26f and 16, 7-15.

1, 7: This verse echoes the tradition that the precise time of the parousia is not revealed to men; cf Mk 13, 32; 1 Thes 5, 1ff.

1, 9: Comparison of this verse with Lk 24, 51 suggests that there were several visible ascensions of the risen Christ. Mt 28, 16-20 raises the possibility of a similar visible ascension of Christ in Galilee. The visible ascension accorded with the cosmological conception of the time that held the sky to be a solid vault above which was God's throne. On other occasions, Jesus simply vanished; cf Lk 24, 31. A visible ascension is not described in Jn 20, 17.

1, 18: Luke records a popular tradition on the death of Judas that seems to differ from that in Mt 27, 5, according to which Judas hanged himself. Here, though the text is not entirely clear, Judas is depicted as purchasing a piece of property with the betrayal money and being killed on it in a fall.

'Let his encampment be desolate.
May no one dwell on it.'

And again,

'May another take his office.'

22: 1, 8; 10, 39.	104, 30; Jn 20,
2, 1: Ex 23, 14.	33.
2f: Jn 3, 8.	5: Wis 1, 7.
4: 1, 5, 4, 31; 11,	11: 10, 46.
16; 19, 6; Ps	13: 1 Cor 14, 23.

<sup>21</sup> It is entirely fitting, therefore, that one of those who was of our company while the Lord Jesus moved among us, <sup>22*</sup> from the baptism of John until the day he was taken up from us, should be named as witness with us to his resurrection.<sup>23</sup> <sup>23</sup> At that they nominated two, Joseph (called Barsabbas, also known as Justus) and Matthias. <sup>24</sup> Then they prayed: "O Lord, you read the hearts of men. Make known to us which of these two you choose <sup>25</sup> for this apostolic ministry, replacing Judas, who deserted the cause and went the way he was destined to go." <sup>26†</sup> They then drew lots between the two men. The choice fell to Matthias, who was added to the eleven apostles.

CHAPTER 2

Descent of the Holy Spirit. <sup>1*†</sup> When the day of Pentecost came it found them gathered in one place. <sup>2*†</sup> Suddenly from up in the sky there came a noise like a strong, driving wind which was heard all through the house where they were seated. <sup>3†</sup> Tongues as of fire appeared, which parted and came to rest on each of them. <sup>4*†</sup> All were filled with the Holy Spirit. They began to express themselves in foreign tongues and make bold proclamation as the Spirit prompted them.

<sup>5*</sup> Staying in Jerusalem at the time were devout Jews of every nation under heaven. <sup>6†</sup> These heard the sound, and assembled in a large crowd. They were much confused because each one heard these men speaking his own language. <sup>7</sup> The whole occurrence astonished them. They asked in utter amazement, "Are not all of these men who are speaking Galileans?" <sup>8</sup> How is it that each of us hears them in his native tongue? <sup>9</sup> We are Parthians, Medes, and Elamites. We live in Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus, the province of Asia, <sup>10</sup> Phrygia, and Pamphylia, Egypt, and the regions of Libya around Cyrene. There are even visitors from Rome—<sup>11*</sup> all Jews, or those who have come over to Judaism; Cretans and Arabs too. Yet each of us hears them speaking in his own tongue about the marvels God has accomplished."<sup>12</sup> They were dumbfounded, and could make nothing at all of what had happened.

"What does this mean?" they asked one another, while a few remarked with a sneer, <sup>13*</sup> "They have had too much new wine!"

Peter's Discourse. <sup>14†</sup> Peter stood up

† —————
 1, 26: The need for replacing Judas so as to restore the apostolic college to the number of twelve was probably dictated by the symbolism of the number. It recalled the twelve tribes from which all Israelites were thought to be descended, and indicated that the messianic teaching about Jesus was to be directed first to the whole of Israel.

2, 1-41: Luke's pentecostal narrative consists of an introduction (2, 1-13), a speech ascribed to Peter declaring the resurrection of Jesus and its messianic significance (2, 14-36), and a favorable response from the audience (2, 39ff). It is likely that the narrative telescopes events that took place over a period of time and on a less dramatic scale. The Twelve were not originally in a position to proclaim publicly the messianic office of Jesus without incurring immediate reprisal from those religious authorities in Jerusalem who had encompassed Jesus' death precisely to stem the rising tide in his favor; cf Jn 11, 47f. Once the "new covenant" had acquired many adherents, public teaching could more easily be undertaken. In any case, these reflections point up Luke's emphasis on the Holy Spirit. He is at pains to show that Christianity cannot be accounted a mere religious sect within Judaism that developed its own brand of messianism. On the contrary, it declared itself from the beginning as originating in the inspiration and under the impulsion of God.

2, 2: From up in the sky there came a noise like a strong, driving wind: the wind and the Holy Spirit are associated in Jn 3, 8. The sound of a great rush of wind would aptly presage a new action of God in the history of salvation.

2, 3: Tongues as of fire: see Ex 19, 18, where fire symbolizes the presence of God to initiate the covenant on Sinai. Here the Holy Spirit acts upon the apostles, preparing them to proclaim the new covenant with its unique gift of the Spirit (2, 38).

2, 4: To express themselves in foreign tongues: ecstatic prayer in praise of God; cf 2, 11.

2, 6-13: The multitude receives the charism of interpretation of tongues (1 Cor 12, 10). The question of the meaning of this charism is raised. To some of the hearers, however, the language is unintelligible, and they conclude the apostles are drunk. Luke may have in mind here the varying reactions to the gift in the early Christian communities; cf 1 Cor 14, 22-25.

2, 14-36: The first of six discourses in Acts (see 3, 12-26; 4, 8-12; 5, 29-32; 10, 34-43; 13, 16-41) dealing with the substance of Christian messianism, the resurrection of Jesus and its messianic import. Five of these are attributed to Peter, the final one to Paul. In 1 Cor 15, 11 Paul refers to the apostolic teaching on the death and resurrection of Jesus as "the preaching" or "proclamation." Hence modern scholars term these discourses in Acts the "kerygma," the Greek word for proclamation.

In the present discourse, Peter appeals to the religious faith of the audience and presents himself as one in possession of certain religious information given by God together with the ability to interpret it. This is called a prophetic announcement. The following chief points are made:

(1) The ecstatic prayer is due to the influence of the Spirit, which the prophet Joel foretold would be especially active in messianic times (16-21); (2) the crucifixion of Jesus of Nazareth, a man publicly known in Jerusalem because of his miracle-working, was an integral part of God's saving plan, as God has indicated by raising him from the dead (22f); (3) the prophetic understanding of the Old Testament reveals that the resurrection and ascension of the Messiah was God's actual saving plan (25-35); (4) the true meaning of the death, resurrection and ascension of Jesus is that he is the divinely enthroned messianic King of Israel (36), bestowing the gift of the Spirit upon all who accept him as Savior (38).

The prophetic character of the kerygmatic discourses in Acts explains why they do not include accounts of the appearances of Jesus. Only to one who accepts the prophetic announcement of Jesus' resurrection will accounts of his subsequent appearances convey any meaning.

with the Eleven, raised his voice, and addressed them: "You who are Jews, indeed all of you staying in Jerusalem! Listen to what I have to say. <sup>15</sup> You must realize that these men are not drunk, as you seem to think. It is only nine in the morning! <sup>16</sup> No, it is what Joel the prophet spoke of:

<sup>17*</sup> 'It shall come to pass in the last days, says God, that I will pour out a portion of my spirit on all mankind:
Your sons and daughters shall prophesy,
your young men shall see visions
and your old men shall dream dreams.

<sup>18</sup> Yes, even on my servants and handmaids
I will pour out a portion of my spirit in those days,
and they shall prophesy.

<sup>19</sup> I will work wonders in the heavens above and signs on the earth below:
blood, fire, and a cloud of smoke.

<sup>20</sup> The sun shall be turned to darkness
and the moon to blood
before the coming of that great and glorious day of the Lord.

<sup>21*</sup> Then shall everyone be saved who calls on the name of the Lord.'

<sup>22*</sup> "Men of Israel, listen to me! Jesus the Nazorean was a man whom God sent to you with miracles, wonders, and signs as his credentials. These God worked through him in your midst, as you well know. <sup>23*</sup> He was delivered up by the set purpose and plan of God; you even made use of pagans to crucify and kill him. <sup>24*</sup> God freed him from death's bitter pangs, however, and raised him up again, for it was impossible that death should keep its hold on him. <sup>25*</sup> David says of him:

'I have set the Lord ever before me, with him at my right hand I shall not be disturbed.

<sup>26</sup> My heart has been glad and my tongue has rejoiced, my body will live on in hope, <sup>27*</sup> for you will not abandon my soul to the nether world, nor will you suffer your faithful one to undergo corruption.

<sup>28</sup> You have shown me the paths of life;
you will fill me with joy in your presence.'

<sup>29</sup> "Brothers, I can speak confidently to you about our father David. He died and was buried, and his grave is in our midst to this day. <sup>30*</sup> He was a prophet and knew that God had sworn to him that one of his descendants would sit upon his throne. <sup>31*</sup> He said that he was not abandoned to the nether world, nor did his body undergo corruption, thus proclaiming beforehand the resurrection of the Messiah. <sup>32</sup> This is the Jesus God has raised up, and we are his witnesses. <sup>33*</sup> Exalted at God's right hand, he first received the promised Holy Spirit from the Father, then poured this Spirit out on us. This is what you now see and hear. <sup>34*</sup> David did not go up to heaven, yet David says,

'The Lord said to my Lord,
Sit at my right hand

<sup>35</sup> until I make your enemies your footstool.'

<sup>36*</sup> Therefore let the whole house of Israel know beyond any doubt that God has made both Lord and Messiah this Jesus whom you crucified."

<sup>37</sup> When they heard this, they were deeply shaken. They asked Peter and the other apostles, "What are we to do, brothers?" <sup>38*</sup>† Peter answered: "You must reform and be baptized, each one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, that your sins may be forgiven; then you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. <sup>39</sup> It was to you and your children that the promise was made, and to all those still far off whom the Lord our God calls."

<sup>40*</sup> In support of his testimony he used many other arguments, and kept urging, "Save yourselves from this generation which has gone astray." <sup>41*</sup> Those who accepted his message were baptized; some three thousand were added that day.

Communal Life.† <sup>42*</sup> They devoted

17: Is 2, 2; 44, 3; Jl 3, 1-5.	31: 13, 35; Ps 16, 10.
21: Rom 10, 13.	33: 1, 4f.
22: 10, 38; Lk 24, 19.	34: Ps 110, 1.
23: 1 Thes 2, 15.	36: 9, 22; Rom 10, 9; Phil 2, 11.
24: 13, 34.	38: 2, 33; 16, 31.
25-28: Ps 16, 8-11.	40: Lk 9, 41.
27: 13, 35.	41: 1, 5.
30: 2 Sm 7, 12; Ps 132, 11.	42-47: 4, 32-35, 42: 1, 14; 6, 4.

†

2, 38: You must reform and be baptized: repentance is a positive concept, a change of heart toward God reflected in the actual goodness of one's own life. It is in accord with the apostolic teaching derived from Jesus (2, 42) and ultimately recorded in the four gospels. Jesus made use of baptism at the beginning of his ministry (Jn 3, 22; 4, 2), but according to the synoptic evangelists abandoned the practice after the arrest of the Baptist. Matthew tells us (28, 19) that the sacramental usage of baptism was an instruction given to the apostles by the risen Christ. Jesus spoke of this new baptism to Nicodemus (Jn 3, 5).

2, 42-47: The first of three summary passages (see 4, 32-37 and 5, 12-16) which outline, somewhat ideally, the chief characteristics of the Jerusalem community: adherence to the teachings of the Twelve concerning repentance; the centering of its religious life in the eucharistic liturgy (42); a system of distribution of goods that led wealthy Christians to sell their possessions when the needs of the community's poor required it (44 and note on 4, 32-5, 11); continued attendance at the Temple, since in this initial stage there was little or no thought of dividing lines between Judaism and Christianity.

themselves to the apostles' instruction and the communal life, to the breaking of bread and the prayers. <sup>43*</sup> A reverent fear overtook them all, for many wonders and signs were performed by the apostles. <sup>44*</sup> Those who believed shared all things in common; <sup>45</sup> they would sell their property and goods, dividing everything on the basis of each one's need. <sup>46</sup> They went to the temple area together every day, while in their homes they broke bread. With exultant and sincere hearts they took their meals in common, <sup>47†</sup> praising God and winning the approval of all the people. Day by day the Lord added to their number those who were being saved.

CHAPTER 3

Cure of a Cripple. <sup>1†</sup> Once, when Peter and John were going up to the temple for prayer at the three o'clock hour, <sup>2</sup> a man crippled from birth was being carried in. They would bring him every day and put him at the temple gate called "the Beautiful" to beg from the people as they entered. <sup>3</sup> When he saw Peter and John on their way in, he begged them for an alms. <sup>4</sup> Peter fixed his gaze on the man; so did John. "Look at us!" Peter said. <sup>5</sup> The cripple gave them his whole attention, hoping to get something. <sup>6†</sup> Then Peter said: "I have neither silver nor gold, but what I have I give you! In the name of Jesus Christ the Nazorean, walk!" <sup>7*</sup> Then Peter took him by the right hand and pulled him up. Immediately the beggar's feet and ankles became strong; <sup>8*</sup> he jumped up, stood for a moment, then began to walk around. He went into the temple with them—walking, jumping about, and praising God. <sup>9</sup> When the people saw him moving and giving praise to God, <sup>10</sup> they recognized him as that beggar who used to sit at the Beautiful Gate of the temple. They were struck with astonishment—utterly stupefied at what had happened to him.

Peter's Discourse. <sup>11</sup> As the man stood there clinging to Peter and John, the whole crowd rushed over to them excitedly in Solomon's Portico. <sup>12*</sup> When Peter saw this, he addressed the people as follows: "Fellow Israelites, why does this surprise you? Why do you stare at us as if we had made this man walk by some power or holiness of our own? <sup>13†</sup> The God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, has glorified his Servant Jesus, whom you handed over and disowned in Pilate's presence when Pilate was ready to release him. <sup>14*†</sup> You disowned the Holy and Just One and preferred instead to be granted the release of a murderer.

<sup>15†</sup> You put to death the Author of life. But God raised him from the dead, and we are his witnesses. <sup>16*</sup> It is his name, and trust in this name, that has strengthened the limbs of this man whom you see and know well. Such faith has given him perfect health, as all of you can observe.

<sup>17*†</sup> "Yet I know, my brothers, that you acted out of ignorance, just as your leaders did. <sup>18*†</sup> God has brought to fulfillment by this means what he announced long ago through all the prophets: that his Messiah would suffer. <sup>19</sup> Therefore, reform your lives! Turn to

43: 5, 12-16.	15, 11; Lk 23.
44: 4, 32, 34f.	18; Jn 18, 40.
3, 7; 4, 10.	16: 4, 10.
8: Is 35, 6; Lk 7,	17: 13, 27; 1 Cor 2,
22.	8.
12: 14, 15	18: Lk 18, 31.
14: Mt 27, 20; Mk

† 2, 47: Those who were being saved: not that Christians are absolutely saved, but rather that to those who believe in Christ God directly reveals his saving action in their behalf. If Christians are not saved, it is because of their failure to respond to God's saving action; cf Rom 8, 1.

3, 1—4, 31: This section presents a series of related events: the dramatic cure of a lame beggar (3, 1-10) produces a large audience for the kerygmatic discourse of Peter (3, 11-26). The Sadducees, taking exception to the doctrine of resurrection, have Peter, John, and apparently the beggar as well arrested (4, 1-4) and brought to trial before the Sanhedrin. The issue concerns the authority on which Peter and John publicly teach religious doctrine in the temple (5ff). Peter replies with a brief summary of the kerygma, implying that his authority is prophetic (8-12). The court warns the apostles to abandon their practice of invoking prophetic authority in the name of Jesus (13-18). When Peter and John reply that the prophetic role cannot be abandoned to satisfy the objections of men, the court nevertheless releases them, afraid to do otherwise since the beggar, lame from birth and over forty years old, is a well-known figure in Jerusalem and the facts of his cure are common property (19-22). The narrative concludes with a prayer of the Christian community imploring divine aid against threats of persecution (23-31).

3, 1: Prayer at the three o'clock hour: when the evening sacrifice was offered in the temple; cf Ex 29, 38f.

3, 6-10: The miracle has a dramatic cast; it symbolizes the saving power of Christ and leads the beggar to enter the temple, where he hears Peter's proclamation of salvation through Jesus.

3, 13: Servant: the Greek word can be rendered "son" or even "child" here and also in 3, 26, 4, 25 (applied to David); 4, 27-30. Scholars are of the opinion, however, that the original concept reflected in the word identified Jesus in the early apostolic preaching with the suffering Servant of the Lord of Is 52, 13—53, 12. Has glorified: through the resurrection and ascension of Jesus, God reversed the judgment against him on the occasion of his trial.

3, 14: The Holy and Just One: a characterization of Jesus as Messiah, emphasizing his sinlessness and extraordinary religious dignity, which are placed in sharp contrast with the guilt of those who rejected him in favor of Barabbas; Mt 27, 15-23.

3, 15: The Author of life: the source of the messianic benefits for Israel.

3, 17: You acted out of ignorance, just as your leaders did: even those actually responsible for the execution of Jesus were unaware of his messianic dignity.

3, 18: Through all the prophets: Christian prophetic insight into the Old Testament saw the crucifixion and death of Jesus as the main burden of messianic prophecy. The Jews themselves did not anticipate a suffering Messiah; they usually understood the Servant Song in Is 52, 13—53, 12 to signify their own suffering as a people (as most Jews still do to the present day).

God, that your sins may be wiped away!<sup>20†</sup> Thus may a season of refreshment be granted you by the Lord when he sends you Jesus, already designated as your Messiah.<sup>21</sup> Jesus must remain in heaven until the time of universal restoration which God spoke of long ago through his holy prophets.<sup>22*</sup> † For Moses said:

"The Lord God will raise up for you a prophet like me from among your own kinsmen: you shall listen to him in everything he says to you.<sup>23</sup> Anyone who does not listen to that prophet shall be ruthlessly cut off from the people."

<sup>24</sup> "Moreover, all the prophets who have spoken, from Samuel onward, have announced the events of these days.<sup>25*</sup> You are the children of those prophets, you are the heirs of the covenant God made with your fathers when he said to Abraham, 'In your offspring, all the families of the earth shall be blessed.'<sup>26*</sup> When God raised up his servant, he sent him to you first to bless you by turning you from your evil ways."

CHAPTER 4

† While Peter and John were still addressing the crowd, the priests, the captain of the temple guard, and the Sadducees came up to them,<sup>2*</sup> angry because they were teaching the people and proclaiming the resurrection of the dead in the person of Jesus.<sup>3</sup> It was evening by now, so they arrested them and put them in jail for the night.<sup>4</sup> Despite this, many of those who had heard the speech believed; the number of the men came to about five thousand.

Before the Sanhedrin.<sup>5</sup> When the leaders, the elders, and the scribes assembled the next day in Jerusalem,<sup>6</sup> Annas the high priest, Caiaphas, John, Alexander, and all who were of the high-priestly class were there.<sup>7</sup> They brought Peter and John before them and began the interrogation in this fashion: "By what power or in whose name have men of your stripe done this?"

<sup>8*</sup> Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, spoke up: "Leaders of the people! Elders! <sup>9</sup> If we must answer today for a good deed done to a cripple and explain how he was restored to health,<sup>10</sup> then you and all the people of Israel must realize that it was done in the name of Jesus Christ the Nazorean whom you crucified and whom God raised from the dead. In the power of that name this man stands before you perfectly sound.<sup>11*</sup> † This Jesus is 'the stone rejected by you the builders which has become the cornerstone.'<sup>12</sup> There is no salvation in anyone else, for there is no other name in the whole world given to men by which we are to be saved."

<sup>13</sup> Observing the self-assurance of Peter and John, and realizing that the speakers were uneducated men of no standing, the questioners were amazed. Then they recognized these men as having been with Jesus.<sup>14</sup> When they saw the man who had been cured standing there with them, they could think of nothing to say,<sup>15</sup> so they ordered them out of the court while they held a consultation. "What shall we do with these men?"<sup>16</sup> Everyone who lives in Jerusalem knows what a remarkable show of power took place through them. We cannot deny it.<sup>17</sup> To stop this from spreading further among the people we must give them a stern warning never to mention that man's name to anyone again."<sup>18</sup> So they called them back and made it clear that under no circumstances were they to speak the name of Jesus or teach about him.<sup>19</sup> Peter and John answered, "Judge for yourselves whether it is right in God's sight for us to obey you rather than God.<sup>20</sup> Surely we cannot help speaking of what we have heard and seen."<sup>21</sup> At that point they were dismissed with further warnings. The court could find no way to punish them because of the people, all of whom were praising God for what had happened.<sup>22</sup> The fact was, the man thus miraculously cured was more than forty years of age.

Thanksgiving.<sup>23</sup> After being released, the two went back to their own people and told them what the priests and el-

22: 7, 37; Dt 18, 15, 18,	8: Mt 10, 20,
25: Gn 12, 3; 22, 18; Sir 44, 19ff.	11: Ps 118, 22; Is 28, 16; Mt 21, 42; Mk 12, 10; Lk 20, 17; Rom 9, 33; 1 Pt 2, 7.
26: Gal 3, 8f.
4, 2: 23, 6ff; 24, 21.

† 3, 20: Thus may a season of refreshment be granted you: an allusion to the parousia or second coming of Christ, judged to be imminent in the apostolic age. This reference to its nearness is the only explicit one in Acts; see note on 5, 1-11.

3, 22: A loose citation of Dt 18, 15, which teaches that the Israelites are to learn the will of Yahweh from no one but their prophets. At the time of Jesus the Jews expected a unique prophet to come in fulfillment of this text (Jn 1, 21; 6, 14; 7, 40). Early Christianity understood this tradition and text as applying to Jesus, and used them especially in defense of the divergence of Christian teaching from traditional Judaism.

4, 1: The priests, the captain of the temple guard, and the Sadducees: the priests performed the temple liturgy. The officer of the temple, a Levite, was in charge of the temple guard. The Sadducees, a party within Judaism at this time, rejected those doctrines (among them bodily resurrection) which they believed alien to the ancient Mosaic religion. The Sadducees were drawn from priestly families and the lay aristocracy.

4, 11: Early Christianity applied this citation from Ps 118, 22 to Jesus; cf Mk 12, 10; 1 Pt 2, 7.

ders had said. <sup>24†</sup> All raised their voices in prayer to God on hearing the story: "Sovereign Lord, who made heaven and earth and sea and all that is in them, <sup>25*</sup> you have said by the Holy Spirit through the lips of our father David your servant:

'Why did the Gentiles rage,
the peoples conspire in folly?

<sup>26</sup> The kings of the earth were aligned, the princes gathered together against the Lord and against his anointed.'

<sup>27††</sup> Indeed, they gathered in this very city against your holy Servant, Jesus, whom you anointed—Herod and Pontius Pilate in league with the Gentiles and the peoples of Israel. <sup>28</sup> They have brought about the very things which in your powerful providence you planned long ago. <sup>29</sup> But now, O Lord, look at the threats they are leveling against us. Grant to your servants, even as they speak your words, complete assurance <sup>30</sup> by stretching forth your hand in cures and signs and wonders to be worked in the name of Jesus, your holy Servant."

<sup>31†</sup> The place where they were gathered shook as they prayed. They were filled with the Holy Spirit and continued to speak God's word with confidence.

Life of the Christians. † <sup>32</sup> The community of believers were of one heart and one mind. None of them ever claimed anything as his own; rather, everything was held in common. <sup>33</sup> With power the apostles bore witness to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and great respect was paid to them all; <sup>34</sup> nor was there anyone needy among them, for all who owned property or houses sold them and donated the proceeds. <sup>35</sup> They used to lay them at the feet of the apostles to be distributed to everyone according to his need.

<sup>36*</sup> There was a certain Levite from Cyprus named Joseph, to whom the apostles gave the name Barnabas (meaning "son of encouragement"). <sup>37</sup> He sold a farm that he owned and made a donation of the money, laying it at the apostles' feet.

CHAPTER 5

Ananias and Sapphira. † <sup>1</sup> Another man named Ananias and his wife Sapphira likewise sold a piece of property. <sup>2</sup> With the connivance of his wife he put aside a part of the proceeds for himself; the rest he took and laid at the feet of the apostles. <sup>3</sup> Peter exclaimed: "Ananias, why have you let Satan fill your heart so as to make you lie to the Holy Spirit and keep for yourself some of the proceeds from that field? <sup>4</sup> Was it not yours so long as it remained unsold?

Even when you sold it, was not the money still yours? How could you ever concoct such a scheme? You have lied not to men but to God!" <sup>5</sup> At the sound of these words, Ananias fell dead. Great fear came upon all who later heard of it. <sup>6</sup> Some of the young men came forward, wrapped up the body, and carried it out for burial. <sup>7</sup> Three hours later Ananias' wife came in, unaware of what had happened. <sup>8</sup> Peter said to her, "Tell me, did you sell that piece of property for such and such an amount?" She answered, "Yes, that was the sum." <sup>9</sup> Peter replied, "How could you two scheme to put the Spirit of the Lord to test? The footsteps of the men who have just buried your husband can be heard at the door. They stand ready to carry you out

25: Ps 2, 1f.
27: Lk 23, 12.

36f: Gal 2, 1.

†

4, 24-30: An example of the type of prayer common in the early Christian community. After invoking God as Creator (24) it cites the messianic Psalm 2, 1f, much favored in early Christianity, to recall men's impotence against God's designs (25f), as exemplified by the resurrection of Jesus, which frustrated the actions of Herod and Pilate against him (27f). It then appeals to the members of the community for courage to proclaim the Christian kerygma in a hostile world and pleads for divine aid through the bestowal of the charism to perform physical cures (29f).

4, 27: Herod: Herod Antipas, ruler of Galilee and Perea from 4 B.C. to 39 A.D., who executed John the Baptist, and before whom Jesus was arraigned; cf Lk 23, 6-12.

4, 31: The place . . . shook: the earthquake is used as a sign of the divine presence in Ex 19, 18; Is 6, 4. Here the shaking of the building symbolizes God's favorable response to prayer. Luke may have had as an additional reason for using the symbol in this sense the fact that it was familiar to the Hellenistic world. Ovid and Virgil also employ it.

4, 32-37: This is a second summary characterization of the Jerusalem community (see note on 2, 42-47). It highlights the system of the distribution of goods, and introduces Barnabas, who figures later in Acts as the friend and companion of Paul, and who, as noted here (37), endeared himself to the community by a donation of money through the sale of property. Careful examination of Luke's statements on everything in common indicates that: (1) members of the community were free to dispose of their property or to retain it as they saw fit; (2) donation of property or of money accruing from its sale was not a condition of membership in the community; and (3) the holding of property in common meant that the poor of the community were cared for through the substantial donations of the wealthier members.

5, 1-11: The peculiarities latent in this narrative afford the basis of its proper interpretation. The harsh treatment meted out to Ananias (3f) does not accord with Luke's portrait of the love operative within the community; cf 2, 44-47. This harshness becomes even more painfully evident when Sapphira is not informed of her husband's death, or of the fact that their deceit has been discovered (7f); neither of them is given that opportunity for repentance which lies at the heart of the teaching of the Christian community (2, 38).

Their sin did not consist in the withholding of part of the money, even deceitfully, but in their deception of the community. The true nature of this deceit is revealed in the light of the early Christian expectation of the parousia; cf Acts 3, 20; 1 Thes 4, 13-17. Their gift supposedly symbolized their complete confidence in the proximity of Christ's final coming, which rendered earthly possessions unimportant. (For a similar line of thought, cf 1 Cor 7, 29f.) Their deaths are ascribed to a lie to the Holy Spirit (3-9), i.e., they accepted the honor accorded them by the community for their apparent faith in the proximate parousia, but in reality they were not deserving of it.

too."<sup>10</sup> At that, she fell dead at his feet. The young men came in, found her dead, and carried her out for burial beside her husband.<sup>11</sup> Great fear came on the whole church and on all who heard of it.

Signs and Wonders. <sup>12</sup>† Through the hands of the apostles, many signs and wonders occurred among the people. By mutual agreement they used to meet in Solomon's Portico.<sup>13</sup> No one else dared to join them, despite the fact that the people held them in great esteem.<sup>14</sup> Nevertheless more and more believers, men and women in great numbers, were continually added to the Lord.<sup>15</sup> The people carried the sick into the streets and laid them on cots and mattresses, so that when Peter passed by at least his shadow might fall on one or another of them.<sup>16</sup> Crowds from the towns around Jerusalem would gather, too, bringing their sick and those who were troubled by unclean spirits, all of whom were cured.

Second Trial before the Sanhedrin.†

<sup>17</sup> The high priest and all his supporters (that is, the party of the Sadducees), filled with jealousy,<sup>18</sup> arrested the apostles and threw them into the public jail.<sup>19</sup>* During the night, however, an angel of the Lord opened the gates of the jail, led them forth, and said,<sup>20</sup> "Go out now and take your place in the temple precincts and preach to the people all about this new life."<sup>21</sup> Accordingly they went into the temple at dawn and resumed their teaching.

When the high priest and his supporters arrived they convoked the Sanhedrin, the full council of the elders of Israel. They sent word to the jail that the prisoners were to be brought in.<sup>22</sup> But when the temple guard got to the jail they could not find them,<sup>23</sup> and hurried back with the report, "We found the jail securely locked and the guards at their posts outside the gates, but when we opened it we found no one inside."

<sup>24</sup> On hearing this report, the captain of the temple guard and the high priests did not know what to make of the affair.<sup>25</sup> Someone then came up to them, pointing out, "Look, there! Those men you put in jail are standing over there in the temple, teaching the people."<sup>26</sup> At that, the captain went off with the guard and brought them in, but without any show of force, for fear of being stoned by the crowd.<sup>27</sup> When they had led them in and made them stand before the Sanhedrin, the high priest began the interrogation in this way:<sup>28</sup>* "We gave you strict orders not to teach about that name, yet you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching and are determined to make us responsible for that man's blood."<sup>29</sup> To this, Peter and the apostles replied: "Better for us to obey God than men!

<sup>30</sup> The God of our fathers has raised up Jesus whom you put to death, hanging him on a tree.<sup>31</sup> He whom God has exalted at his right hand as ruler and savior is to bring repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins.<sup>32</sup> We testify to this. So too does the Holy Spirit, whom God has given to those that obey him."

<sup>33</sup> When the Sanhedrin heard this, they were stung to fury and wanted to kill them.<sup>34</sup>* Then a member of the Sanhedrin stood up, a Pharisee named Gamaliel, a teacher of the law highly regarded by all the people. He had the accused ordered out of court for a few minutes,<sup>35</sup> and then said to the assembly, "Fellow Israelites, think twice about what you are going to do with these men.<sup>36</sup> Not long ago a certain Theudas came on the scene and tried to pass himself off as someone of importance. About four hundred men joined him. However he was killed, and all those who had been so easily convinced by him were disbanded. In the end it came to nothing.<sup>37</sup> Next came Judas the Galilean at the time of the census. He too built up quite a following, but likewise died, and all his followers were dispersed.<sup>38</sup> The present case is similar. My advice is that you have nothing to do with these men. Let them alone. If their purpose or activity is human in its origins, it will destroy itself.<sup>39</sup> If, on the other hand, it comes from God, you will not be able to destroy them without fighting God himself."

This speech persuaded them.<sup>40</sup>* In spite of it, however, the Sanhedrin called in the apostles and had them whipped. They ordered them not to speak again about the name of Jesus, and afterward dismissed them.<sup>41</sup>* The apostles for their part left the Sanhedrin full of joy

5, 19: 12, 7-10; 16,	34: 22, 3.
25f.	40: Mt 10, 17.
28: Mt 27, 25.	41: Mt 5, 10f.

† 5, 12-16: This, the third summary portrait of the Jerusalem community, underscores the Twelve as its bulwark, especially because of their charismatic power to heal the sick; cf 2, 42-47; 4, 32-37.

5, 17-42: A second action against the community is taken by the Sanhedrin in the arrest and trial of the Twelve; cf 4, 1ff. The motive is the jealousy of the religious authorities over the popularity of the apostles (17), who are now charged with the defiance of the Sanhedrin's previous order to them to abandon their prophetic role (28; cf 4, 18). In this crisis the apostles are favored by a miraculous release from prison (18-24). (For similar incidents involving Peter and Paul, cf 12, 6-11; 16, 25-29.) The real significance of such an event, however, would be manifest only to men of faith, not to unbelievers, since the Sanhedrin had already judged the Twelve to be unauthentic prophets, it could disregard reports of their miracles. When the Twelve immediately resumed public teaching, the Sanhedrin determined to invoke upon them the penalty of death (5, 33) prescribed in Dt 13, 6-10. Gamaliel's advice against this course finally prevailed, but it did not save the Twelve from the punishment of scourging (5, 40f), in a last endeavor to shake their conviction of their prophetic mission.

that they had been judged worthy of ill-treatment for the sake of the Name. <sup>42</sup> Day after day, both in the temple and at home, they never stopped teaching and proclaiming the good news of Jesus the Messiah.

III: SPREAD OF THE CHURCH THROUGH PERSECUTION IN JERUSALEM

CHAPTER 6

The Need of Assistants. <sup>1</sup>† In those days, as the number of disciples grew, the ones who spoke Greek complained that their widows were being neglected in the daily distribution of food, as compared with the widows of those who spoke Hebrew. <sup>2</sup>† The Twelve assembled the community of the disciples and said, "It is not right for us to neglect the word of God in order to wait on tables. <sup>3</sup> Look around among your own number, brothers, for seven men acknowledged to be deeply spiritual and prudent, and we shall appoint them to this task. <sup>4</sup> This will permit us to concentrate on prayer and the ministry of the word." <sup>5</sup> The proposal was unanimously accepted by the community. Following this they selected Stephen, a man filled with faith and the Holy Spirit; Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and Nicolaus of Antioch, who had been a convert to Judaism. <sup>6</sup>† They presented these men to the apostles, who first prayed over them and then imposed hands on them.

<sup>7</sup> The word of God continued to spread, while at the same time the number of the disciples in Jerusalem enormously increased. There were many priests among those who embraced the faith.

Stephen Accused. <sup>8</sup>† <sup>8</sup> The Stephen already spoken of was a man filled with grace and power, who worked great wonders and signs among the people. <sup>9</sup> Certain members of the so-called "Synagogue of Roman Freedmen" (that is, the Jews from Cyrene, Alexandria, Cilicia and Asia) would undertake to engage Stephen in debate, <sup>10</sup> but they proved no match for the wisdom and spirit with which he spoke. <sup>11</sup>* They persuaded some men to make the charge that they had heard him speaking blasphemies against Moses and God, <sup>12</sup> and in this way they incited the people, the elders, and the scribes. All together they confronted him, seized him, and led him off to the Sanhedrin. <sup>13</sup>† There they brought in false witnesses, who said: "This man never stops making statements against the holy place and the law." <sup>14</sup>*† We have heard him claim that Jesus the Nazorean will destroy this place and change the customs which Moses handed down to us." <sup>15</sup> The members of the Sanhedrin who sat there stared at him intently. Throughout, Stephen's face seemed like that of an angel.

CHAPTER 7

Stephen's Discourse. <sup>1</sup> The high priest asked whether the charges were true. <sup>2</sup>† To this Stephen replied: "My brothers! Fathers! Listen to me. The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham when he was still in Mesopotamia and before he settled in Haran. <sup>3</sup>* God said to him, Leave your country and your kinsfolk, and go to the land I will show you. <sup>4</sup> So he left the land of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. After his father died, God made him move from there

6, 11: 21, 21.

7, 3: Gn 12, 1.

14: Mt 26, 59ff.

†

6, 1-11: An example of the solution of conflicts within the Christian community. It is probable that the seven men assigned to this duty from among the Hellenist Christians, i.e. Jews from the diaspora, already possessed standing in the community as catechists, a role later ascribed to Stephen (8ff) and Philip (8, 5).

6, 2, 4: The essential function of the Twelve is the "service of the word," i.e., development of the kerygma by formulation of the teachings of Jesus. This became the material that went into the formation of the gospels.

6, 6: They . . . imposed hands on them: the customary Jewish way of designating a person for a task and invoking upon him the divine blessing and power to perform it.

6, 8-8, 1: The summary statement (6, 7) on the progress of the Jerusalem community, illustrated by the conversion of the priests, is followed by a lengthy narrative regarding Stephen. Stephen's defense is not a response to the charges made against him, but takes the form of a discourse that reviews the fortunes of God's word to Israel and leads to a prophetic declaration: a plea for the hearing of that word as announced by Christ and now possessed by the Christian community.

The charges that Stephen deprecated the importance of the temple and the Mosaic law and elevated Jesus to a status above Moses (6, 13f) were in fact true. Before a non-Christian audience such as the Sanhedrin, no defense against them was possible. With Stephen, who thus perceived the fuller implications of the teaching of Jesus, the differences between Judaism and Christianity began to appear. Luke's account of Stephen's martyrdom and its aftermath shows how the major impetus behind the Christian movement passed from Jerusalem, where temple and law prevailed, to Antioch in Syria, where these influences were less pressing.

6, 13: False witnesses: here and in his account of Stephen's execution (7, 54-60), Luke parallels the martyrdom of Stephen with the death of Jesus.

6, 14: Will destroy this place and change the customs: a possible indication that Stephen and other members of the community had begun to reflect upon the religious significance of Christ's prophecy concerning the destruction of the temple (Mk 13, 1f) and upon his attitude toward the law; cf Mk 2, 18-3, 6.

7, 2: God . . . appeared to . . . Abraham . . . in Mesopotamia: the first of a number of minor discrepancies between the data of the Old Testament and the data of Stephen's discourse. According to Gn 12, 1 God first spoke to Abraham in Haran. The main discrepancies are these: In 7, 16 it is said that Jacob was buried in Shechem, whereas Gn 50, 13 says he was buried at Hebron; in the same verse it is said that the tomb was purchased by Abraham, but in Gn 33, 19 and Jos 24, 32 the purchase is attributed to Jacob himself. The exactitude of detail achievable by modern scholarship was not a concern of ancient writers—who in any case were dealing with a variety of biblical and extra-biblical traditions.

to this land where you now dwell. <sup>5*</sup> God did not give him any of it as his heritage, not even a foot of land, but he promised to give it to him and his descendants after him as a possession—although he had no child. <sup>6*</sup> These are the words God used: Abraham's posterity will be strangers in a foreign land, and they will be subject to slavery and oppressed four hundred years. <sup>7</sup> But I will judge that nation which they serve, God said, and after that they will worship me in this place.

<sup>8*</sup> "God then made a covenant of circumcision with him, and Abraham, who had become the father of Isaac, circumcised him on the eighth day. Isaac did the same for Jacob, and Jacob for the twelve patriarchs. <sup>9*</sup> Out of envy, the patriarchs sold Joseph into slavery in Egypt, <sup>10*</sup> but God was with him and rescued him from all his tribulations. He granted him favor and wisdom in the court of the Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and made him the governor of Egypt and of the Pharaoh's entire household.

<sup>11</sup> When famine and great trial came upon Egypt and Canaan, our fathers could find no sustenance. <sup>12*</sup> Hearing that there was grain in Egypt, Jacob sent our fathers there on a first mission.

<sup>13*</sup> The second time, Joseph made himself known to his brothers, and his family ties became known to the Pharaoh.

<sup>14</sup> Then Joseph sent for his father Jacob, inviting him and all his kinsfolk—seventy-five persons in all. <sup>15*</sup> Jacob went down to Egypt and died there, as did our fathers. <sup>16*</sup> Their remains were transferred to Shechem and placed in the tomb which Abraham had bought with silver from the sons of Hamor at Shechem.

<sup>17*</sup> "When the time drew near for the fulfillment of the promise made by God to Abraham, our people in Egypt grew more and more numerous, <sup>18</sup> until a new king came to power in Egypt, who knew not Joseph. <sup>19</sup> This one dealt craftily with our people and oppressed them. He forced our fathers to abandon their infants to exposure so that the people would not survive.

<sup>20*</sup> "It was at this time that Moses was born. He proved to be an exceedingly handsome child. For the first three months he was reared in his father's house, <sup>21</sup> but afterward he was abandoned, and Pharaoh's daughter adopted him and brought him up as her own son.

<sup>22</sup> Moses was educated in all the lore of Egypt. He was a man powerful in word and deed. <sup>23</sup> When he was forty, he decided to visit his kinsmen, the Israelites. <sup>24*</sup> Upon seeing one of them maltreated, he went to his aid and avenged the victim by slaying the Egyptian. <sup>25</sup> He assumed that his kinsmen would understand that God was using him to bring them deliverance; but they did not. <sup>26*</sup> He appeared the next day while some of them were fighting, and tried to reconcile them by saying: 'Friends, you are blood brothers. Why are you trying to hurt each other?' <sup>27</sup> At that, the man who was wronging his neighbor pushed Moses aside. 'And who has appointed you ruler and judge over us?' he said. <sup>28</sup> 'Are you thinking of killing me as you killed the Egyptian yesterday?' <sup>29</sup> On hearing this, Moses fled. He took up his residence as an alien in the land of Midian, where he became the father of two sons.

<sup>30*</sup> "Forty years later an angel appeared to him in the desert near Mount Sinai in the flame of a burning thornbush. <sup>31</sup> When Moses saw it, he marveled at the sight. As he drew near to observe it carefully, the voice of the Lord was heard: <sup>32</sup> 'I am the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob.' Moses began to tremble and dared look no more. <sup>33</sup> The Lord said to him: 'Remove the sandals from your feet, for the place where you stand is holy ground. <sup>34</sup> I have witnessed the affliction of my people in Egypt and have heard their groaning, and I have come down to rescue them. Come now, I will send you into Egypt.'

<sup>35</sup> "This very Moses whom they had rejected with the words, 'Who has appointed you ruler and judge?', was the one whom God, through the angel appearing to him in the thornbush, sent to be their ruler and deliverer. <sup>36</sup> It was he who led them forth, all the while performing wonders and signs in the land of Egypt, in the Red Sea, and for forty years in the desert. <sup>37*</sup> This Moses is the one who said to the Israelites, 'God will raise up for you from among your kinsmen a prophet like me.' <sup>38*</sup> In that desert assembly, it was he who was in conversation with the angel on Mount Sinai and with our fathers; he too received the oracles of life to pass on to you. <sup>39</sup> He it was whom our fathers would not obey; rather, they thrust him aside and longed to return to Egypt. <sup>40*</sup> 'Make us gods that will be our leaders,' they said to Aaron. 'As for that Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we have no idea what has happened to him.' <sup>41</sup> It was then that they fashioned the calf and offered sacrifice to the idol, and had a festive celebration over the product of their

5: Gn 12, 7, 15, 2.	13: Jos 24, 32.
6f: Gn 15, 13f.	17: Ex 1, 7.
8: Gn 17, 10; 21, 2f.	20: Ex 2, 2f; Heb 11, 23.
9: Gn 37, 28.	24: Ex 2, 12.
10: Gn 41, 37; Ps 105, 21.	26: Ex 2, 13.
12: Gn 42, 2.	30-34: Ex 3, 2-10.
13: Gn 45, 3.	37: Dt 18, 15.
15: Gn 49, 32.	38: Ex 19, 3.
16: Gn 23, 15f; 50,	40: Ex 32, 1.

own hands. <sup>42*</sup> But God turned away from them and abandoned them to the worship of the galaxies in the heavens. So we find it written in the Book of the Prophets:

'Did you bring me sacrifices and offerings for forty years in the desert, O house of Israel?

<sup>43</sup> Not at all! You took along the tent of Moloch
and the star of the god Rephan, the images you had made for your cult.

For that I will exile you beyond
Babylon.'

<sup>44*</sup> "Our fathers in the desert had the meeting tent as God prescribed it when he spoke to Moses, ordering him to make it according to the pattern he had seen.

<sup>45*</sup> The next generation of our fathers inherited it. Under Joshua, they brought it into the land during the conquest of those peoples whom God drove out to make room for our fathers. So it was until the time of David, <sup>46*</sup> who found favor with God and begged that he might find a dwelling place for the house of Jacob.
<sup>47*</sup> It was Solomon, however, who constructed the building for that house.
<sup>48*</sup> Yet the Most High does not dwell in buildings made by human hands, for as the prophet says:

<sup>49*</sup> 'The heavens are my throne,
the earth is my footstool;
What kind of house can you build
me?
asks the Lord.

What is my resting-place to be like?

<sup>50</sup> Did not my hand make all these things?

Conclusion. <sup>51</sup> "You stiff-necked people, uncircumcised in heart and ears, you are always opposing the Holy Spirit
just as your fathers did before you.
<sup>52</sup> Was there ever any prophet whom your fathers did not persecute? In their day, they put to death those who foretold the coming of the Just One; now you in your turn have become his betrayers and murderers. <sup>53</sup> You who received the law through the ministry of angels have not observed it."

Stephen's Martyrdom. <sup>54</sup> Those who listened to his words were stung to the heart; they ground their teeth in anger at him. <sup>55†</sup> Stephen meanwhile, filled with the Holy Spirit, looked to the sky above and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at God's right hand.
<sup>56</sup> "Look!" he exclaimed, "I see an opening in the sky, and the Son of Man standing at God's right hand." <sup>57†</sup> The onlookers were shouting aloud, holding their hands over their ears as they did so. Then they rushed at him as one man,

<sup>58</sup> dragged him out of the city, and began to stone him. The witnesses meanwhile were piling their cloaks at the feet of a young man named Saul. <sup>59†</sup> As Stephen was being stoned he could be heard praying, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." <sup>60</sup> He fell to his knees and cried out in a loud voice, "Lord, do not hold this sin against them." And with that he died.

CHAPTER 8†

The Church Persecuted. <sup>1</sup> Saul, for his part, concurred in the act of killing. That day saw the beginning of a great persecution of the church in Jerusalem. All except the apostles scattered throughout the countryside of Judea and Samaria.
<sup>2</sup> Devout men buried Stephen, bewailing him loudly as they did so. <sup>3*†</sup> After that, Saul began to harass the church. He entered house after house, dragged men and women out, and threw them into jail.

IV: THE COMMUNITY CARRIES THE MESSAGE TO SAMARIA, SYRIA AND CYPRUS

Philip in Samaria. <sup>4*</sup> The members of the church who had been dispersed went

42: Am 5, 25.	17, 12.
44: Ex 25, 40.	48: 17, 24.
45: Jos 3, 14.	49: Is 66, 1.
46: Ps 132, 5.	8, 3; 9, 11.
47: 1 Kgs 6, 1; 1 Chr	4: 11, 19.

†

7, 55: Stephen . . . saw . . . Jesus standing at God's right hand: whether this statement is intended to introduce the description of a vision, or is a dramatized version of Stephen's expression of faith in Christ, is of less importance than the meaning Luke attaches to it for his Christian reader. Stephen affirms to the Sanhedrin that the prophecy Jesus made before them has been fulfilled (Mk 14, 62).

7, 57: Holding their hands over their ears: Stephen's declaration, like that of Jesus, is a scandal to the court, which regards it as blasphemy.

7, 59†: Compare Lk 23, 34, 46.

8, 1-40: Some idea of the severity of the persecution that now breaks out against the Jerusalem community can be gathered from Acts 22, 4 and 26, 9ff. Luke, however, concentrates on the fortunes of the word of God among men, indicating how the dispersal of the Jerusalem community resulted in the conversion of the Samaritans (4-17, 25). His narrative is further expanded to include the account of Philip's acceptance of a Gentile from Ethiopia (26-39).

8, 1: All except the apostles scattered: this observation leads some modern scholars to conclude that the persecution was limited to the Hellenist Christians, and that the Judaean-Christians were not molested. Whatever the facts, it appears that the Twelve took no public stand regarding Stephen's position, choosing, instead, to await the development of events.

8, 3: Saul began to harass the church: like Stephen, Saul was able to perceive that the Christian movement contained the seeds of serious doctrinal divergence from Judaism. A pupil of Gamaliel (22, 3), and totally dedicated to the law as the way of salvation (Gal 1, 13f), Saul accepted the task of crushing the Christian movement, at least insofar as it detracted from the importance of the temple and the law. His vehement opposition to Christianity reveals how difficult it was for a Jew of his time to accept a messianism that differed so greatly from the general expectation.

about preaching the word. <sup>5*</sup> Philip, for example, went down to the town of Samaria and there proclaimed the Messiah. <sup>6</sup> Without exception, the crowds that heard Philip and saw the miracles he performed attended closely to what he had to say. <sup>7</sup> There were many who had unclean spirits, which came out shrieking loudly. Many others were paralytics or cripples, and these were cured. <sup>8</sup> The rejoicing in that town rose to fever pitch.

Simon Magus. <sup>9†</sup> A certain man named Simon had been practicing magic in the town and holding the Samaritans spellbound. He passed himself off as someone of great importance. <sup>10</sup> People from every rank of society were paying attention to him. "He is the power of the great God," they said. <sup>11</sup> Those who followed him had been under the spell of his magic over a long period; <sup>12</sup> but once they began to believe in the good news that Philip preached about the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, men and women alike accepted baptism. <sup>13</sup> Even Simon believed. He was baptized like the rest and became a devoted follower of Philip. He watched the signs and the great miracles as they occurred, and was quite carried away.

<sup>14</sup> When the apostles in Jerusalem heard that Samaria had accepted the word of God, they sent Peter and John to them. <sup>15</sup> The two went down to these people and prayed that they might receive the Holy Spirit. <sup>16</sup> It had not as yet come down upon any of them since they had only been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. <sup>17</sup> The pair upon arriving imposed hands on them and they received the Holy Spirit. <sup>18</sup> Simon observed that it was through the laying on of hands that the apostles conferred the Spirit, and he made them an offer of money <sup>19</sup> with the request, "Give me that power too, so that if I place my hands on anyone he will receive the Holy Spirit."

<sup>20*</sup> Peter said in answer: "May you and your money rot—thinking that God's gift can be bought! <sup>21</sup> You can have no portion or lot in this affair. Your heart is not steadfastly set on God. <sup>22</sup> Reform your evil ways. Pray that the Lord may pardon you for thinking the way you have. <sup>23</sup> I see you poisoned with gall and caught in the grip of sin." <sup>24</sup> Simon responded, "I need the prayers of all of you to the Lord, so that what you have just said may never happen to me."

<sup>25†</sup> After giving their testimony and proclaiming the word of the Lord, they went back to Jerusalem bringing the good news to many villages of Samaria on the way.

Philip and the Ethiopian. † <sup>26</sup> An angel of the Lord then addressed himself to Philip: "Head south toward the road which goes from Jerusalem to Gaza, the desert route." Philip began the journey. <sup>27*</sup> It happened that an Ethiopian eunuch, a court official in charge of the entire treasury of Candace (a name meaning queen) of the Ethiopians, had come on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem and was returning home. <sup>28</sup> He was sitting in his carriage reading the prophet Isaiah. <sup>29</sup> The Spirit said to Philip, "Go and catch up with that carriage." <sup>30†</sup> Philip ran ahead and heard the man reading the prophet Isaiah. He said to him, "Do you really grasp what you are reading?" <sup>31</sup> "How can I," the man replied, "unless someone explains it to me?" With that, he invited Philip to get in and sit down beside him. <sup>32*</sup> This was the passage of Scripture he was reading:

"Like a sheep he was led to the slaughter, like a lamb before its shearer he was silent
and opened not his mouth.
<sup>33</sup> In his humiliation he was deprived of justice.
Who will ever speak of his posterity,
for he is deprived of his life on earth?"

<sup>34</sup> The eunuch said to Philip, "Tell me, if you will, of whom the prophet says this—himself or someone else?" <sup>35</sup> Philip launched out with this Scripture passage as his starting point, telling him the good news of Jesus. <sup>36*</sup> As they moved along the road they came to some water, and the eunuch said, <sup>37</sup> "Look, there is some water right there. What is to keep me from being baptized?" <sup>38</sup> He ordered the

5: 6, 5, 21, 8.                      32f: Is 53, 7f.
20: 13, 10.                              36: 10, 47.
27: Is 56, 3ff.

† 8, 9-13-18-24: Sorcerers were well known in the ancient world. Probably the incident involving Simon and his altercation with Peter is introduced to show that the miraculous charisms possessed by members of the Christian community (8, 6f) were not to be confused with the magic of sorcerers.

8, 25: Stephen's insistence that the presence of God was not confined to the temple in Jerusalem (7, 48f) is now fully accepted by the apostles as a result of the success of Philip in Samaria.

8 26-40: In the account of the conversion of the Ethiopian eunuch, Luke adduces additional evidence to show that the spread of Christianity outside the confines of Judaism itself was in accord with the plan of God. He does not make clear whether the Ethiopian was originally a convert to Judaism or, as is more probable, a "God-fearer" (10, 1), i.e., one who accepted Jewish monotheism and ethic and attended the synagogue but did not consider himself bound by other regulations. The story of his conversion to Christianity is given a strong supernatural cast by the introduction of an angel (26), instruction from the Holy Spirit (29), and the strange removal of Philip from the scene (38).

8, 30-34: Philip is brought alongside the carriage at the very moment when the Ethiopian is pondering the meaning of Is 53, 7f, a passage which Christianity, from its earliest origins, has understood of Jesus; cf note on 3, 13.

carriage stopped, and Philip went down into the water with the eunuch and baptized him.<sup>39</sup> When they came out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord snatched Philip away and the eunuch saw him no more. Nevertheless the man went on his way rejoicing.<sup>40</sup> Philip found himself at Azotus next, and he went about announcing the good news in all the towns until he reached Caesarea.

CHAPTER 9

The Vocation of Saul.<sup>1*</sup> Saul, still breathing murderous threats against the Lord's disciples, went to the high priest<sup>2†</sup> and asked him for letters to the synagogues in Damascus which would empower him to arrest and bring to Jerusalem anyone he might find, man or woman, living according to the new way.<sup>3*</sup> As he traveled along and was approaching Damascus, a light from the sky suddenly flashed about him.<sup>4</sup> He fell to the ground and at the same time heard a voice saying, "Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?"<sup>5*</sup> "Who are you, sir?" he asked. The voice answered, "I am Jesus, the one you are persecuting."<sup>6</sup> Get up and go into the city, where you will be told what to do."<sup>7</sup> The men who were traveling with him stood there speechless. They had heard the voice but could see no one.<sup>8†</sup> Saul got up from the ground unable to see, even though his eyes were open. They had to take him by the hand and lead him into Damascus.<sup>9</sup> For three days he continued blind, during which time he neither ate nor drank.

Saul's Baptism.<sup>10</sup> There was a disciple in Damascus named Ananias to whom the Lord had appeared in a vision. "Ananias!" he said. "Here I am, Lord," came the answer.<sup>11</sup> The Lord said to him, "Go at once to Straight Street, and at the house of Judas ask for a certain Saul of Tarsus.<sup>12</sup> He is there praying." (Saul saw in a vision a man named Ananias coming to him and placing his hands on him so that he might recover his sight.)<sup>13</sup> But Ananias protested: "Lord, I have heard from many sources about this man and all the harm he has done to your holy people in Jerusalem.<sup>14</sup> He is here now with authorization from the chief priests to arrest any who invoke your name."<sup>15†</sup> The Lord said to him: "You must go! This man is the instrument I have chosen to bring my name to the Gentiles and their kings and to the people of Israel.<sup>16</sup> I myself shall indicate to him how much he will have to suffer for my name."<sup>17</sup> With that Ananias left. When he entered the house he laid his hands on Saul and said, "Saul, my brother, I have been sent by the Lord Jesus who appeared to you on the way here, to help you recover your sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit."<sup>18*</sup> Immediately something like scales fell from his eyes and he regained his sight. He got up and was baptized,<sup>19†</sup> and his strength returned to him after he had taken food.

Saul Preaches in Damascus. Saul stayed some time with the disciples in Damascus,<sup>20†</sup> and soon began to proclaim in the synagogues that Jesus was the Son of God.<sup>21</sup> Any who heard it were greatly taken aback. They kept saying: "Isn't this the man who worked such havoc in Jerusalem among those who invoke this name? Did he not come here purposely to apprehend such people and bring them before the chief priests?"

<sup>22</sup> Saul for his part grew steadily more powerful, and reduced the Jewish community of Damascus to silence with his proofs that this Jesus was the Messiah.

Saul Visits Jerusalem.<sup>23</sup> After quite some time had passed, certain Jews conspired to kill Saul,<sup>24*</sup> but their plot came to his attention. They went so far as to keep close watch on the city gates day and night in an attempt to do away with him.<sup>25</sup> Some of his disciples, therefore, took him along the wall one night and lowered him to the ground, using ropes

9, 1: Gal 1, 13f.
3: 22, 6; 1 Cor 15, 8.

5: Mt 25, 40.
18: Tb 11, 12ff.
24f: 2 Cor 11, 32f.

† 9, 1-19: This is the first of three accounts of Paul's conversion (see 22, 3-16 and 26, 2-18), with some differences of detail. Paul's experience was not visionary but was precipitated by the actual appearance of Jesus, as he insists in 1 Cor 15, 8. The words of Jesus, "Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?," related by Luke with no variation in all three accounts, exerted a profound and lasting influence on the thought of Paul. Under the impulsion of this experience he gradually developed his understanding of justification by faith (see Epistles to Galatians and Romans), and of the identification of the Christian community with Jesus Christ; cf Col 1, 18.

9, 2: The new way: an early name for Christian discipleship, cf 16, 17; 18, 26; 19, 9, 23; 24, 14, 22. The term, no doubt Christian in origin, expresses the idea that Christian discipleship is the culmination of God's revelation to men and of men's relationship to God.

9, 8: Unable to see: a temporary blindness (9, 18), miraculous in origin, symbolizing the religious blindness of Saul as persecutor.

9, 15: To bring my name to the Gentiles: only gradually was the significance of this prophecy realized by Paul as the church was compelled to turn its attention more and more to the Gentiles.

9, 19-30: This is a brief résumé of Paul's initial experience as an apostolic preacher, though that aspect of his career did not begin immediately upon his conversion (Gal 1, 17). At first he found himself in the position of being both a turncoat to the Jews and an enigma to the Christian community of Jerusalem. His acceptance by the latter was finally brought about through his friendship with Barnabas.

9, 20: The Son of God: to be understood in the sense of "the Christ" in 9, 22; cf Acts 13, 33 citing Ps 2, 7 in this sense. Perhaps Luke chooses this expression here because, for Paul and Christians generally, the title "Son of God" soon became the one most expressive of Jesus' true dignity; cf 1 Thes 1, 10; Rom 1, 2ff.

and a hamper. <sup>26</sup> When he arrived back in Jerusalem he tried to join the disciples there; but it turned out that they were all afraid of him. They even refused to believe that he was a disciple. <sup>27</sup> Then Barnabas took him in charge and introduced him to the apostles. He explained to them how on his journey Saul had seen the Lord, who had conversed with him, and how Saul had been speaking out fearlessly in the name of Jesus at Damascus. <sup>28</sup> Saul stayed on with them, moving freely about Jerusalem and expressing himself quite openly in the name of the Lord. <sup>29</sup> He even addressed the Greek-speaking Jews and debated with them. They for their part responded by trying to kill him. <sup>30</sup> When the brothers learned of this, some of them took him down to Caesarea and sent him off to Tarsus.

The Church at Peace. <sup>31†</sup> Meanwhile throughout all Judea, Galilee, and Samaria the church was at peace. It was being built up and was making steady progress in the fear of the Lord; at the same time it enjoyed the increased consolation of the Holy Spirit.

Peter Visits Lydda and Joppa. <sup>32</sup> Once when Peter was making numerous journeys, he went—among other places—to God's holy people living in Lydda. <sup>33</sup> There he found a man named Aeneas, a paralytic who had been bedridden for eight years. <sup>34</sup> Peter said to him, "Aeneas, Jesus Christ cures you! Get up and make your bed." The man got up at once. <sup>35</sup> All the inhabitants of Lydda and Sharon, upon seeing him, were converted to the Lord.

<sup>36</sup> Now in Joppa there was a certain woman convert named Tabitha (in Greek Dorcas, meaning a gazelle). Her life was marked by constant good deeds and acts of charity. <sup>37</sup> At about that time she fell ill and died. They washed her body and laid it out in an upstairs room. <sup>38</sup> Since Lydda was near Joppa, the disciples who had heard that Peter was there sent two men to him with the urgent request, "Please come over to us without delay." <sup>39</sup> Peter set out with them as they asked. Upon his arrival they took him upstairs to the room. All the widows came to him in tears and showed him the various garments Dorcas had made when she was still with them. <sup>40</sup> Peter first made everyone go outside; then he knelt down and prayed. Turning to the dead body, he said, "Tabitha, stand up." She opened her eyes, then looked at Peter and sat up. <sup>41</sup> He gave her his hand and helped her to her feet. The next thing he did was to call in those who were believers and the widows to show them that she was alive. <sup>42</sup> This became known all over Joppa, and because of it, many came to believe in the Lord. <sup>43†</sup> Thus it happened that Peter stayed on in Joppa for a considerable time at the house of Simon, a tanner of leather.

CHAPTER 10†

The Vision of Cornelius. <sup>1</sup> Now in Caesarea there was a centurion named Cornelius, of the Roman cohort Italica, who was religious and God-fearing. The same was true of his whole household. <sup>2</sup> He was in the habit of giving generously to the people and he constantly prayed to God. <sup>3</sup> One afternoon at about three he had a vision in which he clearly saw a messenger of God coming toward him and calling, "Cornelius!" <sup>4</sup> He stared at the sight and said in fear, "What is it, sir?" The answer came: "Your prayers and your generosity have risen in God's sight, and because of them he has remembered you. <sup>5</sup> Send some men to Joppa and summon a certain Simon, known as Peter. <sup>6</sup> He is a guest of Simon the leather-tanner whose house stands by the sea." <sup>7†</sup> When the messenger who spoke these words had disappeared, he called two servants and a devout soldier from among those whom he could trust. <sup>8</sup> He explained everything to them and dispatched them to Joppa.

Peter's Vision. <sup>9†</sup> About noontime the next day, as the men were traveling along and approaching the city, Peter went up to the roof terrace to pray. <sup>10</sup> He became hungry and asked for some food, and while it was being prepared he fell into a trance. <sup>11</sup> He saw the sky

† 9, 31-43: In the context of the period of peace enjoyed by the community through the cessation of Paul's activities against it, Luke introduces two traditions concerning the miraculous powers of Peter. The towns of Lydda, Sharon and Joppa were populated by both Jews and Gentiles, and their Christian communities may well have been mixed. No particular motive for the cure of Aeneas is assigned, though it is not said that he was a Christian prior to the cure. The actual motive for the raising of Tabitha may have been the expectation of the parousia; in view of her unique charity, the community apparently found it hard to understand her death before this event had occurred.

9, 43: The fact that Peter lodged with a tanner would have been significant to both Gentile and Judaeo-Christians, for Judaism considered the tanning occupation unclean.

10, 1-48: The narrative centers on the conversion of Cornelius, a Gentile and a "God-fearer" (see note on 8, 26-40). Luke considers the event of great importance, as is evident from his long treatment of it. The incident is again related in 11, 1-18 and alluded to in 15, 7ff. The narrative divides itself easily into a series of distinct episodes, concluding with Peter's presentation of the Christian kerygma (34-43), and a pentecostal experience undergone by Cornelius' household preceding their reception of baptism (44-48).

10, 7: A devout soldier: by using this adjective Luke probably intends to classify him as a "God-fearer." The point is that Cornelius is careful to select a soldier who will respect his account of the apparition.

10, 9-16: The vision is intended to prepare Peter to share the food of Cornelius' household without qualms of conscience (10, 48). The necessity of such instruction to Peter reveals that at first not even the apostles fully grasped the implications of Jesus' teaching on the law. The initial insight belongs to Stephen.

open and an object come down that looked like a big canvas. It was lowered to the ground by its four corners. <sup>12</sup> Inside it were all the earth's four-legged creatures and reptiles and birds of the sky. <sup>13</sup> A voice said to him: "Get up, Peter! Slaughter, then eat." <sup>14</sup> He answered: "Sir, it is unthinkable! I have never eaten anything unclean or impure in my life." <sup>15</sup> The voice was heard a second time: "What God has purified you are not to call unclean." <sup>16</sup> This happened three times; then the object was snatched up into the sky. <sup>17</sup> While Peter was trying to make out the meaning of the vision he had had, the men sent by Cornelius arrived at the gate asking for the house of Simon. <sup>18</sup> They called out to inquire whether Simon Peter was a guest there. <sup>19</sup> Peter was still pondering the vision when the Spirit said to him: "There are two men in search of you. <sup>20</sup> Go downstairs and set out with them unhesitatingly, for it is I who sent them." <sup>21</sup> Peter went down to the men and said, "I am the man you are looking for. What brought you here?" <sup>22</sup> They answered: "The centurion Cornelius, who is an upright and God-fearing man, well thought of in the whole Jewish community, has been instructed by a holy messenger to summon you to his house. There he is to hear what you have to say." <sup>23</sup> With that, Peter invited them in and treated them as guests.

Peter in Caesarea. The next day he went off with them, accompanied by some of the brothers from Joppa. <sup>24</sup> The following day, he arrived in Caesarea. Cornelius, who was expecting them, had called in his relatives and close friends. <sup>25</sup> As Peter entered, Cornelius went to meet him, dropped to his knees before him and bowed low. <sup>26</sup> Peter said as he helped him to his feet, "Get up! I am only a man myself." <sup>27</sup> Peter then went in, talking with him all the while. He found many people assembled there, and <sup>28</sup> he began speaking to them thus: "You must know that it is not proper for a Jew to associate with a Gentile or to have dealings with him. But God has made it clear to me that no one should call any man unclean or impure. <sup>29</sup> That is why I have come in response to your summons without raising any objection. I should, of course, like to know why you summoned me." <sup>30</sup> Cornelius replied: "Just three days ago at this very hour, namely three o'clock, I was praying at home when a man in dazzling robes stood before me. <sup>31</sup> 'Cornelius,' he said, 'your prayer has been heard and your generosity remembered in God's presence. <sup>32</sup> Send someone to Joppa to invite Simon known as Peter to come here. He is a guest in the house of Simon the leather-tanner, by the sea.'

<sup>33</sup> I sent for you immediately, and you have been kind enough to come. All of us stand before God at this moment to hear whatever directives the Lord has given you."

Peter's Discourse. <sup>34</sup> Peter proceeded to address them in these words: "I begin to see how true it is that God shows no partiality. <sup>35</sup> Rather, the man of any nation who fears God and acts uprightly is acceptable to him. <sup>36</sup> This is the message he has sent to the sons of Israel, the good news of peace proclaimed through Jesus Christ who is Lord of all. <sup>37</sup> I take it you know what has been reported all over Judea about Jesus of Nazareth, beginning in Galilee with the baptism John preached; <sup>38</sup> of the way God anointed him with the Holy Spirit and power. He went about doing good works and healing all who were in the grip of the devil, and God was with him. <sup>39</sup> We are witnesses to all that he did in the land of the Jews and in Jerusalem. <sup>40</sup> They killed him, finally, hanging him on a tree, only to have God raise him up on the third day and grant that he be seen, <sup>41</sup> not by all, but only by such witnesses as had been chosen beforehand by God—by us who ate and drank with him after he rose from the dead. <sup>42</sup> He commissioned us to preach

10, 15: Lv 11, 1-42.	Wis 6, 8; Rom 2,
22: Lk 7, 4f.	11; Gal 2, 6; Eph
28: Gal 2, 12-15f.	6, 9; 1 Pt 1, 17.
34: Dt 10, 17; 2 Chr	37: Lk 4, 14.
19, 7; Jb 34, 19.	41: Lk 24, 41ff.

†

10, 17-23: The arrival of the Gentile emissaries with their account of the angelic apparition illuminates Peter's vision he is to be prepared to admit Gentiles into the Christian community.

10, 24ff: So impressed is Cornelius with the apparition that he invites close personal friends to support him in his confrontation with Peter. But his understanding of the personage he is about to meet is not devoid of superstition. For a similar experience of Paul and Barnabas, see 14, 10-17.

10, 28: Peter now fully understands the meaning of his vision; see note on 10, 17-23.

10, 34f: God shows no partiality: the revelation of his choice of Israel to be the people of God did not mean he withheld the divine favor from other men.

10, 37: You know what has been reported all over Judea about Jesus of Nazareth: God's revelation of his plan for the destiny of mankind through Israel culminated in Jesus of Nazareth. Consequently, the ministry of Jesus is an integral part of God's revelation. This viewpoint explains why the early Christian communities were interested in conserving the historical substance of the ministry of Jesus, a tradition leading to the production of the four gospels.

10, 39: We are witnesses: the apostolic testimony was not restricted to the resurrection of Jesus but also included his historical ministry. This witness, however, was theological in character: the Twelve, divinely mandated as prophets, were empowered to interpret his sayings and deeds in the light of his redemptive death and resurrection. The meaning of these words and deeds was to be made clear to the developing Christian community as the bearer of the word of salvation, cf 1, 21-26.

10, 42: As judge of the living and the dead: the apostolic preaching to the Jews appealed to their messianic hope, while the appeal to the Gentiles stressed the coming divine judgment; cf 1 Thes 1, 10.

to the people and to bear witness that he is the one set apart by God as judge of the living and the dead. <sup>43</sup> To him all the prophets testify, saying that everyone who believes in him has forgiveness of sins through his name."

Baptism of Cornelius. <sup>44*</sup> Peter had not finished these words when the Holy Spirit descended upon all who were listening to Peter's message. <sup>45</sup> The circumcised believers who had accompanied Peter were surprised that the gift of the Holy Spirit should have been poured out on the Gentiles also, <sup>46</sup> whom they could hear speaking in tongues and glorifying God. Peter put the question at that point, <sup>47</sup> "What can stop these people who have received the Holy Spirit, even as we have, from being baptized with water?" <sup>48</sup> So he gave orders that they be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. After this was done, they asked him to stay with them for a few days.

CHAPTER 11

The Call of the Gentiles Explained.†

<sup>1</sup> All through Judea the apostles and the brothers heard that Gentiles, too, had accepted the word of God. <sup>2</sup> As a result, when Peter went up to Jerusalem some among the circumcised took issue with him, <sup>3</sup> saying, "You entered the house of uncircumcised men and ate with them." <sup>4</sup> Peter then explained the whole affair to them step by step from the beginning; <sup>5</sup> "I was at prayer in the city of Joppa when, in a trance, I saw a vision. An object like a big canvas came down; it was lowered down to me from the sky by its four corners. <sup>6</sup> As I stared at it I could make out four-legged creatures of the earth, wild beasts and reptiles, and birds of the sky. <sup>7</sup> I listened as a voice said to me, 'Get up, Peter! Slaughter, then eat.' <sup>8</sup> I replied: 'Not for a moment, sir! Nothing unclean or impure has ever entered my mouth!' <sup>9</sup> A second time the voice from the heavens spoke out: 'What God has purified you are not to call unclean.' <sup>10</sup> This happened three times; then the canvas with everything in it was drawn up again into the sky.

<sup>11</sup> "Immediately after that, the three men who had been sent to me from Caesarea came to the house where we were staying. <sup>12</sup>† The Spirit instructed me to accompany them without hesitation. These six brothers came along with me, and we entered the man's house. <sup>13</sup> He informed us that he had seen an angel standing in his house and that the angel had said: 'Send someone to Joppa and fetch Simon, known also as Peter. <sup>14</sup> In the light of what he will tell you, you shall be saved, and all your household.' <sup>15</sup> As I began to address them the Holy Spirit came upon them, just as it had upon us at the beginning. <sup>16*</sup> Then I remembered what the Lord had said: 'John baptized with water but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit.' <sup>17*</sup> If God was giving them the same gift he gave us when we first believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I to interfere with him?" <sup>18</sup> When they heard this they stopped objecting, and instead began to glorify God in these words: "If this be so, then God has granted life-giving repentance even to the Gentiles."

The Church Established at Antioch.†

<sup>19</sup> Those in the community who had been dispersed by the persecution that arose because of Stephen went as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus and Antioch, making the message known to none but Jews. <sup>20</sup> However, some men of Cyprus and Cyrene among them who had come to Antioch began to talk even to the Greeks, announcing the good news of the Lord Jesus to them. <sup>21</sup> The hand of the Lord was with them and a great number of them believed and were converted to the Lord. <sup>22</sup> News of this eventually reached the ears of the church in Jerusalem, resulting in Barnabas' being sent to Antioch. <sup>23</sup> On his arrival he rejoiced to see the evidence of God's favor. He encouraged them all to remain firm in their commitment to the Lord, <sup>24</sup> since he himself was a good man filled with the Holy Spirit and faith. Thereby large numbers were added to the Lord. <sup>25</sup> Then Barnabas went off to Tarsus to look for Saul; <sup>26</sup> once he had found him, he brought him back to Antioch. For a whole year they met with the church and * 44f: 15, B.

11, 16: 1, 5; 19, 4; Mt 3,

11.

17: 15, Bf.

†

11, 1-18: Scholars differ regarding the historical realities behind this narrative and Luke's purpose in utilizing them. Simply understood, the narrative indicates the following:

(1) The Judæo-Christians of Jerusalem were scandalized to learn of Peter's sojourn in the house of the Gentile Cornelius; (2) nonetheless they had to accept the divine directions given to both Peter and Cornelius; (3) they concluded that the setting aside of the legal barriers between Jew and Gentile was an exceptional ordinance of God in this one case to indicate that the apostolic kerygma was also to be directed to the Gentiles. As yet, the Jerusalem Christians were unwilling to accept mixed communities.

11, 12: These six brothers: companions from the Christian community of Joppa; cf 10, 23.

11, 19-26: The Judæo-Christian antipathy to the mixed community was reflected by the early missionaries generally. The few among them who entertained a different view succeeded in introducing Gentiles into the community at Antioch (in Syria). When the disconcerted Jerusalem community sent Barnabas to investigate, he was so favorably impressed by what he observed that he persuaded his friend Saul to participate in the Antioch experiment. The venture was successful; within a year, members of the mixed community in Antioch had acquired the new name of "Christians."

instructed great numbers. It was in Antioch that the disciples were called Christians for the first time.

Prediction of Agabus.†<sup>27</sup> At about that time, certain prophets came down from Jerusalem to Antioch.<sup>28</sup> One of them named Agabus was inspired to stand up and proclaim that there was going to be a severe famine all over the world. (It did in fact occur while Claudius was emperor.)<sup>29</sup> This made the disciples determine to set something aside, each according to his means, and send it to the relief of the brothers who lived in Judea.<sup>30</sup> They did this, dispatching it to the presbyters in the care of Barnabas and Saul.

CHAPTER 12

Herod Persecutes the Church.†

<sup>1</sup> During that period, King Herod started to harass some of the members of the church.<sup>2</sup> He beheaded James the brother of John,<sup>3</sup> and when he saw that this pleased certain of the Jews, he took Peter into custody too. During the feast of Unleavened Bread<sup>4</sup> he had him arrested and thrown into prison, with four squads of soldiers to guard him. Herod intended to bring him before the people after the Passover.<sup>5</sup> Peter was thus detained in prison, while the church prayed fervently to God on his behalf.<sup>6</sup> During the night before Herod was to bring him to trial, Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, fastened with double chains, while guards kept watch at the door.<sup>7</sup> Suddenly an angel of the Lord stood nearby and light shone in the cell. He tapped Peter on the side and woke him. "Hurry, get up!" he said. With that, the chains dropped from Peter's wrists.<sup>8</sup> The angel said, "Put on your belt and you sandals!" This he did. Then the angel told him, "Now put on your cloak and follow me."

<sup>9</sup> Peter followed him out, but with no clear realization that this was taking place through the angel's help. The whole thing seemed to him a mirage.<sup>10</sup> They passed the first guard, then the second, and finally came to the iron gate leading out to the city, which opened for them of itself. They emerged and made their way down a narrow alley, when suddenly the angel left him.<sup>11</sup> Peter had recovered his senses by this time, and said, "Now I know for certain that the Lord has sent his angel to rescue me from Herod's clutches and from all that the Jews hoped for."

<sup>12</sup> After coming to realize this, he went to the house of Mary the mother of John (also known as Mark), where many others were gathered in prayer.<sup>13</sup> Peter knocked at the door and a maid named Rhoda came to answer it.<sup>14</sup> On recognizing his voice she was so overjoyed that she did not stop to open the door, but ran in and announced that Peter was outside.<sup>15</sup> "You're out of your wits," they said to her, but she insisted it was true. All they could say was, "It must be his angel."<sup>16</sup> Through all this, Peter kept on knocking. They finally opened the door and were astonished to see him.<sup>17</sup>† He motioned to them to be quiet, and explained how the Lord had brought him out of prison.<sup>18</sup> "Report this to James and the brothers," he said, then left them to go off to another place.<sup>18</sup> At daybreak confusion broke out among the soldiers, who did not know what had happened to Peter.<sup>19</sup> Herod then initiated a search for him. When it proved unsuccessful, he had the guards tried and executed. Shortly after this, Herod left Judea to spend some time in Caesarea.

Herod's Death.†<sup>20</sup> Herod had long been infuriated by the people of Tyre and Sidon, who now by common consent came before him in his court. They won over his royal chamberlain Blastus and attempted to placate him, because their country was supplied with food from the king's territory.<sup>21</sup> On an appointed day Herod, arrayed in royal robes, took his seat on the rostrum and publicly addressed them.<sup>22</sup> The assembled crowd shouted back, "This is the voice of a god, not a man!"<sup>23</sup> The angel of the Lord struck Herod down at once because he did not ascribe the honor to God, and he died eaten by worms.

<sup>24</sup> Meanwhile the word of the Lord continued to spread and increase.

†

11, 27-30: It is not clear whether the prophets from Jerusalem came to Antioch to request help in view of the coming famine or whether they received this insight during their visit there. The former supposition seems more likely. Suetonius and Tacitus speak of famines during the reign of Claudius (A.D. 41-54), while the Jewish historian Josephus records a famine in Judea in A.D. 46-48. Luke is interested, rather, in showing the charity of the Antiochian community toward the Judaeo-Christians of Jerusalem despite their differences on mixed communities.

12, 1-19: Herod Agrippa ruled Judea A.D. 41-44. While Luke does not assign a motive for his execution of James and his intended execution of Peter, the broad background lies in Herod's policy of conciliating his Jewish subjects. The Judaeo-Christians had lost the popularity they had had in Jerusalem (2, 47), perhaps because of suspicions against them traceable to the teaching of Stephen. The account of Peter's escape derives from his subjective visionary experience, making him aware essentially of what was happening to him. Exactly how divine power effected the release is not possible to determine. The events related in this narrative are probably to be dated before the occurrence of the famine mentioned in 11, 27-30.

12, 17: He . . . left them to go off to another place: the conjecture that Peter left for Rome at this time has nothing to recommend it. His chief responsibility was still the leadership of the Judaeo-Christian communities in Palestine: Gal 2, 7. The concept of the great missionary effort of the church was yet to come; cf. 13, 1ff.

12, 20-23: Josephus gives a similar account of Herod's death. Early Christian tradition considered the manner of it to be a divine punishment upon his evil life. See 2 Kgs 19, 35 for the figure of the angel of the Lord in such a context.

V: MISSION OF BARNABAS AND SAUL

<sup>25</sup> Barnabas and Saul returned to Jerusalem upon completing the relief mission, taking with them John Mark.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1†</sup> There were in the church at Antioch certain prophets and teachers: Barnabas, Symeon known as Niger, Lucius of Cyrene, Manaen (who had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch), and Saul. <sup>2</sup> On one occasion, while they were engaged in the liturgy of the Lord and were fasting, the Holy Spirit spoke to them: "Set apart Barnabas and Saul for me to do the work for which I have called them." <sup>3</sup> Then, after they had fasted and prayed, they imposed hands on them and sent them off.

First Mission Begins in Cyprus.

<sup>4†</sup> These two, sent forth by the Holy Spirit, went down to the port of Seleucia and set sail from there for Cyprus. <sup>5</sup> On their arrival in Salamis they proclaimed the word of God in the Jewish synagogues, John accompanying them as an assistant. <sup>6†</sup> They traveled over the whole island as far as Paphos, where they came across a Jewish magician named Bar-Jesus who posed as a prophet. <sup>7</sup> He was attached to the court of the proconsular governor Sergius Paulus, a man of intelligence who had summoned Barnabas and Saul and was anxious to hear the word of God. <sup>8</sup> But Elymas—"the magician," for that is what his name means—opposed them and sought to turn the governor away from the faith. <sup>9</sup> Saul (also known as Paul) was filled with the Holy Spirit; he stared at him <sup>10</sup> and exclaimed: "You are an impostor and a thoroughgoing fraud, you son of Satan and enemy of all that is right! Will you never stop trying to make crooked the straight paths of the Lord? <sup>11†</sup> The Lord's hand is upon you even now! For a time you shall be blind, unable so much as to see the sun." At once a misty darkness came over him, and he groped about for someone to lead him by the hand. <sup>12</sup> When the governor saw what had happened, he believed, so impressed was he by the teaching about the Lord.

Arrival at Antioch in Pisidia.

<sup>13†</sup> From Paphos, Paul and his companions put out to sea and sailed to Perga in Pamphylia. There John left them and returned to Jerusalem. <sup>14</sup> They continued to travel on from Perga and came to Antioch in Pisidia. On the sabbath day they entered the synagogue and sat down. <sup>15</sup> After the reading of the law and of the prophets, the leading men of the synagogue sent this message to them: "Brothers, if you have any exhortation to address to the people, please speak up."

Preaching in the Synagogue. <sup>16</sup> So Paul arose, motioned to them for silence, and began: "Fellow Israelites and you others who reverence our God, listen to what I have to say! <sup>17*</sup> The God of the people Israel once chose our fathers. He made this people great during their sojourn in the land of Egypt, and with an outstretched arm he led them out of it. <sup>18*</sup> For forty years he put up with them in the desert: <sup>19*</sup> then he destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan to give them that country as their heritage <sup>20*</sup> at the end of some four hundred and fifty years. Later on he set up judges to rule them until the time of the prophet Samuel. <sup>21*</sup> When they asked for a king, God gave them Saul son of Kish, of the tribe of Benjamin, who ruled for forty years. <sup>22*</sup> Then God removed him and raised up David as their king; on his behalf God testified, 'I have found David son of Jesse to be a man after my own heart who will fulfill my every wish.'

<sup>23*</sup> "According to his promise, God has brought forth from this man's descendants Jesus, a savior for Israel. <sup>24*</sup> John heralded the coming of Jesus by pro-

13, 17: Ex 1, 1.	22: 1 Sm 13, 14; 16,
18: Ex 16, 3.	13; Ps 89, 21.
19: Jos 14, 2.	23: Is 11, 1.
20: Jgs 3, 9.	24: Mt 5, 1; Mk 1, 4;
21: 1 Sm 8, 5; 9, 16;	Lk 3, 2f.
10, 1.

†

13, 1f: The impulse for the first missionary effort in Asia Minor is ascribed to the prophets of the Antiochian community, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. The thinking behind the mission was perhaps that if the Jews of the diaspora could be converted as successfully as had been the case at Antioch, the Jews of Palestine would eventually lose their hostility toward Christian messianism.

13, 4—14, 27: The key event in Luke's account of the first missionary journey is the experience of Paul and Barnabas at Pisidian Antioch (14-52). The Christian kerygma proclaimed by Paul in the synagogue was favorably received. Some Jews and "God-fearers" were effectively converted (42)—see note on 8, 26-40), and the congregation at large asked the missionaries to speak again on the following sabbath. By that time, however, the appearance of a large number of Gentiles from the city had so disconcerted the Jews that they became hostile toward the apostles (44f). Thus the Jews of Pisidian Antioch proved no less opposed to the mixed community than the Judaeo-Christians of Jerusalem. As long as Paul refused to incorporate the Gentiles into Judaism as the condition for their acceptance of Christ, the Jews continued to regard Christian messianism as destructive of their religious traditions and their culture. This fear of theirs appears in all three accounts of Paul's missionary journeys in Acts, the Jews of Iconium (14, 1f) and Berea (17, 11) being notable exceptions.

13, 6: A Jewish magician named Bar-Jesus who posed as a prophet: again Luke takes the opportunity to dissociate Christianity from the magical arts of the time (7-11); cf 8, 18-24.

13, 11f: The temporary blindness symbolized the falsity of the man's teaching.

13, 13: There John left them: it has been conjectured that John Mark objected to Paul's ascendancy over his cousin Barnabas, but it is more likely that the rugged country and alien culture had made Mark homesick for Jerusalem; cf 12, 12.

claiming a baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel. <sup>25*</sup> As John's career was coming to an end, he would say, 'What you suppose me to be I am not. Rather, look for the one who comes after me. I am not worthy to unfasten the sandals on his feet.' <sup>26</sup> My brothers, children of the family of Abraham and you others who reverence our God, it was to us that this message of salvation was sent forth. <sup>27</sup> The inhabitants of Jerusalem and their rulers failed to recognize him, and in condemning him they fulfilled the words of the prophets which we read sabbath after sabbath. <sup>28*</sup> Even though they found no charge against him which deserved death, they begged Pilate to have him executed. <sup>29</sup> Once they had thus brought about all that had been written of him, they took him down from the tree and laid him in a tomb. <sup>30*</sup> Yet God raised him from the dead, <sup>31†</sup> and for many days thereafter Jesus appeared to those who had come up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem. These are his witnesses now before the people.

<sup>32</sup> 'We ourselves announce to you the good news that what God promised our fathers <sup>33*</sup> he has fulfilled for us, their children, in raising up Jesus, according to what is written in the second psalm, 'You are my son; this day I have begotten you.' <sup>34*</sup> As a proof that the one whom he raised from the dead would never again see the decay of death, God declared, 'I will give you the benefits assured to David under the covenant.' <sup>35*</sup> That is why he said in still another place, 'You will not suffer your faithful one to undergo corruption.' <sup>36*</sup> Now David, after he had spent a lifetime in carrying out God's will, fell asleep and joined his fathers, thereby undergoing corruption. <sup>37</sup> But the one whom God has raised up did not undergo corruption. <sup>38†</sup> You must realize, my brothers, that it is through him that the forgiveness of sins is being proclaimed to you, including the remission of all those charges you could never be acquitted of under the law of Moses. <sup>39*</sup> In him, every believer is acquitted. <sup>40</sup> Have a care, then, lest what was said by the prophets be realized in you: <sup>41*</sup> 'Look on in amazement, you cynics, then disappear! For I am doing a deed in your days which you never would have believed even if you had been told.'''

<sup>42</sup> As they were leaving, the people invited them to speak on this subject again on the following sabbath. <sup>43</sup> When the congregation finally broke up, many Jews and devout Jewish converts followed Paul and Barnabas, who spoke to them and urged them to hold fast to the grace of God.

Address to the Gentiles. <sup>44</sup> The following sabbath, almost the entire city gathered to hear the word of God. <sup>45</sup> When the Jews saw the crowds, they became very jealous and countered whatever Paul said with violent abuse. <sup>46†</sup> Paul and Barnabas spoke out fearlessly, nonetheless: "The word of God has to be declared to you first of all; but since you reject it and thus convict yourselves as unworthy of everlasting life, we now turn to the Gentiles. <sup>47</sup> For thus were we instructed by the Lord: 'I have made you a light to the nations, a means of salvation to the ends of the earth.''' <sup>48</sup> The Gentiles were delighted when they heard this and responded to the word of the Lord with praise. All who were destined for life everlasting believed in it. <sup>49</sup> Thus the word of the Lord was carried throughout that area.

<sup>50</sup> But some of the Jews stirred up their influential women sympathizers and the leading men of the town, and in that way got a persecution started against Paul and Barnabas. The Jews finally expelled them from their territory. <sup>51*</sup> So the two shook the dust from their feet in protest and went on to Iconium. <sup>52</sup> The disciples could not but be filled with joy and the Holy Spirit.

CHAPTER 14

Preaching at Iconium. <sup>1</sup> In Iconium likewise, they entered the Jewish synagogue and spoke in such a way as to convince a good number of Jews and Greeks. <sup>2</sup> But the Jews who remained unconvinced stirred up the Gentiles and poisoned their minds against the brothers. <sup>3*</sup> Paul and Barnabas spent considerable time there and spoke out fearlessly, in complete reliance on the Lord. He for his part confirmed the message with his grace and caused signs and wonders to be done at their hands. <sup>4</sup> Most of the townspeople were divided over them, some siding with the Jews and others with the apostles. <sup>5*</sup> A move was made by Gentiles and Jews, to-

25: Mt 3, 11; Mk 1, 7, Jn 1, 20.
28: Mt 27, 20-23; Mk 15, 13; Lk 23, 21-23; Jn 19, 15.
30: Mt 28, 8ff. 16-20; Mk 16, 9-12-20; Lk 24, 15-53; Jn 20, 14-29.

33: Ps 2, 7.
34: Is 55, 3.
35: Ps 16, 10.
36: 1 Kgs 2, 10.
39: Rom 3, 20.
41: Heb 1, 5.
51: Mt 10, 14; Mk 6, 11; Lk 9, 5.
14, 3: Mk 16, 17-20.
5: 2 Tm 3, 11.

† 13, 31: These are his witnesses now before the people the prophetic role of the Twelve concerning Jesus; see note on 10, 39.

13, 38: Including the remission of all those charges you could never be acquitted of under the law of Moses: a doctrinal statement of justification by faith, particularly appropriate to Paul; see note on 9, 1-19.

13, 46: Unworthy of everlasting life: the refusal to believe frustrates God's plan for his chosen people; however no adverse judgment is made here concerning their ultimate destiny.

gether with their leaders, to abuse and stone them. <sup>6</sup> When Paul and Barnabas learned of this, they fled to the Lycaonian towns of Lystra and Derbe and to the surrounding country, <sup>7</sup> where they continued to proclaim the good news.

A Cure in Lystra. <sup>8</sup>† At Lystra there was a man who was lame from birth; he used to sit crippled, never having walked in his life. <sup>9</sup> On one occasion he was listening to Paul preaching, and Paul looked directly at him and saw that he had the faith to be saved. <sup>10</sup> He called out to him in a loud voice, "Stand up! On your feet!" The man jumped up and began to walk around. <sup>11</sup>* When the crowds saw what Paul had done, they cried out in Lycaonian, "Gods have come to us in the form of men!" <sup>12</sup> They named Barnabas Zeus; Paul they called Hermes, since he was the spokesman. <sup>13</sup> Even the priest of the temple of Zeus, which stood outside the town, brought oxen and garlands to the gates because he wished to offer sacrifice to them with the crowds.

<sup>14</sup> When the apostles Barnabas and Paul heard of this, they tore their garments and rushed out into the crowd. <sup>15</sup>* "Friends, why do you do this?" they shouted frantically. "We are only men, human like you. We are bringing you the good news that will convert you from just such follies as these to the living God, 'the one who made heaven and earth and the sea and all that is in them.' <sup>16</sup> In past ages he let the Gentiles go their way. <sup>17</sup>* Yet in bestowing his benefits, he has not hidden himself completely, without a clue. From the heavens he sends down rain and rich harvests; your spirits he fills with food and delight." <sup>18</sup> Yet even with a speech such as this, they could scarcely stop the crowds from offering sacrifice to them.

End of the First Mission. <sup>19</sup>* Just at that point, some Jews from Antioch and Iconium arrived and won the people over. They stoned Paul and dragged him out of the town, leaving him there for dead. <sup>20</sup> His disciples quickly formed a circle about him, and before long he got up and went back into the town. The next day he left with Barnabas for Derbe. <sup>21</sup> After they had proclaimed the good news in that town and made numerous disciples, they retraced their steps to Lystra and Iconium first, then to Antioch. <sup>22</sup> They gave their disciples reassurances, and encouraged them to persevere in the faith with this instruction: "We must undergo many trials if we are to enter into the reign of God." <sup>23</sup>† In each church they installed presbyters and, with prayer and fasting, commended them to the Lord in whom they had put their faith.

Return to Antioch. <sup>24</sup> Then they passed through Pisidia and came to Pamphylia. <sup>25</sup>* After preaching the message in Perga, they went down to Attalia. <sup>26</sup>† From there they sailed back to Antioch, where they had first been commended to the favor of God for the task they had now completed. <sup>27</sup> On their arrival, they called the congregation together and related all that God had helped them accomplish, and how he had opened the door of faith to the Gentiles. <sup>28</sup> Then they spent some time there with the disciples.

CHAPTER 15

Council of Jerusalem. <sup>1</sup>*† Some men came down to Antioch from Judea and began to teach the brothers, "Unless you are circumcised according to Mosaic practice, you cannot be saved." <sup>2</sup> This created dissension and much controversy between them and Paul and Barnabas. Finally it was decided that Paul, Barnabas, and some others should go up to see the apostles and presbyters in Jerusalem about this question.

<sup>3</sup> The church saw them off and they made their way through Phoenicia and Samaria, telling everyone about the conversion of the Gentiles as they went. Their story caused great joy among the brothers. <sup>4</sup> When they arrived in Jerusalem they were welcomed by that church, as well as by the apostles and the presbyters, to whom they reported all that God had helped them accomplish. <sup>5</sup> Some of the converted Pharisees then got up and demanded that such Gentiles be circumcised and told to keep the Mosaic law.

11: 28, 6.	2 Tm 3, 11.
15: 3, 12; 10, 26.	25: 13, 1ff.
17: Wis 13, 1.	15, 1-4: Gal 2, 1-9.
19f: 2 Cor 11, 25;	1: Gal 5, 2.

†

14, 8-17: In an effort to convince his hearers that the divine power works through his word, Paul cures the cripple. However, the pagan tradition of the occasional appearance of gods among men leads the people astray in interpreting the miracle. The incident reveals the cultural difficulties with which the church had to cope.

14, 23: In each church they installed presbyters: the communities are given their own religious leaders. Seemingly (cf Jas 5, 14), a part of their task is the performance of liturgical rites, especially the liturgy of the Eucharist; cf 2, 42. Paul's caution in organizing the communities is shown by the fact that they receive presbyters only after a period of testing.

14, 26: The report of the missionaries to the church at Antioch was not wholly encouraging. The attempt to create mixed communities after the Antiochian model had been essentially a failure; cf 13, 46, 50f, 14, 2, 4f, 19. On the other hand, the receptivity among the Gentiles offered hope for the future.

15, 1-5: When some of the converted Pharisees of Jerusalem discover the results of the first missionary journey of Paul, they conclude that their worst fears over the Antiochian experiment of the mixed community have been realized. They urge that the lesson to be learned from Paul's failure to convert the Jews of the diaspora is that the Gentiles must be taught to adopt the religious traditions of Judaism, for only in this way will it be possible for the Jews of the diaspora to form a common church with the Gentiles.

<sup>6†</sup> The apostles and the presbyters accordingly convened to look into the matter. <sup>7*†</sup> After much discussion, Peter took the floor and said to them: "Brothers, you know well enough that from the early days God selected me from your number to be the one from whose lips the Gentiles would hear the message of the gospel and believe. <sup>8*</sup> God, who reads the hearts of men, showed his approval by granting the Holy Spirit to them just as he did to us. <sup>9</sup> He made no distinction between them and us, but purified their hearts by means of faith also. <sup>10*†</sup> Why, then, do you put God to the test by trying to place on the shoulders of these converts a yoke which neither we nor our fathers were able to bear? <sup>11*†</sup> Our belief is rather that we are saved by the favor of the Lord Jesus and so are they." <sup>12</sup> At that the whole assembly fell silent. They listened to Barnabas and Paul as the two described all the signs and wonders God had worked among the Gentiles through them.

James on Dietary Law. <sup>13†</sup> When they concluded their presentation, James spoke up: "Brothers, listen to me. <sup>14†</sup> Symeon has told you how God first concerned himself with taking from among the Gentiles a people to bear his name. <sup>15</sup> The words of the prophets agree with this, where it says in Scripture, <sup>16*</sup> 'Hereafter I will return and rebuild the fallen hut of David; from its ruins I will rebuild it and set it up again, <sup>17</sup> so that all the rest of mankind and all the nations that bear my name may seek out the Lord. <sup>18</sup> Thus says the Lord who accomplishes these things known to him from of old.' <sup>19*</sup> It is my judgment, therefore, that we ought not to cause God's Gentile converts any difficulties. <sup>20</sup> We should merely write to them to abstain from anything contaminated by idols, from illicit sexual union, from the meat of strangled animals, and from eating blood. <sup>21</sup> After all, for generations now Moses has been proclaimed in every town and has been read aloud in the synagogues on every sabbath."

Letter of the Apostles. <sup>22</sup> It was resolved by the apostles and the presbyters, in agreement with the whole Jerusalem church, that representatives be chosen from among their number and sent to Antioch along with Paul and Barnabas. Those chosen were leading men of the community, Judas, known as Barsabbas, and Silas. <sup>23</sup> They were to deliver this letter:

"The apostles and the presbyters, your brothers, send greetings to the brothers of Gentile origin in Antioch, Syria, and Cilicia. <sup>24</sup> We have heard that some of our number without any instructions from us have upset you with their discussions and disturbed your peace of mind. <sup>25</sup> Therefore we have unanimously resolved to choose representatives and send them to you, along with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, <sup>26</sup> who have dedicated themselves to the cause of our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>27</sup> Those whom we are sending you are Judas and Silas, who will convey this message by word of mouth: <sup>28</sup> 'It is the decision of the Holy Spirit, and ours too, not to lay on you any burden beyond that which is strictly necessary, <sup>29</sup> namely, to abstain from meat sacrificed to idols, from blood, from the meat of strangled animals, and from illicit sexual union. You will be well advised to avoid these things. Farewell.'"

Delegates to Antioch. <sup>30</sup> Thus were the representatives sent on their way to Antioch; and upon their arrival there they called the assembly together to deliver the letter. <sup>31</sup> When it was read there was great delight at the encouragement it gave. <sup>32</sup> Judas and Silas, who were themselves prophets, strengthened the community and gave them reassurance in a long discourse. <sup>33</sup> After passing some time there, they were sent back with greetings from the brothers to those who had commissioned them. † <sup>35*</sup> Paul and Barnabas continued in Antioch, along with many others, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord.

7: 10, 20.

8: 10, 44-47.

10: Mt 23, 4; Gal 5,

1.

11: Gal 3, 11.

16: Am 9, 11f.

19: 21, 25.

35: 14, 28.

†

15, 6-12: This gathering is probably the same as that recalled by Paul in Gal 2, 1-10. Note that in 15, 2 it is only the apostles and presbyters, a small group, with whom Paul and Barnabas are to meet. Here Luke gives the meeting a public character because he wishes to emphasize its doctrinal significance for the entire world; cf v 22.

15, 7f: Paul's refusal to impose the Mosaic law on the Gentile Christians is supported by Peter on the ground that within his own experience God bestowed the Holy Spirit upon Cornelius and his household without preconditions concerning the adoption of the Mosaic law; cf 10, 44-47.

15, 10: A devout Jew considered the law a blessing. For the Christian, however, who understood that in his regard its observance was not a condition for receiving the divine benefits, such observance could be only a burden; cf Gal 4, 31.

15, 11: In support of Paul, Peter formulates the fundamental meaning of the gospel: that all mankind is invited to be saved through faith in the salvific power of Christ; personal observance of the divine law is man's necessary response to God's saving action, though not the cause of it.

15, 13-35: Some scholars think that this apostolic decree requested by James, the immediate leader of the Jerusalem community, derives from another historical occasion than the meeting in question. This seems to be the case if the meeting is the same as the one related in Galatians 2, 1-10. According to that account, nothing was imposed upon Gentile Christians in respect to Mosaic law; whereas the decree instructs Gentile Christians of mixed communities to abstain from meats offered to idols and from blood-meats, and to avoid marriage within forbidden degrees of kindred (Lv 18), all of which practices were especially abhorrent to Jews.

15, 14: Symeon: Simon Peter; cf 15, 7.

15, 34: Certain codices add: "But Silas decided to remain there"; however, the verse is omitted in the Greek manuscripts.

VI: PAUL'S MISSION TO THE GENTILESPaul and Barnabas Separate.

<sup>36</sup>† After a certain time Paul said to Barnabas, "Let us go back now and see how the brothers are getting on in each of the towns where we proclaimed the word of the Lord."<sup>37</sup> Barnabas wanted to take along John, called Mark.<sup>38*</sup> But Paul insisted that, as he had deserted them at Pamphylia, refusing to join them on that mission, he was not fit to be taken along now.<sup>39</sup> The disagreement which ensued was so sharp that the two separated. Barnabas took Mark along with him and sailed for Cyprus.

<sup>40</sup> Paul, for his part, chose Silas to accompany him on his journey, and in this he was commended by the brothers to the favor of the Lord.<sup>41</sup> He traveled throughout Syria and Cilicia, giving the churches there renewed assurance.

CHAPTER 16

In Lycaonia: Timothy. <sup>1*</sup> Paul arrived first at Derbe; next he came to Lystra, where there was a disciple named Timothy, whose mother was Jewish and a believer, and whose father was a Greek.<sup>2*</sup> Since the brothers in Lystra and Iconium spoke highly of him,<sup>3†</sup> Paul was anxious to have him come along on the journey. Paul had him circumcised because of the Jews of that region, for they all knew that it was only his father who was Greek.<sup>4</sup> As they made their way from town to town, they transmitted to the people for observance the decisions which the apostles and presbyters had made in Jerusalem.

<sup>5</sup> Through all this, the congregations grew stronger in faith and daily increased in numbers.

Through Asia Minor. <sup>6†</sup> They next traveled through Phrygia and Galatian territory because they had been prevented by the Holy Spirit from preaching the message in the province of Asia.<sup>7</sup> When they came to Mysia they tried to go on into Bithynia, but again the Spirit of Jesus would not allow them.<sup>8</sup> Crossing through Mysia instead, they came down to Troas.<sup>9</sup> There one night Paul had a vision. A man of Macedonia stood before him and invited him, "Come over to Macedonia and help us."

<sup>10†</sup> After this vision, we immediately made efforts to get across to Macedonia, concluding that God had summoned us to proclaim the good news there.

Into Europe. <sup>11†</sup> We put out to sea from Troas and set a course straight for Samothrace, and the next day on to Neapolis;<sup>12</sup> from there we went to Philippi, a leading city in the district of Macedonia and a Roman colony.<sup>13</sup> We spent some time in that city. Once, on the sabbath, we went outside the city gate to the bank of the river, where we thought there would be a place of prayer. We sat down and spoke to the women who were gathered there.<sup>14</sup> One who listened was a woman named Lydia, a dealer in purple goods from the town of Thyatira. She already revered God, and the Lord opened her heart to accept what Paul was saying.<sup>15</sup> After she and her household had been baptized, she extended us an invitation: "If you are convinced that I believe in the Lord, come and stay at my house." She managed to prevail on us.

Philippi: Imprisonment. <sup>16</sup> It was while we were on our way out to the place of prayer that we met a slave girl who had a clairvoyant spirit. She used to bring substantial profit to her masters by fortune-telling.<sup>17*</sup> The girl began to follow Paul and the rest of us shouting, "These men are servants of the Most High God; they will make known to you a way of salvation."<sup>18*</sup> She did this for several days until finally Paul became 38: 13, 13.

16, 1: 1 Tm 1, 2; 2 Tm
1, 5.

2: Heb 13, 23.
17: Mt 8, 29.
18: Mk 1, 25f.

†

<sup>15, 36—18, 22:</sup> This continuous narrative recounts Paul's second missionary journey. On the internal evidence of the Lucan account it lasted about three years. Paul first visited the communities he had established on his first journey (16, 1-5), then pushed on into Macedonia, where he established communities at Philippi, Thessalonica and Berea (16, 6—17, 15). To escape the hostility of the Jews of Thessalonica he left for Greece, and while resident in Athens attempted, without success, to establish an effective Christian community there. From Athens he proceeded to Corinth, and after a stay of a year and a half, returned to Antioch by way of Ephesus and Jerusalem (17, 16—18, 22). Luke's narrative is colorful and lively. He does not concern himself with the structure or statistics of the communities but aims to show the general progress of the gospel in the Gentile world, as well as its continued failure to take root in the Jewish community.

<sup>16, 3:</sup> Paul had him circumcised: in order that Timothy might be able to socialize with the Jews and so perform a ministry among them. Paul did not object to the Judaeo-Christians' adherence to the law out of custom, as was the case in Palestine. But he insisted that the law could not be imposed on the Gentiles. Paul himself lived in accordance with the law, or as exempt from the law, according to particular circumstances; cf 1 Cor 9, 19-23.

<sup>16, 6:</sup> The prohibition may have come through one of Paul's companions endowed with a prophetic charism; cf 11, 27f.

<sup>16, 10-17:</sup> This is the first of the so-called "we-sections" in Acts, where Luke writes as one of Paul's companions. The other passages are 20, 5-15; 21, 1-18; 27, 1—28, 16. Scholars debate whether Luke may not have used the first person plural simply as a literary device to lend color to the narrative. It is more probable, however, that the "we" includes Luke or another companion of Paul whose data Luke used as a source.

<sup>16, 11-40:</sup> The church at Philippi became a sufficiently flourishing community for Paul to honor it with one of his letters. Judging, however, from Luke's account of Paul's vicissitudes in the city, his personal success was minimal. Evidently the community grew considerably after his departure and, as is clear from Paul's letter to them, he reserved his greatest affection for the Christians of Philippi.

annoyed, turned around, and said to the spirit, "In the name of Jesus Christ I command you, come out of her!" Then and there the spirit left her.

<sup>19</sup>* When her masters saw that their source of profit was gone, they seized Paul and Silas and dragged them into the main square before the local authorities. <sup>20</sup> They turned them over to the magistrates with this complaint: "These men are agitators disturbing the peace of our city! Furthermore, they are Jews, <sup>21</sup> which means they advocate customs which are not lawful for us Romans to adopt or practice." <sup>22</sup>*† The crowd joined in the attack on them, and the magistrates stripped them and ordered them to be flogged. <sup>23</sup> After receiving many lashes they were thrown into prison, and the jailer was given instructions to guard them well. <sup>24</sup> Upon receipt of these instructions he put them in maximum security, going so far as to chain their feet to a stake.

The Earthquake. <sup>25</sup>† About midnight, while Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God as their fellow prisoners listened, <sup>26</sup>* a severe earthquake suddenly shook the place, rocking the prison to its foundations. Immediately all the doors flew open and everyone's chains were pulled loose. <sup>27</sup>* The jailer woke up to see the prison gates wide open. Thinking that the prisoners had escaped, he drew his sword to kill himself; <sup>28</sup> but Paul shouted to him, "Do not harm yourself! We are all still here." <sup>29</sup> The jailer called for a light, then rushed in and fell trembling at the feet of Paul and Silas. <sup>30</sup> After a brief interval he led them out and said, "Men, what must I do to be saved?" <sup>31</sup> Their answer was, "Believe in the Lord Jesus and you will be saved, and all your household." <sup>32</sup> They proceeded to announce the word of God to him and to everyone in his house. <sup>33</sup> At that late hour of the night he took them in and bathed their wounds; then he and his whole household were baptized. <sup>34</sup> He led them up into his house, spread a table before them, and joyfully celebrated with his whole family his newfound faith in God.

Release from Prison. <sup>35</sup> When it was day, the magistrates dispatched officers with orders to let these men go. <sup>36</sup> The jailer conveyed this information to Paul: "The magistrates have sent orders that you are to be released. Get started, now. On your way!" <sup>37</sup>* Paul's response to this was, "They flogged us in public without even a trial, then they threw us into jail, although we are Roman citizens! Now they want to smuggle us out in secret. Not a bit of it! Let them come into the prison and escort us out." <sup>38</sup>* The officers reported this to the magistrates, who were immediately alarmed at hearing they were Roman citizens. <sup>39</sup> They came along and tried to quiet them; then they escorted them out with the request that they leave the city. <sup>40</sup> Once outside the prison, however, the two first made their way to Lydia's house, where they saw and encouraged the brothers; afterward they departed.

CHAPTER 17

Problems at Thessalonica. <sup>1</sup> Paul and Silas took the road through Amphipolis and Apollonia and came to Thessalonica, where there was a Jewish synagogue. <sup>2</sup> Following his usual custom, Paul joined the people there and conducted discussions with them about the Scriptures for three sabbaths. <sup>3</sup>* He explained many things, showing that the Messiah had to suffer and rise from the dead: "This Jesus I am telling you about is the Messiah!" <sup>4</sup> Some of the Jews were convinced and threw in their lot with Paul and Silas. So, too, did a great number of Greeks sympathetic to Judaism, and numerous prominent women.

<sup>5</sup>* This only aroused the resentment of the Jews, however, who engaged loafers from the public square to form a mob and start a riot in the town. They marched on the house of Jason in an attempt to bring Paul and Silas before the people's assembly. <sup>6</sup> When they could not find them there, they dragged Jason himself and some of the brothers to the town magistrates, shouting: "These men have been creating a disturbance all over the place. Now they come here <sup>7</sup>*† and Jason has taken them in. To a man, they disregard the Emperor's decrees and claim instead that a certain Jesus is king." <sup>8</sup> In this way they stirred up the crowd. When the town's magistrates heard the whole story, <sup>9</sup> they released Jason and the others on bail.

Paul in Beroea. <sup>10</sup> As soon as it was night, the brothers sent Paul and Silas off to Beroea. On their arrival, they went to the Jewish synagogue. <sup>11</sup>* Its members were better disposed than those in Thessalonica, and welcomed the mes-

19: 19, 24-27.	38: 22, 29.
22: 2 Cor 11, 25; 1	17, 3: Lk 24, 25ff.46.
Thes 2, 2.	5: Rom 16, 21.
26: 12, 6-11.	7: Lk 23, 2, Jn 19,
27: 12, 18f; 27, 42.	12-15.
37: 22, 25.	11: Jn 5, 39.

† 16, 22: Apparently the attack on Paul and Silas was so violent that they were unable to invoke their Roman citizenship to avoid the scourging; cf 16, 37f.

16, 25f: The earthquake seems to have been a visionary experience that accompanied the opening of the doors and the unfastening of the chains. It is otherwise difficult to see why the jailer was so impressed; cf 16, 27-34.

17, 7: A certain Jesus is king: a distortion into a political sense of the apostolic proclamation of Jesus' religious kingship.

sage with great enthusiasm. Each day they studied the Scriptures to see whether these things were so. <sup>12</sup> Many of them came to believe, as did numerous influential Greek women and men. <sup>13</sup> But when the Jews of Thessalonica learned that the word of God had been proclaimed by Paul in Berea also, they hurried there to cause a commotion and stir up the crowds. <sup>14</sup> The brothers sent Paul off directly on his way to the sea, while Silas and Timothy stayed behind. <sup>15</sup> Paul was taken as far as Athens by his escort, who then returned with instructions for Silas and Timothy to join him as soon as possible.

Paul at Athens. <sup>16</sup> While Paul was waiting for them in Athens, he grew exasperated at the sight of idols everywhere in the city. <sup>17</sup> In the synagogue he used to hold discussions with the Jews and those sympathetic to Judaism, as well as daily debates in the public square with ordinary passers-by. <sup>18</sup> Epicurean and Stoic philosophers disputed with him, some of them asking, "What is this magpie trying to say to us?" Others commented, "He sounds like a promoter of foreign gods," because he was heard to speak of "Jesus" and "the resurrection." <sup>19</sup> They then led him off the Areopagus, saying, "We are curious to know what this new teaching is that you propose. <sup>20</sup>† You are introducing subjects unfamiliar to us and we should like to know what it is all about." <sup>21</sup> (Indeed, all Athenian citizens, as well as the foreigners who live there, love nothing more than to tell about or listen to something new.)

Paul's Discourse. <sup>22</sup>† Then Paul stood up in the Areopagus and delivered this address: "Men of Athens, I note that in every respect you are scrupulously religious. <sup>23</sup> As I walked around looking at your shrines, I even discovered an altar inscribed, 'To a God Unknown.' Now, what you are thus worshipping in ignorance I intend to make known to you. <sup>24</sup>* For the God who made the world and all that is in it, the Lord of heaven and earth, does not dwell in sanctuaries made by human hands; <sup>25</sup> nor does he receive man's service as if he were in need of it. Rather, it is he who gives to all life and breath and everything else. <sup>26</sup> From one stock he made every nation of mankind to dwell on the face of the earth. It is he who set limits to their epochs and fixed the boundaries of their regions. <sup>27</sup>* They were to seek God, yes to grope for him and perhaps eventually to find him—though he is not really far from any one of us. <sup>28</sup> 'In him we live and move and have our being,' as some of your own poets have put it, 'for we too are his offspring.' <sup>29</sup>* If we are in fact God's offspring, we ought not to think of divinity as something like a statue of gold or silver or stone, a product of man's genius and his art. <sup>30</sup> God may well have overlooked bygone periods when men did not know him; but now he calls on all men everywhere to reform their lives. <sup>31</sup> He has set the day on which he is going to 'judge the world with justice' through a man he has appointed—one whom he has endorsed in the sight of all by raising him from the dead."

<sup>32</sup> When they heard about the raising of the dead, some sneered, while others said, "We must hear you on this topic some other time." <sup>33</sup> At that point, Paul left them. <sup>34</sup> A few did join him, however, to become believers. Among these were Dionysius, a member of the court of the Areopagus, a woman named Damaris, and a few others.

CHAPTER 18

Paul Finds the Church in Corinth.

<sup>1</sup>* After that, Paul left Athens and went to Corinth. <sup>2</sup>† There he found a Jew named Aquila, a native of Pontus recently arrived from Italy with his wife Priscilla. An edict of Claudius had ordered all Jews to leave Rome. Paul went to visit the pair, <sup>3</sup> whose trade he had in common with them. He took up lodgings with them and they worked together as tentmakers. <sup>4</sup> Every sabbath, in the synagogue, Paul led discussions in which he persuaded certain Jews and Greeks.

<sup>5</sup> When Silas and Timothy came down from Macedonia, Paul was absorbed in preaching and giving evidence to the Jews that Jesus was the Messiah. <sup>6</sup>* When they opposed him and insulted him, he would shake out his garments

14: 1 Thes 3, 2.	1, 19.
19: 1 Cor 1, 22.	29: 19, 26; Is 40,
24: 7, 48ff; Gn 1, 1;	18f; Rom 1, 22f.
Is 42, 5.	18, 1: Rom 16, 3.
27: Wis 13, 6; Rom	6: Mt 27, 24f.

† 17, 20f: According to ancient writers the Athenians' interest in novel ideas was proverbial.

17, 22-31: Paul's discourse appeals to the Greek world's belief in divinity as responsible for the origin and existence of the universe. It contests the common belief in a multiplicity of gods supposedly exerting their powers through their images (idol-worship). It acknowledges (27) that mankind's attempt to understand God is one of the most anxious of all its endeavors. It declares, further, that the divine being is the judge of mankind, and concludes by hinting that the apostle has information on the latter subject concerning a man whom God raised from the dead and who is to be judge of all men. The speech reflects sympathy with pagan religiosity, handles the subject of idol-worship gently, and appeals for a new examination of divinity, not from the standpoint of creation but from the standpoint of judgment. It is possible that Luke intends to show in the whole incident the difficulties of the learned men of the time in accepting the Christian message; cf 17, 32ff; 1 Cor 1, 26f.

18, 2: Aquila . . . with his wife Priscilla: if this couple were not already Christians they soon became such; cf 18, 26. According to 1 Cor 16, 19 their home became a Christian meeting place.

in protest and say to them: "Your blood be on your own heads. I am not to blame! From now on, I will turn to the Gentiles."

<sup>7*</sup> Later, Paul withdrew and went to the house of a Gentile named Titus Justus, who revered God; his house was next door to the synagogue. <sup>8*</sup> A leading man of the synagogue, Crispus, along with his whole household, put his faith in the Lord. Many of the Corinthians, too, who heard Paul believed and were baptized. <sup>9</sup> One night in a vision the Lord said to Paul: "Do not be afraid. Go on speaking and do not be silenced, <sup>10*</sup> for I am with you. No one will attack you or harm you. There are many of my people in this city." <sup>11</sup> Paul ended by settling there for a year and a half, teaching them the word of God.

Paul Accused before Gallio. <sup>12</sup> During Gallio's proconsulship in Achaia, the Jews rose in a body against Paul and brought him before the bench. <sup>13</sup> "This fellow," they charged, "is influencing people to worship God in ways that are against the law." <sup>14</sup> Paul was about to speak in self-defense when Gallio said to the Jews: "If it were a crime or a serious fraud, I would give you Jews a patient and reasonable hearing. <sup>15</sup> But since this is a dispute about terminology and titles and your own law, you must see to it yourselves. I refuse to judge such matters." <sup>16</sup> With that, he dismissed them from the court. <sup>17</sup> Then they all pounced on Sosthenes, a leading man of the synagogue, and beat him in full view of the bench; but Gallio paid no attention to it.

Return to Antioch. <sup>18*</sup> Paul stayed on in Corinth for quite a while; but eventually he took leave of the brothers and sailed for Syria, in the company of Priscilla and Aquila. At the port of Cenchreae he shaved his head because of a vow he had taken. <sup>19</sup> When they landed at Ephesus, he left Priscilla and Aquila behind and entered the synagogue to hold discussions with the Jews. <sup>20</sup> They asked him to stay on longer but he declined. <sup>21</sup> As he said good-bye he gave them his promise, "God willing, I will come back to you again." Then he set sail from Ephesus. <sup>22</sup> On landing at Caesarea, he went up and paid his respects to the congregation, and then went down to Antioch.

<sup>23†</sup> After spending some time there he set out again, traveling systematically through the Galatian country and Phrygia to reassure all his disciples.

The Orator Apollos. <sup>24*†</sup> A Jew named Apollos, a native of Alexandria and a man of eloquence, arrived by ship at Ephesus. He was both an authority on Scripture <sup>25</sup> and instructed in the new way of the Lord. Apollos was a man full of spiritual fervor. He spoke and taught accurately about Jesus, although he knew only of John's baptism. <sup>26</sup> He too began to express himself fearlessly in the synagogue. When Priscilla and Aquila heard him, they took him home and explained to him God's new way in greater detail. <sup>27</sup> He wanted to go on to Achaia, and so the brothers encouraged him by writing the disciples there to welcome him. When he arrived, he greatly strengthened those who through God's favor had become believers. <sup>28</sup> He was vigorous in his public refutation of the Jewish party as he went about establishing from the Scriptures that Jesus is the Messiah.

CHAPTER 19

Paul in Ephesus. <sup>1†</sup> While Apollos was in Corinth, Paul passed through the interior of the country and came to Ephesus. There he found some disciples <sup>2</sup> to whom he put the question, "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you became believers?" They answered, "We have not so much as heard that there is a Holy Spirit." <sup>3</sup> "Well, how were you baptized?" he persisted. They replied, "With the baptism of John." <sup>4*</sup> Paul then explained, "John's baptism was a baptism of repentance. He used to tell the people about the one who would come after him in whom they were to believe—that is, Jesus." <sup>5</sup> When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. <sup>6*†</sup> As Paul laid his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came down on them and they began to speak in tongues and to utter prophecies. <sup>7</sup> There were in the company about twelve men in all.

7: 13, 46f.51; 28,	24: 1 Cor 1, 12,
28.	19, 4: 1, 5; 11, 16; 13,
8: 1 Cor 1, 14.	24f; Mt 3, 11
10: Jer 1, 8.	6: 8, 15ff.
18: Nm 6, 18.

†

<sup>18, 23—21, 16:</sup> Luke's account of Paul's third missionary journey devotes itself mainly to his work at Ephesus (19, 1—20, 1) and to his farewell address to the elders of this community (20, 17-35). Throughout the narrative runs a theme reflecting a certain restlessness and uneasiness on Paul's part. He has a growing conviction that the Spirit bids him return to Jerusalem and prepare to go to Rome (19, 21). He senses that imprisonment and suffering will be his lot in Jerusalem (20, 22f) and that he has paid his last visit to the Ephesian community (20, 25). Arriving at Tyre, on the Phoenician coast, he is warned by Christian prophets not to proceed to Jerusalem (21, 4). When he reaches Caesarea on the way to Jerusalem, another Christian prophet utters the same warning (21, 10f).

<sup>18, 24f:</sup> Apollos became a celebrated Christian preacher in the Corinthian community; 1 Cor 1, 12; 3, 5. He made use of the teaching of Jesus but placed it in the context of John's baptism of repentance. Since the teaching of Jesus was already known in an oral form to Apollos, it seems evident that the Christian communities likewise possessed this teaching.

<sup>19, 1-4:</sup> Upon his arrival in Ephesus Paul discovers other men at the same religious stage as Apollos, though they seem to have considered themselves followers of Christ, not of the Baptizer.

<sup>19, 6:</sup> A pentecostal experience at Ephesus.

<sup>8</sup> Paul entered the synagogue, and over a period of three months debated fearlessly, with persuasive arguments, about the kingdom of God. <sup>9</sup> When some in their obstinacy would not believe, but chose to speak ill of the new way in the presence of the assembly, Paul simply left them. He took his disciples with him, and after that held his discussions from day to day in the lecture hall of Tyrannus. <sup>10</sup> This continued for two years, with the result that all the inhabitants of the province of Asia, Jews and Greeks alike, heard the word of the Lord. <sup>11</sup> Meanwhile God worked extraordinary miracles at the hands of Paul. <sup>12*</sup> When handkerchiefs or cloths which had touched his skin were applied to the sick, their diseases were cured and evil spirits departed from them.

The Jewish Exorcists. <sup>13</sup> Some itinerant Jewish exorcists once tried to invoke the name of the Lord Jesus over those who were possessed by evil spirits, saying, "I adjure you by the Jesus whom Paul preaches." <sup>14</sup> Another time, when the seven sons of Sceva, a Jewish high priest, were doing this, <sup>15</sup> the evil spirit answered, "Jesus I recognize, Paul I know; but who are you?" <sup>16</sup> Then the man with the evil spirit sprang at them and overpowered them all. He dealt with them so violently that they fled from his house naked and bruised. <sup>17</sup> When this became known to the Jews and Greeks living in Ephesus, fear fell upon all, and the name of the Lord Jesus came to be held in great reverence. <sup>18</sup> Many who had become believers came forward and openly confessed their former practices. <sup>19</sup> A number who had been dealing in magic even collected their books and burned them in public. When the value of these was assessed, it came to fifty thousand silver pieces.

<sup>20</sup> Thus did the word of the Lord continue to spread with influence and power.

Future Plans. <sup>21*</sup> When all this was concluded, Paul made up his mind to travel through Macedonia and Achaia again, and then go on to Jerusalem. "Once I have been there," he said, "I must visit Rome too." <sup>22</sup> So he sent two of his assistants, Timothy and Erastus, into Macedonia ahead of him, while he himself stayed on for a time in Asia.

Riot of the Silversmiths. <sup>23</sup> At about that time a serious disturbance broke out concerning the new way. <sup>24</sup> There was a silversmith named Demetrius who made miniature shrines of Artemis and brought in no little work for his craftsmen. <sup>25</sup> He called a meeting of these men and other workers in the same craft. "Men," he said, "you know that our prosperity depends on this work. <sup>26</sup> But as you can see and hear for yourselves, not only at Ephesus but throughout most of the province of Asia, this Paul has persuaded great numbers of people to change their religion. He tells them that man-made gods are no gods at all. <sup>27*</sup> The danger grows, not only that our trade will be discredited, but even that the temple of the great goddess Artemis will count for nothing. In fact, she whom Asia and all the world revere may soon be stripped of her magnificence."

<sup>28</sup> When they heard this speech, they were overcome with fury and began to shout, "Long live Artemis of Ephesus!" <sup>29*</sup> Before long, confusion spread throughout the city. People rushed together to the theater and dragged in Gaius and Aristarchus, Paul's traveling companions from Macedonia. <sup>30</sup> Paul wanted to go before this gathering but his disciples would not let him. <sup>31</sup> Even some of the Asiarchs who were friends of Paul sent word to him advising him not to venture into the theater. <sup>32</sup> Meanwhile, various people were shouting all sorts of things, with the whole assembly in chaos and the majority not even knowing why they had come together. <sup>33</sup> Some brought out of the crowd Alexander, as the Jews pushed him forward. He motioned for silence, indicating that he wanted to explain something to the gathering. <sup>34</sup> But when they recognized that he was a Jew, they started to chant in unison, "Long live Artemis of Ephesus!" and kept shouting for about two hours.

<sup>35</sup> Finally the town clerk quieted the mob. "Citizens of Ephesus," he said, "what man is there who does not know that Ephesus is the custodian of the temple of the great Artemis, and of her image which fell from the sky? <sup>36</sup> Since this is beyond question, you must calm yourselves and not do anything rash. <sup>37</sup> These men whom you have brought here are not temple-robbers. They have not insulted our goddess. <sup>38</sup> If Demetrius and his fellow craftsmen want to bring charges against anyone, there are courts in session for that. There are proconsuls. Let the parties argue their case. <sup>39</sup> If there is any further matter you want to investigate, it ought to be settled in the lawful assembly. <sup>40</sup> As it is, we run the risk of being accused of rioting because of today's conduct. We have no valid excuse for this wild demonstration." These words of his broke up the meeting.

CHAPTER 20

Paul Departs for Greece. <sup>1*</sup> When the disturbance was over, Paul brought his

12: Lk 8, 44-47.

21: Rom 15, 22-32.

27: 17, 29.

29: Col 4, 10.

20, 1: 1 Cor 16, 5.

disciples together to encourage them. Then he said good-bye and set out on his journey to Macedonia.<sup>2</sup> He traveled throughout its regions, providing as he went many words of encouragement for the Christians there. Finally he arrived in Greece,<sup>3</sup> where he stayed for three months. As he was on the point of embarking for Syria, a plot was hatched against him by certain Jews; so he decided to return by way of Macedonia.

Return to Troas.<sup>4</sup> Accompanying him were Sopater, son of Pyrrhus, from Beroea; Aristarchus and Secundus from Thessalonica; Gaius from Derbe; Timothy; Tychicus and Trophimus from Asia.<sup>5</sup> These companions went on ahead and waited for us in Troas.<sup>6</sup> We ourselves set sail from Philippi as soon as the festival of Unleavened Bread was over. Five days later we joined them in Troas, where we spent a week.

Eutyclus Restored to Life.<sup>7†</sup> On the first day of the week when we gathered for the breaking of bread, Paul preached to them. Because he intended to leave the next day, he kept on speaking until midnight.<sup>8</sup> As it happened, there were many lamps in the upstairs room where we were assembled.<sup>9</sup> Paul talked on and on, and a certain young lad named Eutyclus who was sitting on the window-sill became drowsier and drowsier. He finally went sound asleep, and fell from the third story to the ground. When they picked him up he was dead.<sup>10*</sup> Paul hurried down immediately and threw himself on him, clutching the boy to himself. "Don't be alarmed!" he said to them. "There is life in him."<sup>11</sup> Afterward Paul went upstairs again, broke bread, and ate. Then he talked for a long while—until his departure at dawn.<sup>12</sup> To the great comfort of the people, they were able to take the boy away alive.

Journey to Miletus.<sup>13</sup> We ourselves went on ahead to the ship and set sail for Assos, where we were to pick Paul up. This was the arrangement he had made, since his plan was to travel overland.<sup>14</sup> When he met us at Assos we took him aboard and sailed to Mitylene.<sup>15</sup> From there we took off the next day, and reached a point opposite Chios; on the second day we crossed to Samos, and on the day after that we put in at Miletus.<sup>16†</sup> Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus so as not to lose time in Asia, for he was eager to get to Jerusalem by the feast of Pentecost if at all possible.

Address to the Miletus Presbyters.

<sup>17</sup> Paul sent word from Miletus to Ephesus, summoning the presbyters of that church.<sup>18</sup> When they came to him he delivered this address: "You know how I lived among you from the first day I set foot in the province of Asia—<sup>19</sup> how I served the Lord in humility through the sorrows and trials that came my way from the plottings of certain Jews.<sup>20</sup> Never did I shrink from telling you what was for your own good, or from teaching you in public or in private.<sup>21</sup> With Jews and Greeks alike I insisted solemnly on repentance before God and on faith in our Lord Jesus.<sup>22</sup> But now, as you see, I am on my way to Jerusalem, compelled by the Spirit and not knowing what will happen to me there—<sup>23</sup> except that the Holy Spirit has been warning me from city to city that chains and hardships await me.<sup>24</sup> I put no value on my life if only I can finish my race and complete the service to which I have been assigned by the Lord Jesus, bearing witness to the gospel of God's grace.<sup>25</sup> I know as I speak these words that none of you among whom I went about preaching the kingdom will ever see my face again.<sup>26</sup> Therefore I solemnly declare this day that I take the blame for no man's conscience,<sup>27</sup> for I have never shrunk from announcing to you God's design in its entirety.

<sup>28*</sup> "Keep watch over yourselves, and over the whole flock the Holy Spirit has given you to guard. Shepherd the church of God, which he has acquired at the price of his own blood."<sup>29*</sup> I know that when I am gone, savage wolves will come among you who will not spare the flock.<sup>30*</sup> From your own number, men will present themselves distorting the truth and leading astray any who follow them.<sup>31</sup> Be on guard, therefore. Do not forget that for three years, night and day, I never ceased warning you individually even to the point of tears.<sup>32</sup> I commend you now to the Lord, and to that gracious word of his which can en-

4: Rom 16, 21.	Mk 5, 39.
5: 21, 29; 2 Tm 4, 20.	28: Jn 21, 15ff.
10: 1 Kgs 17, 17-24; 2 Kgs 4, 30-37;	29: 1 Pt 5, 1ff.
	30: Mt 7, 15; 2 Pt 2, 1f.

† 20, 7: The first day of the week: the day after the sabbath, apparently chosen originally by the Jerusalem community for the celebration of the liturgy of the Eucharist in order to relate it to the resurrection of Christ. Thus, in view of the sacramental presence of Christ in the Eucharist, the liturgy of the Eucharist was an anticipated parousia; cf 1 Cor 10, 16.

20, 16-35: Apparently Paul was aware of difficulties in the Christian communities at Ephesus and neighboring areas, and felt that he would be long detained if he undertook to deal with them himself. He determined to remind the presbyters of the communities of their responsibility, calling them together for this purpose at Miletus, about thirty miles from Ephesus. Paul's moving discourse reminds them of his apostolic activity in their area and stresses his total dedication to the gospel (18-21); it describes his reaction to his presentiment that he is about to suffer for the gospel (22-27), and admonishes them to guard their communities against the teaching of false prophets, who he feels sure will arise upon his departure (20ff). He concludes by citing a saying of Jesus (35) not recorded in the gospel tradition but known to them. To the extent that Luke may be responsible for the discourse in this form, he portrays Paul as the model leader of the Christian community.

large you, and give you a share among all who are consecrated to him.<sup>33</sup> Never did I set my heart on anyone's silver or gold or envy the way he dressed.<sup>34*</sup> You yourselves know that these hands of mine have served both my needs and those of my companions.<sup>35*</sup> I have always pointed out to you that it is by such hard work that you must help the weak. You need to recall the words of the Lord Jesus himself, who said, "There is more happiness in giving than receiving."<sup>36</sup>

After this discourse, Paul knelt down with them all and prayed.<sup>37</sup> They began to weep without restraint, throwing their arms around him and kissing him,<sup>38</sup> for they were deeply distressed to hear that they would never see his face again. Then they escorted him to the ship.

CHAPTER 21

Arrival in Tyre. <sup>1</sup> When we had finally taken leave of them, we put out to sea and sailed straight to Cos. On the following day we came to Rhodes and went on from there to Patara. <sup>2</sup> When we found a ship bound for Phoenicia, we boarded it and sailed off. <sup>3</sup> We caught sight of Cyprus but passed it by on our left as we continued on toward Syria. Finally we put in at Tyre, where the ship had to unload cargo.

<sup>4</sup> We looked for the disciples there and stayed with them for a week. Under the Spirit's prompting, they tried to tell Paul that he should not go up to Jerusalem; but to no purpose. <sup>5</sup> Then, when our time was up, we continued our journey. All of them—wives and children included—came out of the city to see us off, and we knelt down on the beach and prayed. After we had said good-bye to one another, <sup>6</sup> we boarded the ship and they returned home.

At Ptolemais and Caesarea. <sup>7</sup> Continuing our voyage from Tyre we put in at Ptolemais, where we greeted the brothers and spent the day with them. <sup>8*</sup>† The next day we pushed on and came to Caesarea. There we entered the home of Philip the evangelist, one of the Seven, with whom we stayed. <sup>9</sup> This man had four unmarried daughters gifted with prophecy. <sup>10</sup> During our few days' stay, a prophet named Agabus arrived from Judea. <sup>11*</sup> He came up to us, and taking Paul's belt, tied his own hands and feet with it. Then he said, "Thus says the Holy Spirit: 'This is how the Jews in Jerusalem will bind the owner of this belt and hand him over to the Gentiles.'"<sup>12</sup> Upon hearing this, both we ourselves and the people of Caesarea urged Paul not to proceed to Jerusalem. <sup>13*</sup> He answered with a question: "Why are you crying and breaking my heart in this way? For the name of the Lord Jesus I am prepared, not only for imprisonment, but for death, in Jerusalem."<sup>14*</sup> Since he would not be dissuaded, we said nothing further except, "The Lord's will be done."

VII: PAUL THE PRISONER BEARS WITNESS TO THE RESURRECTION

Paul and James in Jerusalem. <sup>15</sup> At the conclusion of our stay, we got ready and started up toward Jerusalem. <sup>16</sup> Some of the disciples from Caesarea came along to escort us to the house of Mnason, a Cypriot and an early disciple, with whom we were to stay. <sup>17</sup>† On our arrival in Jerusalem, the brothers there gave us a warm welcome. <sup>18</sup> The next day, Paul and the rest of us paid a visit to James in the presence of all the presbyters. <sup>19</sup> Paul first greeted them, and then described in detail all that God had accomplished among the Gentiles through his ministry. <sup>20</sup> When they heard it they praised God, and said to Paul:

"You see, brother, how many thousands of Jews have come to believe, all of them staunch defenders of the law. <sup>21</sup> Yet they have been informed that you teach the Jews who live among the Gentiles to abandon Moses, to give up the circumcision of their children, and to renounce their customs. <sup>22</sup> What are we to do about your coming, of which they are sure to hear?<sup>23*</sup> Please do as we tell you. There are four men among us who have made a vow. <sup>24*</sup> Take them along with you and join with them in their rite of purification; pay the fee for the shaving of their heads. In that way, everyone will know that there is nothing in what they have been told about you, but that you follow the law yourself with due obser-

34: 1 Cor 4, 12; 2

Thes 3, 8.

35: Sir 4, 31.

21, 8; 6, 5; 8, 4f.

11: 11, 27; 20, 23.

13: 9, 15f.

14: Mt 6, 10; Lk 22,

42.

24: 18, 18; Nm 6,

18.

†

21, 8: One of the Seven: see note on 6, 1-11.

21, 17-26: The leaders of the Judaeo-Christians of Jerusalem inform Paul that the Jews there believe he has encouraged the Jews of the diaspora to abandon the Mosaic law. In reality, Paul had no objection to the retention of the law, according to custom, by the Judaeo-Christians of Jerusalem, and left the Jews of the diaspora who accepted Christian messianism free to follow the same practice. Perhaps this misunderstanding of Paul's position was supported by the fact that some Judaeo-Christians of the diaspora had abandoned the law.

21, 23f: The leaders of the community suggest that Paul, on behalf of four members of the Jerusalem community, make the customary payment for the sacrifices offered at the termination of the nazirite vow; cf Nm 6, 1-21. Since Paul himself had once made this vow (18, 18), his respect for the law would be on public record.

vance. <sup>25</sup>† As for the Gentile converts, we sent them a letter with our decision that they were merely to avoid meat sacrificed to idols, blood, the flesh of strangled animals, and illicit sexual union.”

<sup>26</sup> Accordingly, Paul gathered the men together and went through the rite of purification with them the next day. Then he entered the temple precincts to give notice of the day when the period of purification would be over, at which time the offering was to be made for each of them.

Riot in the Temple. <sup>27</sup> The seven-day period was nearing completion when some Jews from the province of Asia recognized Paul in the temple precincts and began to stir up the whole crowd there. They seized him, <sup>28</sup>* shouting: “Fellow Israelites, help us! This is the man who is spreading his teaching everywhere against our people, our law, and this sanctuary. He has even brought Greeks into the temple area and thus profaned this sacred place.” <sup>29</sup> They had seen Trophimus, an Ephesian, with him in the city earlier, so they now assumed that Paul had brought him into the temple.

<sup>30</sup> Before long the whole city was in turmoil. People came running from all sides. They seized Paul, dragged him outside the temple, and immediately closed its gates. <sup>31</sup> Attempts were being made on his life when a report reached the commander of the cohort that all Jerusalem was rioting. <sup>32</sup> Immediately the commander took his soldiers and centurions and charged down on the rioters. As soon as the crowd caught sight of him and the soldiers, they stopped assaulting Paul. <sup>33</sup> Then, when the commander arrived on the scene, he arrested Paul and had him bound with double irons. He tried to find out who he was and what he had been doing, <sup>34</sup> but different people in the crowd shouted out different answers.

The commander could not get at the truth because of the uproar, so he ordered Paul to be led away to headquarters. <sup>35</sup> When Paul reached the steps, he actually had to be carried up by the soldiers because of the violence of the mob. <sup>36</sup> A crowd of people was following along shouting, “Kill him! Kill him!” <sup>37</sup> Just as Paul was about to be led into the headquarters, he said to the commander, “May I say something to you?” “So you know Greek!” the commander exclaimed. <sup>38</sup> “Aren’t you that Egyptian who caused the riot some time ago and led a band of four thousand cutthroats out into the desert?” <sup>39</sup> Paul replied, “I am a Jew, a citizen of Tarsus in Cilicia—no mean city; I beg you, let me address these people.” <sup>40</sup>† With his permission Paul then stood on the steps and motioned the people to silence. A great hush fell on them as he began to speak to them in Hebrew.

CHAPTER 22

Discourse to the Crowd. <sup>1</sup> “My brothers and fathers, listen to what I have to say to you in my defense.” <sup>2</sup> When they heard him addressing them in Hebrew, they grew quieter still. He went on: <sup>3</sup>* “I am a Jew, born in Tarsus in Cilicia, but I was brought up in this city. Here I sat at the feet of Gamaliel and was educated strictly in the law of our fathers. I was a staunch defender of God, just as all of you are today. <sup>4</sup>* Furthermore I persecuted this new way to the point of death. I arrested and imprisoned both men and women.

<sup>5</sup> “On this point the high priest and the whole council of elders can bear me witness, for it was from them that I received letters to our brother Jews in Damascus. I set out with the intention of bringing the prisoners I would arrest back to Jerusalem for punishment. <sup>6</sup>† As I was traveling along, approaching Damascus around noon, a great light from the sky suddenly flashed all about me. <sup>7</sup> I fell to the ground and heard a voice say to me, ‘Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?’ <sup>8</sup> I answered, ‘Who are you, sir?’ He said to me, ‘I am Jesus the Nazorean whom you are persecuting.’ <sup>9</sup> My companions saw the light but did not hear the voice speaking to me. <sup>10</sup> ‘What is it I must do, sir?’ I asked, and the Lord replied, ‘Get up and go into Damascus. There you will be told about everything you are destined to do.’ <sup>11</sup> But since I could not see because of the brilliance of the light, I had to be taken by the hand and led into Damascus by my companions.

<sup>12</sup> “A certain Ananias, a devout observer of the law and well spoken of by all the Jews who lived there, <sup>13</sup> came and stood by me. ‘Saul, my brother,’ he said, ‘recover your sight.’ In that instant I regained my sight and looked at him. <sup>14</sup> The next thing he said was, ‘The God of our fathers long ago designated you to know his will, to look upon the Just One, and to hear the sound of his voice; <sup>15</sup> before all men you are to be his witness to what you have seen and heard. <sup>16</sup> Why

* 25: 15, 19f, 28f. Gal 1, 13f; Phil 3, 5f.
28: Rom 15, 31.
22, 3: 5, 34; 26, 4f. 4: 8, 3; 9, 2.
2 Cor 11, 22.

† 21, 25: The allusion to the apostolic decree (15, 13-29) was probably introduced here by Luke to remind his readers that the Gentile Christians themselves were asked to respect certain Jewish practices deriving from the law. Paul was not being asked to violate his conscience.

* 21, 40: In Hebrew: more precisely, “Aramaic,” which at this time was the Semitic tongue in common use. This indicates that Paul’s audience was principally composed of native-born Palestinian Jews.

22, 6-16: See note on 9, 1-19.

delay, then? Be baptized at once and wash away your sins as you call upon his name.'

<sup>17</sup> "Upon my return to Jerusalem I was praying in the court of the temple, where I fell into a trance <sup>18</sup> and saw Jesus speaking to me. 'You must make haste,' he said. 'Leave Jerusalem at once because they will not accept your testimony about me.' <sup>19</sup> I answered: 'Lord, it is because they know that I imprisoned those who believed in you and flogged them in every synagogue. <sup>20*</sup> While the blood of your witness Stephen was being shed, I stood by and approved it. I even guarded the cloaks of those who killed him!' <sup>21*†</sup> At that he said to me: 'Be on your way. I mean to send you far from here, among the Gentiles.'"

Paul Imprisoned. <sup>22†</sup> Up to this point in his speech the crowd had been listening to Paul, but now they began to shout, "Kill him! Rid the earth of the likes of him! He isn't worthy to live!" <sup>23</sup> They yelled and waved their cloaks and flung dirt through the air. <sup>24</sup> At that display, the commander directed Paul to be brought inside the headquarters. He issued orders that he be examined under the lash to find out why they made such an outcry against him. <sup>25*†</sup> No sooner had they bound Paul than he said to the centurion who was standing by, "Is it legal to flog a Roman citizen without a trial?" <sup>26</sup> On hearing this, the centurion ran to the commander and demanded, "Do you realize what you are doing? This man is a Roman citizen!" <sup>27</sup> The commander rushed in and asked Paul, "Is it true? Are you a Roman citizen?" "I am," Paul answered. <sup>28</sup> The commander then observed, "It cost me quite a sum to get my citizenship." "Ah," said Paul, "but I am a citizen by birth!" <sup>29</sup> At these words, those who were about to interrogate him backed away. The commander became alarmed because he realized that in restraining Paul he had restrained a citizen of Rome.

Paul before the Sanhedrin. <sup>30</sup> The next day the commander released Paul from prison, intending to look carefully into the charge which the Jews were bringing against him. He summoned the chief priests and the whole Sanhedrin to a meeting; then he brought Paul down and made him stand before them.

CHAPTER 23

<sup>1*</sup> Paul gazed intently at the Sanhedrin. Then he said, "Brothers, to this day I have lived my life with a clear conscience before God." <sup>2</sup> At that, the high priest Ananias ordered his attendants to strike Paul on the mouth. <sup>3*</sup> Paul said to him in rebuttal: "You are the one God will strike, you whitewashed wall! You sit there judging men according to the law, yet you violate the law yourself by ordering me to be struck!" <sup>4</sup> At this, the attendants protested, "How dare you insult God's high priest?" <sup>5†</sup> Paul answered: "My brothers, I did not know that he was the high priest. Indeed, Scripture has it, 'You shall not curse a prince of your people!'"

<sup>6*</sup> Paul, it should be noted, was aware that some of them were Sadducees and some Pharisees. Consequently he spoke out before the Sanhedrin: "Brothers, I am a Pharisee and was born a Pharisee. I find myself on trial now because of my hope in the resurrection of the dead." <sup>7</sup> At these words, a dispute arose between Pharisees and Sadducees which divided the whole assembly. <sup>8*</sup> (The Sadducees, of course, maintain that there is no resurrection and that there are neither angels nor spirits, while the Pharisees believe in all these things.) <sup>9</sup> A loud uproar ensued. Finally, some scribes of the Pharisee party arose and declared emphatically: "We do not find this man guilty of any crime. If a spirit or an angel has spoken to him. . . ." <sup>10</sup> At this, the dispute grew worse and the commander feared they would tear Paul to pieces. He therefore ordered his troops to go down and rescue Paul from their midst and take him back to headquarters. <sup>11†</sup> That night the Lord appeared at Paul's side and said: "Keep up your courage! Just as you have given testimony to me here in Jerusalem, so must you do in Rome."

Transfer to Caesarea. <sup>12</sup> When it was day, certain Jews formed a conspiracy in which they bound themselves by oath not to eat or drink until they had killed Paul. <sup>13</sup> (There were more than forty of them who took the oath together.) <sup>14</sup> They then went to the chief priests and the elders and said: "We have bound ourselves by oath to touch no food until

20: 7, 58.	3: Ez 13, 10-15; Mt
21: 9, 15.	23, 27.
25: 16, 37.	6: Phil 3, 5.
23, 1: 24, 16.	8: Mt 22, 23.

†

<sup>22, 21:</sup> Paul endeavors to explain that his position on the law has not been identical with that of his audience because it has been his prophetic mission to preach to the Gentiles, to whom the law was not addressed and who had no faith in it as a way of salvation.

<sup>22, 22:</sup> Paul's suggestion that his prophetic mission to the Gentiles did not involve his imposing the law on them provokes the same opposition as occurred in Pisidian Antioch (13, 45f).

<sup>22, 25:</sup> A Roman citizen could not be punished unless legally condemned. The tribune considers it his duty to be assured that Paul is not a seditionist.

<sup>23, 5:</sup> This was probably not said in sarcasm. Paul withdraws the epithet whitewashed wall when he is reminded of the rule in Ex 22, 27.

<sup>23, 11:</sup> The occurrence of the vision of Christ suggests that Paul's experiences may have placed him in a state of depression.

we kill Paul. <sup>15</sup> Now, together with the Sanhedrin, you must suggest to the commander that he have Paul brought down to you on the pretext that you would like to examine his case more carefully. We are prepared to kill him before he gets there." <sup>16</sup> The son of Paul's sister heard about the plot, and when he did so he came to headquarters. They allowed him to enter, and he told Paul about it. <sup>17</sup> Paul then called for one of the centurions, to whom he said, "Take this young man to the commander; he has something to report to him." <sup>18</sup> The centurion took him in charge and led him to the commander, with the explanation, "The prisoner Paul called me and asked me to bring you this boy, who has something to tell you." <sup>19</sup> The commander took him by the hand and drew him aside to ask privately, "What do you have to report?"

<sup>20</sup> The boy replied: "The Jews have agreed among themselves to ask you tomorrow to have Paul brought down to the Sanhedrin, on the pretext that they want to question him more carefully. <sup>21</sup> But don't be fooled by them. More than forty of them are lying in wait; they have bound themselves by oath not to eat or drink until they kill him. They are all ready now, waiting only for your consent." <sup>22</sup> The commander sent the boy away with the order, "Don't tell anyone that you gave me this information."

<sup>23</sup> Then the commander summoned two of his centurions and said to them, "Get ready to leave for Caesarea by nine o'clock tonight, with two hundred infantrymen, seventy cavalrymen, and two hundred spearmen. <sup>24</sup> Also provide horses for Paul's journey, so that you may give him safe conduct to Felix the governor." <sup>25</sup> He then wrote the governor a letter to this effect:

<sup>26</sup>† "Claudius Lysias sends greetings to His Excellency Felix, Governor. <sup>27</sup>* Here is a man whom the Jews seized and were about to murder. When I learned that he was a Roman citizen, I intervened with my troops and rescued him. I then had him brought before the Sanhedrin, <sup>28</sup> hoping to determine what their charge against him was. <sup>29</sup>* I subsequently discovered that he was accused in matters of their own law and was in no way guilty of anything deserving death or imprisonment. <sup>30</sup> When I later came to be informed of a plot against this man's life, I decided at once to send him to you. I have also instructed his accusers to take the matter up with you."

<sup>31</sup> According to their orders, the infantry took Paul and escorted him that night as far as Antipatris. <sup>32</sup> The next day they returned to headquarters, leaving it to the cavalry to go on with him. <sup>33</sup> When the cavalrymen arrived in Caesarea, they delivered the letter to the governor and brought Paul before him. <sup>34</sup> The governor, upon reading the letter, asked Paul what province he came from, only to learn he was from Cilicia. <sup>35</sup> "I shall hear your case," he said, "when your accusers arrive." Then he ordered Paul to be kept under guard in Herod's praetorium.

CHAPTER 24

Trial before Felix. <sup>1</sup> Five days later, the high priest Ananias came down to Caesarea with some of the elders and an attorney named Tertullus. They presented their case against Paul to the governor. <sup>2</sup> Following Paul's summons to the bar, Tertullus began his prosecution by addressing Felix: "Your Excellency, through your efforts we enjoy great peace. Many improvements have been made in this nation through your provident care. <sup>3</sup> Therefore we must always and everywhere acknowledge our deep gratitude to you. <sup>4</sup> But now, lest I impose on your time unduly, I beg your indulgence for a brief hearing of our case. <sup>5</sup>*† We have found that this man is a troublemaker who stirs up sedition among the Jews all over the world. He is a ringleader of the sect of Nazoreans. <sup>6</sup>† He even tried to desecrate our temple, but we apprehended him in time. <sup>8</sup> Feel free now to question him about all this and learn for yourself why we are accusing him." <sup>9</sup> The Jews supported this indictment and maintained that these were the facts.

<sup>10</sup> The governor then gestured to Paul, who replied as follows: <sup>11</sup> "I know that you have been a judge over this nation for many years. I am thus encouraged to make my defense before you, <sup>11</sup>† since you are in a position to understand. Not more than twelve days have passed since I went to Jerusalem to worship there. <sup>12</sup> Neither in the temple area, nor in the synagogue, nor anywhere else in the city, did my accusers find me debating with anyone or inciting a mob. <sup>13</sup> They cannot substantiate the charges they are making against me. <sup>14</sup> I admit

27: 21, 31ff.

29: 18, 15; 25, 18f.

24, 5: Lk 23, 2.

† 23, 26-30: The letter emphasizes the fact that Paul is a Roman citizen and asserts the lack of evidence that he is guilty of a crime against the empire. The tone of the letter implies that the commander became initially involved in Paul's case because of his Roman citizenship, but this is not an exact description of what really happened; cf 21, 31-33; 22, 25f.

24, 5f: The charges leveled against Paul accurately reflect the portrait formed of him among the Jews.

24, 6b-7: This portion is not found in the best Greek MSS. 24, 11f: Whereas the lawyer Tertullus referred to Paul's activities on his missionary journeys, the apostle narrowed the charges down to the not connected with the incident in the temple; cf 21, 27-30; 24, 17-20.

to you that it is according to the new way—which they call a sect—that I worship the God of our fathers. At the same time, I believe all that is written in the law and the prophets,<sup>15*</sup> and I have the same hope in God as these men have that there is to be a resurrection of the good and the wicked alike.<sup>16</sup> In this regard I too always strive to keep my conscience clear before God and man.

<sup>17</sup> "After several years' absence, I had come to bring alms to my own people and to make my offerings.<sup>18*</sup> That is what I was doing when they found me in the temple court completing the rites of purification without any crowd around me or any disturbance.<sup>19</sup> Certain Jews from the province of Asia are the ones who found me. These are the men who should be here before you to make whatever charge they have against me.<sup>20</sup> Let those who are here declare what crime they found me guilty of when I stood before the Sanhedrin,<sup>21*</sup> unless it was what I called out as I stood in their presence: 'I am on trial before you today because of the resurrection of the dead.'"

Captivity at Caesarea.<sup>22†</sup> Felix was rather well informed about the new way, and when he heard these words he adjourned the trial, saying merely, "I will decide the case when Lysias the commander arrives."<sup>23</sup> He gave orders to the centurion that Paul was to be kept in custody but allowed some freedom, and that no one was to prevent his friends from seeing to his wants.

<sup>24†</sup> A few days later Felix came with his Jewish wife Drusilla, and sent for Paul to hear him speak about faith in Christ Jesus.<sup>25</sup> As Paul talked on about uprightness, continence, and the coming judgment, Felix became frightened. Before long he exclaimed: "That's enough for now! You can go. I'll send for you again when I find the time."<sup>26†</sup> At the same time, he hoped he would be offered a bribe by Paul, so he used to send for him frequently to converse with him.

<sup>27</sup> Two years passed, following which Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus. Felix wanted to ingratiate himself with the Jews, so he left Paul in prison.

CHAPTER 25

Appeal to the Emperor.<sup>1</sup> Three days after Festus had arrived in the province, he went up from Caesarea to Jerusalem.<sup>2†</sup> There the Jewish chief priests and the leaders presented him with their case against Paul,<sup>3</sup> requesting that he favor them rather than Paul, and urging Festus to send him to Jerusalem. Their plot was to kill him on the way.<sup>4</sup> But Festus answered that Paul was being kept in custody at Caesarea, and that he himself would be returning there soon.<sup>5</sup> "Your leading men can come down with me," he said, "and if this man is at fault, they can prosecute him there."

<sup>6</sup> After spending eight or ten days in Jerusalem, Festus went down to Caesarea. On the following day he took his seat on the bench and ordered Paul to be brought in.<sup>7</sup> When Paul appeared, the Jews who had come down from Jerusalem surrounded him and leveled many serious charges against him, none of which they were able to prove.<sup>8</sup> Paul's defense was, "I have committed no crime either against the law of the Jews or against the temple or against the emperor."<sup>9</sup> But Festus, wishing to please the Jewish people, asked Paul, "Are you willing to go up to Jerusalem and stand trial before me there on these charges?"<sup>10</sup> Paul answered: "I stand before the imperial bench; that is where I must be tried. I have done the Jews no wrong, as you yourself realize.<sup>11†</sup> If I am guilty, if I have committed a crime deserving death, I do not seek to escape that penalty. But if there is nothing to the charges these men bring against me, no one has a right to hand me over to them. I appeal to the emperor!"<sup>12</sup> Thereupon Festus conferred with his council and finally declared: "You have appealed to the emperor. To the emperor you shall go."

Agrippa Invited to Hear Paul.<sup>13†</sup> A few days later King Agrippa and Bernice arrived in Caesarea and paid Festus a courtesy call.<sup>14</sup> Since they were to spend several days there, Festus referred Paul's case to the king. "There is a prisoner here," he said, "whom Felix left behind in custody.<sup>15</sup> While I was in Jerusalem the chief priests and the elders of the Jews presented their case against this man and demanded his condemnation.<sup>16</sup> I replied that it was not the

15: Jn 5, 29.
18: 21, 26.

21: 23, 6.

†

24, 22: Rather well informed about the new way: he probably had learned from talking to Christians that Christianity posed no threat to the empire. He may have kept Paul in custody simply to forestall fresh trouble in Jerusalem.

24, 24†: The way of Christian discipleship greatly disquiets Felix, who has entered into an adulterous marriage with Drusilla, daughter of Herod Agrippa I.

24, 26: As time passed Felix began to hope that Paul would be willing to leave the country under Roman protection, which he would be prepared to arrange in exchange for a bribe.

25, 2: Even after two years the animosity toward Paul in Jerusalem has not subsided, cf 24, 27.

25, 11†: Paul uses his right as a Roman citizen to appeal his case to the jurisdiction of the emperor (Nero, c 60 A.D.). This move broke the deadlock between Roman protective custody of Paul and the plan of his enemies to kill him; cf 25, 3.

25, 13: King Agrippa and Bernice: brother and sister, children of Herod Agrippa I whose activities against the Jerusalem community are mentioned in 12, 1-19. Agrippa was a petty ruler over small areas in northern Palestine and some villages in Perea.

Roman practice to hand an accused man over before he had been confronted with his accusers and given a chance to defend himself against their charges. <sup>17</sup> When they came here with me, I did not delay the matter. The very next day I took my seat on the bench and ordered the man brought in. <sup>18</sup> His accusers surrounded him but they did not charge him with any of the crimes I expected. <sup>19</sup> Instead they differed with him over issues in their own religion, and about a certain Jesus who had died but who Paul claimed is alive. <sup>20</sup> Not knowing how to decide the case, I asked whether the prisoner was willing to go to Jerusalem and stand trial there on these charges. <sup>21</sup> Paul appealed to be kept here until there could be an imperial investigation of his case, so I issued orders that he be kept in custody until I could send him to the emperor."

<sup>22</sup> Agrippa said to Festus, "I too should like to hear this man." "Tomorrow you shall hear him," replied Festus. <sup>23</sup> So the next day Agrippa and Bernice came with great pomp and entered the audience chamber in the company of military officers and prominent men of the city. At Festus' command Paul was brought in. <sup>24</sup> The governor began to speak: "King Agrippa and all you who are here present with us, look at this man! The whole Jewish community, both here and in Jerusalem, has appealed to me about him, clamoring that he should live no more. <sup>25</sup> But I did not find that he had done anything deserving of death, so when he appealed to His Majesty the Emperor, I determined to send him on. <sup>26</sup> The trouble is, I have nothing definite to write about him to our sovereign. That is why I have brought him before all of you, and in particular before you, King Agrippa, that from this investigation I may have something to set down in his regard. <sup>27</sup>† It seems to me a senseless procedure to send on a prisoner without indicating the charges against him."

CHAPTER 26

Agrippa Hears Paul. <sup>1</sup> Agrippa now spoke to Paul: "You have permission to state your case." So Paul stretched out his hand and began his defense.

<sup>2</sup> "Many charges have been leveled against me by the Jews, King Agrippa. I count myself fortunate to be able to make my defense today in your presence, <sup>3</sup> especially since you are expert in all the various Jewish customs and disputes. I beg you to listen to me patiently.

<sup>4</sup> "The way I have lived since my youth, and the life I have led among my own people from the beginning and later at Jerusalem, is well known to all Jews. <sup>5</sup>* They have been acquainted with me for a long time and can testify, if they wish, to my life lived as a Pharisee, the strictest sect of our religion. <sup>6</sup> But today I stand trial because of my hope in the promise made by God to our fathers. <sup>7</sup> The twelve tribes of our people fervently worship God day and night in the hope that they will see that promise fulfilled. It is because of this hope, Your Majesty, that I stand accused by the Jews. <sup>8</sup> Let me ask why you, above all, who are Jews, should find it hard to believe that God raises dead men to life.

<sup>9</sup>† "For my part, I once thought it my duty to oppose the name of Jesus the Nazorean in every way possible. <sup>10</sup> That is just what I did in Jerusalem. With the authority I received from the chief priests, I sent many of God's holy people to prison. When they were to be put to death I cast my vote against them. <sup>11</sup> Many a time, in synagogue after synagogue, I compelled them by force to blaspheme. Indeed, so wild was my fury against them that I pursued them even to foreign cities.

<sup>12</sup> "On one such occasion I was traveling toward Damascus armed with the authority and commission of the chief priests. <sup>13</sup> On this journey, Your Majesty, I saw a light more brilliant than the sun shining in the sky at midday. It surrounded me and those who were traveling with me. <sup>14</sup> All of us fell to the ground and I heard a voice saying to me in Hebrew, 'Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?' It is hard for you to kick against the goad.' <sup>15</sup> I said, at that, 'Who are you, sir?' and the Lord answered: 'I am that Jesus whom you are persecuting. <sup>16</sup> Get up now and stand on your feet. I have appeared to you to designate you as my servant and as a witness to what you have seen of me and what you will see of me. <sup>17</sup> I have delivered you from this people and from the nations, <sup>18</sup> to open the eyes of those to whom I am sending you, to turn them from darkness to light and from the dominion of Satan to God; that through their faith in me they may obtain the forgiveness of their sins and a portion among God's people.'

<sup>19</sup> "King Agrippa, I could not disobey that heavenly vision. <sup>20</sup> I preached a message of reform and of conversion to God, first to the people of Damascus, then to the people of Jerusalem and all

26, 5: Gal 1, 14.

† 25, 27: Festus' difficulty of lacking a charge against Paul from the Roman jurisdiction is not solved by Agrippa; cf 26, 31f. One solution open to the governor would have been a statement similar to Lysias' letter (23, 26-30) with the addition of Paul's appeal to the emperor.

26, 9-18: See note on 9, 1-19.

the country of Judea; yes, even to the Gentiles. I urged them to act in conformity with their change of heart. <sup>21*</sup> That is why the Jews seized me in the temple court and tried to murder me. <sup>22</sup> But I have had God's help to this very day, and so I stand here to testify to great and small alike. Nothing that I say differs from what the prophets and Moses foretold: <sup>23*</sup> namely, that the Messiah must suffer, and that, as the first to rise from the dead, he will proclaim light to our people and to the Gentiles."

Reactions to Paul's Speech. <sup>24</sup> As Paul went on defending himself in this way, Festus interrupted with a shout, "Paul, you are mad! And your great learning is driving you mad!" <sup>25</sup> "No, Your Excellency," answered Paul. "I am not mad. The message I proclaim is the sober truth. <sup>26</sup> The king here is well acquainted with these matters. Before him I can speak freely. I am convinced that none of this escapes him—after all, it did not take place in a dark corner! <sup>27</sup> Do you believe the prophets, King Agrippa? I am sure you do." <sup>28</sup> At this, Agrippa said, "A little more, Paul, and you will make a Christian out of me!" <sup>29*</sup> Paul replied, "Whether little more or much more, I would to God that not only you but all who listen to me today might become what I am—without these chains!"

<sup>30</sup> Then the king rose, and with him the governor and Bernice and the rest of the company. <sup>31</sup>† After they had left the chamber, they talked matters over among themselves and admitted, "This man is doing nothing that deserves death or imprisonment." <sup>32</sup> Agrippa further remarked to Festus, "He could have been set at liberty if he had not appealed to the emperor!"

CHAPTER 27†

Departure for Rome. <sup>1</sup> When it was decided that we were to sail for Italy, Paul and some other prisoners were handed over to a centurion named Julius from the cohort known as Augusta. <sup>2*</sup> We boarded a ship from Adramyttium bound for ports in the province of Asia, and set sail. With us was a Macedonian, Aristarchus of Thessalonica. <sup>3</sup> The following day we put in at Sidon, where Julius kindly allowed Paul to visit some friends who cared for his needs. <sup>4</sup> Then, putting out from Sidon, we sailed around the sheltered side of Cyprus because of strong headwinds. <sup>5</sup> We crossed the open sea off the coast of Cilicia and Pamphylia, and came to Myra in Lycia.

Storm and Shipwreck. <sup>6</sup> There the centurion discovered an Alexandrian vessel bound for Italy, and he ordered us aboard. <sup>7</sup> For many days we made little headway, arriving at Cnidus only with difficulty. Since the winds would not permit us to continue our course, we sailed for Salmone and the shelter of Crete. <sup>8</sup> Again with difficulty we moved along the coast to a place called Fair Havens, near the town of Lasea.

<sup>9*</sup> Much time had now gone by. The autumn fast was over, and with the lateness of the year sailing had become hazardous. It was then that Paul uttered this warning: <sup>10</sup> "Men, I can see that this voyage is bound to meet with disaster and heavy loss, not only to ship and cargo, but to our own lives as well." <sup>11</sup> However, the centurion preferred listening to the pilot and the shipowner to listening to Paul.

<sup>12</sup> Since the harbor was not fit to pass the winter in, the majority preferred to put out to sea in the hope of making Phoenix and spending the winter there. This was a Cretan port exposed on the southwest and the northwest. <sup>13</sup> When a gentle south wind began to blow, they thought they had what they were looking for, so they weighed anchor and proceeded, hugging the coast of Crete. <sup>14</sup> It was not long before a hurricane struck, the kind called a "northeaster." <sup>15</sup> Since the ship was caught up in it and could not head into the wind, we yielded and ran before it. <sup>16</sup> We passed under the lee of a small island named Cauda and only with difficulty were we able to gain control of the ship's boat. <sup>17</sup> They hoisted it aboard and then made use of cables to brace the ship itself. Because of their fear that they would be driven on the reef of Syrtis, they lowered the small anchor used for moving the ship and the ship was carried along. <sup>18</sup> We were being pounded by the storm so violently that the next day some of the cargo was thrown over the side. <sup>19</sup> On the third day they deliberately threw even the ship's gear overboard. <sup>20</sup> For many days neither the sun nor the stars were to be seen, so savagely did the storm rage. Toward the end, we abandoned any hope of survival.

<sup>21</sup> All hands had gone without food for a long time when Paul stood up among them and said: "Men, you should have

21: 21, 31. 27, 2: 2 Cor 11, 25.
23: 1 Cor 15, 20-23. 9:44: Jon 1, 4-16.
29: 28, 20.

†

26, 31: In recording the episode of Paul's appearance before Agrippa, Luke wishes to show that when Paul's case was judged impartially, no grounds for legal action against him were found.

27, 1-28, 15: Here Luke has written a stirring account of adventure on the high seas, incidentally to his main purpose of showing how well Paul got along with his captors and how his prophetic influence ultimately saved the lives of all on board. The recital also established the existence of Christian communities in Puteoli and Rome.

taken my advice and not set sail from Crete. Then you would not have incurred this disastrous loss. <sup>22</sup> I urge you now to keep up your courage. None among you will be lost—only the ship. <sup>23</sup> Last night a messenger of the God whose man I am and whom I serve, stood by me. <sup>24</sup> 'Do not be afraid, Paul,' he said. 'You are destined to appear before the emperor. Therefore, as a favor to you, God has granted safety to all who are sailing with you.' <sup>25</sup> So keep up your courage, men. I trust in God that it will all work out just as I have been told, <sup>26</sup> though we still have to face shipwreck on some island."

<sup>27</sup> It was the fourteenth night of the storm, and we were still being driven across the Ionian Sea, when toward midnight the sailors began to suspect that land was near. <sup>28</sup> They took a sounding and found a depth of twenty fathoms; after sailing on a short distance they again took a sounding and found it to be fifteen. <sup>29</sup> For fear that we should be dashed against some rocky coast, they dropped four anchors from the stern and prayed for daylight. <sup>30</sup> Then the sailors tried to abandon ship. Pretending that they were going to run out anchors from the bow of the ship, they let the ship's boat down into the sea. <sup>31</sup> Paul alerted the centurion and the soldiers to this: "If these men do not stay with the ship, you have no chance to survive." <sup>32</sup> At this, the soldiers cut the ropes and let the boat drift.

<sup>33</sup> At dawn Paul urged all on board to take some food: "For fourteen days you have been in constant suspense; you have gone hungry—eaten nothing. <sup>34</sup> Now I urge you to take some food, which will give you strength to survive. Not one of you shall lose a hair of his head." <sup>35</sup> When he had said this he took some bread, gave thanks to God before all of them, broke it, and began to eat. <sup>36</sup> This gave them new courage, and they too had something to eat. <sup>37</sup> (In all, there were two hundred and seventy-six of us on board.) <sup>38</sup> When they had had enough to eat, they lightened the ship further by throwing the wheat overboard.

<sup>39</sup> With the coming of daylight, they did not recognize the land they saw. They could make out a bay with a sandy beach, however, so they planned to run the ship aground on it if possible. <sup>40</sup> They cut loose the anchors and abandoned them to the sea. At the same time they untied the guyropes of the rudders, hoisted the foresail into the wind, and made for the beach; <sup>41</sup> but the ship hit a sandbar and ran aground. The bow stuck fast and could not be budged, while the stern was shattered by the pounding of the sea. <sup>42</sup>* The soldiers thought at first of killing the prisoners so that none might swim away and escape; <sup>43</sup> but because the centurion was anxious to save Paul, he opposed their plan. Instead, he ordered those who could swim to jump overboard first and make for land. <sup>44</sup> The rest were to follow, on planks, or on other debris from the ship. In this way all came safely ashore.

CHAPTER 28

Winter in Malta. <sup>1</sup> Once on shore, we learned that the island was called Malta. <sup>2</sup> The natives showed us extraordinary kindness by lighting a fire and gathering us all around it, for it had begun to rain and was growing cold. <sup>3</sup> Paul had just fed the fire with a bundle of brushwood he had collected, when a poisonous snake, escaping from the heat, fastened itself on his hand. <sup>4</sup> At the sight of the snake hanging from his hand, the natives said to one another, "This man must really be a murderer if, after his escape from the sea, Justice will not let him live." <sup>5</sup> But Paul shook the snake off into the fire and suffered no ill effects from the bite. <sup>6</sup>* They expected to see him swell up or suddenly fall dead. After waiting for some time, however, and seeing nothing unusual happen to him, they changed their minds and began to say that he was a god.

<sup>7</sup> In the vicinity of that place was the estate of Publius, the chief figure on the island. He took us in and gave us kind hospitality for three days. <sup>8</sup> It happened that Publius' father was sick in bed, laid up with chronic fever and dysentery. Paul went in to see the man and, praying, laid his hands on him and cured him. <sup>9</sup> After this happened, the rest of the sick on the island began to come to Paul and they too were healed. <sup>10</sup> They paid us much honor, and when we eventually set sail they brought us provisions for our needs.

Arrival in Rome. <sup>11</sup> Three months later we set sail in a ship which had passed the winter at the island. It was an Alexandrian vessel with the "Heavenly Twins" as its figurehead. <sup>12</sup> We put in at Syracuse and spent three days there. <sup>13</sup> Then we sailed around the toe and arrived at Rhegium. A day later a south wind began to blow which enabled us to reach Puteoli in two days. <sup>14</sup> Here we found some of the brothers, who urged us to stay on with them for a week.

This is how we finally came to Rome. <sup>15</sup> Certain brothers from Rome who heard about us came out as far as the Forum of Appius and the Three Taverns to meet us. When Paul saw them, he thanked God and took fresh courage. <sup>16†</sup> Upon our entry into Rome Paul was allowed to take a lodging of his own, although a soldier was assigned to keep guard over him.

* 42: 16, 27.

28: 6: 14, 11.

Testimony to Roman Jews. <sup>17†</sup> Three days later Paul invited the prominent men of the Jewish community to visit him. When they had gathered he said: "My brothers, I have done nothing against our people or our ancestral customs; yet in Jerusalem I was handed over to the Romans as a prisoner. <sup>18</sup> The Romans tried my case and wanted to release me because they found nothing against me deserving of death. <sup>19*</sup> When the Jews objected, I was forced to appeal to the emperor, though I had no cause to make accusations against my own people. <sup>20</sup> This is the reason, then, why I have asked to see you and speak with you. I wear these chains solely because I share the hope of Israel."

<sup>21</sup> They replied: "We have had no letters from Judea about you, nor have any of the brothers arrived with a report or rumor to your discredit. <sup>22*</sup> For our part, we are anxious to hear you present your views. We know very well that this sect is denounced everywhere."

<sup>23*†</sup> With that, they arranged a day with him and came to his lodgings in great numbers. From morning to evening he laid the case before them, bearing witness to the reign of God among men. He sought to convince them about Jesus by appealing to the law of Moses and the prophets. <sup>24</sup> Some, indeed, were convinced by what he said; others would not believe.

<sup>25</sup> Without reaching any agreement among themselves, they began to leave. Then Paul added one final word: "The Holy Spirit stated it well when he said to your fathers through the prophet Isaiah:

<sup>26*</sup> 'Go to this people and say:
You may listen carefully yet you will never understand;
you may look intently yet you will never see.

<sup>27</sup> The heart of this people has grown sluggish.
They have scarcely used their ears to listen;
their eyes they have closed,
Lest they should see with their eyes,
hear with their ears,
understand with their minds,
And repent;
and I should have to heal them.'

<sup>28</sup> Now you must realize that this salvation of God has been transmitted to the Gentiles—who will heed it!†

Summary.† <sup>30</sup> For two full years Paul stayed on in his rented lodgings, welcoming all who came to him. <sup>31</sup> With full assurance, and without any hindrance whatever, he preached the reign of God and taught about the Lord Jesus Christ.

19: 25, 11.
22: 24, 5, 14.
23: 13, 15-41.
26: Is 6, 9; Mt 13,

14: Mk 4, 12; Lk
8, 10; Jn 12, 40;
Rom 11, 8.

† 28, 16: The mild form of custody in which Paul is detained reflects, perhaps, the arrangements made for him by Festus; cf 25, 27.

28, 17-22: Paul's first act in Rome is to learn from the leaders of the Jewish community whether the Jews of Jerusalem plan to pursue their case against him before the Roman jurisdiction. He is informed that no such plan is afoot, but that the Jews of Rome have heard the Christian teaching denounced. Paul's offer to explain it to them is readily accepted.

28, 23-28: Some critics of Acts have expressed doubt that these meetings between Paul and the leading Jews of Rome took place; they incline to the view that Luke here created ideal scenes to show the final separation between Judaism and Christianity. The scenes, however, are historically plausible: Paul would naturally have been concerned that the Christian community of Rome be not embarrassed by charges against it if he were brought to trial; while the Jews of Rome stood to gain from an explanation of the new doctrines by a trained rabbi. The citation from Isaiah is probably introduced by Luke, who uses the unbelief of Israel as typical of the difficulty men meet when confronted with the prophetic word of God.

28, 29: This verse is not found in the Greek manuscripts.
28, 30f: Many attempts have been made to explain what seems to be the abrupt ending of Luke's Acts of the Apostles. The author has Paul still in detention, though he intimates a bright outcome for his case. Perhaps the most satisfactory explanation is that Luke does not regard the subsequent missionary activity of Paul or his martyrdom as necessary for his account of the origin and development of the church.

TO THE ROMANS

Christians in Rome seem to have become numerous first among the Jewish population of the city. The Roman historian Suetonius mentions an edict of the Emperor Claudius (died c 49 A.D.) ordering the expulsion of Jews from Rome in connection with a certain "Chrestus," probably an error for "Christus." According to Acts 18, 2, Aquila and Priscilla (or Prisca, as in this epistle) were affected by this edict; cf Rom 16, 3. Since neither early Christian tradition nor Paul's letter to the Romans mentions a founder of the Christian community in Rome, it may be concluded that the Christian faith came to that city through members of the Jewish community of Jerusalem who were Christian converts. About 57 A.D., when Paul wrote the letter, most probably from Corinth, Christians in Rome were predominantly Gentile, with a Judaeo-Christian minority, a circumstance which the majority of scholars see reflected in the letter itself.

At this time Paul was considering a missionary journey to Spain and desired to make Rome his headquarters for the project (15, 22f.28). He was informed about the Roman community (14, 1-11), perhaps by Aquila and Prisca, and it may be assumed that he in turn was known to the Christians there. It would be difficult to explain why he should have written this lengthy letter to them unless they were aware of his apostolic role and his whole remarkable history, and would receive his reflections with corresponding interest.

The principal theme of the letter is the relationship between Judaism and Christianity, a topic which Paul judged to be much in the minds of the Roman Christians. Each of these religious faiths claimed to be the way of salvation which established a covenant between God and man and made man the beneficiary of divine gifts. But Christianity regarded itself as the prophetic development and fulfillment of the faith of the Old Testament, declaring that the preparatory Mosaic covenant must now give way to the new and more perfect covenant in Jesus Christ. Paul himself had been the implacable advocate of freedom from the laws of the Mosaic covenant, and he refused to impose them on Gentile converts to Christianity. He had witnessed the personal hostilities that developed between the adherents of the two faiths, and had written his strongly worded letter to the Galatians against those Judaeo-Christians who were persuading Gentile Christian communities to adopt the religious practices of Judaism. For him, the purity of the religious understanding of Jesus as the source of salvation would be seriously impaired if Gentile Christians were obliged to amalgamate the two religious faiths.

Although Paul expressed his grief over Israel's failure to accept Christian messianism (9, 1-8), he remained unsympathetic toward both Jewish and Gentile unbelievers (2 Thes 1, 8ff). This need not seem startling if Paul in fact considered the parousia or second coming of Christ to be a distinct possibility in his own lifetime. His attitude would thus reflect the urgency of conversion and the imminence of the judgment of the world. See notes on 1 Thessalonians 4, 13-18, and on Mark 13, 1-37.

The implication of Paul's exposition of justification by faith rather than by the law is that the divine plan of salvation works itself out on a broad theological plane to include the whole of humanity despite the differences in the content of the given religious system to which a human culture is heir.

The Epistle to the Romans contains a powerful exposition of the doctrine of the supremacy of Christ and of faith in him as the source of salvation. It is an implicit plea to the Christians of Rome to hold fast to that faith. They are to resist any pressure put on them to accept a doctrine of salvation through works of the law. At the same time they are not to exaggerate Christian freedom through repudiation of law itself.

Romans is a well-constructed epistle. It is divided as follows:

- I: Introduction (1, 1-17)
- II: Humanity without Christ (1, 18—3, 20)
- III: Salvation through Faith in Christ (3, 21—5, 21)

IV: Justification and the Christian Life (6, 1—8, 39)

V: Israel's Present Rejection (9, 1—11, 36)

VI: The Duties of Christians (12, 1—15, 13)

VII: Conclusion (15, 14—16, 27)

I: INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER 1

Greetings.† <sup>1*</sup> Greetings from Paul, a servant of Christ Jesus, called to be an apostle and set apart to proclaim the gospel of God <sup>2</sup> which he promised long ago through his prophets, as the holy Scriptures record—<sup>3*</sup> the gospel concerning his Son, who was descended from David according to the flesh <sup>4*</sup>† but was made Son of God in power according to the spirit of holiness, by his resurrection from the dead: Jesus Christ our Lord. <sup>5</sup>† Through him we have been favored with apostleship, that we may spread his name and bring to obedient faith all the Gentiles, <sup>6</sup> among whom are you who have been called to belong to Jesus Christ.

<sup>7</sup> To all in Rome, beloved of God and called to holiness, grace and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Paul and the Romans. <sup>8*</sup> First of all, I give thanks to my God through Jesus Christ for all of you because your faith is heralded throughout the world. <sup>9</sup> The God I worship in the spirit by preaching the gospel of his Son will bear witness that I constantly mention you in prayer, <sup>10*</sup> always pleading that somehow by God's will I may at last find my way clear to visit you. <sup>11</sup> For I long to see you and share with you some spiritual gift to strengthen you—<sup>12</sup> rather, what I wish is that we may be mutually encouraged by our common faith. <sup>13*</sup> My brothers, I want you to know that I have often planned to visit you (though up to now I have been kept from it) in order to do some fruitful work among you, as I have among the other Gentiles. <sup>14</sup> I am under obligation to Greeks and non-Greeks, to learned and unlearned alike. <sup>15</sup> That is why I am eager to preach the gospel to you Romans as well.

God's Power for Salvation.† <sup>16</sup> I am not ashamed of the gospel. It is the power of God leading everyone who believes in it to salvation, the Jew first, then the Greek. <sup>17*</sup>† For in the gospel is revealed the justice of God which begins and ends with faith; as Scripture says, "The just man shall live by faith."

II: HUMANITY WITHOUT CHRIST

Punishment of Idolatry. <sup>18</sup>† The wrath of God is being revealed from heaven against the irreligious and perverse spirit of men who, in this perversity of theirs, hinder the truth. <sup>19</sup> In fact, whatever can be known about God is clear to them; he himself made it so. <sup>20*</sup> Since the creation of the world, invisible realities, God's eternal power and divinity, have become visible, recognized through the things he has made. Therefore these men are inexcusable. <sup>21*</sup> They certainly had knowledge of God, yet they did not glorify him as God or give him thanks; they stultified themselves through speculating to no purpose, and their senseless hearts were darkened. <sup>22</sup> They claimed to be wise, but turned into fools instead; <sup>23*</sup> they exchanged

1, 1: Gal 1, 15.	11: Heb 10, 38.
3: Rv 22, 16.	20: Wis 13, 1-9;
4: 10, 9.	Acts 17, 24-29;
8: 16, 19; 1 Thes	1 Cor 1, 21.
10: 1 Thes 2, 17.	21: Is 5, 21; 1 Cor
13: Acts 19, 21.	1, 19f.
17: Hb 2, 4; Gal 3,	23: Jer 2, 11.

† 1, 1-7: The address follows the epistolary style of Paul's time, naming the sender and the addressees and extending good wishes (1, 7). Paul proclaims the Christian faith in the humanity of Jesus (v 3) and in his divine sanctifying power (v 4).

1, 4: Was made Son of God in power: other possible translations are: "was declared" or "proclaimed the powerful Son of God." By his resurrection from the dead: the resurrection made Jesus a "life-giving spirit" (1 Cor 15, 45), able to communicate the Spirit to those who believe in him. This is the power which he now exercises as exalted Son of God.

1, 5: Paul recalls his apostolic office, implying that the Romans know something of his history.

1, 16f: The principal theme of the letter is salvation through faith. I am not ashamed of the gospel: a reminder of the criticism which Jews and Gentiles leveled against the doctrine of the crucified Savior; cf 1 Cor 1, 23f. Paul affirms, however, that it is precisely through the crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus that God chose to manifest his saving will and power. The apostle appeals through Jesus and his teaching for a faith to be held by all the world.

1, 17: In the gospel is revealed the justice of God which begins and ends with faith: the gospel is concerned with Jesus, in whom God has made known his saving presence and justice in history. Through Jesus, God offers the gift of faith, which makes his saving action effective in man. It manifests God's supremacy over man and his destiny, and likewise moves man to respond to the divine generosity. Faith makes clear the purpose and meaning of the Old Testament, revealing through the history of Israel the inability of man to effect his salvation in terms of covenant law.

1, 18-32: The conversion of the Gentiles through the gospel preaching constituted the divine indictment against paganism, which error had benighted and moral depravity had corrupted. It was the evil will of the pagan world that provoked the divine anger and abandonment (18). Contrary to nature itself which provides evidence of God's existence, power, and divinity through creation (19f), pagan society misread the evidence, fashioned gods of its own that could not exert any moral restraint, and freely indulged its perverse desires through every kind of wickedness (21-32); cf Wis 13, 1—14, 31.

the glory of the immortal God for images representing mortal man, birds, beasts, and snakes. <sup>24</sup>* In consequence, God delivered them up in their lusts to unclean practices; they engaged in the mutual degradation of their bodies, <sup>25</sup> these men who exchanged the truth of God for a lie and worshiped and served the creature rather than the Creator—blessed be he forever, amen! <sup>26</sup> God therefore delivered them up to disgraceful passions. Their women exchanged natural intercourse for unnatural, <sup>27</sup> and the men gave up natural intercourse with women and burned with lust for one another. Men did shameful things with men, and thus received in their own persons the penalty for their perversity. <sup>28</sup> They did not see fit to acknowledge God, so God delivered them up to their own depraved sense to do what is unseemly. <sup>29</sup> They are filled with every kind of wickedness: maliciousness, greed, ill will, murder, bickering, deceit, craftiness. They are gossips <sup>30</sup> and slanderers, they hate God, are insolent, haughty, boastful, ingenious in their wrongdoing and rebellious toward their parents. <sup>31</sup> One sees in them men without conscience, without loyalty, without affection, without pity. <sup>32</sup> They know God's just decree that all who do such things deserve death; yet they not only do them but approve them in others.

CHAPTER 2

God's Just Judgment. <sup>1</sup>† That is why every one of you who judges another is inexcusable. By your judgment you convict yourself, since you do the very same things. <sup>2</sup> "We know that God's judgment on men who do such things is just." <sup>3</sup> Do you suppose, then, that you will escape his judgment, you who condemn these things in others yet do them yourself? <sup>4</sup> Or do you presume on his kindness and forbearance? Do you not know that God's kindness is an invitation to you to repent? <sup>5</sup>* In spite of this, your hard and impenitent heart is storing up retribution for that day of wrath when the just judgment of God will be revealed, <sup>6</sup> when he will repay every man for what he has done: <sup>7</sup> eternal life to those who strive for glory, honor, and immortality by patiently doing right; <sup>8</sup> wrath and fury to those who selfishly disobey the truth and obey wickedness. <sup>9</sup> Yes, affliction and anguish will come upon every man who has done evil, the Jew first, then the Greek. <sup>10</sup> But there will be glory, honor, and peace for everyone who has done good, likewise the Jew first, then the Greek. <sup>11</sup>* With God there is no favoritism.

Judgment by the Interior Law. <sup>12</sup> Sinners who do not have the law will perish without reference to it; sinners bound by the law will be judged in accordance with it. <sup>13</sup>* For it is not those who hear the law who are just in the sight of God; it is those who keep it who will be declared just. <sup>14</sup> When Gentiles who do not have the law keep it as by instinct, these men although without the law serve as a law for themselves. <sup>15</sup> They show that the demands of the law are written in their hearts. Their conscience bears witness together with that law, and their thoughts will accuse or defend them <sup>16</sup> on the day when, in accordance with the gospel I preach, God will pass judgment on the secrets of men through Christ Jesus.

Judgment by the Mosaic Law. <sup>17</sup> Let us suppose you bear the name of "Jew" and rely firmly on the law and pride yourself on God. <sup>18</sup> Instructed by the law, you know his will and are able to make sound judgments on disputed points. <sup>19</sup> You feel certain that you can guide the blind and enlighten those in darkness, <sup>20</sup> that you can discipline the foolish and teach the simple, because in the law you have at hand a clear pattern of knowledge and truth. <sup>21</sup>* Now then, teacher of others, are you failing to teach yourself? You who preach against stealing, do you steal? <sup>22</sup> You who forbid adultery, do you commit adultery? You who abhor idols, do you rob temples? <sup>23</sup> You who pride yourself on the law, do you dishonor God by breaking the law? <sup>24</sup>* As Scripture says, "On your account the name of God is held in contempt among the Gentiles."

<sup>25</sup>* Circumcision, to be sure, has value if you observe the law, but if you break it you might as well be uncircumcised! <sup>26</sup>* Again, if an uncircumcised person keeps the precepts of the law, will he not be considered circumcised? <sup>27</sup> If a man

24: Wis 12, 24; 13, 10f; Eph 4, 19.

2, 1: Mt 7, 1.

5: Acts 7, 51.

11: Dt 10, 17; Acts 10, 34.

13: Lk 8, 21; Jas 1, 22-25.

21: Ps 50, 16-21; Mt 23, 3f.

24: Is 52, 5; Ez 36, 20.

25: 1 Cor 7, 19; Gal 5, 3.

26: Jer 9, 24f.

†

2, 1-3, 9: The key to this passage is in the final verse: We have already brought the charge against Jews and Greeks alike that they are under the domination of sin. This judgment is based on the doctrine of universal salvation through the redemptive death of Christ. The Jew cannot condemn the sins of Gentiles without implicitly condemning himself (2, 1-11). He cannot reasonably demand from them the standard of conduct inculcated in the Old Testament since God did not address its revelation to them. Rather, God gave the Gentile the law of reason and conscience by which he was to be judged (2, 12-16). Not mere possession of the law by Jew or Gentile, but observance of it, is evidence of virtue (2, 17-29). Paul responds to the objection that his teaching on the sinfulness of all humanity detracts from the religious privileges of Israel, by stressing that the Jew always remained the vehicle of God's revelation despite his sins. His privileges depend, not on his own attainments, but on the fidelity of God (3, 1-4).

who is uncircumcised keeps the law, he will pass judgment on you who, with your written law and circumcision, break it. <sup>28</sup> Appearance does not make a Jew. True circumcision is not a sign in the flesh. <sup>29*</sup> He is a real Jew who is one inwardly, and true circumcision is of the heart; its source is the spirit, not the letter. Such a one receives his praise, not from men, but from God.

CHAPTER 3

Answers to Objections. <sup>1</sup> What is the advantage, then, of being a Jew, and what value is there in circumcision? <sup>2</sup> The answer is, much in every respect. First of all, the Jews were entrusted with the words of God. <sup>3*</sup> You may ask, what if some of them have not believed? Will not their unbelief put an end to God's faithfulness? <sup>4*</sup> Of course not! God must be proved true even though every man be proved a liar, so that, as Scripture says,

"You shall be vindicated in what you say, and win out when you are judged."

<sup>5*</sup> But if our wrongdoing provides proof of God's justice, what are we to say? "Is not God unjust when he inflicts punishment?" (I speak in a merely human way.) <sup>6</sup> Assuredly not! If that were so, how could God judge the world? <sup>7</sup> Another question: If my falsehood brings to light God's truth and thus promotes his glory, why must I be condemned as a sinner? <sup>8*</sup> Or why may we not do evil that good may come of it? This is the very thing that some slanderously accuse us of teaching; but they will get what they deserve.

Universal Bondage of Sin. <sup>9*</sup> Well, then, do we find ourselves in a position of superiority? Not entirely. We have already brought the charge against Jews and Greeks alike that they are under the domination of sin. <sup>10</sup> It is as Scripture says:

"There is no just man, not even one;
<sup>11*</sup> there is no one who understands,
no one in search of God.

<sup>12</sup> All have taken the wrong course,
all alike have become worthless;
no, none of them acts uprightly, no,
not one.

<sup>13*</sup> Their throats are open tombs;
they use their tongues to deceive;
The venom of asps lies behind their lips.

<sup>14*</sup> Their mouths are full of curses and bitterness.

<sup>15*</sup> Swiftly run their feet to shed blood;
<sup>16</sup> ruin and misery strew their course.

<sup>17</sup> The path of peace is unknown to
them;

<sup>18*</sup> the fear of God is not before their eyes."

<sup>19</sup> We know that everything the law says is addressed to those who are under its authority. This means that every mouth is silenced and the whole world stands convicted before God, <sup>20*</sup> since no one will be justified in God's sight through observance of the law; the law does nothing but point out what is sinful.

III: SALVATION THROUGH FAITH IN CHRIST

Justice Apart from the Law. † <sup>21</sup> But now the justice of God has been manifested apart from the law, even though both law and prophets bear witness to it—<sup>22</sup> that justice of God which works through faith in Jesus Christ for all who believe. <sup>23</sup> All men have sinned and are deprived of the glory of God. <sup>24*</sup> All men are now undeservedly justified by the gift of God, through the redemption wrought in Christ Jesus. <sup>25*</sup> Through his blood, God made him the means of expiation for all who believe. He did so to manifest his own justice, for the sake of remitting sins committed in the past—<sup>26</sup> to manifest his justice in the present, by way of forbearance, so that he might be just and might justify those who believe in Jesus.

<sup>27*</sup> What occasion is there then for boasting? It is ruled out. By what law, the law of works? Not at all! By the law of faith. <sup>28*</sup> For we hold that a man is justified by faith apart from observance of the law. <sup>29</sup> Does God belong to the Jews alone? Is he not also the God of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles too. <sup>30</sup> It is the same God who justifies the circumcised and the uncircumcised on the basis of faith. <sup>31*†</sup> Are we then abolish-

29: Jer 4, 4.
3, 3: Ps 89, 30-37; 2
Tm 2, 13.
4: Ps 116, 11.
5: Jb 34, 12-17.
8: 6, 1.15.
9: Sir 8, 5.
11: Ps 14, 1ff.
13: Pss 5, 10; 140,
4.
14: Ps 10, 7.

15: Is 59, 7. Prv 1, 16.
18: Ps 36, 2.
20: 7, 7.
24: 5, 2.
25: Acts 17, 30; 1
Jn 4, 10.
27: 1 Cor 1, 29.
28: 5, 1.
31: Mt 5, 17.

† 3, 21-31: The justice of God is his mercy whereby he declares guilty man innocent and makes him so. He does this, not as a result of the law but apart from it (21); not because of any merit of man, but through forgiveness of his sins (v 24), in virtue of the redemption wrought in Christ Jesus for all who believe (22, 24). No man can boast of his own holiness, since it is God's free gift (27), both to the Jew who practices circumcision out of faith, and to the Gentile who accepts faith without the Old Testament religious culture symbolized by circumcision (29).

3, 31: We are confirming the law: placing it in its proper perspective. The Old Testament law, unable to effect salvation, was observed out of the motive of faith. Now, through the revelation of Christ, the importance of faith is manifest.

ing the law by means of faith? Not at all! On the contrary, we are confirming the law.

CHAPTER 4†

Abraham Justified by Faith.

<sup>1*</sup> What, then, shall we say of Abraham, our ancestor according to the flesh? <sup>2</sup> Certainly if Abraham was justified by his deeds he has grounds for boasting, but not in God's view; <sup>3*</sup> for what does Scripture say? "Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as justice." <sup>4</sup> Now, when a man works, his wages are not regarded as a favor but as his due. <sup>5</sup> But when a man does nothing, yet believes in him who justifies the sinful, his faith is credited as justice. <sup>6</sup> Thus David congratulates the man to whom God credits justice without requiring deeds:

- 7* "Blest are they whose iniquities are forgiven, whose sins are covered over.
8 Blest is the man to whom the Lord imputes no guilt."

<sup>9</sup> Does this blessedness apply only to the circumcised, or to the uncircumcised as well? For we say that Abraham's faith was "credited as justice." <sup>10</sup> What were the circumstances in which it was credited? Was it after he was circumcised or before? It was before. <sup>11*</sup> In fact, he received the sign of circumcision as a seal attesting to the justice received through faith while he was still uncircumcised. Thus he was to be the father of all the uncircumcised who believe, so that for them too faith might be credited as justice, <sup>12</sup> as well as the father of those circumcised who are not merely so but who follow the path of faith which Abraham walked while still uncircumcised.

Inheritance through Faith. <sup>13*</sup> Certainly the promise made to Abraham and his descendants that they would inherit the world did not depend on the law; it was made in view of the justice that comes from faith. <sup>14</sup> If only those who observe the law are heirs, then faith becomes an empty word and the promise loses its meaning. <sup>15*</sup> Indeed, the law serves only to bring down wrath, for where there is no law there is no transgression. <sup>16</sup> Hence, all depends on faith, everything is grace. Thus the promise holds true for all Abraham's descendants, not only for those who have the law but for all who have his faith. He is father of us all, <sup>17*</sup> which is why Scripture says, "I have made you father of many nations." Yes, he is our father in the sight of God in whom he believed, the God who restores the dead to life and calls into being those things which had not been. <sup>18*</sup> Hoping against hope, Abraham believed and so became the father of many nations, just as it was once told him, "Numerous as this shall your descendants be." <sup>19</sup> Without growing weak in faith he thought of his own body, which was as good as dead (for he was nearly a hundred years old), and of the dead womb of Sarah. <sup>20*</sup> Yet he never questioned or doubted God's promise; rather, he was strengthened in faith and gave glory to God, <sup>21</sup> fully persuaded that God could do whatever he had promised. <sup>22</sup> Thus his faith was credited to him as justice.

<sup>23</sup> The words, "It was credited to him," were not written with him alone in view; <sup>24</sup> they were intended for us too. For our faith will be credited to us also if we believe in him who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead, <sup>25*</sup> the Jesus who was handed over to death for our sins and raised up for our justification.

CHAPTER 5

Faith, Hope and Love. <sup>1*</sup> Now that we have been justified by faith, we are at peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>2</sup> Through him we have gained access by faith to the grace in which we now stand, and we boast of our hope for the glory of God. <sup>3</sup> But not only that—we even boast of our afflictions! We know that affliction makes for endurance, <sup>4*</sup> and endurance for tested virtue, and tested virtue for hope. <sup>5*</sup> And this hope will not leave us disappointed, because the love of God has been poured out in our hearts through the Holy Spirit who has been given to us. <sup>6</sup> At the appointed time, when we were still powerless, Christ died for us godless men. <sup>7</sup> It is rare that anyone should lay down his life for a just man, though it is barely possible that for a good man someone may have the courage to die. <sup>8*</sup> It is precisely in this that God proves his love for us: that while we were still sinners,

- |                                |  |
|--------------------------------|--|
| 4, 1: Gal 3, 6-9.              | 25: Is 53, 6, 11; 1 Cor 15, 17; 1 Pt 1, 3. |
| 3: Gn 15, 6; Jas 2, 14, 20-24. |  |
| 7: Ps 32, 1f.                  | 5, 1: Eph 3, 12.                           |
| 11: Gn 17, 10f.                | 4: 2 Cor 12, 9f; Jas 1, 2ff; 1 Pt 4, 13f.  |
| 13: Gal 3, 16ff.               |  |
| 15: 5, 13.                     | 5: 8, 14ff.                                |
| 17: Gn 17, 50.                 | 8: 1 Jn 4, 10, 19.                         |
| 18: Gn 15, 5.                  |  |
| 20: Heb 11, 11.                |  |

† 4, 1-25: This is an expanded treatment of the significance of Abraham's faith, which Paul discusses in Gal 3, 6-18; see notes there.

5, 1-5: A development of the doctrine of justification by faith. It is God who effects man's justification through Christ. This gives the believer a firm confidence in his salvation (5, 10). The hardships of life should merely teach him patience and strengthen his hope (3f), which will not disappoint him because the Holy Spirit dwells in his heart and infuses into it God's love (5).

Christ died for us. <sup>9*</sup> Now that we have been justified by his blood, it is all the more certain that we shall be saved by him from God's wrath. <sup>10*</sup> For if, when we were God's enemies, we were reconciled to him by the death of his Son, it is all the more certain that we who have been reconciled will be saved by his life.

<sup>11</sup> Not only that; we go so far as to make God our boast through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation.

Mankind's Sin through Adam.

<sup>12*</sup>† Therefore, just as through one man sin entered the world and with sin death, death thus coming to all men inasmuch as all sinned—<sup>13</sup> before the law there was sin in the world, even though sin is not imputed when there is no law—<sup>14</sup> I say, from Adam to Moses death reigned, even over those who had not sinned by breaking a precept as did Adam, that type of the man to come.

Grace and Life through Christ. <sup>15</sup> But the gift is not like the offense. For if by the offense of the one man all died, much more did the grace of God and the gracious gift of the one man, Jesus Christ, abound for all. <sup>16</sup> The gift is entirely different from the sin committed by the one man. In the first case, the sentence followed upon one offense and brought condemnation, but in the second, the gift came after many offenses and brought acquittal. <sup>17</sup> If death began its reign through one man because of his offense, much more shall those who receive the overflowing grace and gift of justice live and reign through the one man, Jesus Christ.

<sup>18</sup> To sum up, then: just as a single offense brought condemnation to all men, a single righteous act brought all men acquittal and life. <sup>19*</sup> Just as through one man's disobedience all became sinners, so through one man's obedience all shall become just.

Purpose of the Law. <sup>20*</sup> The law came in order to increase offenses; but despite the increase of sin, grace has far surpassed it, <sup>21</sup> so that, as sin reigned through death, grace may reign by way of justice leading to eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

IV: JUSTIFICATION AND THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

CHAPTER 6

Death to Sin, Life in God. <sup>1*</sup>† What, then, are we to say? "Let us continue in sin that grace may abound?"

<sup>2</sup> Certainly not! How can we who died to sin go on living in it? <sup>3*</sup> Are you not aware that we who were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death? <sup>4</sup> Through baptism into his death we were buried with him, so that, just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, we too might live a new life. <sup>5*</sup> If we have been united with him through likeness to his death, so shall we be through a like resurrection. <sup>6</sup> This we know: our old self was crucified with him so that the sinful body might be destroyed and we might be slaves to sin no longer. <sup>7</sup> A man who is dead has been freed from sin. <sup>8*</sup> If we have died with Christ, we believe that we are also to live with him. <sup>9*</sup> We know that Christ, once raised from the dead, will never die again; death has no more power over him. <sup>10</sup> His death was death to sin, once for all; his life is life for God. <sup>11</sup> In the same way, you must consider yourselves dead to sin but alive for God in Christ Jesus.

<sup>12</sup>† Do not, therefore, let sin rule your mortal body and make you obey its lusts; <sup>13*</sup> no more shall you offer the members of your body to sin as weapons for evil. Rather, offer yourselves to God as men who have come back from the dead to life, and your bodies to God as weapons for justice. <sup>14</sup> Sin will no longer have power over you; you are now under grace, not under the law.

<sup>15</sup> What does all this lead to? Just because we are not under the law but under grace, are we free to sin? By no means! <sup>16*</sup> You must realize that, when you offer yourselves to someone as obedient slaves, you are the slaves of the one you

9: 8, 32

10: 2 Cor 5, 18.

12: Wis 2, 24.

19: Is 53, 11; Phil 2, 8f.

20: 7, 7f.

6, 1: 3, 8.

3: Gal 3, 27; Col 2,

12; 1 Pt 3, 21f.

5: Phil 3, 10f.

8: Acts 13, 34.

9: 1 Cor 15, 26, 2;

Tm 1, 10; Rv 1, 18.

13: Col 3, 5.

16: Jn 8, 31; 2 Pt 2,

19.

†

5, 12-21: Paul reflects on the sin of Adam (Gn 3, 1-13) in the light of the redemptive mystery of Christ. Sin, i.e., man's guilt before God which merited the punishment of death and loss of grace, began with Adam and infected the entire human race (12). Through the Old Testament law the sinfulness of mankind, operative from the beginning (13), became abundantly manifest (v 20). The judgments in 5, 12ff are based on the mystery of man's redemption through the death of Christ. Paul contrasts the divergent effects of Adam and of Christ on the human race (15-21) to show the culmination in Christ of what is revealed concerning man's condition and destiny.

6, 1-11: Paul denies that sin calls forth the grace of God; it is rather the divine generosity that is the source of the gift of grace (3, 22; cf note on Mk 1, 9ff). Grace is bestowed at baptism and produces a true renewal. It makes the baptized person capable of responding effectively to the dictates of his conscience concerning faith and life. This renewal is the prelude to the Christian's bodily resurrection and admission to eternal life (5, 21).

6, 12-19: While the Christian remains in this mortal life, the power of sin in him is not fully overcome; his personal effort under the influence of grace is required to surmount the weakness remaining in him.

obey, whether yours is the slavery of sin, which leads to death, or of obedience, which leads to justice. <sup>17</sup> Thanks be to God, though once you were slaves of sin, you sincerely obeyed that rule of teaching which was imparted to you; <sup>18</sup> freed from your sin, you became slaves of justice. <sup>19</sup> (I use the following example from human affairs because of your weak human nature.) Just as formerly you enslaved your bodies to impurity and licentiousness for their degradation, make them now the servants of justice for their sanctification. <sup>20†</sup> When you were slaves of sin, you had freedom from justice. <sup>21*</sup> What benefit did you then enjoy? Things you are now ashamed of, all of them tending toward death. <sup>22</sup> But now that you are freed from sin and have become slaves of God, your benefit is sanctification as you tend toward eternal life. <sup>23*</sup> The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord.

CHAPTER 7

Freedom from the Law.† <sup>1</sup> Are you not aware, my brothers (I am speaking to men who know what law is), that the law has power over a man only so long as he lives? <sup>2*</sup> For example, a married woman is bound to her husband by law while he lives, but if he dies she is released from the law regarding husbands. <sup>3</sup> She will be called an adulteress if, while her husband is still alive, she gives herself to another. But if her husband dies she is freed from that law, and does not commit adultery by consorting with another man. <sup>4</sup> In the same way, my brothers, you died to the law through the body of Christ, that you might belong to that Other who was raised from the dead, so that we might bear fruit for God. <sup>5</sup> When we were in the flesh, the sinful passions roused by the law worked in our members and we bore fruit for death. <sup>6*</sup> Now we have been released from the law—for we have died to what bound us—and we serve in the new spirit, not the antiquated letter.

Knowledge of Sin through the Law.† <sup>7*</sup> What follows from what I have said? That the law is the same as sin? Certainly not! Yet it was only through the law that I came to know sin. I should never have known what evil desire was unless the law had said, "You shall not covet." <sup>8*</sup> Sin seized that opportunity; it used the commandment to rouse in me every kind of evil desire. Without law sin is dead, <sup>9</sup> and at first I lived without law. Then the commandment came; with it sin came to life, <sup>10</sup> and I died. The commandment that should have led to life brought me death. <sup>11*</sup> Sin found its opportunity and used the commandment: first to deceive me, then to kill me. <sup>12*</sup> Yet the law is holy and the commandment is holy and just and good.

Sin and Death.† <sup>13*</sup> Did this good thing then become death for me? Not that either! Rather, sin, in order to be seen clearly as sin, used what was good to bring about my death. It did so that, by misusing the commandment, sin might go to the limit of sinfulness. <sup>14</sup> We know that the law is spiritual, whereas I am weak flesh sold into the slavery of sin. <sup>15</sup> I cannot even understand my own actions. I do not do what I want to do but what I hate. <sup>16</sup> When I act against my own will, by that very fact I agree that the law is good. <sup>17</sup> This indicates that it is not I who do it but sin which resides in me. <sup>18</sup> I know that no good dwells in me, that is, in my flesh; the desire to do right is there but not the power. <sup>19</sup> What happens is that I do, not the good I will to do, but the evil I do not intend. <sup>20</sup> But if I do what is against my will, it is not I who do it, but sin which dwells in me. <sup>21</sup> This means that even though I want to do what is right, a law that leads to wrongdoing is always ready at hand. <sup>22</sup> My inner self agrees with the law of God, <sup>23</sup> but I see in my body's members another law at war with the law of my mind; this makes me the prisoner of the law of sin in my members. <sup>24</sup> What a wretched man I am! Who can free me from this body under the power of death? <sup>25</sup> All praise to God, through Jesus Christ our Lord! So with my mind I serve the law of God but with my flesh the law of sin.

21: 8, 6; Prv 12, 28.
23: Gn 2, 17; Gal 6,
7ff; Jas 1, 15.
7, 2: 1 Cor 7, 39.
6: 2 Cor 3, 6.
7: 3, 20; Ex 20, 17;

Dt 5, 21.
8: 1 Cor 15, 56.
11: Gn 3, 13.
12: 1 Tm 1, 8.
13: 5, 20.

†

6, 20-23: The two ways of life, intrinsically opposed, produce opposite results: false freedom from justice brings enslavement by sin and the punishment of death; freedom from sin begets sanctification and eternal life in Christ Jesus.

7, 1-6: Paul reflects upon the fact that the Christian has a different understanding of the law because of his faith in Christ. Law binds the living, not the dead, as exemplified in marriage, which binds in life but is dissolved through death. Similarly the Christian, who through baptism has died with Christ to sin, is freed from the law that occasioned sin and its punishment of death. Having risen with Christ, he is joined to him in newness of life so as to bear fruit for God.

7, 7-12: The apostle defends himself against the charge of identifying law with sin. Sin does not exist in law but rather in man, whose sinful inclinations are not overcome by the mere proclamation of law.

7, 13-25: The man who does not experience the justifying grace of God recognizes a rift between his reasoned desire for the goodness of the law and his actual performance contrary to the law. These two are found to be basically opposed. Unable to free himself from the slavery of sin and the power of death, he can only be rescued from defeat in the conflict by the power of God's grace working through Jesus Christ.

CHAPTER 8

The Flesh and the Spirit.† <sup>1</sup> There is no condemnation now for those who are in Christ Jesus. <sup>2</sup> The law of the spirit, the spirit of life in Christ Jesus, has freed you from the law of sin and death. <sup>3*</sup> The law was powerless because of its weakening by the flesh. Then God sent his Son in the likeness of sinful flesh as a sin offering, thereby condemning sin in the flesh, <sup>4</sup> so that the just demands of the law might be fulfilled in us who live, not according to the flesh, but according to the spirit. <sup>5</sup> Those who live according to the flesh are intent on the things of the flesh, those who live according to the spirit, on those of the spirit. <sup>6</sup> The tendency of the flesh is toward death but that of the spirit toward life and peace. <sup>7</sup> The flesh in its tendency is at enmity with God; it is not subject to God's law. Indeed, it cannot be; <sup>8*</sup> those who are in the flesh cannot please God. <sup>9*</sup> But you are not in the flesh; you are in the spirit, since the Spirit of God dwells in you. If anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, he does not belong to Christ. <sup>10</sup> If Christ is in you the body is dead because of sin, while the spirit lives because of justice. <sup>11</sup> If the Spirit of him who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, then he who raised Christ from the dead will bring your mortal bodies to life also, through his Spirit dwelling in you.

<sup>12</sup> We are debtors, then, my brothers—but not to the flesh, so that we should live according to the flesh. <sup>13</sup> If you live according to the flesh, you will die; but if by the spirit you put to death the evil deeds of the body, you will live.

Sons of God through Adoption.† <sup>14</sup> All who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God. <sup>15*</sup> You did not receive a spirit of slavery leading you back into fear, but a spirit of adoption through which we cry out, "Abba!" (that is, "Father"). <sup>16*</sup> The Spirit himself gives witness with our spirit that we are children of God. <sup>17</sup> But if we are children, we are heirs as well: heirs of God, heirs with Christ, if only we suffer with him so as to be glorified with him.

Destiny of Glory.† <sup>18</sup> I consider the sufferings of the present to be as nothing compared with the glory to be revealed in us. <sup>19</sup> Indeed, the whole created world eagerly awaits the revelation of the sons of God. <sup>20</sup> Creation was made subject to futility, not of its own accord but by him who once subjected it; yet not without hope, <sup>21*</sup> because the world itself will be freed from its slavery to corruption and share in the glorious freedom of the children of God. <sup>22*</sup> Yes, we know that all creation groans and is in agony even until now. <sup>23</sup> Not only that, but we ourselves, although we have the Spirit as first fruits, groan inwardly while we await the redemption of our bodies. <sup>24</sup> In hope we were saved. But hope is not hope if its object is seen; how is it possible for one to hope for what he sees? <sup>25</sup> And hoping for what we cannot see means awaiting it with patient endurance.

<sup>26</sup> The Spirit too helps us in our weakness, for we do not know how to pray as we ought; but the Spirit himself makes intercession for us with groanings that cannot be expressed in speech. <sup>27</sup> He who searches hearts knows what the Spirit means, for the Spirit intercedes for the saints as God himself wills.

God's Love for Man. <sup>28*†</sup> We know that God makes all things work together for the good of those who love God and are called according to his decree. <sup>29</sup> Those whom he foreknew he predestined to share the image of his Son, that the Son might be the first-born of many brothers. <sup>30</sup> Those he predestined he likewise called; those he called he also justified; and those he justified he in turn glorified. <sup>31†</sup> What shall we say after that? If God is for us, who can be against us? <sup>32*</sup> Is it possible that he who did not spare his own Son but handed him over for the sake of us all will not grant us

8, 3: 2 Cor 5, 21; Gal 3, 13.
8: 1 Jn 2, 16.
9: 1 Cor 3, 16.
15: Jn 1, 12; Gal 4, 6.

16: Gal 3, 26-29.
21: 2 Pt 3, 12f; Rv 21, 1.
22: 2 Cor 5, 2-5.
28f: Eph 1, 4-14.
32: Jn 3, 16.

†

8, 1-13: This is a reflection on the redemptive work of Christ mentioned in 7, 25. The Christian is freed from God's judgment of condemnation by reason of Christ's death for the sins of humanity (1-4). With the just demands of the law thus fulfilled, he must live now, not according to the flesh, . . . at enmity with God, threatened with death, but according to the spirit which dwells in him and leads to life and peace (5-17).

8, 14-17: The Christian, by reason of the Spirit's presence within him, enjoys not only new life but also a new relationship to God, that of adopted son and heir through Christ, whose sufferings and glory he shares.

8, 18-27: The glory which the believer is destined to share with Christ far exceeds the sufferings of the present life. Paul considers the created world to be linked to human destiny through its solidarity with man. As it shares in man's penalty of corruption through sin, so also it will share in his benefits of redemption and future glory (19f). At present both must suffer until they achieve through hope and patient endurance the full harvest of the Spirit's presence, of which they now possess the first fruits or guarantee.

8, 28f: These verses outline the Christian vocation as it was designed by God: to share the image of his Son, that the Son might be the first-born of many brothers. In terms of God's initiative, the call in its totality consists in the exercise of the divine foreknowledge, God's predetermination, God's gift of the call, his sanctification and glorification of the Christian. Thus all that happens to one who loves God, is directed by God toward the achievement of that good which is likeness to God's Son through grace and glory.

8, 31-39: The all-conquering power of God's love has overcome every obstacle to man's salvation and every threat of his separation from God. That power manifested itself fully when God delivered up to death even his own Son for our salvation. Through him, the Christian can overcome all his afflictions and trials.

all things besides? <sup>33*</sup> Who shall bring a charge against God's chosen ones? God, who justifies? <sup>34*</sup> Who shall condemn them? Christ Jesus, who died or rather was raised up, who is at the right hand of God and who intercedes for us?

Indomitable Love for Christ. <sup>35</sup> Who will separate us from the love of Christ? Trial, or distress, or persecution, or hunger, or nakedness, or danger, or the sword? <sup>36*</sup> As Scripture says: "For your sake we are being slain all the day long; we are looked upon as sheep to be slaughtered." <sup>37</sup> Yet in all this we are more than conquerors because of him who has loved us. <sup>38</sup> For I am certain that neither death nor life, neither angels nor principalities, neither the present nor the future, nor powers, <sup>39</sup> neither height nor depth nor any other creature, will be able to separate us from the love of God that comes to us in Christ Jesus, our Lord.

V: ISRAEL'S PRESENT REJECTION

CHAPTER 9

Grief for the Jews. † <sup>1</sup> I speak the truth in Christ: I do not lie. My conscience bears me witness in the Holy Spirit <sup>2</sup> that there is great grief and constant pain in my heart. <sup>3</sup> Indeed, I could even wish to be separated from Christ for the sake of my brothers, my kinsmen <sup>4</sup> the Israelites. Theirs were the adoption, the glory, the covenants, the law-giving, the worship, and the promises; <sup>5</sup> theirs were the patriarchs, and from them came the Messiah (I speak of his human origins). Blessed forever be God who is over all! Amen.

God's Free Choice. <sup>6*</sup> † Not that God's word has failed. For not all Israelites are true Israelites <sup>7</sup> nor are all Abraham's descendants his children, but as Scripture says, "Through Isaac shall your descendants be called." <sup>8</sup> That means that it is not the children of the flesh who are the children of God; it is the children of the promise who are to be considered descendants. <sup>9*</sup> And this was the promise: "I will return at this time, and Sarah shall have a son." <sup>10</sup> Not only that; for when Rebekah had conceived twin children by one man, our father Isaac—<sup>11</sup> while they were yet unborn and had done neither good nor evil, in order that God's decree might stand fast <sup>12*</sup> "not by works but by the favor of him who calls"—God said to her, "The older shall serve the younger." <sup>13*</sup> It is just as Scripture says, "I have loved Jacob and hated Esau." <sup>14†</sup> What are we to say, then? That God is unjust? Not at all! <sup>15</sup> He says to Moses, "I will show mercy to whomever I choose; I will have pity on whomever I wish." <sup>16*</sup> So it is not a question of man's willing or doing but of God's mercy. <sup>17*</sup> Scripture says to Pharaoh, "This is why I raised you up: that through you I might show my power, and my name might be proclaimed throughout all the earth." <sup>18*</sup> In other words, God has mercy on whom he wishes, and whom he wishes he makes obdurate.

<sup>19*†</sup> You will say to me, "Why, then, does he find fault? For who can oppose his will?" <sup>20*</sup> Friend, who are you to answer God back? Does something molded say to its molder, "Why did you make me like this?" <sup>21</sup> Does not a potter have the right to make from the same lump of clay one vessel for a lofty purpose and another for a humble one? <sup>22*</sup> What if God, wishing to show his wrath and make known his power, has endured with much patience vessels fit for wrath, ready to be destroyed, <sup>23</sup> and in order to make known the riches of his glory toward the vessels for mercy—which he prepared for glory—<sup>24</sup> I am speaking about us whom he called, not only from among the Jews, but from among the Gentiles.

Witness of the Old Testament. <sup>25*</sup> As it says in the Book of Hosea: "Those who were not my people I will call 'my peo-33f: Is 50, 8f.

34: Heb 7,-25.
36: Ps 44, 23; 2 Tm 3, 12.
9, 6f: Gn 21, 12; Mt 3, 9.
9: Gn 18, 10.
12: 11, 5f; Gn 25, 23f.
13: Mal 1, 3.

16: Ex 33, 19.
17: Ex 9, 16.
18: Ex 7, 3.
19: 3, 7; Wis 12, 12.
20f: Wis 15, 7; Is 29, 16; 45, 9; Jer 18, 6.
22: Wis 12, 20f.
25: Hos 2, 25.

†

9, 1—11, 36: Israel's unbelief and its rejection of Jesus as Savior astonished and puzzled Christians. It constituted a serious theological problem for them in view of God's specific preparation of Israel for the advent of the Messiah. Paul addresses himself here to the essential question of how the divine plan could be frustrated by Israel's unbelief.

9, 1-5: The apostle speaks in strong terms of the depth of his grief over the unbelief of his own people. He would willingly undergo a curse himself for the sake of their coming to the knowledge of Christ (3; cf. Lv 27, 28f). His love of them derives from God's choice of them and the spiritual benefits he bestowed on them (4f).

9, 6-13: Israel's unbelief reflects the mystery of the divine election that was always operative within it. Mere natural descent from Abraham did not ensure the full possession of the divine gifts; it was God's sovereign prerogative to bestow this fullness upon, or to withhold it from, whomever he wished; cf. Mt 3, 9; Jn 3, 3f. The choice of Jacob over Esau is a case in point.

9, 14-18: The principle of divine election does not mean that God is unfair in his dealings with men. Rather, he reveals in this way that the gift of faith is the enactment of his mercy (v 16). God raised up Moses to display his mercy and Pharaoh to display his severity in punishing those who obstinately oppose him.

9, 19-29: The apostle responds to the objection that if God rules over faith through the principle of divine election, he cannot then accuse the unbelieving man of sin (19). For Paul, this objection is in the last analysis a manifestation of human insolence, and his "answer" is less an explanation of God's ways than the rejection of an argument which places man on the level of God.

ple,' and those who were not loved I will call 'Beloved'; <sup>26*</sup> in the very place where it was said to them, 'You are not my people,' they shall be called sons of the living God." <sup>27*</sup> Isaiah cries out, referring to Israel, "Though the number of the Israelites should be as the sands of the sea, only the remnant will be saved, <sup>28</sup> for quickly and decisively will the Lord execute sentence upon the earth." <sup>29*</sup> It is just as Isaiah predicted: "Unless the Lord of hosts had left us a remnant, we should have become as Sodom, we should be like Gomorrah."

Israel's Unbelief. <sup>30*</sup> How, then, shall we put it? That the Gentiles, who were not seeking justice, attained it—the justice which comes from faith—<sup>31</sup> while Israel, seeking a law from which justice would come, did not arrive at that law? <sup>32*</sup> And why did it not? Because justice comes from faith, not from works. They stumbled over the stumbling stone, <sup>33*</sup> as Scripture says: "Behold, I am placing in Zion a stone to make men stumble and a rock to make them fall; but he who believes in him will not be put to shame."

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup>† Brothers, my heart's desire, my prayer to God for the Israelites, is that they may be saved. <sup>2</sup> Indeed, I can testify that they are zealous for God though their zeal is unenlightened. <sup>3</sup> Unaware of God's justice and seeking to establish their own, they did not subject themselves to the justice of God. <sup>4*</sup> Christ is the end of the law. Through him, justice comes to everyone who believes. <sup>5*</sup>† Moses writes of the justice that comes from the law, "The one who observes the law shall live by it." <sup>6*</sup> But of the justice that comes from faith he says, "Do not say in your heart, 'Who shall go up into heaven?' (that is, to bring Christ down), <sup>7*</sup> or 'Who shall go down into the abyss?' (that is, to bring Christ up from the dead)."<sup>8*</sup> What is it he does say? "The word is near you, on your lips and in your heart" (that is, the word of faith which we preach). <sup>9*</sup> For if you confess with your lips that Jesus is Lord, and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved. <sup>10</sup> Faith in the heart leads to justification, confession on the lips to salvation. <sup>11*</sup> Scripture says, "No one who believes in him will be put to shame." <sup>12</sup> Here there is no difference between Jew and Greek; all have the same Lord, rich in mercy toward all who call upon him. <sup>13*</sup> "Everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved."

<sup>14*</sup>† But how shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? And how can they believe unless they have heard of him? And how can they hear unless there is someone to preach? <sup>15*</sup> And how can men preach unless they are sent? Scripture says, "How beautiful are the feet of those who announce good news!" <sup>16*</sup> But not all have believed the gospel. Isaiah asks, "Lord, who has believed what he has heard from us?" <sup>17</sup> Faith, then, comes through hearing, and what is heard is the word of Christ. <sup>18*</sup> I ask you, have they not heard? Certainly they have, for "their voice has sounded over the whole earth, and their words to the limits of the world." <sup>19*</sup> I put the question again, did Israel really not understand? First of all, Moses says, "I will make you jealous of those who are not even a nation; with a senseless nation I will make you angry." <sup>20*</sup> Then Isaiah says boldly, "I was found by those who were not seeking me; to those who were not looking for me I revealed myself." <sup>21</sup> But of Israel he says, "All day long I stretched out my hands to an unbelieving and contentious people."

CHAPTER 11

Partial Rejection of Israel. <sup>1</sup>† I ask, then, has God rejected his people? Of course not! I myself am an Israelite, descended from Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. <sup>2</sup> No, God has not rejected his

26: 11, 5.	9: 1 Cor 12, 3.
27: Is 10, 22f; Hos 2, 1.	11: 9, 33; Is 28, 16.
29: Is 1, 9.	13: Jl 3, 5; Acts 2, 21.
30: 10, 4.	14: Acts 8, 31.
32: Is 8, 14.	15: Is 52, 7.
33: Is 28, 16; 1 Pt 2, 6f.	16: Is 53, 1.
10, 4: 2 Cor 3, 14.	18: Ps 19, 5; Mt 24, 14.
5: Gal 3, 12.	19: 11, 1; Dt 32, 21.
6: Dt 30, 12.	20f: 9, 30; Is 65, 11.
7: 1 Pt 3, 19.	11, 1f: 1 Sm 12, 22; Ps 84, 14.
8: Dt 30, 14.

†

9, 30-33: In the conversion of the Gentiles, and by contrast, of relatively few Jews, the Old Testament prophecies are seen to be fulfilled; cf 9, 25-29. Israel placed an unbalanced overemphasis on the literal observance of the law and was thus unwilling to accept the doctrine of justification by faith; the Gentiles were more open to this doctrine because to them the very idea of justification was new.

10, 1-4: Despite Israel's unbelief in Christ, Paul does not abandon hope for its salvation (1). Israel misunderstood the true nature of salvation (3), but retained its faith in God (4).

10, 5-13: In the past, Israel was promised particular benefits for observance of the law (5), but in Christ the law has been fulfilled (4). It is faith in Jesus which is the source of God's saving action for Jew and Gentile alike (6-13).

10, 14-21: The gospel has been sufficiently proclaimed to Israel, which has adequately understood it, but, as in the past, has not accepted the prophetic message; cf Acts 7, 51f.

11, 1-10: Though Israel has been unfaithful to the prophetic message of the gospel (10, 14-21), God remains faithful to Israel. Proof of the divine fidelity lies in the existence of the Judaeo-Christians like Paul himself. The unbelieving Jews have been blinded by the Christian teaching concerning the Messiah.

people whom he foreknew. Do you not know what Scripture says about Elijah, how he pleaded with God against Israel? <sup>34</sup> "Lord, they have killed your prophets, they have torn down your altars; I alone am left and they are seeking my life." <sup>44</sup> How does God answer him? "I have left for myself seven thousand men who have not bowed the knee to Baal." <sup>5</sup> Just so, in the present time there is a remnant chosen by the grace of God. <sup>6</sup> But if the choice is by grace, it is not because of their works—otherwise grace would not be grace. <sup>7</sup> What then are we to say? Just this: Israel did not obtain what she was seeking, but those who were chosen did. The rest became blind, <sup>8*</sup> as Scripture says: "God gave them a spirit of stupor; blind eyes and deaf ears, and it is so to this day." <sup>9*</sup> David says: "Let their table become a snare and a trap, a stumbling stone and a retribution; <sup>10</sup> let their eyes be darkened so that they may not see. Bow down their back forever."<sup>11</sup>

Israel's Fall the Gentiles' Salvation. <sup>11</sup>† I further ask, does their stumbling mean that they are forever fallen? Not at all! Rather, by their transgression salvation has come to the Gentiles to stir Israel to envy. <sup>12</sup> But if their transgression and their diminishing have meant riches for the Gentile world, how much more their full number!

<sup>13</sup> I say this now to you Gentiles: Inasmuch as I am the apostle of the Gentiles, I glory in my ministry, <sup>14</sup> trying to rouse my fellow Jews to envy and save some of them. <sup>15</sup> For if their rejection has meant reconciliation for the world, what will their acceptance mean? Nothing less than life from the dead! <sup>16</sup>† If the first fruits are consecrated, so too is the whole mass of dough, and if the root is consecrated, so too are the branches. <sup>17</sup> If some of the branches were cut off and you, a branch of the wild olive tree, have been grafted in among the others and have come to share in the rich root of the olive, do not boast against the branches. <sup>18*</sup> If you do boast, remember that you do not support the root; the root supports you. <sup>19</sup> You will say, "Branches were cut off that I might be grafted in." <sup>20</sup> Well and good. They were cut off because of unbelief and you are there because of faith. Do not be haughty on that account, but fearful. <sup>21</sup> If God did not spare the natural branches, he will certainly not spare you.

<sup>22</sup> Consider the kindness and the severity of God—severity toward those who fell, kindness toward you, provided you remain in his kindness; if you do not, you too will be cut off. <sup>23</sup> And if the Jews do not remain in their unbelief they will be grafted back on, for God is able to do this. <sup>24</sup> If you were cut off from the natural wild olive and, contrary to nature, were grafted into the cultivated olive, so much the more will they who belong to it by nature be grafted into their own olive tree.

Israel's Final Conversion. <sup>25</sup>† Brothers, I do not want you to be ignorant of this mystery lest you be conceited: blindness has come upon part of Israel until the full number of Gentiles enter in, <sup>26*</sup> and then all Israel will be saved. As Scripture says: "Out of Zion will come the deliverer who shall remove all impiety from Jacob; <sup>27*</sup> and this is the covenant I will make with them when I take away their sins." <sup>28</sup> In respect to the gospel, the Jews are enemies of God for your sake; in respect to the election, they are beloved by him because of the patriarchs. <sup>29*</sup> God's gifts and his call are irrevocable.

Triumph of God's Mercy. <sup>30</sup> Just as you were once disobedient to God and now have received mercy through their disobedience, <sup>31</sup> so they have become disobedient—since God wished to show you mercy—that they too may receive mercy. <sup>32*</sup> God has imprisoned all in disobedience that he might have mercy on all.

<sup>33</sup>† How deep are the riches and the wisdom and the knowledge of God! How inscrutable his judgments, how unsearchable his ways! <sup>34*</sup> For "who has known the mind of the Lord? Or who has been his counselor? <sup>35</sup> Who has given him anything so as to deserve return?" <sup>36*</sup> For from him and through him and for him all things are. To him be glory forever. Amen.

3: 1 Kgs 19, 10, 14	29: Nm 23, 19; Is 54, 10
4: 1 Kgs 19, 18	32: Gal 3, 22
8: Dt 29, 3; Is 29, 10; Mt 13, 14	33: Ps 139, 6, 17f.
9f: Ps 69, 23f.	34f: Wis 9, 13; Is 40, 13; 1 Cor 2, 11
18: 1 Cor 1, 31	36: 1 Cor 8, 6; Col 1, 16f.
26f: Is 59, 20f.
27: Jer 31, 33

† 11, 11-15: The unbelief of Israel has paved the way for the preaching of the gospel to the Gentiles and for their easier acceptance of it outside the context of Jewish culture. In God's design it should follow that Israel's ultimate acceptance of the gospel message will benefit the world even more than its original unbelief.

11, 16-24: Israel remains holy in the eyes of God and stands as a witness to the faith of the Old Testament because of the first fruits which are consecrated, i.e., the converted remnant, and the root which is consecrated, i.e., the patriarchs (v 16). The Jews' failure to believe in Christ is a warning to Gentile Christians to be on guard lest they themselves fail through loss of faith.

11, 25-32: In God's design, Israel's unbelief is being utilized to grant the light of faith to the Gentiles. Meanwhile, Israel remains dear to God, still the object of his special providence, the mystery of which will one day be revealed.

11, 33-36: This final reflection celebrates the wisdom of God's plan of salvation. As Paul has indicated throughout these chapters, both Jew and Gentile, despite the religious recalcitrance of each, have received the gift of faith. Thus the divine plan of salvation has become open and comprehensible to the whole human race.

VI: THE DUTIES OF CHRISTIANS

CHAPTER 13

CHAPTER 12

Sacrifice of Body and Mind. <sup>1†</sup> And now, brothers, I beg you through the mercy of God to offer your bodies as a living sacrifice holy and acceptable to God, your spiritual worship. <sup>2</sup> Do not conform yourselves to this age but be transformed by the renewal of your mind, so that you may judge what is God's will, what is good, pleasing and perfect.

Many Members in One Body. <sup>3*</sup> Thus, in virtue of the favor given to me, I warn each of you not to think more highly of himself than he ought. Let him estimate himself soberly, in keeping with the measure of faith that God has apportioned him. <sup>4*</sup> Just as each of us has one body with many members, and not all the members have the same function, <sup>5*</sup> so too we, though many, are one body in Christ and individually members one of another. <sup>6*</sup> We have gifts that differ according to the favor bestowed on each of us. One's gift may be prophecy; its use should be in proportion to his faith. <sup>7</sup> It may be the gift of ministry; it should be used for service. One who is a teacher should use his gift for teaching; <sup>8</sup> one with the power of exhortation should exhort. He who gives alms should do so generously; he who rules should exercise his authority with care; he who performs works of mercy should do so cheerfully.

Fraternal Charity. <sup>9*</sup> Your love must be sincere. Detest what is evil, cling to what is good. <sup>10*</sup> Love one another with the affection of brothers. Anticipate each other in showing respect. <sup>11</sup> Do not grow slack but be fervent in spirit; he whom you serve is the Lord. <sup>12</sup> Rejoice in hope, be patient under trial, persevere in prayer. <sup>13</sup> Look on the needs of the saints as your own; be generous in offering hospitality. <sup>14*</sup> Bless your persecutors; bless and do not curse them. <sup>15*</sup> Rejoice with those who rejoice, weep with those who weep. <sup>16*</sup> Have the same attitude toward all. Put away ambitious thoughts and associate with those who are lowly. Do not be wise in your own estimation. <sup>17*</sup> Never repay injury with injury. See that your conduct is honorable in the eyes of all. <sup>18</sup> If possible, live peaceably with everyone. <sup>19*</sup> Beloved, do not avenge yourselves; leave that to God's wrath, for it is written: "Vengeance is mine; I will repay," says the Lord. <sup>20*</sup> But "if your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him something to drink; by doing this you will heap burning coals upon his head." <sup>21</sup> Do not be conquered by evil but conquer evil with good.

Obedience to Authority. <sup>1*</sup> Let everyone obey the authorities that are over him, for there is no authority except from God, and all authority that exists is established by God. <sup>2*</sup> As a consequence, the man who opposes authority rebels against the ordinance of God; those who resist thus shall draw condemnation down upon themselves. <sup>3</sup> Rulers cause no fear when a man does what is right but only when his conduct is evil. Do you wish to be free from the fear of authority? Do what is right and you will gain its approval, <sup>4</sup> for the ruler is God's servant to work for your good. Only if you do wrong ought you to be afraid. It is not without purpose that the ruler carries the sword; he is God's servant, to inflict his avenging wrath upon the wrongdoer. <sup>5</sup> You must obey, then, not only to escape punishment but also for conscience' sake. <sup>6</sup> You pay taxes for the same reason, magistrates being God's ministers who devote themselves to his service with unremitting care. <sup>7*</sup> Pay each one his due: taxes to whom taxes are due; toll to whom toll is due; respect and honor to everyone who deserves them.

Love Fulfills the Law. <sup>8</sup> Owe no debt to anyone except the debt that binds us to love one another. He who loves his neighbor has fulfilled the law. <sup>9*</sup> The commandments, "You shall not commit adultery; you shall not murder; you shall not steal; you shall not covet," and any other commandment there may be are all summed up in this, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." <sup>10*</sup> Love never wrongs the neighbor, hence love is the fulfillment of the law.

Christian Use of Time. <sup>11*</sup> Take care to do all these things, for you know the time in which we are living. It is now the hour for you to wake from sleep, for our salvation is closer than when we first

- |                     |                       |
|---------------------|-----------------------|
| 12, 3: Phil 2, 3.   | 17: 1 Thes 5, 15.     |
| 4: 1 Cor 12, 9.     | 19: Lv 19, 18; Dt 32, |
| 5: 1 Cor 12, 12.    | 35; 1 Cor 6, 6f.      |
| 6f: 1 Cor 12,       | 20: Prv 25, 21f.      |
| 8ff 28ff; Eph 4,    | 13, 1: Tl 3, 1.       |
| 7-12; 1 Pt 4, 10.   | 2: Prv 8, 15.         |
| 9: Am 5, 15.        | 7: Mt 22, 21.         |
| 10: Jn 13, 34.      | 9: Ex 20, 13-17; Dt   |
| 14-21: Mt 5, 38-48. | 5, 17-21.             |
| 15: Sir 7, 34.      | 10: 1 Cor 13, 4-7.    |
| 16: Prv 3, 7.       | 11: Eph 5, 8-16.      |

† 12, 1—13, 14: This moral teaching expresses the necessary response to the gift of justification through faith. It is the Christian's personal sacrificial way of serving God (12, 1f). It consists in the humble use of one's gifts for the benefit of the community (12, 3-13); it is marked by love of enemies (12, 14-21), and by the acceptance of legitimate civil authority (13, 1-7). The commandments of the Mosaic covenant (Ex 20, 13-17) remain its norm, and the hope of salvation in Christ its incentive (13, 11-14).

accepted the faith. <sup>12*</sup> The night is far spent; the day draws near. Let us cast off deeds of darkness and put on the armor of light. <sup>13</sup> Let us live honorably as in daylight; not in carousing and drunkenness, not in sexual excess and lust, not in quarreling and jealousy. <sup>14*</sup> Rather, put on the Lord Jesus Christ and make no provision for the desires of the flesh.

CHAPTER 14

To Live and Die for Christ. <sup>1†</sup> Extend a kind welcome to those who are weak in faith. Do not enter into disputes with them. <sup>2*</sup> A man of sound faith knows he can eat anything, while one who is weak in faith eats only vegetables. <sup>3*</sup> The man who will eat anything must not ridicule him who abstains from certain foods; the man who abstains must not sit in judgment on him who eats. After all, God himself has made him welcome. <sup>4*</sup> Who are you to pass judgment on another's servant? His master alone can judge whether he stands or falls. And stand he will, for the Lord is able to make him stand. <sup>5</sup> One man regards this day as better than that; someone else considers all days alike. Each should be certain of his own conscience. <sup>6</sup> The man who observes the day does so to honor the Lord. The man who eats does so to honor the Lord, and he gives thanks to God. The man who does not eat abstains to honor the Lord, and he too gives thanks to God. <sup>7</sup> None of us lives as his own master and none of us dies as his own master. <sup>8</sup> While we live we are responsible to the Lord, and when we die we die as his servants. Both in life and in death we are the Lord's. <sup>9*</sup> That is why Christ died and came to life again, that he might be Lord of both the dead and the living. <sup>10</sup> But you, how can you sit in judgment on your brother? Or you, how can you look down on your brother? We shall all have to appear before the judgment seat of God. <sup>11*</sup> It is written, "As surely as I live, says the Lord, every knee shall bend before me and every tongue shall give praise to God."

Peace and Joy in the Holy Spirit. <sup>12</sup> Every one of us will have to give an account of himself before God. <sup>13</sup> Therefore we must no longer pass judgment on one another. Instead you should resolve to put no stumbling block or hindrance in your brother's way. <sup>14*</sup> I know with certainty on the authority of the Lord Jesus that nothing is unclean in itself; it is only when a man thinks something unclean that it becomes so for him. <sup>15</sup> If, then, your brother feels remorse for the food he has eaten, you have ceased to follow the rule of love. You must not let the food you eat bring to ruin him for whom Christ died; <sup>16</sup> neither may you allow your privilege to become an occasion for blasphemy. <sup>17*</sup> The kingdom of God is not a matter of eating or drinking, but of justice, peace, and the joy that is given by the Holy Spirit. <sup>18</sup> Whoever serves Christ in this way pleases God and wins the esteem of men. <sup>19</sup> Let us, then, make it our aim to work for peace and to strengthen one another.

<sup>20*</sup> Take care not to destroy God's work for the sake of something to eat. True, all foods are clean; but it is wrong for a man to eat when the food offends his conscience. <sup>21</sup> You would be acting nobly if you abstained from eating meat, or drinking wine, or anything else that offers your brother an occasion for stumbling or scandal, or that weakens him in any way. <sup>22</sup> Use the faith you have as your rule of life in the sight of God. Happy the man whose conscience does not condemn what he has chosen to do! <sup>23</sup> But if a man eats when his conscience has misgivings about eating, he is already condemned, because he is not acting in accordance with what he believes. Whatever does not accord with one's belief is sinful.

CHAPTER 15

Patience and Self-denial. <sup>1</sup> We who are strong in faith should be patient with the scruples of those whose faith is weak; we must not be selfish. <sup>2</sup> Each should please his neighbor so as to do him good by building up his spirit. <sup>3*</sup> Thus, in accord with Scripture, Christ did not please himself: "The reproaches they uttered against you fell on me." <sup>4*</sup> Everything written before our time was written for our instruction, that we might derive hope from the lessons of patience and the words of encouragement in the Scriptures. <sup>5</sup> May God, the source of all patience and encouragement, enable you to live in perfect harmony with one another according to the spirit of Christ Jesus, <sup>6</sup> so that with one

12: Jn 8, 12; 1 Thes

5, 4-8; 1 Jn 2, 8.

14: Gal 3, 27; 5, 16;

Eph 6, 11.

14, 2: 1 Cor 8, 1-13;

10, 14-33.

3: Col 2, 16.

4: Jas 4, 12.

9: Acts 10, 42.

11: Is 45, 23f; Phil 2,

10f.

14: Acts 10, 15; 1

Tm 4, 4.

17: 1 Cor 8, 8.

20f: 1 Cor 8, 11f; 10,

28f; Ti 1, 15.

15, 3: Ps 69, 10.

4: 2 Tm 3, 16.

†

14, 1—15, 6: Paul applies the principle of love of neighbor to a certain conflict existing within the Roman community over clean and unclean foods. Although he acknowledges that in principle no food is a source of moral contamination (14, 14), he recommends that the consciences of Christians who are scrupulous in this regard be respected by other Christians (14, 21).

heart and voice you may glorify God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

God's Fidelity and Mercy. <sup>7</sup> Accept one another, then, as Christ accepted you, for the glory of God. <sup>8*</sup> Yes, I affirm that Christ became the servant of the Jews because of God's faithfulness in fulfilling the promises to the patriarchs, <sup>9*</sup> whereas the Gentiles glorify God because of his mercy. As Scripture has it, "Therefore I will praise you among the Gentiles and I will sing to your name." <sup>10</sup> Again, "Rejoice, O Gentiles, with his people." <sup>11*</sup> And, "Praise the Lord, all you Gentiles and sing his glory, all you peoples." <sup>12*</sup> Once more, Isaiah says, "The root of Jesse will appear, he who will rise up to rule the Gentiles; in him the Gentiles will find hope." <sup>13</sup> So may God, the source of hope, fill you with all joy and peace in believing so that through the power of the Holy Spirit you may have hope in abundance.

VII: CONCLUSION

Apostle of the Gentiles. <sup>14</sup> I am convinced, my brothers, that you are filled with goodness, that you have complete knowledge, and that you are able to give advice to one another. <sup>15</sup> Yet I have written to you rather boldly in parts of this letter by way of reminder. I take this liberty because God has given me the grace <sup>16</sup> to be a minister of Christ Jesus among the Gentiles, with the priestly duty of preaching the gospel of God so that the Gentiles may be offered up as a pleasing sacrifice, consecrated by the Holy Spirit. <sup>17</sup> This means I can take glory in Christ Jesus for the work I have done for God. <sup>18</sup> I will not dare to speak of anything except what Christ has done through me to win the Gentiles to obedience by word and deed, <sup>19</sup> with mighty signs and marvels, by the power of God's Spirit. As a result, I have completed preaching the gospel of Christ from Jerusalem all the way around to Illyria. <sup>20</sup> It has been a point of honor with me never to preach in places where Christ's name was already known, for I did not want to build on a foundation laid by another <sup>21*</sup> but rather to fulfill the words of Scripture, "They who received no word of him will see him, and they who have never heard will understand."

Paul's Plans; Need for Prayers. <sup>22</sup> That is why I have so often been hindered from visiting you. <sup>23*</sup> Now I have no more work to do in these regions, and I continue to cherish the desire to visit you which I have had for many years. <sup>24</sup> As soon as I can set out for Spain, I hope to see you in passing; I trust that you will send me on my journey only after I have had the joy of being with you for a little while. <sup>25</sup> Just now I am leaving for Jerusalem to bring assistance to the saints. <sup>26*</sup> Macedonia and Achaia have kindly decided to make a contribution for those in need among the saints in Jerusalem. <sup>27</sup> They did so of their own accord, yet they are also under obligation. For if the Gentiles have shared in the spiritual blessings of the Jews, they ought to contribute to their temporal needs in return. <sup>28</sup> When I have finished my task and have safely handed over this contribution to them, I shall set out for Spain, passing through your midst on the way. <sup>29</sup> I am certain that when I do visit you, I shall come with Christ's full blessing.

<sup>30</sup> I beg you, brothers, for the sake of our Lord Jesus Christ and the love of the Spirit, join me in the struggle by your prayers to God on my behalf. <sup>31</sup> Pray that I may be kept safe from the unbelievers in Judea, and that the offerings I bring to Jerusalem may be well received by the saints there; <sup>32</sup> so that, God willing, I may come to you with joy and be refreshed in spirit by your company. <sup>33</sup> May the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

CHAPTER 16

Phoebe Commended. <sup>1†</sup> I commend to you our sister Phoebe, who is a deaconess of the church of Cenchræe. <sup>2</sup> Please welcome her in the Lord, as saints should. If she needs help in anything, give it to her, for she herself has been of help to many, including myself.

Paul's Greetings. <sup>3*</sup> Give my greetings to Prisca and Aquila; they were my fellow workers in the service of Christ Jesus <sup>4</sup> and even risked their lives for the sake of mine. Not only I but all the churches of the Gentiles are grateful to them. <sup>5</sup> Remember me also to the congregation that meets in their house. Greetings to my beloved Epaenetus; he is the first offering that Asia made to Christ. <sup>6</sup> My greetings to Mary, who has worked hard for you, <sup>7</sup> and to Andronicus and Junias, my kinsmen and fellow prisoners; they are outstanding apostles, and they were in Christ even before I was. <sup>8</sup> My greetings to Ampliatus, who is dear to me in the Lord; <sup>9</sup> to Urbanus, our fellow worker in the service of Christ; and to my beloved Stachys. <sup>10</sup> Greetings to Apelles, who proved himself in Christ's service, and to all who belong

8: Mt 15, 24; Acts	21: Is 52, 15,
3, 25.	23: Acts 19, 21f.
9: Ps 18, 50.	26: 1 Cor 16, 1.
11: Ps 117, 1.	16, 3: Acts 18, 2, 26.
12: Is 11, 1, 10.

† 16, 1-23: Some authorities regard these verses as a later addition to Paul's letter, but in general the evidence favors the view that they were included in the original.

to the household of Aristobulus.

<sup>11</sup> Greetings to my kinsman Herodion and to the members of the household of Narcissus who are in the Lord. <sup>12</sup> Greetings, too, to Tryphaena and Tryphosa, who have worked hard for the Lord; and also to dear Persis, who has labored long in the Lord's service.

<sup>13</sup> Greetings to Rufus, a chosen servant of the Lord, and to his mother, who has been a mother to me as well. <sup>14</sup> Greetings to Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermes, Patrobas, Hermas, and the brothers who are with them; <sup>15</sup> to Philologus and Julia, to Nereus and his sister, to Olympas, and all the saints who are with them. <sup>16</sup> Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the churches of Christ send you greetings.

Against Dissenters. <sup>17</sup> Brothers, I beg you to be on the watch against those who cause dissension and scandal, contrary to the teaching you have received. Avoid their company. <sup>18</sup>* Such men serve, not Christ our Lord, but their own bellies, and they deceive the simpleminded with smooth and flattering speech. <sup>19</sup>* Your obedience is known to all, and so I am delighted with you. I want you to be wise in regard to what is good and innocent of all evil. <sup>20</sup>* Then the God of peace will quickly crush Satan under your feet. May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

Greetings from Corinth. <sup>21</sup> Timothy, my fellow worker, sends you his greetings; so, too, do my kinsmen Lucius, Jason, and Sosipater. <sup>22</sup> I, Tertius, who have written this letter, send you my greetings in the Lord. <sup>23</sup> Greetings also from Gaius, who is host to me and to the whole church. <sup>24</sup> Erastus, the city treasurer, and our brother Quartus wish to be remembered to you.

Doxology. <sup>25</sup>* † Now to him who is able to strengthen you in the gospel which I proclaim when I preach Jesus Christ, the gospel which reveals the mystery hidden for many ages <sup>26</sup> but now manifested through the writings of the prophets, and, at the command of the eternal God, made known to all the Gentiles that they may believe and obey—<sup>27</sup>* to him, the God who alone is wise, may glory be given through Jesus Christ unto endless ages. Amen.

---

18: Phil 3, 19.
19: Mt 10, 16; 1 Cor
14, 20.
20: Gn 3, 15.
25: Eph 3, 3; Col 1,

26.
27: Gal 1, 5; Eph 3, 21; Phil 4, 20, 1
Tm 1, 17.

---

† 16, 25: The gospel which reveals the mystery hidden for many ages: justification and salvation through faith, with all the implications for Jew and Gentile that Paul has developed in this letter.

TO THE CORINTHIANS

St. Paul established a Christian community in Corinth about the year 50, on his second missionary journey. According to his own testimony in this epistle (written c 56), he began his work in Corinth in "fear and trepidation" (2, 3) because of the city's extreme moral depravity and its pagan cult, which included the practice of religious prostitution. Moderate success attended his efforts among the Jewish Corinthians at first, but they soon turned against him (Acts 18, 1-8). More fruitful was his year-and-a-half mission among the Gentiles (Acts 18, 11), which won to the faith many of the city's poor and unprivileged (1, 26). After his departure, the eloquent and fervent Apollos, an Alexandrian Judaeo-Christian, rendered great service to the Corinthian community. He expounded "from the Scriptures that Jesus is the Messiah" (Acts 18, 27f).

While Paul was in Ephesus on his third missionary journey (16, 8; Acts 19, 1-20), he received disquieting news about Corinth. The community there was displaying open factionalism, certain members identifying themselves with, respectively, the teaching of Paul, of Apollos, of Cephas and others apparently claiming a relationship to Jesus peculiar to themselves alone (1, 12). Christian teaching was being interpreted as a superior wisdom for the initiated few, rather than as the divine means for the humble opening of all hearts to the prophetic word of God in Christ (1, 10-4, 21). The community lacked the moral power to take appropriate action against one of its members who was living publicly in an incestuous union (5, 1-13). Other members engaged in legal conflicts, presenting in pagan courts of law a disedifying portrait of their fellows (6, 1-11); still others had even revived the old practice of religious prostitution (6, 13-20) and participated in sacrifices in the temples of the gods (10, 14-22). Some in the community questioned Paul's apostolic authority and pressed the point that, unlike the other apostles, he did not use the rights of apostleship since he did not accept financial support from the community (9, 15-18). Women appeared at the liturgical assembly without the customary head-covering (11, 2-16), and quarreled over their right to address the assembly (14, 34f).

The community's ills were reflected in the celebration of the eucharistic liturgy itself, when some members behaved clannishly, drank too freely at the agape, and denied Christian social courtesies to the poor among the membership (11, 17-22). Charisms such as ecstatic prayer and messages, attributed freely to the impulse of the Holy Spirit, were more highly prized than works of charity (13, 1f.8) and were used at times in a disordered and even ridiculous way (14, 1-40). There were also members who, despite their belief in the resurrection of Christ, had accepted the opinion of certain peripatetic philosophers against the possibility of general bodily resurrection (15, 1-57).

The lesser problems Paul had to deal with in this epistle concerned matters of conscience discussed among the faithful members of the community: the eating of meats that had been offered to idols (8, 1-13); the use of sex in marriage (7, 1-7); and the attitude to be taken by the unmarried toward marriage in view of the possible nearness of Christ's second coming (7, 8-40). The introductory section of the epistle shows that this general group was in the majority (1, 19), and that it was actually on its behalf that Paul wrote against the threat posed to the community by the views and conduct of the minority.

The epistle illustrates well the mind and character of Paul. He does not stigmatize people by mentioning names. He always treats the question at issue on the level of the purity of Christian teaching and conduct. Though impelled to insist on his God-given office as founder of the community, and generously including Apollos in this labor, he nevertheless evaluates his own leading role as that of a servant of God (3, 5-8). On the other hand, he does not hesitate to exercise his authority accordingly as his judgment dictates in every situation, even going so far as to promise a direct confrontation with the recalcitrant should the abuses he scores remain uncorrected (4, 18-21).

Paul writes with confidence in the authority of his apostolic mission. He presumes that the Corinthians will recognize and accept it, despite the deficiencies of their faith. Certain passages in the epistle are of the greatest importance for an understanding of the early Christian teaching on the Eucharist (10, 14-22; 11, 17-34) and on the resurrection of the body (15, 1-57).

The First Epistle to the Corinthians is divided as follows:

- I: Introduction (1, 1-9)
- II: Condemnation of Disorders in the Corinthian Church (1, 10-4, 21)
- III: Moral Disorders (5, 1-11, 1)
- IV: Conduct at Public Worship (11, 2-34)
- V: Spiritual Gifts (12, 1-14, 40)
- VI: The Resurrection (15, 1-58)
- VII: Conclusion (16, 1-24)

I: INTRODUCTION†

CHAPTER 1

Greeting to the Church. <sup>1*</sup> Paul, called by God's will to be an apostle of Christ Jesus, and Sosthenes our brother, <sup>2</sup> send greetings to the church of God which is in Corinth; to you who have been consecrated in Christ Jesus and called to be a holy people, as to all those who, wherever they may be, call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, their Lord and ours. <sup>3</sup> Grace and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Thanksgiving. <sup>4</sup> I continually thank my God for you because of the favor he has bestowed on you in Christ Jesus, <sup>5</sup> in whom you have been richly endowed with every gift of speech and knowledge. <sup>6</sup> Likewise, the witness I bore to Christ has been so confirmed among you <sup>7*</sup> that you lack no spiritual gift as you wait for the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>8*</sup> He will strengthen you to the end, so that you will be blameless on the day of our Lord Jesus [Christ]. <sup>9*</sup> God is faithful, and it was he who called you to fellowship with his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.

II: CONDEMNATION OF DISORDERS IN THE CORINTHIAN CHURCH

Factions. <sup>10*</sup>† I beg you, brothers, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to agree in what you say. Let there be no factions; rather, be united in mind and judgment. <sup>11</sup> I have been informed, my brothers, by certain members of Chloe's household that you are quarreling among yourselves. <sup>12*</sup> This is what I mean: One of you will say, "I belong to Paul," another, "I belong to Apollos," still another, "Cephas has my allegiance," and the fourth, "I belong to Christ." <sup>13</sup> Has Christ, then, been divided into parts? Was it Paul who was crucified for you? Was it in Paul's name that you were baptized? <sup>14*</sup> Thank God, I baptized none of you except Crispus and Gaius, <sup>15</sup> so there are none who can say that you were baptized in my name. <sup>16*</sup> Oh, and I baptized the household of Stephanas. Beyond that, I am not aware of having baptized anyone else. <sup>17*</sup>† For Christ did not send me to baptize, but to preach the gospel—not with worldly "wisdom," however, lest the cross of Christ be rendered void of its meaning!

The Wisdom and Folly of the Cross. <sup>18*</sup> The message of the cross is complete absurdity to those who are headed for ruin, but to us who are experiencing salvation it is the power of God. <sup>19*</sup> Scripture says,

"I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and thwart the cleverness of the clever."

<sup>20*</sup> Where is the wise man to be found? Where the scribe? Where is the master of worldly argument? Has not God turned the wisdom of this world into folly? <sup>21</sup> Since in God's wisdom the world did not come to know him through "wisdom," it pleased God to save those who

1, 1: Rom 1, 1.	14: Acts 18, 8.
7: Ti 2, 13.	16: 16, 15ff.
8: Phil 1, 6.	17: 2, 4.
9: 1 Jn 1, 3.	18: 2, 14.
10: Phil 2, 2.	19: Is 29, 14.
12: 3, 4, 22; Acts 18, 24.	20: Is 19, 12.

† 1, 1-9: After the customary salutation (1ff), Paul commends the Christian community of Corinth (4-7), and reminds its members of their expectation of Christ's second coming (8f), cf note on 1 Thes 4, 13-18.

1, 10-16: The presence in the community of factions due to particular attachments to Paul, Apollos, and Cephas (the reference to Christ may well be ironically intended) is an indication both of the enthusiasm for the newfound faith and the imperfect understanding of it among some of the Corinthians. We can merely conjecture about the divisions and the groups to which the apostle refers.

1, 17-25: From the allusions here to wisdom (17) and the wise (19), it seems the Christians mentioned in v 12 were attempting unsuccessfully to align their faith with the philosophies of the day. Paul points out that the Christian message of redemption through the crucifixion of Christ (17f) lies outside the ken of philosophical speculation. It is God, not man, who controls human destiny beyond this life.

believe through the absurdity of the preaching of the gospel. <sup>22*</sup> Yes, Jews demand "signs" and Greeks look for "wisdom," <sup>23</sup> but we preach Christ crucified—a stumbling block to Jews, and an absurdity to Gentiles; <sup>24</sup> but to those who are called, Jews and Greeks alike, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God. <sup>25</sup> For God's folly is wiser than men, and his weakness more powerful than men.

The Case of the Corinthians.† <sup>26</sup> Brothers, you are among those called. Consider your situation. Not many of you are wise, as men account wisdom; not many are influential; and surely not many are well-born. <sup>27</sup> God chose those whom the world considers absurd to shame the wise; he singled out the weak of this world to shame the strong. <sup>28*</sup> He chose the world's lowborn and despised, those who count for nothing, to reduce to nothing those who were something; <sup>29</sup> so that mankind can do no boasting before God. <sup>30*</sup> God it is who has given you life in Christ Jesus. He has made him our wisdom and also our justice, our sanctification, and our redemption. <sup>31*</sup> This is just as you find it written, "Let him who would boast, boast in the Lord."

CHAPTER 2

Paul's Preaching.† <sup>1*</sup> As for myself, brothers, when I came to you I did not come proclaiming God's testimony with any particular eloquence or "wisdom." <sup>2*</sup> No, I determined that while I was with you I would speak of nothing but Jesus Christ and him crucified. <sup>3</sup> When I came among you it was in weakness and fear, and with much trepidation. <sup>4*</sup> My message and my preaching had none of the persuasive force of "wise" argumentation, but the convincing power of the Spirit. <sup>5</sup> As a consequence, your faith rests not on the wisdom of men but on the power of God.

True Wisdom. <sup>6</sup>† There is, to be sure, a certain wisdom which we express among the spiritually mature. It is not a wisdom of this age, however, nor of the rulers of this age, who are men headed for destruction. <sup>7*</sup> No, what we utter is God's wisdom: a mysterious, a hidden wisdom. God planned it before all ages for our glory. <sup>8</sup> None of the rulers of this age knew the mystery; if they had known it, they would never have crucified the Lord of glory. <sup>9*</sup> Of this wisdom it is written:

"Eye has not seen, ear has not heard, nor has it so much as dawned on man what God has prepared for those who love him."

<sup>10*</sup>† Yet God has revealed this wisdom to us through the Spirit. The Spirit scrutinizes all matters, even the deep things of God. <sup>11</sup> Who, for example, knows a man's innermost self but the man's own spirit within him? Similarly, no one knows what lies at the depths of God but the Spirit of God. <sup>12</sup> The Spirit we have received is not the world's spirit but God's Spirit, helping us to recognize the gifts he has given us. <sup>13</sup> We speak of these, not in words of human wisdom but in words taught by the Spirit, thus interpreting spiritual things in spiritual terms. <sup>14</sup> The natural man does not accept what is taught by the Spirit of God. For him, that is absurdity. He cannot come to know such teaching because it must be appraised in a spiritual way. <sup>15</sup> The spiritual man, on the other hand, can appraise everything, though he himself can be appraised by no one. <sup>16*</sup> For, "Who has known the mind of the Lord so as to instruct him?" But we have the mind of Christ.

CHAPTER 3

Immaturity of the Corinthians.† <sup>1*</sup> Brothers, the trouble was that I could not talk to you as spiritual men but only

22: Mt 12, 38; 16, 1;	4: 1 Thes 1, 5.
Acts 17, 18.	7: Rom 16, 25f.
28: Jas 2, 5.	9: Is 64, 3.
30: Eph 2, 9.	10: Jn 14, 26; 16,
31: Jer 9, 23f; 2 Cor	13.
10, 17.	16: Wis 9, 13; Is 40,
2, 1, 17.	13; Rom 11, 34.
2: Gal 6, 14.

† 1, 26-31: God's choice of the foolish, the weak, the lowborn and the despised among the Corinthians to bestow on them the gift of faith in Christ, while shaming the wise and the strong of this world and reducing to nothing those who were something, is a sign that man receives life and attains to God in Christ Jesus, not by his own effort, but by God's act.

2, 1-5: In Paul's preaching at Corinth, he proclaimed the crucified Jesus as God's message of salvation to mankind. He is not denying here that he employed human eloquence, but rather pointing out that he presented himself as a man commissioned by God; cf Gal 4, 14. Thus the Corinthians believed in the gospel message on God's authority rather than on its intrinsic appeal to human reason.

2, 6-9: The Christian message is rightly termed a "wisdom," but a God-given wisdom pertaining to man's ultimate destiny through God's power. It is completely unknown to the rulers and great minds of the world (8).

2, 10-16: Just as the individual is the only one cognizant of his own thoughts, which he alone can reveal, so it is with God and his plans for the salvation of humanity (10f). The Christian message expresses the secret thoughts, not of man, but of God (12f). It applies those thoughts to the innermost recesses of the mind and soul of man. By his acceptance or rejection of the gospel, a person shows himself to be affected or unaffected by the presence of God in the gospel (14ff).

3, 1-9: Here Paul seems to address himself to those who were more impressed by Apollos' preaching than by his own. His teaching had to be elementary, since it was the Corinthians' first confrontation with the demands of the Christian message. However, comparison between Apollos and himself is irrelevant, for they performed different tasks for the community, whose actual success was due to the presence of God.

CHAPTER 4

as men of flesh, as infants in Christ. <sup>2</sup> I fed you with milk, and did not give you solid food because you were not ready for it. You are not ready for it even now, <sup>3*</sup> being still very much in a natural condition. For as long as there are jealousy and quarrels among you, are you not of the flesh? And is not your behavior that of ordinary men? <sup>4</sup> When someone says, "I belong to Paul," and someone else, "I belong to Apollos," is it not clear that you are still at the human level?

The Office of God's Ministers. <sup>5</sup> After all, who is Apollos? And who is Paul? Simply ministers through whom you became believers, each of them doing only what the Lord assigned him. <sup>6*</sup> I planted the seed and Apollos watered it, but God made it grow. <sup>7</sup> This means that neither he who plants nor he who waters is of any special account, only God, who gives the growth. <sup>8</sup> He who plants and he who waters work to the same end. Each will receive his wages in proportion to his toil. <sup>9*</sup> We are God's co-workers, while you are his cultivation, his building.

The Work of God's Ministers. <sup>10†</sup> Thanks to the favor God showed me I laid a foundation as a wise master-builder might do, and now someone else is building upon it. Everyone, however, must be careful how he builds. <sup>11</sup> No one can lay a foundation other than the one that has been laid, namely Jesus Christ. <sup>12</sup> If different ones build on this foundation with gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay or straw, <sup>13*</sup> the work of each will be made clear. The Day will disclose it. That day will make its appearance with fire, and fire will test the quality of each man's work. <sup>14</sup> If the building a man has raised on this foundation still stands, he will receive his recompense; <sup>15</sup> if a man's building burns, he will suffer loss. He himself will be saved, but only as one fleeing through fire.

<sup>16*†</sup> Are you not aware that you are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwells in you? <sup>17</sup> If anyone destroys God's temple, God will destroy him. For the temple of God is holy, and you are that temple.

<sup>18†</sup> Let no one delude himself. If any one of you thinks he is wise in a worldly way, he had better become a fool. In that way he will really be wise, <sup>19*</sup> for the wisdom of this world is absurdity with God. Scripture says, "He catches the wise in their craftiness"; <sup>20</sup> and again, "The Lord knows how empty are the thoughts of the wise." <sup>21</sup> Let there be no boasting about men. All things are yours, <sup>22</sup> whether it be Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or the present, or the future: all these are yours, <sup>23</sup> and you are Christ's, and Christ is God's.

Christ Judges His Ministers.† <sup>1*</sup> Men should regard us as servants of Christ and administrators of the mysteries of God. <sup>2</sup> The first requirement of an administrator is that he prove trustworthy. <sup>3</sup> It matters little to me whether you or any human court pass judgment on me. I do not even pass judgment on myself. <sup>4*</sup> Mind you, I have nothing on my conscience. But that does not mean that I am declaring myself innocent. The Lord is the one to judge me, <sup>5*</sup> so stop passing judgment before the time of his return. He will bring to light what is hidden in darkness and manifest the intentions of hearts. At that time, everyone will receive his praise from God.

Corinthians Contrasted with Apostles. <sup>6*†</sup> Brothers, I have applied all this to myself and Apollos by way of example for your benefit. May you learn from us not to go beyond what is set down, so that none of you will grow self-important by reason of his association with one person rather than another. <sup>7</sup> Who confers any distinction on you? Name something you have that you have not received. If, then, you have received it, why are you boasting as if it were your own? <sup>8</sup> At the moment you are completely satisfied. You have grown rich!

- |                            |                          |
|----------------------------|--------------------------|
| 3, 3: 1, 10ff; Jas 3, 16.  | 16; Eph 2, 20ff.         |
| 6: Acts 18, 8:11, 24.      | 19: Jb 5, 13; Ps 94, 11. |
| 9: Eph 2, 20; 1 Pt 2, 4ff. | 4, 1: Ti 1, 7.           |
| 13: Mt 3, 11f.             | 4: 2 Cor 5, 10.          |
| 16: 6, 19; 2 Cor 6,        | 5: 3, 13.                |
|                            | 6: Rom 12, 13.           |

†

3, 10-15: Paul's work was to found the community on Christ (10f). The work of others for the spiritual good of the community is to be evaluated in terms of enhancing faith in Christ, and of this, God is ultimately the judge (12-15).

3, 16f: You are the temple of God . . . dwells in you: God's Spirit sanctifies the Christian community, making it a fit abode for God. If anyone destroys . . . God will destroy him: the sudden vehemence seems strange in the context. Some scholars believe Paul has in mind those guilty of corrupting the community morally; cf 5, 1-13; 6, 12-20. However, he may now wish to stress the importance of the Christian teacher's work (10-15), since he previously subordinated this role (5-19) to the effective action of God.

3, 18-23: The Corinthians will prove themselves fools, no better than "the wise" of this world, if they continue boasting about men. But since through their faith they belong to Christ, and through him to God, all things, life and death themselves, can assist them in attaining their end.

4, 1-5: Paul and his associates are to be regarded as assistants and managers in God's household, charged with administering the mysteries in complete dependence upon him. It is his truth which they preach and his interests which they serve. Therefore they are accountable only to him, not to the judgments of men.

4, 6-13: The example of Paul and Apollos is offered as a norm or pattern of conduct for the Corinthians. The sufferings of the apostles, their humiliations and lowly condition, contrast sharply with the self-satisfaction and boastfulness of the Corinthians. And yet all the benefits the latter enjoy are gifts from God, and, as such, should preclude their boasting as if they had not received them.

You have launched upon your reign with no help from us. Would that you had really begun to reign, that we might be reigning with you!

<sup>9*</sup> As I see it, God has put us apostles at the end of the line, like men doomed to die in the arena. We have become a spectacle to the universe, to angels and men alike. <sup>10*</sup> We are fools on Christ's account. Ah, but in Christ you are wise! We are the weak ones, you the strong! They honor you, while they sneer at us! <sup>11*</sup> Up to this very hour we go hungry and thirsty, poorly clad, roughly treated, wandering about homeless. <sup>12*</sup> We work hard at manual labor. When we are insulted we respond with a blessing. Persecution comes our way; we bear it patiently. <sup>13</sup> We are slandered, and we try conciliation. We have become the world's refuse, the scum of all; that is the present state of affairs.

<sup>14†</sup> I am writing you in this way not to shame you but to admonish you as my beloved children. <sup>15</sup> Granted you have ten thousand guardians in Christ, you have only one father. It was I who begot you in Christ Jesus through my preaching of the gospel. <sup>16*</sup> I beg you, then, be imitators of me. <sup>17*</sup> This is why I have sent you Timothy, my beloved and faithful son in the Lord. He will remind you of my ways in Christ, just as I teach them in all the churches.

<sup>18</sup> Some have grown full of self-importance, thinking that I will not come to you. <sup>19</sup> But I shall come to you soon, the Lord willing, and find out, not what they say, but what they can do. <sup>20*</sup> The kingdom of God does not consist in talk but in power. <sup>21*</sup> Which do you prefer, that I come to you with a rod, or with love and a gentle spirit?

III: MORAL DISORDERS

CHAPTER 5

An Incestuous Man. † <sup>1*</sup> It is actually reported that there is lewd conduct among you of a kind not even found among the pagans—a man living with his father's wife. <sup>2</sup> Still you continue to be self-satisfied, instead of grieving, and getting rid of the offender! <sup>3*</sup> As for me, though absent in body I am present in spirit, and have already passed sentence in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ on the man who did this deed. <sup>4</sup> United in spirit with you and empowered by our Lord Jesus, <sup>5*</sup> I hand him over to Satan for the destruction of his flesh, so that his spirit may be saved on the day of the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> This boasting of yours is an ugly thing. Do you not know that a little yeast has its effect all through the dough? <sup>7*</sup> Get rid of the old yeast to make of yourselves fresh dough, unleavened loaves, as it were; Christ our Passover has been sacrificed. <sup>8</sup> Let us celebrate the feast not with the old yeast, that of corruption and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

<sup>9*</sup> I wrote you in my letter not to associate with immoral persons. <sup>10*</sup> I was not speaking of association with immoral people in this world, or the covetous or thieves or idolaters. To avoid them, you would have to leave the world! <sup>11*</sup> What I really wrote about was your not associating with anyone who bears the title "brother" if he is immoral, covetous, an idolater, an abusive person, a drunkard, or a thief. It is clear that you must not eat with such a man. <sup>12</sup> What business is it of mine to judge outsiders? Is it not those inside the community you must judge? <sup>13*</sup> God will judge the others. "Expel the wicked man from your midst."

CHAPTER 6

Lawsuits before Pagans. † How can anyone with a case against another dare bring it for judgment to the wicked and not to God's holy people? <sup>2</sup> Do you not know that the believers will judge the world? If the judgment of the world is to be yours, are you to be thought unworthy of judging in minor matters? <sup>3*</sup> Do you not know that we are to judge angels? Surely, then, we are up to deciding

- |                         |                        |
|-------------------------|------------------------|
| 9: Rom 8, 36; 2         | 10.                    |
| Cor 4, 8-12.            | 3: Col 2, 5.           |
| 10: 2 Cor 13, 9.        | 5: 1 Tm 1, 20.         |
| 11: 2 Cor 11, 23-27     | 7: 1 Pt 1, 19.         |
| 12: Acts 18, 3; 20,     | 9: 2 Thes 3, 14.       |
| 34; 1 Thes 2, 9.        | 10: Jn 17, 15.         |
| 16: 11, 1; 2 Thes 3,    | 11: Mt 18, 17; 2       |
| 7.                      | Thes 3, 6; 2 Jn        |
| 17: Acts 16, 1.         | 10.                    |
| 20: 2, 4; 1 Thes 1,     | 13: Dt 13, 6.          |
| 5.                      | 6, 3: Wis 3, 8; Mt 19, |
| 21: 2 Cor 10, 2.        | 28; Rv 20, 4.          |
| 5, 1: Lv 18, 7f; Dt 23, |                        |

† 4, 14-21: Paul tempers his severity by reminding them that, as the founder of their community, he has a certain right to display his feelings. Moreover, he reserves the further right to confront personally in the future those who may remain recalcitrant.

5, 1-13: Two derivations of the community are considered here: the toleration of the incestuous union of a man with his stepmother (1-8); and the misunderstanding of Paul's admonition against associating with fellow Christians guilty of sexual immorality (9-13). In the first case, Paul (impelled perhaps by his belief in the imminence of the parousia) recommends the ecclesial penalty of separating the offender from the unity of the faithful and handing him over to Satan, i.e., for medicinal punishment through bodily affliction, even death (1 Tm 1, 20), so that the incestuous relationship may be destroyed and the path to repentance and reunion laid open.

6, 1-8: The apostle expresses his dismay that the image of mutual charity among Christians is being tarnished by their lawsuits in Roman courts. This is all the more deplorable since Christians are to share with Christ the judgment of the world, and ought therefore to be capable of settling one another's minor cases within the society of believers; cf Dn 7, 22, 27.

everyday affairs. <sup>4</sup> If you have such matters to decide, do you accept as judges those who have no standing in the church? <sup>5</sup> I say this in an attempt to shame you. Can it be that there is no one among you wise enough to settle a case between one member of the church and another? <sup>6</sup> Must brother drag brother into court, and before unbelievers at that? <sup>7</sup> Why, the very fact that you have lawsuits against one another is disastrous for you. Why not put up with injustice, and let yourselves be cheated? <sup>8</sup> Instead, you yourselves injure and cheat your very own brothers. <sup>9</sup>† Can you not realize that the unholy will not fall heir to the kingdom of God? Do not deceive yourselves: no fornicators, idolaters, or adulterers, no sodomites, <sup>10</sup>* thieves, misers, or drunkards, no slanderers or robbers will inherit God's kingdom. <sup>11</sup>* And such were some of you; but you have been washed, consecrated, justified in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

Against Sexual Immorality. <sup>12</sup> "Everything is lawful for me"—but that does not mean that everything is good for me. "Everything is lawful for me"—but I will not let myself be enslaved by anything. <sup>13</sup> "Food is for the stomach and the stomach for food, and God will do away with them both in the end"—but the body is not for immorality; it is for the Lord, and the Lord is for the body. <sup>14</sup>* God, who raised up the Lord, will raise us also by his power.

<sup>15</sup>* Do you not see that your bodies are members of Christ? Would you have me take Christ's members and make them the members of a prostitute? God forbid! <sup>16</sup>* Can you not see that the man who is joined to a prostitute becomes one body with her? Scripture says, "The two shall become one flesh." <sup>17</sup>* But whoever is joined to the Lord becomes one spirit with him. <sup>18</sup> Shun lewd conduct. Every other sin a man commits is outside his body, but the fornicator sins against his own body. <sup>19</sup>* You must know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit, who is within—the Spirit you have received from God. You are not your own. <sup>20</sup>* You have been purchased, and at a price. So glorify God in your body.

CHAPTER 7

Advice to the Married. <sup>1</sup>† Now for the matters you wrote about. A man is better off having no relations with a woman. <sup>2</sup> But to avoid immorality, every man should have his own wife and every woman her own husband. <sup>3</sup> The husband should fulfill his conjugal obligations toward his wife, the wife hers toward her husband. <sup>4</sup> A wife does not belong to herself but to her husband; equally, a husband does not belong to himself but to his wife. <sup>5</sup> Do not deprive one another, unless perhaps by mutual consent for a time, to devote yourselves to prayer. Then return to one another, that Satan may not tempt you through your lack of self-control. <sup>6</sup> I say this by way of concession, not as a command. <sup>7</sup>* Given my preference, I should like you to be as I am. Still, each one has his own gift from God, one this and another that.

Advice to the Unmarried. <sup>8</sup> To those not married and to widows I have this to say: It would be well if they remain as they are, even as I do myself; <sup>9</sup>* but if they cannot exercise self-control, they should marry. It is better to marry than to be on fire. <sup>10</sup>* To those now married, however, I give this command (though it is not mine; it is the Lord's): a wife must not separate from her husband. <sup>11</sup> If she does separate, she must either remain single or become reconciled to him again. Similarly, a husband must not divorce his wife.

Obligation of the Believing Partner. <sup>12</sup>*† As for the other matters, although I know of nothing the Lord has said, I say: If any brother has a wife who is an unbeliever but is willing to live with him, he must not divorce her. <sup>13</sup> And if any woman has a husband who is an unbeliever but is willing to live with her, she must not divorce him. <sup>14</sup>* The unbeliev-

7: Mt 5, 38-42;	16: Gn 2, 24; Eph 5,
Rom 12, 17ff; 1	30.
Thes 5, 15.	17: Rom 8, 9f; 2 Cor
9: Gal 5, 19ff; Eph	3, 17.
5, 5.	19: 3, 16f; Rom 5, 5.
10: 15, 50.	20: 3, 23; Phil 1, 20.
11: Ti 3, 3-7; 1 Jn 2,	7, 7; Mt 19, 12.
12.	9: 1 Tm 5, 11-14.
14: Rom 8, 11; 2	10 Mt 5, 32; 19, 9.
Cor 4, 14.	12: 1 Pt 3, 1.
15: Rom 6, 12f.	14: Rom 11, 16.

†

6, 9-20: Paul insists that the Christian give evidence of the reality of his faith in Christ by living according to a high moral standard. The gravity of the sins mentioned in vv 9f can be gauged from the fact that they exclude the offender from inheriting the kingdom of God. In 6, 12-20 the fornication referred to is probably that of religious prostitution, an accepted part of pagan culture in Rome.

7, 1-11: Paul's teaching concerning marriage and the celibate state is placed in the framework of the second coming of Christ (26, 28); see note on 1 Thes 4, 13-18. The apostle commends sexual asceticism in marriage provided it is agreed to by both parties, spiritually motivated, and not came beyond either party's limits of control (1-7). The existing practice within the community of widows and widowers remaining unmarried is also commended, without, however, any implication against the freedom to remarry should sexual attraction prove irresistible. Christ's teaching against divorce and remarriage must be strictly adhered to in marriages between Christians; cf Mk 10, 9.

7, 12-16: In the case of marriage between Christians and non-Christians, there must be no divorce as long as the unbelieving partner is willing to live peacefully with the Christian spouse (12f). But if the non-believer wishes to separate, or refuses to live peacefully with the Christian, the latter is no longer bound (15f).

ing husband is consecrated by his believing wife; the unbelieving wife is consecrated by her believing husband. If it were otherwise, your children should be unclean; but as it is, they are holy.

<sup>15</sup> If the unbeliever wishes to separate, however, let him do so. The believing husband or wife is not bound in such cases. God has called you to live in peace. <sup>16</sup> Wife, how do you know that you will not save your husband; or you, husband, that you will not save your wife?

No Change To Be Sought. <sup>17</sup> The general rule is that each one should lead the life the Lord has assigned him, continuing as he was when the Lord called him. This is the rule I give in all the churches. <sup>18</sup> Was someone called after he had been circumcised? He should not try to hide his circumcision. Did the call come to another who had never been circumcised? He is not to be circumcised. <sup>19</sup>* Circumcision counts for nothing, and its lack makes no difference either. What matters is keeping God's commandments. <sup>20</sup> Everyone ought to continue as he was when he was called. <sup>21</sup> Were you a slave when your call came? Give it no thought. Even supposing you could go free, you would be better off making the most of your slavery. <sup>22</sup>* The slave called in the Lord is a freedman of the Lord, just as the freeman who has been called is a slave of Christ. <sup>23</sup>* You have been bought at a price! Do not enslave yourselves to men. <sup>24</sup> Brothers, each of you should continue before God in the condition of life that was his when he was called.

The State of Virginity. <sup>25</sup>† With respect to virgins, I have not received any commandment from the Lord, but I give my opinion as one who is trustworthy, thanks to the Lord's mercy. <sup>26</sup> It is this: In the present time of stress it seems good to me for a person to continue as he is. <sup>27</sup> Are you bound to a wife? Then do not seek your freedom. Are you free of a wife? If so, do not go in search of one. <sup>28</sup> Should you marry, however, you will not be committing sin. Neither does a virgin commit a sin if she marries. But such people will have trials in this life, and these I should like to spare you.

<sup>29</sup> I tell you, brothers, the time is short. From now on those with wives should live as though they had none; <sup>30</sup> those who weep should live as though they were not weeping, and those who rejoice as though they were not rejoicing; buyers should conduct themselves as though they owned nothing, <sup>31</sup> and those who make use of the world as though they were not using it, for the world as we know it is passing away.

<sup>32</sup>† I should like you to be free of all worries. The unmarried man is busy with the Lord's affairs, concerned with pleasing the Lord; <sup>33</sup>* but the married man is busy with this world's demands and occupied with pleasing his wife. This means he is divided. <sup>34</sup> The virgin—indeed, any unmarried woman—is concerned with things of the Lord, in pursuit of holiness in body and spirit. The married woman, on the other hand, has the cares of this world to absorb her and is concerned with pleasing her husband. <sup>35</sup>* I am going into this with you for your own good. I have no desire to place restrictions on you, but I do want to promote what is good, what will help you to devote yourselves entirely to the Lord.

A Question of Marriage.† <sup>36</sup> If anyone thinks he is behaving dishonorably toward his virgin because a critical moment has come and it seems that something should be done, let him do as he wishes. He commits no sin if there is a marriage. <sup>37</sup> The man, however, who stands firm in his resolve, who while without constraint and free to carry out his will makes up his mind to keep his virgin, also acts rightly. <sup>38</sup> To sum up: the man who marries his virgin, acts fittingly; the one who does not, will do better.

Widows.† <sup>39</sup>* A wife is bound to her husband as long as he lives. If her husband dies she is free to marry, but on one condition, that it be in the Lord. <sup>40</sup> She will be happier, though, in my opinion, if she stays unmarried. I am persuaded that in this I have the Spirit of God.

CHAPTER 8

Meats Offered to Idols. <sup>1</sup>† Now about meats that have been offered to idols.

19: Rom 2, 25; Gal	23: 6, 20.
5, 6.	33: Lk 14, 20.
22: Eph 6, 5-9; Phlm	35: Lk 10, 39, 42.
16.	39: Rom 7, 2.

† 7, 17-24: A degree of importance is attached to the circumstances that basically condition one's life at the time of conversion. Normally, everyone, whether Jew or Gentile, slave or free, should expect to retain his particular state.

7, 25-31: The above principle of retention of one's state applies also to both the unmarried and the married because, in the light of the second coming of Christ, it is not the state that is important but rather the use of it in a spirit of sacrifice, i.e., as though not using it. In this way all things are made subservient to the supreme end of preparedness for Christ's coming in judgment.

7, 32-35: Those who were unmarried at the time of conversion should realize that their celibate state relieves them of the responsibilities of marriage and family, and the resulting involvement in worldly affairs. They are more free to engage directly in the service of the Lord (32f). This does not, however, contradict the individual's freedom to marry (35; cf 7, 8f, 28).

7, 36f: These verses may mean either that (a) a man living chastely with a virgin may marry her; or (b) a father may give his daughter in marriage, or a guardian his ward. However, dedicated celibacy and virginity anticipate the life of glory after the resurrection, when marriage will no longer exist; cf Mt 22, 30.

7, 39f: Widows who choose to remarry should prefer Christian husbands.

8, 1-13: See note on Romans 14, 1—15, 6.

Of course we all "know" about that. But whereas "knowledge" inflates, love up-builds. <sup>2*</sup> If a man thinks he knows something, that means he has never really known it as he ought. <sup>3</sup> But if anyone loves God, that man is known by him. <sup>4*</sup> So then, about this matter of eating meats that have been offered to idols: we know that an idol is really nothing, and that there is no God but one. <sup>5</sup> Even though there are so-called gods in the heavens and on the earth—there are, to be sure, many such "gods" and "lords"—<sup>6*</sup> for us there is one God, the Father, from whom all things come and for whom we live; and one Lord Jesus Christ, through whom everything was made and through whom we live.

Practical Rules. <sup>7*</sup> Not all, of course, possess this "knowledge." Because some were so recently devoted to idols, they eat meat, fully aware that it has been sacrificed, and because their conscience is weak, it is defiled by the eating. <sup>8*</sup> Now food does not bring us closer to God. We suffer no loss through failing to eat, and we gain no favor by eating. <sup>9*</sup> Take care, however, lest in exercising your right you become an occasion of sin to the weak. <sup>10</sup> If someone sees you, with your "knowledge," reclining at table in the temple of an idol, may not his conscience in its weak state be influenced to the point that he eats the idol-offering? <sup>11*</sup> Because of your "knowledge" the weak one perishes, that brother for whom Christ died. <sup>12*</sup> When you sin thus against your brothers and wound their weak consciences, you are sinning against Christ. <sup>13*</sup> Therefore, if food causes my brother to sin I will never eat meat again, so that I may not be an occasion of sin to him.

CHAPTER 9

Paul's Rights as an Apostle. <sup>1*</sup> † Am I not free? Am I not an apostle? Have I not seen Jesus our Lord? And are you not my work in the Lord? <sup>2</sup> Although I may not be an apostle for others, I certainly am one for you. You are the very seal of my apostolate in the Lord.

<sup>3</sup> My defense against those who criticize me is this: <sup>4</sup> Do we not have the right to eat and drink? <sup>5</sup> Do we not have the right to marry a believing woman like the rest of the apostles and the brothers of the Lord and Cephas? <sup>6</sup> Is it only myself and Barnabas who are forced to work for a living? What soldier in the field pays for his rations? <sup>7</sup> Who plants a vineyard and does not eat of its yield? What shepherd does not nourish himself with the milk of his flock? <sup>8</sup> You may think the reasons I am giving are merely human ones, but does not the law itself speak of these things? It is written in the law of Moses, "You shall not muzzle an ox while it treads out grain." <sup>9*</sup> Is God concerned here for oxen, <sup>10</sup> or does he not rather say this for our sakes? You can be sure it was written for us, for the plowman should plow in hope and the harvester expect a share in the grain. <sup>11*</sup> If we have sown for you in the spirit, is it too much to expect a material harvest from you? <sup>12*</sup> If others have this right over you, is not our right even greater? But we have not used this right. On the contrary, we put up with all sorts of hardships so as not to place any obstacle in the way of the gospel of Christ. <sup>13*</sup> Do you not realize that those who work in the temple are supported by the temple, and those who minister at the altar share the offerings of the altar? <sup>14*</sup> Likewise the Lord himself ordered that those who preach the gospel should live by the gospel.

Reason for Not Using Rights. <sup>15*</sup> As for me, I have not used any of these rights, nor do I write this now to see to it that anything should be done for me. I would rather die than let anyone rob me of my boast! <sup>16*</sup> Yet preaching the gospel is not the subject of a boast; I am under compulsion and have no choice. I am ruined if I do not preach it! <sup>17</sup> If I do it willingly, I have my recompense; if unwillingly, I am nonetheless entrusted with a charge. <sup>18*</sup> And this recompense of mine? It is simply this, that when preaching I offer the gospel free of charge and do not make full use of the authority the gospel gives me.

All Things to All Men. <sup>19*</sup> Although I am not bound to anyone, I made myself the slave of all so as to win over as many as possible. <sup>20</sup> I became like a Jew to the

8, 2: Gal 6, 3.

4: 10, 19.

6: Mal 2, 10; Jn 1,

3: Col 1, 16.

7: 10, 28; Rom 14,

23.

8: Rom 14, 17; Col

2, 21f.

9: Rom 14, 20.

11: Rom 14, 15.

12: Acts 9, 5.

13: Rom 14, 21.

9, 1: Acts 26, 16.

9: Dt 25, 4; 1 Tm

5, 18.

11: Rom 15, 27.

12: 2 Cor 11, 9.

13: Nm 18, 8, 31; Dt

18, 1ff.

14: Lk 10, 7.

15: 2 Cor 11, 9.

16: Acts 4, 20; 22,

14f.

18: 2 Cor 11, 7.

19: Mt 20, 26.

† 9, 1-23: Behind this passage lies some objection within the Corinthian community to Paul's apostolic role. Since he does not accept material support from the community or make use of a woman servant, like the other apostles, he is apparently not to be considered their equal. Paul replies that he is quite aware of his right to do these things, but that he has made a free, personal decision not to exercise this right. He feels that his preaching of the gospel is a duty laid upon him by God, which he must fulfill by presenting the gospel to men as gratuitously as God gave it to him (15-18). He cannot be accused of pride, for his apostolic life is proof that he has conquered his pride; he adapts himself to the customary observances of the law when residing among Judaean-Christians, and to its nonobservance when he shares the life of Gentile Christians (19-23).

Jews in order to win the Jews. To those bound by the law I became like one who is bound (although in fact I am not bound by it), that I might win those bound by the law.<sup>21</sup> To those not subject to the law I became like one not subject to it (not that I am free from the law of God, for I am subject to the law of Christ), that I might win those not subject to the law.<sup>22*</sup> To the weak I became a weak person with a view to winning the weak. I have made myself all things to all men in order to save at least some of them.<sup>23</sup> In fact, I do all that I do for the sake of the gospel in the hope of having a share in its blessings.

<sup>24*</sup> You know that while all the runners in the stadium take part in the race, the award goes to one man. In that case, run so as to win!<sup>25*</sup> Athletes deny themselves all sorts of things. They do this to win a crown of leaves that withers, but we a crown that is imperishable.

<sup>26</sup> I do not run like a man who loses sight of the finish line. I do not fight as if I were shadowboxing.<sup>27*</sup> What I do is discipline my own body and master it, for fear that after having preached to others I myself should be rejected.

CHAPTER 10

Against Overconfidence.† <sup>1*</sup> Brothers, I want you to remember this: our fathers were all under the cloud and all passed through the sea; <sup>2</sup> by the cloud and the sea all of them were baptized into Moses. <sup>3*</sup> All ate the same spiritual food. <sup>4*</sup> All drank the same spiritual drink (they drank from the spiritual rock that was following them, and the rock was Christ), <sup>5*</sup> yet we know that God was not pleased with most of them, for "they were struck down in the desert."

<sup>6</sup> These things happened as an example to keep us from wicked desires such as theirs. <sup>7*</sup> Do not become idolaters, as some of them did. Scripture says, "The people sat down to eat and drink, and arose to take their pleasure."<sup>8*</sup> Let us not indulge in lewdness as some of them did, so that in one day twenty-three thousand perished. <sup>9*</sup> Let us not test the Lord as some of them did, only to be destroyed by snakes. <sup>10*</sup> Nor are you to grumble as some of them did, to be killed by the destroying angel. <sup>11</sup> The things that happened to them serve as an example. They have been written as a warning to us, upon whom the end of the ages has come. <sup>12</sup> For all these reasons, let anyone who thinks he is standing upright watch out lest he fall! <sup>13*</sup> No test has been sent you that does not come to all men. Besides, God keeps his promise. He will not let you be tested beyond your strength. Along with the test he will give you a way out of it so that you may be able to endure it.

The Eucharist versus Pagan Sacrifices. <sup>14†</sup> I am telling you, whom I love, to shun the worship of idols, <sup>15</sup> and I address you as one addresses sensible people. You may judge for yourselves what I am saying. <sup>16*</sup> Is not the cup of blessing we bless a sharing in the blood of Christ? And is not the bread we break a sharing in the body of Christ? <sup>17*</sup> Because the loaf of bread is one, we, many though we are, are one body, for we all partake of the one loaf.

<sup>18</sup> Look at Israel according to the flesh and see if those who eat the sacrifices do not share in the altar! <sup>19</sup> What am I saying—that meat offered to an idol is really offered to that idol, or that an idol is a reality? <sup>20*</sup> No, I mean that the Gentiles sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons. <sup>21</sup> You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and also the cup of demons. You cannot partake of the table of the Lord and likewise the table of demons. <sup>22</sup> Do we mean to provoke the Lord to jealous anger? Surely we are not stronger than he!

Concerning Idol Offerings. <sup>23*†</sup> "All things are lawful," but not all are advantageous. "All things are lawful"—which does not mean that everything is constructive. <sup>24*</sup> No man should seek his own interest but rather that of his neighbor. <sup>25</sup> Eat whatever is sold in the market without raising any question of conscience. <sup>26*</sup> "The earth and its fullness are the Lord's."<sup>27</sup> If an unbeliever invites you to his table and you want to go, eat whatever is placed before you, without raising any question of conscience. <sup>28</sup> But if someone should say to

22: 2 Cor 11, 29.

24: 2 Tm 4, 7f.

25: Jas 1, 12.

27: Rom 8, 13.

10, 1: Ex 13, 21; 14,

19-22.

3: Ex 16, 4-35.

4: Ex 17, 6; Nm 20,

7-11.

5: Nm 14, 16; Jude

5.

7: Ex 32, 6.

8: Nm 25, 1-9.

9: Nm 21, 5f.

10: Nm 14, 2, 36.

13: Mt 6, 13; Jas 1,

13f.

16: Mt 26, 26f; Acts

2, 42.

17: 12, 7; Rom 12,

5; Eph 4, 4.

20: Dt 32, 17; 2 Cor

6, 14ff.

23: 6, 12.

24: Rom 15, 2; Phil

2, 4.

26: Ps 24, 1.

† 10, 1-13: Paul approaches the question of participation in the sacrificial worship of pagan temples (14-22) by invoking Old Testament traditions from the history of Israel in the desert, especially Israel's forbidden worship of the golden calf (Ex 32, 1-29). Christians, in their turn, possess the spiritual gifts of God but this does not free them from the danger of yielding to temptation.

10, 14-22: Paul repudiates idol-worship on the ground of the meaning of the Eucharist: it is the Christian sacrifice that effects union with the living Christ. Although the pagan sacrifices aim at a union with the gods, in the light of Christian teaching they are seen to serve only the cause of evil.

10, 23—11, 1: See note on Romans 14, 1—15, 6.

you, "This was offered in idol worship," do not eat it, both for the sake of the one who called attention to it and on account of the conscience issue—<sup>29</sup> not your own conscience but your neighbor's. You may ask, Why should my liberty be restricted by another man's conscience? <sup>30*</sup> And why is it, if I partake thankfully, that I should be blamed for the food over which I gave thanks?

Conclusion. <sup>31</sup> The fact is that whether you eat or drink—whatever you do—you should do all for the glory of God. <sup>32</sup> Give no offense to Jew or Greek or to the church of God, <sup>33</sup> just as I try to please all in any way I can by seeking, not my own advantage, but that of the many, that they may be saved. <sup>11, 14*</sup> Imitate me as I imitate Christ.

CHAPTER 11

IV: CONDUCT AT PUBLIC WORSHIP

Headdress of Women. † <sup>2</sup> I praise you because you always remember me and are holding fast to the traditions just as I handed them on to you. <sup>3*</sup> I want you to know that the head of every man is Christ; the head of a woman is her husband; and the head of Christ is the Father. <sup>4</sup> Any man who prays or prophesies with his head covered brings shame upon his head. <sup>5</sup> Similarly, any woman who prays or prophesies with her head uncovered brings shame upon her head. It is as if she had had her head shaved. <sup>6</sup> Indeed, if a woman will not wear a veil, she ought to cut off her hair. If it is shameful for a woman to have her hair cut off or her head shaved, it is clear that she ought to wear a veil. <sup>7*</sup> A man, on the other hand, ought not to cover his head, because he is the image of God and the reflection of his glory. Woman, in turn, is the reflection of man's glory. <sup>8</sup> Man was not made from woman but woman from man. <sup>9*</sup> Neither was man created for woman but woman for man. <sup>10*</sup> For this reason a woman ought to have a sign of submission on her head, because of the angels. <sup>11</sup> Yet, in the Lord, woman is not independent of man nor man independent of woman. <sup>12</sup> In the same way that woman was made from man, so man is born of woman; and all is from God. <sup>13</sup> I will let you judge for yourselves. Is it proper for a woman to pray to God unveiled? <sup>14</sup> Does not nature itself teach you that it is dishonorable for a man to wear his hair long, while the long hair of a woman is her glory? <sup>15</sup> Her hair has been given her for a covering. <sup>16</sup> If anyone wants to argue about this, remember that neither we nor the churches of God recognize any other usage.

The Lord's Supper. † <sup>17</sup> What I now have to say is not said in praise, because your meetings are not profitable but harmful. <sup>18*</sup> First of all, I hear that when you gather for a meeting there are divisions among you, and I am inclined to believe it. <sup>19</sup> There may even have to be factions among you for the tried and true to stand out clearly. <sup>20</sup> When you assemble it is not to eat the Lord's Supper, <sup>21</sup> for everyone is in haste to eat his own supper. One person goes hungry while another gets drunk. <sup>22*</sup> Do you not have homes where you can eat and drink? Would you show contempt for the church of God, and embarrass those who have nothing? What can I say to you? Shall I praise you? Certainly not in this matter!

<sup>23*</sup> I received from the Lord what I handed on to you, namely, that the Lord Jesus on the night in which he was betrayed took bread, <sup>24</sup> and after he had given thanks, broke it and said, "This is my body, which is for you. Do this in remembrance of me." <sup>25*</sup> In the same way, after the supper, he took the cup, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood. Do this, whenever you drink it, in remembrance of me." <sup>26</sup> Every time, then, you eat this bread and drink this cup, you proclaim the death of the Lord until he comes! <sup>27</sup> This means that whoever eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Lord unworthily sins against the body and blood of the Lord. <sup>28</sup> A man should examine himself first; only then should he eat of the bread and drink of the cup. <sup>29</sup> He who eats and drinks without recognizing the body eats and drinks a judgment on himself. <sup>30</sup> That is why many among you are sick

30: Rom 14, 6; 1 Tm 4, 3f.	22: Jas 2, 5f.
11, 1: 4, 16; Phil 3, 17.	23: 10, 16f; Mt 26, 26-29; Mk 14, 22-25; Lk 22, 14-20.
3: Eph 5, 23.	25: Ex 24, 8; Heb 8, 6-13.
7: Gn 1, 27; 5, 1.
9: Gn 2, 21ff.
10: 14, 34.
18: 1, 10ff.

† 11, 1: Though this verse belongs to ch. 11 it concludes ch. 10.

11, 2-16: The apostle regards the independence of the Corinthian women who participate in worship with unveiled heads as a lack of humility, since a woman's veil is regarded as a sign of dependence on the authority of her husband. Paul's argument is based on his view of nature and on propriety, i.e., the custom of the earliest Christian communities.

11, 17-34: Paul concerns himself with the proper celebration of the eucharistic liturgy (33f). He has become aware that at the agape preceding the celebration of the Eucharist, the mutual charity of sharing food and companionship is being violated through discrimination against the needy (21f). Moreover, even drunkenness has not been unknown (21). In this earliest written account of the Lord's Supper Paul emphasizes its sacrificial aspect, i.e., the proclamation of Jesus' death in atonement for sin (23-26). Participation in this mystery requires a clear conscience (27ff). Abuse of the mystery on the part of some is the cause of their punishment through illness and death (30ff).

and infirm, and why so many are dying.
<sup>31</sup> If we were to examine ourselves, we would not be falling under judgment in this way; <sup>32*</sup> but since it is the Lord who judges us, he chastens us to keep us from being condemned with the rest of the world. <sup>33</sup> Therefore, my brothers, when you assemble for the meal, wait for one another. <sup>34</sup> If anyone is hungry let him eat at home, so that your assembly may not deserve condemnation. As for other matters, I shall give instructions when I come.

V: SPIRITUAL GIFTS†

CHAPTER 12

Variety and Unity. <sup>1</sup> Now, brothers, I do not want to leave you in ignorance about spiritual gifts. <sup>2*</sup> You know that when you were pagans you were led astray to mute idols, as impulse drove you. <sup>3*</sup> That is why I tell you that nobody who speaks in the Spirit of God ever says, "Cursed be Jesus." And no one can say: "Jesus is Lord," except in the Holy Spirit.

<sup>4*</sup> There are different gifts but the same Spirit; <sup>5*</sup> there are different ministries but the same Lord; <sup>6</sup> there are different works but the same God who accomplishes all of them in everyone. <sup>7</sup> To each person the manifestation of the Spirit is given for the common good. <sup>8</sup> To one the Spirit gives wisdom in discourse, to another the power to express knowledge. <sup>9</sup> Through the Spirit one receives faith; by the same Spirit another is given the gift of healing, <sup>10*</sup> and still another miraculous powers. Prophecy is given to one; to another power to distinguish one spirit from another. One receives the gift of tongues, another that of interpreting the tongues. <sup>11*</sup> But it is one and the same Spirit who produces all these gifts, distributing them to each as he wills.

Analogy of the Body. <sup>12*</sup> The body is one and has many members, but all the members, many though they are, are one body; and so it is with Christ. <sup>13*</sup> It was in one Spirit that all of us, whether Jew or Greek, slave or free, were baptized into one body. All of us have been given to drink of the one Spirit. <sup>14</sup> Now the body is not one member, it is many. <sup>15</sup> If the foot should say, "Because I am not a hand I do not belong to the body," would it then no longer belong to the body? <sup>16</sup> If the ear should say, "Because I am not an eye I do not belong to the body," would it then no longer belong to the body? <sup>17</sup> If the body were all eye, what would happen to our hearing? If it were all ear, what would happen to our smelling? <sup>18</sup> As it is, God has set each member of the body in the place he wanted it to be. <sup>19</sup> If all the members were alike, where would the body be?

<sup>20</sup> There are, indeed, many different members, but one body. <sup>21</sup> The eye cannot say to the hand, "I do not need you," any more than the head can say to the feet, "I do not need you." <sup>22</sup> Even those members of the body which seem less important are in fact indispensable. <sup>23</sup> We honor the members we consider less honorable by clothing them with greater care, <sup>24</sup> thus bestowing on the less presentable a propriety which the more presentable already have. God has so constructed the body as to give greater honor to the lowly members, <sup>25</sup> that there may be no dissension in the body, but that all the members may be concerned for one another. <sup>26</sup> If one member suffers, all the members suffer with it; if one member is honored, all the members share its joy.

The One Body of Christ. <sup>27*</sup> You, then, are the body of Christ. Every one of you is a member of it. <sup>28*</sup> Furthermore, God has set up in the church first apostles, second prophets, third teachers, then miracle workers, healers, assistants, administrators, and those who speak in tongues. <sup>29</sup> Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers? Do all work miracles <sup>30</sup> or have the gift of healing? Do all speak in tongues, all have the gift of interpretation of tongues? <sup>31</sup> Set your hearts on the greater gifts.

CHAPTER 13

Excellence of the Gift of Love.† Now I will show you the way which surpasses all the others.

<sup>1</sup> If I speak with human tongues and angelic as well, but do not have love, I

32: Dt 8, 5; Heb 12, 5f.	10: 14, 5; Acts 2, 4, 11; 7; Eph 4, 7.
12, 2; Heb 2, 18f.	12: 10, 17; Rom 12, 4f; Col 3, 15.
3: Mk 9, 39; 1 Jn 4, 2f.	13: Gal 3, 28; Eph 2, 13, 16; Col 3, 11.
4: Rom 12, 6; Eph 4, 4.	27: Rom 12, 5-8; Eph 5, 20.
5: 12, 28; Eph 4, 11.	28: Eph 4, 11.

† 12, 1—14, 40: Here Paul speaks of special spiritual gifts (charisms) enabling individuals to exercise an office or function within the community. He provides a list of charisms in 12, 8ff (cf Rom 12, 6ff; Eph 4, 11) which he wishes to be recognized as a manifestation of the presence of the Holy Spirit (3-11), each contributing in its own way to the good of the whole community (12-30). (Paul does not value the charisms for their own sake, since Christian love is the only enduring gift of God; cf 12, 31—13, 13). Corinthians may lawfully desire to possess the charisms, but they should aspire especially to the gift of prophecy (probably, the gift of directing the community in new situations, and of revealing what could not otherwise be known; cf 14, 3, 30; Acts 13, 1). The apostle criticizes the overstressing of the gift of tongues (probably ecstatic utterances requiring an interpreter; cf 14, 1-25), and directs that this gift be employed only when an interpreter is present. At the assembly no more than three persons, not including women, are to act on the basis of a charism (26-40).

13, 1-13: See notes on 1 John 4, 7—5, 5.

am a noisy gong, a clanging cymbal. <sup>2*</sup> If I have the gift of prophecy and, with full knowledge, comprehend all mysteries, if I have faith great enough to move mountains, but have not love, I am nothing. <sup>3*</sup> If I give everything I have to feed the poor and hand over my body to be burned, but have not love, I gain nothing.

<sup>4*</sup> Love is patient; love is kind. Love is not jealous, it does not put on airs, it is not snobbish. <sup>5*</sup> Love is never rude, it is not self-seeking, it is not prone to anger; neither does it brood over injuries. <sup>6</sup> Love does not rejoice in what is wrong but rejoices with the truth. <sup>7*</sup> There is no limit to love's forbearance, to its trust, its hope, its power to endure.

<sup>8</sup> Love never fails. Prophecies will cease, tongues will be silent, knowledge will pass away. <sup>9</sup> Our knowledge is imperfect and our prophesying is imperfect. <sup>10</sup> When the perfect comes, the imperfect will pass away. <sup>11</sup> When I was a child I used to talk like a child, think like a child, reason like a child. When I became a man I put childish ways aside. <sup>12*</sup> Now we see indistinctly, as in a mirror; then we shall see face to face. My knowledge is imperfect now; then I shall know even as I am known. <sup>13*</sup> There are in the end three things that last: faith, hope, and love, and the greatest of these is love.

CHAPTER 14

Gift of Prophecy. <sup>1</sup> Seek eagerly after love. Set your hearts on spiritual gifts—above all, the gift of prophecy. <sup>2</sup> A man who speaks in a tongue is talking not to men but to God. No one understands him, because he utters mysteries in the Spirit. <sup>3</sup> The prophet, on the other hand, speaks to men for their upbuilding, their encouragement, their consolation. <sup>4</sup> He who speaks in a tongue builds up himself, but he who prophesies builds up the church. <sup>5</sup> I should like it if all of you spoke in tongues, but I much prefer that you prophesy. The prophet is greater than one who speaks in tongues, unless the speaker can also interpret for the upbuilding of the church.

Interpretation of Tongues. <sup>6</sup> Just suppose, brothers, that I should come to you speaking in tongues. What good will I do you if my speech does not have some revelation, or knowledge, or prophecy, or instruction for you? <sup>7</sup> Even in the case of lifeless things which produce a sound, such as a flute or a harp, how will anyone know what is being played if there is no distinction among the notes? <sup>8</sup> If the bugle's sound is uncertain, who will get ready for battle? <sup>9</sup> Similarly, if you do not utter intelligible speech because you are speaking in a tongue, how will anyone know what you are saying? You will be talking to the air. <sup>10</sup> There are many different languages in the world and all are marked by sound; <sup>11</sup> but if I do not know the meaning, I shall be a foreigner to the speaker and he a foreigner to me. <sup>12</sup> Since you have set your hearts on spiritual gifts, try to be rich in those that build up the church.

<sup>13</sup> This means that the man who speaks in a tongue should pray for the gift of interpretation. <sup>14</sup> If I pray in a tongue my spirit is at prayer but my mind contributes nothing. <sup>15*</sup> What is my point here? I want to pray with my spirit, and also to pray with my mind. I want to sing with my spirit and with my mind as well. <sup>16</sup> If your praise of God is solely with the spirit, how will the one who does not comprehend be able to say "Amen" to your thanksgiving? He will not know what you are saying. <sup>17</sup> You will be uttering praise very well indeed, but the other man will not be helped. <sup>18</sup> Thank God, I speak in tongues more than any of you, <sup>19</sup> but in the church I would rather say five intelligible words to instruct others than ten thousand words in a tongue.

Function of These Gifts. <sup>20*</sup> Brothers, do not be childish in your outlook. Be like children as far as evil is concerned, but in mind be mature. <sup>21</sup> It is written in the law, "In strange tongues and in alien speech I will speak to this people, and even so they will not heed me, says the Lord." <sup>22</sup> The gift of tongues is a sign, not for those who believe but for those who do not believe, while prophecy is not for those who are without faith but for those who have faith. <sup>23*</sup> If the uninitiated or unbelievers should come in when the whole church is assembled and everyone is speaking in tongues, would they not say that you are out of your minds? <sup>24</sup> But if an unbeliever or an uninitiate enters while all are uttering prophecy, he will be taken to task by all and called to account by all, <sup>25*</sup> and the secret of his heart will be laid bare. Falling prostrate, he will worship God, crying out, "God is truly among you."

Rules of Order. <sup>26</sup> What do we propose, brothers? When you assemble, one has a psalm, another some instruction to give, still another a revelation to share; one speaks in a tongue, another interprets. All well and good, so long as as everything is done with a constructive

13, 2: Mt 7, 22; 17, 20;

Jas 2, 14-17.

3: Mt 6, 2.

4: Rom 13, 8ff.

5: Rom 12, 9f.

7: Prv 10, 12; Gal

6, 2.

12: 2 Cor 5, 7; 1 Jn

3, 2.

13: 1 Thes 1, 3.

14, 15: Eph 5, 19.

20: Mt 10, 16; Rom

16, 19; Eph 4,

14.

23: Acts 2, 6, 13.

25: Is 45, 14; Zec 8,

23.

purpose. <sup>27</sup> If any are going to talk in tongues let it be at most two or three, each in turn, with another to interpret what they are saying. <sup>28</sup> But if there is no one to interpret, there should be silence in the assembly, each one speaking only to himself and to God. <sup>29</sup> Let no more than two or three prophets speak, and let the rest judge the worth of what they say. <sup>30</sup> If another, sitting by, should happen to receive a revelation, the first ones should then keep quiet. <sup>31</sup> You can all speak your prophecies, but one by one, so that all may be instructed and encouraged. <sup>32</sup> The spirits of the prophecies are under their prophets' control, <sup>33</sup> since God is a God, not of confusion, but of peace.

According to the rule observed in all the assemblies of believers, <sup>34*</sup> women should keep silent in such gatherings. They may not speak. Rather, as the law states, submissiveness is indicated for them. <sup>35</sup> If they want to learn anything, they should ask their husbands at home. It is a disgrace when a woman speaks in the assembly. <sup>36</sup> Did the preaching of God's word originate with you? Are you the only ones to whom it has come?

<sup>37</sup> If anyone thinks he is a prophet or a man of the Spirit, he should know that what I have written you is the Lord's commandment. <sup>38</sup> If anyone ignores it, he in turn should be ignored. <sup>39</sup> Set your hearts on prophecy, my brothers, and do not forbid those who speak in tongues, <sup>40</sup> but make sure that everything is done properly and in order.

VI: THE RESURRECTION†

CHAPTER 15

Christ's Resurrection. <sup>1</sup> Brothers, I want to remind you of the gospel I preached to you, which you received and in which you stand firm. <sup>2</sup> You are being saved by it at this very moment if you hold fast to it as I preached it to you. Otherwise you have believed in vain. <sup>3</sup> I handed on to you first of all what I myself received, that Christ died for our sins in accordance with the Scriptures; <sup>4*</sup> that he was buried and, in accordance with the Scriptures, rose on the third day; <sup>5*</sup> that he was seen by Cephas, then by the Twelve. <sup>6</sup> After that he was seen by five hundred brothers at once, most of whom are still alive, although some have fallen asleep. <sup>7</sup> Next he was seen by James; then by all the apostles. <sup>8</sup> Last of all he was seen by me, as one born out of the normal course. <sup>9*</sup> I am the least of the apostles; in fact, because I persecuted the church of God, I do not even deserve the name. <sup>10</sup> But by God's favor I am what I am. This favor of his to me has not proved fruitless. Indeed, I have worked harder than all the others, not on my own but through the favor of God. <sup>11</sup> In any case, whether it be I or they, this is what we preach and this is what you believed.

The Resurrection and Faith. <sup>12</sup> Tell me, if Christ is preached as raised from the dead, how is it that some of you say there is no resurrection of the dead? <sup>13</sup> If there is no resurrection of the dead, Christ himself has not been raised. <sup>14</sup> And if Christ has not been raised, our preaching is void of content and your faith is empty too. <sup>15*</sup> Indeed, we should then be exposed as false witnesses of God, for we have borne witness before him that he raised up Christ; but he certainly did not raise him up if the dead are not raised. <sup>16</sup> Why? Because if the dead are not raised, then Christ was not raised; <sup>17</sup> and if Christ was not raised, your faith is worthless. You are still in your sins, <sup>18*</sup> and those who have fallen asleep in Christ are the deadeast of the dead. <sup>19</sup> If our hopes in Christ are limited to this life only, we are the most pitiable of men.

Christ, the First Fruits. <sup>20*</sup> But as it is, Christ is now raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who have fallen asleep. <sup>21*</sup> Death came through a man; hence the resurrection of the dead comes through a man also. <sup>22</sup> Just as in Adam all die, so in Christ all will come to life again, <sup>23*</sup> but each one in proper order: Christ the first fruits and then, at his coming, all those who belong to him. <sup>24*</sup> After that will come the end, when, after having destroyed every sovereignty, authority, and power, he will hand over the kingdom to God the Father. <sup>25*</sup> Christ must reign until God has put all enemies under his feet, <sup>26*</sup> and 34: 1 Tm 2, 11f.	1, 18; 1 Thes 4, 14.

15, 4; Acts 2, 23.
5: Mk 16, 14; Lk 24, 34-43.	21: Gn 3, 17ff; Rom 5, 12-18.
9: Eph 3, 8; 1 Tm 1, 15.	23: 1 Thes 4, 16.
15: Acts 5, 32.	24: Eph 1, 22.
18: Rom 10, 9.	25: Ps 110, 1.
20: Rom 8, 11; Col 1, 10; Rv 20, 14.	26: Rom 6, 9; 2 Tm 1, 10; Rv 20, 14.

† 15, 1-58: This exposition of the Christian doctrine of the resurrection of the dead in Christ was prompted by the belief among some of the Corinthians that the resurrection of the body was impossible (12, 35), though apparently they did not deny the resurrection of Christ (v 12). Paul takes up the issue by listing the divinely appointed witnesses to the resurrection (1-11). He develops its significance as revealing God's plan to raise the dead (12-28), belief in which has been a basic Christian incentive. It encourages the apostles in the face of the hardships of their ministry, and has even occasioned the practice in Corinth of baptism on behalf of the dead (29-34). Those who reject the doctrine of resurrection because of the fact of bodily corruption fail to understand the mystery of God's creative activity, which provides the kind of body suited to the new life after death (35-49). The risen body of man will be a body so changed by the power of God as to be immortal (50-53). Christ died for sin, which is the cause of man's death (Gn 3, 19); he rose from the dead to be the cause of man's resurrection (54-58).

the last enemy to be destroyed is death. <sup>27*</sup> Scripture reads that God "has placed all things under his feet." But when it says that everything has been made subject, it is clear that he who has made everything subject to Christ is excluded. <sup>28*</sup> When, finally, all has been subjected to the Son, he will then subject himself to the One who made all things subject to him, so that God may be all in all.

Practical Faith. <sup>29</sup> If the dead are not raised, what about those who have themselves baptized on behalf of the dead? If the raising of the dead is not a reality, why be baptized on their behalf? <sup>30*</sup> And why are we continually putting ourselves in danger? <sup>31*</sup> I swear to you, brothers, by the very pride you take in me, which I cherish in Christ Jesus our Lord, that I face death every day. <sup>32*</sup> If I fought those beasts at Ephesus for purely human motives, what profit was there for me? If the dead are not raised, "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die!" <sup>33</sup> Do not be led astray any longer. "Bad company corrupts good morals." Return to reason, as you ought, and stop sinning. <sup>34</sup> Some of you are quite ignorant of God; I say it to your shame.

Manner of the Resurrection. <sup>35</sup> Perhaps someone will say, "How are the dead to be raised up? What kind of body will they have?" <sup>36*</sup> A nonsensical question! The seed you sow does not germinate unless it dies. <sup>37</sup> When you sow, you do not sow the full-blown plant, but a kernel of wheat or some other grain. <sup>38*</sup> God gives body to it as he pleases—to each seed its own fruition. <sup>39</sup> Not all bodily nature is the same. Men have one kind of body, animals another. Birds are of their kind, fish are of theirs. <sup>40</sup> There are heavenly bodies and there are earthly bodies. The splendor of the heavenly bodies is one thing, that of the earthly another. <sup>41</sup> The sun has a splendor of its own, so has the moon, and the stars have theirs. Even among the stars, one differs from another in brightness. <sup>42</sup> So is it with the resurrection of the dead. What is sown in the earth is subject to decay, what rises is incorruptible. <sup>43*</sup> What is sown is ignoble, what rises is glorious. Weakness is sown, strength rises up. <sup>44</sup> A natural body is put down and a spiritual body comes up.

The Natural Body and the Spiritual Body. If there is a natural body, be sure there is also a spiritual body. <sup>45*</sup> Scripture has it that Adam, the first man, became a living soul; the last Adam has become a life-giving spirit. <sup>46</sup> Take note, the spiritual was not first; first came the natural and after that the spiritual. <sup>47</sup> The first man was of earth, formed from dust, the second is from heaven. <sup>48*</sup> Earthly men are like the man of earth, heavenly men are like the man of heaven. <sup>49*</sup> Just as we resemble the man from earth, so shall we bear the likeness of the man from heaven.

Glorification of the Body. <sup>50*</sup> This is what I mean, brothers: flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; no more can corruption inherit incorruption. <sup>51*</sup> Now I am going to tell you a mystery. Not all of us shall fall asleep, but all of us are to be changed—<sup>52*</sup> in an instant, in the twinkling of an eye, at the sound of the last trumpet. The trumpet will sound and the dead will be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. <sup>53*</sup> This corruptible body must be clothed with incorruptibility, this mortal body with immortality. <sup>54</sup> When the corruptible frame takes on incorruptibility and the mortal immortality, then will the saying of Scripture be fulfilled: "Death is swallowed up in victory." <sup>55*</sup> "O death, where is your victory? O death, where is your sting?" <sup>56*</sup> The sting of death is sin, and sin gets its power from the law. <sup>57*</sup> But thanks be to God who has given us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>58</sup> Be steadfast and persevering, my beloved brothers, fully engaged in the work of the Lord. You know that your toil is not in vain when it is done in the Lord.

VII: CONCLUSION

CHAPTER 16

The Collection. <sup>1*</sup>† About the collection for the saints, follow the instructions I gave the churches of Galatia. <sup>2</sup> On the first day of each week everyone should put aside whatever he has been able to save, so that the collection will not have to be taken up after I arrive. <sup>3</sup> When I come I shall give letters of introduction to those whom you have chosen to take your gift to Jerusalem. <sup>4</sup> If it seems fitting that I should go myself, they will accompany me.

Paul's Plans. <sup>5*</sup> I shall come to you

27: Ps 8, 7; Phil 3, 21.	3, 21.
28: Eph 4, 6; Col 3, 11.	49: Gn 5, 3.
30: 2 Cor 4, 10ff.	50: Jn 3, 3-6.
31: Rom 8, 36.	51: 1 Thes 4, 14.
32: Is 22, 13; 1 Cor 4, 9; 2 Cor 1, 8.	52: Jl 2, 1; Zec 9, 14; Mt 24, 31.
36: Jn 12, 24.	53: 2 Cor 5, 4.
38: Gn 1, 11.	55: Is 25, 8; Hos 13, 14.
43: Phil 3, 20.	56: Rom 4, 15; 7, 7, 13.
45: Gn 2, 7; Jn 5, 21; 2 Cor 3, 6f.	57: Jn 16, 33.
48: Rom 8, 29; Phil 3, 21.	16, 1: Gal 2, 10.
	5: Acts 19, 21.

† 16, 1: This collection taken up for the poor Christians of Jerusalem is elsewhere referred to (Acts 24, 17; Rom 15, 26ff; 2 Cor 8, 1-9, 15; Gal 2, 10). Paul is especially interested in it as an opportunity to break down the barriers between Jew and Gentile.

after I have passed through Macedonia.

<sup>6</sup> If it is at all possible, I should like to remain with you for some time—even to spend the winter with you—that you may provide me with what I need for the rest of my journey. <sup>7</sup> I do not want to see you just in passing. I hope to spend some time with you, if the Lord permits. <sup>8</sup> I intend to stay in Ephesus until Pentecost. <sup>9</sup> A door has been opened wide for my work, but at the same time there are many opposed. <sup>10</sup> If Timothy should come, be sure to put him at ease among you. He does the Lord's work just as I do, <sup>11</sup> so let no one treat him disdainfully. Rather, help him come to me by sending him on his way in peace. I am expecting him with the brothers. <sup>12</sup> As for our brother Apollos, I urged him strongly to go to you with the brothers, but he did not wish to go at this time. He will go when circumstances are more favorable.

Directions and Greetings. <sup>13</sup> Be on your guard, stand firm in the faith, and act like men. In a word, be strong. <sup>14</sup> Do everything with love. <sup>15</sup> You know that the household of Stephanas is the first fruits of Achaia and is devoted to the service of the saints. <sup>16</sup> I urge you to serve under such men and under everyone who cooperates and toils with them. <sup>17</sup> I was very happy at the arrival of Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus, because they made up for your absence. <sup>18</sup> They have refreshed my spirit as they did yours. You should recognize the worth of such men.

<sup>19</sup> The churches of Asia send you greetings. Aquila and Prisca, together with the assembly that meets in their house, send you cordial greetings in the Lord. <sup>20</sup> All the brothers greet you. Greet one another with a holy kiss.

<sup>21</sup> It is I, Paul, who send you this greeting in my own hand. <sup>22</sup> † If anyone does not love the Lord, let a curse be upon him. O Lord, come! <sup>23</sup> The favor of the Lord Jesus be with you. <sup>24</sup> My love to all of you in Christ Jesus.

---

7: Acts 18, 21.	19: Acts 18, 2.18.26; Rom 16, 3.5.
8: Acts 19, 1.10.	20: Rom 16, 16; 2 Cor 13, 12; 1 Pt 5, 14.
9: Acts 14, 27.	21: Col 4, 18; 2 Thes 3, 17.
10: 4, 17; Acts 19, 22; Phil 2, 20ff.	22: Gal 1, 8f.
12: Acts 18, 24.
15: 1, 16.
18: 1 Thes 5, 12.

†

16, 22: O Lord, come! Maranatha: an Aramaic expression, reflected also in Rv 22, 20, probably used in the Christian liturgy of the time. It may be read as a prayer for the arrival of the second coming of Christ: Marana tha, "Lord, come"; or as an expression of hope in the proximity of the parousia, Maran atha, "The Lord is coming." See note on 1 Thes 4, 13-18.

TO THE CORINTHIANS

This epistle contains Paul's reflections on events that occurred after his first letter had been sent to the Corinthians. He had changed his plan to stay with that community, an intention he had previously announced (1 Cor 16, 5ff), and was criticized by the Corinthian Christians for this; one of them had even publicly reviled him (2, 5). Their attitude caused Paul much anxiety (2, 3f) and greatly strained the relationship between himself and the community he had founded and knew so well (6, 11f; Acts 18, 11). It indirectly impeded his work of ministry at Troas, where he was to be joined by Titus (2, 12f) to receive his personal report on the state of the church at Corinth. Not finding him there, Paul left Troas for Macedonia in search of him. When they finally met, he was greatly relieved, for the letter of reproof Titus had carried to the Corinthians from Paul had won the day at Corinth (7, 5-9). Accordingly, Paul wrote the present letter to confirm the Corinthians' renewed acceptance of his apostolic authority and to prepare them for his coming visit (12, 14; 13, 1).

Although these data do not constitute a complete reconstruction of events in Corinth between the writing of the two Corinthian letters, they are adequate to account for the nature of this second letter, the most subjective of all the Pauline epistles.

The themes of the epistle must be understood in terms of this general background: Paul's suffering and consolation (1, 3-11); his sincerity (1, 12ff); his honesty (1, 15-2, 4); his forgiveness of the offender (2, 5-11); his past anxiety and present relief (2, 12-17); his confidence in the apostolic office despite its hardships (3, 1-6, 10); his plea for frankness (6, 11ff; 7, 2ff); Titus' report upon the effect of the reproachful letter he had brought to the community from Paul (7, 5-16); the appeal concerning the collection for the poor Christians of Jerusalem, delayed because of the troubles within the community (8, 1-9, 15); the reaffirmation of Paul's apostolic authority (10, 1-13, 10).

Many scholars have felt that the lack of continuity in the Second Epistle to the Corinthians and the repetition of material on the same topic (e.g., 2, 14-6, 3 and 10, 1-13, 10; 8, 1-24 and 9, 1-15) are evidence that the epistle was formed from several Pauline letters, including perhaps the letter to the Corinthians written before First Corinthians (1 Cor 5, 9), and the second, severe letter which preceded Second Corinthians (2 Cor 7, 8). However, no theory fragmenting Second Corinthians into several letters has proved entirely convincing. A partial explanation of the degree of discontinuity and repetition in the letter would be Paul's own state of mind when he composed it. As new thoughts on the themes of his letter occurred to him, he recorded them in the hope that the outpouring of his own heart (6, 11) would ensure the community's faithfulness to him.

The Second Epistle to the Corinthians was written in Macedonia (2 Cor 2, 12f; 7, 5f; 8, 1-4; 9, 2ff), probably in the autumn of 57 A.D., during the course of Paul's third missionary journey (Acts 20, 1f).

CHAPTER 1

Greeting to the Church.† 1 Paul, by God's will an apostle of Jesus Christ, and Timothy his brother, to the church of God that is at Corinth and to all the holy ones of the church who live in Achaia. 2 Grace and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Thanksgiving after Affliction.‡ 3* Praised be God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all consolation! 4 He comforts us in all our afflictions and thus enables us to comfort those who are in trouble, with the same consolation we

---

1, 3: Eph 1, 3; 1 Pt 1, 3.

† 1f: See note on Romans 1, 1-7.

1, 3-11: Paul gives thanks to God, as he informs the Corinthians that he has been relieved of the serious troubles he experienced in the province of Asia Minor, and is now at peace. The community was evidently aware of the apostle's difficulties, but their nature is now unknown.

have received from him. <sup>5</sup>† As we have shared much in the suffering of Christ, so through Christ do we share abundantly in his consolation. <sup>6</sup> If we are afflicted it is for your encouragement and salvation, and when we are consoled it is for your consolation, so that you may endure patiently the same sufferings we endure. <sup>7</sup> Our hope for you is firm because we know that just as you share in the sufferings, so you will share in the consolation.

<sup>8</sup>* Brothers, we do not wish to leave you in the dark about the trouble we had in Asia; we were crushed beyond our strength, even to the point of despairing of life. <sup>9</sup>* We were left to feel like men condemned to death so that we might trust, not in ourselves, but in God who raises the dead. <sup>10</sup> He rescued us from that danger of death and will continue to do so. We have put our hope in him who will never cease to deliver us. <sup>11</sup>* But you must help us with your prayers, so that on our behalf God may be thanked for the gift granted us through the prayers of so many.

Paul's Sincerity.† <sup>12</sup> Conscience gives testimony to the boast that in our behavior toward all and especially toward you we have always acted from God-given holiness and candor; this has been prompted, not by debased human wisdom, but by God's goodness. <sup>13</sup> We never write anything that you cannot read and understand. I hope that, just as you know us to a certain degree already, you will in time come to know us well, <sup>14</sup> and will recognize that we shall be your boast, and you ours, on the day of our Lord Jesus.

<sup>15</sup>* Confident as I am about this, I wanted to visit you first so that a double grace might be yours. <sup>16</sup> I planned to visit you, both on my way to Macedonia and on my return, that I might receive your help on my journey to Judea. <sup>17</sup>* Do you suppose that in making those plans I was acting insincerely? Or that my plans are so determined by self-interest that I change my mind from one minute to the next? <sup>18</sup> As God keeps his word, I declare that my word to you is not "yes" one minute and "no" the next. <sup>19</sup> Jesus Christ, whom Silvanus, Timothy, and I preached to you as Son of God, was not alternately "yes" and "no"; he was never anything but "yes."<sup>20</sup> Whatever promises God has made have been fulfilled in him; therefore it is through him that we address our Amen to God when we worship together. <sup>21</sup> God is the one who firmly establishes us along with you in Christ; it is he who anointed us <sup>22</sup>*† and has sealed us, thereby depositing the first payment, the Spirit, in our hearts.

<sup>23</sup> I call on God as my witness that it was out of consideration for you that I did not come to Corinth again. <sup>24</sup> Domineering over your faith is not my purpose. I prefer to work with you toward your happiness. As regards faith, you are standing firm.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> I did decide, however, not to visit you again in painful circumstances. <sup>2</sup> For if I cause you pain, who can make me happy again but the ones I grieved? <sup>3</sup> I wrote as I did so that when I come I may not be saddened by those who should rejoice my heart. I know you all well enough to be convinced that my happiness is yours. <sup>4</sup> That is why I wrote you in great sorrow and anguish, with copious tears—not to make you sad but to help you realize the great love I bear you.

Forgiveness for the Offender.† <sup>5</sup> If anyone has given offense he has hurt not only me, but in some measure, to say no more, every one of you. <sup>6</sup> The punishment already inflicted by the majority on such a one is enough; <sup>7</sup>* you should now relent and support him so that he may not be crushed by too great a weight of sorrow. <sup>8</sup> I therefore beg you to reaffirm your love for him. <sup>9</sup> The reason I wrote you was to test you and learn whether you are obedient in all matters. <sup>10</sup> If you forgive a man anything, so do I. Any forgiving I have done has been for your sakes and, before Christ, <sup>11</sup>* to prevent Satan—whose guile we know too well—from outwitting us.

Paul's Anxiety and Relief. <sup>12</sup> When I came to Troas to preach the gospel of Christ, the door of opportunity was opened wide for me by the Lord. <sup>13</sup>* Yet I was inwardly troubled because I did not find my brother Titus there. So I said

8: Acts 20, 19.	22: Rom 5, 5; Eph
9: 4, 7; Rom 4, 17.	1, 13f; 1 Jn 2,
11: 4, 15; 9, 12.	20.
15: Phil 2, 16; 1	2, 7; Col 3, 13.
Thes 2, 19f.	11: Eph 4, 27.
17: Mt 5, 37.	13: 7, 6; Ti 1, 3.

† 1, 5: The sufferings of Paul are identified with those of Christ, for whom they are endured; the consolation he receives is shared with the Christians at Corinth.

1, 12—2, 4: Paul answers the criticism leveled against him for having twice planned and twice failed to visit the Corinthians (1, 15f). He denies that his original plan failed for any but apostolic reasons (1, 17-22), namely, lack of favorable circumstances to discharge his office peaceably. Instead of visiting the Corinthians he sent them a severe letter which caused them distress (2, 3; cf 7, 8), for it was weighted with his own anguish over the situation in their community (2, 4).

1, 22: First payment: on full messianic benefits; cf Eph 1, 13f.

2, 5-11: Some scholars believe that the person alluded to here rejected Paul's authority, thereby scandalizing many in the community. It is clear that these latter took action against him, and the apostle now recommends that the punishment be terminated.

good-bye to them and went off to Macedonia. <sup>14</sup>† Thanks be to God, who unfaithfully leads us on in Christ's triumphal train, and employs us to diffuse the fragrance of his knowledge everywhere! <sup>15</sup> We are an aroma of Christ for God's sake, both among those who are being saved and those on the way to destruction; <sup>16</sup>* to the latter an odor dealing death, to the former a breath bringing life. For such a mission as this, is anyone really qualified? <sup>17</sup> We at least are not like so many who trade on the word of God. We speak in Christ's name, pure in motivation, conscious of having been sent by God and of standing in his presence.

CHAPTER 3

Ministers of the New Covenant. <sup>1</sup> Am I beginning to speak well of myself again? Or do I need letters of recommendation to you or from you as others might? <sup>2</sup> You are my letter, known and read by all men, written on your hearts. <sup>3</sup>* Clearly you are a letter of Christ which I have delivered, a letter written not with ink but by the Spirit of the living God, not on tablets of stone but on tablets of flesh in the heart.

<sup>4</sup> This great confidence in God is ours, through Christ. <sup>5</sup>* It is not that we are entitled of ourselves to take credit for anything. Our sole credit is from God, <sup>6</sup>* who has made us qualified ministers of a new covenant, a covenant not of a written law but of spirit. The written law kills, but the Spirit gives life.

<sup>7</sup>* If the ministry of death, carved in writing on stone, was inaugurated with such glory that the Israelites could not look on Moses' face because of the glory that shone on it (even though it was a fading glory), <sup>8</sup> how much greater will be the glory of the ministry of the Spirit? <sup>9</sup> If the ministry of the covenant that condemned had glory, greater by far is the glory of the ministry that justifies. <sup>10</sup> Indeed, when you compare that limited glory with this surpassing glory, the former should be declared no glory at all. <sup>11</sup> If what was destined to pass away was given in glory, greater by far is the glory that endures.

<sup>12</sup> Our hope being such, we act with full confidence. <sup>13</sup> We are not like Moses, who used to hide his face with a veil so that the Israelites could not see the final fading of that glory. <sup>14</sup> Their minds, of course, were dulled. To this very day, when the old covenant is read the veil remains unlifted; it is only in Christ that it is taken away. <sup>15</sup>* Even now, when Moses is read a veil covers their understanding. <sup>16</sup> "But whenever he turns to the Lord, the veil will be removed." <sup>17</sup> The Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom.

<sup>18</sup>* All of us, gazing on the Lord's glory with unveiled faces, are being transformed from glory to glory into his very image by the Lord who is the Spirit.

CHAPTER 4

Treasure in Earthen Vessels. <sup>1</sup>† Because we possess this ministry through God's mercy, we do not give in to discouragement. <sup>2</sup>* Rather, we repudiate shameful, underhanded practices. We do not resort to trickery or falsify the word of God. We proclaim the truth openly and commend ourselves to every man's conscience before God. <sup>3</sup> If our gospel can be called "veiled" in any sense, it is such only for those who are headed toward destruction. <sup>4</sup>* Their unbelieving minds have been blinded by the god of the present age so that they do not see the splendor of the gospel showing forth the glory of Christ, the image of God. <sup>5</sup> It is not ourselves we preach but Christ Jesus as Lord, and ourselves as your servants for Jesus' sake. <sup>6</sup>* For God, who said, "Let light shine out of darkness," has shone in our hearts, that we in turn might make known the glory of God shining on the face of Christ. <sup>7</sup>† This treasure we possess in earthen vessels, to make it clear that its surpassing power comes from God and not from us. <sup>8</sup>* We are afflicted in every way possible, but we are not crushed; full of doubts, we never despair. <sup>9</sup> We are persecuted but never abandoned; we are struck down but never destroyed. <sup>10</sup>* Continually we carry about in our bodies the dying of Jesus, so that in our bodies the life of Jesus may also be revealed. <sup>11</sup>* While we

16: 1 Cor 1, 18.	1 Jn 3, 2.
3, 3: Ex 24, 12; Jer 31, 33; Ez 11, 19; 36, 26.	4, 2: 1 Thes 2, 4f.
5: Jn 3, 27.	4: 2 Thes 2, 10; 1 Tm 1, 11.
6: Eph 3, 7.	6: Gn 1, 3; Jn 8, 12; Heb 1, 3.
7: Ex 32, 15f; 34, 29-35.	8: 6, 4-10; 1 Cor 4, 9-13.
15: Rom 11, 7-10.	10: Col 1, 24.
18: 4, 6; Rom 8, 29.	11: 1 Cor 15, 31.

† 2, 14-4, 18: Paul wishes to convince the Corinthians that his actions toward them were motivated, not by selfish reasons, but by apostolic concern. This leads him to a series of reflections on the apostolic office: his effectiveness as an apostle derives from Christ (2, 14-17); his achievements are supported by the Holy Spirit (3, 1ff); his qualifications for the apostolate are gifts of God; and his ministry of the justifying power of God is superior to that of the Mosaic covenant (3, 4-11). The apostle knows that his work is to result in the permanent presence of Christ among men through the power of the Holy Spirit (3, 13-18).

4, 1-6: The power of the gospel is divine; the apostle, therefore, has no need to modify it to make it acceptable to men (1f). It is men who blind themselves to the light of Christ (3-6).

4, 7-12: The apostle's sufferings reenact the life of Jesus, both as a sign and as an instrument of the divine life he ministers to men.

live we are constantly being delivered to death for Jesus' sake, so that the life of Jesus may be revealed in our mortal flesh. <sup>12</sup> Death is at work in us, but life in you. <sup>13*</sup>† We have that spirit of faith of which the Scripture says, "Because I believed, I spoke out." We believe and so we speak, <sup>14*</sup> knowing that he who raised up the Lord Jesus will raise us up along with Jesus and place both us and you in his presence. <sup>15</sup> Indeed, everything is ordered to your benefit, so that the grace bestowed in abundance may bring greater glory to God because they who give thanks are many.

Living by Faith.† <sup>16</sup> We do not lose heart, because our inner being is renewed each day even though our body is being destroyed at the same time. <sup>17*</sup> The present burden of our trial is light enough, and earns for us an eternal weight of glory beyond all comparison. <sup>18*</sup> We do not fix our gaze on what is seen but on what is unseen. What is seen is transitory; what is unseen lasts forever.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1*</sup> Indeed, we know that when the earthly tent in which we dwell is destroyed we have a dwelling provided for us by God, a dwelling in the heavens, not made by hands but to last forever. <sup>2*</sup> We groan while we are here, even as we yearn to have our heavenly habitation envelop us. <sup>3*</sup> This it will, provided we are found clothed and not naked. <sup>4</sup> While we live in our present tent we groan; we are weighed down because we do not wish to be stripped naked but rather to have the heavenly dwelling envelop us, so that what is mortal may be absorbed by life. <sup>5*</sup> God has fashioned us for this very thing and has given us the Spirit as a pledge of it.

<sup>6†</sup> Therefore, we continue to be confident. We know that while we dwell in the body we are away from the Lord. <sup>7</sup> We walk by faith, not by sight. <sup>8*</sup> I repeat, we are full of confidence and would much rather be away from the body and at home with the Lord. <sup>9*</sup> This being so, we make it our aim to please him whether we are with him or away from him. <sup>10*</sup> The lives of all of us are to be revealed before the tribunal of Christ so that each one may receive his recompense, good or bad, according to his life in the body.

Ministry of Reconciliation.† <sup>11</sup> Standing in awe of the Lord we try to persuade men, but what we are is known to God. I hope that it is also known to you in your consciences. <sup>12*</sup> We shall not begin to recommend ourselves to you again, but we are giving you an opportunity to boast about us so that you may have something to say to those who take pride in external appearances, and not in what lies in the heart. <sup>13</sup> Indeed, if we are ever caught up out of ourselves, God is the reason; and when we are brought back to our senses, it is for your sakes. <sup>14</sup> The love of Christ impels us who have reached the conviction that since one died for all, all died. <sup>15*</sup> He died for all so that those who live might live no longer for themselves, but for him who for their sakes died and was raised up.

<sup>16</sup> Because of this we no longer look on anyone in terms of mere human judgment. If at one time we so regarded Christ, we no longer know him by this standard. <sup>17*</sup> This means that if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation. The old order has passed away; now all is new! <sup>18</sup> All this has been done by God, who has reconciled us to himself through Christ and has given us the ministry of reconciliation. <sup>19*</sup> I mean that God, in Christ, was reconciling the world to himself, not counting men's transgressions against them, and that he has entrusted the message of reconciliation to us. <sup>20</sup> This makes us ambassadors for Christ, God as it were appealing through us. We implore you, in Christ's name:

13: Ps 116, 10.	5: 1, 22.
14: Rom 8, 11.	8: Rom 8, 24; Phil 1, 21ff.
17: Mt 5, 11f; Rom 8, 18.	9: Mt 25, 31f.
18: Rom 8, 24f; Heb 11, 1.	10: Rom 14, 10.
5, 1: Is 38, 12.	12: Phil 1, 26.
2: Rom 8, 23; Col 3, 3f.	15: Rom 6, 4-11; 14, 9.
3: 1 Cor 15, 51ff; 1 Thes 4, 15.	17: Is 43, 19; Eph 2, 10; Rv 21, 5.
	19: Jn 3, 17.

† 4, 13f: Paul lives through faith in his own future resurrection and that of his fellow Christians. He . . . will raise us up: this may imply that Paul did not expect to be alive at the parousia; cf 1 Cor 15, 51-55.

4, 16ff: Though the apostle's physical forces are being spent, his soul is renewed daily through living the Christ life and meriting that transformation of soul and body after death in which transitory realities are exchanged for those that are eternal; cf 1 Cor 15, 42ff.

5, 6-9: Paul comforts himself with the thought that his present existence is in a sense an exile from Christ, whereas death brings life with Christ through the possession of heavenly glory.

5, 11-6, 14: Paul trusts that his dispositions, known to God, may also be recognized by the Corinthians whom he serves, so that they in turn can answer his critics (5, 11f). In his dealings with people, he is motivated by love for Christ (5, 14). To delve into his past might reveal that he once entertained mistaken ideas about the Savior (5, 16). This may be the meaning of looking upon Christ in terms of mere human judgment. But the apostle, like other Christians, is also a new man; reconciled to God through Christ, he is given the special mission of serving as Christ's ambassador, the essential purpose of his own personal renewal by God (5, 17-21). His mission is to appeal to men to accept God's salvation in Christ (6, 10), a task he tries to perform with the greatest possible discretion. The attempt nevertheless produces personal hardships and social upheavals, even though all that he strives to offer is God's word and power (6, 3-10). In conclusion, Paul asks of the Corinthians that they be as open to him in acceptance of his ministry as he has been frank and loving toward them (6, 11f; cf 7, 2).

be reconciled to God! <sup>21*</sup> For our sakes God made him who did not know sin, to be sin, so that in him we might become the very holiness of God.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> As your fellow workers we beg you not to receive the grace of God in vain. <sup>2*</sup> For he says, "In an acceptable time I have heard you; on a day of salvation I have helped you." Now is the acceptable time! Now is the day of salvation! <sup>3*</sup> We avoid giving anyone offense, so that our ministry may not be blamed. <sup>4*</sup> On the contrary, in all that we do we strive to present ourselves as ministers of God, acting with patient endurance amid trials, difficulties, distresses, <sup>5</sup> beatings, imprisonments, and riots; as men familiar with hard work, sleepless nights, and fastings; <sup>6*</sup> conducting ourselves with innocence, knowledge, and patience, in the Holy Spirit, in sincere love <sup>7*</sup> as men with the message of truth and the power of God; wielding the weapons of righteousness with right hand and left, <sup>8</sup> whether honored or dishonored, spoken of well or ill. We are called impostors, yet we are truthful; <sup>9*</sup> nobodies who in fact are well known; dead, yet here we are, alive; punished, but not put to death; <sup>10</sup> sorrowful, though we are always rejoicing; poor, yet we enrich many. We seem to have nothing, yet everything is ours!

<sup>11*</sup> Men of Corinth, we have spoken to you frankly, opening our hearts wide to you. <sup>12</sup> There is no lack of room for you in us; the narrowness is in you. <sup>13*</sup> In fair exchange, then (I speak as a father to his children), open wide your hearts!

The Temple of the Living God.† <sup>14</sup> Do not yoke yourselves in a mismatch with unbelievers. After all, what do righteousness and lawlessness have in common, or what fellowship can light have with darkness? <sup>15</sup> What accord is there between Christ and Belial, what common lot between believer and unbeliever? <sup>16*</sup> Tell me what agreement there is between the temple of God and idols. You are the temple of the living God, just as God has said:

"I will dwell with them and walk among them.

I will be their God
and they shall be my people.

<sup>17*</sup> Therefore, 'Come out from among them and separate yourselves from them,' says the Lord;
'and touch nothing unclean.

<sup>18*</sup> I will welcome you and be a father to you and you will be my sons and daughters,' says the Lord Almighty."

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> Since we have these promises, beloved, let us purify ourselves from every defilement of flesh and spirit, and in the fear of God strive to fulfill our consecration perfectly.

Joy over Repentance. <sup>2</sup> Make room for us in your hearts! We have injured no one, we have corrupted no one, we have cheated no one. <sup>3*</sup> I do not condemn you. I have already said that you are in our hearts, even to the sharing of death and life together. <sup>4</sup> I speak to you with utter frankness and boast much about you. I am filled with consolation, and despite my many afflictions my joy knows no bounds.

<sup>5†</sup> When I arrived in Macedonia I was restless and exhausted. I was under all kinds of stress—quarrels with others and fears within myself. <sup>6</sup> But God, who gives heart to those who are low in spirit, gave me strength with the arrival of Titus. <sup>7</sup> This he did, not only by his arrival but by the reinforcement Titus had already received from you; for he reported your longing, your grief, and your ardent concern for me, so that my joy is greater still. <sup>8*</sup> If I saddened you by my letter I have no regrets. Or if I did feel some regret (because I understand that the letter caused you grief for a time), I am happy once again; <sup>9</sup> not because you were saddened, but because your sadness led to repentance. You were filled with a sorrow that came from God; thus you did not suffer any loss from us. <sup>10</sup> Indeed, sorrow for God's sake produces a repentance without regrets, leading to salvation, whereas worldly sorrow brings death. <sup>11</sup> Just look at the fruit of this sorrow which stems from God. What a measure of holy zeal it has brought you, not to speak of readiness to defend yourselves! What indignation, fear, and longing! What ardent desire to restore the balance of justice!

- |                        |                       |
|------------------------|-----------------------|
| 21: Is 53, 6-9; Gal 3, | 11: 7, 3.             |
| 13; 1 Pt 2, 24;        | 13: Gal 4, 19         |
| 1 Jn 3, 5.             | 16: Lv 26, 12; Ez 37, |
| 6, 2: Is 49, 8.        | 27, 1 Cor 3, 17;      |
| 3: 8, 21.              | 6, 19.                |
| 4: 4, 8ff; 1 Cor 4,    | 17: Is 52, 11.        |
| 9-13.                  | 18: Jer 31, 9.        |
| 6: Gal 5, 22.          | 7, 3: 6, 11-13.       |
| 7: Eph 6, 11.          | 8: Heb 12, 11.        |
| 9: 4, 11.              |                       |

† 6, 14-17, 1: It is difficult to account for this passage in the present context. It has similarities with the Qumran literature, and may be an excerpt of a lost Pauline epistle.

7, 5-16: Paul resumes the thought from which he had digressed in 2, 13, completing the account of his meeting with Titus to discuss the community's reaction to his severe letter; see note on 1, 12-2, 4. He expresses genuine satisfaction over the steps they have taken to correct what he had found objectionable in their conduct. The joy of Titus over their response to the apostle's admonitions pleases Paul all the more and justifies his complete trust in them.

In every way you have displayed your innocence in this matter. <sup>12</sup> Therefore, my writing to you was not intended for the man who had given the offense or for the one offended, but to make plain in the sight of God the devotion you have for us. <sup>13</sup> This done, we are comforted.

Beyond this consolation, we have rejoiced even more at the joy of Titus because his mind has been set at rest by all of you. <sup>14</sup> For though I had boasted to him about you, I was not put to shame. Rather, just as everything I ever said to you was true, so my boasting to Titus has been proved equally true. <sup>15</sup> His heart embraces you with an expanding love as he recalls the obedience you showed to God when you received him in fear and trembling. <sup>16</sup> I rejoice because I trust you utterly.

CHAPTER 8

Liberal Giving. <sup>1</sup> † Brothers, I should like you to know of the grace of God conferred on the churches of Macedonia. <sup>2</sup> In the midst of severe trial their overflowing joy and deep poverty have produced an abundant generosity. <sup>3</sup> According to their means—indeed I can testify even beyond their means—and voluntarily, <sup>4</sup> they begged us insistently for the favor of sharing in this service to members of the church. <sup>5</sup> Beyond our hopes they first gave themselves to God and then to us by the will of God. <sup>6</sup> That is why I have exhorted Titus, who had already begun this work of charity among you, to bring it to successful completion: <sup>7</sup> that just as you are rich in every respect, in faith and discourse, in knowledge, in total concern, and in the love we bear you, so may you abound in this charity.

<sup>8</sup> I am not giving an order but simply testing your generous love against the concern which others show. <sup>9</sup> You are well acquainted with the favor shown you by our Lord Jesus Christ: how for your sake he made himself poor though he was rich, so that you might become rich by his poverty. <sup>10</sup> I am about to give you some advice on this matter of rich and poor. It will help you who began this good work last year, not only to carry it through, but to do so willingly. <sup>11</sup> Carry it through now to a successful completion, so that your ready resolve may be matched by giving according to your means. <sup>12</sup> The willingness to give should accord with one's means, not go beyond them. <sup>13</sup> The relief of others ought not to impoverish you; there should be a certain equality. <sup>14</sup> Your plenty at the present time should supply their need so that their surplus may one day supply your need, with equality as the result. <sup>15</sup> It is written, "He who gathered much had no excess and he who gathered little had no lack."

Titus and His Companions. <sup>16</sup> Thanks be to God, who has put an equal zeal for you in the heart of Titus! <sup>17</sup> Not only did he welcome our appeal, but being very eager he has gone to you freely. <sup>18</sup> We have sent along with him that brother whom all the churches praise for his preaching of the gospel. <sup>19</sup> He has been appointed our traveling companion by the churches, as we willingly carry on this work of charity for the glory of the Lord. <sup>20</sup> There is one thing I wish to avoid, namely any blame over my handling of this generous collection. <sup>21</sup> We are concerned not only for God's approval but also for the good esteem of men. <sup>22</sup> We have sent along that brother whose eagerness has been proved to us in many ways. He is now more eager than ever for this work because of his great trust in you. <sup>23</sup> As for Titus, he is my companion and fellow worker in your behalf; our brothers too are apostles of the churches, the glory of Christ. <sup>24</sup> Therefore, show these men the proof of your love, and why we boast about you, for all the churches to see.

CHAPTER 9

The Offering for the Saints. <sup>1</sup> There is really no need for me to write you about this collection for the members of the church. <sup>2</sup> I already know your willingness, and boast about you to the Macedonians with respect to it, saying that Achaia has been ready since last year. Your zeal has stirred up most of them. <sup>3</sup> I nonetheless send the brothers so that our claims for you in this regard may not be shown empty. I do so that you may be ready, as I have been saying you are, <sup>4</sup> lest any Macedonians come with me and find you unready; then I should be put to shame—to say nothing of you—for having had this trust. <sup>5</sup> I have thought it necessary to exhort the brothers to go to you and arrange in advance for the bountiful gift you have already promised. It should be ready as a gracious gift, not as an exaction.

---

8, 1: 11, 6f.	15: Ex 16, 18.
7: 1 Cor 1, 5.	18: 12, 18.
9: Mt 8, 20; Phil 2, 6f.	21: Rom 12, 17.

---

† 8, 1—9, 15: See note on 1 Corinthians 16, 1 concerning the collection spoken of here. No doubt the conflicts in Corinth to which this letter alludes were responsible for delaying this collection (8, 10). Paul here presents certain motives to the community for completing it: they are to emulate the generosity of the Macedonians (8, 1-5) and imitate the poverty of Christ (8, 9); they too may at some time need the charity of others (8, 14). Paul plans to visit them and convey the generous fruit of their charity to the community in Jerusalem. Not only will it supply the needs of that church; it will be the cause of their giving thanks and glory to God and of obtaining God's favor for themselves (9, 6-15).

<sup>6*</sup> Let me say this much: He who sows sparingly will reap sparingly, and he who sows bountifully will reap bountifully. <sup>7</sup> Everyone must give according to what he has inwardly decided; not sadly, not grudgingly, for God loves a cheerful giver. <sup>8</sup> God can multiply his favors among you so that you may always have enough of everything and even a surplus for good works, <sup>9*</sup> as it is written:

"He scattered abroad and gave to the poor, his justice endures forever."

<sup>10</sup> He who supplies seed for the sower and bread for the eater will provide in abundance; he will multiply the seed you sow and increase your generous yield.

<sup>11</sup> In every way your liberality is enriched; through us it results in thanks offered to God. <sup>12</sup> The administering of this public benefit not only supplies the needs of the members of the church but also overflows in much gratitude to God. <sup>13</sup> Because of your praiseworthy service they are glorifying God for your obedient faith in the gospel of Christ, and for your generosity in sharing with them and with all. <sup>14</sup> They pray for you longingly because of the surpassing grace God has given you. <sup>15</sup> Thanks be to God for his indescribable gift!

CHAPTER 10

Paul Defends His Ministry.† <sup>1</sup> I, Paul, exhort you by the meekness and kindness of Christ, I who (you say) when present in your midst am lowly, but when absent am bold toward you. <sup>2*</sup> I beg you that when I am there, I may not have to act boldly, with that assurance I might dare to use courageously against certain ones who accuse us of weak human behavior. <sup>3</sup> We do indeed live in the body but we do not wage war with human resources. <sup>4*</sup> The weapons of our warfare are not merely human. They possess God's power for the destruction of strongholds. We demolish sophistries <sup>5</sup> and every proud pretension that raises itself against the knowledge of God; we likewise bring every thought into captivity to make it obedient to Christ. <sup>6</sup> We are ready to punish disobedience in anyone else once your own obedience is perfect.

<sup>7</sup> You view things superficially. If anyone is convinced that he belongs to Christ, let him reflect on this: he may belong to Christ but just as much do we. <sup>8*</sup> If I find I must make a few further claims about the power the Lord has given us for your upbuilding and not for your destruction, this will not embarrass me in the least. <sup>9</sup> At the same time, I do not wish to intimidate you with my letters. <sup>10</sup> His letters, they say, are severe and forceful, but when he is here in person he is unimpressive and his word makes no great impact. <sup>11</sup> Well, let such people give this some thought, that what we are by word, in the letters during our absence, that we mean to be in action when we are present.

<sup>12*</sup> We are not so bold, of course, as to classify or compare ourselves with certain people who recommend themselves. Since people like that are their own appraisers, comparing themselves with one another, they only demonstrate their ignorance. <sup>13</sup> When we make claims we will not go over the mark but will stay within the bounds the God of moderation has set for us—leading us to you. <sup>14</sup> We are not overreaching ourselves, as we should be doing if we had not bothered to come to you. But indeed we did get as far as you with the gospel of Christ. <sup>15</sup> We do not boast immoderately of the work of others; we hope that as your faith grows our influence may also grow among you and overflow. <sup>16</sup> Following the rule laid down for us, we hope to preach the gospel even beyond your borders without having to boast of work already done by another in his allotted territory. <sup>17*</sup> "Let him who would boast, boast in the Lord." <sup>18</sup> It is not the man who recommends himself who is approved but the man whom the Lord recommends.

CHAPTER 11

Paul and the False Apostles.† <sup>1</sup> You must endure a little of my folly. Put up with me, I beg you! <sup>2*</sup> I am jealous of you with the jealousy of God himself, since I have given you in marriage to one husband, presenting you as a chaste virgin to Christ. <sup>3*</sup> My fear is that, just as the serpent seduced Eve by his cunning

9, 6: Prv 11, 24f.	8: 13, 10.
9: Ps 112, 9.	12: 3, 1.
10, 2: 1 Cor 4, 21.	17: 1 Cor 1, 31.
4: 1 Cor 1, 25; Eph 6, 11.	11, 2: Eph 5, 27.
	3: Gn 3, 4.

† 10, 1-18: Since Paul's previous tone of gentleness changes in chapters 10 through 13 to one of aggressive criticism, some scholars conclude that these chapters belong to a lost Pauline epistle, probably the severe letter; see note on 2 Corinthians 7, 5-16. The background to these chapters is the criticism directed against Paul by people whom he names super-apostles (11, 5, 12, 11). He appeals to the community to take the proper steps to safeguard his authority, otherwise he will exercise it personally and fully (10, 1-11). He observes that the disturbers of the community are self-praisers, boasting of work which not they, but others, have accomplished. To be approved requires recommendation by God, not by oneself (10, 12-18).

11, 1-15: Paul sees in the work of the super-apostles a threat to the purity of the gospel as he preached it to Corinthians (1-6). He regards his own selflessness in the ministry as worthy of a hearing against the conduct of those whom he now designates as false apostles (7-15).

ning, your thoughts may be corrupted and you may fall away from your sincere and complete devotion to Christ. <sup>4*</sup> I say this because, when someone comes preaching another Jesus than the one we preached, or when you receive a different spirit than the one you have received, or a gospel other than the gospel you accepted, you seem to endure it quite well. <sup>5*</sup> I consider myself inferior to the "super-apostles" in nothing. <sup>6*</sup> I may be unskilled in speech but I know that I am not lacking in knowledge. We have made this evident to you in every conceivable way.

<sup>7*</sup> Could I have done wrong when I preached the gospel of God to you free of charge, humbling myself with a view to exalting you? <sup>8*</sup> I robbed other churches, I accepted support from them in order to minister to you. <sup>9</sup> When I was with you and in want I was a burden to none of you, for the brothers who came from Macedonia supplied my needs. In every way possible I kept myself from being burdensome to you, and I shall continue to do so. <sup>10</sup> I swear by the Christ who is in me that this boast of mine will not cease in the regions of Achaia! <sup>11</sup> Why? Because I do not love you? God knows I do. <sup>12</sup> What I am doing I shall continue to do, depriving at every turn those who look for a chance to say that in their much-vaunted ministry they work on the same terms as we do. <sup>13</sup> Such men are false apostles. They practice deceit in their disguise as apostles of Christ. <sup>14</sup> And little wonder! For even Satan disguises himself as an angel of light. <sup>15</sup> It comes as no surprise that his ministers disguise themselves as ministers of the justice of God. But their end will correspond to their deeds.

Paul's Sufferings as an Apostle. <sup>16†</sup> I repeat: let no one think me foolish. But if you do, then accept me as a fool all the way and let me do a little boasting. <sup>17</sup> What I am about to say in this self-assured boasting, I speak not as the Lord desires but after the manner of a fool. <sup>18</sup> Since many are bragging about their human distinctions, I too will boast. <sup>19*</sup> Being wise yourselves, you gladly put up with fools. <sup>20</sup> You even put up with those who exploit you, who impose upon you and put on airs, with those who slap your face. <sup>21</sup> To my shame I must confess that we have been too weak to do such things. But what anyone else dares to claim—I speak with absolute foolishness now—I, too, will dare. <sup>22*</sup> Are they Hebrews? So am I! Are they Israelites? So am I! Are they the seed of Abraham? So am I! <sup>23</sup> Are they ministers of Christ? Now I am really talking like a fool—I am more: with my many more labors and imprisonments, with far worse beatings and frequent brushes with death. <sup>24*</sup> Five times at the hands of the Jews I received forty lashes less one; <sup>25*</sup> three times I was beaten with rods; I was stoned once, shipwrecked three times; I passed a day and a night on the sea. <sup>26</sup> I traveled continually, endangered by floods, robbers, my own people, the Gentiles; imperiled in the city, in the desert, at sea, by false brothers; <sup>27*</sup> enduring labor, hardship, many sleepless nights; in hunger and thirst and frequent fastings, in cold and nakedness. <sup>28</sup> Leaving other sufferings unmentioned, there is that daily tension pressing on me, my anxiety for all the churches. <sup>29*</sup> Who is weak that I am not affected by it? Who is scandalized that I am not aflame with indignation? <sup>30</sup> If I must boast, I will make a point of my weaknesses. <sup>31</sup> The God and Father of the Lord Jesus knows—blessed be he forever—that I do not lie. <sup>32*</sup> In Damascus the ethnarch of King Aretas was keeping a close watch on the city in order to arrest me, <sup>33</sup> but I was lowered in a basket through a window in the wall and escaped his hands.

CHAPTER 12

Visions and Revelations. <sup>1</sup> I must go on boasting, however useless it may be, and speak of visions and revelations of the Lord. <sup>2*</sup> I know a man in Christ who, fourteen years ago, whether he was in or outside his body I cannot say, only God can say—a man who was snatched up to the third heaven. <sup>3</sup> I know that this man—whether in or outside his body I do not know, God knows—<sup>4</sup> was snatched up to Paradise to hear words which cannot be uttered, words which no man may speak. <sup>5</sup> About this man I will boast; but I will do no boasting about myself unless it be about my weaknesses. <sup>6</sup> And even if I were to boast it would not be folly in me because I would only be telling the truth.

<sup>7*</sup> But I refrain, lest anyone think

4: Gal 1, 6-9.	16, 22.
5: 12, 11.	25: Acts 14, 19.
6: 1 Cor 2, 1-5.	27: 1 Cor 4, 11.
7: Acts 18, 3; 1 Cor 9, 18.	29: 1 Cor 9, 22.
8: 1 Cor 9, 15.	32: Acts 9, 24.
19: 3, 1.	12, 2: Acts 9, 3.
22: Acts 22, 3; Rom 11, 1.	7: Nm 33, 55; Ez 28, 24; Mt 26, 39.42.44.
24: Dt 25, 2f; Acts

† 11, 16—12, 10: Since the false apostles have thrilled the community with accounts of their achievements, Paul will boast of his sufferings and humiliations (16-33). If they seek from Paul evidence of unique religious experiences, his have been so extraordinary as to be incapable of expression in words (12, 1-5). To keep him humble despite his unique visions, God gave Paul a special affliction, a thorn in the flesh (12, 7)—whether a disease or a spiritual affliction is not certain (12, 7-10). If his phrase is an echo of Nm 33, 55 or Ez 28, 24, the thorn is the "super-apostles."

CHAPTER 13

more of me than what he sees in me or hears from my lips. As to the extraordinary revelations, in order that I might not become conceited I was given a thorn in the flesh, an angel of Satan to beat me and keep me from getting proud. <sup>8*</sup> Three times I begged the Lord that this might leave me. <sup>9</sup> He said to me, "My grace is enough for you, for in weakness power reaches perfection." And so I willingly boast of my weaknesses instead, that the power of Christ may rest upon me.

<sup>10*</sup> Therefore I am content with weakness, with mistreatment, with distress, with persecutions and difficulties for the sake of Christ; for when I am powerless, it is then that I am strong.

Concern for the Corinthian Church. <sup>11</sup> What a fool I have become! You have driven me to it. You are the ones who should have been commending me. Even though I am nothing, I am in no way inferior to the "super-apostles." <sup>12*</sup> Indeed, I have performed among you with great patience the signs that show the apostle, signs and wonders and deeds of power. <sup>13</sup> In what way are you inferior to the other churches except in this, that I was no burden to you? Forgive me this injustice! <sup>14</sup> This is the third time that I am about to visit you, and I am not going to burden you; for I do not want what you have, I only want you. Children should not save up for their parents, but parents for children. <sup>15</sup> I will gladly spend myself and be spent for your sakes. If I love you too much, will I be loved the less for that? <sup>16</sup> Granted that I did not burden you—but being crafty, you say, I caught you by guile. <sup>17</sup> Did I ever take advantage of you through any of the men I sent to you? <sup>18</sup> I urged Titus to go to you, and I sent the other brother with him. Did Titus take advantage of you in any way? Did we not act in the one spirit, walk in the same footsteps?

<sup>19</sup> Do you think throughout this recital that I am defending myself to you? Before God I tell you, in Christ, I have done everything to build you up, my dear ones. <sup>20</sup> I fear that when I come I may not find you to my liking, nor may you find me to yours. I fear I may find discord, jealousy, outbursts of anger, selfish ambitions, slander and gossip, self-importance, disorder. <sup>21</sup> I fear that when I come again my God may humiliate me before you, and I may have to mourn over the many who sinned earlier and have not repented of the uncleanness, fornication, and sensuality they practiced.

Final Warnings. <sup>1*</sup> This is the third time I shall be coming to you. "A judicial fact shall be established only on the testimony of two or three witnesses." <sup>2</sup> I said before when I was there the second time—and I repeat it now in my absence—to those who sinned before and to all the rest, that if I come again I shall not spare you. <sup>3</sup> You are, after all, looking for a proof of the Christ who speaks in me. He is not weak in dealing with you, but is powerful in you. <sup>4*</sup> It is true he was crucified out of weakness, but he lives by the power of God. We too are weak in him, but we live with him by God's power in us. <sup>5</sup> Test yourselves to see whether you are living in faith; examine yourselves. Perhaps you yourselves do not realize that Christ Jesus is in you—unless, of course, you have failed the challenge. <sup>6</sup> I hope you will understand that we have not failed. <sup>7</sup> We pray God that you may do no evil—not in order that we may appear approved but simply that you may do what is good, even though we may seem to have failed. <sup>8</sup> We cannot do anything against the truth, but only for the sake of the truth. <sup>9</sup> We even rejoice when we are weak and you are strong. Our prayer is that you may be built up to completion.

Farewell. <sup>10*</sup> I am writing in this way while away from you, so that when I am with you, I may not have to exercise with severity the authority the Lord has given me—authority to build up rather than to destroy. <sup>11</sup> And now, brothers, I must say good-bye. Mend your ways. Encourage one another. Live in harmony and peace, and the God of love and peace will be with you. <sup>12*</sup> Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the holy ones send greetings to you. <sup>13</sup> The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all!

- |                          |                   |
|--------------------------|-------------------|
| 8: 4, 7,                 | 16: Jn 8, 17,     |
| 10: Phil 4, 13,          | Heb 10, 28,       |
| 12: Rom 15, 19; 1        | 4: Rom 8, 11.     |
| Thes 1, 5,               | 10: 10, 8,        |
| 13, 1: Dt 19, 15; Mt 18, | 12: 1 Cor 16, 20. |

† 12, 11-21: Paul recalls to the minds of the Corinthians the kind of apostle he showed himself in their midst (11-15). He indicates the absurdity of the false apostles' suggestion that he and Titus took no support from the community in order to gain control of it more easily (16ff). His aim has been, not to defend himself, but to keep the community faithful to the teaching of Christ (19ff).

13, 1-10: The apostle's final appeal is that the community correct the evils within it through an examination of its own conscience. This will preclude the disagreeable necessity of his taking severe action against them.

TO THE GALATIANS

Until the nineteenth century it was assumed that the Epistle to the Galatians was addressed to Christian communities which Paul founded in the interior of Asia Minor on his second missionary journey (Acts 16, 6) and visited on his third (Acts 18, 23). The epistle would then have been written at some time during these journeys between the years 52 and 57. Since the last century, however, many scholars have advanced what is called the South Galatian theory, contending that the epistle was actually written to the communities founded on Paul's first missionary journey in the area of Asia Minor extending from the seacoast inland (Acts 13, 13—14, 27). This premise has also been adopted here. If valid, it places the epistle among Paul's earliest writings, possibly in 48 A.D., or even before, but more probably after the Council of Jerusalem, 49 or 50 A.D. The meeting with James, Cephas, and John on which Paul reports in 2, 1-10 would then be the meeting described by Luke in Acts 15 as the Council itself.

The background facts regarding the Epistle to the Galatians provide a needed explanation of the complex data relative to it in the epistle itself and in Acts. They help to account for the passionate intensity with which Galatians is written.

Paul shows no knowledge of any limitation of the freedom of Gentile Christians in respect to Mosaic law (2, 9). This suggests that Luke's account of the Council of Jerusalem in which that freedom is limited by the provisions of the apostolic decree (Acts 15, 23-29) is a theological construct. After Paul had left Galatia, Judaeo-Christians from Jerusalem came there, and urged the Galatian communities to adopt the practices of the Mosaic law. The "false claimants to the title of brother" (2, 4), as Paul names these preachers who followed him, did not reject Christ as Savior in favor of the law. But, holding to the Christian doctrine of his central role, they nevertheless advocated the law as a highly beneficial addition to Christian living, and appealed for precedent to the actual practice in Palestine under Cephas (2, 1-10). They made light of Paul's apostolic role, holding him to be less informed than the Twelve (1, 11-24) because he had not been a disciple of Jesus during the ministry. They succeeded in disturbing and confusing the consciences of the Galatians, who were tending more and more to follow their teaching as a surer way of salvation (3, 1).

This subtle form of religiosity evoked from Paul a resounding declaration of the true nature of justification by faith in Christ, which frees the conscience from the Mosaic law as a principle of man's justice before God. The process thus begun in Galatians, of reflecting intensively on the meaning of the Christian gospel, eventually led Paul to his more far-reaching and profound exposition in the Epistle to the Romans.

The Epistle to the Galatians is divided as follows:

- I: Introduction (1, 1-10)
- II: Paul's Defense of His Authority and Doctrine (1, 11—2, 21)
- III: Christian Faith and Liberty (3, 1—4, 31)
- IV: Exhortation to Christian Living (5, 1—6, 10)
- V: Conclusion (6, 11-18)

---

I: INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER 1

Greetings.† 1* Paul, an apostle sent not by men or by any man, but by Jesus Christ and God his Father who raised him from the dead—<sup>2</sup> I and my brothers who are with me send greetings to the churches in Galatia. <sup>3</sup> We wish you the favor and peace of God our Father and of the Lord Jesus Christ, ** who gave himself for our sins, to rescue us from the present evil age, as our God and Father willed—<sup>5</sup> to him be glory for endless ages. Amen.

---

1, 1: 1, 1ff.

† 1, 1-5: Together with his customary greeting (see note on Rom 1, 1-7), Paul abruptly introduces the two main topics of the epistle: the authenticity of his apostolic office (1ff) and the doctrine of justification through faith rather than through observance of the law. Alluding to the Judaizers, i.e., Judaeo-Christians who have attempted to introduce traditional Jewish observances into the Galatian churches (cf 2, 4), he reminds the Galatians of his direct appointment to the office of apostle by Christ (1). He reaffirms what he had previously preached to them, that Christ's sacrificial death alone saves from sin (4).

Reproof for Disloyalty.† <sup>6</sup> I am amazed that you are so soon deserting him who called you in accord with his gracious design in Christ, and are going over to another gospel. <sup>7</sup> But there is no other. Some who wish to alter the gospel of Christ must have confused you. <sup>8</sup> For even if we, or an angel from heaven, should preach to you a gospel not in accord with the one we delivered to you, let a curse be upon him! <sup>9</sup> I repeat what I have just said: if anyone preaches a gospel to you other than the one you received, let a curse be upon him!

<sup>10</sup> Whom would you say I am trying to please at this point—men or God? Is this how I seek to ingratiate myself with men? If I were trying to win man's approval, I would surely not be serving Christ!

II: PAUL'S DEFENSE OF HIS AUTHORITY AND DOCTRINE

Called by Christ.† <sup>11</sup> I assure you, brothers, the gospel I proclaimed to you is no mere human invention. <sup>12</sup> I did not receive it from any man, nor was I schooled in it. It came by revelation from Jesus Christ. <sup>13</sup> You have heard, I know, the story of my former way of life in Judaism. You know that I went to extremes in persecuting the church of God and tried to destroy it; <sup>14</sup> I made progress in Jewish observance far beyond most of my contemporaries, in my excess of zeal to live out all the traditions of my ancestors.

<sup>15</sup> But the time came when he who had set me apart before I was born and called me by his favor <sup>16</sup> chose to reveal his Son to me, that I might spread among the Gentiles the good tidings concerning him. Immediately, without seeking human advisers <sup>17</sup> or even going to Jerusalem to see those who were apostles before me, I went off to Arabia; later I returned to Damascus. <sup>18</sup> Three years after that I went up to Jerusalem to get to know Cephas, with whom I stayed fifteen days. <sup>19</sup> I did not meet any other apostles except James, the brother of the Lord. <sup>20</sup> I declare before God that what I have just written is true.

<sup>21</sup> Thereafter I entered the regions of Syria and Cilicia. <sup>22</sup> The communities of Christ in Judea had no idea what I looked like; <sup>23</sup> they had only heard that "he who was formerly persecuting us is now preaching the faith he tried to destroy," <sup>24</sup> and they gave glory to God on my account.

CHAPTER 2

The Council of Jerusalem.† <sup>1</sup> Then, after fourteen years, I went up to Jerusalem again with Barnabas, this time taking Titus with me. <sup>2</sup> I went prompted by a revelation, and I laid out for their scrutiny the gospel as I present it to the Gentiles—all this in private conference with the leaders, to make sure the course I was pursuing, or had pursued, was not useless. <sup>3</sup> Not even Titus, who was with me, was ordered to undergo circumcision, despite his being a Greek. <sup>4</sup> Certain false claimants to the title of brother were smuggled in; they wormed their way into the group to spy on the freedom we enjoy in Christ Jesus and thereby to 4: 2, 20, 1 Tm 2, 6.	14: Acts 26, 4f.

6: 2 Cor 11, 4.	15: Is 49, 1; Lk 1, 15.
10: 1 Thes 2, 4.	16: 2, 7; Acts 9, 3-19.
11: 1, 1.	17: Acts 9, 23-30.
12: Eph 3, 3.
13: Acts 8, 1ff.

†

1, 6-10: To impress upon the Galatians the doctrinal seriousness of their inclination to combine the practices of Judaism as saving acts with their faith in Christ, Paul calls this teaching another gospel, i.e., a doctrine of salvation substantially different from authentic Christian teaching (v 6), and declares that the Judaeo-Christians responsible for introducing it into the Galatian communities are to be condemned (v 9). The Judaizers have alleged that Paul originally refrained from teaching the Galatians the practices of Judaism in order to win them over more easily, the charge is now refuted, for he has made it clear that he will not compromise even with his fellow Jewish-Christians (v 10).

1, 11-24: The gospel I proclaimed: this is shown to be the common possession of all the apostles including himself (see note on v 4). It was an understanding of the meaning of Christ's death in the order of salvation, divinely granted to Paul (11), which led him to surrender his early career in Judaism (13f). Once he received this understanding of Christ and the apostolic office, he deemed it unnecessary to confer with the other apostles. Instead he went into retirement for a time (15f). When, three years later, he spent two weeks with Peter in Jerusalem, he did not compare his understanding of Christ with that of the other apostles (18f). He is speaking truthfully, for the Judaeo-Christian churches near Jerusalem also recognized that he had abandoned Judaism for Christ as the way of salvation (20-24).

2, 1-10: The private conference with the leaders is probably the same described by Luke in Acts 15; see note on Acts 15, 6-12. The first time Paul discussed the nature of the Christian gospel with other apostles was some fourteen years after his conversion (1), and then in consequence of a prophetic inspiration (2). The misgivings about Paul entertained at that time did not pertain to his doctrine, but probably to his persistence in establishing Christian communities among the Gentiles despite Jewish opposition (2; cf Acts 13, 13f 27). When it was suggested by Judaeo-Christians who opposed him that the Gentile Christian Titus be circumcised so as to display Paul's respect for Judaism, he refused to comply lest such a concession be turned against him (3ff). James, Cephas, and John, far from objecting to his stand, even conceded that he possessed a God-given mission to the Gentiles, just as Peter was founder and leader of the Judaeo-Christian communities of Palestine. It was agreed then that Gentile Christians would not adopt the practices of Judaism, even though the Judaeo-Christian communities continued to retain them for cultural reasons (6-9). Paul readily acceded to the idea of organizing a collection among the Gentile communities for the poor Christians of Jerusalem (10), for he saw in it an occasion to develop unity of faith despite the prevailing diversity of culture; cf 2 Cor 9, 13.

make slaves of us, but <sup>5*</sup> we did not submit to them for a moment. We resisted so that the truth of the gospel might survive intact for your benefit.

<sup>6*</sup> Those who were regarded as important, however (and it makes no difference to me how prominent they were—God plays no favorites), made me add nothing.

<sup>7</sup> On the contrary, recognizing that I had been entrusted with the gospel for the uncircumcised, just as Peter was for the circumcised <sup>8</sup> (for he who worked through Peter as his apostle among the Jews had been at work in me for the Gentiles), <sup>9*</sup> and recognizing, too, the favor bestowed on me, those who were the acknowledged pillars, James, Cephas, and John, gave Barnabas and me the handclasp of fellowship, signifying that we should go to the Gentiles as they to the Jews. <sup>10</sup> The only stipulation was that we should be mindful of the poor—the one thing that I was making every effort to do.

Peter and the Judaizers.† <sup>11*</sup> When Cephas came to Antioch I directly withstood him, because he was clearly in the wrong. <sup>12</sup> He had been taking his meals with the Gentiles before others came who were from James. But when they arrived he drew back to avoid trouble with those who were circumcised. <sup>13</sup> The rest of the Jews joined in his dissembling, till even Barnabas was swept away by their pretense. <sup>14</sup> As soon as I observed that they were not being straightforward about the truth of the gospel, I had this to say to Cephas in the presence of all: "If you who are a Jew are living according to Gentile ways rather than Jewish, by what logic do you force the Gentiles to adopt Jewish ways?"

Paul's Basic Teaching.† <sup>15</sup> We are Jews by birth, not sinners of Gentile origin. <sup>16*</sup> Nevertheless, knowing that a man is not justified by legal observance but by faith in Jesus Christ, we too have believed in him in order to be justified by faith in Christ, not by observance of the law; for by works of the law no one will be justified. <sup>17</sup> But if, in seeking to be justified in Christ, we are shown to be sinners, does that mean that Christ is encouraging sin? Unthinkable! <sup>18</sup> If, however, I were to build up the very things I had demolished, I should then indeed be a transgressor. <sup>19</sup> It was through the law that I died to the law, to live for God. I have been crucified with Christ, <sup>20*</sup> and the life I live now is not my own; Christ is living in me. I still live my human life, but it is a life of faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me. <sup>21*</sup> I will not treat God's gracious gift as pointless. If justice is available through the law, then Christ died to no purpose!

III: CHRISTIAN FAITH AND LIBERTY

CHAPTER 3

Justification through Faith.† <sup>1</sup> You senseless Galatians! Who has cast a spell over you—you before whose eyes Jesus Christ was displayed to view upon his cross? <sup>2</sup> I want to learn only one thing from you: how did you receive the Spirit? Was it through observance of the law or through faith in what you heard? <sup>3</sup> How could you be so stupid? After beginning in the spirit, are you now to end in the flesh? <sup>4</sup> Have you had such remarkable experiences all to no purpose—if indeed they were to no purpose? <sup>5</sup> Is it because you observe the law or because you have faith in what you heard that God lavishes the Spirit on you and works wonders in your midst? <sup>6*†</sup> Consider the case of Abraham: he "believed God, and it was credited to him as justice."<sup>7*</sup> This means that those who believe are sons

2, 5: 3, 1.	20: Rom 8, 10f; Col 3, 3f.
6: Dt 10, 17; Rom 2, 11; Eph 6, 9.	21: 5, 2.
9: Eph 3, 8.	3, 6: Gn 15, 6; Rom 4, 3; Jas 2, 23.
11ff: Acts 15, 1.	7: Sir 44, 19ff.
16: Rom 3, 20, 22; Phil 3, 9.

† 2, 11-14: This incident, which probably occurred after the meeting of 2, 1-10, is more understandable if the policy then arrived at was not publicly promulgated to the Judaeo-Christians of Jerusalem (see note on Acts 15, 6-12). When Peter realized that sharing the agape-meal (see note on 1 Cor 11, 17-34) with Gentile Christians wounded the sensibilities of Judaeo-Christians, he abandoned the practice out of deference to their presence (11f). Other Judaeo-Christians in Antioch followed suit, thereby placing in jeopardy the unity of the Antiochian church (13). Paul publicly criticized Peter's conduct because it implied that, although in theory the Judaeo-Christian could eat with Gentile Christians, in practice the Gentile Christian should not eat with Judaeo-Christians (14).

2, 15-21: Although the Judaeo-Christian enjoys a certain religious privilege by birth (15), he knows that he is not justified by the Mosaic law but by faith in Christ (16). If he insists on his privilege as a Jew (11-14), he implies that Christ has misled him (a probable sense of 17), and that he has sinned in abandoning his privilege by accepting Christ (18). The Judaeo-Christian, like Paul, knows that his privileged position occasioned his transgression of the law and revealed him to be a sinner in need of the redemptive death of Christ (19). Therefore, disregarding his privileged status as a Jew, he values only the new condition received from Christ, the source of his holiness (20). He seeks no privileged status in the Christian community—I will not treat God's gracious gift as pointless (21)—lest his justification seem to come from the law and not from the sacrifice of Christ.

3, 1-5: Paul suggests that the Galatians must be under an evil spell to have forgotten the redemptive meaning of Jesus' crucifixion (1). He asks them to recall the reason for their conversion: the reception of the Spirit, not the works of the law (2-5).

3, 6-9: Probably in response to the argument of the Judaizers that if a Christian wishes to benefit fully from the promises made to Abraham he should embrace Judaism, Paul cites Genesis 15, 6 to the effect that Abraham won God's favor because of his faith. Christians too have already won God's favor through their faith in Christ; cf 3, 2-5. They therefore may expect the fullness of the benefits promised Abraham for the Gentile nations (7-9).

of Abraham. <sup>8*</sup> Because Scripture saw in advance that God's way of justifying the Gentiles would be through faith, it foretold this good news to Abraham: "All nations shall be blessed in you." <sup>9</sup> Thus it is that all who believe are blessed along with Abraham, the man of faith.

No Justification from the Law.† <sup>10*</sup> All who depend on observance of the law, on the other hand, are under a curse. It is written, "Cursed is he who does not abide by everything written in the book of the law and carry it out." <sup>11*</sup> It should be obvious that no one is justified in God's sight by the law, for "the just man shall live by faith." <sup>12*</sup> But the law does not depend on faith. Its terms are: "Whoever does these things shall live by them." <sup>13*</sup> Christ has delivered us from the power of the law's curse by himself becoming a curse for us, as it is written: "Accursed is anyone who is hanged on a tree." <sup>14</sup> This has happened so that through Christ Jesus the blessing bestowed on Abraham might descend on the Gentiles in Christ Jesus, thereby making it possible for us to receive the promised Spirit through faith.

Promise Not Nullified by the Law.† <sup>15*</sup> Brothers, let me give you an everyday example. You cannot add anything to a man's will or set it aside once it is legally validated. <sup>16*</sup> There were promises spoken to Abraham and to his "descendant." Scripture does not say "and to your descendants," as if it applied to many, but as if it applied only to one, "and to your descendant"; that is, to Christ. <sup>17</sup> My point is this: a covenant formally ratified by God is not set aside as invalid by any law that came into being four hundred and thirty years later, nor is its promise nullified. <sup>18</sup> Clearly, if one's inheritance comes through the law, it is no longer conferred in virtue of the promise. Yet it was by way of promise that God granted Abraham his privilege.

True Function of the Law.† <sup>19*</sup> What is the relevance of the law, in such case? It was given in view of transgressions and promulgated by angels, at the hands of a mediator; it was to be valid only until that descendant or offspring came to whom the promise had been given. <sup>20</sup> Now, there can be no mediator when only one person is involved; and God is one. <sup>21</sup> Does this mean that the law is opposed to the promises [of God]? Again, unthinkable! If the law that was given was such that it could impart life, then justice would be a consequence of the law. <sup>22*</sup> In fact, however, Scripture has locked all things in under the constraint of sin. Why? So that the promise might be fulfilled in those who believe, in consequence of faith in Jesus Christ.

The Benefit of Faith.† <sup>23</sup> Before faith came we were under the constraint of the law, locked in until the faith that was coming should be revealed. <sup>24</sup> In other words, the law was our monitor until Christ came to bring about our justification through faith. <sup>25</sup> But now that faith is here, we are no longer in the monitor's charge. <sup>26*</sup> Each one of you is a son of God because of your faith in Christ Jesus. <sup>27*</sup> All of you who have been baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with him. <sup>28*</sup> There does not exist among you Jew or Greek, slave or freeman, male or female. All are one in Christ Jesus. <sup>29*</sup> Furthermore, if you belong to Christ you are the descendants of Abraham, which means you inherit all that was promised.

8: Gn 12, 3.	22: Rom 3, 9-20, 23.
10: Dt 27, 26; Rom 7, 7.	26: 4, 5ff; Jn 1, 12; Rom 8, 14f.
11: Hb 2, 4; Rom 1, 17.	27: Rom 6, 4; Eph 4, 24.
12: Lv 18, 5.	28: Rom 10, 12; 1 Cor 12, 13; Col 3, 11.
13: Dt 21, 23.	29: Heb 6, 12; Jas 2, 5.
15: Heb 9, 17.
16: Gn 12, 7; Mt 1, 1.
19: Rom 5, 20.

† 3, 10-14: To seek salvation through observance of the law is to subject oneself to divine retribution (10), for the law is not the source of justification (11). It is associated with justification only if it is observed through faith (12). Christ removed the threat of divine retribution which came with non-observance of the law (13) in order that the Gentiles might receive through faith the blessings promised to Abraham on their behalf. Thus they are freed of the continual threat of divine punishment (14).

3, 15-18: The example of the promise to Abraham derives its force from a certain continuity in the divine plan of salvation. Abraham, on whom the law that came only centuries later was not imposed, is the type or figure of God's gift of salvation to the Gentiles as well as to Israel. Hence to impose the law upon men as a means of salvation would deface the image of Abraham in Genesis as the spiritual father of all nations; cf Gn 12, 3.

3, 19-22: Though not the source of justification and salvation (3, 11), the Mosaic law fulfilled the purpose of revealing through Israel's history, illumined by the sacrifice of Christ, the sinfulness of all humanity (19; cf Rom 3, 9-20). Through the coming of Christ, this divine revelation is now fully grasped by those who believe in him (22). The fact that the law was delivered through Moses as mediator, indicates that the law is not the fulfillment of the promise to Abraham concerning the Gentiles (19; cf Gn 12, 3). It is God alone who fulfills this promise of his for their salvation (20; cf Rom 3, 24). He could have imposed a law upon man that would justify him through its observance (21); instead he used the Mosaic law to reveal the sinfulness of man, and thus prepare him for salvation from sin through faith in Christ (22).

3, 23-29: Paul here summarizes his previous thought. The purpose of the Mosaic law was to keep man aware of his own sinfulness—locked in—that he might realize his need of justification through an act of God accepted in faith (23). The value of the law lay in its role of leading to an understanding of the absolute necessity of faith in Christ (24). This having been accomplished, its function is fulfilled (25). The Galatian Christians, whether Jew or Gentile, slave or free, men or women, all walk the same path of salvation through faith in Christ. In this they are the true descendants of Abraham, the man of faith (23-29).

CHAPTER 4

Free Sons of God in Christ.†

<sup>1</sup> Brothers, as long as a designated heir is not of age his condition is no different from that of a slave, even though in name he is master of all his possessions; <sup>2</sup> for he is under the supervision of guardians and administrators until the time set by his father. <sup>3*</sup> In the same way, while we were not yet of age we were like slaves subordinated to the elements of the world; <sup>4</sup> but when the designated time had come, God sent forth his Son born of a woman, born under the law, <sup>5*</sup> to deliver from the law those who were subjected to it, so that we might receive our status as adopted sons. <sup>6*</sup> The proof that you are sons is the fact that God has sent forth into our hearts the spirit of his Son which cries out "Abba!" ("Father!")? You are no longer a slave but a son! And the fact that you are a son makes you an heir, by God's design.

No Return to Slavery.† <sup>8*</sup> In the past, when you did not acknowledge God, you served as slaves to gods who are not really divine. <sup>9</sup> Now that you have come to know God—or rather, have been known by him—how can you return to those powerless, worthless, natural elements to which you seem willing to enslave yourselves once more? <sup>10*</sup> You even go so far as to keep the ceremonial observance of days and months, seasons and years! <sup>11</sup> I fear for you; all my efforts with you may have been wasted.

Former Devotion of the Galatians.† <sup>12</sup> I beg you, brothers, to become like me as I became like you. (Understand, you have not done me any wrong.) <sup>13</sup> You are aware that it was a bodily ailment that first occasioned my bringing you the gospel. <sup>14</sup> My physical condition was a challenge which you did not despise or brush aside in disgust. On the contrary, you took me to yourselves as an angel of God, even as if I had been Christ Jesus! <sup>15</sup> What has happened to your open-hearted spirit? I can testify on your behalf that if it were possible you would have plucked out your eyes and given them to me. <sup>16</sup> Have I become your enemy just because I tell you the truth?

<sup>17*</sup> The people I have referred to are not courting your favor in any generous spirit. What they really want is to exclude you so that you may court their favor. <sup>18</sup> It would be well for you to be courted for the right reasons at all times, and not only when I happen to be with you. <sup>19*</sup> You are my children, and you put me back in labor pains until Christ is formed in you. <sup>20</sup> If only I could be with you now and speak to you differently! You have me at a complete loss!

Allegory on Freedom.† <sup>21</sup> You who want to be subject to the law, tell me: do you know what the law has to say? <sup>22*</sup> There it is written that Abraham had two sons, one by the slave girl, the other by his freeborn wife. <sup>23*</sup> The son of the slave girl had been begotten in the course of nature, but the son of the free woman was the fruit of the promise. <sup>24*</sup> All this is an allegory: the two women stand for two covenants. One is from Mount Sinai, and brought forth children to slavery; this is Hagar. <sup>25</sup> The mountain Sinai [Hagar] is in Arabia and corresponds to the Jerusalem of our time, which is likewise in slavery with her children. <sup>26</sup> But the Jerusalem on high is freeborn, and it is she who is our mother. <sup>27*</sup> That is why Scripture says:

"Rejoice, you barren one who bear no children;
break into song, you stranger to the pains of childbirth!
For many are the children of the wife deserted—far more than of her who has a husband!"

<sup>28*</sup> You, my brothers, are children of the promise, as Isaac was. <sup>29</sup> But just as in those days the son born in nature's course persecuted the one whose birth was in the realm of spirit, so do we find it now. <sup>30*</sup> What does Scripture say on

4, 3: 3, 23.	Thes 2, 7f.
5: 3, 13, 26.	22: Gn 16, 15; 21, 2.
6: Rom 8, 15ff.	23: Gn 17, 16.
8: 1 Cor 12, 2.	24: 5, 1.
10: Col 2, 16-20.	27: Is 54, 1.
17: 1, 7.	28: Rom 9, 8.
19: 1 Cor 4, 14f; 2	30: Gn 21, 10.
Cor 6, 13; 1

† 4, 1-7: Paul draws on the culture of the time to indicate to the Galatians their status in the history of salvation. They have reached a point in the religious history of humanity comparable to the state of a child in a Roman family who has attained his majority. From that moment he enjoys the goods, rights and privileges of an adult (1-3). The Galatians have been freed through Christ from the tutelage of the law, which kept humanity conscious of its slavery to sin. As a result they have experienced the power of the Holy Spirit, who has recreated them as God's sons and enabled them to live their lives according to the sense and spirit of this new relationship (4-7).

† 4, 8-11: Referring to the conversion of the Galatians, Paul presses his argument against their adoption of practices of the law by showing that, if they were to accept Judaism as a partial principle of salvation, it would be no less futile than to return to polytheism.

† 4, 12-20: The apostle appeals to their personal loyalty to him through whom Christ was formed in them.

† 4, 21-31: Paul creates an allegory out of the story of Sarah and Hagar (Gn 21, 8-21; cf Gn 16, 1-16). The two women represent two covenants: Hagar, the slave girl, represents the covenant of Sinai. The children of this covenant are sons of Abraham begotten in the course of nature. By the covenant of Sinai they were enslaved to the law like Hagar's offspring, who were born into slavery. Sarah, the free woman, represents the covenant made by God with Abraham. The children of his covenant, also sons of Abraham, are the fruit of the promise. Like the offspring of Sarah, born to freedom, these are free from the slavery of the Mosaic law.

the point? "Cast out slave girl and son together; for the slave girl's son shall never be an heir on equal terms with the son" of the one born free.

<sup>31*</sup> Therefore, my brothers, we are not children of a slave girl but of a mother who is free.

IV: EXHORTATION TO CHRISTIAN LIVING

CHAPTER 5

Basic Import of Faith. <sup>1</sup> It was for liberty that Christ freed us. So stand firm, and do not take on yourselves the yoke of slavery a second time! <sup>2*</sup> Pay close attention to me, Paul, when I tell you that if you have yourselves circumcised, Christ will be of no use to you! <sup>3</sup> I point out once more to all who receive circumcision that they are bound to the law in its entirety. <sup>4</sup> Any of you who seek your justification in the law have severed yourselves from Christ and fallen from God's favor! <sup>5</sup> It is in the spirit that we eagerly await the justification we hope for, and only faith can yield it. <sup>6*</sup> In Christ Jesus neither circumcision nor the lack of it counts for anything; only faith, which expresses itself through love.

Against Being Misled. <sup>7</sup> You were progressing so very well; who diverted you from the path of truth? <sup>8*</sup> Such encouragement does not come from him who calls you. <sup>9*</sup> "A little yeast can affect the entire dough." <sup>10</sup> I trust that, in the Lord, you will not adopt a different view. May condemnation fall on whoever it is that is unsettling you! <sup>11*</sup> As for me, brothers, if I am still preaching circumcision, why do the attacks on me continue? If I were, the cross would be a stumbling block no more. <sup>12</sup> Would that those who are troubling you might go the whole way, and castrate themselves!

Proper Use of Freedom. <sup>13*</sup> My brothers, remember that you have been called to live in freedom—but not a freedom that gives free rein to the flesh. Out of love, place yourselves at one another's service. <sup>14*</sup> The whole law has found its fulfillment in this one saying: "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." <sup>15</sup> If you go on biting and tearing one another to pieces, take care! You will end up in mutual destruction!

<sup>16*</sup> My point is that you should live in accord with the spirit and you will not yield to the cravings of the flesh. <sup>17</sup> The flesh lusts against the spirit and the spirit against the flesh; the two are directly opposed. This is why you do not do what your will intends. <sup>18</sup> If you are guided by the spirit, you are not under the law. <sup>19</sup> It is obvious what proceeds from the flesh: lewd conduct, impurity, licentiousness, <sup>20</sup> idolatry, sorcery, hostilities, bickering, jealousy, outbursts of rage, selfish rivalries, dissensions, factions, <sup>21*</sup> envy, drunkenness, orgies, and the like. I warn you, as I have warned you before: those who do such things will not inherit the kingdom of God!

<sup>22*</sup> In contrast, the fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, patient endurance, kindness, generosity, faith, <sup>23</sup> mildness, and chastity. Against such there is no law! <sup>24*</sup> Those who belong to Christ Jesus have crucified their flesh with its passions and desires. <sup>25</sup> Since we live by the spirit, let us follow the spirit's lead. <sup>26</sup> Let us never be boastful, or challenging, or jealous toward one another.

CHAPTER 6

The Demands of Conscience. <sup>1*</sup> My brothers, if someone is detected in sin, you who live by the spirit should gently set him right, each of you trying to avoid falling into temptation himself. <sup>2</sup> Help carry one another's burdens; in that way you will fulfill the law of Christ. <sup>3*</sup> If anyone thinks he amounts to something, when in fact he is nothing, he is only deceiving himself. <sup>4</sup> Each man should look to his conduct; if he has reason to boast of anything, it will be because the achievement is his and not another's. <sup>5</sup> Everyone should bear his own responsibility.

<sup>6</sup> The man instructed in the word should share all he has with his instructor. <sup>7*</sup> Make no mistake about it, no one makes a fool of God! A man will reap only what he sows. <sup>8*</sup> If he sows in the field of the flesh, he will reap a harvest of corruption; but if his seed-ground is the spirit, he will reap everlasting life. <sup>9*</sup> Let us not grow weary of doing good; if we do not relax our efforts, in due time we shall reap our harvest. <sup>10*</sup> While we have the opportunity, let us do good to all men—but especially those of the household of the faith.

- |                                      |                                 |
|--------------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| 31: 3, 29; Jn 8, 35.                 | 21: 1 Cor 6, 10.                |
| 5, 2; 2, 21; Acts 15, 1ff.           | 22: 1 Cor 13, 4-7; 1 Tim 4, 12. |
| 6: 6, 15; 1 cor 7, 19.               | 24: Rom 6, 6; Col 3, 5.         |
| 8: 1, 6.                             | 6: 1: Mt 18, 15; 2 Tim 2, 25.   |
| 9: 1 Cor 5, 6.                       | 3: 1 Cor 3, 18.                 |
| 11: 1 Cor 1, 23.                     | 7: Hos 8, 7.                    |
| 13: Rom 6, 15; 1 Pt 2, 16.           | 8: Prv 11, 18.                  |
| 14: Lv 19, 18; Mt 22, 39; Rom 13, 9. | 9: 2 Thes 3, 13.                |
| 16: 1 Pt 2, 11.                      | 10: 1 Thes 5, 15.               |

† 5, 7-12: A strongly worded appeal that they will reject the teachers who are misleading them.

5, 13-26: Since the teaching of the Judaizers has apparently provoked dissension within the community, Paul urges upon all the Christian law of love of neighbor (13ff). He forestalls the accusation that his doctrine of justification by faith opens the way to a life of moral irresponsibility (16-26).

V: CONCLUSION

The Cross, Our True Boast.† <sup>11*</sup> See, I write to you in my own large handwriting! <sup>12*</sup> Those who are trying to force you to be circumcised are making a play for human approval—with an eye to escaping persecution for the cross of Christ. <sup>13</sup> The very ones who accept circumcision do not follow the law themselves. They want you to be circumcised only that they may boast about your bodily observance.

<sup>14</sup> May I never boast of anything but the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ! Through it, the world has been crucified to me and I to the world. <sup>15*</sup> It means nothing whether one is circumcised or not. All that matters is that one is created anew. <sup>16</sup> Peace and mercy on all who follow this rule of life, and on the Israel of God.

<sup>17</sup> Henceforth, let no man trouble me, for I bear the brand marks of Jesus in my body.

<sup>18</sup> Brothers, may the favor of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

---

11: 1 Cor 16, 21.
12: 5, 11.

15: 5, 6; 2 Cor 5, 17.

†

---

6, 11-18: Paul asserts that the Judaizers wish the Gentile Christians to observe the laws of Judaism only in order that they themselves may escape persecution by the Jews. He observes that he already bears the scars of such persecution, but this has not prevented him from reaffirming the true doctrine in the present epistle.

TO THE EPHESIANS

Early Christian tradition, beginning with Irenaeus and Clement of Alexandria in the late second century, unhesitatingly ascribed this epistle to St Paul. Since the early nineteenth century, however, critical scholarship has considered the word-usage, style, comparison with Colossians, the epistle's concept of the church, as well as the doctrine put forward by the writer, to be the basis for strong doubts about its Pauline authorship. This divergence between the two capital sources of opinion on the origin of Ephesians makes it impossible to give a categorical pronouncement for or against authorship by Paul. He was probably not the author of Ephesians in the same sense as of other epistles such as Romans, Galatians, 1 and 2 Corinthians. Whatever the epistle's literary origin, however, the author considered its teachings to be in the Pauline tradition (1, 1; 3, 1); and for purposes of interpreting the text itself, it is practical to adopt the clear implication therein that Paul is its author. If Ephesians is analyzed within the context of Pauline writings, the question of its relationship to the thought of Colossians and other letters of Paul may be fruitfully studied.

It seems certain that this epistle was not specifically addressed to the Christians of Ephesus. Paul had labored there for well over two years (Acts 19, 10), and would hardly have written so impersonally to a community with which he was intimately acquainted. Important early manuscripts (Vaticanus and Sinaiticus) omit the words at Ephesus in 1, 1. If Ephesians is the letter referred to in Colossians 4, 16, it may well have been addressed to a number of Christian communities, a possibility that would account for its impersonal character. What is called the letter to the Ephesians is traditionally regarded as having been written by Paul from prison—Colossians, Philippians, Philemon, and Ephesians are in fact known as the "captivity epistles." If the letter is authentically Pauline, it was probably written, as tradition has held, during Paul's first(?) Roman imprisonment, 61-63 A.D.

Ephesians consists of a greeting (1, 1f); a doxology of the greatest importance for the cosmic significance it attaches to Christ (1, 3-14); reflections on the Christian mystery of salvation (1, 15-22) as well as the mystery of the church (2, 22-3, 13); a prayer for the Christian community (3, 14-21); a discussion of the practical implications of the Christian mysteries (4, 1-6, 20), with special attention to family life and a famous reflection on the theology of Christian marriage (5, 22-23); and a friendly conclusion (6, 21-24).

CHAPTER 1

Greeting. <sup>1*</sup> Paul, by the will of God an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the holy ones [at Ephesus], believers in Christ Jesus. <sup>2*</sup> Grace and peace to you from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Father's Plan of Salvation. <sup>3*</sup> † Praised be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has bestowed on us in Christ every spiritual blessing in the heavens! <sup>4*</sup> God chose us in him before the world began, to be holy and blameless in his sight, to be full of love; <sup>5*</sup> he likewise predestined us through Christ Jesus to be his adopted sons—such was his will and pleasure—<sup>6*</sup> that all might praise the glorious favor he has bestowed on us in his beloved.

1, 1: Rom 1, 7; 1 Cor	17, 24; Rom 8,
1, 2: Col 1, 1.	29.
2: Col 1, 2.	5: Jn 1, 12; 1 Jn 3,
3: 2, 6.	1.
4: 5, 27; Jn 15, 16;	6: Mt 3, 17.

† 1, 3-14: This prayer of thanksgiving, similar in its opening words to Colossians 1, 12, is better understood if the later verses also (Col 1, 15-20) are taken into consideration. The exalted Christology of the second passage of Colossians is at one with this prayer which reflects upon the divine plan of salvation centering in Christ and revealed to Christians as fully at work in themselves. The spiritual blessings the Christian communities have received through Christ (3) are gratefully enumerated: the call to faith and holiness (4; cf Rom 3, 30); the gift of divine adoptive sonship establishing a unique spiritual relationship with God the Father through Christ (5; cf Rom 8, 14-17); the liberation from sin through Christ's sacrificial death (7); the revelation of God's plan of salvation in Christ (9; cf Rom 16, 25; Eph 3, 3f); the gift of faith in Christ bestowed upon Jews (11f); and finally, the same gift granted to Gentiles (13). In the christological faith of the Christian communities the apostle sees the predetermined plan of God (4.11) to bring all creation under the final rule of Christ (10). The Christian community has the initial understanding of the gifts God has so freely given to men for the sake of Christ (6.8f), which all humanity will eventually possess.

Fulfillment through Christ. <sup>7*</sup> It is in Christ and through his blood that we have been redeemed and our sins forgiven, <sup>8*</sup> so immeasurably generous is God's favor to us. <sup>9*</sup> God has given us the wisdom to understand fully the mystery, the plan he was pleased to decree in Christ, <sup>10</sup> to be carried out in the fullness of time: namely, to bring all things in the heavens and on earth into one under Christ's headship.

Blessing for Jew and Gentile. <sup>11*</sup> In him we were chosen; for in the decree of God, who administers everything according to his will and counsel, <sup>12</sup> we were predestined to praise his glory by being the first to hope in Christ. <sup>13*</sup> In him you too were chosen; when you heard the glad tidings of salvation, the word of truth, and believed in it, you were sealed with the Holy Spirit who had been promised. <sup>14*</sup> He is the pledge of our inheritance, the first payment against the full redemption of a people God has made his own, to praise his glory.

Fulfillment in the Church. <sup>15*</sup> † For my part, from the time I first heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love for all the members of the church, <sup>16</sup> I have never stopped thanking God for you and recommending you in my prayers. <sup>17*</sup> May the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, grant you a spirit of wisdom and insight to know him clearly. <sup>18</sup> May he enlighten your innermost vision that you may know the great hope to which he has called you, the wealth of his glorious heritage to be distributed among the members of the church, <sup>19*</sup> and the immeasurable scope of his power in us who believe. It is like the strength <sup>20*</sup> he showed in raising Christ from the dead and seating him at his right hand in heaven, <sup>21*</sup> high above every principality, power, virtue, and domination, and every name that can be given in this age or in the age to come.

<sup>22*</sup> He has put all things under Christ's feet and has made him, thus exalted, head of the church, <sup>23*</sup> which is his body: the fullness of him who fills the universe in all its parts.

CHAPTER 2

Generosity of God's Plan. <sup>1*</sup> † You were dead because of your sins and offenses, <sup>2*</sup> as you gave allegiance to the present age and to the prince of the air, that spirit who is even now at work among the rebellious. <sup>3*</sup> All of us were once of their company; we lived at the level of the flesh, following every whim and fancy, and so by nature deserved God's wrath like the rest. <sup>4</sup> But God is rich in mercy; because of his great love for us <sup>5*</sup> he brought us to life with Christ when we were dead in sin. By this favor you were saved. <sup>6*</sup> Both with and in Christ Jesus he raised us up and gave us a place in the heavens, <sup>7</sup> that in the ages to come he might display the great wealth of his favor, manifested by his kindness to us in Christ Jesus. <sup>8*</sup> I repeat, it is owing to his favor that salvation is yours through faith. This is not your own doing, it is God's gift; <sup>9*</sup> neither is it a reward for anything you have accomplished, so let no one pride himself on it. <sup>10*</sup> We are truly his handiwork, created in Christ Jesus to lead the life of good deeds which God prepared for us in advance.

All United in Christ. <sup>11*</sup> † You men of Gentile stock—called "uncircumcised" by those who, in virtue of a hand-executed rite on their flesh, call themselves "circumcised"—<sup>12*</sup> remember that, in former times, you had no part in Christ and were excluded from the community

7: 2, 7; Rom 3, 24;	22.
Col 1, 14, 20.	22: Ps 8, 6; Mt 28,
8: Col 1, 9.	18; Col 1, 18.
9: 3, 9; Rom 16,	23: 4, 10; Rom 12,
25.	5; 1 Cor 12, 27;
11: Is 46, 10; Rom	Col 1, 19.
8, 28; Col 1, 12;	2, 1: Col 1, 21; 2, 13.
Rv 4, 11.	2: 6, 12; Jn 12, 31;
13: 4, 30; Col 1, 5f;	Col 1, 13.
Acts 2, 33.	3: Col 3, 6
14: 2 Cor 1, 22; 5,	5: Rom 5, 8, 6, 13;
5.	Col 2, 19.
15: Col 1, 3f; Phlm	6: Rom 8, 10f; Phil
4f.	3, 20; Col 2, 12.
17: 3, 14, 16; 1 Jn 5,	8: Gal 2, 16.
20.	9: 1 Cor 1, 29
19: 2 Cor 13, 4; Col	10: 2 Cor 5, 17.
1, 11.	12: Rom 9, 4; Col 1,
20: Ps 110, 1.	21, 27.
21: Phil 2, 9; 1 Pt 3,

† 1, 15-23: Paul prays that the blessings of the faith imparted by God the Father (v 3) to the Ephesians will be strengthened in them through the message of the gospel (1, 17ff). Those blessings are to be measured by his power in establishing the sovereignty of Christ over all other creatures (1, 20f) and in appointing him head of the church (1, 22f). For the allusion to angelic spirits, see the note on Colossians 1, 15, 20.

2, 1-10: The recipients of Paul's letter have experienced, in their redemption from sin, the effect of Christ's supremacy (1f), the power of which overcame the evil force of demons. (In Jewish thought these were considered to dwell in the air.) Both Jew and Gentile have experienced, through Christ, God's generosity, his free gift of salvation which already marks them for a heavenly destiny (3-6). In Christ, God reveals the wealth of his kindness (7), saving men through faith and not by any works of their own (8f). Christians are a newly created people in Christ, fashioned by God for a new life of goodness (10).

2, 11-22: The Gentiles were without Israel's messianic expectation, without the various covenants God made with Israel, without hope of salvation and knowledge of the true God (11f); but through Christ, all these religious barriers between Jew and Gentile have been transcended (13f) by the abolition of the Mosaic covenant-law (15) for the sake of uniting Jew and Gentile into a single religious community (15ff), imbued with the same Holy Spirit and worshiping the same Father (18). The Gentiles are now within the pale of God's revelation (19) as it derives from the apostles, assisted by those endowed with the prophetic charism, the preachers of Christ (20: cf Acts 8, 4f.; 1 Cor 12, 28). With Christ as the capstone (20), they are being built into the holy temple of God's people where the divine presence dwells (21f).

of Israel. You were strangers to the covenant and its promise; you were without hope and without God in the world. <sup>13*</sup> But now in Christ Jesus you who once were far off have been brought near through the blood of Christ. <sup>14*</sup> It is he who is our peace, and who made the two of us one by breaking down the barrier of hostility that kept us apart. <sup>15*</sup> In his own flesh he abolished the law with its commands and precepts, to create in himself one new man from us who had been two and to make peace, <sup>16*</sup> reconciling both of us to God in one body through his cross, which put that enmity to death. <sup>17*</sup> He came and "announced the good news of peace to you who were far off, and to those who were near"; <sup>18*</sup> through him we both have access in one Spirit to the Father.

<sup>19*</sup> This means that you are strangers and aliens no longer. No, you are fellow citizens of the saints and members of the household of God. <sup>20*</sup> You form a building which rises on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ Jesus himself as the capstone. <sup>21*</sup> Through him the whole structure is fitted together and takes shape as a holy temple in the Lord; <sup>22*</sup> in him you are being built into this temple, to become a dwelling place for God in the Spirit.

CHAPTER 3

Commission to Preach God's Plan. <sup>2</sup> I am sure you have heard of the ministry which God in his goodness gave me in your regard. <sup>1*</sup>† That is why to me, Paul, a prisoner for Christ Jesus on behalf of you Gentiles, <sup>3</sup> God's secret plan as I have briefly described it was revealed. <sup>4</sup> When you read what I have said, you will realize that I know what I am talking about in speaking of the mystery of Christ, <sup>5*</sup> unknown to men in former ages but now revealed by the Spirit to the holy apostles and prophets. <sup>6</sup> It is no less than this: in Christ Jesus the Gentiles are now co-heirs with the Jews, members of the same body and sharers of the promise through the preaching of the gospel.

Mission to the Gentiles. <sup>7*</sup> Through the gift God in his goodness bestowed on me by the exercise of his power, I became a minister of the gospel. <sup>8*</sup> To me, the least of all believers, was given the grace to preach to the Gentiles the unfathomable riches of Christ <sup>9*</sup> and to enlighten all men on the mysterious design which for ages was hidden in God, the Creator of all. <sup>10*</sup> Now, therefore, through the church, God's manifold wisdom is made known to the principalities and powers of heaven, <sup>11</sup> in accord with his age-old purpose, carried out in Christ Jesus our Lord. <sup>12*</sup> In Christ and through faith in him we can speak freely to God, drawing near him with confidence. <sup>13*</sup> Hence, I beg you not to be disheartened by the trials I endure for you; they are your glory.

Prayer for the Readers. <sup>14†</sup> That is why I kneel before the Father <sup>15</sup> from whom every family in heaven and on earth takes its name; <sup>16*</sup> and I pray that he will bestow on you gifts in keeping with the riches of his glory. May he strengthen you inwardly through the working of his Spirit. <sup>17*</sup> May Christ dwell in your hearts through faith, and may charity be the root and foundation of your life. <sup>18*</sup> Thus you will be able to grasp fully, with all the holy ones, the breadth and length and height and depth of Christ's love, <sup>19*</sup> and experience this love which surpasses all knowledge, so that you may attain to the fullness of God himself.

<sup>20*</sup> To him whose power now at work in us can do immeasurably more than we ask or imagine—<sup>21</sup> to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus through all generations, world without end. Amen.

13: Is 57, 19; Col 1, 20.	Thes 2, 4.
14: Gal 3, 28.	8: 1 Cor 15, 8f; Gal 1, 16; 2, 8.
15: 2 Cor 5, 17; Col 2, 14.	9: Rom 16, 25; Col 1, 26f.
16: Col 1, 20-22.	10: 1 Pt 1, 12.
17: Is 57, 19; Zec 9, 10.	12: Rom 5, 1f; Heb 4, 16.
18: 3, 12.	13: Col 1, 22, 24; 2 Tm 1, 8.
19: Heb 12, 22ff.	16: 6, 10; Col 1, 11; 2 Pt 1, 3.
20: Is 28, 16; Rv 21, 14.	17: Jn 14, 23; Rom 7, 22; Col 1, 23, 2, 7.
21: Col 2, 19; 1 Cor 3, 16.	18: Col 2, 2.
22: 1 Pt 2, 5.	19: Col 2, 3, 9.
3, 1: Phil 1, 7, 13; Col 1, 24-29; 2 Tm 2, 9.	20: Rom 16, 25f; Col 1, 29.
5: Col 1, 26.
7: Col 1, 25, 29; 1

†

3, 1-13: Paul reflects on his mission to the Gentiles. He alludes to his conversion and appointment to the apostolic office (2) and observes that his own apostolic experience, as well as that of the other apostles and charismatic prophets in the church (4f), has deepened his understanding of God's plan of salvation in Christ. Paul is the special herald (7) of a new revelation to the world (6): that the divine plan includes the Gentiles in the spiritual benefits promised to Israel. Not only does he enjoy this unique apostolic role, but he also has been given the task of explaining to all men the divine plan of salvation (8f). Through the church, God's plan of salvation in Christ becomes manifest to angelic beings (10), a plan which God had kept hidden from all creatures (11). The fulfillment of the plan in Christ gives the whole church more confidence in God (12). The readers of this epistle are also encouraged to greater confidence despite Paul's imprisonment (13).

3, 1: A prisoner for Christ Jesus: see the Introduction.

3, 14-21: The apostle prays that those he is addressing may, like the rest of the church, deepen their understanding of God's plan of salvation in Christ. It is a plan which affects the whole universe: this is the sense of the breadth and length and height and depth (v 18). The apostle prays further that they may perceive the redemptive love of Christ for them and be completely immersed in the mystery of Christ in God (14-19). The prayer concludes with a doxology to God the Father (20f).

CHAPTER 4

Unity in the Mystical Body. <sup>1*</sup>† I plead with you, then, as a prisoner for the calling you have received, <sup>2*</sup> with perfect humility, meekness, and patience, bearing with one another lovingly. <sup>3*</sup> Make every effort to preserve the unity which has the Spirit as its origin and peace as its binding force. <sup>4*</sup> There is but one body and one Spirit, just as there is but one hope given all of you by your call. <sup>5*</sup> There is one Lord, one faith, one baptism; <sup>6*</sup> one God and Father of all, who is over all, and works through all, and is in all.

Diversity of Graces. <sup>7*</sup> Each of us has received God's favor in the measure in which Christ bestows it. <sup>8*</sup> Thus you find Scripture saying:

"When he ascended on high, he took a host of captives and gave gifts to men."

<sup>9</sup> "He ascended"—what does this mean but that he had first descended into the lower regions of the earth? <sup>10</sup> He who descended is the very one who ascended high above the heavens, that he might fill all men with his gifts.

<sup>11*</sup> It is he who gave apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers <sup>12</sup> in roles of service for the faithful to build up the body of Christ, <sup>13*</sup> till we become one in faith and in the knowledge of God's Son, and form that perfect man who is Christ come to full stature.

<sup>14*</sup> Let us, then, be children no longer, tossed here and there, carried about by every wind of doctrine that originates in human trickery and skill in proposing error. <sup>15*</sup> Rather, let us profess the truth in love and grow to the full maturity of Christ the head. <sup>16</sup> Through him the whole body grows, and with the proper functioning of the members joined firmly together by each supporting ligament, builds itself up in love.

Renewal in Christ. <sup>17*</sup>† I declare and solemnly attest in the Lord that you must no longer live as the pagans do—their minds empty, <sup>18*</sup> their understanding darkened. They are estranged from a life in God because of their ignorance and their resistance; <sup>19*</sup> without remorse they have abandoned themselves to lust and the indulgence of every sort of lewd conduct. <sup>20</sup> That is not what you learned when you learned Christ! <sup>21</sup> I am supposing, of course, that he has been preached and taught to you in accord with the truth that is in Jesus: <sup>22*</sup> namely, that you must lay aside your former way of life and the old self which deteriorates through illusion and desire, <sup>23*</sup> and acquire a fresh, spiritual way of thinking. <sup>24*</sup> You must put on that new man created in God's image, whose justice and holiness are born of truth.

Vices To Be Avoided. <sup>25*</sup> See to it, then, that you put an end to lying; let everyone speak the truth to his neighbor, for we are members of one another. <sup>26*</sup> If you are angry, let it be without sin. The sun must not go down on your wrath; <sup>27*</sup> do not give the devil a chance to work on you. <sup>28*</sup> The man who has been stealing must steal no longer; rather, let him work with his hands at honest labor so that he will have something to share with those in need. <sup>29*</sup> Never let evil talk pass your lips; say only the good things men need to hear, things that will really help them. <sup>30</sup> Do nothing to sadden the Holy Spirit with whom you were sealed against the day of redemption. <sup>31*</sup> Get rid of all bitterness, all passion and anger, harsh words, slander, and malice of every kind. <sup>32*</sup> In place of these, be kind to one another, compassionate, and mutually forgiving, just as God has forgiven you in Christ.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1*</sup> Be imitators of God as his dear children. <sup>2*</sup> Follow the way of love, even as Christ loved you. He gave himself for us as an offering to God, a gift of pleasing fragrance.

4, 1: Col 1, 10.	18: Col 1, 21, 1 Pt
2: Col 3, 12.	1, 14.
3: Col 3, 14f.	19: Col 3, 5.
4: Rom 12, 15; 1	22: Rom 8, 13; Col
Cor 10, 17.	3, 9.
5: 1 Cor 8, 6.	23: Rom 12, 2.
6: 1 Cor 12, 6.	24: Col 3, 10.
7: Rom 12, 6; 1	25: Zec 8, 16.
Cor 12, 6; 1 Cor	26: Mt 5, 22.
12, 28.	27: 2 Cor 2, 11.
8: Ps 68, 19; Col 2,	28: 1 Thes 4, 11.
15.	29: 5, 4; Col 3, 16;
11: 1 Cor 12, 28.	4, 6.
13: Col 1, 28.	31: Col 3, 8.
14: 1 Cor 14, 20;	32: Mt 6, 14; Col 3,
Col 2, 4, 8; Heb	12f.
13, 9.	5, 1: Mt 5, 48.
15: Col 1, 18; 2, 19.	2: 1 Jn 3, 16.
17: Rom 1, 21.

† 4, 1-16: A general plea for unity in the churches. Christians have been fashioned through the Spirit into a single harmonious religious community (one body), distinguished by a single Lord in contrast to the many gods of the pagan world, and by one way of salvation through faith, brought out especially by the significance of baptism (1-6; cf Rom 6, 1-11). But Christian unity is more than adherence to a common belief. It works itself out functionally through Christ's gifts to individuals to rule and teach so as to make the community ever more Christlike (11-16). This teaching on Christ as the source of the charisms is introduced by a citation of Psalm 68, 18 which depicts Yahweh triumphantly leading Israel to salvation in Jerusalem. It is here understood of Christ, the God-man, head of the church; through his redemptive death, resurrection and ascension he has become the source of the church's spiritual gifts. The "descent" of Christ (9f) refers more probably to the incarnation rather than to Christ's presence after his death in the abode of the dead.

4, 17-5, 20: For similar exhortations to a morally good life in response to God's gift of faith, see notes on Romans 12, 1-13, 14 and Galatians 5, 13-26.

<sup>3*</sup> As for lewd conduct or promiscuousness or lust of any sort, let them not even be mentioned among you; your holiness forbids this. <sup>4</sup> Nor should there be any obscene, silly, or suggestive talk; all that is out of place. Instead, give thanks. <sup>5*</sup> Make no mistake about this: no fornicator, no unclean or lustful person—in effect an idolater—has any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God. <sup>6*</sup> Let no one deceive you with worthless arguments. These are sins that bring God's wrath down on the disobedient; <sup>7</sup> therefore have nothing to do with them.

Duty To Live in the Light. <sup>8*</sup> There was a time when you were darkness, but now you are light in the Lord. Well, then, live as children of light. <sup>9</sup> Light produces every kind of goodness and justice and truth. <sup>10</sup> Be correct in your judgment of what pleases the Lord. <sup>11*</sup> Take no part in vain deeds done in darkness; rather, condemn them. <sup>12</sup> It is shameful even to mention the things these people do in secret; <sup>13*</sup> but when such deeds are condemned they are seen in the light of day, and all that then appears is light. <sup>14*</sup> That is why we read:

“Awake, O sleeper, arise from the dead,
and Christ will give you light.”

<sup>15*</sup> Keep careful watch over your conduct. Do not act like fools, but like thoughtful men. <sup>16</sup> Make the most of the present opportunity, for these are evil days. <sup>17</sup> Do not continue in ignorance, but try to discern the will of the Lord. <sup>18*</sup> Avoid getting drunk on wine; that leads to debauchery. Be filled with the Spirit, <sup>19*</sup> addressing one another in psalms and hymns and inspired songs. Sing praise to the Lord with all your hearts. <sup>20*</sup> Give thanks to God the Father always and for everything in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>21†</sup> Defer to one another out of reverence for Christ.

Christian Wives and Husbands.

<sup>22*</sup> Wives should be submissive to their husbands as if to the Lord <sup>23*</sup> because the husband is head of his wife just as Christ is head of his body the church, as well as its savior. <sup>24</sup> As the church submits to Christ, so wives should submit to their husbands in everything.

<sup>25*</sup> Husbands, love your wives, as Christ loved the church. He gave himself up for her <sup>26*</sup> to make her holy, purifying her in the bath of water by the power of the word, <sup>27*</sup> to present to himself a glorious church, holy and immaculate, without stain or wrinkle or anything of that sort. <sup>28</sup> Husbands should love their wives as they do their own bodies. He who loves his wife loves himself. <sup>29</sup> Observe that no one ever hates his own flesh; no, he nourishes it and takes care of it as Christ cares for the church—<sup>30*</sup> for we are members of his body.

<sup>31*</sup> “For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother, and shall cling to his wife, and the two shall be made into one.”

<sup>32</sup> This is a great foreshadowing; I mean that it refers to Christ and the Church.

<sup>33</sup> In any case, each one should love his wife as he loves himself, the wife for her part showing respect for her husband.

CHAPTER 6

Children and Parents. <sup>1*†</sup> Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for that is what is expected of you. <sup>2*</sup> “Honor your father and mother” is the first commandment to carry a promise with—<sup>3</sup> “that it may go well with you, and that you may have long life on the earth.” <sup>4*</sup> Fathers, do not anger your children. Bring them up with the training and instruction befitting the Lord.

Slaves and Masters. <sup>5*</sup> Slaves, obey your human masters with the reverence, the awe, and the sincerity you owe to Christ. <sup>6*</sup> Do not render service for appearance only and to please men, but do God's will with your whole heart as slaves of Christ. <sup>7</sup> Give your service willingly, doing it for the Lord rather than men. <sup>8</sup> You know that each one, whether slave or free, will be repaid by the Lord for whatever good he does.

<sup>9*</sup> Masters, act in a similar way toward your slaves. Stop threatening them. Re-

3: Gal 5, 19; Col 3, 5.	1, 18.
5: 1 Cor 6, 9f; Gal 5, 21.	25: Col 3, 19.
6: Rom 1, 18; Col 2, 4, 8.	26: Rom 6, 4; Ti 3, 5ff.
8: 4, 18; Jn 12, 36; Col 1, 12f.	27: 2 Cor 11, 2; Col 1, 22.
11: 1 Thes 5, 4-8.	30: 1 Cor 6, 15.
13: Jn 3, 20f.	31: Gn 2, 24; Mt 19, 5; Mk 10, 7f.
14: Is 60, 1.	6, 1: Prv 6, 20; Sir 3, 1-6; Col 3, 20.
15: Col 4, 5.	2: Ex 20, 12.
18: Lk 21, 34.	4: Col 3, 21f.
19: Col 3, 16.	5: Col 3, 22-25; Ti 2, 9f.
20: Col 3, 17.	6: 1 Pt 2, 18.
22: Col 3, 18-4, 1; 1 Pt 3, 1-7.	9: Col 4, 1.
23: 1 Cor 11, 3; Col

† 5, 21-33: The apostle exhorts married Christians to a strong mutual love. Holding with Genesis 2, 24 that marriage is a divine institution (31), he sees Christian marriage as taking on a new meaning symbolic of the intimate relationship of love between Christ and the church. The wife should serve her husband in the same spirit as that of the church's service to Christ (22ff), and the husband should care for his wife with the devotion of Christ to the church (25-30). In his conclusion Paul gives to the Genesis passage its highest meaning in the light of the union of Christ and the church, of which Christlike loyalty and devotion in Christian marriage is a clear reflection (31ff).

6, 1-9: See note on Colossians 3, 18-4, 1.

member that you and they have a Master in heaven who plays no favorites.

Christian Warfare. <sup>10†</sup> Finally, draw your strength from the Lord and his mighty power. <sup>11*</sup> Put on the armor of God so that you may be able to stand firm against the tactics of the devil. <sup>12*</sup> Our battle is not against human forces but against the principalities and powers, the rulers of this world of darkness, the evil spirits in regions above. <sup>13</sup> You must put on the armor of God if you are to resist on the evil day; do all that your duty requires, and hold your ground. <sup>14*</sup> Stand fast, with the truth as the belt around your waist, justice as your breastplate, <sup>15*</sup> and zeal to propagate the gospel of peace as your footgear. <sup>16*</sup> In all circumstances hold faith up before you as your shield; it will help you extinguish the fiery darts of the evil one. <sup>17*</sup> Take the helmet of salvation and the sword of the spirit, the word of God.

Assiduous Prayer. <sup>18*</sup> At every opportunity pray in the Spirit, using prayers and petitions of every sort. Pray constantly and attentively for all in the holy company. <sup>19*</sup> Pray for me that God may put his word on my lips, that I may courageously make known the mystery of the gospel—<sup>20*</sup> that mystery for which I am an ambassador in chains. Pray that I may have courage to proclaim it as I ought.

Conclusion. <sup>21*†</sup> Tychicus, my dear brother and faithful minister in the Lord, will keep you informed as to how I am and what I am doing. <sup>22</sup> I have sent him to you for the very purpose of giving you news about me for your hearts' consolation.

<sup>23</sup> May God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ grant the brothers peace and love and faith. <sup>24</sup> Grace be with all who love our Lord Jesus Christ with un-failing love.

---

11: 2 Cor 6, 7; 10,	5, 8.
4; Jas 4, 7.	18: Mt 26, 41; Col 4,
12: Col 1, 13.	21.
14: Wis 5, 17-20; Is	19: Acts 4, 29; Col
11, 5; Lk 12, 35;	4, 3; 2 Thes 3,
1 Thes 5, 8.	1.
15: Is 52, 7.	20: 2 Cor 5, 20.
16: 1 Pt 5, 9.	21: Acts 20, 4; Col
17: Is 59, 17; 1 Thes	4, 7; 2 Tm 4, 12.

---

† 6, 10-20: A general exhortation to courage and prayer. Drawing upon the imagery and ideas of Isaiah 11, 5; 59, 16ff; and Wisdom 5, 17-23, Paul describes the Christian in terms of the dress and equipment of the Roman soldier. He observes, however, that the Christian's readiness for combat is not directed against men but against the spiritual powers of evil (10-17). Observe the unique importance he places on prayer (18ff).

‡ 6, 21-24: Tychicus is the bearer of the letter. On the assumption that Ephesians was addressed to several Christian communities (see the Introduction), it is understandable that no greetings to individual members of these communities should have been included in it.

TO THE PHILIPPIANS

The Christian community at Philippi dates from about 50 A.D., when Paul apparently in the company of Luke (Acts 16, 10-40), visited the city on his second missionary journey. On his third journey he again visited Philippi (Acts 20, 1f). The city had a proud history. It was founded by Philip of Macedonia, father of Alexander the Great, and was the scene of the defeat of Mark Antony by Octavian in 42 B.C. After this event it became a Roman colony, and its citizens were granted the right of Roman citizenship. Their esteem for this privilege is reflected in Luke's account of Paul's treatment in Philippi (Acts 16, 35-40).

Describing himself in the present epistle as a prisoner (1, 7.17) facing a possibly unfavorable outcome to his trial (1, 19-26), he three times warns the Philippians against the enemies of their faith (1, 28; 3, 2.18f). He also gives them news of Epaphroditus, one of their number, who had become extremely ill while attending to Paul's needs (2, 25-30). He expresses his own deep affection for the Philippians (1, 3-11), and thanks them warmly for the donations they have sent him (4, 11-20). He exhorts them to be faithful to their vocation (2, 12-18), and to maintain their present unity of belief (2, 1f; 3, 15f; 4, 1), mentioning only one instance of disharmony (4, 2). He ponders the favorable effect his imprisonment has had on the spread of the gospel (1, 12-26), and points to the disinterested sacrifice of Christ as the transcendent formative rule for every Christian action (2, 1-11); proposing his own complete abnegation for the sake of Christ as the example to be followed against the false teaching of the Judaizers (3, 3-18).

The somewhat rambling quality of the epistle has led certain scholars to suggest that several brief letters of Paul to the Philippians were formed into this single composition. The alternative view is that the apostle dictated portions of the letter on separate occasions. Traditionally, Philippians has been assigned to the period of Paul's first Roman imprisonment (61-63 A.D.). In recent years Ephesus has been proposed by a growing number of scholars as the place of composition. It is known to have had a praetorian guard (alluded to in Philippians 4, 22), and therefore probably a judicial authority. It can readily be assumed that Luke did not record all of Paul's imprisonments in Acts; cf 2 Cor 6, 5. Others, however, consider the prison at Caesarea to have been the place (Acts 23, 23.31ff). If the epistle was written in Ephesus, it is to be dated about the year 53; if in Caesarea, about five years later; if in Rome, about 62. Its famous passage on the kenosis or emptying of Christ (2, 5-11), probably taken from a Christian hymn, was of inestimable value for the early Christian understanding of the mystery of the incarnation.

The Epistle to the Philippians is divided as follows:

- Greeting (1, 1f)
- I: The Example of Paul (1, 3-26)
- II: Pleas for Christian Heroism (1, 27—2, 18)
- III: Paul's Assistants and Plans (2, 19-30)
- IV: Christian Dedication (3, 1-21)
- V: Exhortations to Virtue (4, 1-23)

---

CHAPTER 1

Greeting. <sup>1</sup>† Paul and Timothy, servants of Christ Jesus, to all the holy ones at Philippi, with their bishops and deacons in Christ Jesus. <sup>2</sup> Grace and peace be yours from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ!

† 1, 1f: See note on Romans 1, 1-7. Bishops and deacons literally, "overscers and assistants." This structure of the Christian community is similar to that found in the Pastoral Epistles.

I: THE EXAMPLE OF PAUL

Gratitude and Hope. <sup>3*</sup>† I give thanks to my God every time I think of you—<sup>4</sup> which is constantly, in every prayer I utter—rejoicing, as I plead on your behalf, <sup>5</sup> at the way you have all continually helped promote the gospel from the very first day.

<sup>6*</sup> I am sure of this much: that he who has begun the good work in you will carry it through to completion, right up to the day of Christ Jesus. <sup>7</sup> It is only right that I should entertain such expectations in your regard since I hold all of you dear—you who, to a man, are sharers of my gracious lot when I lie in prison or am summoned to defend the solid grounds on which the gospel rests. <sup>8</sup> God himself can testify how much I long for each of you with the affection of Christ Jesus! <sup>9*</sup> My prayer is that your love may more and more abound, both in understanding and wealth of experience, <sup>10*</sup> so that with a clear conscience and blameless conduct you may learn to value the things that really matter, up to the very day of Christ. <sup>11*</sup> It is my wish that you may be found rich in the harvest of justice which Jesus Christ has ripened in you, to the glory and praise of God.

The Spreading Gospel. <sup>12*</sup>† My brothers, I want you to know that my situation has worked out to the furtherance of the gospel. <sup>13</sup> My imprisonment in Christ's cause has become well known throughout the praetorium here, and to others as well; <sup>14</sup> most of my brothers in Christ, taking courage from my chains, have been further emboldened to speak the word of God fearlessly. <sup>15</sup> It is true, some preach Christ from motives of envy and rivalry, but others do so out of good will. <sup>16</sup> Some act from unaffected love, aware that my circumstances provide an opportunity to defend the gospel's cause; <sup>17</sup> others promote Christ, not from pure motives but as an intrigue against me, thinking that it will make my imprisonment even harsher.

<sup>18</sup> What of it? All that matters is that in any and every way, whether from specious motives or genuine ones, Christ is being proclaimed! That is what brings me joy. Indeed, I shall continue to rejoice, <sup>19*</sup> in the conviction that this will turn out to my salvation, thanks to your prayers and the support I receive from the Spirit of Jesus Christ. <sup>20*</sup> I firmly trust and anticipate that I shall never be put to shame for my hopes; I have full confidence that now as always Christ will be exalted through me, whether I live or die. <sup>21*</sup> For, to me, "life" means Christ; hence dying is so much gain. <sup>22</sup> If, on the other hand, I am to go on living in the flesh, that means productive toil for me—and I do not know which to prefer. <sup>23*</sup> I am strongly attracted by both: I long to be freed from this life and to be with Christ, for that is the far better thing; <sup>24</sup> yet it is more urgent that I remain alive for your sakes. <sup>25</sup> This fills me with confidence that I will stay with you, and persevere with you all, for your joy and your progress in the faith. <sup>26</sup> My being with you once again should make you even prouder of me in Christ.

II: PLEAS FOR CHRISTIAN HEROISM

Courage in Professing the Faith. <sup>27*</sup>† Conduct yourselves, then, in a way worthy of the gospel of Christ. If you do, whether I come and see you myself or hear about your behavior from a distance, it will be clear that you are standing firm in unity of spirit and exerting yourselves with one accord for the faith of the gospel. <sup>28</sup> Do not be intimidated by your opponents in any situation. Their opposition foreshadows downfall for them, but salvation for you. All this is as God intends, <sup>29*</sup> for it is your special privilege to take Christ's part—not only to believe in him but also to suffer for him. <sup>30</sup> Yours is the same struggle as mine, the one in which you formerly saw me engaged and now hear that I am caught up.

- |                                   |                              |
|-----------------------------------|------------------------------|
| 1, 3: 1 Thes 1, 2.                | 20: 1 Cor 6, 20; 1 Pt 4, 16. |
| 6: 1 Cor 1, 6ff.                  | 21: Gal 2, 20.               |
| 9: Col 1, 9f; Phlm 6.             | 23: 2 Cor 5, 8.              |
| 10: Rom 2, 18.                    | 27: Col 1, 10, 1 Thes 2, 12. |
| 11: Jn 15, 8.                     | 29: Mt 5, 10ff; Acts 5, 41.  |
| 12f: Eph 3, 1; 6, 20f; 2 Tm 2, 9. |                              |
| 19: Jb 13, 16.                    |                              |

† 1, 3-11: The Philippians' devotion to their faith and to Paul made them his pride and joy. Here he is possibly alluding to their monetary gifts (5f, cf 4, 14ff), and surely to their sufferings for the faith (1, 29f), and he expresses his conviction that the characteristics thus manifested are evidence of the community's preparation for the Lord's parousia (5f). He feels keenly (8) their concern for his apostolic work, which has created a special relationship between them and himself (7). He prays that the love they have shown for him may also affect other phases of their lives so as to prepare them perfectly for the parousia (9ff; see note on 2 Thes 4, 13-18).

1, 12-26: Knowing their concern for his apostolate, Paul informs the Philippians of the positive effect his imprisonment has had upon the spread of the gospel (12ff). He notes, however, that some Christian preachers have been hostile to him personally (15f), a fact that pains him until he recalls that in any case Christ is being made known (18) and that his own pain will contribute to his salvation (19). Facing the possibility of a death sentence, he reflects that for him both life and death take their meaning from Christ (20f). In life he can witness to him (22), in death, which he prefers as the outcome of his imprisonment, he will be finally united to him (23). But the Philippians' need of him makes him confident that he will be released from his imprisonment (24ff).

1, 27-30: He encourages them to hold fast, in the face of opposition, to their faith in the gospel.

CHAPTER 2

Imitating Christ's Humility. <sup>1†</sup> In the name of the encouragement you owe me in Christ, in the name of the solace that love can give, of fellowship in spirit, compassion, and pity, I beg you: <sup>2*</sup> make my joy complete by your unanimity, possessing the one love, united in spirit and ideals. <sup>3*</sup> Never act out of rivalry or conceit; rather, let all parties think humbly of others as superior to themselves, <sup>4*</sup> each of you looking to others' interests rather than of his own. <sup>5</sup> Your attitude must be that of Christ:

- <sup>6*</sup> Though he was in the form of God, he did not deem equality with God something to be grasped at.
<sup>7*</sup> Rather, he emptied himself and took the form of a slave, being born in the likeness of men. He was known to be of human estate, and it was thus that he humbled himself, obediently accepting even death, death on a cross!
<sup>9*</sup> Because of this, God highly exalted him and bestowed on him the name above every other name, <sup>10*</sup> So that at Jesus' name every knee must bend in the heavens, on the earth, and under the earth, <sup>11*</sup> and every tongue proclaim to the glory of God the Father: JESUS CHRIST IS LORD!

Innocence of the Children of God. <sup>12</sup> So then, my dearly beloved, obedient as always to my urging, work with anxious concern to achieve your salvation, not only when I happen to be with you but all the more now that I am absent. <sup>13</sup> It is God who, in his good will toward you, begets in you any measure of desire or achievement. <sup>14</sup> In everything you do, act without grumbling or arguing; <sup>15*</sup> prove yourselves innocent and straightforward, children of God beyond reproach in the midst of a twisted and depraved generation—among whom you shine like the stars in the sky <sup>16*</sup> while holding fast to the word of life. As I look to the Day of Christ, you give me cause to boast that I did not run the race in vain or work to no purpose. <sup>17*</sup> Even if my life is to be poured out as a libation over the sacrificial service of your faith, I am glad of it and rejoice with all of you. <sup>18</sup> May you be glad on the same score, and rejoice with me!

III: PAUL'S ASSISTANTS AND PLANS

Timothy. <sup>19*†</sup> I hope, in the Lord Jesus, to send Timothy to you very soon, that I may derive courage from learning how things go with you. <sup>20</sup> I have no one quite like him for genuine interest in whatever concerns you. <sup>21*</sup> Everyone is busy seeking his own interests rather than those of Christ Jesus. <sup>22</sup> You know from experience what Timothy's qualities are, how he was like a son at his father's side serving the gospel along with me. <sup>23</sup> I hope to send him as soon as I see how things go with me. <sup>24</sup> In fact, I am confident in the Lord that I myself will be coming soon.

Epaphroditus. <sup>25*</sup> I have decided, too, that I must send you Epaphroditus, my brother, co-worker, and comrade in

2, 2: Rom 15, 5.	12: Eph 1, 20-23.
3: Rom 12, 3; 1 Cor 1, 10f; Gal 5, 26.	10: Is 45, 23f; Jn 5, 23; Rom 14, 11; Rv 5, 13.
4: 1 Cor 10, 33; 13, 5.	11: Acts 2, 36; Rom 10, 9.
6: Jn 1, 1f; 17, 5; Heb 1, 3.	15: Mt 10, 16.
7: Is 53, 3; 2 Cor 8, 9; Gal 4, 4; Heb 2, 14, 17.	16: Is 49, 4.
8: Mt 26, 39; Heb 5, 8; 12, 2.	17: Rom 15, 16.
9: Is 52, 12; Mt 23,	19: 1 Cor 4, 17; 16, 10.
	21: 1 Cor 13, 5.
	25: Phil 4, 18.

† 2, 1-11: This passage is composed of two parts: introductory exhortations pleading for unity in the Philippian church and for the elimination of differences that are harmful to the community (1-4); and a panegyric hymn (6-11) which reflects the self-effacement of Christ, the model for Christian service (5). The hymn begins by invoking Christian faith in Jesus' divinity (Though he was in the form of God), and by recalling that, paradoxically, his divinity was concealed throughout his mortal life (6). Divesting himself of his divine prerogatives, not indeed of the divinity itself but of the state of glory rightfully his, and assuming the role of a servant, he presented himself simply as a man (7; cf Is 52, 13-53; 42, 1). Having fully accepted the human condition, he followed it in obedience to the Father even to death on a cross (8). The Father responded by raising him from the dead and placing him at his right hand. The resurrection and ascension are the theological sense of hypsoun, the Greek verb used; cf also Acts 2, 23. God endowed him with his own name (9), so that the name Jesus (Savior) would be identified in the knowledge of every creature with the very same name (Kynos, "Lord") that is addressed to God the Father (2, 10f).

2, 12-18: Paul exhorts his readers further through a reminder that the goal of their endeavors within the community is their salvation (v 12); this is the whole purpose of the divine activity within them (v 13). Consequently, all complaints and disputes harmful to the community should be avoided so that the Philippians may be a shining light to pagans everywhere (14f). They should transmit to the world the life of the gospel and thus become a source of pride for him at the parousia (v 16). If they achieve this, he can rejoice in the sufferings of his imprisonment and they in turn can be happy because of his joy (17f).

2, 19-3, 1: To show his concern for the Philippians, Paul announces his intention of sending them his most trusted assistant in his apostolate—Timothy, whom they already know (cf Acts 16, 1-15). If Paul is released, as he anticipates, he plans a visit to them (19-24). He commends Epaphroditus, whom they had sent to aid him in his imprisonment. He is relieved that Epaphroditus' recovery from a critical illness spares him, Paul, the sorrow of a death in the midst of this display of the Philippians' charity; indicating that as soon as Epaphroditus is well enough to make the journey, he will return to them (25-30). 3, 1 seems to be the beginning of a conclusion to the letter, interrupted by Paul's second thought of adding a strong warning against the teaching of the Judaizers (see notes on Gal 1, 1-5 and 1, 6-10). Some scholars think the verse implies a previous letter to the Philippians, now lost.

arms, whom you sent to take care of my needs. <sup>26</sup> He has been longing for all of you, and was distressed that you heard about his illness. <sup>27</sup> He was, in fact, sick to the point of death, but God took pity on him; not just on him, I should say, but on me, too, so as to spare me one sorrow after another. <sup>28</sup> I have been especially eager to send him so that you may renew your joy on seeing him, and my own anxieties may be lessened. <sup>29</sup> Welcome him joyously in the Lord and hold men like him in esteem, <sup>30</sup> for he came near to death for the sake of Christ's work. He risked his life in an effort to render me those services you could not render.

IV: CHRISTIAN DEDICATION

CHAPTER 3

Breaking with the Past. <sup>1</sup> For the rest, my brothers, rejoice in the Lord. I find writing you these things no burden, and for you it is a safeguard.

<sup>2*</sup>† Beware of unbelieving dogs. Watch out for workers of evil. Be on guard against those who mutilate. <sup>3*</sup> It is we who are the circumcision, who worship in the spirit of God and glory in Christ Jesus rather than putting our trust in the flesh—<sup>4*</sup> though I can be confident even there. If anyone thinks he has a right to put his trust in external evidence, all the more can I! <sup>5*</sup> I was circumcised on the eighth day, being of the stock of Israel and the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrew origins; in legal observance I was a Pharisee, <sup>6*</sup> and so zealous that I persecuted the church. I was above reproach when it came to justice based on the law.

<sup>7</sup> But those things I used to consider gain I have now reappraised as loss in the light of Christ. <sup>8</sup> I have come to rate all as loss in the light of the surpassing knowledge of my Lord Jesus Christ. For his sake I have forfeited everything; I have accounted all else rubbish so that Christ may be my wealth <sup>9*</sup> and I may be in him, not having any justice of my own based on observance of the law. The justice I possess is that which comes through faith in Christ. It has its origin in God and is based on faith. <sup>10*</sup> I wish to know Christ and the power flowing from his resurrection; likewise to know how to share in his sufferings by being formed into the pattern of his death. <sup>11*</sup> Thus do I hope that I may arrive at resurrection from the dead.

<sup>12*</sup> It is not that I have reached it yet, or have already finished my course; but I am racing to grasp the prize if possible, since I have been grasped by Christ [Jesus]. <sup>13</sup> Brothers, I do not think of myself as having reached the finish line. I give no thought to what lies behind but push on to what is ahead. <sup>14*</sup> My entire attention is on the finish line as I run toward the prize to which God calls me—life on high in Christ Jesus. <sup>15</sup> All of us who are spiritually mature must have this attitude. If you see it another way, God will clarify the difficulty for you. <sup>16</sup> It is important that we continue on our course, no matter what stage we have reached.

Christ Our Goal. <sup>17*</sup> Be imitators of me, my brothers. Take as your guide those who follow the example that we set. <sup>18*</sup> Unfortunately, many go about in a way which shows them to be enemies of the cross of Christ. I have often said this to you before; this time I say it with tears. <sup>19*</sup> Such as these will end in disaster! Their god is their belly and their glory is in their shame. I am talking about those who are set upon the things of this world. <sup>20*</sup> As you well know, we have our citizenship in heaven; it is from there that we eagerly await the coming of our Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>21*</sup> He will give a new form to this lowly body of ours and remake it according to the pattern of his glorified body, by his power to subject everything to himself.

3, 2: 2 Cor 11, 13; Rv 22, 15	12: 1 Tm 6, 12
3: Rom 2, 29	14: 1 Cor 9, 24f; 2 Tm 4, 7
4: 2 Cor 11, 18, 21f; Col 2, 11	17: 1 Cor 11, 1; 1 Pt 5, 3
5: Acts 22, 3; 26, 5	18: 1 Cor 1, 17, 23; Gal 6, 12
6: Acts 23, 6	19: Rom 16, 18
9: Rom 3, 21f	20: Eph 2, 6; Col 3, 1f; Heb 12, 22
10: Rom 6, 3ff; 8, 17; Gal 6, 17	21: Rom 8, 23, 29; 2 Cor 15, 43ff
11: Rv 20, 4-6

†

3, 2—4, 1: The Judaizers are called unbelieving dogs (the customary Jewish term at the time for Gentiles, here applied ironically) and workers of evil. Their urging of the religious rite of circumcision upon Christians is regarded as mutilation (2). The apostle declares that Christians, who possess the true worship prefigured by circumcision, have no need of this religious rite (3). He offers himself an example of one reared in the Jewish tradition of circumcision and the law, which he thought it his duty to defend by persecuting the Christian communities (4ff). Because of his faith in Christ he has now abandoned this religious tradition of salvation (7f). He relies solely on Christ for his justice before God, not on his own efforts to observe the law (9). He conforms his life to the sufferings of Christ, that he may know him alone, and experience bodily resurrection through him (10f). This adherence to Christ in faith does not mean that Paul has already ensured his own salvation by arriving at perfect spiritual maturity (12). He strives for still greater perfection, mindful of the meaning of God's call in Christ (13f).

Paul's prayer is that God may correct the Philippians if their attitude in this regard is different, though he sincerely believes they have no need except to make still greater progress (15f). His way and that of his followers are the model for their study (17). He mourns for those in the Christian community who fail to perceive that salvation lies in the cross of Christ, not in food regulations or circumcision (18f). Salvation does not lie in the body but in Christ, who at his second coming, will transform the body (20f). Paul begs the Philippians, in terms of great affection, to adhere firmly to what he has taught (4, 1).

V: EXHORTATIONS TO VIRTUE

CHAPTER 4

Christian Concord. <sup>1*</sup> For these reasons, my brothers, you whom I so love and long for, you who are my joy and my crown, continue, my dear ones, to stand firm in the Lord. <sup>2†</sup> I plead with Evodia just as I do with Syntyche: come to some mutual understanding in the Lord. <sup>3*</sup> Yes, and I ask you, too, my dependable fellow worker, to go to their aid; they have struggled at my side in promoting the gospel, along with Clement and the others who have labored with me, whose names are in the book of life.

Joy and Peace. <sup>4</sup> Rejoice in the Lord always! I say it again. Rejoice! <sup>5*</sup> Everyone should see how unselfish you are. The Lord is near. <sup>6*</sup> Dismiss all anxiety from your minds. Present your needs to God in every form of prayer and in petitions full of gratitude. <sup>7</sup> Then God's own peace, which is beyond all understanding, will stand guard over your hearts and minds, in Christ Jesus.

<sup>8*</sup> Finally, my brothers, your thoughts should be wholly directed to all that is true, all that deserves respect, all that is honest, pure, admirable, decent, virtuous, or worthy of praise. <sup>9*</sup> Live according to what you have learned and accepted, what you have heard me say and seen me do. Then will the God of peace be with you.

Generosity. † <sup>10</sup> It gave me great joy in the Lord that your concern for me bore fruit once more. You had been concerned all along, of course, but lacked the opportunity to show it. <sup>11*</sup> I do not say this because I am in want, for whatever the situation I find myself in I have learned to be self-sufficient. <sup>12*</sup> I am experienced in being brought low, yet I know what it is to have an abundance. I have learned how to cope with every circumstance—how to eat well or go hungry, to be well provided for or do without. <sup>13*</sup> In him who is the source of my strength I have strength for everything.

<sup>14</sup> Nonetheless, it was kind of you to want to share in my hardships. <sup>15</sup> You yourselves know, my dear Philippians, that at the start of my evangelizing, when I left Macedonia, not a single congregation except yourselves shared with me by giving me something for what it had received. <sup>16</sup> Even when I was at Thessalonica you sent something for my needs, not once but twice. <sup>17*</sup> It is not that I am eager for the gift; rather, my concern is for the ever-growing balance in your account. <sup>18*</sup> Herewith is my receipt, which says that I have been fully paid and more. I am well supplied because of what I received from you through Epaphroditus, a fragrant offering, a sacrifice acceptable and pleasing to God.

<sup>19</sup> My God in turn will supply your needs fully, in a way worthy of his magnificent riches in Christ Jesus. <sup>20</sup> All glory to our God and Father for unending ages! Amen.

Farewell. † <sup>21</sup> Give my greetings in Christ Jesus to every member of the church. My brothers here send you theirs, <sup>22</sup> as do all those who believe, particularly those in Caesar's service. <sup>23</sup> May the favor of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

4, 1: 2 Cor 1, 14; 1 Thes 2, 19f.	Tm 6, 6, 12: 1 Cor 4, 11; 2 Cor 6, 10; 11, 27; 12, 9f; Col 1, 29.
3: Ex 32, 32; Ps 69, 29; Lk 10, 20; Rv 3, 5.	13: 2 Cor 12, 10; 2 Tm 4, 17.
5: Ti 3, 2.	17: 1 Tm 6, 19.
6: Mt 6, 25-34; 1 Pt 5, 7.	18: Eph 5, 2; Heb 13, 16.
8: Rom 12, 17.
9: 1 Thes 4, 1.
11: 2 Cor 11, 9; 1

† 4, 2-9: The apostle appeals personally to these two women to reconcile their differences (2) and adds an appeal to his syzygos to aid them in achieving a reconciliation. This word means "comrade, yoke-fellow," and may be a proper name, though no evidence has been found of its use as such (3). Paul wishes the Philippians to be a model community, marked by a joy that will have its effect also upon non-Christians (4f). Mindful of the possible nearness of the parousia (see note on 1 Thes 4, 13-18), the Philippians are not to be overly concerned about their troubles but instead are to resolve them in prayer (5f). Thus they will always be at peace (7). Their thoughts and lives should reflect only what is true, pure, admirable, virtuous or worthy of praise, as exemplified by his own life among them (8f).

4, 10-20: Paul thanks the Philippians for their monetary contribution, brought by Epaphroditus (18). He accepts it gratefully, though not because he needs the money, for with God's help he always manages to provide for his wants (10-13); rather, he appreciates their sharing with him, noting that they are the only community from which he has taken such a gift (14ff). His joy in accepting the gift, more than he actually needed, comes from his certainty that God will reward their charity by fulfilling all their needs in turn (17-20).

4, 21ff: The final greetings, extended to all the members of the Philippian community individually, come not only from Paul but also from the Christians of the place where the letter originated (see Introduction).

TO THE COLOSSIANS

The Christian community at Colossae was not established by Paul, who had never visited there (1, 4; 2, 1), but by Epaphras (1, 7; 4, 12; Phlm 23), to whom Paul refers as a member of the Colossian group. He was probably one of Paul's Ephesian converts. A second likely inference is that he had requested the apostle's aid in the matter of certain religious tenets of non-Christian origin which were influencing the Colossian community. The epistle's two christological passages (1, 15-20; 2, 9-15) are set in contexts suggesting that certain doctrines having to do with angelic spirits (1, 16) and ascetical practices (2, 16) were being advocated at Colossae in a way that detracted from the person of Christ (1, 17-20) and distorted the nature of the Christian life (2, 16-23).

Without entering into debate over the existence of angelic spirits or their function, Paul simply affirms that Christ possesses the sum total of redemptive power (1, 19) and that the spiritual renewal of the human person occurs through contact in baptism with the person of Christ, who died and rose again for man's justification (2, 9-14). It is unnecessary for the Christian to be concerned about placating spirits (2, 15) or avoiding imagined defilement through ascetical practices in regard to food and drink (2, 20-23). True Christian asceticism consists in the conquering of personal sins (3, 5-10) and the practice of love of neighbor in accordance with the standard set by Christ (3, 12-16).

Paul commends the community as a whole (1, 3-8), which seems to indicate that, though the Colossians have been under a certain pressure to adopt the false doctrines, they have not yet succumbed. The apostle expresses his prayerful concern for them (1, 9-14). His preaching has cost him persecution, suffering and imprisonment, but he regards these as the completion of the sufferings of Christ (i.e., the church?), a required discipline for the sake of the Gospel (1, 24—2, 4). His instructions to the Christian family and to slaves and masters require a new spirit of reflection and action. Love, obedience, and service are to be rendered in the Lord (3, 18—4, 1).

Paul wrote the letter to the Colossians while in prison, but his several imprisonments leave the specific place and date of composition uncertain. On this point the same problem of determination exists as with Ephesians and Philippians (see the Introductions to these epistles). The highly developed Christology of Colossians would seem to indicate a later imprisonment, most likely the traditional Roman house arrest in which he enjoyed a certain restricted freedom in preaching (61-63 A.D.).

The Epistle to the Colossians is divided as follows:

- I: Introduction (1, 1-14)
- II: The Preeminence of Christ (1, 15—2, 3)
- III: Warnings against False Teachers (2, 4-23)
- IV: The Ideal Christian Life in the World (3, 1—4, 6)
- V: Conclusion (4, 7-18)

I: INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER 1

Greeting.† 1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, 2 to the holy ones at Colossae, faithful brothers in Christ. May God our Father give you grace and peace.

† 1, 1f: For the epistolary form used by Paul at the beginning of his letters, see note on Romans 1, 1-7. The apostle frequently designates the members of the Christian community as holy ones (literally, "saints"), a term that includes the Old Testament idea of the people of God, and now expresses a relation to Christ. They have been called by God to union with Christ and have experienced the spiritual benefits of this union. The awareness of its helps them to be faithful brothers in Christ, i.e., dedicated to the tasks implied in their calling.

Thanksgiving.† 3* We always give thanks to God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, in our prayers for you 4 because we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and the love you bear toward all the saints—moved as you are by the hope held in store for you in heaven. 5* You heard of this hope through the message of truth, the gospel, 6 which has come to you, has borne fruit, and has continued to grow in your midst, as it has everywhere in the world. This has been the case from the day you first heard it and comprehended God's gracious intention 7 through the instructions of Epaphras, our dear fellow slave, who represents us as a faithful minister of Christ. 8 He it was who told us of your love in the Spirit.

Prayer for Continued Progress.† 9* Ever since we heard this we have been praying for you unceasingly and asking that you may attain full knowledge of his will through perfect wisdom and spiritual insight. 10 Then you will lead a life worthy of the Lord and pleasing to him in every way. You will multiply good works of every sort and grow in the knowledge of God. 11 By the might of his glory you will be endowed with the strength needed to stand fast, even to endure joyfully whatever may come, 12* giving thanks to the Father for having made you worthy to share the lot of the saints in light. 13 He rescued us from the power of darkness and brought us into the kingdom of his beloved Son. 14 Through him we have redemption, the forgiveness of our sins.

II: THE PREMINENCE OF CHRIST

Fullness and Reconciliation. 15*† He is the image of the invisible God, the first-born of all creatures. 16* In him everything in heaven and on earth was created, things visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominations, principalities or powers; all were created through him, and for him. 17 He is before all else that is. In him everything continues in being. 18* It is he who is head of the body, the church; he who is the beginning, the first-born of the dead, so that primacy may be his in everything. 19 It pleased God to make absolute fullness reside in him 20* and, by means of him, to reconcile everything in his person, both on earth and in the heavens, making peace through the blood of his cross.

21† You yourselves were once alienated from him; you nourished hostility in your hearts because of your evil deeds. 22 But now Christ has achieved reconciliation for you in his mortal body by dying, so as to present you to God holy, free of reproach and blame. 23 But you must hold fast to faith, be firmly grounded and steadfast in it, unshaken in the hope promised you by the gospel you have heard. It is the gospel which has been announced to every creature under heaven, and I, Paul, am its servant.

- |                                       |  |
|---------------------------------------|--|
| 1, 3: Eph 1, 15f.                     | Jn 1, 3, 18.                           |
| 5: Eph 1, 13.                         | 16: 1 Cor 8, 6; Eph 1, 10, 21.         |
| 9: Eph 5, 17; Phil 1, 9.              | 18: 1 Cor 15, 20; Eph 1, 22f; Rv 1, 5. |
| 12: Jn 8, 12; Acts 26, 18; 1 Pt 2, 9. | 20: Eph 2, 14, 16.                     |
| 15: Ps 89, 28;                        |  |

†

1, 3-8: Recalling his prayers for them and the deeply satisfying account of them he has received, the apostle congratulates the Colossians upon their acceptance of Christ and their faithful efforts to live his gospel (3ff). For their encouragement he mentions the success of the gospel elsewhere (6), and assures them that his knowledge of their community is accurate since he has been in personal contact with Epaphras, their presumed founder (7).

1, 9-14: Moved by Epaphras' account, the apostle has prayed fervently for the Colossians that their response to the gospel may bring the fullest knowledge of God's will, through perfect wisdom and spiritual insight (9; cf 3, 10). He expects a mutual interaction between their life according to the gospel and this knowledge (10), which will reveal the power of God's presence among them, inspire them to courage and calm determination (11), and result in grateful love of the Father for his saving gifts (12). For he conquers the power of evil over men by offering them the power of his Son, who is his love in person (13) and has already forgiven their sins (14).

1, 15-20: Scholars raise the question whether Paul may not have adapted these verses from a Christian hymn or a Hellenistic wisdom poem. Whatever the case, the passage with all its lycism is probably Paul's. Its exalted Christology synthesizes the growing awareness in New Testament times of Christ as man, Son of God, king and judge of the world, endowed with divine redemptive power, and containing in himself the fullness of that effective presence of God among men which was first manifested in the Old Testament (cf Jn 1, 1-18). Whereas man is patterned after the image of God, being given a certain likeness to him (Gn 1, 26f), Christ is the actual likeness of God. Through faith, the remote reality of the Deity is rendered discernibly present in him and comprehensible to men. He is the image of the invisible God (15), in the sense that as a person he is supreme in every way over all creation. Christ's supremacy requires not only that nothing appear in creation except in relation to him but also that he himself share in the creation of all things (16). Such is his supremacy that he existed before creation came into being. It is to him that creation owes all that it has been, is, and will be (17).

Christ cannot be anything but supreme over the church, which in any case is unthinkable and unrealizable without him (his body). Furthermore, because of his supremacy he was the first to be raised by God from the dead; and his resurrection placed him in full possession of headship over the community which he brought into being (18). Since, as is clear from Christ's role in creation (16), the cosmos is dependent on him (19), his death upon the cross has its effect on the whole of creation without exception, pacifying it and uniting it to God (20). Paul's clear exposition of the supremacy of Christ was occasioned by the Colossians' difficulties concerning the relationship of angelic spirits to the world (see Introduction).

1, 21ff: Paul reminds them that they have experienced the reconciling effect of Christ's death, and appeals to them to adhere firmly to him as their only reconciler with God.

The Mystery: Christ in Us. 24† Even now I find my joy in the suffering I endure for you. In my own flesh I fill up what is lacking in the sufferings of Christ for the sake of his body, the church. 25 I became a minister of this church through the commission God gave me to preach among you his word in its fullness, 26* that mystery hidden from ages and generations past but now revealed to his holy ones. 27* God has willed to make known to them the glory beyond price which this mystery brings to the Gentiles—the mystery of Christ in you, your hope of glory. 28 This is the Christ we proclaim while we admonish all men and teach them in the full measure of wisdom, hoping to make every man complete in Christ. 29* For this I work and struggle, impelled by that energy of his which is so powerful a force within me.

CHAPTER 2

1 I want you to know how hard I am struggling for you and for the Laodiceans and the many others who have never seen me in the flesh. 2* I wish their hearts to be strengthened and themselves to be closely united in love, enriched with full assurance by their knowledge of the mystery of God—namely Christ—3* in whom every treasure of wisdom and knowledge is hidden.

III: WARNINGS AGAINST FALSE TEACHERS

A General Admonition. 4* I tell you all this so that no one may delude you with specious arguments. 5* I may be absent in body but I am with you in spirit, happy to see good order among you and the firmness of your faith in Christ. 6† Continue, therefore, to live in Christ Jesus the Lord, in the spirit in which you received him. 7* Be rooted in him and built up in him, growing ever stronger in faith, as you were taught, and overflowing with gratitude. 8* See to it that no one deceives you through any empty, seductive philosophy that follows mere human traditions, a philosophy based on cosmic powers rather than on Christ.

Sovereign Role of Christ. 9* In Christ the fullness of deity resides in bodily form. Yours is a share of this fullness, in him 10 who is the head of every principality and power. 11* You were also circumcised in him, not with the circumcision administered by hand but with Christ's circumcision which strips off the carnal body completely. 12* In baptism you were not only buried with him but also raised to life with him because you believed in the power of God who raised him from the dead. 13* Even when you were dead in sin and your flesh was uncircumcised, God gave you new life in company with Christ. He pardoned all our sins. 14* He canceled the bond that stood against us with all its claims, snatching it up and nailing it to the cross. 15* Thus did God disarm the principalities and powers. He made a public show of them and, leading them off captive, triumphed in the person of Christ.

Practices Contrary to Faith. 16* No one is free, therefore, to pass judgment on you in terms of what you eat or drink or what you do on yearly or monthly feasts, or on the sabbath. 17* All these were but a shadow of things to come;

26: Rom 16, 25.	11: Jer 4, 4; Rom 2, 25-29; Phil 3, 3.
27: 3, 4.	12: Rom 6, 3f.
29: Phil 4, 13f.	13: Eph 2, 1.
2, 2: Eph 3, 16f.	14: Eph 2, 15.
3: Prv 2, 4f.	15: 2 Cor 2, 14.
4: Eph 4, 14.	16: Rom 14, 3f; 1 Trn 4, 3.
5: Phil 1, 27.	17: Heb 10, 1.
7: Eph 3, 17.
8: Gal 4, 3.
9: Eph 3, 19.

† 1, 24f—2, 5: As the community at Colossae is not personally known to Paul (see Introduction), he here invests his recommendations with greater authority by presenting a brief sketch of his apostolic ministry and sufferings as they reflect those of Christ in behalf of the church (24). The preaching of God's word (25) manifests the divine will to sanctify the Gentiles (26) by revealing God's saving presence among them in Christ (27). It teaches men the God-given wisdom about Christ (28), whose power works mightily in the apostle (29). Even in those communities which do not know him personally (2, 1), he can increase the perception of God in Christ, unite the faithful more firmly in love, and so bring spiritual comfort to them (2). He hopes that his apostolic authority will make the Colossians perceive more readily the defects in the teaching of others who have sought to delude them (4f).

2, 6—3, 4: The Colossians are admonished to adhere to the gospel as it was first preached to them (6), steeping themselves in it with grateful hearts (7). They must reject religious teachings originating in any source except the gospel (8) because in Christ alone will they have access to the divinity (9). So fully has he enlightened them that they need no other source of religious knowledge or virtue (10). They do not require circumcision (11), for in baptism their whole being has been affected by Christ (12) through forgiveness of sin and restoration to a new life (13; cf Rom 6, 1-11).

On the cross Christ canceled the bond that stood against us, with all its claims; i.e., he eliminated the law (cf Eph 2, 15), which men could not observe—and which could not save them. He forgave sins against the law (14), and exposed as false and misleading (15) all other powers which offer salvation to men. Therefore the Colossians are not to judge food and drink or the keeping of religious festivals according to the rule of other religious powers, including angelic spirits (16f), for they thereby risk severing themselves from Christ (19). If, when they accepted the gospel, they believed in Christ as their Savior, they must be convinced that their salvation cannot be achieved by appeasing ruling spirits through dietary practices, or through a wisdom gained simply in virtue of harsh asceticism (20-23). By retaining the message of the gospel that the risen, living Christ is the source of their salvation, they will be free from false religious evaluations of the things of the world (3, 1f). The Colossians, it is true, will not have the personal satisfaction that material religious practices offer. They have died to these; but one day they will live with Christ in the presence of God (3f).

the reality is the body of Christ. <sup>18*</sup> Let no one rob you of your prize by insisting on servility in the worship of angels. Such a one takes his stand on his own experience; he is inflated with empty pride by his human reflections <sup>19</sup> when he should be in close touch with the head. The whole body, mutually supported and upheld by joints and sinews, achieves a growth from this source which comes from God.

<sup>20</sup> If with Christ you have died to cosmic forces, why should you be bound by rules that say, <sup>21</sup> "Do not handle! Do not taste! Do not touch!" as though you were still living a life bounded by this world? <sup>22</sup> Such prescriptions deal with things that perish in their use. They are based on merely human precepts and doctrines. <sup>23</sup> While these make a certain show of wisdom in their affected piety, humility, and bodily austerity, their chief effect is that they indulge men's pride.

IV: THE IDEAL CHRISTIAN LIFE IN THE WORLD

CHAPTER 3

Mystical Death and Resurrection.

<sup>1*</sup> Since you have been raised up in company with Christ, set your heart on what pertains to higher realms where Christ is seated at God's right hand. <sup>2</sup> Be intent on things above rather than on things of earth. <sup>3</sup> After all, you have died! Your life is hidden now with Christ in God. <sup>4</sup> When Christ our life appears, then you shall appear with him in glory.

Renunciation of Vices. <sup>5*</sup> Put to death whatever in your nature is rooted in earth: fornication, uncleanness, passion, evil desires, and that lust which is idolatry. <sup>6*</sup> These are the sins which provoke God's wrath. <sup>7</sup> Your own conduct was once of this sort, when these sins were your very life. <sup>8*</sup> You must put that aside now: all the anger and quick temper, the malice, the insults, the foul language. <sup>9*</sup> Stop lying to one another. What you have done is put aside your old self with its past deeds <sup>10</sup> and put on a new man, one who grows in knowledge as he is formed anew in the image of his Creator. <sup>11*</sup> There is no Greek or Jew here, circumcised or uncircumcised, foreigner, Scythian, slave, or freeman. Rather, Christ is everything in all of you.

The Practice of Virtues. <sup>12*</sup> Because you are God's chosen ones, holy and beloved, clothe yourselves with heartfelt mercy, with kindness, humility, meekness, and patience. <sup>13*</sup> Bear with one another; forgive whatever grievances you have against one another. Forgive as the Lord has forgiven you. <sup>14*</sup> Over all these virtues put on love, which binds the rest together and makes them perfect. <sup>15*</sup> Christ's peace must reign in your hearts, since as members of the one body you have been called to that peace. Dedicate yourselves to thankfulness. <sup>16*</sup> Let the word of Christ, rich as it is, dwell in you. In wisdom made perfect, instruct and admonish one another. Sing gratefully to God from your hearts in psalms, hymns, and inspired songs. <sup>17*</sup> Whatever you do, whether in speech or in action, do it in the name of the Lord Jesus. Give thanks to God the Father through him.

The Christian Family. <sup>18*†</sup> You who are wives, be submissive to your husbands. This is your duty in the Lord. <sup>19</sup> Husbands, love your wives. Avoid any bitterness toward them. <sup>20*</sup> You children, obey your parents in everything as the acceptable way in the Lord. <sup>21*</sup> And fathers, do not nag your children lest they lose heart.

Slaves and Masters. <sup>22*</sup> To slaves I say, obey your human masters perfectly, not with the purpose of attracting attention and pleasing men but in all sincerity and out of reverence for the Lord. <sup>23</sup> Whatever you do, work at it with your whole being. Do it for the Lord rather than for men, <sup>24</sup> since you know full well you will receive an inheritance from him as your reward. Be slaves of Christ the Lord. <sup>25*</sup> Whoever acts unjustly will be repaid for the wrong he has done. No favoritism will be shown.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> You slave owners, deal justly and fairly with your slaves, realizing that you too have a master in heaven.

- |                       |                      |
|-----------------------|----------------------|
| 18: Mt 24, 4          | 35: Eph 4, 32        |
| 3, 1: Phil 3, 20      | 14: Rom 13, 8ff.     |
| 5: Eph 5, 3           | 15: 1 Cor 12, 12;    |
| 6: Rom 1, 18          | Eph 2, 16; 4, 3f     |
| 8: Eph 4, 31          | 16: Eph 5, 19f.      |
| 9: Rom 6, 4, 6; Eph   | 17: 1 Cor 10, 31     |
| 4, 22-25; Heb         | 18: Eph 5, 22; Ti 2, |
| 12, 1; 1 Pt 2, 1;     | 5, 1 Pt 3, 1         |
| 4, 2                  | 20: Eph 6, 1         |
| 11: 1 Cor 12, 13;     | 21: Eph 6, 4         |
| Gal 3, 27f.           | 22: Eph 6, 5; 1 Tm   |
| 12: Eph 4, 11, 32; 1  | 6, 1; Ti 2, 9f; 1    |
| Thes 5, 15            | Pt 2, 18             |
| 13: Mt 6, 14; 18, 21- | 25: Rom 2, 5         |

† 3, 5-17: In lieu of false asceticism and superstitious festivals, the apostle reminds the Colossians of the moral life that is to characterize their response to God through Christ. He urges their participation in the liturgical hymns and prayers that center upon God's plan of salvation in Christ (16f).

3, 18-4, 18: After general recommendations which concern family life and the social condition of slavery with the service of Christ (3, 18-4, 1), Paul requests prayers for him self, especially in view of his imprisonment (2f), and recommends friendly relations and meaningful discussions of Christian teaching with non-Christians (5f). He concludes with greetings and information concerning various Christians known to the Colossians (7-18).

Prayer and Apostolic Spirit. <sup>2*</sup> Pray perseveringly, be attentive to prayer, and pray in a spirit of thanksgiving. <sup>3*</sup> Pray for us, too, that God may provide us with an opening to proclaim the mystery of Christ, for which I am a prisoner. <sup>4</sup> Pray that I may speak it clearly, as I must. <sup>5*</sup> Be prudent in dealing with outsiders; make the most of every opportunity. <sup>6</sup> Let your speech be always gracious and in good taste, and strive to respond properly to all who address you.

V: CONCLUSION

Tychicus and Onesimus. <sup>7*</sup> Tychicus, our dear brother, our faithful minister and fellow slave in the Lord, will give you all the news about me. <sup>8</sup> I am sending him to you for this purpose, and to comfort your hearts. <sup>9*</sup> With him is Onesimus, our dear and faithful brother, who is one of you. They will tell you all that has happened here.

From Paul's Co-workers. <sup>10*</sup> Aristarchus, who is a prisoner along with me, sends you greetings. So does Mark, the cousin of Barnabas. You have received instructions about him: if he comes to you, make him welcome. <sup>11</sup> Jesus known also as Justus sends greetings. These are the only circumcised ones among those who are working with me for the kingdom of God. They have been a great comfort to me. <sup>12*</sup> Epaphras, who is one of you, sends greetings. He is a servant of Christ Jesus who is always pleading earnestly in prayer that you stand firm, that you be perfect and have full conviction about whatever pertains to God's will. <sup>13</sup> I can certainly testify how solicitous he is for you and for those at Laodicea and Hierapolis. <sup>14*</sup> Luke, our dear physician, sends you greetings. So does Demas.

A Message for the Laodiceans. <sup>15</sup> Give our best wishes to the brothers at Laodicea and to Nymphas and the assembly that meets at his house. <sup>16†</sup> Once this letter has been read to you, see that it is read in the assembly of the Laodiceans as well, and that you yourselves read the letter that is coming from Laodicea. <sup>17</sup> To Archippus say, "Take care to discharge the ministry you have received in the Lord."

<sup>18*</sup> This greeting is from Paul—in my own hand! Remember my chains. Grace be with you.

- |  |  |
|--|--|
| 4, 2: Lk 18, 1; Rom12, 12; Eph 6,18-20; 1 Thes 5,17. | 7: Acts 20, 4; Eph6, 21.9: Phlm 10f.10: Acts 19, 29.12: Rom 15, 30.14: 2 Tm 4, 11.18: 1 Cor 16, 21; 2Thes 3, 17. |
| 3: Rom 15, 30;Eph 6, 19;2 Thes 3, 1.5: Eph 5, 15f.   |  |

† 4, 16: The reference is perhaps to a letter Paul wrote to be read in a number of Christian communities in the area of the Lycus Valley, that eventually became known as the letter to the Ephesians (see Ephesians Introduction).

TO THE THESSALONIANS

Paul's formation of a Christian community at Thessalonica on his second missionary journey (Acts 17, 1-9) produced a considerable disturbance among the Jews residing there. To prevent further disorder he and his companion, Silas, agreed to leave the city (Acts 17, 10). However, he revisited the community on his third journey (Acts 20, 1f). Indications from 1 Thessalonians itself and from Acts permit the almost certain conclusion that the epistle was written only a short time after Paul's departure from Thessalonica (1 Thes 2, 17). In that interval he had been in Athens (3, 1; Acts 17, 16), and from there had sent Timothy to the Thessalonians (3, 2). He now writes to them from Corinth (1, 7; Acts 18, 1-18). Gallio is mentioned as proconsul of Achaia (Acts 18, 12-17) during Paul's Corinthian sojourn of more than a year; and since Gallio assumed the office in 51 or 52 A.D., the letter is to be dated at that time.

Paul writes after receiving Timothy's report on the Thessalonian community (3, 6). Deeply grateful for the information it conveys (1, 2f), he is also moved to declare how valuable to his own work the news of their conversion has been (1, 4-10). Probably to offset slanders uttered against him from outside the community after his departure from Thessalonica, he recalls his undemanding manner of life among them (2, 1-12). He reminds them of the prophetic character of the Christian message and relates it to the harassment they continue to suffer at the hands of the Jews (2, 14ff). He is satisfied of their firm adherence to the gospel, and prays that he may be able to visit them soon (3, 6-10). He exhorts them to greater care in carrying out the gospel precepts, particularly those pertaining to right sexual conduct (4, 1-8). He urges them to live peaceably and to avoid idleness (4, 11f).

Paul next turns his attention to the most serious problem which Timothy's visit to the community has brought to light: their excessive sorrow over the death of members of the community, who are thought to be deprived thereby of the joy of the second coming of Christ. Paul appeals to his own knowledge of Christ's teaching to affirm that the resurrection of the dead is to occur before the parousia, so that Christians living at the time are to have no advantage over those who have died (4, 13-18). He reminds them of Christ's words on the suddenness of the parousia and on the need of constant spiritual readiness for it (5, 1-11). He concludes with a request that they esteem those who occupy positions of authority in the community (5, 12f), and show the proper attitude toward one another in the Christian spirit (5, 14f). His final words are a prayer that they may be ready at the glorious coming of Christ (5, 23f).

The epistle is of great doctrinal value, revealing as it does the faith of the community. It also manifests the care and labor which were expended in instructing the Christian communities in New Testament times.

The principal divisions of 1 Thessalonians are as follows:

- I: Introduction (1, 1-10)
- II: Relations with the Thessalonians (2, 1-4, 12)
- III: The Lord's Second Coming (4, 13-5, 28)

---

I: INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER 1

Greeting. <sup>1*</sup>† Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians who belong to God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. Grace and peace be yours.

---

1, 1: Acts 15, 40; 16,

19; 2 Thes 1, 1f.

†

1, 1: For Paul's use of the conventional epistolary form, see note on Romans 1, 1-7.

A Model for Believers.† <sup>2*</sup> We keep thanking God for all of you and we remember you in our prayers, <sup>3</sup> for we constantly are mindful before our God and Father of the way you are proving your faith, and laboring in love, and showing constancy of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>4</sup> We know, too, brothers beloved of God, how you were chosen. <sup>5</sup> Our preaching of the gospel proved not a mere matter of words for you but one of power; it was carried on in the Holy Spirit and out of complete conviction. You know as well as we do what we proved to be like when, while still among you, we acted on your behalf. <sup>6*</sup> You, in turn, became imitators of us and of the Lord, receiving the word despite great trials, with the joy that comes from the Holy Spirit. <sup>7*</sup> Thus you became a model for all the believers of Macedonia and Achaia. <sup>8</sup> The word of the Lord has echoed forth from you resoundingly. This is true not only in Macedonia and Achaia; throughout every region your faith in God is celebrated, which makes it needless for us to say anything more. <sup>9*</sup> The people of those parts are reporting what kind of reception we had from you, and how you turned to God from idols, to serve him who is the living and true God <sup>10*</sup> and to await from heaven the Son he raised from the dead—Jesus, who delivers us from the wrath to come.

II: RELATIONS WITH THE THESSALONIANS

CHAPTER 2

Paul's Sincerity. † You know well enough, brothers, that our coming among you was not without effect. <sup>2*</sup> Fresh from the humiliation we had suffered at Philippi—about which you know—we drew courage from our God to preach his good tidings to you in the face of great opposition. <sup>3</sup> The exhortation we deliver does not spring from deceit or impure motives or any sort of trickery; <sup>4*</sup> rather, having met the test imposed on us by God, as men entrusted with the good tidings, we speak like those who strive to please God, “the tester of our hearts,” rather than men. <sup>5</sup> We were not guilty, as you well know, of flattering words or greed under any pretext, as God is our witness! <sup>6*</sup> Neither did we seek glory from men, you or any others, <sup>7</sup> even though we could have insisted on our own importance as apostles of Christ.

On the contrary, while we were among you we were as gentle as any nursing mother fondling her little ones. <sup>8</sup> So well disposed were we to you, in fact, that we wanted to share with you not only God's tidings but our very lives, so dear had you become to us. <sup>9*</sup> You must recall, brothers, our efforts and our toil: how we worked day and night all the time we preached God's good tidings to you in order not to impose on you in any way. <sup>10</sup> You are witnesses, as is God himself, of how upright, just, and irrepachable our conduct was toward you who are believers. <sup>11*</sup> You likewise know how we exhorted every one of you, as a father does his children—<sup>12*</sup> how we encouraged and pleaded with you to make your lives worthy of the God who calls you to his kingship and glory. <sup>13†</sup> That is why we thank God constantly that in receiving his message from us you took it, not as the word of men, but as it truly is, the word of God at work within you who believe.

Partnership in Suffering. <sup>14</sup> Brothers, you have been made like the churches of God in Judea which are in Christ Jesus. You suffered the same treatment from your fellow countrymen as they did from the Jews <sup>15*</sup> who killed the Lord Jesus and the prophets, and persecuted us. Displeasing to God and hostile to all mankind, <sup>16*</sup> they try to keep us from preaching salvation to the Gentiles. All this time they have been “filling up their

2: 2 Thes 1, 3.

6: Acts 13, 52; 17, 1-9.

7: 2 Thes 1, 4.

9: Acts 14, 15; Gal 4, 8.

10: Acts 17, 31;

Rom 5, 9.

2, 2: Acts 16, 19-40.

4: Gal 1, 10.

6: Jn 5, 41, 44.

9: Acts 20, 34; 2 Thes 3, 7-9.

11: Acts 20, 31.

12: Phil 1, 27; 1 Pt 5, 10.

15: Acts 2, 23; 7, 52.

16: 2 Mc 6, 14.

†

1, 2-10: The apostle expresses his satisfaction that the three principal Christian characteristics, faith, hope and love, are at work in the Thessalonian community (2f). Unhesitatingly he places its members among those specially beloved and chosen by God (4); recalling that his preaching of the gospel to them was not received as a mere intellectual exercise but had made a strong actual impact on their lives (5) which not even the opposition of unbelievers could dispel (6). Their faith has been an inspiration to Christians elsewhere (7), who have been impressed especially by the Thessalonians' complete abandonment of idolatry for the worship of the true God, and by their profound orientation toward the second coming of Jesus (9f).

2, 1-12: Paul had experienced such great opposition in Thessalonica that he had to be secretly escorted from the city (Acts 17, 1-10). It is probably the memory of this which underlies the present words recalling his selflessness in preaching the gospel to them (1-7), his affection for them (8f), and the pleasant relationships he established with them (10ff).

2, 13-16: The apostle is grateful because the Thessalonians accepted his preaching as a message from God and not as a mere human communication (13). This perception has enabled them, as well as the Judaea-Christians of Jerusalem, to be steadfast in the face of persecution (14). Paul condemns the active Jewish opposition to the gospel, branding it as sinful and worthy of divine punishment (15f).

quota of sins," but the wrath has descended upon them at last.

<sup>17</sup>*† Brothers, when we were orphaned by separation from you for a time—in sight, not in mind—we were seized with the greatest longing to see you. <sup>18</sup> So we tried to come to you—I, Paul, tried more than once—but Satan blocked the way. <sup>19</sup>* Who, after all, if not you, will be our hope or joy, or the crown we exult in, before our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming? <sup>20</sup> You are our boast and our delight.

CHAPTER 3

Mission of Timothy. <sup>1</sup>*† That is why, when we could endure it no longer, we decided to remain alone at Athens <sup>2</sup>* and send you Timothy. He is our brother and God's fellow worker in preaching the gospel of Christ, and so we sent him to strengthen and encourage you in regard to your faith <sup>3</sup> lest any one of you be shaken by these trials. You know well enough that such trials are our common lot. <sup>4</sup>* When we were still with you, we used to warn you that we would undergo trial; now it has happened, and you know what we meant. <sup>5</sup> That is why I sent to find out about your faith when I could stand the suspense no longer, fearing that the tempter had put you to the test and all our labor might have gone for nothing. <sup>6</sup> But now, brothers, since Timothy has returned to us from you reporting the good news of your faith and love, and telling us that you constantly remember us and are as desirous to see us as we are to see you, <sup>7</sup> we have been much consoled by your faith throughout our distress and trial—<sup>8</sup> so much so that we shall continue to flourish only if you stand firm in the Lord!

Plea for Growth in Holiness. <sup>9</sup> What thanks can we give to God for all the joy we feel in his presence because of you, <sup>10</sup> as we ask him fervently night and day that we may see you face to face and remedy any shortcomings in your faith? <sup>11</sup>*† May God himself, who is our Father, and our Lord Jesus make our path to you a straight one! <sup>12</sup>* And may the Lord increase you and make you overflow with love for one another and for all, even as our love does for you. <sup>13</sup>* May he strengthen your hearts, making them blameless and holy before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all his holy ones.

CHAPTER 4

Chastity and Charity.† <sup>1</sup> Now, my brothers, we beg and exhort you in the Lord Jesus that even as you learned from us how to conduct yourselves in a way pleasing to God—which you are indeed doing—so you must learn to make still greater progress. <sup>2</sup> You know the instructions we gave you in the Lord Jesus. <sup>3</sup> It is God's will that you grow in holiness: that you abstain from immorality, <sup>4</sup> each of you guarding his member in sanctity and honor, <sup>5</sup> not in passionate desire as do the Gentiles who know not God; <sup>6</sup> and that each refrain from overreaching or cheating his brother in the matter at hand; for the Lord is an avenger of all such things, as we once indicated to you by our testimony. <sup>7</sup> God has not called us to immorality but to holiness; <sup>8</sup> hence, whoever rejects these instructions rejects, not man, but God who sends his Holy Spirit upon you.

<sup>9</sup>* As regards brotherly love, there is no need for me to write you. God himself has taught you to love one another, <sup>10</sup> and this you are doing with respect to all the brothers throughout Macedonia. Yet we exhort you to even greater progress, brothers. <sup>11</sup>* Make it a point of honor to remain at peace and attend to your own affairs. Work with your hands as we directed you to do, <sup>12</sup> so that you will give good example to outsiders and want for nothing.

- |                             |                                    |
|-----------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 17: 3, 10; Rom 1, 10f.      | 12: 2 Thes 1, 3.                   |
| 19: 2 Cor 1, 14.            | 13: 5, 23; 1 Cor 1, 8.             |
| 3, 1: Acts 17, 14f.         | 4, 9: Jn 6, 45; 13, 34; 1 Jn 4, 7. |
| 2: Acts 16, 1f.             | 11: 2 Thes 3, 6-12.                |
| 4: Acts 14, 22; 2 Tm 3, 12. |                                    |

† 2, 17-20: Twice had Paul made an effort to visit the community at Thessalonica, only to be "blocked by Satan"—an expression which probably refers to the situation in Thessalonica itself; cf 3, 5.

3, 1-10: Troubled by the lack of news concerning the Thessalonians, Paul had sent Timothy to them as his representative. Timothy's report was reassuring (6ff) except as regards certain possible shortcomings in their faith (10). Paul is probably dealing with these defects concretely in chapters 4 and 5 of the epistle.

3, 11f: The theme of this prayer is solidarity: between Paul and the Thessalonian Christians (his prospective visit); among themselves; between them and all men (Christian love); and between them and God (holiness).

4, 1-12: To conserve their holiness they are to recall what the apostle taught them in the name of Christ at the time of their conversion (1f). Fornication and all sexual misconduct are to be avoided (3-6), in consideration of the truth that God sanctifies his faithful by the presence of the Holy Spirit (7f). They have heeded Christ's message of love of neighbor and should improve it within the community (9f). He urges that they concern themselves with their own affairs, each laboring faithfully to earn his own living and all presenting a good example to the outside world (11f; cf 5, 14; 2 Thes 3, 10f).

III: THE LORD'S SECOND COMING

Witnessed by the Dead.† <sup>13</sup> We would have you be clear about those who sleep in death, brothers; otherwise you might yield to grief, like those who have no hope. <sup>14</sup>* For if we believe that Jesus died and rose, God will bring forth with him from the dead those also who have fallen asleep believing in him. <sup>15</sup>* We say to you, as if the Lord himself had said it, that we who live, who survive until his coming, will in no way have an advantage over those who have fallen asleep. <sup>16</sup>* No, the Lord himself will come down from heaven at the word of command, at the sound of the archangel's voice and God's trumpet; and those who have died in Christ will rise first. <sup>17</sup> Then we, the living, the survivors, will be caught up with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. Thenceforth we shall be with the Lord unceasingly. Console one another with this message.

CHAPTER 5

The Need for Preparation.† <sup>1</sup>* As regards specific times and moments, brothers, we do not need to write you; <sup>2</sup>* you know very well that the day of the Lord is coming like a thief in the night. <sup>3</sup> Just when people are saying, "Peace and security," ruin will fall on them with the suddenness of pains overtaking a woman in labor, and there will be no escape. <sup>4</sup>* You are not in the dark, brothers, that the day should catch you off guard, like a thief. <sup>5</sup>* No, all of you are children of light and of the day. We belong neither to darkness nor to night; <sup>6</sup>* therefore let us not be asleep like the rest, but awake and sober! <sup>7</sup> Sleepers sleep by night and drunkards drink by night. <sup>8</sup>* We who live by day must be alert, putting on faith and love as a breastplate and the hope of salvation as a helmet. <sup>9</sup> God has not destined us for wrath but for acquiring salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>10</sup> He died for us, that all of us, whether awake or asleep, together might live with him. <sup>11</sup> Therefore, comfort and upbuild one another, as indeed you are doing.

Christian Conduct.† <sup>12</sup> We beg you, brothers, respect those among you whose task it is to exercise authority in the Lord and admonish you; <sup>13</sup> esteem them with the greatest love because of their work. Remain at peace with one another. <sup>14</sup> We exhort you to admonish the unruly; cheer the fainthearted; support the weak; be patient toward all. <sup>15</sup>* See that no one returns evil to any other; always seek one another's good and, for that matter, the good of all.

<sup>16</sup> Rejoice always, <sup>17</sup> never cease praying, <sup>18</sup>* render constant thanks; such is God's will for you in Christ Jesus.

<sup>19</sup> Do not stifle the Spirit. <sup>20</sup> Do not despise prophecies. <sup>21</sup> Test everything; retain what is good. <sup>22</sup> Avoid any semblance of evil.

Blessing and Greeting. <sup>23</sup>*† May the God of peace make you perfect in holiness. May he preserve you whole and entire, spirit, soul, and body, irreprouchable at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>24</sup> He who calls us is trustworthy, therefore he will do it.

<sup>25</sup> Brothers, pray for us too.

<sup>26</sup> Greet all the brothers with a holy embrace. <sup>27</sup>† I adjure you by the Lord that this letter be read to them all.

<sup>28</sup> May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

14: 1 Cor 15, 3f; 2 Cor 12, 20.	6: Mt 24, 42; Rom 13, 12f; 1 Pt 5, 8.
15: 1 Cor 15, 51.	8: Eph 6, 11-14; 17; Is 59, 17.
16: Mt 24, 31; 1 Cor 15, 23, 52.	8: Eph 6, 11-14; 17; Is 59, 17.
5, 1-3: Mt 24, 36-45.	15: Prv 20, 22; Mt 5, 38; Rom 12, 17.
2: 2 Pt 3, 10.	18: Eph 5, 20.
4: Eph 5, 8f.	23: 2 Thes 3, 16.
5: Jn 8, 12.

† 4, 13-18: Here Paul takes up the practice among the Thessalonians of mourning excessively for their dead (13), a reaction deriving from the stress placed by the community on the proximity of the parousia; cf 1, 10. The apostle reminds them of the Christian doctrine of the resurrection of the dead in Christ (14). On the basis of Christ's teaching, he affirms that the resurrection of the dead is to precede the second coming. Those who are alive at the time of the latter will not have the advantage over the dead of being the first witnesses to it (15), for the Lord will first command the dead to rise (16); the living will then join them and both groups will be witnesses of the parousia (17); this and the preceding verse reflect the traditional apocalyptic imagery for an act of God.

The doctrine spoken of here is to be recalled when future bereavements overtake the community (18). Since Paul does not know the time of the parousia (5, 2; Mt 24, 43) he aligns himself with the Thessalonians (we . . . who survive, 15) in the hope of living until that day, i.e., within the first Christian generation. In his mind such a possibility seems not to have been excluded by the teaching of Jesus himself.

5, 1-11: Paul does not wish his criticism of the Thessalonians' grief over their dead to de-emphasize the doctrine of the parousia itself; he commends the importance they accord it and its influence over their lives. They know how unexpected, sudden, and certain it will be (1ff); therefore they are to live in constant anticipation of it, for it will determine their salvation (4-11).

5, 12-22: Respect and love are due to those who hold positions of authority in the community (12f); possibly the presbyters are meant; cf Acts 14, 23. It is the duty of all to reprove and strengthen those who fail in their Christian duty and to show patience toward nonbelievers, especially by quenching the spirit of revenge (14f). The spirit of joy, prayer, and thanksgiving must prevail (16f). Due respect is to be shown to the champions of prophecy, but its authentic presence is not to be admitted uncritically (19f), as evil may make its entrance even by this door (22).

5, 23ff: The burden of the apostle's prayer is the sanctification of the community (cf 3, 13-4, 12) in preparation for the second coming of Christ.

5, 27: The public reading of the Pauline letters is the method to be employed for insuring their acceptance by the Christian assembly as the word of God.

TO THE THESSALONIANS

Most scholars accept the authenticity of the second letter to the Thessalonians, as being written in Paul's characteristic language and style. Both letters were written from Corinth, and within a short time of each other, since they show that the apostle is still accompanied by his companions of the second missionary journey, Silas and Timothy (2 Thes 1, 1; Acts 18, 5).

Despite the remarkable literary similarities in the letters, however, the second is the more impersonal, its approach to the subject being somewhat set and formal in tone. The explanation may well lie in the apostle's own less serene circumstances and state of mind, as well as in the disturbing news he had received from Thessalonica after the first letter was written.

He himself is experiencing the difficulties caused by confused and evil men (2 Thes 3, 1ff). Meanwhile, persecution against the Thessalonian Christians has intensified (2 Thes 1, 3-10), and the situation among them is worsened by idleness due to the spreading expectation of the parousia (2 Thes 3, 6-12), despite Paul's admonitions in his first letter. He now repeats that the community's life is not to be guided by the false belief that the second coming is imminent, i.e., a day-to-day possibility, whether the alleged source of the belief be the oracular utterance of a self-styled prophet or a letter supposedly written by himself (2 Thes 2, 1ff). He originally taught the Thessalonians, he reminds them, that certain religious events must occur before the parousia can be expected (2 Thes 2, 3-12). Finally, he knows that the community has its refractory members from whom he cannot anticipate simple acquiescence to his teaching, and he gives directions regarding them (2 Thes 3, 14).

The letters to the Thessalonians present incontrovertible evidence that the expectation of the parousia played a capital role in the development of New Testament thought. There is no evidence that this expectation attained in other communities the strength it came to exert in Thessalonica; but the data of 1 and 2 Thessalonians compel its recognition as a conditioning element in the presentation of doctrine while the literature of the New Testament developed.

The principal divisions of 2 Thessalonians are as follows:

- I: Introduction (1, 1-12)
- II: The Lord's Second Coming (2, 1-17)
- III: Exhortation (3, 1-18)

I: INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER 1

Greeting.† <sup>1*</sup> Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians who belong to God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>2</sup> Grace and peace be yours from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Praise for the Church at Thessalonica. <sup>3**†</sup> It is no more than right that we thank God unceasingly for you, brothers, because your faith grows apace and your mutual love increases; <sup>4</sup> so much so that in God's communities we can boast of your constancy and your faith in persecution and trial. You endure these <sup>5*</sup> as an expression of God's just judgment, in order to be found worthy of his kingdom—it is for his kingdom you suffer—<sup>6</sup> even if strict justice would require that God visit hardships on those who visit them on you. <sup>7</sup> He will provide relief to you who are sorely tried, as well as to us, when the Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven with his mighty angels; <sup>8*</sup> when "with flaming power he will inflict punishment on those who do not ac-

1, 1: 1 Thes 1, 1.
3: 1 Thes 1, 2.
5: 1 Thes 3, 4.

8: Ps 79, 6; Is 66,
15; Jer 10, 25.

† 1, 1f: On the address and greeting, see note on Romans 1, 1-7.

1, 3-12: The Thessalonian community is encouraged to stand fast under the severe trial they are experiencing (3f). God's just judgment will bring relief to the afflicted as well as punishment to the persecutors (6-10). The harassment of the community seems to have intensified during the interval between the writing of 1 and 2 Thessalonians; cf 1 Thes 2, 14ff. This plight may well have contributed to the notion that the parousia was near. Paul considers this question in 2, 1-12.

knowledge God nor heed" the good news of our Lord Jesus. <sup>9</sup> Such as these will suffer the penalty of eternal ruin apart from the presence of the Lord and the glory of his might <sup>10*</sup> on the Day when he comes, to be glorified in his holy ones and adored by all who have believed— for you already have our witness to you.

Prayer for Their Progress. <sup>11*</sup> We pray for you always that our God may make you worthy of his call, and fulfill by his power every honest intention and work of faith. <sup>12</sup> In this way the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you and you in him, in accord with the gracious gift of our God and of the Lord Jesus Christ.

II: THE LORD'S SECOND COMING

CHAPTER 2

Adversary Restrained. † <sup>1*</sup> On the question of the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our being gathered to him, we beg you, brothers, <sup>2</sup> not to be so easily agitated or terrified, whether by an oracular utterance, or rumor, or a letter alleged to be ours, into believing that the day of the Lord is here.

<sup>3</sup> Let no one seduce you, no matter how. Since the mass apostasy has not yet occurred nor the man of lawlessness been revealed—that son of perdition <sup>4</sup> and adversary who exalts himself above every so-called god proposed for worship, he who seats himself in God's temple and even declares himself to be God—<sup>5</sup> do you not remember how I used to tell you about these things when I was still with you? <sup>6</sup> You know what restrains him until he shall be revealed in his own time. <sup>7*</sup> The secret force of lawlessness is already at work, mind you, but there is one who holds him back until that restrainer shall be taken from the scene. <sup>8*</sup> Thereupon the lawless one will be revealed, and the Lord Jesus will destroy him with the breath of his mouth and annihilate him by manifesting his own presence. <sup>9*</sup> This lawless one will appear as part of the workings of Satan, accompanied by all the power and signs and wonders at the disposal of falsehood—<sup>10</sup> by every seduction the wicked can devise for those destined to ruin because they have not opened their hearts to the truth in order to be saved. <sup>11</sup> Therefore God is sending upon them a perverse spirit which leads them to give credence to falsehood, <sup>12</sup> so that all who have not believed the truth but have delighted in evildoing will be condemned.

Encouraging Words. † <sup>13*</sup> We are bound to thank God for you always, beloved brothers in the Lord, because you are the first fruits of those whom God has chosen for salvation, in holiness of spirit and fidelity to truth. <sup>14*</sup> He called you through our preaching of the good news so that you might achieve the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore, brothers, stand firm. Hold fast to the traditions you received from us, either by our word or by letter. <sup>16</sup> May our Lord Jesus Christ himself, may God our Father who loved us and in his mercy gave us eternal consolation and hope, <sup>17</sup> console your hearts and strengthen them for every good work and word.

III: EXHORTATION

CHAPTER 3

Request for Prayers. † <sup>1*</sup> For the rest, brothers, pray for us that the word of the Lord may make progress and be hailed by many others, even as it is has been by you. <sup>2</sup> Pray that we may be delivered from confused and evil men. For 10: Ps 89, 8.	13: 1 Thes 2, 13; 1

11: Phil 2, 13.	Pl 1, 2.
2, 1: 1 Thes 4, 13-17.	14: 1 Thes 4, 7; 5,
7: Acts 20, 29.	9.
8: Is 11, 4; Rv 19,	3, 1: Eph 6, 19; Col 4,
15.	3.
9: Mt 24, 24.

†

2, 1-12: Though the parousia is certain (1), the Thessalonians are not to expect it to occur at almost any time in the immediate future. No appeal to an utterance of a self-styled prophet or to any supposed letter of Paul justifies such an expectation (2). They should not allow themselves to be duped into this way of thinking, for a religious apostasy is destined to precede the Lord's second coming. It will be embodied in the man of lawlessness, a personage totally dedicated to evil, that son of perdition marked for eternal doom (vv 3ff); cf Jn 17, 12. In the epistles of John he is usually identified with the antichrist (1 Jn 2, 18, 22; 4, 3; 2 Jn 7). He will be anti-God and will himself lay claim to divine honors (4).

During Paul's stay at Thessalonica (Acts 17, 1-9) he instructed the people on this subject (5). Now he wishes to add that there is a restraining power which prevents the man of lawlessness from coming into his own (6). The secret force of lawlessness, though already at work, is held down now by a restraining power (7), the nature of which Paul does not explain. While the restraint continues, the parousia cannot occur; but when it is removed, the lawless one will make his appearance accompanied by all the panoply of satanic power (vv 8f). He will bring some to ruin (10), but is destined to be destroyed by Jesus' coming (8). God acts toward the impious in such a way as to allow them to become confirmed in evil (11; cf Rom 1, 24f) through their deliberate rejection of the truth (12).

2, 13-17: The Christian faithful are on the path of salvation. They have received, through the medium of Paul's preaching, the divine gift of sanctification that flows from faith in the gospel (13); it is the first step toward ultimate participation in Christ's glory (14). They are not to depart from the instructions given them at the time of their conversion (cf Acts 17, 1-9) nor from those contained in Paul's previous letter (1 Thes 2, 15). The apostle's prayer is that God may comfort and strengthen them as they strive to live out the gospel in their own lives (16f).

3, 1-5: Paul requests prayers that his preaching of the gospel may continue to be successful (1), and he himself may be free from hindrance by the wicked (2). He is confident that the Lord will preserve the faith of the community (3) and help them to carry out faithfully all that has been enjoined upon them (4). A second prayer reminds them that the goal of their efforts is to love God through patient acceptance of trials, inspired by the example of Christ (5).

not every man has faith, but <sup>3*</sup> the Lord keeps faith; he it is who will strengthen you and guard you against the evil one. <sup>4*</sup> In the Lord we are confident that you are doing and will continue to do whatever we enjoin. <sup>5</sup> May the Lord rule your hearts in the love of God and the constancy of Christ.

Dealing with the Idle.† <sup>6†</sup> We command you, brothers, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, to avoid any brother who wanders from the straight path and does not follow the tradition you received from us. <sup>7</sup> You know how you ought to imitate us. We did not live lives of disorder when we were among you, <sup>8*</sup> nor depend on anyone for food. Rather, we worked day and night, laboring to the point of exhaustion so as not to impose on any of you. <sup>9*</sup> Not that we had no claim on you, but that we might present ourselves as an example for you to imitate. <sup>10*</sup> Indeed, when we were with you we used to lay down the rule that anyone who would not work should not eat.

<sup>11*</sup> We hear that some of you are unruly, not keeping busy but acting like busybodies. <sup>12</sup> We enjoin all such, and we urge them strongly in the Lord Jesus Christ, to earn the food they eat by working quietly.

<sup>13</sup> You must never grow weary of doing what is right, brothers.

<sup>14</sup> If anyone will not obey our injunction, delivered through this letter, single him out to be ostracized that he may be ashamed of his conduct. <sup>15*</sup> But do not treat him like an enemy; rather, correct him as you would a brother.

Final Blessing and Greeting. <sup>16*</sup> May he who is the Lord of peace give you continued peace in every possible way. The Lord be with you all.

<sup>17*†</sup> This greeting is in my own hand—Paul's. I append this signature to every letter I write.

<sup>18</sup> May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all.

---

3: Mt 6, 13; 1 Thes 5, 34.	11: 1 Thes 5, 14.
4: 2 Cor 7, 16.	15: 2 Cor 2, 7; Gal 6, 1.
8: 1 Thes 2, 9.	16: Jn 14, 27.
9: Mt 10, 10.	17: Gal 6, 11.
10: 1 Thes 4, 11.

---

† 3, 6-15: Some members of the community, whether in good or bad faith, have ceased to work for a living; they claim to regard money as useless in view of the imminence of the parousia (cf 2, 1-12), and consequently depend upon others for sustenance (8-10). This result of their false expectation has posed a perplexing problem to the charitable of the community. Stringent measures are to be taken against them: avoidance of voluntary association with them (6); refusal to support them gratuitously (10); and a gradual but firm exclusion of them from the community (14).

3, 17: The apostle takes up the pen himself, evidence that he normally engaged a secretary in the composition of his epistles. Out of fear of possible forgeries composed in his name (2, 2), he points to the unusually large Greek letters that characterize his handwriting.

TO TIMOTHY

The three letters, 1 and 2 Timothy, and Titus, were first named "pastoral epistles" in the eighteenth century. From the late second century to the nineteenth, their Pauline authorship went unchallenged. Since then, discussion of that question has reached an impasse. Some scholars are convinced that Paul could not have been responsible for the vocabulary and style of the letters, their concept of church organization, or the theological expressions found in them. Others believe just as firmly that, on the basis of statistical evidence, the vocabulary and style are Pauline, even if at first sight the contrary appears to be the case; that the concept of church organization in these epistles is not as advanced as the opponents of Pauline authorship make it out to be, the notion of a hierarchical order in a religious community having existed among the Jews even before the time of Christ, as the scrolls of Qumran indicate; and, finally, that there are affinities between the theological thought of the pastorals and that of unquestionably genuine letters of Paul. A third group, while conceding a degree of validity to the position of the other two, suggests that either the apostle made use of a secretary (possibly Luke; see 2 Tm 4, 11) who was responsible for the composition of the letters, or that they are the work of an anonymous writer compiling traditions about Paul in his later years.

The problem of the literary authorship of the pastorals has not disproved the authenticity of their content. If Paul is considered their more immediate author, they are to be dated between the end of his first Roman imprisonment (Acts 28, 16) and his execution under Nero (63-67 A.D.); if they are regarded as only more remotely Pauline, their date may be as late as the early second century.

The first of the pastorals, 1 Timothy is presented as having been written from Macedonia. Timothy, whom Paul converted, was of mixed Jewish and Gentile parentage (Acts 16, 1ff). He was the apostle's companion on both the second and third missionary journeys (Acts 16, 3; 19, 22), and was often sent by him on special missions (1 Thes 3, 2; 1 Cor 4, 17; Acts 19, 22). In 1 Timothy (1, 3) he is described as the administrator of the entire Ephesian community. The epistle instructs him on his duty to restrain false and useless teaching (1, 3-11; 4, 1-5; 6, 3-16); proposes principles pertaining to his relationship to the older members of the community (5, 1f) and to the presbyters (5, 17-25); gives rules for aid to widows (5, 3-8), and their selection for charitable ministrations (5, 9-16); deals with liturgical celebrations (2, 1-15), the selection of men for the offices of bishop and deacon (3, 1-13), the relations of slaves and their masters (6, 1f), and the obligations of the wealthier members of the community (6, 17ff). It also reminds Timothy of the prophetic character of his office (1, 12-18), and encourages him in his exercise of it (4, 6-16). The central passage of the letter (3, 14ff) expresses the chief motive that should guide the conduct of Timothy—preservation of the purity of the church's doctrine. On this same note the epistle concludes (6, 20-21).

CHAPTER 1

† Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by command of God our savior and Christ Jesus our hope, 2* to Timothy, my own true child in faith. May grace, mercy, and peace be yours from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

On Holding Fast to Sound Doctrine.

‡ I repeat the directions I gave you when I was on my way to Macedonia: stay on in Ephesus in order to warn certain people there against teaching false doctrines 4* and busying themselves with interminable myths and genealogies, which promote idle speculations rather than that training in faith which God requires.

5 What we are aiming at in this warning is the love that springs from a pure

1, 2: Acts 16, 1. 14.16; Ti 3, 9.
4: 6, 4.20; 2 Tm 2,

†

1, 1f: For Pauline use of the conventional epistolary form, see note on Romans 1, 1-7.

1, 3-7: Here Timothy's initial task in Ephesus (cf Acts 20, 17-35) is outlined: to suppress the idle religious speculations, probably about Old Testament figures (3f), which do not contribute to the development of love within the community (v 5) but rather encourage others to similar useless conjectures. (1, 6f).

heart, a good conscience, and sincere faith. <sup>6</sup>Some people have neglected these and instead have turned to meaningless talk, <sup>7</sup>wanting to be teachers of the law but actually not understanding the words they are using, much less the matters they discuss with such assurance.

<sup>8*</sup>† We know that the law is good, provided one uses it in the way law is supposed to be used— <sup>9</sup>that is, with the understanding that it is aimed, not at good men but at the lawless and unruly, the irreligious and the sinful, the wicked and the godless, men who kill their fathers or mothers, murderers, <sup>10</sup>fornicators, sodomites, kidnapers, liars, perjurers, and those who in other ways flout the sound teaching <sup>11</sup>that pertains to the glorious gospel of God—blessed be he—with which I have been entrusted.

<sup>12</sup>† I thank Christ Jesus our Lord, who has strengthened me, that he has made me his servant and judged me faithful. <sup>13*</sup> I was once a blasphemer, a persecutor, a man filled with arrogance; but because I did not know what I was doing in my unbelief, I have been treated mercifully, <sup>14</sup>and the grace of our Lord has been granted me in overflowing measure, along with the faith and love which are in Christ Jesus. <sup>15*</sup> You can depend on this as worthy of full acceptance: that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. Of these I myself am the worst. <sup>16</sup> But on that very account I was dealt with mercifully, so that in me, as an extreme case, Jesus Christ might display all his patience, and that I might become an example to those who would later have faith in him and gain everlasting life. <sup>17*</sup> To the King of ages, the immortal, the invisible, the only God, be honor and glory forever and ever! Amen.

<sup>18*</sup>† I have a solemn charge to give you, Timothy, my child. This charge is in accordance with the prophecies made in your regard, and I give it to you so that under the inspiration of these prophecies you may fight the good fight <sup>19</sup>and hold fast to faith and a good conscience. Some men, by rejecting the guidance of conscience, have made shipwreck of their faith, <sup>20*</sup> among them Hymenaeus and Alexander; these I have turned over to Satan so that they may learn not to blaspheme.

CHAPTER 2

Conduct of Men and Women. <sup>1</sup>† First of all, I urge that petitions, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgiving be offered for all men, <sup>2</sup>especially for kings and those in authority, that we may be able to lead undisturbed and tranquil lives in perfect piety and dignity. <sup>3</sup> Prayer of this kind is good, and God our savior is pleased with it, <sup>4</sup>for he wants all men to be saved and come to know the truth.

<sup>5*</sup> And the truth is this:

“God is one.

One also is the mediator between God and men,
the man Christ Jesus,

<sup>6*</sup> who gave himself as a ransom for all.”

This truth was attested at the fitting time. <sup>7*</sup> I have been made its herald and apostle (believe me, I am not lying but speak the truth), the teacher of the nations in the true faith.

<sup>8</sup> It is my wish, then, that in every place the men shall offer prayers with blameless hands held aloft, and be free from anger and dissension. <sup>9*</sup>† Simi-

8: Rom 7, 12.	14.
13: Acts 8, 3.	2, 5: Heb 8, 6.
15: 3, 1, 4, 9; Mt 9,	6: Mt 20, 28; Gal 1,
13; Mk 2, 17.	4.
17: Ps 145, 13.	7: Gal 2, 7, 2 Tm
18: 4, 14.	1, 11.
20: 2 Tm 2, 17; 4,	9: 1 Pt 3, 3.

† 1, 8-11: Those responsible for the empty surmises which are to be suppressed by Timothy do not present the Old Testament from the Christian viewpoint. The Christian values the Old Testament, not as a system of law, but as the first stage in God's revelation of his saving plan, which is brought to fulfillment in the good news of salvation through faith in Jesus Christ.

1, 12-17: Present gratitude for the Christian apostleship leads to a recalling of the earlier time when “Paul” was a fierce persecutor of the Christian communities (cf Acts 26, 9ff), until his conversion by intervention of the divine mercy. This and his subsequent apostolic experience testify to the saving purpose of Jesus' incarnation. The fact of his former ignorance of the truth has not kept the apostle from regarding himself as having been the worst of sinners (15). Yet he was chosen to be an apostle, that God might manifest his firm will to save sinful humanity through Jesus Christ (16). The recounting of so great a mystery of mercy leads to a spontaneous outpouring of adoration (17).

1, 18ff: Timothy is to be mindful of his calling, which is here compared to that of Barnabas and Saul, cf Acts 13, 1ff. Such is probably the sense of the allusion to the prophecies (18). His task is not to yield, whether in doctrine or in conduct, to erroneous opinions, taking warning from what has already happened at Ephesus in the case of Hymenaeus and Alexander (19f). For the error of Hymenaeus, cf 2 Tm 2, 17f.

2, 1-8: This marked insistence that the liturgical prayer of the community concern itself with the needs of all men, whether Christian or not, and especially of those in authority, may imply that a disposition existed at Ephesus to refuse prayer for pagans. In actuality, such prayer aids the community to achieve peaceful relationships with non-Christians (2) and contributes to their salvation, since it derives its value from the presence within the community of Christ who is the one and only Savior of all men (3-6). The vital apostolic mission to the Gentiles concerning Christ's purpose of the universal salvation should be reflected in the prayer of the community (7), which should be unmarred by internal dissension (8); cf Mt 5, 23ff.

2, 9-13: At the liturgical assembly the dress of women should be appropriate to the occasion (9); their chief adornment is to be their reputation for good works (10). Women are not to take part in the chiasmatic activity of the assembly (11f; cf 1 Cor 14, 34); their conduct there should not reflect authority but the role of man's helpmate (13; cf Gn 2, 18), thus reversing the relationship of Eve to Adam (14; cf Gn 3, 6f). As long as women perform their role as wives and mothers in faith and love, their salvation is assured (15).

larly, the women must deport themselves properly. They should dress modestly and quietly, and not be decked out in fancy hair styles, gold ornaments, pearls, or costly clothing; <sup>10</sup> rather, as becomes women who profess to be religious, their adornment should be good deeds. <sup>11</sup> A woman must learn in silence and be completely submissive. <sup>12*</sup> I do not permit a woman to act as teacher, or in any way to have authority over a man; she must be quiet. <sup>13*</sup> For Adam was created first, Eve afterward; <sup>14*</sup> moreover, it was not Adam who was deceived but the woman. It was she who was led astray and fell into sin. <sup>15</sup> She will be saved through childbearing, provided she continues in faith and love and holiness—her chastity being taken for granted.

CHAPTER 3

Qualifications of Various Ministers.

<sup>1*</sup>† You can depend on this: whoever wants to be a bishop aspires to a noble task. <sup>2*</sup> A bishop must be irreproachable, married only once, of even temper, self-controlled, modest, and hospitable. He should be a good teacher. <sup>3</sup> He must not be addicted to drink. He ought not to be contentious but, rather, gentle, a man of peace. Nor can he be someone who loves money. <sup>4</sup> He must be a good manager of his own household, keeping his children under control without sacrificing his dignity; <sup>5</sup> for if a man does not know how to manage his own house, how can he take care of the church of God? <sup>6</sup> He should not be a new convert, lest he become conceited and thus incur the punishment once meted out to the devil. <sup>7</sup> He must also be well thought of by those outside the church, to ensure that he does not fall into disgrace and the devil's trap. <sup>8*†</sup> In the same way, deacons must be serious, straightforward, and truthful. They may not overindulge in drink or give in to greed. <sup>9</sup> They must hold fast to the divinely revealed faith with a clear conscience. <sup>10</sup> They should be put on probation first; then, if there is nothing against them, they may serve as deacons. <sup>11</sup> The women, similarly, should be serious, not slanderous gossips. They should be temperate and entirely trustworthy. <sup>12</sup> Deacons may be married but once and must be good managers of their children and their households. <sup>13</sup> Those who serve well as deacons gain a worthy place for themselves and much assurance in their faith in Christ Jesus.

<sup>14†</sup> Although I hope to visit you soon, I am writing you about these matters <sup>15</sup> so that if I should be delayed you will know what kind of conduct befits a member of God's household, the church of the living God, the pillar and bulwark of truth. <sup>16*</sup> Wonderful, indeed, is the mystery of our faith, as we say in professing it:

"He was manifested in the flesh,
vindicated in the Spirit;
Seen by the angels;
preached among the Gentiles, Believed in throughout the world,
taken up into glory."

CHAPTER 4

False Asceticism. <sup>1*†</sup> The Spirit distinctly says that in later times some will turn away from the faith and will heed deceitful spirits and things taught by demons <sup>2</sup> through plausible liars—men with seared consciences <sup>3*</sup> who forbid marriage and require abstinence from foods which God created to be received with thanksgiving by believers who know the truth. <sup>4*</sup> Everything God created is good; nothing is to be rejected

12: 1 Cor 14, 34.
13: Gn 1, 27.
14: Gn 3, 6.
3, 1: 1, 15.
2: Ti 1, 7.
8: Acts 6, 1-6.
16: Mk 16, 19; Jn 1, 14; Acts 1, 2.

4, 1: Acts 20, 29f; 2 Tm 3, 1; 2 Pt 3, 3.
3: Gn 9, 3; Col 2, 16-23.
4: Gn 1, 31; 1 Cor 10, 25, 30.

† 3, 1-7: The passage begins by commending those who aspire to the office of bishop within the community (1), and proceeds to list the qualifications required: personal stability and graciousness; talent for teaching (2); moderation in habits and temperament (3); managerial ability (4), and experience in Christian living (3, 5f). Moreover the candidate's life before his conversion should provide no grounds for the charge that he did not previously practice what he now preaches.

3, 8-13: Deacons, besides possessing the virtue of moderation (8), are to be outstanding for their faith (9) and well respected within the community (10). Women in this same role (cf Rom 16, 1) must be of serious mien, temperate, and dedicated, and not given to malicious talebearing (11). Deacons must have shown stability in marriage and have a good record as family men (12), for such experience prepares them well for the exercise of their ministry in behalf of the community (13).

3, 14f: Lest there be some delay in the visit planned for the near future to Timothy at Ephesus, the present letter is being sent on ahead to arm and enlighten him in his task of preserving sound Christian conduct in the Ephesian church (14f). The care he must exercise over this community is required by the profound nature of Christianity. It centers in Christ, preexistent but appearing in human flesh; the goodness of his mortal existence was verified by the Holy Spirit; the mystery of his Person was revealed to the angels, announced to the Gentiles, and accepted by them in faith. He himself was returned (through his resurrection and ascension) to the divine glory that is properly his (v 16). This passage apparently includes part of a liturgical hymn used among the Christian communities in and around Ephesus, and directed against the cult of Artemis.

4, 1-11: Doctrinal deviations within the church from the true Christian message have been prophesied, though the origin of the prophecy is not specified (1f); cf Acts 20, 29f. The letter warns against a false asceticism which prohibits marriage and regards certain foodstuffs as morally contaminating (v 3). Timothy is urged to reiterate the Christian teaching that neither salvation nor damnation is to be found in material creation (4-8). Man is saved only by the action of God (9ff).

when it is received with thanksgiving, <sup>5</sup> for it is made holy by God's word and by prayer.

Counsel to Timothy. <sup>6</sup> If you put these instructions before the brotherhood you will be a good servant of Christ Jesus, reared in the words of faith and the sound doctrine you have faithfully followed. <sup>7*</sup> Have nothing to do with profane myths or old wives' tales. Train yourself for the life of piety, <sup>8</sup> for while physical training is to some extent valuable, the discipline of religion is incalculably more so, with its promise of life here and hereafter. <sup>9</sup> You can depend on this as worthy of complete acceptance.

<sup>10</sup> This explains why we work and struggle as we do; our hopes are fixed on the living God who is the savior of all men, but especially of those who believe.

<sup>11</sup> Such are the things you must urge and teach. <sup>12*</sup>† Let no one look down on you because of your youth, but be a continuing example of love, faith, and purity to believers. <sup>13</sup> Until I arrive, devote yourself to the reading of Scripture, to preaching and teaching. <sup>14*</sup> Do not neglect the gift you received when, as a result of prophecy, the presbyters laid their hands on you. <sup>15</sup> Attend to your duties; let them absorb you, so that everyone may see your progress. <sup>16</sup> Watch yourself and watch your teaching. Persevere at both tasks. By doing so you will bring to salvation yourself and all who hear you.

years of age. She must have been married only once. <sup>10*</sup> Her good character will be attested to by her good deeds. Has she brought up children? Has she been hospitable to strangers? Has she washed the feet of Christian visitors? Has she given help to those in distress? In a word, has she been eager to do every possible good work?

<sup>11*</sup> Refuse to enroll the younger widows, for when their passions estrange them from Christ they will want to marry. <sup>12</sup> This will bring them condemnation for breaking their first pledge. <sup>13</sup> Besides, they learn to be ladies of leisure, who go about from house to house—becoming not only time-wasters but gossips and busybodies as well, talking about things they ought not. <sup>14</sup> That is why I should like to see the younger ones marry, have children, keep house, and in general give our enemies no occasion to speak ill of us. <sup>15</sup> Already, some have turned away to follow Satan. <sup>16</sup> If a woman church member has relatives who are widows, she must assist them. She should not let them become a burden to the church, which ought to be free to give help to the widows who are really in need.

<sup>17*</sup>† Presbyters who do well as leaders deserve to be paid double, especially

---

7: 1, 4; 2 Tm 2, 23; Ti 3, 9.	5: 1; Ti 2, 2 10: Jn 13, 14.
12: 1 Cor 16, 11.	11-16: 1 Cor 7, 8f.39f.
14: 1, 18.	17: 1 Thes 5, 12.

---

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1*</sup>† Never censure an older man, but appeal to him as to a father. You should treat younger men as brothers, <sup>2</sup> older women as mothers, and younger women as sisters, with absolute purity.

Rules for Widows. <sup>3</sup> Honor the claims of widows who are real widows—that is, who are alone and bereft. <sup>4</sup> If a widow has any children or grandchildren, let these learn that piety begins at home and that they should fittingly support their parents and grandparents; this is the way God wants it to be. <sup>5</sup> The real widow, left destitute, is one who has set her hope on God and continues night and day in supplications and prayers. <sup>6</sup> A widow who gives herself up to selfish indulgence, however, leads a life of living death.

<sup>7</sup> Make the following rules about widows, so that no one may incur blame.

<sup>8</sup> If anyone does not provide for his own relatives and especially for members of his immediate family, he has denied the faith; he is worse than an unbeliever.

<sup>9</sup> To be on the church's roll of widows, a widow should be not less than sixty

† 4, 12-16: Timothy is urged to preach and teach with confidence, relying on the gifts and the mission that God has bestowed on him.

5, 1-16: After a few words of general advice based on common sense (1f), the letter takes up, in its several aspects, the subject of widows. The first responsibility for their care belongs to the family circle, not to the Christian community as such (3f.16). The widow left without the aid of relatives may benefit the community by her prayer, and the community should consider her material sustenance its responsibility (5f). Widows who wish to work directly for the Christian community should not be accepted unless they are well beyond the probability of marriage, i.e., sixty years of age, married only once, and with a reputation for good works (9f). Younger widows are apt to be troublesome and should be encouraged to marry (11-15).

5, 17-25: The function of presbyters is not exactly the same as that of the "episkopos," bishop (3, 1); in fact, the relation of the two at the time of this epistle is obscure. The pastoralists seem to reflect a transitional stage that developed into the monarchical episcopate of the second century (17). The presbyters possess the responsibility of preaching and teaching, for which functions they are supported by the community (vv 17f). The realization that their position subjects them to adverse criticism is implied in the direction to Timothy (vv 19f) to make sure of the truth of any accusation against them before public reproof is given. He must be as objective as possible in weighing charges against presbyters (21), learning from his experience both to take care in selecting them (22) and to judge prudently any criticism of them. The letter now sounds an informal note of personal concern in its advice to Timothy not to take his task so strenuously that he even avoids table wine (23).

Judgment concerning the fitness of candidates to serve as presbyters is easy with persons of open conduct, more difficult and prolonged with those of greater reserve (24f).

those whose work is preaching and teaching. <sup>18*</sup> The Scripture says, "You shall not put a muzzle on an ox when he is threshing the grain," and also, "The worker deserves his wages."

<sup>19*</sup> Pay no attention to an accusation against a presbyter unless it is supported by two or three witnesses. <sup>20</sup> The ones who do commit sin, however, are to be publicly reprimanded, so that the rest may fear to offend. <sup>21</sup> I charge you before God, Christ Jesus, and the chosen angels: apply these rules without prejudice, act with complete impartiality! <sup>22</sup> Never lay hands hastily on anyone, or you may be sharing in the misdeeds of others. Keep yourself pure.

<sup>23</sup> Stop drinking wine only. Take a little wine for the good of your stomach, and because of your frequent illnesses.

<sup>24</sup> Some men's sins are flagrant and cry out for judgment now, while other men's sins will appear only later.

<sup>25</sup> Similarly, some good deeds stand out clearly as such; even inconspicuous ones cannot be hidden forever.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1*</sup>† All under the yoke of slavery must regard their masters as worthy of full respect; otherwise the name of God and the church's teaching suffer abuse.

<sup>2</sup> Those slaves whose masters are brothers in the faith must not take liberties with them on that account. They must perform their tasks even more faithfully, since those who will profit from their work are believers and beloved brothers. These are the things you must teach and preach. <sup>3</sup>† Whoever teaches in any other way, not holding to the sound doctrines of our Lord Jesus Christ and the teaching proper to true religion, <sup>4</sup> should be recognized as both conceited and ignorant, a sick man in his passion for polemics and controversy. From these come envy, dissension, slander, evil suspicions—<sup>5</sup> in a word, the bickering of men with twisted minds who have lost all sense of truth. Such men value religion only as a means of personal gain. <sup>6</sup> There is, of course, great gain in religion—provided one is content with a sufficiency. <sup>7*</sup> We brought nothing into this world, nor have we the power to take anything out. <sup>8</sup> If we have food and clothing we have all that we need.

<sup>9</sup> Those who want to be rich are falling into temptation and a trap. They are letting themselves be captured by foolish and harmful desires which drag men down to ruin and destruction. <sup>10</sup> The love of money is the root of all evil. Some men in their passion for it have strayed from the faith, and have come to grief amid great pain.

<sup>11*</sup>† Man of God that you are, flee from all this. Instead, seek after integrity, piety, faith, love, steadfastness, and a gentle spirit. <sup>12*</sup> Fight the good fight of faith. Take firm hold on the everlasting life to which you were called when, in the presence of many witnesses, you made your noble profession of faith. <sup>13*</sup> Before God, who gives life to all, and before Christ Jesus, who in bearing witness made his noble profession before Pontius Pilate, <sup>14</sup> I charge you to keep God's command without blame or reproach until our Lord Jesus Christ shall appear. <sup>15*</sup> This appearance God will bring to pass at his chosen time. He is the blessed and only ruler, the King of kings and Lord of lords <sup>16*</sup> who alone has immortality and who dwells in unapproachable light, whom no human being has ever seen or can see. To him be honor and everlasting rule! Amen.

<sup>17*</sup>† Tell those who are rich in this world's goods not to be proud, and not to rely on so uncertain a thing as wealth. Let them trust in the God who provides us richly with all things for our use. <sup>18</sup> Charge them to do good, to be rich in good works and generous, sharing what they have. <sup>19*</sup> Thus will they build a secure foundation for the future, for receiving that life which is life indeed.

<sup>20*</sup>† O Timothy, guard what has been committed to you. Stay clear of worldly, idle talk and the contradictions of what is falsely called knowledge. <sup>21</sup> In laying claim to such knowledge, some men have missed the goal of faith. Grace be with you.

18: Dt 25, 4; Lk 10,	12: 2 Tm 4, 7.
17: 1 Cor 9, 9.	13: Mt 27, 11; Jn 18,
19: Dt 19, 15; Mt 18,	33, 37.
16.	15: Dt 10, 17; Rv
6, 1: 1 Cor 7, 21f;	17, 14; 19, 16.
Eph 6, 5-8; Col	16: Jn 1, 18; 1 Jn 4,
3, 22-25.	12.
7: Jb 1, 21; Ps 49,	17: Lk 12, 17-21.
17.	19: Mt 6, 20.
11: 2 Tm 2, 22; 4, 1f.	20: 2 Tm 1, 14.

† 6, 1f: Domestic relationships derive supernatural value from the Christian faith.

6, 3-10: Timothy is exhorted to maintain steadfastly the position outlined in this letter, not allowing himself to be pressured into any other course. He must realize that false teachers can be discerned by their pride, envy, quarrelsomeness, and their greed for material gain.

6, 11-16: Timothy's position demands total dedication to God and faultless witness to Christ (11-14) operating from an awareness, through faith, of the coming revelation of Jesus as King, Lord, and God (15).

6, 17f: Timothy is directed to instruct the rich, advising them to make good use of their wealth by aiding the poor.

6, 20f: The final words reflect the chief concern of this letter: that Timothy take every means to preserve the traditional Christian faith.

TO TIMOTHY

The authorship and date of this epistle are discussed in the Introduction to the First Epistle of Paul to Timothy. The letter portrays Paul as a prisoner (1, 8.16; 2, 9) in Rome (1, 17), and indicates that Timothy is in Ephesus (4, 12). It reveals that, with rare exceptions, Christians have not rallied to Paul's support (1, 15-18), and takes a pessimistic view of the outcome of his case (4, 16). It describes Paul as fully aware of what impends, looking to God, not to men, for his deliverance (4, 3-8.18). It recalls with affectionate remembrance his mission days with Timothy (1, 3ff; cf Acts 16, 1-4). It points to his preaching of the gospel as the reason for his imprisonment and offers Timothy as a motive of steadfastness his own example of firmness in faith despite adverse circumstances (1, 6-14). The epistle suggests that Timothy should prepare others to replace himself as Paul has prepared him for his own replacement (2, 1f), urging him not to desist out of fear from preserving and spreading the Christian message (2, 3-7). It presents the resurrection of Jesus and his messianic role as the heart of the gospel for which Paul has been ready to lay down his life (2, 8f), not only to express fully his own conviction but to support the conviction of others (2, 10-13).

This letter, like the preceding one, urges Timothy to protect the community from the inevitable impact of false teaching (2, 14-3, 9), without fear of the personal attacks which may result (3, 10-14). It recommends that he rely on the power of the Scriptures and on the positive proposal of doctrine (3, 15-4, 2) without being troubled by those who do not accept him (4, 3ff). The epistle observes in passing that Paul has need of his reading materials and his cloak (4, 13), and what will be best of all, a visit from Timothy.

CHAPTER 1

<sup>1</sup>† Paul, by the will of God an apostle of Christ Jesus sent to proclaim the promise of life in him, <sup>2</sup> to Timothy, my child whom I love. May grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and from Christ Jesus our Lord be with you.

Thanksgiving and Prayer. <sup>3</sup>I thank God, the God of my forefathers whom I worship with a clear conscience, whenever I remember you in my prayers—as indeed I do constantly, night and day. <sup>4</sup>† Recalling your tears when we parted, I yearn to see you again. That would make my happiness complete. I find myself thinking of your sincere <sup>5</sup>† faith—faith which first belonged to your grandmother Lois and to your mother Eunice, and which (I am confident) you also have.

Exhortation to Faithfulness. <sup>6</sup>† For this reason, I remind you to stir into flame the gift of God bestowed when my hands were laid on you. <sup>7</sup>* The Spirit God has given us is no cowardly spirit, but rather one that makes us strong, loving, and wise. <sup>8</sup>*† Therefore, never be ashamed of your testimony to our Lord, nor of me, a prisoner for his sake; but with the strength which comes from God bear your share of the hardship which the gospel entails.

<sup>9</sup>*† God has saved us and has called us to a holy life, not because of any merit of ours but according to his own design—the grace held out to us in Christ Jesus before the world began <sup>10</sup>* but now made manifest through the appearance of our Savior. He has robbed death of its power and has brought life and immortality into clear light through the gospel. <sup>11</sup>* In the service of this gospel I have been appointed preacher and apostle and teacher, <sup>12</sup>† and for its sake I undergo

- |                        |                      |
|------------------------|----------------------|
| 1, 5: 3, 14f; Acts 16, | 9: Mt 10, 10; Lk 10, |
| 1,                     | 7; Ti 3, 5.          |
| 7: Rom 8, 15,          | 10: Rom 6, 9.        |
| 8: Lk 9, 26; Rom 5,    | 11: 1 Tm 2, 7.       |
| 3.                     |                      |

†

1, 1f: For the formula of address and greeting, see note on Romans 1, 1-7. The promise of life in him: which God grants to men through union with Christ in faith and love, cf Col 3, 4; 1 Tm 4, 8.

1, 4f: Purportedly written from prison in Rome (1, 8, 4, 6ff) shortly before the writer's death, the letter recalls the earlier sorrowful parting from Timothy, commending him for his faith and expressing the longing to see him again.

1, 6: The gift of God bestowed when my hands were laid on you: the grace of ordination, signified by the laying on of hands; cf 1 Tm 4, 14.

1, 8: Never be ashamed of your testimony to our Lord: i.e., of preaching and suffering for the sake of the gospel.

1, 9: Redemption from sin and the call to holiness of life are not won by personal deeds but gratuitously bestowed through the incarnation according to God's eternal plan; cf Eph 1, 4.

1, 12: He is able to guard . . . until that Day: the deposit of faith (or, less likely, the reward of Christian ministry) until the second coming of Christ.

present hardships. But I am not ashamed, for I know him in whom I have believed, and I am confident that he is able to guard what has been entrusted to me until that Day.<sup>13</sup> Take as a model of sound teaching what you have heard me say, in faith and love in Christ Jesus.<sup>14</sup> Guard the rich deposit of faith with the help of the Holy Spirit who dwells within us.

<sup>15</sup>† You know that all in Asia, including even Phygelus and Hermogenes, have turned their backs on me.<sup>16</sup>† May the Lord have mercy on the family of Onesiphorus, because he has often given me new heart and has not been ashamed of me, even in my chains.<sup>17</sup> When he was in Rome, he sought me out earnestly and found me.<sup>18</sup> When he stands before the Lord on the great Day, may the Lord grant him mercy! And the many services he has performed for Christ in Ephesus you know even better than I.

CHAPTER 2

The Gospel versus Empty Fables.

<sup>1</sup>† So you, my son, must be strong in the grace which is ours in Christ Jesus.<sup>2</sup> The things which you have heard from me through many witnesses you must hand on to trustworthy men who will be able to teach others.<sup>3</sup> Bear hardship along with me as a good soldier of Christ Jesus.<sup>4</sup> No soldier becomes entangled in the affairs of civilian life; he avoids this in order to please his commanding officer.<sup>5</sup>* Similarly, if one takes part in an athletic contest, he cannot receive the winner's crown unless he has kept the rules.<sup>6</sup> The hardworking farmer is the one who should have the first share of the crop.<sup>7</sup> Reflect on what I am saying, for the Lord will make my meaning fully clear.

<sup>8</sup>*† Remember that Jesus Christ, a descendant of David, was raised from the dead. This is the gospel I preach;<sup>9</sup>* in preaching it I suffer as a criminal, even to the point of being thrown into chains—but there is no chaining the word of God!<sup>10</sup>* Therefore I bear with all of this for the sake of those whom God has chosen, in order that they may obtain the salvation to be found in Christ Jesus and with it eternal glory.

<sup>11</sup>* You can depend on this:

If we have died with him
we shall also live with him;

<sup>12</sup>* If we hold out to the end
we shall also reign with him.

But if we deny him he will deny us.<sup>13</sup>* If we are unfaithful he will still remain faithful, for he cannot deny himself.

<sup>14</sup>† Keep reminding people of these things and charge them before God to stop disputing about mere words. This does no good and can be the ruin of those who listen.<sup>15</sup>* Try hard to make yourself worthy of God's approval, a workman who has no cause to be ashamed, following a straight course in preaching the truth.<sup>16</sup> Avoid worldly, idle talk, for those who indulge in it become more and more godless,<sup>17</sup> and the influence of their talk will spread like the plague. This is the case with Hymenaeus and Philetus,<sup>18</sup>* who have gone far wide of the truth in saying that the resurrection has already taken place. They are upsetting some people's faith.<sup>19</sup>* But the foundation God has laid stands firm. It bears this inscription: "The Lord knows those who are his"; and, "Let everyone who professes the name of the Lord abandon evil."

<sup>20</sup> In every large household there are vessels not only of gold and silver but also of wood and clay, some for distinguished and others for common use.<sup>21</sup> The lesson is that if a person will but cleanse himself of evil things he may be a distinguished vessel, dedicated and useful to the master of the house and ready for every noble service.<sup>22</sup>*† So,

2, 5: 1 Cor 9, 25.	38; Rom 8, 17.
8: Acts 13, 22f;	13; Rom 3, 3.
Rom 1, 3f.	15: 1 Tm 4, 6f.
9: Phil 1, 13-18.	18: 1 Tm 1, 20.
10: Col 1, 24.	19: Nm 16, 5; Eph
11: Rom 6, 5.	2, 20.
12: Mt 10, 33; Mk 8,	22: 1 Tm 6, 11.

†

1, 15: Keen disappointment is expressed, here and later (4, 16), that the Christians of the province of Asia, especially Phygelus and Hermogenes, should have abandoned the writer and done nothing to defend his case in court.

1, 16f: The family of Onesiphorus, because he . . . even in my chains: Onesiphorus seems to have died before this letter was written. His family is mentioned twice (v 16 and 4, 19), though it was Onesiphorus himself who was helpful to Paul in prison and rendered much service to the community of Ephesus (16ff). Because the apostle complains of abandonment by all in Asia during his second imprisonment and trial, the assistance of Onesiphorus is understood as having been given to Paul during his first Roman imprisonment (61-63 A.D.).

2, 1-7: This passage manifests a characteristic deep concern for safeguarding the deposit of faith and faithfully transmitting it through trustworthy men (1f; cf 1, 14; 1 Tm 6, 20; Ti 1, 9). Comparisons to the soldier's loyalty, the athlete's fidelity, and the farmer's arduous work as the price of reward (4ff) emphasize the need of singleness of purpose in preaching the word, even at the cost of hardship, for the sake of Christ (3).

2, 8-13: Through baptism, Christians die spiritually with Christ and live with him in the hope of reigning with him forever, but not without giving witness to him through suffering in the present life, even as the apostle has been imprisoned for preaching the gospel (9). His sufferings are helpful to the elect in attaining salvation and glory in Christ (10), who will reward the faithful and disown the unfaithful (12).

2, 14-19: For those who dispute about mere words (cf 2, 23f) and indulge in irreligious talk to the detriment of their listeners (14, 16-19), see note on 1 Timothy 1, 3f. Hymenaeus and Philetus (17), while accepting the Christian's mystical death and resurrection in Christ through baptism, deny the resurrection of the body and eternal glory.

2, 22: Those who call on the Lord: those who believe in Christ and worship him as Lord, i.e., Christians (Acts 9, 14ff; 20f; Rom 10, 12f).

turn from youthful passions and pursue integrity, faith, love, and peace, along with those who call on the Lord in purity of heart. <sup>23*</sup> Have nothing to do with senseless, ignorant disputations. As you well know, they only breed quarrels, <sup>24*</sup> and the servant of the Lord must not be quarrelsome but must be kindly toward all. He must be an apt teacher, patiently <sup>25*</sup> and gently correcting those who contradict him, in the hope always that God will enable them to repent and know the truth. <sup>26</sup> Thus, taken captive by God to do his will, they shall escape the devil's trap.

CHAPTER 3

Against False Teachers. <sup>1*</sup> Do not forget this: there will be terrible times in the last days. <sup>2*</sup> Men will be lovers of self and of money, proud, arrogant, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, profane, <sup>3</sup> inhuman, implacable, slanderous, licentious, brutal, hating the good. <sup>4</sup> They will be treacherous, reckless, pompous, lovers of pleasure rather than of God <sup>5</sup> as they make a pretense of religion but negate its power. Stay clear of them. <sup>6</sup> It is such as these who worm their way into homes and make captives of silly women burdened with sins and driven by desires of many kinds, <sup>7</sup> always learning but never able to reach a knowledge of the truth. <sup>8*</sup> Just as Jannes and Jambres opposed Moses, so these men also oppose the truth; with perverted minds they falsify the faith. <sup>9</sup> But they will not get very far; as with those two men, the stupidity of these will be plain for all to see.

Paul's Example and Teaching. <sup>10</sup> You have followed closely my teaching and my conduct. You have observed my resolution, fidelity, patience, love, and endurance, <sup>11*</sup> through persecutions and sufferings in Antioch, Iconium, and Lys- tra. You know what persecutions I have had to bear, and you know how the Lord saved me from them all. <sup>12</sup> Anyone who wants to live a godly life in Christ Jesus can expect to be persecuted. <sup>13*</sup> But all the while evil men and charlatans will go from bad to worse, deceiving others, themselves deceived. <sup>14</sup> You, for your part, must remain faithful to what you have learned and believed, because you know who your teachers were. <sup>15**†</sup> Likewise, from your infancy you have known the sacred Scriptures, the source of the wisdom which through faith in Jesus Christ leads to salvation. <sup>16*</sup> All Scripture is inspired of God and is useful for teaching—for reproof, correction, and training in holiness <sup>17</sup> so that the man of God may be fully competent and equipped for every good work.

CHAPTER 4

Apostolic Charge. <sup>1*</sup> In the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is coming to judge the living and the dead, and by his appearing and his kingly power, <sup>2</sup> I charge you to preach the word, to stay with this task whether convenient or inconvenient—correcting, reproving, appealing—constantly teaching and never losing patience. <sup>3</sup> For the time will come when people will not tolerate sound doctrine, but, following their own desires, will surround themselves with teachers who tickle their ears. <sup>4*</sup> They will stop listening to the truth and will wander off to fables. <sup>5</sup> As for you, be steady and self-possessed; put up with hardship, perform your work as an evangelist, fulfill your ministry.

Reward for Fidelity. <sup>6**†</sup> I for my part am already being poured out like a libation. The time of my dissolution is near. <sup>7**†</sup> I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith.

23: 1 Tm 1, 4; Ti 3, 9.	13: 1 Thes 3, 4f. 15: 1, 5.
24: 1 Tm 3, 2; Ti 1, 7.	16: Rom 15, 4; 1 Cor 10, 6; 2 Pt 1, 20f.
25: Mt 12, 20; Gal 6, 1.	4: 1 Acts 10, 42; 1 Tm 6, 14.
3, 1: 1 Tm 4, 1; 2 Pt 3, 3; Jude 18.	4: 1 Tm 1, 4.
2: Rom 1, 29.	6: Phil 2, 17.
8: Ex 7, 11; Jn 8, 32.	7: Acts 20, 24; 1 Tm 1, 18.
11: Acts 14, 1-5.22.

†

3, 1-9: The moral depravity and false teachings of men that will prevail in the last days are already at work (1-5). Frivolous and superficial women too, devoid of the true spirit of religion, will be easy victims of those who pervert them by falsifying the truth (6ff), just as Jannes and Jambres, the magicians of Egypt (Ex 7, 11f. 22), discredited the truth in Moses' time.

3, 15f: The Scriptures are the source of wisdom, i.e., of belief in and loving fulfillment of God's word revealed in Christ, through whom man finds salvation. All Scripture is inspired of God: has God as its principal author, with the writer as the human collaborator. Thus the Scriptures are the word of God in human language. Useful for teaching . . . every good work: because as God's word the Scriptures share his divine authority. It is exercised through those who are ministers of the word.

4, 1-5: The gravity of the obligation incumbent on Timothy to preach the word can be gauged from the solemn adjuration: in the presence of God, and of Christ coming as universal judge and by his appearing and his kingly power (v 1). Patience, courage, constancy, and endurance are required despite the opposition, hostility, indifference, and defection of many to whom the truth has been preached (2-5).

4, 6: The apostle recognizes his death through martyrdom to be imminent. He regards it, like the death of Christ, as an act of worship in which his blood will be poured out in sacrifice; cf Ex 29, 40.

4, 7: I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race: at the close of his life Paul could testify to the accomplishment of what Christ himself had foretold concerning him at the time of his conversion: I myself shall indicate to him how much he will have to suffer for my name (Acts 9, 16). I have kept the faith: preserved the true teaching concerning Christ, both in his personal adherence to it, and in his ministry.

<sup>8</sup>† From now on a merited crown awaits me; on that Day the Lord, just judge that he is, will award it to me—and not only to me, but to all who have looked for his appearing with eager longing.

Paul's Loneliness. <sup>9</sup> Do your best to join me soon, <sup>10</sup>*† for Demas, enamored of the present world, has left me and gone to Thessalonica. Crescens has gone to Galatia and Titus to Dalmatia. <sup>11</sup>* I have no one with me but Luke. Get Mark and bring him with you, for he can be of great service to me. <sup>12</sup> Tychicus I have sent to Ephesus. <sup>13</sup>* When you come, bring the cloak I left in Troas with Carpus, and the books, especially the parchments.

Comfort in Trial. <sup>14</sup>*† Alexander the coppersmith did me a great deal of harm; the Lord will repay him according to his deeds. <sup>15</sup> Meanwhile, you too had better be on guard, for he has strongly resisted our preaching. <sup>16</sup> At the first hearing of my case in court, no one took my part. In fact, everyone abandoned me. May it not be held against them! <sup>17</sup>* But the Lord stood by my side and gave me strength, so that through me the preaching task might be completed and all the nations might hear the gospel. That is how I was saved from the lion's jaws. <sup>18</sup>* The Lord will continue to rescue me from all attempts to do me harm and will bring me safe to his heavenly kingdom. To him be glory forever and ever. Amen.

Greetings. <sup>19</sup>*† Greet Prisca and Aquila and the family of Onesiphorus. <sup>20</sup>* Erastus has stayed in Corinth, while Trophimus I had to leave ill at Miletus.

<sup>21</sup> Get here before winter if you can. Eubulus, Pudens, Linus, Claudia, and all the brothers send greetings.

<sup>22</sup> The Lord be with your spirit. Grace be with you.

10: Phlm 4, 14.	17: Ps 22, 22; Mt
11: Col 4, 10.	10, 19.
13: Ti 3, 10.	18: Rom 16, 27.
14: Pss 28, 4; 62.	19: 1, 16.
13; Prv 24, 12;	20: Acts 18, 2; 19,
1 Tm 1, 20.	22; Rom 16, 23.

† 4, 8: When the world is judged at the parousia all who have eagerly looked for his appearing, i.e., lived according to his teaching, will be rewarded. A merited crown: a reference to the laurel wreath placed on the heads of conquerors and winners of various contests; cf 2, 5; 1 Cor 9, 25.

4, 10-13: Demas either abandoned the work of the ministry for worldly affairs or, perhaps, gave up the faith itself (v 10). Luke may have accompanied Paul on part of his second and third missionary journeys (Acts 16, 10-18; 20, 5—21, 19). Mark, once rejected by Paul (Acts 13, 13; 15, 39-40), is now to render him great service (11); cf Col 4, 10; Phlm 24. Tychicus I have sent to Ephesus: see Eph 6, 21; cf also Acts 20, 4; Col 4, 7 (12f).

4, 14-18: Alexander: an opponent of Paul's preaching (14f), perhaps the same who is mentioned in 1 Timothy 1, 20. Despite Paul's abandonment by his friends in the province of Asia (cf 1, 15f), the divine assistance brought this first trial to a successful issue—even to the point of making the gospel message known to those who participated in or witnessed the trial (16f). Though Paul was not released from prison, he was made ready for the heavenly kingdom (18).

4, 19-22: Prisca and Aquila: assisted Paul in his ministry in Corinth (Acts 18, 2f) and Ephesus (Acts 18, 19, 26; 1 Cor 16, 19). They risked death to save his life, and all the Gentile communities are indebted to them (Rom 16, 3ff) (v 19). Erastus: treasurer of the city of Corinth (Rom 16, 23); cf also Acts 19, 22. Trophimus: from the province of Asia, who accompanied Paul from Greece to Troas (Acts 20, 4f). Linus: possibly to be identified with Linus, the supposed successor of Peter as Bishop of Rome. Claudia: in the Constitutio Apostolica 7.46, 17-19, she is called mother of Linus, Bishop of Rome.

TO TITUS

The authorship and date of the Epistle to Titus are discussed in the Introduction to 1 Timothy. Titus was a Gentile Christian, apparently from Antioch (Gal 2, 1). According to 2 Corinthians (2, 13; 7, 6.13f), he was with Paul on his third missionary journey; there is, however, no mention of him in Acts. Besides being the bearer of Paul's severe letter to the Corinthians (2 Cor 7, 6ff), he had the responsibility of taking up the collection in Corinth for the Christian community of Jerusalem (2 Cor 8, 6.16.23). In the present letter (1, 5), he is mentioned as the administrator of the Christian community in Crete, charged with the task of organizing it through the appointment of presbyters and bishops (1, 5-9; here the two terms refer to the same personages).

The letter instructs Titus about the character of the men he is to choose in view of the pastoral difficulties peculiar to Crete (1, 5-16). It suggests the special individual and social virtues which the various age groups and classes in the Christian community should be encouraged to acquire (2, 1-10). The motives for improving one's personal character are to be found preeminently in the mysteries of the incarnation and the second coming of Christ (2, 11-15; 3, 5ff). The community is to be fashioned into a leaven for Christianizing the social world about it (3, 1ff). Good works are to be the evidence of their faith in God (3, 8); those who engage in religious controversy are, after suitable warning, to be ignored (3, 9ff).

The material in Titus is similar to that in 1 Timothy; it is, however, differently oriented.

The principal divisions of the Epistle to Titus are as follows:

- I: Introduction (1, 1-4)
- II: Pastoral Charge (1, 5-16)
- III: Teaching the Christian Life (2, 1-3, 15)

I: INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER 1

Greeting. <sup>1†</sup> Paul, a servant of God, sent as an apostle of Jesus Christ for the sake of the faith of those whom God has chosen, and to promote their knowledge of the truth as our religion embodies it, <sup>2*</sup> in the hope of that eternal life which God, who cannot lie, promised in endless ages past. <sup>3*</sup> This he has now manifested in his own good time as his word, in the preaching entrusted to me by the command of God our Savior. <sup>4</sup> Paul to Titus, my own true child in our common faith: May grace and peace from God our Father, and Christ Jesus our Savior, be with you.

II: PASTORAL CHARGE

Qualities of a Presbyter. <sup>5†</sup> My purpose in leaving you in Crete was that you might accomplish what had been left undone, especially the appointment of presbyters in every town. As I instructed you, <sup>6*</sup> a presbyter must be irreproachable, married only once, the father of children who are believers and are known not to be wild and insubordinate. <sup>7*</sup> The bishop as God's steward must be blameless. He may not be self-willed or arrogant, a drunkard, a violent or greedy man. <sup>8</sup> He should, on the contrary, be hospitable and a lover of goodness; steady, just, holy, and self-controlled. <sup>9</sup> In his teaching he must hold fast to the authentic message, so that he will be able both to encourage men to follow sound doctrine and to refute those

-
- |                    |               |
|--------------------|---------------|
| 1, 2: Nm 23, 19.   | 3, 2.         |
| 3: 1 Tm 1, 1.      | 7: 1 Pt 5, 2. |
| 6: Rom 12, 8; 1 Tm |               |

†

1, 1-4: On the epistolary form, see note on Romans 1, 1-7. The apostolate is the divinely appointed mission to lead others to the true faith, and through it to eternal salvation (1ff).

1, 5-9: This instruction on the selection and appointment of presbyters, substantially identical in 1 Timothy 3, 1-7 (see note), was aimed at strengthening the authority of Titus by apostolic mandate: cf 2, 15. In Titus 1, 6f and Acts 20, 17.28 the terms episkopos and presbyteros ("bishop" and "presbyter") refer to the same persons. As they did not exercise the functions reserved to the apostle Paul and his legates, such as Timothy and Titus, they were not bishops in the later sense familiar to us.

who contradict it. <sup>10</sup>† There are many irresponsible teachers, especially from among the Jewish converts—men who are empty talkers and deceivers. <sup>11</sup>* These must be silenced. They are upsetting whole families by teaching things they have no right to teach—and all for sordid gain! <sup>12</sup> A man of Crete, one of their own prophets, has testified,

“Cretans have ever been liars, beasts, and lazy gluttons,”

<sup>13</sup> and that is the simple truth!

Admonish them sharply, in an attempt to keep them close to sound faith, <sup>14</sup>* and unaffected by Jewish myths or rules invented by men who have swerved from the truth. <sup>15</sup>* To the clean all things are clean, but to those defiled unbelievers nothing is clean. Their very minds and consciences are tainted. <sup>16</sup> They claim to “know God,” but by their actions they deny that he exists. They are disgusting—intractable and thoroughly incapable of any decent action.

III: TEACHING THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

CHAPTER 2

Various Counsels. <sup>1</sup> As for yourself, let your speech be consistent with sound doctrine. <sup>2</sup> Tell the older men that they must be temperate, serious-minded, and self-controlled; likewise sound in the faith, loving, and steadfast. <sup>3</sup> Similarly, the older women must behave in ways that befit those who belong to God. They must not be slanderous gossips or slaves to drink. <sup>4</sup> By their good example they must teach the younger women to love their husbands and children, <sup>5</sup>* to be sensible, chaste, busy at home, kindly, submissive to their husbands. Thus the word of God will not fall into disrepute. <sup>6</sup> Tell the young men to keep themselves completely under control—<sup>7</sup>* nor may you yourself fail to set them good example. <sup>8</sup> Your teaching must have the integrity of serious, sound words to which no one can take exception. If it does, no opponent will be able to find anything bad to say about us, and hostility will yield to shame.

<sup>9</sup>* Slaves are to be submissive to their masters. They should try to please them in every way, not contradicting them <sup>10</sup> nor stealing from them, but expressing a constant fidelity by their conduct, so as to adorn in every way possible the doctrine of God our Savior.

Transforming of Life.† <sup>11</sup>* The grace of God has appeared, offering salvation to all men. <sup>12</sup> It trains us to reject godless ways and worldly desires, and live temperately, justly, and devoutly in this age <sup>13</sup> as we await our blessed hope, the appearing of the glory of the great God and of our Savior Christ Jesus. <sup>14</sup>* It was he who sacrificed himself for us, to redeem us from all unrighteousness and to cleanse for himself a people of his own, eager to do what is right.

<sup>15</sup>* These are the things you are to say. Make our appeals and corrections with the authority of command. Let no one look down on you.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup>*† Remind people to be loyally subject to the government and its officials, to obey the laws, to be ready to take on any honest employment. <sup>2</sup> Tell them not to speak evil of anyone or be quarrelsome. They must be forbearing and display a perfect courtesy toward all men. <sup>3</sup>* We ourselves were once foolish, disobedient, and far from true faith; we were the slaves of our passions and of pleasures of various kinds. We went our way in malice and envy, hateful ourselves and hating one another. <sup>4</sup>* But when the kindness and love of God our Savior appeared, <sup>5</sup>* he saved us; not because of any righteous deeds we had done, but because of his mercy. He saved us through the baptism of new birth and renewal by the Holy Spirit. <sup>6</sup> This Spirit he lavished on us through Jesus Christ our Savior, <sup>7</sup>* that we might be justified by his grace and become heirs, in hope, of eternal life. <sup>8</sup>† You can depend on this to be true.

Advice to Titus. I want you to lay great weight on the things I have been

- |                                     |                                      |
|-------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 11: 1 Tm 6, 10.                     | 15: 1 Tm 4, 12.                      |
| 14: 1 Tm 1, 4.                      | 3: 1: Rom 13, 1-7; 1 Pt 2, 13f.      |
| 15: Rom 14, 14-20.                  | 3: Eph 2, 3-10; Col 3, 7; 1 Pt 1, 3. |
| 2, 5: Eph 5, 22; Col 3, 18.         | 4: 2, 11.                            |
| 7: 1 Tm 4, 12.                      | 5: Jn 3, 5; Rom 5, 22; 1 Pt 2, 18.   |
| 9: Eph 6, 5; Col 3, 22; 1 Pt 2, 18. | 5: 6, 4; Eph 5, 26; 2 Tm 1, 9.       |
| 11: 3, 4.                           | 7: Rom 3, 24.                        |
| 14: Ex 19, 5; Ps 130, 8; 1 Tm 2, 6. |                                      |

† 10-16: This adverse criticism of the defects within the community is directed especially against certain Judaeo-Christians, who busy themselves with useless speculations over persons mentioned in the Old Testament and insist on the observance of Jewish ritual purity regulations, thereby upsetting whole families by teaching things they have no right to teach; cf 3, 9; 1 Tm 1, 3-10; 4, 1-10; 6, 3-10. One of Titus' main tasks in Crete is to become acquainted with the national character of the Cretans and thereby learn to cope with its deficiencies (cf 1, 12, the citation from the sixth-century B.C. Cretan poet Epimenides).

2, 11-15: The moving force in the moral improvement outlined in 2, 1-10 is to be the constant appeal to God's revelation of salvation in Christ, with its demand for transformation of life.

3, 1-7: The spiritual renewal of the Cretans, signified in God's merciful gift of baptism (4-7), should be reflected in their improved attitude toward civil authority and in their Christian relationship with all (11f).

3, 8-11: In matters of good conduct and religious doctrine Titus is to show himself uncompromising.

saying, so that those who have committed themselves to God may be careful to do what is right. This is what is good and advantageous for men. <sup>9*</sup> See to it that you abstain from stupid arguments and genealogies, and from all controversies and quarrels about the law. They are useless and have no point. <sup>10</sup> Warn a heretic once and then a second time; after that, have nothing to do with him. <sup>11</sup> You must recognize such a person as perverted and sinful; he stands self-condemned.

Directives, Greetings and Blessing.

<sup>12*</sup> † When I send Artemas to you, or perhaps Tychicus, hurry to me at Nicopolis; I have decided to spend the winter there. <sup>13*</sup> Speed Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their journey, having first seen to it that they have everything they need. <sup>14</sup> Let our people devote themselves to honest work in order to take care of their needs, so that they may be in position to live fruitful lives.

<sup>15</sup> All who are with me send their greetings. Greet those who love us in the faith.

May grace be with you all!

---

9: 1 Tm 4, 7; 2 Tm
2, 23.

12: Acts 20, 4.
13: Acts 18, 24.

†

---

3, 12-15: Artemas or Tychicus (2 Tm 4, 12) is to replace Titus, who will join Paul in his winter sojourn at Nicopolis in Epirus, on the western coast of Greece. Titus will no doubt report on his efforts in Crete, and perhaps also assist in preaching the gospel.

TO PHILEMON

The date of this epistle is discussed in the Introduction to Ephesians. Its Pauline authorship is considered to be incontestable. The interesting fact is that this very personal and undoubtedly private letter was conserved and made public by the second century in a society in which human slavery was an accepted part of the culture.

The letter concerns Onesimus, slave of Philemon, a well-to-do Christian of Colossae (Col 4, 9). Onesimus escaped Philemon's service (v 15), and was guilty of theft in the process (v 18). Paul converted Onesimus to the gospel (v 10) and persuaded him to return to his former condition (v 12); this had been his teaching concerning slaves from the first; cf 1 Cor 7, 21. Evidently Onesimus was fearful of the possible punishment that would be meted out to him, but Paul was confident both of Philemon's understanding of Christian teaching (15f) and of his own influence over Philemon (19f). The apostle promised to visit Philemon, meanwhile placing him under a telling kind of moral pressure to accede to his request and receive back his slave with nothing but kindness.

The delicate tone of this letter reflects, against the legal fact of slavery at the time, the incipient Christian insight into its injustice. Paul does not attack the institution, for the small Christian communities were in no position to raise such an issue in a dictatorial political structure. Also, the fact that they regarded the second coming of Christ as an occurrence possible within their lifetime lessened the impulse to any abrupt and widespread change. That Onesimus the slave was "brother" to Philemon, his legal master (v 16), was a revolutionary idea in the context of the times.

Greeting. <sup>1</sup> Paul, a prisoner of Christ Jesus, and Timothy our brother, to our beloved friend and fellow worker Philemon, <sup>2</sup> to Apphia our sister, to our fellow soldier Archippus, and to the church that meets in your house. <sup>3</sup> Grace to you and peace from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

Philemon's Faith and Charity. <sup>4</sup> I thank God always, my brother, as I commend you in my prayers, <sup>5</sup> for I keep hearing of your love and faith toward the Lord Jesus and all God's people. <sup>6</sup> And my prayer is that your sharing of the faith with others may enable you to know all the good which is ours in Christ. <sup>7</sup> I find great joy and comfort in your love, because through you the hearts of God's people have been refreshed.

Plea for Onesimus. <sup>8</sup> Therefore, although I feel that I have every right to command you to do what ought to be done, <sup>9</sup> I prefer to appeal in the name of love. Yes, I, Paul, ambassador of Christ and now a prisoner for him, <sup>10</sup> I appeal to you for my child, whom I have begotten during my imprisonment. <sup>11</sup> He has become in truth Onesimus [Useful], for he who was formerly useless to you is now useful indeed both to you and to me. <sup>12</sup> It is he I am sending to you—and that means I am sending my heart!

<sup>13</sup> I had wanted to keep him with me, that he might serve me in your place while I am in prison for the gospel; <sup>14</sup> but I did not want to do anything without your consent, that kindness might not be forced on you but might be freely bestowed. <sup>15</sup> Perhaps he was separated from you for a while for this reason: that you might possess him forever, <sup>16</sup> no

2: Col 4, 17.
4: Eph 1, 15f
6: Col 1, 9ff.

9: Eph 3, 1.
10: Gal 4, 19; Col 4, 9.

† 1ff. It is the prisoner and friend appealing, rather than the apostle commanding with authority, who greets Philemon, Apphia, Archippus, and the assembly that meets in Philemon's house.

4-7: Philemon's faith in and love for the Lord and the people of God whom he refreshes have urged him to share these blessings with others (5.7). Paul prays that as a result Philemon himself will benefit by a deepening knowledge and appreciation of the endless good they possess in common in possessing Christ (4.6).

10-22: Appeal to you for my child: Onesimus, Philemon's runaway slave, whom Paul the prisoner converted to the Christian faith (10), and whom he now asks Philemon to receive back as a beloved brother (16f), rather than as a slave liable to punishment for theft and damage and for escape (18). The name Onesimus means "useful" or profitable. Paul realizes that his convert has shown himself "useless" by his previous conduct; but he is confident that Onesimus will now live up to his name and be useful both to Philemon and to Paul himself (11.20). He would even prefer to have the service of Onesimus for the work of the ministry, but recognizes Philemon's prior right (13ff).

longer as a slave but as more than a slave, a beloved brother, especially dear to me; and how much more to you, since now you will know him both as a man and in the Lord.

<sup>17</sup> If then you regard me as a partner, welcome him as you would me. <sup>18</sup> If he has done you an injury or owes you anything, charge it to me. <sup>19</sup> I, Paul, write this in my own hand: I agree to pay—not to mention that you owe me your very self! <sup>20</sup> You see, brother, I want to make you “useful” to me in the Lord. Refresh this heart of mine in Christ.

Farewell Blessing. <sup>21</sup> Confident of your compliance, I write you, knowing that you will do more than I say. <sup>22*</sup> And get a room ready for me; I hope that through your prayers I shall be restored to you.

<sup>23†</sup> Epaphras, my fellow prisoner in Christ Jesus, greets you, <sup>24*</sup> as do Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke, my fellow workers.

<sup>25</sup> The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.

---

22: Heb 13, 19.

24: Col 4, 10.

†

<sup>23†</sup> Epaphras: a Colossian who founded the church in Colossae (Col 1, 7) and perhaps also in Laodicea and Hierapolis (Col 2, 1; 4, 12f). Aristarchus: a native of Thessalonica and fellow worker of Paul (Acts 19, 29; 20, 4; 27, 2). For Mark, Demas, and Luke, see 2 Timothy 4, 10-13 and note.

THE HEBREWS

There are numerous features of this epistle that indicate authorship other than that of St. Paul the apostle. There is the high quality of its style, which makes Hebrews one of the distinguished works of the New Testament. Its literary structure intermingles doctrinal teaching and moral exhortation. The manner of citing the Old Testament is different, and the system of exegesis it follows reflects Hellenistic rather than Palestinian Judaism.

As early as the end of the second century the Eastern churches had accepted Hebrews as an inspired work composed by Paul, but until the second half of the fourth century the churches of the West questioned its Pauline authorship. Since the letter of Clement of Rome to the Corinthians, written about 96 A.D., cites the Epistle to the Hebrews, it is necessary to date the letter before that time. The identity of its author is a matter of pure speculation. Among those considered, Apollos seems more likely than Luke and Barnabas (cf Acts 18, 24), although nothing is known of his history beyond his activity in Corinth (1 Cor 1, 12; 3, 5). The data of the epistle indicate that its author wrote to a specific Christian community, or at least to communities in a particular area (13, 23; 6, 11f; 10, 19-25), but the allusions are insufficient to permit a judgment on their location. Commentators today are sharply divided on whether the addressees of the epistle were Judaeo-Christian or predominantly Gentile Christian, although the latter view is regarded with slightly more favor. The title "To the Hebrews" may merely represent an inference of the late second century: that the epistle's extensive use of the Old Testament points to its having been addressed to Judaeo-Christians.

The letter seeks to strengthen the practical faith of its recipients, and appeals to them for perseverance (6, 11f) despite harassment (12, 7-13) from forces outside the community (13, 3). Their knowledge and love of Christ hardly support the opinion of those who, on the basis of 6, 4-8, consider them to have been Judaeo-Christians on the point of reversion to Judaism.

The author begins with a reminder of the mysteries of the incarnation and exaltation of Jesus (1, 3), which proclaimed him the culminator of God's word to humanity (1, 1f). He dwells upon the dignity of the Person of Christ, superior to the angels, who according to Old Testament tradition appeared in order to make God's plans known to men (1, 4-2, 2). Christ is God's final word of salvation communicated (in association with accredited witnesses to his teaching: 2, 3f; cf Acts 1, 21ff) not merely by word but through the suffering humanity common to Jesus and to the rest of men (2, 5-16). This enactment of salvation went beyond the pattern known to Moses, faithful prophet though he was of God's word; for Jesus as high priest personally expiated sin and was faithful to God with the fidelity of God's own Son (2, 17-3, 6).

Just as the infidelity of the people thwarted Moses' effort to save them all, so the infidelity of any Christian thwarts God's plan in Christ (3, 6-4, 13). Christians are to reflect that it is their humanity which Jesus assumed, with all its defects except its sinfulness, and that he bore the burden of it to his death out of obedience to God. This work of his Son God declared to be the cause of salvation for all (4, 14-5, 10). Although Christians recognize this fundamental doctrine, they may grow weary of its repetition and therefore require other reflections to stimulate their faith (5, 11-6, 20).

The author of Hebrews presents to his Christian readers for their reflection the everlasting priesthood of Christ (7, 1-28), a priesthood which fulfills the promise of the Old Testament (8, 1-13). It also provides the meaning God ultimately intended in the sacrifices of the Old Testament (9, 1-28): these were symbols of the unique sacrifice of Christ which alone obtains forgiveness of the sins of mankind (10, 1-18). Any trial of faith the readers of the epistle may have should resolve itself through consideration of the reality of Jesus' actual existence in the heavenly sanctuary, his foreordained parousia, and the fruits they have already enjoyed through their faith (11, 19-39). It is in the nature of faith to trust the intangible (11, 1ff) which in God's providence one day becomes reality, as the Old Testament itself demonstrates (11, 4-40). This truth shines forth throughout the life of Christ. Despite the afflictions of his ministry, he remained confident of God's final intervention to ensure his resurrection and triumph (12, 1ff). Life's difficulties have meaning when they are accepted as God's discipline (12, 4-13). The message of the gospel is the word of Christ (12, 18-29), advocating peace among men (12, 14-17) and reverence toward all (13, 1-4), respect for authority (13, 7f), and complete reliance upon Christ for holiness of life (13, 9-17).

The principal divisions of the Epistle to the Hebrews are as follows:

- I: Introduction (1, 1-4)
- II: The Son Higher than the Angels (1, 5—2, 18)
- III: Jesus, Faithful and Compassionate High Priest (3, 1—5, 10)
- IV: Jesus' Eternal Priesthood and Eternal Sacrifice (5, 11—10, 39)
- V: Examples, Discipline, Disobedience (11, 1—12, 29)
- VI: Final Exhortation, Blessing, Greetings (13, 1-25)

I: INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER 1

† In times past, God spoke in fragmentary and varied ways to our fathers through the prophets; <sup>2*</sup> in this, the final age, he has spoken to us through his Son, whom he has made heir of all things and through whom he first created the universe. <sup>3*</sup> This Son is the reflection of the Father's glory, the exact representation of the Father's being, and he sustains all things by his powerful word. When he had cleansed us from our sins, he took his seat at the right hand of the Majesty in heaven, <sup>4*</sup> as far superior to the angels as the name he has inherited is superior to theirs.

II: THE SON HIGHER THAN THE ANGELS

Messianic Enthronement. <sup>5*</sup> † To which of the angels did God ever say, "You are my son; today I have begotten you"?

Or again,

"I will be his father, and he shall be my son"?

<sup>6*</sup> And again, when he leads his first-born into the world, he says,

"Let all the angels of God worship him."

<sup>7*</sup> Of the angels he says,

"He makes his angels winds, and his ministers flaming fire";

<sup>8*</sup> but of the Son,

"Your throne, O God, stands forever and ever;
a righteous scepter is the scepter of your kingdom.

<sup>9</sup> You have loved justice and hated wickedness, therefore God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of gladness above your fellow kings."

<sup>10*</sup> And,

"Lord, of old you established the earth,
and the heavens are the work of your hands.

<sup>11</sup> They will perish, but you remain; all of them will grow old like a garment.

<sup>12</sup> You will roll them up like a cloak, like a garment they will be changed.

But you are the same, and your years will have no end."

- |  |                                      |
|--|--------------------------------------|
| 1, 2: Jn 1, 3; Gal 4, 4.                       | 5: 2 Sm 7, 14; Ps 2, 7; Acts 13, 33. |
| 3: Ps 110, 1; Wis 7, 26; Mk 16, 19; Col 1, 15. | 6: Rv 1, 5.                          |
| 4: Phil 2, 9ff; Col 1, 14.                     | 7: Ps 104, 4.                        |
|  | 8: Ps 45, 7f.                        |
|  | 10ff: Ps 102, 26ff.                  |

†

1, 1-4: The letter opens with a reflection on the climax of God's revelation to mankind in his Son (v 3). The divine communication with men was initiated and maintained during Old Testament times through chosen men, the prophets (1). But now in messianic times, the final period of man's religious history, God the Son, creator and end of all things, is the communicator with men (2). He is the perfect and exact representation of the Father's being—even to the divine creative power—who entered human existence to destroy the power of sin. After accomplishing this he returned, through his resurrection and ascension, to his natural place with the Father (3). No creature, not even angels, can match the unique dignity of his Person (4).

1, 5-14: The citations from the psalms in v 5 (Ps 2, 7) and v 13 (Ps 110, 1) were traditionally used of Jesus' messianic sonship (cf Acts 13, 33) through his resurrection and ascension (cf Acts 2, 33ff); those in v 8 (Ps 45, 6f) and vv 10ff (Ps 102, 25ff) are concerned with his divine kingship and his creative function. The author states that, in the Christian understanding of Christ, the Old Testament elevates him above the angels. At best the angels can only be servants at the disposal of the creator (v 7, citing Ps 104, 4) and consequently they are sent to serve those who are to inherit salvation (14).

13* To which of the angels has God ever said,

"Sit at my right hand till I make your enemies your footstool?"

14* Are they not all ministering spirits, sent to serve those who are to inherit salvation?

CHAPTER 2

Exhortation to Faithfulness.† 1* In view of this, we must attend all the more to what we have heard, lest we drift away. 2* For if the word spoken through angels stood unchanged, and all transgression and disobedience received its due punishment, 3 how shall we escape if we ignore a salvation as great as ours? Announced first by the Lord, it was confirmed to us by those who had heard him. 4* God then gave witness to it by signs, miracles, varied acts of power, and distribution of the gifts of the Holy Spirit as he willed.

Exaltation through Abasement.† 5 For he did not make the world to come—that world of which we speak—subject to angels. 6* Somewhere this is testified to, in the passage that says:

"What is man that you should be mindful of him, or the son of man that you should care for him?"

7 You made him for a little while lower than the angels;

you crowned him with glory and honor,

8* and put all things under his feet."

In subjecting all things to him, God left nothing unsubjected. At present we do not see all things thus subject, 9* but we do see Jesus crowned with glory and honor because he suffered death: Jesus, who was made for a little while lower than the angels, that through God's gracious will he might taste death for the sake of all men. 10* Indeed, it was fitting that when bringing many sons to glory God, for whom and through whom all things exist, should make their leader in the work of salvation perfect through suffering. 11 He who consecrates and those who are consecrated have one and the same Father. Therefore he is not ashamed to call them brothers, 12* saying,

"I will announce your name to my brothers,

I will sing your praise in the midst of the assembly";

13* and

"I will put my trust in him";

and again,

"Here am I, and the children God has given me!"

14* Now, since the children are men of blood and flesh, Jesus likewise had a full share in ours, that by his death he might rob the devil, the prince of death, of his power, 15* and free those who through fear of death had been slaves their whole life long. 16 Surely he did not come to help angels, but rather the children of Abraham; 17* therefore he had to become like his brothers in every way, that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest before God on their behalf, to expiate the sins of the people. 18 Since he was himself tested through what he suffered, he is able to help those who are tempted.

III: JESUS, FAITHFUL AND COMPASSIONATE HIGH PRIEST

CHAPTER 3

Jesus Superior to Moses.† 1 Therefore, holy brothers who share a heavenly calling, fix your eyes on Jesus, the apos-

13: Ps 110, 1.

14: Ps 91, 11; Dn 7, 10.

2, 1: 2 Pt 3, 17.

2: Acts 7, 53; Gal 3, 19.

4: Mk 16, 20; Acts 14, 3; 19, 11.

6: Ps 8, 5ff.

8: Mt 28, 18; 1 Cor 15, 25-28; Eph 1, 20-23; Phil 3, 21.

9: Phil 2, 6-11.

10: 12, 2; Is 53, 4; Rom 11, 36; 1 Cor 8, 6.

12: Ps 22, 23.

13: 2 Sm 22, 3; Is 8, 17f.

14: Is 25, 8; Hos 13, 14; Jn 12, 31; Rom 6, 9; 1 Cor 15, 54.

15: Rom 8, 15.

17: 4, 15; Phil 2, 7.

† 2, 1-4: The absolute supremacy of Christ should greatly strengthen Christians against abandoning their faith (1). If, according to Jewish tradition (Gal 3, 19), angels played the role of intermediaries for the Mosaic covenant, the violation of which was divinely punished (2), an even severer punishment awaits those who knowingly neglect the salvation offered in Christ's own word, proclaimed by witnesses whom God appointed (Lk 1, 1f; Acts 1, 21f) and confirmed by divine power through signs and miracles (3f).

2, 5-18: The humanity and the suffering of Jesus do not constitute a valid reason for relinquishing the Christian faith. The thought of the psalmist (Ps 8, 4ff in the Septuagint) concerning man's glory and splendor despite his subordination to the angels (6f) is perfectly reflected in the history of Jesus, who lived a truly human existence during his mortal life but is now in full possession of the divine kingly glory (v 9). It was altogether fitting that God should direct him along the path of suffering (v 10), since in the spirit of the Old Testament (Ps 22, 22; Is 8, 17f) he identified himself entirely with those for whom he obtained sacrifice (11-15). He deliberately allied himself with the descendants of Abraham (16) in order to function as an authentic high priest, expiating the sins of the people (17) as one who experienced the same tests as they (18).

3, 1-6: Christians must have full confidence in Jesus, whom their faith recognizes as the one sent by God (the apostle) to be the high priest of the Christian community (1). Like Moses, the leader of the people of Israel, Jesus was faithful to the task assigned to him (2). Moses, however, was faithful in the house of God, i.e., he was himself but a member of God's chosen people (3f), whereas Jesus possesses the fidelity of God's Son over the new people of God (6).

tle and high priest whom we acknowledge in faith, <sup>2*</sup> who was faithful to him who appointed him. Moses, too, "was faithful in all God's household," <sup>3*</sup> but Jesus is more worthy of honor than he, as the founder of a house is more honorable than the house itself. <sup>4</sup> Every house is founded by someone, but God is the founder of all. <sup>5*</sup> Moses "was faithful in all God's household" as a servant charged with the task of witnessing to what would be spoken; <sup>6*</sup> but Christ was faithful as the Son placed over God's house. It is we who are that house if we hold fast to our confidence and the hope of which we boast.

Israel's Infidelity, a Warning.†

<sup>7*</sup> Wherefore, as the Holy Spirit says:

"Today, if you should hear his voice, <sup>8</sup> harden not your hearts as at the revolt in the day of testing in the desert.
<sup>9</sup> When your fathers tested and tried me,
 and saw my works <sup>10</sup>for forty years.

Because of this I was angered with that generation and I said, "They have always been of erring heart, and have never known my ways."

<sup>11</sup> Thus I swore in my anger,
 "They shall never enter into my rest."

<sup>12</sup> Take care, my brothers, lest any of you have an evil and unfaithful spirit and fall away from the living God.

<sup>13</sup> Encourage one another daily while it is still "today," so that no one grows hardened by the deceit of sin. <sup>14*</sup> We have become partners of Christ only if we maintain to the end that confidence with which we began. <sup>15</sup> When Scripture says,

"Today, if you should hear his voice, harden not your hearts as at the revolt,"

<sup>16</sup> who were those that revolted when they heard that voice? Was it not all whom Moses had led out of Egypt?

<sup>17*</sup> With whom was God angry for forty years? Was it not those who had sinned, whose corpses fell in the desert? <sup>18*</sup> To whom but to the disobedient did he swear that they would not enter into his rest? <sup>19</sup> We see, moreover, that it was their unbelief that kept them from entering.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> Therefore, while the promise of entrance into his rest still holds, we ought to be fearful of disobeying lest any one of you be judged to have lost his chance of entering. <sup>2</sup> We have indeed heard the good news, as they did. But the word which they heard did not profit them, for they did not receive it in faith. <sup>3*</sup> It is we who have believed who enter into that rest, just as God said:

"Thus I swore in my anger,
 "They shall never enter into my rest."

Yet God's work was finished when he created the world, <sup>4*</sup> for in reference to the seventh day Scripture somewhere says, "And God rested from all his work on the seventh day"; <sup>5</sup> and again, in the place we have referred to, God says, "They shall never enter into my rest."<sup>6</sup> Therefore, since it remains for some to enter, and those to whom it was first announced did not because of unbelief, <sup>7*</sup> God once more set a day, "today," when long afterward he spoke through David the words we have quoted:

"Today, if you should hear his voice,
 harden not your hearts."

<sup>8*</sup> Now if Joshua had led them into the place of rest, God would not have spoken afterward of another day. <sup>9</sup> Therefore a sabbath rest still remains for the people of God. <sup>10</sup> And he who enters into God's rest, rests from his own work as God did from his. <sup>11</sup> Let us strive to enter into that rest, so that no one may fall, in imitation of the example of Israel's unbelief.

<sup>12*</sup>† Indeed, God's word is living and

3, 2: 10, 23; Nm 12, 7.	17: Nm 14, 29.
3: Mt 12, 41f; 16, 18; 2 Cor 3, 7.	18: Nm 14, 23; Dt 1, 35.
5: Dt 18, 18.	4: 3: Ps 95, 11.
6: 10, 21; Eph 2, 19-22; 1 Tm 3, 15.	4: Gn 2, 2.
7: Nm 14, 21ff; Ps 95, 8-11.	7: 3, 7f; Ps 95, 7f.
14: Rom 8, 17.	8: Dt 31; 7.
	12: Jos 22, 4; Wis 18, 15f; Is 49, 2; Eph 6, 17; Rv 1, 16; 19, 15.

† 3, 7-4, 11: The author appeals for steadfastness of faith in Jesus. Citing the Old Testament warning (Ps 95, 7-11) against hardness of heart, i.e., practical disregard of the divine message (7-11), he urges the community to watchfulness and mutual encouragement (12ff). They are to remember the example of Israel's revolt in the desert which cost a whole generation the loss of the promised land (15-19; cf Nm 14, 20-29). The promised land, designated here under the concept of rest, is the author's symbol for final union with Christ. He concludes his appeal, developing the idea that his Christian audience is experiencing a test of faith similar to that of Israel in the desert, and one which could have the same unfortunate results (4, 1-11).

4, 12-15: The word of God, i.e., the divine message of salvation in Jesus, lays open to God man's real intentions and purposes in this life (12) so that there is no escaping the manifestation of his conscience (13). But the Christian who holds fast to his faith in Jesus as high priest (14, 2, 17) need have no fear even of his own weakness (16), for his appeal is to a high priest who understands the human condition from his own experience of suffering and temptation, sin excepted (15).

effective, sharper than any two-edged sword. It penetrates and divides soul and spirit, joints and marrow; it judges the reflections and thoughts of the heart. <sup>13*</sup> Nothing is concealed from him; all lies bare and exposed to the eyes of him to whom we must render an account.

Jesus, Compassionate High Priest.

<sup>14*</sup> Since, then, we have a great high priest who has passed through the heavens, Jesus, the Son of God, let us hold fast to our profession of faith. <sup>15*</sup> For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weakness, but one who was tempted in every way that we are, yet never sinned. <sup>16*</sup> So let us confidently approach the throne of grace to receive mercy and favor and to find help in time of need.

CHAPTER 5

Compassionate High Priest. <sup>1†</sup> Every high priest is taken from among men and made their representative before God, to offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. <sup>2</sup> He is able to deal patiently with erring sinners, for he himself is beset by weakness <sup>3*</sup> and so must make sin offerings for himself as well as for the people. <sup>4*</sup> One does not take this honor on his own initiative, but only when called by God as Aaron was. <sup>5*</sup> Even Christ did not glorify himself with the office of high priest; he received it from the One who said to him,

"You are my son;
today I have begotten you";

<sup>6*</sup> just as he says in another place,

"You are a priest forever, according to the order of Melchizedek."

<sup>7*</sup> In the days when he was in the flesh, he offered prayers and supplications with loud cries and tears to God, who was able to save him from death, and he was heard because of his reverence. <sup>8*</sup> Son though he was, he learned obedience from what he suffered; <sup>9*</sup> and when perfected, he became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey him, <sup>10*</sup> designated by God as high priest according to the order of Melchizedek.

IV: JESUS' ETERNAL PRIESTHOOD AND ETERNAL SACRIFICE

Exhortation to Spiritual Renewal.

<sup>11†</sup> About this we have much to say, and it is difficult to explain, for you have become deaf. <sup>12*</sup> Although by this time you should be teaching others, you need to have someone teach you again the basic elements of the oracles of God; you need milk, not solid food. <sup>13</sup> Everyone whose food is milk alone is ignorant of the word that sanctifies, for he is a child. <sup>14</sup> Solid food is for the mature, for those whose faculties are trained by practice to distinguish good from evil.

CHAPTER 6

Spiritual Renewal. <sup>1*†</sup> Let us, then, go beyond the initial teaching about Christ and advance to maturity, not laying the foundation all over again: repentance from dead works, faith in God, <sup>2</sup> instruction about baptisms and laying-on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment. <sup>3</sup> And, God permitting, we shall advance!

<sup>4*</sup> For when men have once been enlightened and have tasted the heavenly gift and become sharers in the Holy Spirit, <sup>5</sup> when they have tasted the good word of God and the powers of the age to come, <sup>6*</sup> and then have fallen away, it is impossible to make them repent again, since they are crucifying the Son of God for themselves and holding him up to contempt. <sup>7</sup> Ground which drinks in the rain falling on it again and again, and brings forth vegetation useful to those for whom it is cultivated, receives the blessing of God. <sup>8*</sup> But if it bears thorns and thistles, it is worthless; it is soon cursed, and finally is burned.

13: Jb 34, 21f; Pss 90, 8, 139, 2f.	7: Mt 26, 38ff. 8: Phil 2, 8. 9: 7, 28. 10: 6, 20. 12: 1 Cor 3, 1ff. 6, 1: 9, 14.
14: 9, 11, 24.	4: 10, 26; Mt 12, 45; 2 Pt 2, 20.
15: 2, 17f; 5, 7.	6: 1 Jn 5, 16.
16: 10, 19; Eph 3, 12.	8: Gn 3, 17f.
5, 3: Lv 9, 7; 16, 17. 4: Ex 28, 1.
5: Ps 2, 7; Jn 8, 54.
6: Ps 110, 4.

†

5, 1-10: The true humanity of Jesus (see note on 2, 5-18) makes him a more rather than a less effective high priest to the Christian community. In Old Testament tradition the high priest was identified with the people, guilty of personal sin just as they were (11f). Even so, the office was of divine appointment (4), as was also the case with the sinless (4, 15) Christ (5). For v 6, see note on Ps 110, 4. Although Jesus was Son of God, he was destined as man to learn obedience by accepting the suffering which he had to endure (6). Because of his perfection through this experience of human suffering he is the cause of salvation for all (9), a high priest according to the order of Melchizedek (10; cf Heb 7, 3).

5, 11-14: By way of preparation for his reflections on the priesthood of Christ, in chapter 7, the author deliberately arouses his audience by provocation, observing that they are not really prepared to assimilate advanced theological reflection.

6, 1-8: The author judges that the community's faith will benefit more from profound theological reflection than from a repetition of traditional catechesis (11f). He will make no effort to address himself to apostates, for their very hostility to the Christian message cuts them off completely from Christ (4-8).

<sup>9</sup> Beloved, even though we speak in this way, we are persuaded of better things in your regard, things pointing to your salvation. <sup>10</sup> God is not unjust; he will not forget your work and the love you have shown him by your service, past and present, to his holy people. <sup>11</sup>* Our desire is that each of you show the same zeal till the end, fully assured of that for which you hope. <sup>12</sup>* Do not grow lazy, but imitate those who, through faith and patience, are inheriting the promises.

<sup>13</sup> When God made his promise to Abraham, he swore by himself, having no one greater to swear by, <sup>14</sup>* and said, "I will indeed bless you, and multiply you." <sup>15</sup>* And so, after patient waiting, Abraham obtained what God had promised. <sup>16</sup> Men swear by someone greater than themselves; an oath gives firmness to a promise and puts an end to all argument. <sup>17</sup> God, wishing to give the heirs of his promise even clearer evidence that his purpose would not change, guaranteed it by oath, <sup>18</sup>* so that, by two things that are unchangeable, in which he could not lie, we who have taken refuge in him might be strongly encouraged to seize the hope which is placed before us. <sup>19</sup>* Like a sure and firm anchor, that hope extends beyond the veil <sup>20</sup>* through which Jesus, our forerunner, has entered on our behalf, being made high priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek.

CHAPTER 7

Melchizedek a Type of Christ. <sup>1</sup>*† This Melchizedek, king of Salem and priest of the Most High God, met Abraham returning from his defeat of the kings and blessed him. <sup>2</sup> And Abraham apportioned to him one tenth of all his booty. His name means "king of justice"; he was also king of Salem, that is, "king of peace." <sup>3</sup> Without father, mother or ancestry, without beginning of days or end of life, like the Son of God he remains a priest forever.

<sup>4</sup>† See the greatness of this man to whom Abraham the patriarch gave one tenth of his booty! <sup>5</sup>* The law provides that the priests of the tribe of Levi should receive tithes from the people, their brother Israelites, even though all of them are descendants of Abraham; <sup>6</sup> but Melchizedek, who was not of their ancestry, received tithes of Abraham and blessed him who had received God's promises. <sup>7</sup> It is indisputable that a lesser person is blessed by a greater. <sup>8</sup> And whereas men subject to death receive tithes, Scripture testifies that this man lives on. <sup>9</sup> Levi, who receives tithes, was, so to speak, tithed in the person of his father, <sup>10</sup> for he was still in his father's loins when Melchizedek met Abraham.

<sup>11</sup>*† If, then, perfection had been achieved through the levitical priesthood (on the basis of which the people received the law), what need would there have been to appoint a priest according to the order of Melchizedek, instead of choosing a priest according to the order of Aaron? <sup>12</sup> When there is a change of priesthood, there is necessarily a change of law. <sup>13</sup> Now he of whom these things are said was of a different tribe, none of whose members ever officiated at the altar. <sup>14</sup>* It is clear that our Lord rose from the tribe of Judah, regarding which Moses said nothing about priests. <sup>15</sup>† The matter is clearer still if another priest is appointed according to the likeness of Melchizedek: <sup>16</sup> one who has become a priest, not in virtue of a law expressed in a commandment concerning physical descent, but in virtue of the power of a life which cannot be

11: 3, 14.	20: 5, 10; Ps 110, 4.
12: Gal 3, 14; Eph 1, 13f.	7, 1: Gn 14, 17-20; 5: Nm 18, 21.
14: Gn 22, 16.	11: Ps 110, 4.
15: Rom 4, 20.	14: Gn 49, 10; Is 11, 1; Mt 1, 1f; 2, 6; Rom 1, 3; Rv 5, 5.
18: Nm 23, 19; 2 Tm 2, 13.
19: 10, 20; Lv 16, 2, Jn 14, 3.

† 6, 9-20: To balance his criticism of the community (1ff, 9), the author expresses his confidence that its members are living truly Christian lives, and that God will justly reward their efforts (v 10). He is concerned especially about their persevering (11f), and cites in this regard the achievement of Abraham, who relied on God's promise and on God's oath (13-18; cf Gn 22, 16). The author proposes to them a firm anchor of Christian hope, the high priesthood of Christ now living with God (19f).

7, 1ff: Recalling the meeting between Melchizedek and Abraham described in Genesis 14, 17-20, the author enhances the significance of this priest by providing the etymological meaning of his name and that of the city over which he ruled (v 2). Since Genesis gives no information on the parentage or the death of Melchizedek, he is seen here as a type of Christ, representing a priesthood that is unique and eternal (v 3).

7, 4-10: The title which Abraham gave to Melchizedek (v 4), a practice later followed by the levitical priesthood (v 5), was a gift (v 6) acknowledging a certain superiority in Melchizedek, the foreign priest (v 7). This is further indicated by the fact that the institution of the levitical priesthood was sustained by hereditary succession in the tribe of Levi, whereas the absence of any mention of Melchizedek's death in Genesis implies that his personal priesthood is permanent (v 8). The levitical priesthood itself, through Abraham, its ancestor, paid tithes to Melchizedek, thus acknowledging the superiority of his priesthood over its own (9f).

7, 11-14: The levitical priesthood was not typified by the priesthood of Melchizedek, for Psalm 110, 4 speaks of a priesthood of a new order, the order of Melchizedek, to arise in messianic times (v 11). Since the levitical priesthood served the Mosaic law, a new priesthood (v 12) would not come into being without a change in the law itself. Thus Jesus was not associated with the Old Testament priesthood, for he was a descendant of the tribe of Judah, which had never exercised the priesthood (13f).

7, 15-19: Jesus does not exercise a priesthood through family lineage but through his immortal existence (15f), fulfilling Psalm 110, 4 (v 17; cf 7, 3). Thus he abolishes forever both the levitical priesthood and the law it serves, because neither could effectively sanctify men (v 18) by leading them into direct communication with God (v 19).

destroyed. 17* Scripture testifies: "You are a priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek."

18* The former commandment has been annulled because of its weakness and uselessness, 19 for the law brought nothing to perfection. But a better hope has supervened, and through it we draw near to God. 20† This has been confirmed by an oath. The priests of the old covenant became priests without an oath, 21* unlike Jesus to whom God said:

"The Lord has sworn, and he will not repent:

'You are a priest forever, according to the order of Melchizedek.'

22 Thus has Jesus become the guarantee of a better covenant. 23 Under the old covenant there were many priests because they were prevented by death from remaining in office; 24 but Jesus, because he remains forever, has a priesthood which does not pass away. 25* Therefore he is always able to save those who approach God through him, since he forever lives to make intercession for them.

26† It was fitting that we should have such a high priest: holy, innocent, undefiled, separated from sinners, higher than the heavens. 27* Unlike the other high priests, he has no need to offer sacrifice day after day, first for his own sins and then for those of the people; he did that once for all when he offered himself. 28* For the law sets up as high priests men who are weak, but the word of the oath which came after the law appoints as priest the Son, made perfect forever.

CHAPTER 8

The Heavenly Priesthood of Jesus.

1† The main point in what we are saying is this: we have such a high priest, who has taken his seat at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in heaven, 2* minister of the sanctuary and of that true tabernacle set up, not by man, but by the Lord. 3 Now every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices; hence the necessity for this one to have something to offer. 4* If he were on earth he would not be a priest, for there are priests already offering the gifts which the law prescribes. 5* They offer worship in a sanctuary which is only a copy and shadow of the heavenly one, for Moses, when about to erect the tabernacle, was warned, "See that you make everything according to the pattern shown you on the mountain." 6*† Jesus has obtained a more excellent ministry now, just as he is mediator of a better covenant, founded on better promises.

The Old and the New Covenants. 7 If that first covenant had been faultless, there would have been no place for a second one. 8* But God, finding fault with them, says:

"Days are coming, says the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah.

9 It will not be like the covenant I made with their fathers the day I took them by the hand to lead them forth from the land of Egypt;

For they broke my covenant and I grew weary of them, says the Lord.

10* But this is the covenant I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the Lord: I will place my laws in their minds and I will write them upon their hearts;

I will be their God and they shall be my people.

11 And they shall not teach their fellow citizens or their brothers, saying, 'Know the Lord,' for all shall know me, from least to greatest.

17: Ps 110, 4.	8, 2: Ex 33, 7.
18: 10, 1.	4: 7, 13.
21: Ps 110, 4.	5: 9, 23; Ex 25, 40;
25: Rom 8, 34; 1 Jn 2, 1.	Acts 7, 44; Col 2, 17.
27: 5, 3; 9, 12-25-28; 10, 11-14; Lv 16, 6.17; Rom 6, 10.	6: 7, 22. 8: Jer 31, 31-34; Mt 26, 28.
28: 5, 9.	10: 10, 16f.

† 7, 20-25: As was the case with the promise to Abraham (6, 13)—but not with the levitical priesthood—the eternal priesthood of the order of Melchizedek was confirmed by God's oath (20); cf Ps 110, 4. Thus Jesus becomes the guarantee of a permanent covenant (22) that does not require a succession of priests as did the levitical priesthood (23), because his high priesthood is eternal and unchangeable (24). Jesus, therefore, is able to save all who draw near to God through him since he is their everlasting intercessor (25).

7, 26-28: Jesus is precisely the high priest whom mankind requires, holy and sinless, installed far above humanity (26); one having no need to offer his sacrifice daily for the sins of men, but making a single offering of himself (27) once and for all. The law could only appoint high priests with human limitations, but the fulfillment of God's oath regarding the priesthood of Melchizedek (Ps 110, 4) makes the Son of God the perfect priest forever (28).

8, 1-5: The Christian community has in Jesus the kind of high priest described in 7, 26ff. In virtue of his ascension Jesus has taken his place at God's right hand in accordance with Psalm 110, 1(1), where he presides over the heavenly sanctuary established by God himself (2). Like every high priest, he has his offering to make (3; cf 9, 12.14), but it differs from that of the levitical priesthood in which he had no share (4), and which was in any case but a shadowy reflection of the true offering in the heavenly sanctuary (5).

8, 6-13: Jesus' ministry in the heavenly sanctuary is that of mediator of a superior covenant which accomplishes what it signifies (v 6). Since the first covenant was deficient in this respect, it had to be replaced (v 7), as Jeremiah (31, 31-34) had prophesied (8-12). Even in the time of Jeremiah, the first covenant was antiquated (v 13).

<sup>12</sup> I will forgive their evildoing, and their sins I will remember no more."

<sup>13</sup> When he says, "a new covenant," he declares the first one obsolete. And what has become obsolete and has grown old is close to disappearing.

CHAPTER 9

The Worship of the Old Covenant.

<sup>14</sup> The first covenant had regulations for worship and an earthly sanctuary. <sup>24</sup> For a tabernacle was constructed, the outer one, in which were the lampstand, the table, and the showbread; this was called the holy place. <sup>3*</sup> Behind the second veil was the tabernacle called the holy of holies, <sup>4*</sup> in which were the golden altar of incense and the ark of the covenant entirely covered with gold. In the ark were the golden jar containing the manna, the rod of Aaron which had blossomed, and the tablets of the covenant. <sup>5*</sup> Above the ark were the cherubim of glory overshadowing the place of expiation. We cannot speak now of each of these in detail. <sup>6</sup> These were the arrangements for worship. In performing their service the priests used to go into the outer tabernacle constantly, <sup>7*</sup> but only the high priest went into the inner one, and that but once a year, with the blood which he offered for himself and for the sins of the people. <sup>8</sup> The Holy Spirit was showing thereby that while the first tabernacle was still standing, the way into the sanctuary had not yet been revealed. <sup>9</sup> This is a symbol of the present time, in which gifts and sacrifices are offered that can never make perfect the conscience of the worshiper, <sup>10*</sup> but can only cleanse in matters of food and drink and various ritual washings: regulations concerning the flesh, imposed until the time of the new order.

The Sacrifice of Jesus. <sup>11</sup> But when Christ came as high priest of the good things which have come to be, he entered once for all into the sanctuary, passing through the greater and more perfect tabernacle not made by hands, that is, not belonging to this creation. <sup>12*</sup> He entered, not with the blood of goats and calves, but with his own blood, and achieved eternal redemption. <sup>13*</sup> For if the blood of goats and bulls and the sprinkling of a heifer's ashes can sanctify those who are defiled so that their flesh is cleansed, <sup>14*</sup> how much more will the blood of Christ, who through the eternal spirit offered himself up unblemished to God, cleanse our consciences from dead works to worship the living God!

<sup>15*</sup>† This is why he is mediator of a new covenant: since his death has taken place for deliverance from transgressions committed under the first covenant, those who are called may receive the promised eternal inheritance. <sup>16</sup> Where there is a testament, it is necessary that the death of the testator be confirmed. <sup>17</sup> For a testament comes into force only in the case of death; it has no force while the testator is alive. <sup>18</sup> Hence, not even the first covenant was inaugurated without blood. <sup>19</sup> When Moses had read all the commandments of the law to the people, he took the blood of goats and calves, together with water and crimson wool and hyssop, and sprinkled the book and all the people, <sup>20*</sup> saying, "This is the blood of the covenant which God has enjoined upon you." <sup>21</sup> He also sprinkled the tabernacle and all the vessels of worship with blood. <sup>22*</sup> According to the law almost everything is purified by blood, and without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness.

<sup>23</sup> It was necessary that the copies of

9, 2: Ex 25, 23-30.	13: 10, 4; Lv 16,
3: Ex 26, 31ff.	6,16; Nm 19,
4: Lv 16, 12f; Ex	17-18.
16, 33; 25, 10;	14: 10, 10; Ti 2, 14;
Nm 17, 2-7.	1 Pt 1, 18f; 1 Jn
5: Ex 25, 16-22;	1, 7; Rv 1, 5.
26, 34.	15: 1 Tm 2, 5.
7: Ex 30, 10.	20: Ex 24, 6ff; Mt
10: Col 2, 16.	26, 28.
12: 7, 27; Mt 26, 28.	22: Lv 17, 11.

† 9, 1-14: The regulations for worship under the old covenant permitted all the priests to enter the holy place (2, 6), but only the high priest to enter the holy of holies and then only once a year (3ff.7). The description of the sanctuary and its furnishing is taken essentially from Exodus 25—26. This exclusion of the people from the holy of holies signified that they were not allowed to stand in God's presence (8) because their offenses and sacrifices, which were merely symbols of their need of spiritual renewal (10), could not obtain forgiveness of their sins (9). But Christ, the high priest of the spiritual blessings foreshadowed in the Old Testament sanctuary, has actually entered the true sanctuary of heaven that is not of man's making (11). His place there is permanent, and his offering is his own blood which won man's eternal redemption (12). If the sacrifice of animals could bestow legal purification (13), how much more effective is the blood of the sinless, divine Christ who spontaneously offered himself to purge man of his sins and to render him fit for the service of God (14)!

9, 15-28: Jesus' role as mediator of the new covenant resulted in his death, which freed men from the sins committed under the Mosaic covenant and made them instead inheritors of the benefits of the new covenant (15). This effect of his work follows the human pattern whereby a last will and testament becomes effective only with the death of the testator (16f). The Mosaic covenant was also associated with death, for Moses made use of blood to seal the pact between God and the people (18-21). In Old Testament tradition guilt could normally not be remitted without the use of blood (22: cf Lv 17, 11). Since inevitably the blood of animals became a cleansing symbol among Old Testament prefigurations, it was necessary that the realities foreshadowed be brought into being by a shedding of blood that was infinitely more effective by reason of its worth (23). Christ did not simply prefigure the heavenly realities (24) by performing an annual sacrifice with a blood not his own (25), but offered the single sacrifice of himself as the final annulment of sin (26). Just as death is the unrepeatable act which ends man's life, so Christ's offering of himself for all men is the unrepeatable sacrifice which has once and for all achieved redemption (27f).

the heavenly models be purified in this way, but the heavenly realities themselves called for better sacrifices. <sup>24*</sup> For Christ did not enter into a sanctuary made by hands, a mere copy of the true one; he entered heaven itself that he might appear before God now on our behalf. <sup>25</sup> Not that he might offer himself there again and again, as the high priest enters year after year into the sanctuary with blood that is not his own; <sup>26*</sup> if that were so, he would have had to suffer death over and over from the creation of the world. But now he has appeared at the end of the ages to take away sins once for all by his sacrifice. <sup>27*</sup> Just as it is appointed that men die once, and after death be judged, <sup>28*</sup> so Christ was offered up once to take away the sins of many; he will appear a second time not to take away sin but to bring salvation to those who eagerly await him.

for sins and took his seat forever at the right hand of God; <sup>13</sup> now he waits until his enemies are placed beneath his feet. <sup>14</sup> By one offering he has forever perfected those who are being sanctified. <sup>15</sup> The Holy Spirit attests this to us, for after saying,

<sup>16</sup> * "This is the covenant I will make with them after those days, says the Lord: I will put my laws in their hearts and I will write them on their minds,"

<sup>17</sup> he also says, "Their sins and their transgressions I will remember no more."

<sup>18</sup> Once these have been forgiven, there is no further offering for sin.

Recalling the Past. † <sup>19*</sup> Brothers,

CHAPTER 10

One Sacrifice instead of Many.

<sup>1*</sup> † Since the law had only a shadow of the good things to come, and no real image of them, it was never able to perfect the worshippers by the same sacrifices offered continually year after year. <sup>2</sup> Were matters otherwise, the priests would have stopped offering them, for the worshippers, once cleansed, would have had no sin on their conscience. <sup>3*</sup> But through those sacrifices there came only a yearly recalling of sins, <sup>4*</sup> because it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take sins away. <sup>5*</sup> Wherefore, on coming into the world, Jesus said:

"Sacrifice and offering you did not desire,

but a body you have prepared for me;

<sup>6</sup> Holocausts and sin offerings you took no delight in.

<sup>7</sup> Then I said, 'As is written of me in the book, I have come to do your will, O God.' "

<sup>8*</sup> First he says,

"Sacrifices and offerings, holocausts and sin offerings, you neither desired nor delighted in."

(These are offered according to the prescriptions of the law.) <sup>9*</sup> Then he says, "I have come to do your will."

In other words, he takes away the first covenant to establish the second.

<sup>10*</sup> By this "will," we have been sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all. <sup>11</sup> † Every other priest stands ministering day by day, and offering again and again those same sacrifices which can never take away sins. <sup>12*</sup> But Jesus offered one sacrifice

24: 1 Jn 2, 1f.	8: 1 Sm 15, 22.
26: 7, 27; Jn 1, 29;	9: Mt 26, 38; Jn 6,
Gal 4, 4.	38.
27: Gn 3, 19.	10: 9, 14.
28: 10, 10 Is 53, 12.	12f: Ps 110, 1.
10, 1: 8, 5; Col 2, 17.	16: 8, 8, 10; Jer 31,
3: Lv 16, 21.	33f.
4: Mt 6, 6ff.	19: 4, 16.
5: Ps 40, 7f.

†

10, 1-10: Christian faith now realizes that the Old Testament sacrifices did not effect the spiritual benefits to come, but only prefigured them (v 1). For if the sacrifices actually effected the forgiveness of sin, there would have been no reason for their constant repetition (v 2). They were rather a continual reminder of the people's sins (v 3). It is not reasonable to suppose that human sins could be removed by the blood of animal sacrifices (v 4). Christ, therefore, is here shown to understand his mission in terms of Psalm 40, 6ff, cited according to the Septuagint (5-7). Jesus acknowledged that the Old Testament sacrifices did not remit the sins of the people and so, perceiving the will of God, offered his own body for this purpose (8ff).

10, 11-18: Whereas the levitical priesthood offered daily sacrifices that were ineffectual in remitting sin (v 11), Jesus offered a single sacrifice which won him a permanent place at God's right hand. There he has only to await the final outcome of his work (12 f; cf Ps 110, 1). Thus he has brought into being in his own person the new covenant prophesied by Jeremiah (31, 33f) which has rendered meaningless all other offerings for sin (14-18).

10, 19-39: Practical consequences from these reflections on the priesthood and the sacrifice of Christ should make it clear that Christians may now have direct and confident access to God through the person of Jesus (19f), who rules God's house as high priest (v 12). They should approach God with sincerity and faith, in the knowledge that through baptism their sins have been remitted (v 22), reminding themselves of the hope they expressed in Christ at that event (v 23). They are to encourage one another to Christian love and activity (v 24), not refusing, no matter what the reason, to participate in the community's assembly especially in view of the parousia (v 25; cf 1 Thes 4, 13-18). If refusal to participate in the assembly indicates rejection of Christ, no sacrifice exists to obtain forgiveness for so great a sin (v 26); only the dreadful judgment of God remains (v 27). For if violation of the Mosaic law could be punished by death, how much worse will be the punishment of those who have turned their backs on Christ by despising his sacrifice and disregarding the gifts of the Holy Spirit (28f). Judgment belongs to the Lord, and he enacts it by his living presence (30f). There was a time when the spirit of their community caused them to welcome and share their sufferings (32ff). To revitalize that spirit is to share in the courage of the Old Testament prophets (cf Is 26, 20; Hb 2, 3f), the kind of courage that must distinguish the faith of the Christian (35-39).

V: EXAMPLES, DISCIPLINE, DISOBEDIENCE

CHAPTER 11†

since the blood of Jesus assures our entrance into the sanctuary <sup>20*</sup> by the new and living path he has opened up for us through the veil (the "veil" meaning his flesh), <sup>21</sup> and since we have a great priest who is over the house of God, <sup>22*</sup> let us draw near in utter sincerity and absolute confidence, our hearts sprinkled clean from the evil which lay on our conscience and our bodies washed in pure water. <sup>23</sup> Let us hold unswervingly to our profession which gives us hope, for he who made the promise deserves our trust. <sup>24</sup> We must consider how to rouse each other to love and good deeds. <sup>25</sup> We should not absent ourselves from the assembly, as some do, but encourage one another; and this all the more because you see that the Day draws near.

<sup>26*</sup> If we sin willfully after receiving the truth, there remains for us no further sacrifice for sin—<sup>27*</sup> only a fearful expectation of judgment and a flaming fire to consume the adversaries of God. <sup>28*</sup> Anyone who rejects the law of Moses is put to death without mercy on the testimony of two or three witnesses. <sup>29*</sup> Do you not suppose that a much worse punishment is due the man who disdains the Son of God, thinks the covenant-blood by which he was sanctified to be ordinary, and insults the Spirit of grace? <sup>30*</sup> We know who said,

"Vengeance is mine; I will repay,"

and

"The Lord will judge his people."

<sup>31</sup> It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

<sup>32</sup> Recall the days gone by when, after you had been enlightened, you endured a great contest of suffering. <sup>33*</sup> At times you were publicly exposed to insult and trial; at other times you associated yourselves with those who were being so dealt with. <sup>34*</sup> You even joined in the sufferings of those who were in prison and joyfully assented to the confiscation of your goods, knowing that you had better and more permanent possessions. <sup>35</sup> Do not, then, surrender your confidence; it will have great reward. <sup>36*</sup> You need patience to do God's will and receive what he has promised.

<sup>37*</sup> For, just a brief moment, and he who is to come will come; he will not delay.

<sup>38*</sup> My just man will live by faith, and if he draws back I take no pleasure in him.

<sup>39</sup> We are not among those who draw back and perish, but among those who have faith and live.

Faith of the Ancients. <sup>1*</sup> Faith is confident assurance concerning what we hope for, and conviction about things we do not see. <sup>2</sup> Because of faith the men of old were approved by God. <sup>3*</sup> Through faith we perceive that the worlds were created by the word of God, and that what is visible came into being through the invisible. <sup>4*</sup> By faith Abel offered God a sacrifice greater than Cain's. Because of this he was attested to be just, God himself having borne witness to him on account of his gifts; therefore, although Abel is dead, he still speaks. <sup>5*</sup> By faith Enoch was taken away without dying, and "he was seen no more because God took him." Scripture testifies that, before he was taken up, he was pleasing to God—<sup>6</sup> but without faith, it is impossible to please him. Anyone who comes to God must believe that he exists, and that he rewards those who seek him. <sup>7*</sup> By faith Noah, warned about things not yet seen, revered God and built an ark that his household might be saved. He thereby condemned the world and inherited the justice which comes through faith. <sup>8*</sup> By faith Abra-

20: 6, 19f; 9, 8, 11f.	17.
22: Ez 36, 25; 1 Pt 3, 21.	11, 1: Rom 4, 20; 2 Cor 4, 18.
26: 6, 4.	3: Gn 1, 3; Jn 1, 3.
27: Zep 1, 18.	4: 12, 24; Gn 4, 4.
28: Dt 17, 6.	5: Gn 5, 24.
29: 6, 6.	7: Gn 6, 8-22; Sir 44, 17; Mt 24, 37f; 1 Pt 3, 20.
30: Dt 32, 35f; Rom 12, 19.	8: Gn 12, 1-4; Sir 44, 19-23; Acts 7, 2-8; Rom 4, 16-22.
33: 1 Cor 4, 9.
34: Mt 6, 20.
36: Lk 21, 19.
37: Hb 2, 3.
38: Hb 2, 4; Rom 1,

†

11, 1-40: This chapter draws upon the people and events of the Old Testament to paint an inspiring portrait of religious faith, firm and unyielding in the face of any obstacles that confront it. In the opinion of some authorities, these pages rank among the most eloquent and lofty to be found in the Bible. They expand the author's theme, broached in 6, 12, to which he now returns (10, 39).

The material of the chapter is consistently developed. Verses 3-7 draw upon the first nine chapters of Genesis, 8-22, upon the period of the patriarchs; 23-31, upon the time of Moses; 32-38, upon the history of the judges, the prophets and the Maccabean martyrs. The author gives the most extensive description of faith provided in the New Testament, though his interest does not lie in a technical, theological definition. In view of the needs of his audience he describes what authentic faith does, not what it is in itself. Through faith God guarantees the blessings to be hoped for from him, providing evidence in the gift of faith that what he promises will eventually come to pass (1). Because they accepted in faith God's guarantee of the future, the biblical personages discussed in 3-38 were themselves commended by God (2). Christians have even greater reason to remain firm in faith, since they, unlike the Old Testament men of faith, have perceived the beginning of God's fulfillment of his messianic promises (39f).

ham obeyed when he was called, and went forth to the place he was to receive as a heritage; he went forth, moreover, not knowing where he was going. <sup>9*</sup> By faith he sojourned in the promised land as in a foreign country, dwelling in tents with Isaac and Jacob, heirs of the same promise; <sup>10*</sup> for he was looking forward to the city with foundations, whose designer and maker is God. <sup>11*</sup> By faith Sarah received power to conceive though she was past the age, for she thought that the One who had made the promise was worthy of trust. <sup>12*</sup> As a result of this faith, there came forth from one man, who was himself as good as dead, descendants as numerous as the stars in the sky and the sands of the seashore.

<sup>13</sup> All of these died in faith. They did not obtain what had been promised but saw and saluted it from afar. By acknowledging themselves to be strangers and foreigners on the earth, <sup>14*</sup> they showed that they were seeking a homeland. <sup>15</sup> If they had been thinking back to the place from which they had come, they would have had the opportunity of returning there. <sup>16*</sup> But they were searching for a better, a heavenly home. Wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he has prepared a city for them. <sup>17*</sup> By faith Abraham, when put to the test, offered up Isaac; he who had received the promises was ready to sacrifice his only son, <sup>18*</sup> of whom it was said, "Through Isaac shall your descendants be called." <sup>19*</sup> He reasoned that God was able to raise from the dead, and so he received Isaac back as a smybol. <sup>20*</sup> By faith Isaac invoked for Jacob and Esau blessings that were still to be.

<sup>21*</sup> By faith Jacob, when dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph, and worshiped God, leaning on the head of his staff. <sup>22*</sup> By faith Joseph, near the end of his life, spoke of the Exodus of the Israelites, and gave instructions about his burial. <sup>23*</sup> By faith Moses' parents hid him for three months after his birth, thereby disregarding the king's edict, because they saw that he was a beautiful child.

<sup>24*</sup> By faith Moses, when he had grown up, refused to be known as the son of Pharaoh's daughter; <sup>25</sup> he wished to be ill-treated along with God's people rather than enjoy the fleeting rewards of sin. <sup>26</sup> Moses considered the reproach borne by God's Anointed greater riches than the treasures of Egypt, for he was looking to the reward. <sup>27*</sup> By faith he left Egypt, not fearing the king's wrath, for he persevered as if he were looking on the invisible God. <sup>28*</sup> By faith he kept the Passover and sprinkled the lamb's blood, that the destroying angel might not touch the first-born of Israel. <sup>29*</sup> By faith the Israelites crossed the Red Sea as if it were dry land, but when the Egyptians attempted the same thing they were drowned. <sup>30*</sup> Because of Israel's faith, the walls of Jericho fell after being encircled for seven days. <sup>31*</sup> By faith Rahab the harlot escaped from being destroyed with the unbelievers, for she had peacefully received the spies. <sup>32*</sup> What more shall I recount? I have no time to tell of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, of David and Samuel and the prophets, <sup>33*</sup> who by faith conquered kingdoms, did what was just, obtained the promises; they broke the jaws of lions, <sup>34*</sup> put out raging fires, escaped the devouring sword; though weak they were made powerful, became strong in battle, and turned back foreign invaders. <sup>35*</sup> Women received back their dead through resurrection. Others were tortured and would not receive deliverance, in order to obtain a better resurrection. <sup>36*</sup> Still others endured mockery, scourging, even chains and imprisonment. <sup>37</sup> They were stoned, sawed in two, put to death at sword's point; they went about garbed in the skins of sheep or goats, needy, afflicted, tormented. <sup>38*</sup> The world was not worthy of them. They wandered about in deserts and on mountains, they dwelt in caves and in holes of the earth. <sup>39</sup> Yet despite the fact that all of these were approved because of their faith, they did not obtain what had been promised. <sup>40</sup> God had made a better plan, a plan which included us. Without us, they were not to be made perfect.

CHAPTER 12

God's Treatment of His Sons.

† Therefore, since we for our part are

9: Gn 23, 4; 26, 3.	22: Gn 50, 23ff.
10: 13, 14; Rv 21, 10-22.	23: Ex 2, 2; Acts 7, 20.
11: Gn 17, 19; 21, 2; Rom 4, 19-21.	24: Ex 2, 10-15.
12: Gn 15, 5; 22, 17; 32, 12; Ex 32, 13.	27: Ex 2, 15.
14: Ps 39, 13.	28: Ex 12, 21ff.
16: 13, 14; Ex 3, 6; Phil 3, 20.	29: Ex 14, 22ff.
17: Gn 22, 1-10; 1 Mc 2, 52; Jas 2, 21.	30: Jos 6, 12-21.
18: Gn 21, 12; Rom 9, 7.	31: Jos 2, 1-21; 6, 22-25; Jas 2, 25.
19: Rom 4, 17-21.	32: Jgs 4, 6; 6, 11; 1, 1.
20: Gn 27, 27-40.	33: Dn 6, 22.
21: Gn 48, 15.	34: Dn 3, 22-25.
	35: 1 Kgs 17, 23; 2 Mc 6, 18-7, 42.
	36: Jer 20, 2; 37, 15.
	38: 1 Mc 2, 28ff.

† 12, 1-4: Christian life is to be inspired not only by the Old Testament men of faith (v 1), but above all by Jesus. As the architect of Christian faith, he had himself to endure the cross before receiving the glory of his triumph (v 2). Reflection on his sufferings should give his followers courage to continue the struggle, if necessary even to the shedding of blood (3f).

surrounded by this cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every encumbrance of sin which clings to us and persevere in running the race which lies ahead; <sup>2*</sup> let us keep our eyes fixed on Jesus, who inspires and perfects our faith. For the sake of the joy which lay before him he endured the cross, heedless of its shame. He has taken his seat at the right of the throne of God. <sup>3</sup> Remember how he endured the opposition of sinners; hence do not grow despondent or abandon the struggle. <sup>4</sup> In your fight against sin you have not yet resisted to the point of shedding blood. <sup>5*</sup>† Moreover, you have forgotten the encouraging words addressed to you as sons:

"My sons, do not disdain the discipline of the Lord nor lose heart when he reproves you;

6 For whom the Lord loves, he disciplines; he scourges every son he receives."

<sup>7*</sup> Endure your trials as the discipline of God, who deals with you as sons. For what son is there whom his father does not discipline? <sup>8</sup> If you do not know the discipline of sons, you are not sons but bastards. <sup>9</sup> If we respected our earthly fathers who corrected us, should we not all the more submit to the Father of spirits, and live? <sup>10</sup> They disciplined us as seemed right to them, to prepare us for the short span of mortal life; but God does so for our true profit, that we may share his holiness. <sup>11</sup> At the time it is administered, all discipline seems a cause for grief and not for joy, but later it brings forth the fruit of peace and justice to those who are trained in its school. <sup>12*</sup> So strengthen your drooping hands and your weak knees. <sup>13*</sup> Make straight the paths you walk on, that your halting limbs may not be dislocated but healed.

Penalties of Disobedience. <sup>14*</sup>† Strive for peace with all men, and for that holiness without which no one can see the Lord. <sup>15*</sup> See to it that no man falls away from the grace of God; that no bitter root springs up through which many may become defiled; <sup>16*</sup> that there be among you no fornicator or godless person like Esau, who sold his birthright for a meal. <sup>17*</sup> You know that afterward he wanted to inherit his father's blessing, but he was rejected because he had no opportunity to alter his choice, even though he sought the blessing with tears.

<sup>18*</sup>† You have not drawn near to an untouchable mountain and a blazing fire, nor gloomy darkness and storm <sup>19*</sup> and trumpet blast, nor a voice speaking words such that those who heard begged that they be not addressed to them, <sup>20*</sup> for they could not bear to hear the command: "If even an animal touches the mountain, it must be stoned to death." <sup>21*</sup> Indeed, so fearful was the spectacle that Moses said, "I am terrified and trembling." <sup>22</sup> No, you have drawn near to Mount Zion and the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, to myriads of angels in festal gathering, <sup>23*</sup> to the assembly of the first-born enrolled in heaven, to God the judge of all, to the spirits of just men made perfect, <sup>24*</sup> to Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood which speaks more eloquently than that of Abel.

<sup>25</sup> Do not refuse to hear him who speaks. For if the Israelites did not escape punishment when they refused to listen as God spoke to them on earth, how much greater punishment will be ours if we turn away from him who speaks from heaven! <sup>26*</sup> His voice then shook the earth, but now he has promised, "I will once more shake not only earth but heaven!" <sup>27*</sup> And that "once more" shows that shaken, created things will pass away, so that only what is unshaken may remain. <sup>28</sup> Wherefore, we who are receiving the unshakable kingdom should hold fast to God's grace, through which we may offer worship acceptable to him in reverence and awe. <sup>29*</sup> For our God is a consuming fire.

12, 2: 2, 10; Ps 110, 1;
Phil 2, 6ff.
5: Prv 3, 11f.
7: Prv 13, 24; Sir
30, 1.
12: Is 35, 3.
13: Prv 4, 26.
14: Rom 12, 18.
15: Dt 29, 18.
16: Gn 25, 33.
17: Gn 27, 38.
18: Ex 19, 12.

19: Ex 19, 16, 19;
20, 19.
20: Ex 10, 13.
21: Dt 9, 19.
23: Lk 10, 20.
24: 8, 6; Gn 4, 10.
26: Ex 19, 18; Jgs 5,
4f; Ps 68, 9; Hg
2, 6.
27: Mt 24, 35.
29: Dt 4, 24; Is 33,
14.

† 12, 5-13: Christians should regard their own sufferings as the affectionate correction of the Lord, who loves them as a father loves his children.

† 12, 14-17: The example of Esau's conduct should warn the community against apostasy from Christ.

† 12, 18-29: As a final appeal for adherence to Christian teaching, the two covenants, of Moses and of Christ, are compared. The Mosaic covenant is shown to have originated in fear of God and threats of divine punishment (18-21). The covenant in Christ gives men direct access to God (v 22), makes them members of the Christian community, God's sons, a sanctified people (v 23) who have Jesus as mediator to speak for them (v 24). Not to heed the voice of the risen Christ is a sin more grave by far than the rejection of the word of Moses (25ff). Though men fall away, God's kingdom in Christ will remain, and his justice will punish those guilty of deserting it (28f).

VI: FINAL EXHORTATION, BLESSING,
GREETINGS

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup>† Love your fellow Christians always. <sup>2</sup>* Do not neglect to show hospitality, for by that means some have entertained angels without knowing it. <sup>3</sup>* Be as mindful of prisoners as if you were sharing their imprisonment, and of the ill-treated as of yourselves, for you may yet suffer as they do. <sup>4</sup> Let marriage be honored in every way and the marriage bed be kept undefiled, for God will judge fornicators and adulterers. <sup>5</sup>* Do not love money but be content with what you have, for God has said, "I will never desert you, nor will I forsake you."<sup>6</sup>* Thus we may say with confidence:

"The Lord is my helper,
I will not be afraid;
What can man do to me?"

<sup>7</sup> Remember your leaders who spoke the word of God to you; consider how their lives ended, and imitate their faith. <sup>8</sup> Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever.

<sup>9</sup>* Do not be carried away by all kinds of strange teaching. It is good to have our hearts strengthened by the grace of God and not by foods which are useless to those who take them as a standard for living. <sup>10</sup> We have an altar from which those who serve the tabernacle have no right to eat. <sup>11</sup>* The bodies of the animals whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest as a sin offering are burned outside the camp. <sup>12</sup>* Therefore Jesus died outside the gate, to sanctify the people by his own blood. <sup>13</sup> Let us go to him outside the camp, bearing the insult which he bore. <sup>14</sup>* For here we have no lasting city; we are seeking one which is to come. <sup>15</sup>* Through him let us continually offer God a sacrifice of praise, that is, the fruit of lips which acknowledge his name.

<sup>16</sup> Do not neglect good deeds and generosity; God is pleased by sacrifices of that kind. <sup>17</sup>† Obey your leaders and submit to them, for they keep watch over you as men who must render an account. So act that they may fulfill their task with joy, not with sorrow, for that would be harmful to you. <sup>18</sup> Pray for us; we are confident that we have a good conscience, wishing, as we do, to act rightly in every respect. <sup>19</sup> I especially ask your prayers that I may be restored to you very soon.

<sup>20</sup>*† May the God of peace, who brought up from the dead the great Shepherd of the sheep by the blood of the eternal covenant, Jesus our Lord, <sup>21</sup> furnish you with all that is good, that you may do his will. Through Jesus Christ may he carry out in you all that is pleasing to him. To Christ be glory forever! Amen.

<sup>22</sup> My brothers, I beg you to bear with this word of encouragement, for I have written to you rather briefly. <sup>23</sup> I must let you know that our brother Timothy has been set free. If he is able to join me soon, he will be with me when I see you. <sup>24</sup> Greetings to all your leaders and to all the people of God. <sup>25</sup> Grace be with you all.

13, 2: Gn 18, 3; 19, 2f; Jgs 6, 11-22; Tb 5, 4.	11: Ex 29, 14; Lv 16, 27.
3: Mt 25, 36.	12: Mt 21, 39; Jn 19, 17.
5: Dt 31, 6; Jos 1, 5.	14: 11, 10.
6: Pss 27, 1ff; 118, 6.	15: Is 57, 19; Hos 14, 2.
9: Rom 14, 17; 1 Cor 8, 8; Eph 4, 14.	20: Is 63, 11; Zec 9, 11; Jn 10, 11; Acts 2, 24; Rom 15, 33.

† 13, 1-16: After recommendations on social and moral matters (1-6), the letter turns to doctrinal issues. The fact that the original leaders are dead should not cause the recipients of this letter to lose their faith (7), for Christ still lives and he remains always the same (8). They must not rely for their personal sanctification on regulations concerning foods (9), nor should they entertain the notion that Judaism and Christianity can be intermingled (10; cf note on Gal 2, 11-14; 15-21). As Jesus died separated from his own people, so must the Christian community remain apart from the religious doctrines of Judaism (11-14). Christ must be the heart and center of the community (15-16).

13, 17ff: Recommending obedience to the leaders of the community, the author observes that he has done his best not to give cause for objection to himself.

13, 20-25: The letter concludes with a prayer (20f); a final request for the acceptance of its message (22); casual information regarding Timothy; and general greetings (23ff).

JAMES

The title "catholic" gradually came into use to designate seven New Testament epistles: JAMES; 1, 2 and 3 JOHN; 1 and 2 PETER; and JUDE. It first appears in reference to 1 John in the writings of Apollonius about 197 A.D., and later in reference to all these epistles in the church historian Eusebius (260-340 A.D.). The title supposes the epistles in question to lack specific addressees and therefore to be directed to the whole church. This, however, is not the case for 2 and 3 John. With the exception of 1 Peter and 1 John, the inspired character of these catholic epistles was disputed in the early church, and finally settled in their favor only at the beginning of the fifth century.

The Epistle of James has a general addressee: To the twelve tribes in the dispersion (1, 1). Its content, however, affords no evidence that the author wrote to non-Christian Jews outside Palestine. Scholarly opinion concerning addressees is undecided between Judaeo-Christian communities outside Palestine and Christians generally. The author concerns himself entirely with Christian conduct. He writes in the spirit of Old Testament wisdom literature (Proverbs, Sirach, Wisdom) and of the moral teaching of Tobit. He is influenced by the tradition of moral exhortation within Judaism, as is indicated by similarities between his letter and extracanonical Jewish literature, e.g., The Testament of the Twelve Patriarchs; 1 Enoch; The Manual of Discipline discovered at Qumran.

Some forty-eight verses in James reveal the influence of sayings of Jesus, especially those in Matthew's Sermon on the Mount. However, except for two allusions to Jesus (1, 1; 2, 1) and one to the parousia (5, 7), the epistle does not relate its moral exhortation to Christology or to the authoritative teaching of Jesus. The force of its teaching is made to rest on the reputation of its author, James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ (1, 1). The author is a known figure and possesses a standing enabling him to speak with authority.

Of the various personages in the New Testament bearing this name, the James mentioned by Paul in Galatians 2, 9 as one of the pillars of the church in Palestine well meets the requirements for the authorship of this epistle. He is designated by Paul, not as one of the Twelve, but as the brother of the Lord (Gal 1, 19). The risen Christ made a significant appearance to him (1 Cor 15, 7). James was the administrator of the Jerusalem community (Acts 12, 17), and for this reason played a leading role in the apostolic Council (Acts 15, 13-21). He was the adviser of Paul on the latter's arrival in Jerusalem after the third missionary journey (Acts 21, 17-25). He is probably to be identified as one of the relatives of Jesus who did not believe in him during the ministry; cf Mk 6, 13; Jn 7, 2-5.

Though not all scholars are satisfied that James, leader of the Jerusalem community, is the author, it must be conceded that the epistle is datable before 62 A.D., when, according to Josephus, James was executed in Jerusalem. Nevertheless, scholars who do not admit James of Jerusalem as the author of the epistle select a date for it toward the end of the first century.

The Epistle of James has acquired special prominence in Christendom because of Martin Luther's claim that its emphasis on good works does not agree with St. Paul's doctrine of justification by faith, and because the Council of Trent declared that James 5, 14f pertains to the promulgation of the sacrament of the Anointing of the Sick.

---

CHAPTER 1

1*† To the twelve tribes in the dispersion, James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, sends greeting.

---

1, 1: Acts 26, 7; Jn 7, 35.

† 1, 1: James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, a declaration of authority for instructing the Christian communities; cf Rom 1, 1. Regarding the identity of the author, see the Introduction.

Endurance. <sup>2*</sup>† My brothers, count it pure joy when you are involved in every sort of trial. <sup>3†</sup> Realize that when your faith is tested this makes for endurance. <sup>4</sup> Let endurance come to its perfection so that you may be fully mature and lacking in nothing.

Prayer for Wisdom. <sup>5*</sup>† If any of you is without wisdom, let him ask it from the God who gives generously and ungrudgingly to all, and it will be given him. <sup>6*</sup>† Yet he must ask in faith, never doubting, for the doubter is like the surf tossed and driven by the wind. <sup>8</sup> A man of this sort, devious and erratic in all that he does, <sup>7</sup> must not expect to receive anything from the Lord.

Humility. <sup>9*</sup>† Let the brother in humble circumstances take pride in his eminence <sup>10*</sup> and the rich man be proud of his lowliness, for he will disappear "like the flower of the field." <sup>11</sup> When the sun comes up with its scorching heat it parches the meadow, the field flowers droop, and with that the meadow's loveliness is gone. Just so will the rich man wither away amid his many projects.

Temptation. <sup>12*</sup>† Happy the man who holds out to the end through trial! Once he has been proved, he will receive the crown of life the Lord has promised to those who love him. <sup>13*</sup>† No one who is tempted is free to say, "I am being tempted by God." Surely God, who is beyond the grasp of evil, tempts no one. <sup>14</sup> Rather, the tug and lure of his own passion tempt every man. <sup>15</sup> Once passion has conceived, it gives birth to sin, and when sin reaches maturity it begets death.

Response to God's Gift. <sup>16</sup> Make no mistake about this, my dear brothers. <sup>17*</sup>† Every worthwhile gift, every genuine benefit comes from above, descending from the Father of the heavenly luminaries, who cannot change and who is never shadowed over. <sup>18*</sup>† He wills to bring us to birth with a word spoken in truth so that we may be a kind of first fruits of his creatures. <sup>19*</sup>† Keep this in mind, dear brothers.

Let every man be quick to hear, slow to speak, slow to anger; <sup>20*</sup>† for a man's anger does not fulfill God's justice. <sup>21*</sup>† Strip away all that is filthy, every vicious excess. Humbly welcome the word that has taken root in you, with its power to save you. <sup>22*</sup>† Act on this word. If all you do is listen to it, you are deceiving yourselves.

<sup>23</sup> A man who listens to God's word but does not put it into practice is like a man who looks into a mirror at the face he was born with: <sup>24</sup> he looks at himself, then goes off and promptly forgets what he looked like. <sup>25*</sup>† There is, on the other hand, the man who peers into freedom's ideal law and abides by it. He is no forgetful listener, but one who carries out the law in practice. Blessed will this man be in whatever he does.

<sup>26*</sup>† If a man who does not control his tongue imagines that he is devout, he is self-deceived; his worship is pointless. <sup>27*</sup>† Looking after orphans and widows in their distress and keeping oneself unspotted by the world make for pure worship without stain before our God and Father.

CHAPTER 2

Against Favoritism. <sup>1†</sup> My brothers, your faith in our glorious Lord Jesus

2: Rom 5, 3ff; 1 Pt 1, 6, 4, 13f.	17: 1 Jn 1, 5.
5: Prv 2, 3-6; Wis 8, 21.	18: 1 Pt 1, 23; 1 Jn 1, 12f.
6: Mt 21, 21; Mk 11, 24.	19: Prv 14, 17; Sir 5, 13.
9: 2, 5.	20: Eph 4, 26.
10: Is 40, 6ff.	21: Col 3, 8.
12: Wis 5, 15f; 1 Cor 9, 25; 2 Tm 4, 8; 1 Pt 5, 4; Rv 2, 10.	22: Mt 7, 24-27; Rom 2, 13.
13: Sir 15, 11-20; 1 Cor 10, 13.	25: Ps 19, 8; Jn 13, 17.
	26: 3, 2f; Ps 33, 14.
	27: Ex 22, 21.

† 1, 2: Count it pure joy . . . every sort of trial: a frequent teaching of the New Testament derived from the words and sufferings of Christ (Mt 5, 10ff; Jn 10, 11; 15, 12f; Acts 5, 41).

1, 3-8: The gradation of testing, endurance, and perfection indicates the manner of achieving spiritual maturity and full preparedness for the coming of Christ (3f), cf Rom 5, 3f; 1 Pt 1, 6f. To sustain trials, to achieve endurance and perfection, require wisdom which God readily grants to believing petitioners but withholds from those who doubt (5-8; cf Sir 4, 7).

1, 9f: From the religious standpoint, the lot of the poor and the lowly as opposed to that of the proud rich is, here and elsewhere in the epistle, found to have value in inverse ratio to circumstance (2, 5; 13; 4, 10, 13-16; 5, 1-6).

1, 12: The crown of life: the ultimate and eternal reward for fidelity and perseverance in following the law of Christ, cf Rom 8, 28; 2 Tm 4, 8; 1 Pt 5, 4; Rv 2, 10.

1, 13f: It is contrary to the nature of God for him to be the author of man's temptation (v 13). In the genesis of sin, man is first beguiled by passion (v 14), then gives his consent, which in turn begets the act of sin. As sin grows, it incurs the ultimate penalty of death (v 15).

1, 18: He wills to bring us to birth . . . truth: acceptance of the gospel message constitutes a new birth and makes the recipient the first fruits of a new creation; cf Jn 3, 5f; Rom 8, 23.

1, 19-25: To be quick to hear the gospel is to accept it readily and to act in conformity with it, removing from one's soul whatever opposes it so that it may take root and effect salvation (19-22). To listen to and not practice the gospel message is to misunderstand religion (23f). Only conformity of life to the ideal law of true freedom brings happiness (v 25).

1, 26: For control of the tongue, see note on 3, 1-12.

1, 27: Orphans and widows: the defenseless and oppressed; cf Acts 6, 1ff.

2, 1-13: In the Christian community there must be no discrimination against the poor, or favoritism toward the rich based on a mistaken exaltation of status or wealth (2ff); cf Mt 23, 6. Divine favor rather consists in God's promises, his election, and his rewards elicited by man's faith and response to his love (5); cf Mt 5, 3; 11, 5; 1 Cor 1, 17-29. The impious rich who oppress the poor dishonor the name of Christ. By violating the law of love of neighbor, they offend against the whole law (6f, 9ff). On the other hand, abiding conscientiously of the final judgment helps the faithful to fulfill the whole law (12).

Christ must not allow of favoritism. <sup>2</sup> Suppose there should come into your assembly a man fashionably dressed, with gold rings on his fingers, and at the same time a poor man in shabby clothes. <sup>3</sup> Suppose further that you were to take notice of the well-dressed man and say, "Sit right here, please," whereas you were to say to the poor man, "You can stand!" or "Sit over there by my footrest." <sup>4</sup> Have you not in a case like this discriminated in your hearts? Have you not set yourselves up as judges handing down corrupt decisions?

<sup>5</sup>* Listen, dear brothers. Did not God choose those who are poor in the eyes of the world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom he promised to those who love him? <sup>6</sup> Yet you treated the poor man shamefully. Are not the rich exploiting you? They are the ones who hale you into the courts <sup>7</sup>* and who blaspheme that noble name which has made you God's own.

<sup>8</sup>* You are acting rightly, however, if you fulfill the law of the kingdom. Scripture has it, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." <sup>9</sup>* But if you show favoritism, you commit sin and are convicted by the law as transgressors. <sup>10</sup>* Whoever falls into sin on one point of the law, even though he keeps the entire remainder, has become guilty on all counts. <sup>11</sup>* For he who said, "You shall not commit adultery," also said, "You shall not kill." If therefore you do not commit adultery but do commit murder, you have become a transgressor of the law.

<sup>12</sup>* Always speak and act as men destined for judgment under the law of freedom. <sup>13</sup>* Merciless is the judgment on the man who has not shown mercy; but mercy triumphs over judgment.

Faith and Good Works. <sup>14</sup>*† My brothers, what good is it to profess faith without practicing it? Such faith has no power to save one, has it? <sup>15</sup>* If a brother or sister has nothing to wear and no food for the day, <sup>16</sup>* and you say to them, "Good-bye and good luck! Keep warm and well fed," but do not meet their bodily needs, what good is that? <sup>17</sup> So it is with the faith that does nothing in practice. It is thoroughly lifeless.

<sup>18</sup> To such a person one might say, "You have faith and I have works—is that it?" Show me your faith without works, and I will show you the faith that underlies my works! <sup>19</sup> Do you believe that God is one? You are quite right. The demons believe that, and shudder. <sup>20</sup> Do you want proof, you ignoramus, that without works faith is idle? <sup>21</sup>* Was not our father Abraham justified by his works when he offered his son Isaac on the altar? <sup>22</sup> There you see proof that faith was both assisting his works and implemented by his works. <sup>23</sup>* You also see how the Scripture was fulfilled which says, "Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as justice"; for this he received the title "God's friend."

<sup>24</sup> You must perceive that a person is justified by his works and not by faith alone. <sup>25</sup>* Rahab the harlot will illustrate the point. Was she not justified by her works when she harbored the messengers and sent them out by a different route? <sup>26</sup> Be assured, then, that faith without works is dead as a body without breath.

CHAPTER 3

Restraining the Tongue. <sup>1</sup>† Not many of you should become teachers, my brothers; you should realize that those of us who do so will be called to the stricter account. <sup>2</sup>* All of us fall short in many respects. If a person is without fault in speech he is a man in the fullest sense, because he can control his entire body. <sup>3</sup> When we put bits into the mouths of horses to make them obey us, we guide the rest of their bodies. <sup>4</sup> It is the same with ships; however large they are, and despite the fact that they are driven by fierce winds, they are directed by very small rudders on whatever course the steersman's impulse may select. <sup>5</sup> The tongue is something like that. It is a small member, yet it makes great pretensions.

See how tiny the spark is that sets a huge forest ablaze! <sup>6</sup>* The tongue is such a flame. It exists among our members as a whole universe of malice. The

2, 5: 1, 12; 1 Cor 1, 26-29; Rv 2, 9.
7: 1 Pt 4, 14.
8: Lv 19, 18; Mt 22, 39; Rom 13, 9.
9: Dt 1, 17.
10: Mt 5, 19; Gal 3, 10.
11: Ex 20, 13f; Dt 5, 17f.
12: 1, 25.
13: Mt 5, 7; 6, 14f; 18, 29-34.
14: Gal 5, 6.

15: Mt 25, 41-44.
16: 1 Jn 3, 17.
21: Gn 22, 9-12; Rom 4, 1; Heb 11, 17.
23: Gn 15, 6; Rom 4, 3; Gal 3, 6.
25: Jos 2, 4-16; 6, 17; Heb 11, 31.
3, 2: 1, 26; Prv 10, 19; 13, 3; Sir 14, 1, 28, 13-26.
6: Prv 26, 18f.

†

2, 14-26: The theme of these verses is the relationship of faith and good works. Neither can merit salvation without the other, as even the demons, who believe that God exists (v 19), can testify (14-20). The faith that justified Abraham was accompanied by his willingness, at the divine behest, to sacrifice his son Isaac (21f). A living faith works through love, as opposed to a dead faith that lacks good works (24, 26).

3, 1-12: The use and abuse of the important role of teaching in the church are here (v 1) related to the good or bad use of the tongue (9-12), the instrument through which teaching was chiefly conveyed; cf Sir 5, 13-6, 1, 28, 12-26. The bit and the rudder are figures of the tongue's control (2ff), just as the spark and destroying flames portray the evils of unbridled speech. The tongue is a whole universe of malice, a defiler of the body (6), a restless evil, full of deadly poison (5-8).

tongue defiles the entire body. Its flames encircle our course from birth, and its fire is kindled by hell. <sup>7</sup> Every form of life, four-footed or winged, crawling or swimming, can be tamed, and has been tamed, by mankind; <sup>8*</sup> the tongue no man can tame. It is a restless evil, full of deadly poison. <sup>9</sup> We use it to say, "Praised be the Lord and Father"; then we use it to curse men, though they are made in the likeness of God. <sup>10</sup> Blessing and curse come out of the same mouth. This ought not to be, my brothers! <sup>11</sup> Does a spring gush forth fresh water and foul from the same outlet? <sup>12*</sup> A fig tree, brothers, cannot produce olives, or a grapevine figs; no more can a brackish source yield fresh water.

True Wisdom. <sup>13*</sup>† If one of you is wise and understanding, let him show this in practice through a humility filled with good sense. <sup>14</sup> Should you instead nurse bitter jealousy and selfish ambition in your hearts, at least refrain from arrogant and false claims against the truth. <sup>15*</sup> Wisdom like this does not come from above. It is earthbound, a kind of animal, even devilish, cunning. <sup>16</sup> Where there are jealousy and strife, there also are inconstancy and all kinds of vile behavior. <sup>17*</sup> Wisdom from above, by contrast, is first of all innocent. It is also peaceable, lenient, docile, rich in sympathy and the kindly deeds that are its fruits, impartial and sincere. <sup>18*</sup> The harvest of justice is sown in peace for those who cultivate peace.

CHAPTER 4

Worldly Desires. <sup>1*</sup>† Where do the conflicts and disputes among you originate? Is it not your inner cravings that make war within your members? <sup>2</sup> What you desire you do not obtain, and so you resort to murder. You envy and you cannot acquire, so you quarrel and fight. You do not obtain because you do not ask. <sup>3*</sup> You ask and you do not receive because you ask wrongly, with a view to squandering what you receive on your pleasures. <sup>4*</sup> O you unfaithful ones, are you not aware that love of the world is enmity to God? A man is marked out as God's enemy if he chooses to be the world's friend. <sup>5</sup> Do you suppose it is to no purpose that Scripture says, "The spirit he has implanted in us tends toward jealousy"? <sup>6*</sup> Yet he bestows a greater gift, for the sake of which it is written,

"God resists the proud but bestows his favor on the lowly."

<sup>7*</sup> Therefore submit to God; resist the devil and he will take flight. <sup>8*</sup> Draw

close to God, and he will draw close to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners; purify your hearts, you backsliders. <sup>9</sup> Begin to lament, to mourn, and to weep; let your laughter be turned into mourning and your joy into sorrow. <sup>10*</sup> Be humbled in the sight of the Lord and he will raise you on high.

Judging One's Fellows. <sup>11</sup> Do not, my brothers, speak ill of one another. The one who speaks ill of his brother or judges his brother is speaking against the law. It is the law he judges. If, however, you judge the law you are no observer of the law, you are its judge. <sup>12*</sup> There is but one Lawgiver and Judge, one who can save and destroy. Who then are you to judge your neighbor?

Against Presumption. <sup>13*</sup>† Come now, you who say, "Today or tomorrow we shall go to such and such a town, spend a year there, trade, and come off with a profit!" <sup>14*</sup> You have no idea what kind of life will be yours tomorrow. You are a vapor that appears briefly and vanishes. <sup>15</sup> Instead of saying, "If the Lord wills it, we shall live to do this or that," <sup>16</sup> all you can do is make arrogant and pretentious claims. All such boasting is reprehensible. <sup>17*</sup> When a man knows the right thing to do and does not do it, he sins.

8: Ps 140, 4.	7: Eph 6, 12; 1 Pt 5, 8f.
12: Mt 7, 16ff.	8: Is 1, 16; Zec 1, 13.
13: Eph 4, 1f.	10: Mt 23, 12; Lk 14, 11; 18, 14; 1 Pt 5, 6.
15: 1, 5, 17.	12: Mt 7, 1; Rom 2, 1.
17: Wis 7, 22.	13: Prv 27, 1; Lk 12, 19f.
18: Mt 5, 9.	14: Ps 39, 6f.
4, 1: Rom 7, 23.	17: Lk 12, 47.
3: Mt 6, 5-13; Rom 8, 26.
4: Mt 6, 24; 1 Jn 2, 15ff.
6: Jb 22, 29; Prv 3, 34; Mt 23, 12; 1 Pt 5, 5.

† 3, 13-18: This discussion on true wisdom is related to the previous reflection on the role of the teacher as one who is in control of his speech. The qualities of the wise man endowed from above (17f) are: innocence, peace, docility, sincerity, impartiality, sympathy and kindly deeds (cf Gal 5, 22f); all this in contrast to earthbound wisdom with its cunning, jealousy, strife, inconstancy, arrogance and endless variety of vile behavior (14ff); cf 2 Cor 12, 20.

4, 1-12: The concern here is with the origin of conflicts in the Christian community. These are occasioned by misuse of the tongue (cf 3, 2-16), and false wisdom shown by love of the world which is enmity to God (4). Further, the conflicts are bound up with failure to pray properly (cf Mt 7, 7-11; Jn 6, 33)—that is, not petitioning God at all or using his kindness only for the petitioner's pleasure (2f). In contrast, the proper dispositions are submission to God, repentance, humility, and resistance to evil (7-10).

4, 13-17: The uncertainty of life (14), its complete dependence on God, the necessity of submitting to his will (15), all help man to know and to do the right (17). To disregard this standard is to live arrogantly and presumptuously (16), i. e., without God. This is sin (17).

CHAPTER 5

Warning to the Rich. 1*† As for you, you rich, weep and wail over your impending miseries. 2* Your wealth has rotted, your fine wardrobe has grown moth-eaten, 3* your gold and silver have corroded, and their corrosion shall be a testimony against you; it will devour your flesh like a fire. See what you have stored up for yourselves against the last days. 4* Here, crying aloud, are the wages you withheld from the farmhands who harvested your fields. The cries of the harvesters have reached the ears of the Lord of hosts. 5* You lived in wanton luxury on the earth; you fattened yourselves for the day of slaughter. 6* You condemned, even killed, the just man; he does not resist you.

Patience. 7*† Be patient, therefore, my brothers, until the coming of the Lord. See how the farmer awaits the precious yield of the soil. He looks forward to it patiently while the soil receives the winter and the spring rains. 8 You, too, must be patient. Steady your hearts, because the coming of the Lord is at hand. 9 Do not grumble against one another, my brothers, lest you be condemned. See! The judge stands at the gate. 10* As your models in suffering hardships and in patience, brothers, take the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord. 11* Those who have endured we call blessed. You have heard of the steadfastness of Job, and have seen what the Lord, who is compassionate and merciful, did in the end.

12*† Above all else, my brothers, you must not swear an oath, any oath at all, either "by heaven" or "by earth." Rather, let it be "yes" if you mean yes and "no" if you mean no. In this way you will not incur condemnation.

Anointing and Prayer. 13 If anyone among you is suffering hardship, he must pray. If a person is in good spirits, he should sing a hymn of praise. 14*† Is there anyone sick among you? He should ask for the presbyters of the church. They in turn are to pray over him, anointing him with oil in the Name [of the Lord]. 15† This prayer uttered in faith will reclaim the one who is ill, and the Lord will restore him to health. If he has committed any sins, forgiveness will be his. 16*† Hence, declare your sins to one another, and pray for one another, that you may find healing.

The fervent petition of a holy man is powerful indeed. 17* Elijah was only a man like us, yet he prayed earnestly that it would not rain and no rain fell on the land for three years and six months. 18* When he prayed again, the sky burst forth with rain and the land produced its crop.

19*† My brothers, the case may arise among you of someone straying from the truth, and of another bringing him back. 20*† Remember this: the person who brings a sinner back from his way will save his soul from death and cancel a multitude of sins.

- |  |                            |
|--|----------------------------|
| 5, 1: Lk 6, 24.                                | 11: Jb 1, 21f; Ps 103, 8.  |
| 2: Sir 29, 10ff; Mt 6, 19.                     | 12: Mt 5, 34ff.            |
| 3: Prv 11, 4, 28.                              | 14: Mk 6, 13.              |
| 4: Ex 22, 22; Lv 19, 13; Dt 24, 14f; Mal 3, 5. | 16: Prv 28, 13.            |
| 5: Lk 16, 19, 25.                              | 17: 1 Kgs 17, 1; Lk 4, 25. |
| 6: Wis 2, 10-20.                               | 18: 1 Kgs 18, 42.          |
| 7: Dt 11, 14; Lk 21, 19; Heb 10, 36.           | 19: Mt 18, 15; Gal 6, 1.   |
| 10: Mt 5, 12.                                  | 20: Prv 10, 12.            |

†

5, 1-6: Continuing with the theme of the transitory character of life on earth, the epistle traces the impending ruin of the godless. It denounces the unjust rich, whose victims cry to heaven for judgment on their exploiters (4ff). The decay and corrosion of the costly garments and metals, which here signalize wealth, prove them worthless and portend the destruction of their possessors (2f).

5, 7-11: Those oppressed by the unjust rich are reminded of the need for patience, both in bearing the sufferings of human life (v 9) and in their expectation of the coming of the Lord. It is then that they will receive their reward (7f, 10f; cf Heb 10, 25; 1 Jn 2, 18).

5, 12: This is a threat of condemnation for the abuse of an oath; cf Mt 5, 33-37. By heaven and by earth were substitutes for the original form of an oath, to circumvent its binding force, and to avoid pronouncing the holy name of Yahweh; cf Ex 22, 10.

5, 14: Is there anyone sick . . . Lord: in case of the senous, even if not extreme, illness of a member of the community, he should ask for the presbyters, i.e., those who have authority in the church (Acts 15, 2, 22ff; 1 Tm 5, 17; Ti 1, 5). They . . . are to pray over him (cf Sir 38, 9), anointing him with oil: oil was used for medicinal purposes in Oriental medicine (cf Is 1, 6; Lk 10, 34). In Mark 6, 13 it is also the medium through which miraculous healing is effected in the Name [of the Lord], i.e., by the power of Jesus Christ.

5, 15: This prayer uttered in faith . . . to health: though other passages in James speak of saving or salvation in reference to the soul (1, 21; 2, 14; 4, 12; 5, 20), here the reference is to bodily health: the Lord will restore him to health, literally "raise him up" (Mk 1, 31; 9, 27). If he has committed any sins, forgiveness will be his: in the public ministry of Jesus, bodily cures and forgiveness of sins are often closely related (Mt 9, 1-8; Mk 2, 1-12; Jn 5, 14). The Council of Trent (Sess. 14) declared the Anointing of the Sick to be a sacrament "instituted by Christ our Lord and promulgated by blessed James the apostle."

5, 16f: Declare . . . sins: as a sign of repentance (cf Lv 5, 5; Ps 31, 5; Ezr 9, 6-15; Mt 3, 6; Acts 19, 18); to one another: probably in connection with liturgical prayer to make the public confession more efficacious, as witness the Didache. Pray for one another: cf Col 3, 4; 1 Thes 5, 25; Heb 13, 18.

5, 19f: This passage is reminiscent of the parable of the Good Shepherd (Lk 15, 3-7).

5, 20: Will save his soul from death: the soul of the sinner will be saved from eternal condemnation.

PETER

There is abundant evidence in this epistle that scattered strangers in 1, 1 refers to Gentile Christian communities (1, 14.18; 2, 9f; 4, 3f; cf Introduction to James). They are envisioned as the new people of God, aliens in the pagan world. The place-names in 1, 1 indicate that the epistle was intended for Christian communities in Asia Minor, but it is uncertain whether those founded by Paul are also included.

Early Christian tradition, starting with Irenaeus at the beginning of the third century, unhesitatingly ascribed the epistle to Peter. Since the early nineteenth century, however, many scholars have considered it a pseudonymous work. Those who defend its Petrine authorship hold that certain data in the epistle favor the traditional view: its allusions to the sufferings of Jesus (2, 21-24; 3, 18; 4, 1); its recollections of his sayings (1, 6-12; Jn 1, 10f; 16, 20; Mt 5, 10; 13, 17); and its relationship to the kerygmatic speeches attributed to Peter in Acts (1, 16-22; 2, 14-36; 3, 12-26; 4, 8-12). Such evidence, though valuable, is not conclusive for Petrine authorship since other Christians of the first century familiar with the church's teachings could have been responsible for these formulations. For those who believe Peter wrote the epistle, it must be dated before 64-67 A.D., the period within which his execution under Nero took place. Those who regard it as a pseudonymous work date it at 90-95 A.D. It is generally conceded that its place of composition was Rome—the Babylon referred to in 5, 13.

Unlike the Epistle of James, this letter presents the moral exhortation which is its dominant feature in close relationship to Christian doctrine: the Trinity of persons in God (1, 2f.12; 4, 14); the redemptive value of Jesus' death and resurrection (1, 3; 3, 21f); the sinfulness of man (1, 18; 2, 24), whom God destined to be holy (1, 15f). Some scholars are of the opinion that 1 Peter 1, 3—2, 10 is taken substantially from an early Christian baptismal liturgy. Whether this view is correct or not, the passages in question are among the clearest expositions on the meaning of Christian baptism to be found in the New Testament.

CHAPTER 1

Greeting. <sup>1*</sup>† Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who live as strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia; to men chosen <sup>2*</sup> according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, consecrated by the Spirit to a life of obedience to Jesus Christ and purification with his blood. Favor and peace be yours in abundance.

Thanksgiving

<sup>3*</sup>† Praised be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, he who in his great mercy gave us new birth; a birth unto hope which draws its life from the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead; <sup>4*</sup> a birth to an imperishable inheritance, incapable of fading or defilement, which is kept in heaven for you <sup>5</sup> who are guarded with God's power through faith;

a birth to a salvation which stands ready to be revealed in the last days.

<sup>6*</sup>† There is cause for rejoicing here. You may for a time have to suffer the

1, 1: Jas 1, 1,	4: Mt 6, 19f; Col 1,
2: Rom 8, 29,	5.
3: Jn 3, 5; 1 Jn 2,	6: Jas 1, 2f.
29.

† 1, 1f: The introductory formula names Peter as the writer (see introduction). He is Simon, son of John (Mt 16, 18; Jn 21, 15ff), whom Christ called Cephas, meaning Peter, "rock" (Jn 1, 42); an apostle (Mt 10, 2) and fellow elder (5, 1). In his office of apostle he addresses himself to the Gentile converts of Asia Minor. Their privileged status of a chosen, consecrated, and purified people makes them worthy of God's peace and favor. In contrast is their actual existence as pilgrims and strangers, scattered among pagans, far from their true country.

1, 3f: A prayer of praise and thanksgiving to God who bestows the gift of new life and hope that derive from the resurrection of his Son. It contains the promise, not of an earthly land, but of an imperishable inheritance . . . in heaven, for those guarded with God's power through faith, and it is to be revealed in the last days.

1, 6-9: As the glory of Christ's resurrection was preceded by his sufferings and death, the new life of faith which it bestows is to be subjected to many trials (6) while achieving its goal: the glory of the fullness of salvation (9) at the coming of Christ (8).

distress of many trials; <sup>7*</sup> but this is so that your faith, which is more precious than the passing splendor of fire-tried gold, may by its genuineness lead to praise, glory, and honor when Jesus Christ appears. <sup>8*</sup> Although you have never seen him, you love him, and without seeing you now believe in him, and rejoice with inexpressible joy touched with glory <sup>9</sup> because you are achieving faith's goal, your salvation. <sup>10†</sup> This is the salvation which the prophets carefully searched out and examined. They prophesied the divine favor that was destined to be yours. <sup>11*</sup> They investigated the times and the circumstances which the Spirit of Christ within them was pointing to, for he predicted the sufferings destined for Christ and the glories that would follow. <sup>12</sup> They knew by revelation that they were providing, not for themselves but for you, what has now been proclaimed to you by those who preach the gospel to you, in the power of the Holy Spirit sent from heaven. Into these matters angels long to search.

Filial Obedience and Fear. <sup>13†</sup> So gird the loins of your understanding; live soberly; set all your hope on the gift to be conferred on you when Jesus Christ appears. <sup>14†</sup> As obedient sons, do not yield to the desires that once shaped you in your ignorance. <sup>15*</sup> Rather, become holy yourselves in every aspect of your conduct, after the likeness of the holy One who called you; <sup>16*</sup> remember, Scripture says, "Be holy, for I am holy." <sup>17*</sup> In prayer you call upon a Father who judges each one justly on the basis of his actions. Since this is so, conduct yourselves reverently during your sojourn in a strange land. <sup>18*†</sup> Realize that you were delivered from the futile way of life your fathers handed on to you, not by any diminishable sum of silver or gold, <sup>19*</sup> but by Christ's blood beyond all price: the blood of a spotless, unblemished lamb <sup>20</sup> chosen before the world's foundation and revealed for your sake in these last days. <sup>21</sup> It is through him that you are believers in God, the God who raised him from the dead and gave him glory. Your faith and hope, then, are centered in God.

Brotherly Love. <sup>22*</sup> By obedience to the truth you have purified yourselves for a genuine love of your brothers; therefore, love one another constantly from the heart. <sup>23*†</sup> Your rebirth has come, not from a destructible but from an indestructible seed, through the living and enduring word of God. <sup>24*</sup> For,

"All mankind is grass and the glory of men is like the flower of the field.
The grass withers, the flower wilts,

but the word of the Lord endures forever."

<sup>25</sup> Now this "word" is the gospel which was preached to you.

CHAPTER 2

Growth in Holiness. <sup>1*†</sup> So strip away everything vicious, everything deceitful; pretenses, jealousies, and disparaging remarks of any kind. <sup>2</sup> Be as eager for milk as newborn babies—pure milk of the spirit to make you grow unto salvation, <sup>3*</sup> now that you have tasted that the Lord is good.

<sup>4*†</sup> Come to him, a living stone, rejected by men but approved, nonetheless, and precious in God's eyes. <sup>5*</sup> You too are living stones, built as an edifice of spirit, into a holy priesthood, offering

7: Prv 17, 3; 1 Cor 3, 13.	19: Jn 1, 29; Heb 9, 14.
8: 2 Cor 5, 7.	22: Rom 12, 9.
11: Is 52, 13; 53, 12.	23: 1 Jn 3, 9.
15: Mt 5, 48; 1 Jn 3, 3.	24: Is 40, 6ff.
16: Lv 19, 2.	2, 1: Jas 1, 21.
17: Dt 10, 17; Mal 1, 6; Rom 2, 11.	3: Ps 34, 9.
18: Is 52, 3; 1 Cor 6, 20.	4: Mt 21, 42; Acts 4, 11.
	5: Eph 2, 21f.

†

1, 10ff: The Spirit of Christ (v 11) is here shown to have been present in both the prophets and the apostles: in the prophets moving them to search out, examine, investigate, and predict the divine favor of salvation that was to come (v 10); in the apostles impelling them to preach the fulfillment of salvation in the mystery of Christ's sufferings and glory (v 12).

1, 13-25: These verses are concerned with the call of God's people to holiness and to fraternal love by reason of their relationship with him, a covenant sealed with the blood of his Son.

1, 13: Gird the loins of your understanding: a figure reminiscent of the rite of Passover when the Israelites were in flight from their oppressors (Ex 12, 11), and suggesting also the vigilance of the Christian people in expectation of the second coming of Christ (Lk 12, 35).

1, 14-17: The ignorance here referred to (14) was their former lack of knowledge of God, leading inevitably to godless conduct; holiness (15f), on the contrary, is the result of their call to the knowledge and love of God as the Father who judges each one justly (17).

1, 18f: The deliverance or ransom of Israel foretold by Isaiah (52, 3) is here fulfilled in behalf of the Christian people at the cost of the blood (i. e., the life) of the spotless lamb (Is 53, 7, 10; Rom 3, 24f; 1 Cor 6, 20; cf Ex 12, 5).

1, 23ff: The rebirth of Christians (v 23) derives from Christ the indestructible seed effecting a new and lasting existence in those who accept the gospel (24f), and making them brothers with the duty of loving one another (v 22).

2, 1f: Growth unto salvation (2) is here considered negatively, as a stripping away of all that is contrary to the new life received from Christ; and positively, as the taking of the pure milk, i. e., the nourishment which the newly baptized have tasted and found good (1f).

2, 4-8: Come to him: to Christ, a living stone, rejected by men but approved by God because of his death and resurrection (4). Believers joined by the Spirit (1 Cor 3, 16) to Christ the cornerstone (7) themselves become living stones and constitute the spiritual edifice of the Christian community. They are a holy priesthood whose function is to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ (5). To unbelievers, Christ is an obstacle and a stumbling stone on which they are destined to fall (8); cf Rom 11, 11.

spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. <sup>6*</sup> For Scripture has it:

"See, I am laying a cornerstone in Zion, an approved stone, and precious.
He who puts his faith in it shall not be shaken."

<sup>7*</sup> The stone is of value for you who have faith. For those without faith, it is rather,

"A stone which the builders rejected that became a cornerstone."

<sup>8*</sup> It is likewise "an obstacle and a stumbling stone." Those who stumble and fall are the disbelievers in God's word; it belongs to their destiny to do so.

<sup>9*</sup>† You, however, are "a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people he claims for his own to proclaim the glorious works" of the One who called you from darkness into his marvelous light. <sup>10*</sup> Once you were no people, but now you are God's people; once there was no mercy for you, but now you have found mercy.

Good Example. <sup>11*</sup>† Beloved, you are strangers and in exile; hence I urge you not to indulge your carnal desires. By their nature they wage war on the soul. <sup>12</sup> Though the pagans may slander you as troublemakers, conduct yourselves blamelessly among them. By observing your good works they may give glory to God on the day of visitation.

For the Citizen. <sup>13*</sup>† Because of the Lord, be obedient to every human institution, whether to the emperor as sovereign <sup>14</sup> or to the governors he commissions for the punishment of criminals and the recognition of the upright. <sup>15</sup> Such obedience is the will of God. You must silence the ignorant talk of foolish men by your good behavior. <sup>16*</sup>† Live as free men, but do not use your freedom as a cloak for vice. In a word, live as servants of God. <sup>17*</sup> You must esteem the person of every man. Foster love for the brothers, reverence for God, respect for the emperor.

For the Slave. <sup>18*</sup>† You household slaves, obey your masters with all deference, not only the good and reasonable ones but even those who are harsh. <sup>19</sup> When a man can suffer injustice and endure hardship through his awareness of God's presence, this is the work of grace in him. <sup>20</sup> If you do wrong and get beaten for it, what credit can you claim? But if you put up with suffering for doing what is right, this is acceptable in God's eyes. <sup>21*</sup> It was for this you were called, since Christ suffered for you in just this way and left you an example, to have you follow in his footsteps. <sup>22*</sup> He did no wrong; no deceit was found in his mouth. <sup>23</sup> When he was insulted, he returned no insult. When he was made to suffer, he did not counter with threats. Instead, he delivered himself up to the One who judges justly. <sup>24*</sup> In his own body he brought your sins to the cross, so that all of us, dead to sin, could live in accord with God's will. By his wounds you were healed. <sup>25†</sup> At one time you were straying like sheep, but now you have returned to the Shepherd, the Guardian of your souls.

6: Is 28, 16; Rom 9, 33.	16: Gal 5, 13.
7: Ps 118, 22; Mt 21, 42.	17: Jude 4; Prv 24, 21; Mt 22, 21.
8: Is 8, 14.	18: Eph 6, 5.
9: Ex 19, 6.	21: Mt 16, 24.
10: Hos 1, 6, 9; 2, 3.	22: Is 53, 9; Mt 5, 39.
11: Gal 5, 24.	24: Is 53, 5f; Rom 6, 11.
13: Rom 13, 1-7.

† 2, 9: The prerogatives of ancient Israel here mentioned are now more fully and fittingly applied to the Christian people: a chosen race (cf Is 44, 1ff) indicates their divine election (Eph 1, 4ff); a royal priesthood (cf a kingdom of priests, Ex 19, 6) to serve and worship God in Christ, thus continuing the priestly functions of his life, passion, and resurrection; a holy nation (Ex 19, 6) reserved for God; a people he claims for his own (cf Mal 3, 17) in virtue of their baptism into his death and resurrection. This transcends all natural and national divisions, and unites the people into one community to glorify him who led them from the darkness of paganism to the light of faith in Christ. From being "no people," deprived of all mercy, they have become the very people of God, the chosen recipients of his mercy; cf Hos 1, 9, 2, 25.

2, 11-3, 12: After explaining the doctrinal basis for the Christian community, the letter traces practical applications in terms of the virtues that should prevail in all the social relationships of the members of the community: good example to pagan neighbors (2, 11f); respect for human authority (2, 13-17); obedience, patience, and endurance of hardship in domestic relations (2, 18-25); Christian behavior of husbands and wives (3, 1-7); mutual charity (3, 8-12).

2, 11: You are strangers and in exile: no longer signifying absence from one's native land (Gn 23, 4), this denotes rather their estrangement from this world during their earthly pilgrimage in search of the city which is to come (Heb 13, 14).

2, 13: Be obedient to every human institution: the text could also mean, though less probably, "every human creature." This obedience is enjoined because of the Lord, i.e., because it conforms to his will (v 15).

2, 16f: Live as free men: . . . vice: the freedom of the Christian is that which derives from right order, i.e., service of God and reverence toward him, besides esteem for every man (v 17).

2, 18-25: The author's concern for household slaves was not aimed at overthrowing the institution of slavery, but was meant rather to indicate how those in servitude should accept it through the power of grace as a means of imitating the suffering Christ. They are reminded that his willing endurance of insult, suffering, and death delivered men from the bondage of sin and won for them the freedom of living according to God's will; cf Is 53, 1-12; Gal 3, 13.

2, 25: The Shepherd, the Guardian of your souls: the familiar shepherd-and-flock figures express the care, vigilance, and love of God for his people in the Old Testament (Ps 23; Is 23, 3f; 40, 11; Ez 34, 11-16), and of Christ for all men in the New (Mt 18, 10-14; Lk 15, 3-6; Jn 10, 11; Heb 13, 20). In Acts (20, 28), St. Paul calls the elders of the church of Ephesus, shepherds and guardians of the flock.

CHAPTER 3

For Wife and Husband. <sup>1*</sup>† You married women must obey your husbands, so that any of them who do not believe in the word of the gospel may be won over apart from preaching, through their wives' conduct. <sup>2</sup> They have only to observe the reverent purity of your way of life. <sup>3*</sup> The affectation of an elaborate hairdress, the wearing of golden jewelry, or the donning of rich robes is not for you. <sup>4</sup> Your adornment is rather the hidden character of the heart, expressed in the fading beauty of a calm and gentle disposition. This is precious in God's eyes. <sup>5</sup> The holy women of past ages used to adorn themselves in this way, reliant on God and obedient to their husbands—<sup>6</sup> for example, Sarah, who was subject to Abraham and called him her master. You are her children when you do what is right and let no fears alarm you.

<sup>7*</sup> You husbands, too, must show consideration for those who share your lives. Treat women with respect as the weaker sex, heirs just as much as you to the gracious gift of life. If you do so, nothing will keep your prayers from being answered.

In Christian Charity. <sup>8†</sup> In summary, then, all of you should be like-minded, sympathetic, loving toward one another, kindly disposed, and humble. <sup>9*</sup> Do not return evil for evil or insult for insult. Return a blessing instead. This you have been called to do, that you may receive a blessing as your inheritance.

<sup>10*</sup> "He who cares for life and wants to see prosperous days must keep his tongue from evil and his lips from uttering deceit.
<sup>11</sup> He must turn from evil and do good, seek peace and follow after it, <sup>12</sup> because the Lord has eyes for the just and ears for their cry;
but against evildoers the Lord sets his face."

In Christian Suffering. <sup>13†</sup> Who indeed can harm you if you are committed deeply to doing what is right? <sup>14*</sup> Even if you should have to suffer for justice' sake, happy will you be. "Fear not and do not stand in awe of what this people fears." <sup>15</sup> Venerate the Lord, that is, Christ, in your hearts. Should anyone ask you the reason for this hope of yours, be ever ready to reply, <sup>16</sup> but speak gently and respectfully. Keep your conscience clear, so that, whenever you are defamed, those who libel your way of life in Christ may be shamed. <sup>17</sup> If it should be God's will that you suffer, it is better to do so for good deeds than for evil ones.

<sup>18*</sup> The reason why Christ died for sins

once for all, the just man for the sake of the unjust, was that he might lead you to God. He was put to death insofar as fleshly existence goes, but was given life in the realm of the spirit. <sup>19†</sup> It was in the spirit also that he went to preach to the spirits in prison. <sup>20*</sup> They had disobeyed as long ago as Noah's day, while God patiently waited until the ark was built. At that time, a few persons, eight in all, escaped in the ark through the water. <sup>21*</sup> You are now saved by a baptismal bath which corresponds to this exactly. This baptism is no removal of physical stain, but the pledge to God of an irreproachable conscience through the resurrection of Jesus Christ. <sup>22*</sup> He went to heaven and is at God's right hand, with angelic rulers and powers subjected to him.

CHAPTER 4

In Christian Faithfulness. <sup>1†</sup> Christ suffered in the flesh; therefore arm yourselves with his same mentality. He who has suffered in the flesh has broken with sin. <sup>2</sup> You are not to spend what remains of your earthly life on human desires but on the will of God. <sup>3*</sup> Already you have devoted enough time to what

3, 1: 1 Cor 7, 12-16;	14: Is 8, 12.
Eph. 5, 22-24;	18: Rom 5, 6.
Col 3, 18.	20: Gn 7, 7, 17; 2 Pt
3: 1 Tm 2, 9-15.	2, 5.
7: Eph 5, 25.	21: Eph 5, 26.
9: Mt 5, 44; Lk 6,	22: Eph 1, 20f.
28; Rom 12, 14.	4, 3: Eph 4, 17f.
10-12: Ps 34, 13-17.

†

3, 1-7: This passage outlines, on the one hand, the marital duties of wives: reverence, chaste conduct, and obedience to their husbands; and on the other, the love and consideration husbands owe their wives (cf Eph 5, 21-28). At the same time, attention is called to the opportunity of wives for winning over their pagan husbands to belief in the gospel by their own Christian conduct. In imitation of the pious women of the past, they are to cultivate the virtues of the interior life instead of indulging in the display of robes and jewelry. The fulfillment of these duties by husbands and wives is the surest guarantee of God's response to their prayers.

3, 8-12: To the proper ordering of Christian life in its various aspects as described in 2, 11-3, 9 there is promised the blessing expressed in Psalm 34, 13-17. In the Old Testament, this referred to the temporal benefits of longevity and prosperity; in the New, it refers to eternal life.

3, 13-22: This exposition, centering on verse 17, runs as follows: By his suffering and death Christ the just One saved the unjust (18); by his resurrection he acquired new life in the spirit, which he communicates to believers through the baptismal bath that cleanses their consciences from sin. As the ark saved Noah's family, so baptism saves sinners from the flood waters that would destroy them (19-22). Hence they need not share the fear of sinners; they should rather rejoice in suffering because of their hope in Christ. Thus their innocence disappoints their accusers (13-16; Mt 10, 28; Rom 8, 35-39).

3, 19: There are various interpretations of this verse. It probably refers to the risen Christ making known to imprisoned souls his victory over sin and death.

4, 1-6: Willingness to suffer with Christ equips the Christian with the power to conquer sin. Christ is here portrayed as the judge to whom those guilty of pagan vices must render an account; cf Jn 5, 22-27; Acts 10, 42; 2 Tm 4, 1.

the pagans enjoy, living lives of debauchery, evil desires, drunkenness, orgies, carousing, and wanton idolatry. <sup>4</sup> It is no wonder that those blasphemers are surprised when you do not plunge into the same swamp of profligacy as they. <sup>5*</sup> They shall give an accounting to him who stands ready to judge the living and the dead. <sup>6†</sup> The reason the gospel was preached even to the dead was that, although condemned in the flesh in the eyes of men, they might live in the spirit in the eyes of God.

Mutual Charity. <sup>7†</sup> The consummation of all is close at hand. Therefore do not be perturbed; remain calm so that you will be able to pray. <sup>8**†</sup> Above all, let your love for one another be constant, for love covers a multitude of sins. <sup>9*</sup> Be mutually hospitable without complaining. <sup>10*</sup> As generous distributors of God's manifold grace, put your gifts at the service of one another, each in the measure he has received. <sup>11*†</sup> The one who speaks is to deliver God's message. The one who serves is to do it with the strength provided by God. Thus, in all of you God is to be glorified through Jesus Christ: to him be glory and dominion throughout the ages. Amen.

Blessings of Persecution. <sup>12**†</sup> Do not be surprised, beloved, that a trial by fire is occurring in your midst. It is a test for you, but it should not catch you off guard. <sup>13*</sup> Rejoice instead, in the measure that you share Christ's sufferings. When his glory is revealed, you will rejoice exultantly. <sup>14**†</sup> Happy are you when you are insulted for the sake of Christ, for then God's Spirit in its glory has come to rest on you. <sup>15</sup> See to it that none of you suffers for being a murderer, a thief, a malefactor, or a destroyer of another's rights. <sup>16</sup> If anyone suffers for being a Christian, however, he ought not to be ashamed. He should rather glorify God in virtue of that name. <sup>17*</sup> The season of judgment has begun, and begun with God's own household. If it begins this way with us, what must be the end for those who refuse obedience to the gospel of God? <sup>18*</sup> And if the just man is saved only with difficulty, what is to become of the godless and the sinner? <sup>19</sup> Accordingly, let those who suffer as God's will requires continue in good deeds, and entrust their lives to a faithful Creator.

CHAPTER 5

For the Ministry. <sup>1*†</sup> To the elders among you I, a fellow elder, a witness of Christ's sufferings and sharer in the glory that is to be revealed, make this appeal. <sup>2**†</sup> God's flock is in your midst; give it a shepherd's care. Watch over it willingly as God would have you do, not under constraint; and not for shameful profit either, but generously. <sup>3</sup> Be examples to the flock, not lording it over those assigned to you. <sup>4*</sup> so that when the chief Shepherd appears you will win for yourselves the unfading crown of glory.

Counsel to the Laity. <sup>5**†</sup> In the same way, you younger men must be obedient to the elders. In your relations with one

- |                       |                      |
|-----------------------|----------------------|
| 5: Acts 10, 42;       | 41: Col 3, 4.        |
| Rom 14, 9f; 1         | 17: Lk 23, 31; 2     |
| Tm 4, 1.              | Thes 1, 8.           |
| 8: Prv 10, 12.        | 18: Prv 11, 31.      |
| 9: Heb 13, 2.         | 5, 1: Rv 1, 9.       |
| 10: Rom 12, 6ff; 1    | 2: Acts 20, 28; 1    |
| Cor 12, 4-11.         | Tm 3, 2-7; Ti 1,     |
| 11: Rom 12, 7.        | 7.                   |
| 12: 1, 6f; 3, 14.     | 4: 2 Tm 4, 8.        |
| 13: Rom 5, 3-5; 8,    | 5: Prv 3, 34; Mt 23, |
| 17; 2 Tm 2, 12.       | 12.                  |
| 14: Is 11, 2; Acts 5, |                      |

† 4, 6: The gospel was preached even to the dead: this may refer to bringing the benefits of salvation to the "spirits" in prison (cf 3, 19), or to the preaching of the gospel to Christians who have since died.

4, 7-11: The author outlines the means to be used in preparing for the consummation of all at the parousia (7): calmness, prayer, and constant love for one another through unfeigned hospitality and the generous use of one's gifts for the glory of God and of Christ (8-11); cf Lk 21, 34ff; 1 Cor 7, 29ff; Jas 5, 7-12.

4, 8: Love covers a multitude of sins: a favorite maxim of the apostles, based on Proverbs 10, 12. Fraternal love will overcome such evils as occur (cf Lk 7, 47; Jas 5, 20).

4, 11: God is to be glorified. . . throughout the ages. Amen: this doxology concludes the portion of 1 Peter begun in 1, 3. The source of the letter here used seems to have been a sermon of exhortation on the sacrament of baptism, to which numerous references are made.

4, 12-19: A trial of suffering faces the followers of Christ (12). If it is inflicted on them for the sake of his name, i.e., because of their being Christians (16), they are to rejoice in thus sharing the sufferings of the Christ whose glorification they will also share (13f; cf Rom 8, 17). If the trial is inflicted because of sins and misdeeds (15), the present judgment, though severe even for those of God's own household, is but the beginning of punishment for those who refuse obedience to the gospel of God (17f). The watchword is perseverance in the good and trust in God's fidelity (19).

4, 12: A trial by fire: severe affliction—in the form of slander (2, 12), insult (4, 14), and persecution from pagan neighbors; cf 3, 14, 17.

4, 14: God's Spirit in its glory has come to rest on you: the Spirit both strengthens Christians to endure suffering and then glorifies them because they suffer for Christ: even as the glorification of Christ consisted, not only in his resurrection and ascension, but in his passion as well (Jn 13, 31f).

5, 1: Elders: "presbyteroi"—those to whom the task, both of governing the faithful and of conducting worship for them, was entrusted; cf 1 Tm 5, 17f; Ti 1, 5, 7f; Jas 5, 14. Peter, here called a fellow elder, nevertheless admonishes the others as one exercising authority over them.

5, 2f: In imitation of Christ, the chief Shepherd, those charged with the pastoral office are to shepherd the flock by their care, by their solicitude for what pertains to doctrine and discipline, and by their example. They are to render this service, not under constraint, and not for shameful profit, nor to lord it over the flock, but out of generosity and kindness, as God would have them do, thus meriting the unfading crown of glory; cf Acts 20, 17-31 and note on 2, 25.

5, 5-11: The laity are to be obedient toward the elders, and to show humility toward one another and complete trust in God's loving care (5ff). By sobriety, alertness, and firm faith, they must ward off the evil one who seeks to destroy their souls. Their sufferings are shared with Christians everywhere (8ff). As a reward for their faith and trust in God, they will be strengthened and attain to everlasting glory in Christ (10).

another, clothe yourselves with humility, because God "is stern with the arrogant but to the humble he shows kindness." <sup>6*</sup> Bow humbly under God's mighty hand, so that in due time he may lift you high. <sup>7*</sup> Cast all your cares on him because he cares for you. <sup>8*†</sup> Stay sober and alert. Your opponent the devil is prowling like a roaring lion looking for someone to devour. <sup>9*</sup> Resist him, solid in your faith, realizing that the brotherhood of believers is undergoing the same sufferings throughout the world. <sup>10*</sup> The God of all grace, who called you to his everlasting glory in Christ, will himself restore, confirm, strengthen, and establish those who have suffered a little while. <sup>11</sup> Dominion be his throughout the ages! Amen.

Farewell. <sup>12†</sup> I am writing briefly through Silvanus, whom I take to be a faithful brother to you. Herewith are expressed my encouragement and my testimony that this is the true grace of God. Be steadfast in it. <sup>13*</sup> The church that is in Babylon, chosen together with you, sends you greeting, as does Mark my son. <sup>14*</sup> Greet one another with the embrace of true love. Peace to all of you who are in Christ.

---

6: Jb 22, 29; Jas 4, 10.	10: Rom 8, 18; 2 Cor 4, 17; 1 Thes 5, 24.
7: Ps 54, 23; Mt 6, 25; Phil 4, 6.	13: Acts 12, 12.25; 2 Tm 4, 11.
8: 1 Thes 5, 6.	14: 1 Cor 16, 20.
9: Eph 6, 11ff.

---

†

5, 8: Your opponent the devil . . . someone to devour: the synonymous Greek terms "antidikos" (opponent) and "diabolos" (accuser) are used to designate those who persecute Christians. In the manner of Satan they prowl about like a roaring lion seeking to destroy their victims (Ps 22, 14).

5, 12ff: Silvanus: Paul's companion (2 Cor 1, 19; 1 Thes 1, 1; 2 Thes 1, 1). This is the true grace of God: a possible reference to the trials which the Christians were enduring, regarded from the standpoint of their salutary effects. Babylon: Rome which, like ancient Babylon, conquered Jerusalem and destroyed its temple. Mark my son: cf Acts 12, 25; 13, 5; Col 4, 10.

PETER

Early Christian tradition was not so impressed by the claim of Petrine authorship of this epistle (1, 1.14.16ff; 3, 1.15f) as to concede its authenticity without question. Both Origen (185-254) and St. Jerome (342-420) found it debatable. In the early fifth century the epistle was accepted into the canon of the Scriptures.

The chief reason for concluding that 2 Peter was not composed by the chief of the apostles is its discussion of the parousia (3, 1-13). The main purpose of the epistle was to meet the difficulty caused in many minds by the non-fulfillment of the expectation of Christ's second coming. This difficulty could not have arisen in the lifetime of Peter, who died between the years 64 and 67 A.D. Only after the destruction of Jerusalem, in 70 A.D., did Christians begin slowly to realize that the parousia was reserved for a date in the more remote future. The epistle was written at a time when Christian teaching was placing less emphasis on the proximity of the parousia, and therefore not while Peter was still living. Scholars add other arguments against Petrine authorship from the epistle's vocabulary and theology, and from its clear relationship to Jude—without, however, removing all doubt on the question.

It is not unreasonable to conclude that 2 Peter was written by an unknown author who followed the pseudonymous convention of the time in order to attract readers to his work. The date of composition is conjectural. Some think that the author was close enough to the tradition of Petrine teaching to assume the important name Peter, but it is probable that he was a third- or fourth-generation Christian who wrote in the period between 100 and 125. The letter is addressed to Christians generally (1, 1), without giving any indication of its place of composition.

The epistle is well composed, leading gradually to its discussion of the parousia. It reminds its readers of the divine authenticity of Christ's teaching (1, 3f), continues reflections on Christian conduct (1, 5-15), then returns to the exalted dignity of Jesus by incorporating in the text the apostolic witness to his transfiguration (1, 16ff). It takes up the question of the interpretation of Scripture by pointing out that it is possible to misunderstand the sacred writings (1, 19-2, 1) and that divine punishment will be visited upon false teachers (2, 2-22). It explains that the parousia is the doctrine of Jesus and of the apostles and is therefore an eventual certainty (3, 1-13); at the same time it warns that the meaning of St. Paul's writing on this question should not be distorted (3, 14-18).

CHAPTER 1

Greeting. † Simeon Peter, servant and apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who have been given a faith like ours in the justifying power of our God and Savior Jesus Christ: <sup>2</sup> may grace be yours and peace in abundance through your knowledge of God and of Jesus, our Lord.

Christian Virtue. <sup>3</sup>† That divine power of his has freely bestowed on us everything necessary for a life of genuine piety, through knowledge of him who called us by his own glory and power. <sup>4</sup>* By virtue of them he has bestowed on us the great and precious things he promised, so that through these you who have fled a world corrupted by lust might become sharers of the divine nature. <sup>5</sup>*† This is reason enough for you to make every effort to undergird your virtue with faith, your discernment with virtue, <sup>6</sup> and your self-control with discernment; this self-control, in turn, should lead to perseverance, and per-

1, 3: 2 Cor 4, 6; 1 Pt 2, 9.
2, 15.
4: 2 Cor 7, 1; 1 Jn 5: Gal 5, 22f.

† 1, 1: Simeon Peter, servant and apostle of Jesus Christ: on the question of authorship of 2 Peter, see the Introduction. To those who have been given a faith . . . Jesus Christ: it is the justifying power of Jesus, God and Savior, which causes the faith of the apostles and of succeeding believers to be one and the same.

1, 3f: Christian life in its fullness is a gift of divine power to those who are called. This power effects in them a knowledge of Christ and fulfills the divine promises in their regard, making them sharers of the divine nature, safe from a world corrupted by lust; cf 1, 2, 8; 3, 18; 1 Jn 17, 22; Rom 8, 14-17; 1 Jn 3, 2.

1, 5-9: Note the climactic gradation of qualities, beginning with faith and leading to the fullness of Christian life which is love (5-7); cf Rom 5, 3ff; 10, 14f. Their fruit is the knowledge of Christ (v 8) referred to in 1, 3; their absence is spiritual blindness (v 9).

severance to piety, <sup>7*</sup> and piety to care for your brother, and care for your brother, to love.

<sup>8</sup>Qualities like these, made increasingly your own, are by no means ineffectual; they bear fruit in true knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>9*</sup> Any man who lacks these qualities is shortsighted to the point of blindness. He forgets the cleansing of his long-past sins. <sup>10†</sup> Be solicitous to make your call and election permanent, brothers; surely those who do so will never be lost. <sup>11</sup> On the contrary, your entry into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ will be richly provided for.

Witness to Christ. <sup>12†</sup> I intend to recall these things to you constantly, even though you already understand and are firmly rooted in the truth you possess. <sup>13</sup> I consider it my duty, as long as I live, to prompt you with this reminder. <sup>14*</sup> I know, by the indications our Lord Jesus Christ has given me, how close is the day when I must fold my tent. <sup>15</sup> I shall press to have you recall these things frequently after my departure. <sup>16*</sup> It was not by way of cleverly concocted myths that we taught you about the coming in power of our Lord Jesus Christ, <sup>17*</sup> for we were eyewitnesses of his sovereign majesty. He received glory and praise from God the Father when that unique declaration came to him out of the majestic splendor: "This is my beloved Son, on whom my favor rests." <sup>18</sup> We ourselves heard this said from heaven while we were in his company on the holy mountain. <sup>19*</sup> Besides, we possess the prophetic message as something altogether reliable. Keep your attention closely fixed on it, as you would on a lamp shining in a dark place until the first streaks of dawn appear and the morning star rises in your hearts.

The Nature of Prophecy. <sup>20</sup> First you must understand this: there is no prophecy contained in Scripture which is a personal interpretation. <sup>21</sup> Prophecy has never been put forward by man's willing it. It is rather that men impelled by the Holy Spirit have spoken under God's influence.

CHAPTER 3†

False Teachers. <sup>1*</sup> In times past there were false prophets among God's people, and among you also there will be false teachers who will smuggle in pernicious heresies. They will go so far as to deny the Master who acquired them for his own, thereby bringing on themselves swift disaster. <sup>2*</sup> Their lustful ways will lure many away. Through them, the true way will be made subject to contempt.

Warning from the Past. <sup>3*†</sup> They will deceive you with fabricated tales, in a spirit of greed. Their condemnation has not lain idle all this time, however; their destruction is not asleep. <sup>4*†</sup> Did God spare even the angels who sinned? He did not! He held them captive in Tartarus—consigned them to pits of darkness, to be guarded until judgment. <sup>5*†</sup> Nor did he spare the ancient world—even though he preserved Noah as a preacher of holiness, with seven others, when he brought down the flood on that godless earth. <sup>6*†</sup> He blanketed the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah in ashes and condemned them to destruction, thereby showing what would happen in the future to the godless. <sup>7</sup> He did deliver Lot, however, a just man oppressed by the conduct of men unprincipled in their

7: Gal 6, 10.	4, 1; Jude 4.
9: 1 Jn 2, 9, 11.	2: Is 52, 5.
14: Is 38, 12; Jn 21, 18†.	3: Rom 16, 18; 1 Thes 2, 5.
16: Jn 1, 14.	4: Jude 6.
17: Ps 2, 7; Mt 17, 4-6.	5: Gn 8, 18; Heb 11, 7.
19: Lk 1, 78; Rv 2, 28.	6: Gn 19, 25; Jude 7.
2, 1: Mt 24, 11; 1 Tm

† 1, 10†: Perseverance in the Christian vocation is the best preventative against losing it and the safest provision for attaining its goal, entrance into the everlasting kingdom, identified here as the kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

1, 12-19: Alive to his responsibility even when faced with the proximity of death, the apostle bequeaths to his readers a perpetual reminder of the teachings of the faith (12-15) and of the certainty of Christ's coming in power (16). As motives for belief in the parousia, he offers the prophetic message of Scripture and also his own testimony as eyewitness to the transfiguration of Christ in glory and majesty, confirmed by the voice of God the Father (18-22). These serve as a shining light amid the darkness to those preparing for the parousia. The value of continual reminders and repeated instructions, for preserving the truths of the faith and the historic facts surrounding them, is insisted on in the New Testament (12:15; 3, 1f; 1 Cor 11, 2; 15, 1).

2, 1-22: This account of the false teachers and evildoers and the dire punishments which threaten them finds a parallel in Jude 4-13. The present passage is generally considered by scholars to be dependent on Jude, despite modifications and omissions.

2, 1f: The pattern of false teaching in the Old Testament recurs in apostolic times among the people of the New, and will be repeated (10-22) before the final cataclysm at the end of the world (Mt 24, 11). It is accompanied by denial of faith in Christ, immorality, scandal, and contempt for the way of salvation.

2, 3-9: Their condemnation . . . ; their destruction is not asleep: the interventions of the divine chastisement are exemplified in the case of the rebellious angels (v 4; Jude 6), the deluge (v 6; Jude 7), and the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah.

2, 4: Tartarus: a term borrowed from Greek mythology to indicate the infernal regions, pits of darkness where sinners, especially fallen angels, are punished.

2, 5: The deluge is described as marking the end of the ancient world and the beginning of the new. Noah, the preacher of holiness, is the type of new life initiated through Christian baptism and made conformable to God's sanctity (1 Pt 3, 20f).

2, 6: The destruction of the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah stands for all time as a warning of punishment of sin. The association of this catastrophe with that of the deluge is also found in Wisdom 10, 4ff and in Christ's prediction concerning the signs of the coming of the kingdom of God (Lk 17, 26-29).

lusts. <sup>8</sup> (Day after day that just one, good as he was, felt himself tormented by seeing and hearing about the lawless deeds of those among whom he lived.) <sup>9*</sup> The Lord, indeed, knows how to rescue devout men from trial, and how to continue the punishment of the wicked up to the day of judgment.

Punishment of Evildoers. <sup>10*</sup>† He knows, especially, how to treat those who live for the flesh in their desire for whatever corrupts, and who despise authority. These bold and arrogant men have no qualms whatever about reviling celestial beings, <sup>11*</sup> on whom angels, though greater than men in strength and power, pass no opprobrious sentence in the Lord's presence. <sup>12*</sup> These men pour abuse on things of which they are ignorant. They act like creatures of instinct, brute animals born to be caught and destroyed. Because of their decadence they too will be destroyed, suffering the reward of their wickedness. <sup>13*</sup> Thinking daytime revelry a delight, they are stain and defilement as they share your feasts in a spirit of seduction. <sup>14</sup> Constantly on the lookout for a woman, theirs is a never-ending search for sin. They lure the weaker types. Their hearts are trained in greed. An accursed lot are they! <sup>15*</sup> They have abandoned the straight road and wander off on the path taken by Balaam, son of Beor. He was a man attracted to dishonest gain, <sup>16*</sup> but he was rebuked for his evildoing. A mute beast spoke with a human voice to restrain the prophet's madness.

<sup>17*</sup> These men are waterless springs, mists whipped by the gale. The darkest gloom has been reserved for them. <sup>18*</sup> They talk empty bombast while baiting their hooks with passion, with the lustful ways of the flesh, to catch those who have just come free of a life of errors. <sup>19*</sup> They promise them freedom though they themselves are slaves of corruption—for surely anyone is the slave of that by which he has been overcome. <sup>20*</sup> When men have fled a polluted world by recognizing the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and then are caught up and overcome in pollution once more, their last condition is worse than their first. <sup>21*</sup>† It would have been better for them not to have recognized the road to holiness than to have turned their backs on the holy law handed on to them, once they had known it. <sup>22*</sup> How well the proverb fits them: "The dog returns to its vomit," and, "A sow bathes by wallowing in the mire."

CHAPTER 3

Christ Will Come in Judgment. <sup>1†</sup> I am writing you this second letter, dear friends, intending them both as reminders urging you to sincerity of outlook. <sup>2*</sup> Recall the teaching delivered long ago by the holy prophets, as well as the new command of the Lord and Savior preached to you by the apostles.

<sup>3*</sup> Note this first of all: in the last days, mocking, sneering men who are ruled by their passions will arrive on the scene. <sup>4*†</sup> They will ask: "Where is that promised coming of his? Our forefathers have been laid to rest, but everything stays just as it was when the world was created." <sup>5*†</sup> In believing this, they do not take into account that of old there were heavens and an earth drawn out of the waters and standing between the waters, all brought into being by the word of God. <sup>6*</sup> By water that world was then destroyed; it was overwhelmed by the deluge. <sup>7*</sup> The present heavens and earth are reserved by God's word for

9: 1 Cor 10, 13; Rv	16f.
3, 10.	20: Mt 12, 45.
10: Jude 8.	21: Ez 3, 20.
11: Jude 9.	22: Prv 26, 11.
12: Ps 49, 13-15;	3: 2: Jude 17.
Jude 10.	3: 1 Tm 4, 1; Jude
13: Jude 12.	18.
15: Nm 22, 2; Jude	4: Is 5, 19.
4.	5: Gn 1, 2.6.8; Ps
16: Nm 22, 28-33.	24, 2.
17: Jude 12f.	6: Gn 7, 21.
18: Jude 16.	7: Is 51, 6; Mt 3,
19: Jn 8, 34; Rom 6,	12.

† 2, 10-22: These verses portray in detail the conduct of the false teachers. They are slaves of the flesh and its passions; they despise true sovereignty, that of Christ and his church (v 10); they even revile the celestial beings considered to be fallen angels (cf 2, 4) in comparison to the angels in 2, 11. Abusive in their ignorance, imitating brute animals in their irrationality, decadent in their instincts, they deserve, like animals, to be caught and destroyed (12). In their day-long revelries they seduce others (13), even those who have just come free of a life of errors (18), making their new condition of return to corruption and rejection of Christ worse than the first (18-22). In their greed they abandon righteousness, like Balaam of old, for the sake of material gain (14ff).

† 3, 1-4: The false teachers not only flout Christian morality (cf Jude 18ff), they also deny the second coming of Christ and eternal retribution. They seek to justify their licentiousness, arguing that the promised return of Christ has not been realized and the world is the same, no better than it was before (3f). The author wishes to strengthen the faithful against this pernicious error by reminding them of the instruction in his letters (1 and 2 Peter), and of the teaching of the prophets and of Christ, conveyed through the apostles (1f); cf 1 Pt 1, 10ff.16-21; Eph 2, 20.

† 3, 4: Our forefathers have been laid to rest: the death of the apostolic fathers indicates a date after that time for the composition of 2 Peter.

† 3, 5-10: The scoffers' objection (4) is refuted by showing that the power of God's word, which called the world into being, also destroyed it by the waters of a flood, and will destroy it again by fire on the day of judgment (5ff). The delay of the Lord is not an indication of failure to fulfill his word but rather of his generous patience in giving time for repentance before the final judgment (6ff; 1 Thes 5, 2). The New Testament writers used the deluge as a figure of eschatological events; cf Mt 24, 37ff; Lk 17, 26f. The effect of Christian baptism is compared to the radical action of fire which purifies metal of dross. For Old Testament examples of God's judgment described by the imagery of fire, see Is 66, 15f; Mt 1, 4; Dn 7, 9ff; Zep 1, 18; 3, 8; Ps 97, 3. Acceptance of the truths of faith does not require acceptance of the popular imagery used to describe them.

fire; they are kept for the day of judgment, the day when godless men will be destroyed.

<sup>8*</sup> This point must not be overlooked, dear friends. In the Lord's eyes, one day is as a thousand years and a thousand years are as a day. <sup>9**†</sup> The Lord does not delay in keeping his promise—though some consider it "delay." Rather, he shows you generous patience, since he wants none to perish but all to come to repentance. <sup>10*</sup> The day of the Lord will come like a thief, and on that day the heavens will vanish with a roar; the elements will be destroyed by fire, and the earth and all its deeds will be made manifest.

<sup>11*†</sup> Since everything is to be destroyed in this way, what sort of men must you not be! How holy in your conduct and devotion, <sup>12**†</sup> looking for the coming of the day of God and trying to hasten it! Because of it, the heavens will be destroyed in flames and the elements will melt away in a blaze. <sup>13**†</sup> What we await are new heavens and a new earth where, according to his promise, the justice of God will reside.

Preparation for the Coming. <sup>14</sup> So, beloved, while waiting for this, make every effort to be found without stain or defilement, and at peace in his sight. <sup>15**†</sup> Consider that our Lord's patience is directed toward salvation. Paul, our beloved brother, wrote you this in the spirit of wisdom that is his, <sup>16</sup> dealing with these matters as he does in all his letters. There are certain passages in them hard to understand. The ignorant and the unstable distort them (just as they do the rest of Scripture) to their own ruin.

<sup>17**†</sup> You are forewarned, beloved brothers. Be on your guard lest you be led astray by the error of the wicked, and forfeit the security you enjoy. <sup>18*</sup> Grow rather in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Glory be to him now and to the day of eternity! Amen.

---

8: Ps 90, 4.	13: Is 65, 17; 66, 22;
9: Ez 18, 23; 1 Tm 2, 4.	Rom 8, 21; Rv 21, 1, 27.
10: Is 66, 15f; Mt 24, 29, 43; 1 Thes 5, 2f.	15: Rom 8, 19; Jude 24.
11: Acts 3, 19f.	17: Mk 13, 5; Heb 2, 1.
12: Is 34, 4; Heb 12, 27.	18: Rom 16, 27.

---

† 3, 9: He shows you generous patience: the longsuffering of God is a sign of his mercy toward man, who is so slow to change. God wills all men to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth; cf Wis 11, 23-26; Ez 18, 23; 33, 11; Rom 11, 32; 1 Tm 2, 4.

3, 11-15: The coming of Christ and the judgment of the world are the doctrinal bases here and elsewhere in the New Testament for the moral exhortation to preparedness through vigilance and a virtuous life (Mt 24, 42-51; Lk 12, 40; 1 Thes 5, 1-11; Jude 20f).

3, 12: Trying to hasten it: i.e., the day of God, by advancing his kingdom through holiness of life; cf v 9.

3, 13: New heavens and a new earth: the fulfillment of the divine promises after the day of judgment will have passed and the universe will be transformed by the reign of perfect justice; cf Is 65, 17; 66, 22; Acts 3, 21; Rom 8, 19ff; Rv 21, 1.

3, 15f: The teachings of this epistle—the Lord's salvific will toward mankind (Rom 2, 4; 9, 22f; 1 Cor 1, 7f), preparedness for the judgment (Eph 1, 4-14; 4, 30; 5, 14ff; Col 1, 22f), the coming of Christ (1 Thes 4, 16f; 1 Cor 15, 23-52) are further confirmed by the letters of Paul. He is called here our beloved brother, i.e., a fellow apostle of Peter, after whom this letter is named.

The rest of Scripture: the sacred writings inspired by the Holy Spirit to regulate the religious life of the people. The writings of Paul are thus recognized as having the same quality and authority as the books of the Old Testament.

3, 17f: To avoid the danger of error and loss of security, the faithful are exhorted to persevere in the principles of the Christian life through growth in the knowledge of Christ. The final doxology recalls that of 1 Pt 4, 11.

JOHN

Early Christian tradition attributed this letter to John the apostle. Subsequently, the majority of scholars have concluded, from its resemblance to the fourth gospel in style, vocabulary, and ideas, that one author actually was responsible for both works. These resemblances are not so compelling as absolutely to exclude the possibility of separate authors, as some critics have shown. But it is very probable that the person who composed the fourth gospel also wrote 1 John. On the identity of this author, see the Introduction to the gospel itself.

The opening of the epistle does not state to whom it is addressed, but the data indicate that it was written to specific Christian communities some of whose members were advocating false doctrines (2, 18f.26; 3, 7). These errors are here recognized and rejected (4, 4); although their advocates have left the community (2, 19), the threat posed by them remains (3, 11). They have refused to acknowledge that Jesus is the Christ (2, 22), the Son of God (2, 23) who came into the world as true man (4, 2). They are difficult people to deal with, claiming special knowledge of God but disregarding the divine commandments (2, 4), particularly the commandment of love of neighbor (4, 8), and refusing to accept faith in Christ as the source of sanctification (1, 6; 2, 6.9). Thus they are denying the redemptive value of Jesus' death (5, 6). Scholars generally agree that the group so stigmatized had adopted some form of Gnosticism, but as yet it has not been identified with any specific body of heretical teaching.

The epistle is of particular value for its declaration of the humanity and divinity of Christ as apostolic teaching (1, 1-4), and for its development of the intrinsic connection between Christian moral conduct and Christian doctrine. Although the author recognizes that Christian doctrine presents intangible mysteries of faith about Christ, he insists that the concrete Christian life brings to light the deeper realities of the gospel. The epistle is generally held to date at the same time as the fourth gospel, c 90-100 A.D.

CHAPTER 1

The Light of God†

- 5 Here, then, is the message we have heard from him and announce to you:

Prologue‡

- 1* This is what we proclaim to you: what was from the beginning, what we have heard, what we have seen with our eyes, what we have looked upon and our hands have touched—we speak of the word of life.
- 2* (This life became visible; we have seen and bear witness to it, and we proclaim to you the eternal life that was present to the Father and became visible to us.)
- 3* What we have seen and heard we proclaim in turn to you so that you may share life with us. This fellowship of ours is with the Father and with his Son, Jesus Christ.
- 4* Indeed, our purpose in writing you this is that our joy may be complete.

1,1: 2,13; Jn 1, 1,14; 20, 20, 25,27. 4: Jn 15, 11; 2 Jn 12.
2: Jn 15, 27; 17, 5.
3: Jn 17, 21; Acts

† 1, 1-4: There is a striking parallel between this prologue and that of the gospel of John (1, 1-16). The substance of the apostles' teaching is their experience of the historic Christ and the witness they bear to him (v 1; cf Jn 1, 7f.15). He is the word of life (v 1; cf Jn 1, 4), eternal life that was present to the Father and became visible to the apostles (v 2; cf Jn 1, 1,14). The purpose of their teaching is to share that life, called fellowship . . . with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ, with those who receive their witness (3; Jn 1, 14, 16), and thus make the joy of the apostles complete (v 4).

‡ 1, 5f: Light is to be understood here as truth and goodness; darkness, as error and depravity, cf Jn 3, 19f; 17, 17; Eph 5, 8f; 1 Thes 5, 5. To walk in light or darkness is to live according to truth or error, not merely intellectual but moral as well, that is, in accordance with, or contrary to, God's will. Thus, fellowship with God (6) and with one another (v 7) consists in a life according to truth and goodness as found in God and in Christ, their source. This is made possible through the redemptive work of Christ, who cleanses us from our sins; cf Jn 8, 12; 12, 35f.

that God is light;
in him there is no darkness.

Claims of False Teachers

- 6* If we say, "We have fellowship with him," while continuing to walk in darkness, we are liars and do not act in truth.
- 7* But if we walk in light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of his Son Jesus cleanses us from all sin.
- 8*† If we say, "We are free of the guilt of sin," we deceive ourselves; the truth is not to be found in us.
- 9* But if we acknowledge our sins, he who is just can be trusted to forgive our sins and cleanse us from every wrong.
- 10* If we say, "We have never sinned," we make him a liar and his word finds no place in us.

CHAPTER 2

- 1*† My little ones, I am writing this to keep you from sin. But if anyone should sin, we have, in the presence of the Father, Jesus Christ, an intercessor who is just.
- 2* He is an offering for our sins, and not for our sins only, but for those of the whole world.

Keeping the Commandments†

- 3* The way we can be sure of our knowledge of him is to keep his commandments.
- 4* The man who claims, "I have known him," without keeping his commandments, is a liar; in such a one there is no truth.
- 5* But whoever keeps his word, truly has the love of God been made perfect in him. The way we can be sure we are in union with him
- 6 is for the man who claims to abide in him to conduct himself just as he did.
- 7*† Dearly beloved, it is no new commandment that I write to you, but an old one which you had from the start. The commandment, now old, is the word you have already heard.

- 8* On second thought, the commandment that I write you is new, as it is realized in him and you, for the darkness is over and the real light begins to shine.
- 9* The man who claims to be in light, hating his brother all the while, is in darkness even now.
- 10* The man who continues in the light is the one who loves his brother; there is nothing in him to cause a fall.
- 11 But the man who hates his brother is in darkness. He walks in shadows, not knowing where he is going, since the dark has blinded his eyes.

Members of the Community

- 12*† Little ones, I address you, for through his Name your sins have been forgiven.

---

6: Jn 12, 35.	3: Jn 14, 15; 15, 10.
7: Mt 26, 28; Rom 3, 24f.; Heb 9, 14; 1 Pt 1, 19; Rv 1, 5.	4: 4, 20.
8: 2 Chr 6, 36; Prv 20, 9.	5: Jn 14, 23.
9: Prv 28, 13; Jas 5, 16.	7: 3, 11; Dt 6, 5; Mt 22, 37-40.
10: Jn 5, 38.	8: Jn 1, 5; 13, 34; Rom 13, 12.
2, 1: Jn 14, 16; Heb 7, 25.	9: Jn 8, 12.
2: 4, 10. -	10: Eccl 2, 14; Jn 11, 10.
	12: 1 Cor 6, 11.

† 1, 8ff: One is never entirely free from sin. To claim the contrary would be self-deception and would even contradict divine revelation (10; cf 1 Kgs 8, 46; Prv 24, 16). There is the continual possibility of sin's recurrence. Forgiveness and deliverance from sin through Christ are assured provided the sin is acknowledged through repentance. Such acknowledgment refers probably to a rite of confession; cf Mt 16, 19; 18, 18; Jn 20, 23; Jas 5, 16.

2, 1f: Believers are here addressed as little ones (v 1), elsewhere as children (2, 18) or dearly beloved (2, 7), to express the pastoral love and devotion of the apostles toward those entrusted to their care; cf Jn 13, 33; 21, 5; 1 Cor 4, 15; Gal 4, 19. After exhorting Christians to keep free from sin, the author returns to the thought of 1, 9: the assurance of forgiveness of sin through the power of Christ's intercession. He is an offering for our sins: literally, "propitiation," i.e., a permanent office exercised by Christ on behalf of sinners.

2, 3-6: The way we can be sure of our knowledge . . . commandments: not mere intellectual knowledge of Christ but a life conformable to the divine will revealed to mankind through his teaching and example (6; cf Jn 14, 21-24; 17, 3). Thus love of God is made perfect (5) and those who live in this manner abide in Christ (6) and achieve union with him; cf 3, 2f. Disparity between moral life and doctrinal teaching was the error of the Gnostics.

2, 7-11: The law of fraternal charity is based on human nature itself and is confirmed by the divine positive command to the Israelites (Lv 19, 18). Through Christ, however, a new and higher relationship with neighbor (8, 10) is achieved as a result of the new relationship with the Father: that of sons of God (cf Jn 1, 12) and brothers of Christ (Lk 8, 21). Note here and elsewhere the characteristic Johannine polemic in which a positive assertion is further emphasized by the negative statement of its opposite. (9ff).

2, 12-17: The Christian community, which has experienced the grace of God through forgiveness of sin and knowledge of Christ, i.e., practice of the faith, is thereby armed against the evil one and protected from the world with its allurement; cf 3, 7-10; 5, 18f.

- 13* Fathers, I address you,
for you have known him who is from
the beginning.
Young men, I address you,
for you have conquered the evil one.
- 14 I address you, children,
for you have known the Father.
I address you, fathers,
for you have known him who is from
the beginning.
I address you, young men,
for you are strong,
and the word of God remains in you,
and you have conquered the evil
one.

Against the World

- 15*† Have no love for the world, nor the things that the world affords.
If anyone loves the world,
the Father's love has no place in
him.
- 16† for nothing that the world affords
comes from the Father.
Carnal allurements,
enticements for the eye,
the life of empty show—
all these are from the world.
- 17* And the world with its seductions is passing away
but the man who does God's will endures forever.

Against Antichrists

- 18*† Children, it is the final hour;
just as you heard that the antichrist was coming,
so now many such antichrists have appeared.
This makes us certain that it is the final hour.
- 19† It was from our ranks that they took their leave—
not that they really belonged to us;
for if they had belonged to us,
they would have stayed with us.
It only served to show that none of them was ours.
- 20*† But you have the anointing that comes from the Holy One,
so that all knowledge is yours.
- 21* My reason for having written you is not that you do not know the truth
but that you do,
and that no lie has anything in common with the truth.
- 22*† Who is the liar?
He who denies that Jesus is the Christ.
He is the antichrist,
denying the Father and the Son.
- 23* Anyone who denies the Son has no claim on the Father, but he who acknowledges the Son can claim the Father as well.

Life for God's Anointed

- 24* As for you,
let what you heard from the beginning
remain in your hearts.
If what you heard from the beginning
does remain in your hearts, then you in turn will remain in the Son and in the Father.
- 25*† He himself made us a promise and the promise is no less than this:
eternal life.
- 26 I have written you these things about those who try to deceive you.
- 27 As for you,
the anointing you received from him
remains in your hearts.
This means you have no need for anyone to teach you.
Rather, as his anointing teaches you about all things and is true—free from any lie—

13: 1, 1; Jn 1, 1.	20: Jn 14, 26.
15: Rom 8, 7f; Jas	21: 3, 19; 2 Pt 1, 12.
4, 4; 2 Pt 1, 4.	22: 2 Thes 2, 4.
17: Is 40, 8; Mt 7,	23: Jn 14, 7-9.
21; 1 Cor 7, 31;	24: Jn 14, 23.
1 Pt 4, 2.	25: Jn 5, 24; 10, 28;
18: 1 Tm 4, 1.	17, 2.

†

2, 15: The world: men subject to sin and therefore hostile toward God. Love of the world and love of God are mutually exclusive; cf Jas 4, 4.

2, 16: Carnal allurements: inordinate desire for sensuality (cf Eph 2, 3; 1 Pt 2, 11; 2 Pt 2, 10, 18); enticements for the eye: avarice; the eyes are regarded as the windows of the soul (cf Jb 31, 1; Ez 23, 12-17; Mt 5, 27ff); the life of empty show: ostentation, pride and arrogance, independence of God, in the temporal existence of man.

2, 18: The final hour: the time between the first and second coming of Christ. The antichrist: the opponent or adversary of Christ; one who denies the Father and the Son (v 22). The term is found in 1 and 2 John; cf Mt 24, 23f; Mk 3, 21f. Paul calls him the man of lawlessness; that son of perdition and adversary (2 Thes 2, 3, 8; cf Rv 13; 17, 7-14). Matthew, Mark, and Revelation seem to refer to a collectivity of persons. Many such antichrists have appeared: the reference is to all the false teachers who afflict the church in the final hour. The early Christian community was familiar with this doctrine and expected an early return or second coming of Christ.

2, 19: If they had belonged to us, . . . stayed with us: the antichrists, apostate teachers, have always lacked the true spirit of the community of God's people.

2, 20: 27: The anointing that comes from the Holy One: the Spirit of God which the faithful received. It preserves them against the errors of the antichrists. The Holy One may refer to Christ, whose name (Christos, "anointed one") and mission are in a real sense shared by his followers. All knowledge is yours: one of the gifts of the Holy Spirit (Is 11, 2) by which the faithful could distinguish truth from falsehood (Jn 16, 13ff). The author's purpose is to reassure rather than instruct (21), because his readers have already received knowledge through their anointing (27).

2, 22: To deny the Son is to deny the Father since only in and through the Son has God fully revealed his fatherhood; cf Mt 11, 27; Lk 10, 22; Jn 5, 23, 10, 30; 14, 7, 9.

2, 25: The promise is no less than this: eternal life: the only passage of the Johannine writings in which eternal life has the exclusively eschatological sense of the life of glory, the object of Christian hope and striving. Elsewhere the term is invariably used of the present life of grace leading to glory.

remain in him
as that anointing taught you.

Children of God

- 28† Remain in him now, little ones,
so that, when he reveals himself,
we may be fully confident and not retreat in shame at his coming.
- 29 If you consider the holiness that is his,
you can be sure that everyone who acts in holiness
has been begotten by him.

CHAPTER 3

- 1*† See what love the Father has bestowed on us
in letting us be called children of
God!
Yet that is what we are.
The reason the world does not recognize us
is that it never recognized the Son.
- 2* Dearly beloved,
we are God's children now;
what we shall later be has not yet come to light.
We know that when it comes to light
we shall be like him,
for we shall see him as he is.
- 3* Everyone who has this hope based on him
keeps himself pure, as he is pure.

Avoiding Sin†

- 4 Everyone who sins acts lawlessly for sin is lawlessness.
- 5* You know well that the reason he revealed himself
was to take away sins;
in him there is nothing sinful.
- 6 The man who remains in him does not sin.
The man who sins has not seen him or known him.
- 7 Little ones,
let no one deceive you;
the man who acts in holiness is holy indeed,
even as the Son is holy.
- 8* The man who sins belongs to the devil,
because the devil is a sinner from
the beginning.
It was to destroy the devil's works that the Son of God revealed himself.
- 9 No one begotten of God acts sinfully because he remains of God's stock;
he cannot sin
because he is begotten of God.
- 10 That is the way to see who are God's children,
and who are the devil's.

No one whose actions are unholy belongs to God,
nor anyone who fails to love his brother.

Keeping the Commandments†

- 11* This, remember, is the message
you heard from the beginning:
we should love one another.
- 12* We should not follow the example of Cain
who belonged to the evil one and killed his brother.
Why did he kill him?
Because his own deeds were wicked while his brother's were just.
- 13* No need, then, brothers, to be surprised if the world hates you.
- 14* That we have passed from death to life we know
because we love the brothers.
The man who does not love is among the living dead.
- 15* Anyone who hates his brother is a murderer,
and you know that eternal life
abides in no murderer's heart.
- 16* The way we came to understand love
was that he laid down his life for us;

3, 1: Jn 1, 12; 15, 21;
17, 25; Eph 1, 5.
2: Phil 3, 21.
3: 2, 6.
5: Is 53, 9; Jn 1,
29-8, 46; 1 Pt
2, 22.
8: Jn 8, 44; 12, 31f.
11: 2, 7; Jn 13, 34;
15, 12, 17.

12: Gn 4, 8; Jude
11.
13: Mt 24, 9; Jn 15,
18, 17, 14.
14: Lv 19, 17; Jn 5, 24.
15: Jn 8, 44.
16: 2, 6; Mt 20, 28;
Jn 10, 11; 15,
13.

† 2, 28f: A renewed exhortation to Christians to remain in Christ, i. e., to live the Christ-life and thus enjoy the assurance of acceptance by him at his second coming. The verses prepare them for the transition to the theme of their divine sonship and the duties flowing from it: Everyone who acts in holiness has been begotten by him.

3, 1ff: The greatest proof of God's love for men is the gift of his Son, through whom they are not only called, but are in reality God's sons; cf Jn 3, 16. This condition is true of their present life and, in the fullest sense, of the life to come when the divine filiation will result in their being like God and in seeing him as he is. They prepare for it by leading a life like that of God's Son, keeping themselves pure, as he is pure (v 3). Since the world never recognized the Father in the Son, neither will it recognize those who are children of the Father.

3, 4-10: The two contrary states, of sin and of holiness are shown here in their intrinsic opposition. Release from sin establishes union and fellowship with Christ; adherence to sin, fellowship with the devil who is a sinner from the beginning. Thus virtue and sin are the two opposite characteristics for distinguishing the children of God from the children of the devil.

3, 4: Lawlessness: hostility toward God and rejection of Christ, the standard of holiness.

3, 11-24: The virtue of charity, even to the point of giving up one's life for his neighbor as Christ did (16) is the fulfillment of the commandments (22ff), the guarantee of life and union with God through the presence of the Spirit (21, 24).

we too must lay down our lives for our brothers.

17* I ask you, how can God's love survive in a man who has enough of this world's goods yet closes his heart to his brother when he sees him in need?

18* Little children, let us love in deed and in truth and not merely talk about it.

19 This is our way of knowing we are committed to the truth and are at peace before him no matter what our consciences may charge us with; for God is greater than our hearts and all is known to him.

21 Beloved, if our consciences have nothing to charge us with, we can be sure that God is with us and that we will receive at his hands whatever we ask. Why? Because we are keeping his commandments and doing what is pleasing in his sight.

23* His commandment is this: we are to believe in the name of his Son, Jesus Christ, and are to love one another as he commanded us.

24* Those who keep his commandments remain in him and he in them. And this is how we know that he remains in us: from the Spirit that he gave us.

CHAPTER 4

Testing the Spirits†

1* Beloved, do not trust every spirit, but put the spirits to a test to see if they belong to God, because many false prophets have appeared in the world.

2* This is how you can recognize God's Spirit: every spirit that acknowledges Jesus Christ come in the flesh belongs to God,

3* while every spirit that fails to acknowledge him does not belong to God. Such is the spirit of the antichrist which, as you have heard, is to come; in fact, it is in the world already.

4 You are of God, you little ones, and thus you have conquered the false prophets. For there is One greater in you than there is in the world.

5* Those others belong to the world; that is why theirs is the language of the world and why the world listens to them.

6* We belong to God and anyone who has knowledge of God gives us a hearing, while anyone who is not of God refuses to hear us. Thus do we distinguish the spirit of truth from the spirit of deception.

God's Love and Ours†

7 Beloved, let us love one another because love is of God; everyone who loves is begotten of God and has knowledge of God.

8 The man without love has known nothing of God, for God is love.

9*† God's love was revealed in our midst in this way: he sent his only Son to the world that we might have life through him.

10*† Love, then, consists in this: not that we have loved God but that he has loved us and has sent his Son as an offering for our sins.

11† Beloved, if God has loved us so,

17: Dt 15, 7-11; Jas 2, 15f.	23.
18: Jas 1, 22.	4, 1: 2, 18; Mt 24, 24.
22: 5, 15; Mt 7, 7-11; 21, 22; Jn 14, 13f.	2: 1 Cor 12, 3; 1 Thes 5, 21.
23: Jn 13, 34; 15, 17.	3: 3, 22.
24: 4, 13; Jn 14, 21-	5: Jn 15, 19.
	6: Jn 8, 47; 10, 16.
	9: Jn 3, 16.
	10: Rom 5, 8.

† 4, 1-6: Delusion and deception are invariably possible in matters of spiritual phenomena. Discernment between a true and false spirit of prophecy depends on acceptance or rejection of sound doctrine; cf 1 Cor 12, 3.10. Thus, acknowledgment or denial of the central truth of Christianity, the incarnation of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is proof of whether one belongs to God or to antichrist (1ff). A power greater than that of the world abides in those who belong to God and who heed the teaching of the apostles (2.6). It conquers the false prophets (v 4) who belong to the world, speak its language and receive its attention (v 5; cf 2, 12-17.22-27).

4, 7-21: These verses explain the nature of love as revealed by God and accepted by man through faith.

4, 7f: Love is of God: therefore one who loves shows that he is begotten of God. God is love: love is his very being. To love God is to know him and to share his life.

4, 9: God's love . . . in this way: the revelation of God's being consists in sending the Son of his love to the world as our Savior (cf v 14) that we might have life through him; cf Jn 3, 16.

4, 10: Love . . . consists in this: not that we have loved God but that he has loved us: man has not merited God's love. It has been given freely and its value consists in sharing and continuing that love which is in God; cf v 19. He . . . has sent his Son as an offering for our sins: an act of his mercy and forgiveness manifested through the death of Christ; cf 2, 2. This is the motive of our love for one another.

4, 11f: Through love for one another we can be certain that God dwells in us and brings his love . . . to perfection in us. Thus we are able to "see," i.e., to know, the invisible God.

- we must have the same love for one another.
- 12* No one has ever seen God. Yet if we love one another God dwells in us, and his love is brought to perfection in us.
- 13 The way we know we remain in him and he in us is that he has given us of his Spirit.
- 14 We have seen for ourselves, and can testify, that the Father has sent the Son as savior of the world.
- 15 When anyone acknowledges that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwells in him and he in God.
- 16 We have come to know and to believe in the love God has for us.

God is love, and he who abides in love abides in God, and God in him.

- 17* Our love is brought to perfection in this, that we should have confidence on the day of judgment; for our relation to this world is just like his.
- 18 Love has no room for fear; rather, perfect love casts out all fear. And since fear has to do with punishment, love is not yet perfect in one who is afraid.
- 19 We, for our part, love because he first loved us.
- 20* If anyone says, "My love is fixed on God," yet hates his brother, he is a liar. One who has no love for the brother he has seen cannot love the God he has not seen.
- 21* The commandment we have from him is this: whoever loves God must also love his brother.

CHAPTER 5

- 1*† Everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ has been begotten of God. Now, everyone who loves the father loves the child he has begotten.
- 2 We can be sure that we love God's children when we love God and do what he has commanded.
- 3* The love of God consists in this: that we keep his commandments—and his commandments are not burdensome.

- 4* Everyone begotten of God conquers the world, and the power that has conquered the world is this faith of ours.
- 5* Who, then, is conqueror of the world? The one who believes that Jesus is the Son of God.
- 6*† Jesus Christ it is who came through water and blood—not in water only, but in water and in blood. It is the Spirit who testifies to this, and the Spirit is truth.
- 7*† Thus there are three that testify,
- 8 the Spirit and the water and the blood—and these three are of one accord.
- 9* Do we not accept human testimony? The testimony of God is much greater: it is the testimony God has given on his own Son's behalf.
- 10*† Whoever believes in the Son of God possesses that testimony within his heart. Whoever does not believe God has made God a liar by refusing to believe in the testimony he has given on his own Son's behalf.
- 11*† The testimony is this:

12: Jn 1, 18; 1 Tm 6, 16.	5: 1 Cor 15, 57.
17: 2, 28.	6: Jn 15, 26; 19, 34.
20: 2, 4.	7: Jn 5, 32, 36; 15, 26.
21: Jn 13, 34; 14, 15, 21; 15, 17.	9: Jn 5, 32, 37.
5, 1: Jn 8, 42; 1 Pt 1, 23.	10: Jn 3, 33.
3: Jn 14, 15.	11: 1, 2; Jn 1, 4; 5, 21, 26; 17, 3.
4: Jn 16, 33.

†

5, 1-5: To become a child of God it is necessary to believe in the divine sonship of Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of the Father. It is through him that we receive our sonship. The proof of love for God consists in keeping his commandments (cf 2, 3-6; 3, 24), the greatest of which, after love for God, is love of the brethren, i.e., those begotten of God, cf 4, 21; Mt 22, 37-40; Mk 12, 30f; Lk 10, 27f. Practical faith of this kind confers a power that conquers the world of evil, even as Christ overcame the world (Jn 16, 33).

5, 6: Jesus Christ it is who came through water and blood references to the Father's testimony: This is my beloved Son (Mt 3, 17) when Jesus was baptized in the waters of the Jordan, and to Jesus' office of Savior through the shedding of his blood on the cross (Jn 19, 34).

5, 7f: The testimony to Christ, Son of God and Savior (v 5), is confirmed by divine witness, greater by far than the two legally required human witnesses (Dt 17, 6) to substantiate truth; cf Jn 8, 17f. There is probably a symbolic reference here to baptism and the Eucharist whose existence and efficacy, like that of all the sacraments, derive from the death of Christ; cf Jn 19, 34.

5, 10: Through man's belief in the divine sonship of Christ, God dwells in man through Christ. Thus he becomes the witness to this truth. Unbelief in the divine sonship of Jesus means rejecting the divine testimony, thereby making God the author of a lie.

5, 11f: By accepting Christ as Son of God through faith, we receive Christ himself who becomes in us the source of eternal life.

God gave us eternal life,
and this life is in his Son.
12 Whoever possesses the Son possesses life;
whoever does not possess the Son of
God
does not possess life.

13*† I have written this to you to make you realize that you possess eternal life—you who believe in the name of the Son of God.

Prayer for Sinners. 14*† We have this confidence in God: that he hears us whenever we ask for anything according to his will. 15 And since we know that he hears us whenever we ask, we know that what we have asked him for is ours.
16*† Anyone who sees his brother sinning, if the sin is not deadly, should petition God, and thus life will be given to the sinner. This is only for those whose sin is not deadly. There is such a thing as a deadly sin; I do not say that one should pray about that. 17 True, all wrongdoing is sin, but not all sin is deadly.

18† We know that no one begotten of God commits sin; rather, God protects the one begotten by him, and so the evil one cannot touch him. 19 We know that we belong to God, while the whole world is under the evil one. 20* We know, too, that the Son of God has come and has given us discernment to recognize the One who is true. And we are in the One who is true, for we are in his Son Jesus Christ. He is the true God and eternal life.

21 My little children, be on your guard against idols.

---

13: Jn 1, 12; 20, 31.
14: 3, 22; Mt 7, 7; Jn
14, 13f.

16: Mt 12, 31.
20: Jer 24, 7; Jn 17,
3; Eph 1, 17.

---

†
5, 13: This summary of the epistle recalls the epilogue of the gospel of John (20, 30f).

5, 14f: The intimate relationship between God and those begotten of him creates in his children conformity to the divine will which gives them confident assurance of receiving what they ask for; cf 2, 28; 4, 17; 3, 21f.

5, 16f: The prayer of Christians for their erring brethren is in conformity to the will of God, who in turn will restore life to the sinners. Deadly sin: probably apostasy or final impenitence.

5, 18-21: The epistle concludes with the solemn reaffirmation and summary of the great truths contained therein as well as the false doctrines which these truths condemn. There is again the sharp antithesis between, on the one hand, God, his Son, and those begotten of God through faith, and on the other, the evil one and the world of those enslaved by him. The Son reveals the God of truth in himself and in those who accept him. He conquers the evil one, and by dwelling in his followers and giving them eternal life, preserves them from the sin of the world and from the idols of false teachings that threaten the Christian community.

JOHN

The Second and Third Epistles of John are of the same length (probably determined by the practical consideration of the writing space on one piece of papyrus). Each is in the usual letter format, and treats a specific problem. In each, the writer calls himself "the elder"; and their common authorship is further evidenced internally by similarities in style and wording, especially in the introductions and conclusions. The mention in each of an impending visit by the elder to the respective community (2 Jn 12; 3 Jn 14) has led to the suggestion that they were written about the same time and perhaps carried by the same messenger to the two localities, both on the elder's proposed route of travel. The traditionally assigned place and date of composition, Ephesus in the 90's, are plausible.

The identity of the elder is a problem. Certainly, more than age is implied in the use of the title. If the man was simply one of the group of elders or presbyters who were officials in Christian churches by the latter part of the first century (Jas 5, 14; 1 Pt 5, 1; 1 Tm 5, 17), the absence of a proper name that would distinguish him from the other elders is curious. Seemingly, the title "elder" was also applicable to an apostle (1 Pt 1, 5); and it was certainly applicable to the disciple of an apostle, as we learn from Papias and Irenaeus. It is doubtful that the elder who wrote 3 John was an apostle, for he admits that the leader of the community involved in the letter ignores his authority. One can scarcely believe that a member of the Christian community, even a leader, could resist an apostle, especially at this time toward the close of the century, when the Twelve were venerated as the foundation of the church (Rv 21, 14).

On the other hand, the elder is important enough to exercise a certain authority over communities other than his own, to teach authoritatively and brand others as heretical, to send out missionary preachers, etc. The most probable supposition is that the elder was the disciple of an apostle, with a claim to some of the apostolic prestige and authority—a claim not, however, accepted by all. The traditional association with John, son of Zebedee, may mean that the elder was one of John's prominent disciples. Whether or not he is the same disciple who was the fourth evangelist is disputed; see the introduction to the gospel according to John.

The Second Epistle is addressed to "a Lady who is elect and to her children." Since the contents of the letter are scarcely appropriate to an individual, scholars assume that the elder was using an accepted literary device by personifying a Christian community as a woman.

Love and truth are the great themes of the letter. The elder encourages the Christians of this community to let their Christianity show forth in their daily lives in two ways: first, by truly adhering to the great commandment of mutual love; and second, by adhering to the truth about Jesus. There is critical need for this admonition because heretical missionaries are about to descend upon the community. The heresy in question is apparently the one referred to in 1 Jn 4, 2—a denial of the reality of the incarnation of Jesus. The elder urgently insists that no hospitality be shown to these false teachers lest they use the opportunity to infiltrate the community.

---

1*† The elder to a Lady who is elect and to her children.

In truth I love each of you—and not only I but also all those who have come to know the truth. <sup>2</sup>This love is based on the truth that abides in us and will be with us forever. <sup>3</sup>† In truth and love, then, we shall have grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and from Jesus Christ, the Father's Son.

4*† It has given me great joy to find some of your children walking in the path of truth, just as we were commanded by the Father. <sup>5</sup>* But now, my Lady, I would make this request of you (not as if I were writing you some new commandment; rather, it is a commandment we have had from the start): let us love one another. <sup>6</sup>* This love involves our walking according to the commandments, and as you have heard from the beginning, the commandment is the way in which you should walk.

7*† Many deceitful men have gone out into the world, men who do not acknowledge Jesus Christ as coming in the flesh. Such is the deceitful one! This is the antichrist! <sup>8</sup>† Look out that you yourselves do not lose what you have worked for; you must receive your reward in full. <sup>9</sup>*† Anyone who is so "progressive" that he does not remain rooted in the teaching of Christ does not possess God, while anyone who remains rooted in the teaching possesses both the Father and the Son. <sup>10</sup>† If anyone comes to you who does not bring this teaching, do not receive him into your house; do not even greet him, <sup>11</sup> for whoever greets him shares in the evil he does.

12*† While there is much more that I could write you, I do not intend to put it down on paper; instead, I hope to visit you and talk with you face to face, so that our joy may be full.

13† The children of your elect sister send you their greetings.

---

1: Jn 8, 32.	7: 1 Jn 2, 22; 4, 2f.
4: 3 Jn 3.	9: Jn 8, 31; 1 Jn 2,
5: Jn 13, 34; 15,	24.
12.	12: Jn 15, 11; 17,
6: Jn 14, 15; 1 Jn	13; 1 Jn 1, 4.
5, 3.

---

†

1: A Lady who is elect: the adjective elect ("chosen by God") is applied to Christians at the beginning of some other New Testament epistles (1 Pt 1, 1; Ti 1, 1). In 1 Peter 5, 13, a Christian community (in Rome under the name Babylon) is referred to as chosen together with you (the Christians of the dispersion; 1 Pt 1, 1). The truth: the revelation of God in Jesus, which Christians accept through faith.

3: Grace, mercy, and peace: like 1 and 2 Tm, this letter adds: mercy to the grace and peace salutation that is common in the Pauline letters. The Father's Son: this title embodies the substance of the entire New Testament, and close variations of it occur; cf, e.g., Jn 1, 14, 18; 3, 35; 5, 20. However, the precise wording used here is not found elsewhere in the New Testament. It is echoed in the hymn "Glory to God" of the Roman Mass.

4: To find some of your children: those whom he met. There is no necessary indication that others were not walking in the path of truth, literally "walking in truth": a Semitic expression used in Johannine writing to describe a way of living in which the Christian faith comes to expression. Commanded: either the commandment of brotherly love is meant (Jn 13, 34; 15, 12; 1 Jn 2, 7-11; 4, 21), or the twofold commandment of love and of orthodox belief about Jesus Christ (1 Jn 3, 23). Love is stressed in 2 Jn 4ff, belief in 7ff.

7: Such is the deceitful one: another title of antichrist and of those associated with antichrist; cf 1 Jn 2, 18f, 22; 4, 2f.

8: You: it is not certain whether this means the elder (3 Jn 12) or the Christians as above in vv 2-4. Some MSS have "we."

9: Anyone who is so "progressive": literally "Everyone who moves ahead." The elder does not condemn all theological development but only that which departs from Jesus' teaching.

10f: The attitude inculcated here reflected the life-and-death struggle between Christianity and Docetism at the end of the first century. To imitate this attitude in the changed circumstances of our own times would be to misuse Scripture and to fail to understand its time-conditioned aspect. The love that the elder inculcates above (5f) requires in our times that we extend kindness to one another in a divided Christianity.

12: Our joy: other textual witnesses read "your joy."

13: Sister: the community where the elder resides.

JOHN

General questions concerning format and authorship are adverted to in the Introduction to 2 John. The main purpose of the letter is to secure hospitality and support for missionaries approved by the elder and perhaps sent out by him. Although the missionaries preach to the pagans, it is possible also that they embody the elder's influence and doctrinal authority over communities. Perhaps this is why Diotrefes, the ambitious leader of the community who rejects the elder's authority, refuses to receive the missionaries and tries to force others within the community to follow the same policy. The exact position of Diotrefes himself is not clear; for example, is he a monarchical bishop, as we might conceive the office nowadays, or one of the elders who by force of personality has taken over leadership?

To gain his purpose despite Diotrefes' opposition, the elder writes to Gaius, seemingly a man of position and wealth within the community. The elder praises Gaius' past hospitality, emphasizing that this attitude represents the true exercise of Christianity—"walking in the path of truth." He urges Gaius to continue to extend hospitality and to help outfit the missionaries for further travels. He recommends Demetrius to Gaius, perhaps for the double reason that Demetrius is the head of the missionary band and yet is unknown to Gaius. The elder also mentions a forthcoming visit of his own. This visit, during which he will also rebuke Diotrefes, may be meant to assure Gaius of support if Diotrefes seeks to expel Gaius from the church for granting the hospitality the elder requests. Despite its brevity and the inadequacy of its details, 3 John furnishes an extremely important insight into the problem of authority and influence in Christianity at the end of the first century.

1† The elder to the beloved Gaius, whom indeed I love.

2 Beloved, I hope you are in good health—may you thrive in all other ways as you do in the spirit. 3*† For it has given me great joy to have the brothers bear witness to how truly you walk in the path of truth. 4 Nothing delights me more than to hear that my children are walking in this path.

5† Beloved, you demonstrate fidelity by all that you do for the brothers even though they are strangers; 6† indeed, they have testified to your love before the church. And you will do a good thing if, in a way that pleases God, you help them to continue their journey. 7† It was for the sake of the Name that they set out, and they are accepting nothing from the pagans. 8 Therefore, we owe it to such men to support them and thus to have our share in the work of truth.

9† I did write to the church; but Diotrefes, who enjoys being their leader, ignores us. 10† Therefore, if I come I will speak publicly of what he is doing in spreading evil nonsense about us. And that is not all. Not only does he refuse to welcome the brothers himself but he even hinders those who wish to do so and expels them from the church!

11† Beloved, do not imitate what is evil but what is good. Whoever does what is good belongs to God; whoever does what

3: 2 Jn 4.

1: Gaius: although influential, he does not seem to have had an office in the community. He is referred to as one of the elder's spiritual children (v 4); whether this means he was converted by the elder, or simply that he accepted the elder's leadership, is uncertain. Gaius is called beloved, a frequent form of address for fellow Christians in New Testament epistolary literature.

3: The brothers: a designation of fellow Christians, cf Jn 21, 23. In this letter it refers to Christians who have been on a missionary enterprise, visiting Gaius and receiving hospitality from him, even though they had been previously unknown to him (v 5).

5: Demonstrate fidelity by all that you do: literally, "Whatever work you do for the brothers, you are doing something faithful." Gaius' hospitality is a manifestation of his true Christian faith.

6: Help them to continue: besides asking for maintenance for the missionaries while they are in Gaius' community, the elder asks him to equip them for their further travels.

7: The Name: Jesus, referred to in this manner in the New Testament (Acts 5, 41) and in later Christian works. Accepting nothing: not expecting support from the pagans to whom they preach the Gospel, in contrast to some of the devotees of pagan gods who were constantly begging money.

9: I did write: a letter probably destroyed by Diotrefes. Enjoys being their leader: the elder does not deny that Diotrefes is the leader of the community but implicitly criticizes his ambition to be independent of the elder's influence.

10: Spreading evil nonsense: probably Diotrefes is accusing the elder of dictatorial interference in the community on account of his sending the missionaries.

11: What is evil: Gaius should not be influenced by Diotrefes but should maintain his previous policy of hospitality.

is evil has never seen God. <sup>12*</sup>† Demetrius is one who gets a good testimonial from all, even from truth itself. We give our testimonial as well, and you know that our testimony is true.

<sup>13</sup> There is much more that I had in mind to write you, but I do not wish to write it out with pen and ink. <sup>14</sup> Rather, I hope to see you soon, when we can talk face to face.

<sup>15</sup>† Peace be with you. The beloved here send you their greetings; greet the beloved there, each by name.

---

12: Jn 19, 35; 21, 24.

---

† 12: Testimonial: because of the danger of heretical teachers (2 Jn), strange missionaries needed recommendation from someone who could vouch for them, cf 2 Cor 3, 1; Rom 16, 1f; Col 4, 7f. From truth itself: refers probably to the way Demetrius lived this external witness to the truth that was in him (2 Jn 2).

15: Beloved: the Greek word philos in the Johannine vocabulary is probably a synonym for agapetos, "beloved," which appears in vv 1, 2, 5 and 11. Every Christian was a philos of Jesus and of every other Christian: "I no longer speak of you as slaves. . . . Instead, I call you friends (philous)," i.e., beloved (Jn 15, 15). See note on Jn 15, 13.

The Epistle of JUDE

The epistle purports to have been written by Jude, a servant of Jesus Christ and brother of James (see Introduction to James). Since this claimant is not identified as one of the Twelve, he is presumably not Jude the apostle (Lk 6, 16), but that relative of Jesus who doubted him during the ministry (Mk 6, 3). Nearly all scholars agree on this point of identification. However, some hold that the epistle itself cannot be dated early enough to make the superscription anything but pseudonymous. They instance the allusion to the apostles as men of a past time (v 17; cf v 3), and assert, in addition, that the characterization of the false teachers (v 18) and the use of a Greek translation of 1 Enoch (14f) point to the date of approximately 100 A.D.

These arguments, however, should be viewed with caution. Though the allusion to the apostles cited above does indicate that the author of Jude was thinking of a second-generation Christian community, the reference point need not have been the end of that generation; it could equally well have been its beginning, therefore not long after 70 A.D. Moreover, the author of Jude might have so described false teachers about 80 A.D., and might also have had access to a Greek translation of 1 Enoch. The date of about 80 A.D. for the epistle remains entirely possible. For this reason many other scholars accept Jude, the relative of Jesus and brother of James of Jerusalem, as its author. Nothing is known of this Jude's history, nor does his epistle provide information on the location of the Christians to whom it is addressed. Since he invokes the name of James by way of introducing himself, he seems not to have been very well known among the Christians to whom he wrote.

The epistle warns its recipients against the false brethren who have infiltrated their community (v 4). These persons are to be identified by their exaggerated doctrine of Christian freedom, for they encourage sensuality (v 4) and reject authority (v 8). The community must be alert to this threat in its midst, mindful of the divine judgments against those who fail to live according to faith or to Christian standards of conduct (5ff. 11. 14ff).

On the foundation of faith, supported by prayer, the Christian is preserved in the love of God, and awaits a merciful judgment and eternal life (20f). This common faith delivered to the saints is the criterion of right belief (v 3). What is contrary to it is destined for condemnation because it turns the grace of God into wantonness and denies Jesus Christ, the only Master and Lord (v 4).

The energetic and picturesque style of this epistle is reminiscent of that of the early prophets.

St. Jerome acknowledges that some rejected the epistle because of its citation of the apocryphal Book of Enoch, but states that the ancient authority it enjoyed and its use in the churches assured its place in the canon of the inspired writings.

Scholars agree that the author of 2 Peter drew upon the Epistle of Jude.

Greeting. 1*† Jude, a servant of Jesus Christ and brother of James, to those who have been called by God; who have found love in God the Father and have been guarded safely in Jesus Christ. 2 May mercy, peace, and love be yours in ever greater measure.

Exhortation to Steadfastness. 3*† I was already fully intent on writing you, beloved, about the salvation we share. But now I feel obliged to write and encourage you to fight hard for the faith delivered once for all to the saints. 4* Certain individuals have recently wormed their way into your midst, godless types, long ago destined for the condemnation I shall describe. They pervert the gracious gift of our God to sexual

1: Mt 13, 55.
3: 2 Pt 2, 1.

4: 2 Jn 10.

† 1f. Jude, . . . brother of James: for the identity of the author of this letter, see the Introduction. To those who have been called by God: the vocation to the Christian faith is God's free gift to those whom he loves and whom he safely protects in Christ until the Lord's second coming.

3f. The salvation we share: the teachings of the Christian faith delivered once for all to the saints: i.e., handed down in their entirety and accepted by the Christian community. They are not to be perverted by heterodoxy; cf 1 Cor 3, 11; 15, 1; Gal 1, 6-19; 1 Tm 1, 3; 6, 3. Certain individuals . . . destined for the condemnation: false teachers within the community who deny Christ as Lord and Savior and seduce the people by advocating sexual lawlessness. Their punishment is already foreshadowed in Old Testament examples of unfaithful ones among the angels and among God's people (5ff). There is also reference here to the apocryphal Book of Enoch (14f), which was highly regarded in the early centuries of the Christian era.

excess and deny Jesus Christ, our only master and Lord.

Against False Teachers. 5*† I wish to remind you may already be very well aware of them. The Lord first rescued his people from the land of Egypt but later destroyed those who refused to believe. 6*† There were angels, too, who did not keep to their own domain, who deserted their dwelling place. These the Lord has kept in perpetual bondage, shrouded in murky darkness against the judgment of the great day. 7† Sodom, Gomorrah, and the towns thereabout indulged in lust, just as those angels did; they practiced unnatural vice. They are set before us to dissuade us, as they undergo a punishment of eternal fire.

8† Similarly, these visionaries pollute the flesh; they spurn God's dominion and revile the angelic beings. 9*† Even the archangel Michael, when his case with the devil was being judged—a dispute over Moses' body—did not venture to charge him with blasphemy. He simply said, "May the Lord punish you." 10 These people, however, not only revile what they have no knowledge of but are corrupted through the very things they know by instinct, like brute animals.

11*† So much the worse for them! They have taken the road Cain took. They have abandoned themselves to Balaam's error for pay, and like Korah they perish in rebellion. 12*† These men are blotches on your Christian banquets. They join your solemn feasts without shame and only look after themselves. They are blown on the wind like clouds that bring no rain. Like trees at the year's end they bear no fruit, being dead and uprooted. 13*† They are wild ocean waves, splashing their shameless deeds abroad like foam, or shooting stars for whom the thick gloom of darkness has been reserved forever. 14*† It was about these that Enoch, who was of the seventh generation descended from Adam, prophesied when he said, "See, the Lord has come with his countless holy ones about him 15* to pass judgment on all men, indicting the goddess for every evil deed they have done, and convicting those goddess sinners of every harsh word they have uttered against him."

16 These men are grumblers and whiners. They live by their passions, uttering bombast. Whenever it is expedient, they resort to flattery. 17*† Remember, beloved, all of you, the prophetic words of the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ; 18† how they kept telling you, "In the last days there will be impostors living by their goddess passions." 19 These sensualists, devoid of the Spirit, are causing divisions among you.

Christian Admonitions. 20*† But you, beloved, grow strong in your holy faith through prayer in the Holy Spirit. 21 Persevere in God's love, and welcome the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ which leads to life eternal. 22 Correct those who are confused; the others you must rescue, snatching them from the fire. 23* Even with those you pity, be on your guard; abhor so much as their flesh-stained clothing.

Doxology. 24*† There is One who can protect you from a fall and make you

5: Nm 14, 35; 1 Cor 6, 3; 10, 5.	14: Gn 5, 21; Dt 33, 24.
6: 2 Pt 2, 4.	15: Mal 3, 13.
9: Zec 3, 2.	17: 2 Pt 3, 21.
11: Gn 4, 8; Nm 16, 22; 31, 16.	20: 1 Cor 3, 9-17.
12: Prv 25, 14.	23: Am 4, 11; Zec 3,
13: Is 57, 20.	2; Jas 5, 19f.
	24: 2 Pt 3, 14.

†

5: Destroyed those who refused to believe: see note on Nm 14, 28f.

6: See note on Gn 6, 1-4; cf also 2 Pt 2, 4-6.

7: Sodom, Gomorrah: frequently used in the Scriptures as examples of sin and punishment; cf Is 1, 9; Jer 50, 40; Lam 4, 6; Ez 16, 56; Mt 10, 15; 11, 24; Lk 17, 29. See note on Gn 19, 25.

8: Visionaries: victims of hallucination, or self-authorized prophets of revelation (cf 2 Pt 2, 10, 18) who distort and debase Christian revelation to the detriment of the community.

Revile the angelic beings: i.e., probably by attributing their own disorders to the angels whom they invoke as their patrons.

9: The archangel Michael . . . blasphemy: an apparent reference to the story concerning the dispute between Michael and the devil over Moses' body, as described in the apocryphal Assumption of Moses. If Michael did not accuse even the devil but left the judgment of him to God, how much less should men presume to revile the angels! Michael was regarded as the protector of ancient Israel and of the new Israel, the church; cf Rv 12, 7; Dn 10, 13, 20f; 13, 1f.

11: Cain . . . Balaam . . . Korah: examples of rebellious leaders and of the punishments their conduct incurred; cf Gn 4, 8-16; Nm 16, 1-35; 31, 16.

12: Blotches on your Christian banquets: scandalous conduct in connection with the eucharistic celebrations (cf 2 Pt 2, 13) which in apostolic times were associated with a community meal; cf Acts 2, 46; 1 Cor 11, 20-34.

Clouds that bring no rain; trees . . . dead and uprooted; wild ocean waves; shooting stars: empty display of force and beauty and splendor devoid of any genuine source to sustain them. Shooting stars were considered by the ancients to forebode catastrophe. Here they symbolize Christians who have withdrawn far from God as they plunge into exterior darkness; cf Enoch 18-21.

14: A reference to Enoch (1, 9). For the description of Christ the universal judge of mankind, surrounded by his angels, cf Dn 7, 10; Mt 25, 21; Heb 12, 22.

17f: The prophetic utterances of the apostles concerning the last days are repeated here to help Christians prepare themselves for the struggle against the enemies of their faith.

18: In the last days . . . goddess passions: the substance rather than the direct quotation of the many New Testament passages, such as Mk 13, 22; Acts 20, 30; 1 Tm 4, 1f; 2 Pt 3, 3. The last refers not to the imminent proximity of the second coming of Christ, as thought by many in the early Christian community, but to various stages in messianic times.

20f: These verses contain the trinitarian doctrine: God (the Father) who loves us, the Holy Spirit who prays in us, and our Lord Jesus Christ who leads us to life eternal. They also sum up the Christian life in terms of the theological virtues (faith, hope, charity) and the practice of prayer.

24: There is One who can protect you: God through Jesus Christ. The purpose of the epistle is brought back into focus at its conclusion; perseverance of Christians in the faith amid the many evils that threaten to destroy it; cf 1 Pt 3, 17f. Verse 25 contains an illustrious New Testament doxology; cf also Rom 16, 27; Eph 3, 20; 1 Pt 4, 11; 2 Pt 3, 18.

stand unblemished and exultant in the presence of his glory. <sup>25</sup> Glory be to this only God our savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Majesty, too, be his, might and power from ages past, now and for ages to come. Amen.

REVELATION

The Book of Revelation, or the Apocalypse, is the last book of the Bible, and perhaps the least read. It is also one of the most difficult to understand because it abounds in unfamiliar and extravagant symbolism, which at best appears unusual to the modern reader. Symbolic language, however, is one of the chief characteristics of apocalyptic literature, of which this book is an outstanding example. Such literature enjoyed wide popularity in both Jewish and Christian circles from 200 B.C. to 200 A.D.

This book contains an account of visions in symbolic and allegorical language borrowed in part from the Old Testament, especially Ezekiel, Zechariah, and the apocalyptic Book of Daniel. Whether these visions were real experiences of the author or simply literary conventions employed by him is an open question, the solution of which in no way adds to, or detracts from, the divine inspiration of the book.

Symbolic descriptions are not to be taken as literal descriptions, nor is the symbolism capable of being pictured realistically. One would find it both difficult and repulsive to visualize a lamb with seven horns and seven eyes; yet Christ our Lord is described in precisely such words (5, 6). The author used these images to suggest Christ's universal power (seven horns) and knowledge (seven eyes). Another significant feature of apocalyptic writing is the use of symbolic colors (1, 13-16; 3, 18; 4, 4; 6, 1-8; 17, 4; 19, 8) and numbers (four signifies the world; six, imperfection; seven, totality or perfection; twelve, Israel's tribes or the Apostles; thousand, immensity). Finally, the vindictive language in the book (6, 9f; 18, 1-19, 4) is also to be understood symbolically, and not literally. The cries for vengeance that sound so harsh on the lips of Christian martyrs are in fact literary devices the author employed to evoke in the reader and hearer a feeling of horror for apostasy and rebellion, which will be severely punished by God.

The Book of Revelation cannot be adequately comprehended except against the historical background which occasioned its writing. Like the Book of Daniel and other apocalypses, it was composed as resistance literature to meet a crisis. The book itself suggests that the crisis was ruthless persecution of the early church by the Roman authorities; the harlot Babylon symbolizes pagan Rome, the city on seven hills (17, 9). The book is, then, an exhortation and admonition to the Christian to stand firm in the faith and to avoid compromise with paganism, despite the threat of adversity and martyrdom; he is to await patiently the fulfillment of God's mighty promises. The triumph of God in the world of men remains a mystery, to be accepted in faith and longed for in hope. It is a triumph that unfolded in the history of Jesus of Nazareth, and continues to unfold in the history of the individual Christian who follows the way of the cross, even, if necessary, to a martyr's death.

Though the perspective is eschatological—ultimate salvation and victory are said to take place at the end of the present age when Christ will come in glory at the parousia—the book presents the decisive struggle of Christ and his followers against Satan and his cohorts as already over. Christ's overwhelming defeat of the kingdom of Satan has ushered in the everlasting reign of God (11, 15; 12, 10). Even the forces of evil unwittingly carry out the divine plan (17, 17), for God is the sovereign Lord of history.

The Book of Revelation had its origin in a time of crisis, but it remains valid for Christians of all time. In the face of evils from within and without, the Christian can confidently trust in God's promise to be with the church forever.

The author of the book calls himself John (1, 1.4.9; 22, 8), who because of his Christian faith had been exiled to the rocky island of Patmos. Although he never claims to be the apostle of the same name, many of the early church Fathers so identified him. This identification is not altogether certain. Vocabulary, grammar, and style make it doubtful that the book could have been put into its present form by the person(s) responsible for the fourth gospel. Nevertheless, there are definite linguistic and theological affinities between the two books. The tone of the letters to the seven churches (1, 4-3, 22) is indicative of the great authority the writer enjoyed over the Christian communities in Asia. It is quite likely, therefore, that he was at least a disciple of the apostle John, who also lived in that part of the world. The date of composition is probably near the end of the reign of Domitian (81-96 A.D.), a fierce persecutor of the Christians.

The principal divisions of the Book of Revelation are the following:

- I: Prologue (1, 1-3)
- II: Letters to the Churches of Asia (1, 4-3, 22)
- III: Preparation for the Day of the Lord (4, 1-16, 21)
- IV: Punishment of Babylon (17, 1-19, 10)
- V: Destruction of Pagan Nations (19, 11-20, 15)
- VI: New Creation (21, 1-22, 5)
- VII: Epilogue (22, 6-21)

I: PROLOGUE

CHAPTER 1

<sup>1</sup> This is the revelation God gave to Jesus Christ, that he might show his servants what must happen very soon. He made it known by sending his angel to his servant John, <sup>2</sup> who in reporting, all he saw bears witness to the word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ. <sup>3†</sup> Happy is the man who reads this prophetic message, and happy are those who hear it and heed what is written in it, for the appointed time is near!

II: LETTERS TO THE CHURCHES OF ASIA

Greeting. <sup>4†</sup> To the seven churches in the province of Asia: John wishes you grace and peace—from him who is and who was and who is to come, and from the seven spirits before his throne, <sup>5*†</sup> and from Jesus Christ the faithful witness, the first-born from the dead and ruler of the kings of earth. To him who loves us and freed us from our sins by his own blood, <sup>6</sup> who has made us a royal nation of priests in the service of his God and Father—to him be glory and power forever and ever! Amen.

<sup>7*</sup> See, he comes amid the clouds!
Every eye shall see him,
even of those who pierced him.
All the peoples of the earth shall lament him bitterly.
So it is to be! Amen!

<sup>8*†</sup> The Lord God says, "I am the Alpha and the Omega, the One who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty!"

First Vision. <sup>9†</sup> I, John, your brother, who share with you the distress and the kingly reign and the endurance we have in Jesus, found myself on the island called Patmos because I proclaimed God's word and bore witness to Jesus.

<sup>10†</sup> On the Lord's day I was caught up in ecstasy, and I heard behind me a piercing voice like the sound of a trumpet, <sup>11</sup> which said, "Write on a scroll what you now see and send it to the seven churches: to Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea." <sup>12†</sup> I turned around to see whose voice it was that spoke to me. When I did so I saw seven lampstands of gold, <sup>13*†</sup> and among the lampstands One like a Son of Man wearing an ankle-length robe, with a sash of gold about his breast. <sup>14†</sup> The hair of his head was as white as snow-white wool and his eyes blazed like fire. <sup>15†</sup> His feet gleamed like polished brass refined in a furnace, and his voice sounded like the

1, 5: 1 Cor 15, 20;	24, 30: Jn 19,
Col 1, 18; Heb	37.
9, 14; 1 Pt 1, 19;	8: 21, 6; 22, 13; Is
1 Jn 1, 7.	44, 6.
7: Zec 12, 10; Mt	13: Dn 7, 13, 10, 5.

† 1, 3: Happy is the man: the first of seven beatitudes in this book; the others are in 14, 13; 16, 15; 19, 9; 20, 6; 22, 7, 14. Those who hear it: in the liturgical assembly. The appointed time: when Jesus will return in glory; cf 1, 7; 3, 11; 22, 7, 10, 12, 20.

1, 4: Seven churches . . . Asia: in western Asia Minor (modern Turkey). These representative churches are mentioned by name in 1, 11; each is the recipient of a message (2, 1-3, 22). Seven is the biblical number suggesting fullness and completeness; thus John is writing for the whole church. 1, 5: Freed us: other ancient MSS read "washed us."

1, 8: The Alpha and the Omega: the first and the last letters of the Greek alphabet. In 22, 13 the same words occur, together with the expressions the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End; cf 1, 17; 2, 8; 21, 6; Is 44, 6.

1, 9: Island called Patmos: in the Aegean Sea, southwest of Ephesus.

1, 10: The Lord's day: Sunday.

1, 12-16: A symbolic description of Christ in glory; cf Introduction.

1, 13: Son of Man: see note on Mt 8, 20. Ankle-length robe: Christ is priest; cf Ex 28, 4; 29, 5. Sash of gold: Christ is king; cf 1 Mc 10, 89; 11, 58.

1, 14: Hair . . . white as snow-white wool: Christ is eternal (v 18; Dn 7, 9). His eyes blazed like fire: Christ is omniscient, cf 2, 23; Ps 7, 10; Jer 17, 10.

1, 15: His feet . . . furnace: Christ is immutable; cf Ez 1, 27; Dn 10, 6. His voice . . . waters: Christ speaks with divine authority; cf Ez 1, 24.

roar of rushing waters. <sup>16*</sup>† In his right hand he held seven stars. A sharp, two-edged sword came out of his mouth, and his face shone like the sun at its brightest.

<sup>17*</sup>† When I caught sight of him I fell down at his feet as though dead. He touched me with his right hand and said: "There is nothing to fear. I am the First and the Last <sup>18†</sup> and the One who lives. Once I was dead but now I live—forever and ever. I hold the keys of death and the nether world. <sup>19*</sup> Write down, therefore, whatever you see in visions—what you see now and will see in time to come. <sup>20†</sup> This is the secret meaning of the seven stars you saw in my right hand, and of the seven lampstands of gold: the seven stars are the presiding spirits of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands are the seven churches.

CHAPTER 2

To Ephesus. <sup>1†</sup> "To the presiding spirit of the church in Ephesus, write this:

"The One who holds the seven stars in his right hand and walks among the seven lampstands of gold has this to say: <sup>2†</sup> I know your deeds, your labors, and your patient endurance. I know you cannot tolerate wicked men; you have tested those self-styled apostles who are nothing of the sort, and discovered that they are impostors. <sup>3</sup> You are patient and endure hardship for my cause. Moreover, you do not become discouraged. <sup>4</sup> I hold this against you, though: you have turned aside from your early love. <sup>5</sup> Keep firmly in mind the heights from which you have fallen. Repent, and return to your former deeds. If you do not repent I will come to you and remove your lampstand from its place. <sup>6†</sup> But you have this much in your favor: you detest the practices of the Nicolaitans, just as I do.

<sup>7*</sup>† "Let him who has ears heed the Spirit's word to the churches! I will see to it that the victor eats from the tree of life which grows in the garden of God."

To Smyrna. <sup>8†</sup> "To the presiding spirit of the church in Smyrna, write this:

"The First and the Last who once died but now lives has this to say: <sup>9*</sup>† I know of your tribulation and your poverty, even though you are rich. I know the slander you endure from self-styled Jews who are nothing other than members of Satan's assembly. <sup>10</sup> Have no fear of the sufferings to come. The devil will indeed cast some of you into prison to put you to the test; you will be tried over a period of ten days. Remain faithful until death and I will give you the crown of life.

<sup>11*</sup>† "Let him who has ears heed the Spirit's word to the churches! The victor shall never be harmed by the second death."

To Pergamum. <sup>12†</sup> "To the presiding spirit of the church in Pergamum, write this:

"The One with the sharp, two-edged sword has this to say: <sup>13†</sup> I know you live in the very place where Satan's throne is erected; and I know you hold fast to my name and have not denied the faith you have in me, not even at the time when Antipas, my faithful witness, was martyred in your city where Satan has his home. <sup>14*</sup>† Nevertheless I hold a few matters against you: there are some among you who follow the teaching of Balaam, who instructed Balak to throw a stumbling block in the way of the Israelites by tempting them to eat food sacrificed to idols and to practice fornication. <sup>15</sup> Yes, you too have those among you who hold to the teaching of the Nicolaitans. <sup>16</sup> Therefore repent! If you do not, I will come to you soon and fight against them with the sword of my mouth.

16: Ez 43, 2; Heb 4, 12,	2, 9.
17: Is 41, 4; Dn 8, 18,	9: Jas 2, 5.
19: Is 44, 6; 48, 12,	11: 20, 6, 14; 21, 8;
2, 7; 13, 9; 22, 2; Gn	1 Cor 9, 25.
	14: Nm 24, 3; 25, 2.

† 1, 16: A sharp, two-edged sword: the word of God (Eph 6, 17; Heb 4, 12), which will destroy unrepentant sinners (2, 16; 19, 15). His face . . . brightest: the divine majesty of Christ; cf 21, 23; Is 60, 19.

1, 17: It was an Old Testament belief that for sinful man to see God was to die (Ex 19, 21; 33, 20; Is 6, 5).

1, 18: Nether world: the abode of the dead (20, 13).

1, 20: Presiding spirits: literally, angels. Angels were thought to be in charge of the physical world (7, 1; 16, 5), as well as of nations (Dn 10, 13; 12, 1), communities (the seven churches), and individuals (Mt 18, 10; Acts 12, 15).

2, 1—3, 22: Each of the seven letters follows the same pattern: address; description of the exalted Christ; blame and/or praise for the church addressed; threat and/or admonition; final exhortation and promise to all Christians.

2, 1: Ephesus: capital of the Roman province of Asia. Walks among the seven lampstands: Christ is always present in the church; see note on 1, 4.

2, 2: Self-styled apostles . . . impostors: unauthorized and perverse missionaries; cf Acts 20, 29f.

2, 6: Nicolaitans: perhaps the impostors of v 2; see note on vv 14f.

2, 7: The tree of life . . . garden of God: reference to the tree in the primeval paradise (Gn 2, 9); cf 22, 2, 14, 19.

2, 8: Smyrna: modern Izmir, north of Ephesus.

2, 9f: The church in Smyrna was materially poor but spiritually rich. Accusations made by Jews occasioned the persecution of Christians; cf Acts 14, 2, 19, 17, 5, 13.

2, 11: The second death: when sinners will receive their final punishment (20, 6, 14; 21, 8).

2, 12: Pergamum: modern Bergama, north of Smyrna.

2, 13: Satan's throne: reference to emperor worship and other pagan practices that flourished in the city.

2, 14f: Like Balaam, the biblical prototype of religious compromisers (Nm 25, 1ff; 31, 16; 2 Pt 2, 15; Jude 11), the Nicolaitans in Pergamum and Ephesus (v 6) accommodated their Christian faith to paganism. They misused the law of liberty enunciated by St. Paul (1 Cor 9, 19-23).

<sup>17</sup>*† “Let him who has ears heed the Spirit’s word to the churches! To the victor I will give the hidden manna; I will also give him a white stone upon which is inscribed a new name, to be known only by him who receives it.”

To Thyatira. <sup>18</sup>† “To the presiding spirit of the church in Thyatira, write this:

“The Son of God, whose eyes blaze like fire and whose feet gleam like polished brass, has this to say: <sup>19</sup> I know your deeds—your love and faith and service—as well as your patient endurance; I know also that your efforts of recent times are greater than ever. <sup>20</sup>† Nevertheless I hold this against you: you tolerate a Jezebel—that self-styled prophetess who seduces my servants by teaching them to practice lewdness and to eat food sacrificed to idols. <sup>21</sup> I have given her a chance to repent but she refuses to turn from her lewdness. <sup>22</sup> I mean to cast her down on a bed of pain; her companions in sin I will plunge into intense suffering unless they repent of their sins with her, <sup>23</sup>* and her children I will put to death. Thus shall all the churches come to know that I am the searcher of hearts and minds, and that I will give each of you what your conduct deserves. <sup>24</sup>† And now I address myself to you others in Thyatira who do not uphold this teaching and know nothing of the so-called “deep secrets” of Satan; on you I place no further burden. <sup>25</sup> In any case, hold fast to what you have until I come.

<sup>26</sup>*† “To the one who wins the victory, who keeps to my ways till the end, I will give authority over the nations—the same authority I received from my Father. <sup>27</sup> He shall rule them with a rod of iron and shatter them like crockery; <sup>28</sup> and I will give him the morning star. <sup>29</sup>* “Let him who has ears heed the Spirit’s word to the churches!”

CHAPTER 3

To Sardis. † “To the presiding spirit of the church in Sardis, write this:

“The One who holds the seven spirits of God, the seven stars, has this to say: I know your conduct; I know the reputation you have of being alive, when in fact you are dead! <sup>2</sup> Wake up, and strengthen what remains before it dies. I find that the sum of your deeds is less than complete in the sight of my God. <sup>3</sup>* Call to mind how you accepted what you heard; keep to it, and repent. If you do not rouse yourselves I will come upon you like a thief, at a time you cannot know. <sup>4</sup>*† I realize that you have in Sardis a few persons who have not soiled their garments;

these shall walk with me in white because they are worthy.

<sup>5</sup>* “The victor shall go clothed in white. I will never erase his name from the book of the living, but will acknowledge him in the presence of my Father and his angels.

<sup>6</sup>* “Let him who has ears heed the Spirit’s word to the churches!”

To Philadelphia. <sup>7</sup>*† “To the presiding spirit of the church in Philadelphia, write this:

“The holy One, the true, who wields David’s key, who opens and no one can close, who closes and no one can open,

has this to say:

<sup>8</sup>† “I know your deeds; that is why I have left an open door before you which no one can close. I know that your strength is limited; yet you have held fast to my word and have not denied my name. <sup>9</sup>* I mean to make some of Satan’s assembly, those self-styled Jews who are not really Jews but frauds, come and fall down at your feet; they will learn of my love for you in that way. <sup>10</sup> Because you have kept my plea to stand fast, I will keep you safe in the time of trial which is coming on the whole world, to test all men on earth. <sup>11</sup> I am coming soon. Hold fast to what

17: Is 62, 2; 65, 15.	3, 10.
23: 1 Sm 16, 7; Ps 7, 10; Jer 17, 10.	4: 1 Thes 5, 2.
26: Ps 2, 8f.	6: Ps 69, 29; Mt 10, 32.
29: 2 Pt 1, 19.	7: Is 22, 22; Mt 16, 19.
3, 3: Mt 24, 42-44; Mk 13, 33; 1 Thes 5, 2; 2 Pt	9: Is 45, 14; 60, 14.

† 2, 17: The hidden manna: the food of life; cf Ps 78, 24f. White stone: symbol of victory and joy; cf 3, 4f. New name: reference to the Christian’s rebirth in Christ; cf 3, 12, 19, 12; Is 62, 2; 65, 15.

2, 18: Thyatira: modern Akhisar, southeast of Pergamum. 2, 20: The scheming and treacherous Jezebel of old (1 Kgs 21, 1-14; 2 Kgs 9, 22, 30-34) introduced pagan customs into the religion of Israel; this new Jezebel was doing the same to Christianity.

2, 24: The so-called “deep secrets” of Satan: a scathing reference to the perverse teaching of the Nicolaitans (v 15). 2, 26f: The Christian who perseveres in faith will share in Christ’s messianic authority and victory over death, symbolized by the morning star (22, 16); cf Ps 2, 8f.

3, 1f: Sardis, south and east of Thyatira, is reproached for the fevish activity of its Christians (the reputation you have of being alive), since such activity could not substitute for a living faith.

3, 4f: In white: the sign of victory and joy; see note on 2, 17. The book of the living: where the names of the redeemed are kept (21, 27); cf 13, 8; 17, 8; 20, 12, 15; Phil 4, 3; Dn 12, 1. They will be acknowledged by Christ in heaven (Mt 10, 32).

3, 7: Philadelphia, modern Alasehir, southeast of Sardis. Destroyed by earthquake in 17 A.D. and rebuilt with money from the Emperor Tiberius, the city was renamed Neocaesarea, “New Caesar City.” David’s key: to the heavenly City of David, the new Jerusalem (v 12), over which Christ has supreme authority; cf Is 22, 22.

3, 8: An open door: opportunities for sharing and proclaiming the faith; cf 1 Cor 16, 19; 2 Cor 2, 12.

you have lest someone rob you of your crown.

<sup>12*</sup>† “I will make the victor a pillar in the temple of my God and he shall never leave it. I will inscribe on him the name of my God and the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem which he will send down from heaven, and my own name which is new.

<sup>13</sup> “Let him who has ears heed the Spirit’s word to the churches!”

To Laodicea. <sup>14*</sup>† “To the presiding spirit of the church in Laodicea, write this:

“The Amen, the faithful Witness and true, the Source of God’s creation, has this to say: <sup>15</sup>† I know your deeds; I know you are neither hot nor cold. How I wish you were one or the other—hot or cold! <sup>16</sup> But because you are lukewarm, neither hot nor cold, I will spew you out of my mouth! <sup>17</sup>† You keep saying, “I am so rich and secure that I want for nothing.” Little do you realize how wretched you are, how pitiable and poor, how blind and naked! <sup>18</sup>† Take my advice. Buy from me gold refined by fire if you would be truly rich. Buy white garments in which to be clothed, if the shame of your nakedness is to be covered. Buy ointment to smear on your eyes, if you would see once more. <sup>19*</sup> Whoever is dear to me I reprove and chastise. Be earnest about it, therefore. Repent!

<sup>20</sup>† “Here I stand, knocking at the door. If anyone hears me calling and opens the door, I will enter his house and have supper with him, and he with me. <sup>21</sup> I will give the victor the right to sit with me on my throne, as I myself won the victory and took my seat beside my Father on his throne.

<sup>22</sup> “Let him who has ears heed the Spirit’s word to the churches.’”

III: PREPARATION FOR THE DAY OF THE LORD

CHAPTER 4

Vision of Heavenly Worship. <sup>1</sup>† After this I had another vision: above me there was an open door to heaven, and I heard the trumpetlike voice which had spoken to me before. It said, “Come up here and I will show you what must take place in time to come.” <sup>2*</sup>† At once I was caught up in ecstasy. A throne was standing there in heaven, and on the throne was seated One <sup>3*</sup> whose appearance had a gemlike sparkle as of jasper and carnelian. Around the throne was a rainbow as brilliant as emerald. <sup>4</sup>† Surrounding this throne were twenty-four other thrones upon which were seated twenty-four elders; they were clothed in white garments and had crowns of gold on their heads. <sup>5</sup>† From the throne came flashes of lightning and peals of thunder; before it burned seven flaming torches, the seven spirits of God. <sup>6*</sup>† The floor around the throne was like a sea of glass that was crystal-clear.

At the very center, around the throne itself, stood four living creatures covered with eyes front and back. <sup>7</sup> The first creature resembled a lion, the second an ox; the third had the face of a man, while the fourth looked like an eagle in flight. <sup>8*</sup> Each of the four living creatures had six wings and eyes all over, inside and out.

Day and night, without pause, they sing:

“Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord God Almighty,
He who was, and who is, and who is to come!”

<sup>9</sup> Whenever these creatures give glory and honor and praise to the One seated on the throne, who lives forever and ever, <sup>10</sup> the twenty-four elders fall down before the One seated on the throne, and worship him who lives forever and ever. They throw down their crowns before the throne and sing:

<sup>11</sup> “O Lord our God, you are worthy to receive glory and honor and power!
For you have created all things;
by your will they came to be and were made!”

12: Ez 48, 35.	26-28.
14: 1, 5; Jn 1, 3.	6: Ez 24, 10; Ez 1,
19: Prv 3, 12; Heb	5-21; 10, 14.
12, 6.	8: 1, 4; Is 6, 3; Ez
4, 2; Dn 2, 28.	1, 5-21.
3: Ez 24, 10; Ez 1,

† 3, 12: A pillar: allusion to the rebuilding of the city; see note on v 7. New Jerusalem: described in 21, 10–22, 5.

3, 14: Laodicea, southeast of Philadelphia, was a wealthy commercial center. The Amen: a divine title applied to Christ; cf Is 65, 16; 2 Cor 1, 20. Source of God’s creation: a concept found also in Jn 1, 3; Col 1, 16f; Heb 1, 2, cf Wis 9, 1f.

3, 15f: Halfhearted commitment to the faith is nauseating to Christ.

3, 17: Material well-being occasioned spiritual bankruptcy. 3, 18: Gold . . . fire: God’s grace. White garments: symbol of an upright life (the city was noted for its black woolen cloth). Ointment . . . eyes: to remove spiritual blindness (one of the city’s exports was eye ointment).

3, 20: Christ invites all men to the messianic banquet in heaven (Lk 14, 15, 22, 30); cf Is 25, 6.

4, 1: The ancients viewed heaven as a solid vault, entered by way of actual doors.

4, 2-8: Much of the imagery here is taken from Ez 1 and 10.

4, 4: Twenty-four elders: representing the twelve tribes of Israel and the twelve apostles; cf 21, 12ff.

4, 5: Flashes of lightning and peals of thunder: as in other descriptions of God’s appearances or activity (8, 5, 11, 19; 16, 18; Ex 19, 16; Ez 1, 13).

4, 6f: A sea of glass . . . crystal-clear: image adapted from Ez 1, 22-26. Four living creatures: symbols taken from Ez 1, 5-21; they are identified as cherubim in Ez 10, 20. Covered with eyes: suggesting God’s knowledge and concern. Six wings: like the seraphim of Is 6, 2.

CHAPTER 5

The Scroll and the Lamb. <sup>1</sup>*† In the right hand of the One who sat on the throne I saw a scroll. It had writing on both sides and was sealed with seven seals. <sup>2</sup> Then I saw a mighty angel who proclaimed in a loud voice: "Who is worthy to open the scroll and break its seals?" <sup>3</sup> But no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth could be found to open the scroll or examine its contents. <sup>4</sup> I wept bitterly because no one could be found worthy to open or examine the scroll.

<sup>5</sup>*† One of the elders said to me: "Do not weep. The Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has won the right by his victory to open the scroll with the seven seals."

<sup>6</sup>*† Then, between the throne with the four living creatures and the elders, I saw a Lamb standing, a Lamb that had been slain. He had seven horns and seven eyes; these eyes are the seven spirits of God, sent to all parts of the world. <sup>7</sup> The Lamb came and received the scroll from the right hand of the One who sat on the throne. <sup>8</sup> When he had taken the scroll, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb. Along with their harps, the elders were holding vessels of gold filled with aromatic spices, which were the prayers of God's holy people. <sup>9</sup> This is the new hymn they sang:

"Worthy are you to receive the scroll and break open its seals, for you were slain.

With your blood you purchased for God men of every race and tongue, of every people and nation.

<sup>10</sup>* You made of them a kingdom, and priests to serve our God, and they shall reign on the earth."

<sup>11</sup>* As my vision continued, I heard the voices of many angels who surrounded the throne and the living creatures and the elders. They were countless in number, thousands and tens of thousands, <sup>12</sup> and they all cried out:

"Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power and riches, wisdom and strength, honor and glory and praise!"

<sup>13</sup>* Then I heard the voices of every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth and in the sea; everything in the universe cried aloud:

"To the One seated on the throne, and to the Lamb, be praise and honor, glory and might, forever and ever!"

<sup>14</sup> The four living creatures answered, "Amen," and the elders fell down and worshiped.

CHAPTER 6

The First Six Seals. <sup>1</sup>† Then I watched while the Lamb broke open the first of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures cry out in a voice like thunder, "Come forward!" <sup>2</sup>*† To my surprise, I saw a white horse; its rider had a bow, and he was given a crown. He rode forth victorious, to conquer yet again.

<sup>3</sup> When the Lamb broke open the second seal, I heard the second living creature cry out, "Come forward!" <sup>4</sup>*† Another horse came forth, a red one. Its rider was given power to rob the earth of peace by allowing men to slaughter one another. For this he was given a huge sword.

<sup>5</sup>† When the Lamb broke open the third seal, I heard the third living creature cry out, "Come forward!" This time I saw a black horse, the rider of which held a pair of scales in his hand. <sup>6</sup>*† I heard what seemed to be a voice coming from in among the four living creatures. It said: "A day's pay for a ration of wheat and the same for three of barley! But spare the olive oil and the wine!"

<sup>7</sup> When the Lamb broke open the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature cry out, "Come forward!" <sup>8</sup>*† Now I saw a horse sickly green in color. Its rider was named Death, and the nether world was in his train. These four were given authority

5, 1: Is 29, 11.
5: Is 11, 1, 10.
6: Jn 1, 29.
10: Ex 19, 6.
11: Dn 7, 10.
13: Ps 150, 6.

6, 2: Zec 1, 8-10; 6, 1-3.
4: Ez 21, 14-16.
6: Lv 26, 26; Ez 4, 16f.
8: Ez 14, 21.

†

5, 1: A scroll: containing the list of afflictions reserved for sinful men; cf Ez 2, 9f. Sealed with seven seals: totally hidden from all but God. Only the Lamb (vv 7ff) has the right to carry out the divine plan.

5, 5: The Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David: messianic titles applied to Christ (22, 16; Gn 49, 9; Is 11, 1, 10).

5, 6: Christ is the Paschal Lamb without blemish, whose blood saved the new Israel from sin and death (Jn 1, 29, 36; 1 Pt 1, 18f; Acts 8, 32); cf Ex 12; Is 53, 7. Seven horns and seven eyes: Christ has the fullness (see note on 1, 4) of power and knowledge. Seven spirits: as in 1, 4 and 4, 5.

6, 1-8: Each of the four horsemen symbolizes a particular woe connected with war and destruction. The imagery is adapted from Zec 1, 8ff; 6, 1-8.

6, 2: White horse . . . bow: symbolizing the Parthians on the eastern border of the Roman empire. Expert in the use of the bow, they constantly harassed the Romans.

6, 4: Huge sword: symbol of war and violence.

6, 5: Black horse: symbol of famine, the usual accompaniment of war in antiquity.

6, 6: A day's pay: literally, "denarius," a silver coin. Famine brought about the rationing of supplies, and the prices were exorbitant. Barley: food of the poor.

6, 8: Sickly green: symbol of death.

over one quarter of the earth, to kill with sword and famine and plague and the wild beasts of the earth.

<sup>9</sup> When the Lamb broke open the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the spirits of those who had been martyred because of the witness they bore to the word of God. <sup>10</sup> They cried out at the top of their voices: "How long will it be, O Master, holy and true, before you judge our cause and avenge our blood among the inhabitants of the earth?" <sup>11</sup> Each of the martyrs was given a long white robe, and they were told to be patient a little while longer until the quota was filled of their fellow servants and brothers to be slain, as they had been.

<sup>12</sup>† When I saw the Lamb break open the sixth seal, there was a violent earthquake; the sun turned black as a goat's-hair tentcloth and the moon grew red as blood. <sup>13</sup>* The stars in the sky fell crashing to earth like figs shaken loose by a mighty wind. <sup>14</sup> Then the sky disappeared as if it were a scroll being rolled up; every mountain and island was uprooted from its base. <sup>15</sup>* The kings of the earth, the nobles and those in command, the wealthy and powerful, the slave and the free—all hid themselves in caves and mountain crags. <sup>16</sup> They cried out to the mountains and rocks, "Fall on us! Hide us from the face of the One who sits on the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb!" <sup>17</sup> The great day of their vengeance has come. Who can withstand it?"

CHAPTER 7

Sealing of the Thousands. <sup>1</sup>† After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth; they held in check the earth's four winds so that no wind blew on land or sea or through any tree. <sup>2</sup> I saw another angel come up from the east holding the seal of the living God. He cried out at the top of his voice to the four angels who were given power to ravage the land and the sea, <sup>3</sup>* "Do no harm to the land or the sea or the trees until we imprint this seal on the foreheads of the servants of our God." <sup>4</sup>† I heard the number of those who were so marked—one hundred and forty-four thousand from every tribe of Israel: <sup>5</sup> twelve thousand from the tribe of Judah, twelve thousand from the tribe of Reuben, twelve thousand from the tribe of Gad, <sup>6</sup> twelve thousand from the tribe of Asher, twelve thousand from the tribe of Naphtali, twelve thousand from the tribe of Manasseh, <sup>7</sup> twelve thousand from the tribe of Simeon, twelve thousand from the tribe of Levi, twelve thousand from the tribe of Issachar, <sup>8</sup> twelve thousand from the tribe of Zebulun, twelve thousand from the tribe of Joseph, and twelve thousand from the tribe of Benjamin.

Triumph of the Elect. <sup>9</sup>† After this I saw before me a huge crowd which no one could count from every nation and race, people and tongue. They stood before the throne and the Lamb, dressed in long white robes and holding palm branches in their hands. <sup>10</sup> They cried out in a loud voice, "Salvation is from our God, who is seated on the throne, and from the Lamb!" <sup>11</sup> All the angels who were standing around the throne and the elders and the four living creatures fell down before the throne to worship God. They said: <sup>12</sup> "Amen! Praise and glory, wisdom and thanksgiving and honor, power and might, to our God forever and ever. Amen!"

<sup>13</sup> Then one of the elders asked me, "Who are these people all dressed in white? And where have they come from?" <sup>14</sup>† I said to him, "Sir, you should know better than I." He then told me, "These are the ones who have survived the great period of trial; they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb."

<sup>15</sup> "It was this that brought them before God's throne:

day and night they minister to him in his temple;

he who sits on the throne will give them shelter.

<sup>16</sup>* Never again shall they know hunger or thirst, nor shall the sun or its heat beat down on them,

<sup>17</sup>† for the Lamb on the throne will shepherd them.

He will lead them to springs of life-giving water, and God will wipe every tear from their eyes."

12: JI 3, 4; Mt 24, 29.

13: Is 34, 4.

15f: Is 2, 19; Hos 10, 8; Lk 23, 30.

7, 1: Jer 49, 36; Zec 6, 5.

3: 14, 1f; Ez 9, 4, 16: 49, 10.

17: 21, 4; Is 25, 8.

† 6, 12ff: Symbolic rather than literal description of the cosmic upheavals attending the day of the Lord, when the martyrs' prayer for vindication (v 10) would be answered; cf Mt 24, 29; Am 8, 8f; Is 34, 4; JI 2, 10; 3, 3f.

7, 1-17: Two scenes precede the breaking of the seventh seal. In the first (1-8), the elect receive the seal of the living God; cf Ez 9, 4ff. The second scene (9-17) portrays the victorious martyrs before God's throne.

7, 4-8: One hundred and forty-four thousand: the square of twelve (the number of Israel's tribes) multiplied by a thousand, symbolic of the new Israel that embraces men from every nation and race, people and tongue (v 9); cf Gal 6, 16; Jas 1, 1.

7, 9: Long white robes . . . palm branches: symbols of joy and victory; see note on 3, 4f.

7, 14: Great period of trial: fierce persecution by the Romans; cf Introduction.

7, 17: Live-giving water: God's grace, which flows from Christ (21, 6; 22, 1, 17; Jn 4, 10, 14).

CHAPTER 8

The Seven Trumpets. 1*† When the Lamb broke open the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for about half an hour. 2† Then, as I watched, the seven angels who minister in God's presence were given seven trumpets.

The Gold Censer. 3 Another angel came in holding a censer of gold. He took his place at the altar of incense and was given large amounts of incense to deposit on the altar of gold in front of the throne, together with the prayers of all God's holy ones. 4* From the angel's hand the smoke of the incense went up before God, and with it the prayers of God's people. 5* Then the angel took the censer, filled it with live coals from the altar, and hurled it down to the earth. Peals of thunder and flashes of lightning followed, and the earth trembled.

First Four Trumpets. 6* The seven angels with the seven trumpets made ready to blow them.

7† When the first angel blew his trumpet, there came hail and then fire mixed with blood, which was hurled down to the earth. A third of the land was scorched, along with a third of the trees and every green plant.

8† When the second angel blew his trumpet, something like a huge mountain all in flames was cast into the sea. A third of the sea turned to blood, 9* a third of the creatures living in the sea died, and a third of the ships were wrecked.

10* When the third angel blew his trumpet, a huge star burning like a torch crashed down from the sky. It fell on a third of the rivers and the springs. 11† The star's name was "Wormwood" because a third part of all the water turned to wormwood. Many people died from this polluted water.

12 When the fourth angel blew his trumpet, a third of the sun, a third of the moon, and a third of the stars were hit hard enough to be plunged into darkness. The day lost a third of its light, as did the night.

13† As my vision continued, I heard an eagle flying in midheaven cry out in a loud voice, "Woe, woe, and again woe to the inhabitants of earth from the trumpet blasts the other three angels are about to blow!"

CHAPTER 9

The Fifth Trumpet. 1† Then the fifth angel blew his trumpet, and I saw a star fall from the sky to the earth. The star was given the key to the shaft of the abyss; 2*† he opened it and smoke poured out of the shaft like smoke from an enormous furnace. The sun and the air were darkened by the smoke from the shaft. 3* Out of the smoke, onto the land, came locusts as powerful as scorpions in their sting. 4 The locusts were commanded to do no harm to the grass in the land or to any plant or tree but only to those men who had not the seal of God on their foreheads. 5 The locusts were not allowed to kill them but only to torture them for five months; the pain they inflicted was like that of a scorpion's sting. 6* During that time these men will seek death but will not find it; they will yearn to die but death will escape them.

7* In appearance the locusts were like horses equipped for battle. On their heads they wore something like gold crowns; their faces were like men's faces 8 but they had hair like women's hair. Their teeth were like the teeth of lions, 9 their chests like iron breastplates. Their wings made a sound like the roar of many chariots and horses charging into battle. 10 They had tails with stingers like scorpions; in their tails was enough venom to harm men for five months. 11† Acting as their king was the angel in charge of the abyss, whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon and in Greek Apollyon.

The Sixth Trumpet. 12 The first woe is past, but beware! There are two more to come. 13† Then the sixth angel blew his trumpet, and I heard a voice coming from between the horns of the altar of gold in God's presence. 14 It said to the sixth angel, who was still holding his

8, 1: Hb 2, 20; Zec 2, 17,	10: Is 14, 12; Jer 9, 14,
4: Ps 141, 2,	9, 2: Gn 19, 28,
5: Lv 16, 12; Ps 11,	3: Ex 10, 12-15;
6: Ez 10, 2,	Wis 16, 9,
6: 16, 1-9,	6: Jb 3, 21,
9: Ex 7, 20,	7: Wis 16, 9,

†

8, 1: Silence in heaven: as in Zep 1, 7, a prelude to the eschatological woes that are to follow.

8, 2: The breaking of the seventh seal brings not one, but seven, symbolic disasters, each to be announced by the blowing of a trumpet (8, 6ff); see note on 6, 12ff.

8, 7: This woe resembles the seventh plague of Egypt (Ex 9, 23f); cf Jl 3, 3.

8, 8-11: The background of these two woes is the first plague of Egypt (Ex 7, 20f).

8, 11: Wormwood: a bitter plant symbolizing the punishment God inflicts on the ungodly; cf Jer 9, 12ff; 23, 15.

8, 13: Woe, woe, and again woe: each of the three woes pronounced by the angel represents a separate disaster; cf 9, 12, 11, 14. The final woe, released by the seventh trumpet blast, includes the plagues of chapter 16.

9, 1: A star: an angel. The abyss: where Satan and the fallen angels are kept for a thousand years, to be cast afterward into the pool of fire (20, 7-10).

9, 2-6: This woe combines elements from the eighth and ninth plagues of Egypt (Ex 10, 12-15, 21ff); cf Jl 1, 4-2, 10.

9, 11: Abaddon: destruction or ruin. Apollyon: destroyer.

9, 13-19: The sixth woe is a symbolic invasion by the Parthians living east of the Euphrates; see note on 6, 2. At the appointed time (15), the frightful horses act as God's agents of judgment. The imaginative details are not to be taken literally; see Introduction and note on 6, 12ff.

trumpet, "Release the four angels who are tied up on the banks of the great river Euphrates!"<sup>15</sup> So the four angels were released; this was precisely the hour, the day, the month, and the year for which they had been prepared, to kill a third of mankind.<sup>16</sup> Their cavalry troops, whose count I heard, were two hundred million in number—a number I heard myself.<sup>17</sup> Now, in my vision, this is how I saw the horses and their riders. The breastplates they wore were fiery red, deep blue, and pale yellow. The horses' heads were like heads of lions, and out of their mouths came fire and sulphur and smoke.<sup>18</sup> By these three plagues—the smoke and sulphur and fire which shot out of their mouths—a third of mankind was slain.<sup>19</sup> The deadly power of the horses was not only in their mouths but in their tails; for their tails were like snakes with heads poised to strike.

<sup>20</sup>*† That part of mankind which escaped the plagues did not repent of the idols they had made. They did not give up the worship of demons, or of gods made from gold and silver, from bronze and stone and wood, which cannot see or hear or walk.<sup>21</sup> Neither did they repent of their murders or their sorcery, their fornication or their thefts.

CHAPTER 10

Angel with the Scroll. <sup>1</sup>† Then I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven wrapped in a cloud, with a rainbow about his head; his face shone like the sun and his legs like pillars of fire.<sup>2</sup> In his hand he held a little scroll which had been opened. He placed his right foot on the sea and his left foot on the land,<sup>3</sup>*† and then gave a loud cry like the roar of a lion. When he cried out, the seven thunders raised their voices too.<sup>4</sup> I was about to start writing when the seven thunders spoke, but I heard a voice from heaven say, "Seal up what the seven thunders have spoken and do not write it down!"<sup>5</sup> Then the angel whom I saw standing on the sea and on the land raised his right hand to heaven<sup>6</sup>*† and took an oath by the One who lives forever and ever, who created heaven and earth and sea along with everything in them: "There shall be no more delay.<sup>7</sup>*† When the time comes for the seventh angel to blow his trumpet, the mysterious plan of God, which he announced to his servants the prophets, shall be accomplished in full."

<sup>8</sup> Then the voice which I heard from heaven spoke to me again and said, "Go, take the open scroll from the hand of the angel standing on the sea and on the land."<sup>9</sup>† I went up to the angel and said to him, "Give me the little scroll." He said to me, "Here, take it and eat it! It will be sour in your stomach, but in your mouth it will taste as sweet as honey."<sup>10</sup>* I took the little scroll from the angel's hand and ate it. In my mouth it tasted as sweet as honey, but when I swallowed it my stomach turned sour.<sup>11</sup>† Then someone said to me, "You must prophesy again for many peoples and nations, languages and kings."

CHAPTER 11

The Two Witnesses. <sup>1</sup>*† Someone gave me a measuring rod and said: "Come and take the measurements of God's temple and altar, and count those who worship there.<sup>2</sup>† Exclude the outer court of the temple, however; do not measure it, for it has been handed over to the Gentiles, who will crush the holy city for forty-two months.<sup>3</sup>† I will commission my two witnesses to prophesy for those twelve hundred and sixty days, dressed in sackcloth."

<sup>4</sup>* These are the two olive trees and the two lampstands which stand in the presence of the Lord of the earth.<sup>5</sup>† If

20: Ps 135, 15-17.

10, 3: Am 3, 8.

6: Dn 12, 7; Dt 32,

40; Ez 12, 28.

7: Am 3, 7.

10: Ez 3, 1-3.

11: 2: Zec 2, 5-9.

4: Zec 4, 3, 14.

†

9, 20: The idols they had made: literally, the works of their hands.

10, 1-11, 14: An interlude in two scenes (10, 1-11 and 11, 1-14) precedes the sounding of the seventh trumpet; cf 7, 1-17.

10, 3f: The seven thunders: God's voice announcing judgment and doom; cf Ps 29, 3-9.

10, 6: Heaven and earth and sea: the three parts of the universe.

10, 7: The mysterious plan of God: the end of the present age, when the forces of evil will be put down (17, 1-19, 4, 11-21; 20, 7-10; cf 2 Thes 2, 6-12; Rom 16, 25), and the establishment of the reign of God, when all creation will be made anew (21, 1-22, 5).

10, 9f: The little scroll was sweet because it predicted the final victory of God's holy people; it was sour because it also announced the sufferings they are to endure; cf Ez 3, 1ff.

10, 11: This further prophecy is contained in chapters 12-22.

11, 1: The temple and altar symbolize the new Israel; see note on 7, 4-8. The worshippers represent Christians; cf Ez 40, 3-42, 20; 47, 1-12; Zec 2, 5f. The measuring of the temple suggests that God will preserve the faithful remnant who continue true to Christ (14, 1-5); cf Is 4, 2f.

11, 2: The outer court: the court of the Gentiles. Crush . . . forty-two months: the duration of the vicious persecution of the Jews by Antiochus IV Epiphanes (Dn 7, 25; 12, 7). This persecution of three and a half years (1260 days; v 3; 12, 6) became the prototype of periods of trial for God's people; cf Lk 4, 25; Jas 5, 17. The reference here is to the persecution by the Romans; cf Introduction.

11, 3f: The two witnesses who are dressed in sackcloth, symbolizing lamentation and repentance, are perhaps the apostles Peter and Paul, who represent all Christian martyrs. The two olive trees and the two lampstands: the martyrs who stand in the presence of the Lord. The imagery is taken from Zec 4, 1, 3-11-14, where the olive trees refer to Joshua and Zerubbabel.

11, 5f: These details are derived from stories of Moses, who turned water into blood (Ex 7, 17-20), and of Elijah, who called down fire from heaven (1 Kgs 18, 36-40; 2 Kgs 1, 10) and closed up the sky (1 Kgs 17, 1).

anyone tries to harm them, fire will come out of the mouths of these witnesses to devour their enemies. Anyone attempting to harm them will surely be slain in this way. <sup>6*</sup> These witnesses have power to close up the sky so that no rain will fall during the time of their mission. They also have power to turn water into blood and to afflict the earth at will with any kind of plague.

<sup>7†</sup> When they have finished giving their testimony, the wild beast that comes up from the abyss will wage war against them and conquer and kill them. <sup>8*†</sup> Their corpses will lie in the streets of the great city, which has the symbolic name "Sodom" or "Egypt," where also their Lord was crucified. <sup>9†</sup> Men from every people and race, language and nation, stare at their corpses for three and a half days but refuse to bury them. <sup>10</sup> The earth's inhabitants gloat over them and in their merriment exchange gifts, because these two prophets harassed everyone on earth. <sup>11*</sup> But after the three and a half days, the breath of life which comes from God returned to them. When they stood on their feet sheer terror gripped those who saw them. <sup>12</sup> The two prophets heard a loud voice from heaven say to them, "Come up here!" So they went up to heaven in a cloud as their enemies looked on. <sup>13</sup> At that moment there was a violent earthquake and a tenth of the city fell in ruins. Seven thousand persons were killed during the earthquake; the rest were so terrified that they worshiped the God of heaven.

<sup>14</sup> The second woe is past, but beware! The third is coming very soon.

The Seventh Trumpet. <sup>15†</sup> Then the seventh angel blew his trumpet. Loud voices in heaven cried out, "The kingdom of the world now belongs to our Lord and to his Anointed One, and he shall reign forever and ever." <sup>16</sup> The twenty-four elders who were enthroned in God's presence fell down to worship God <sup>17</sup> and said:

"We praise you, the Lord God Almighty, who is and who was.
You have assumed your great power,
you have begun your reign.

<sup>18*</sup> The nations have raged in anger, but then came your day of wrath
and the moment to judge the dead:

The time to reward your servants
the prophets
and the holy ones who revere you,
the great and the small alike;
The time to destroy those who lay the earth waste."

<sup>19</sup> Then God's temple in heaven opened and in the temple could be seen the ark of his covenant. There were flashes of lightning and peals of thunder, an earthquake, and a violent hailstorm.

CHAPTER 12

The Woman and the Dragon. <sup>1*†</sup> A great sign appeared in the sky, a woman clothed with the sun, with the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars. <sup>2†</sup> Because she was with child, she wailed aloud in pain as she labored to give birth. <sup>3*†</sup> Then another sign appeared in the sky: it was a huge dragon, flaming red, with seven heads and ten horns; on his heads were seven diadems. <sup>4*</sup> His tail swept a third of the stars from the sky and hurled them down to the earth. Then the dragon stood before the woman about to give birth, ready to devour her child when it should be born. <sup>5*†</sup> She gave birth to a son—a boy destined to shepherd all the nations with an iron rod. Her child was caught up to God and to his throne. <sup>6†</sup> The woman herself fled into the desert, where a special place had been prepared for her by God; there she was taken care of for twelve hundred and sixty days.

<sup>7*†</sup> Then war broke out in heaven; Michael and his angels battled against the dragon. Although the dragon and his angels fought back, <sup>8</sup> they were overpowered and lost their place in heaven. <sup>9†</sup> The huge dragon, the ancient serpent

6: Ex 7, 17.

8: Dn 7, 21.

11: Ez 37, 10.

18: Ps 2, 1, 5.

12, 1: Gn 37, 9.

3: Dn 7, 7.

4: Dn 8, 10.

5: Ps 2, 9; Is 66, 7.

7: Dn 10, 13.

†

11, 7: The wild beast . . . from the abyss: the Roman emperor Nero, who symbolizes the forces of evil, or the antichrist (13, 1, 8; 17, 8); cf Introduction; Dn 7, 2-8, 11, 19-22.

11, 8: "Sodom" or "Egypt": symbols of immorality and oppression of God's people; cf Ex 1, 11-14; Is 1, 10. Where also their Lord was crucified: not the geographical, but the symbolic, Jerusalem which rejects God and his witnesses—Rome, called Babylon in chapters 16—19; see note on 17, 9 and Introduction.

11, 9-12: Over the martyrdom (7) of the two witnesses, now called prophets, the ungodly rejoice for three and a half days, a symbolic period of time; see note on v 2. Afterward they go in triumph to heaven, as did Elijah (2 Kgs 2, 11).

11, 15-19: The seventh trumpet proclaims the coming of God's reign; see note on 10, 7.

12, 1f, 4-6: The woman adorned with the sun, the moon, and the stars symbolizes God's people in the Old and the New Testament; cf Gn 37, 9f. The Israel of old gave birth to the Messiah (5) and then became the new Israel, the church, which suffers persecution by the dragon (6.13-17).

12, 2: Because of Eve's sin, the woman gives birth in distress and pain (Gn 3, 16).

12, 3: Huge dragon: symbol of the forces of evil (9).

12, 5: Shepherd . . . iron rod: fulfilled in 19, 15; cf Ps 2, 9. Was caught up to God: a reference to Christ's ascension.

12, 6: God protects the persecuted church; see note on 11, 2.

12, 7: Michael: the archangel, guardian and champion of Israel; cf Dn 10, 13, 21; 12, 1; Jude 9.

12, 9: The ancient serpent who seduced Eve (Gn 3, 1-6), mother of mankind; cf 20, 2; Eph 6, 12.

known as the devil or Satan, the seducer of the whole world, was driven out; he was hurled down to earth and his minions with him.

<sup>10</sup>† Then I heard a loud voice in heaven say:

“Now have salvation and power come,
the reign of our God and the authority of his Anointed One.

For the accuser of our brothers is cast out, who night and day accused them before our God.

<sup>11</sup> They defeated him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony;

love for life did not deter them from death.

<sup>12</sup> So rejoice, you heavens, and you that dwell therein!

But woe to you, earth and sea, for the devil has come down upon you!

His fury knows no limits, for he knows his time is short.”

<sup>13</sup> When the dragon saw that he had been cast down to the earth, he pursued the woman who had given birth to the boy. <sup>14</sup>*† But the woman was given the wings of a gigantic eagle so that she could fly off to her place in the desert, where, far from the serpent, she could be taken care of for a year and for two and a half years more. <sup>15</sup>† The serpent, however, spewed a torrent of water out of his mouth to search out the woman and sweep her away. <sup>16</sup> The earth then came to the woman's rescue by opening its mouth and swallowing the flood which the dragon spewed out of his mouth. <sup>17</sup>*† Enraged at her escape, the dragon went off to make war on the rest of her offspring, on those who keep God's commandments and give witness to Jesus. He took up his position by the shore of the sea.

CHAPTER 13

The First Beast. <sup>1</sup>† Then I saw a wild beast come out of the sea with ten horns and seven heads; on its horns were ten diadems and on its heads blasphemous names. <sup>2</sup>*† The beast I saw was like a leopard, but it had paws like a bear and the mouth of a lion. The dragon gave it his own power and throne, together with great authority. <sup>3</sup>† I noticed that one of the beast's heads seemed to have been mortally wounded, but this mortal wound was healed. In wonderment, the whole world followed after the beast. <sup>4</sup>† Men worshiped the dragon for giving his authority to the beast; they also worshiped the beast and said, “Who can compare with the beast, or come forward to fight against it?”

<sup>5</sup>*† The beast was given a mouth for uttering proud boasts and blasphemies, but the authority it received was to last only forty-two months. <sup>6</sup> It began to hurl blasphemies against God, reviling him and the members of his heavenly household as well. <sup>7</sup> The beast was allowed to wage war against God's people and conquer them. It was likewise granted authority over every race and people, language and nation. <sup>8</sup> The beast will be worshiped by all those inhabitants of earth who did not have their names written at the world's beginning in the book of the living, which belongs to the Lamb who was slain.

<sup>9</sup> Let him who has ears heed these words! <sup>10</sup>* If one is destined for captivity, into captivity he goes! If one is destined to be slain by the sword, by the sword he will be slain! Such is the faithful endurance that distinguishes God's holy people.

The Second Beast. <sup>11</sup>† Then I saw another wild beast come up out of the earth; it had two horns like a ram and it spoke like a dragon. <sup>12</sup> It used the authority of the first beast to promote its interests by making the world and all its inhabitants worship the first beast, whose mortal wound had been healed. <sup>13</sup>* It performed great prodigies; it could even make fire come down from heaven

14: Gn 3, 15; Ex 19, 4.

17: 2 Thes 2, 3-12.
13, 2: Dn 7, 3-6.
5: Dn 11, 36.

10: Jer 15, 2; Mt 13, 9.

13: Dt 13, 2-4; Mt 24, 24; 2 Thes 2, 9f.

†

12, 10: The accuser: the meaning of the Hebrew word “Satan,” found in v 9; Jb 1—2; Zec 3, 1; and 1 Chr 21, 1.
12, 14: Gigantic eagle: symbol of the power and swiftness of divine help; cf Ex 19, 4; Dt 32, 11; Is 40, 13.

12, 15: The serpent is depicted as the sea monster; cf 13, 1; Is 27, 1; Ez 32, 2; Ps 74, 13.

12, 17: Though the church is protected by God's special providence (v 16), the individual Christian is to expect persecution and suffering.

13, 1-8: This wild beast, combining features of the four beasts in Dn 7, 2-28, symbolizes the Roman empire; the seven heads represent the emperors; see notes on 17, 9f.12f.

13, 2: Satan (12, 9), the prince of this world (Jn 12, 31), commissioned the beast to persecute the church (vv 5ff).

13, 3: This is perhaps a reference to the popular legend that Nero would come back to life and rule again after his death (which occurred in 68 A.D. from a self-inflicted wound in the throat); cf v 14; 17, 8. Domitian (81-96 A.D.) embodied all the cruelty and impiety of Nero; cf Introduction.

13, 4: Worshiped the dragon: allusion to emperor worship, which Domitian insisted upon and ruthlessly enforced.

13, 5f: Domitian, like Antiochus IV (Dn 7, 8.11.25), demanded that he be called by divine titles such as “our lord and god” and “Jupiter”; see note on 11, 2.

13, 11-17: The second beast is described in terms of the false prophets; cf 16, 13; 19, 20; 20, 10; they accompany the false messiahs (the first beast) foretold by Jesus (Mt 24, 24; Mk 13, 22; 2 Thes 2, 9); cf Dt 13, 2ff. Christians had either to worship the emperor and his image or to suffer martyrdom.

to earth as men looked on. <sup>14</sup> Because of the prodigies it was allowed to perform by authority of the first beast, it led astray the earth's inhabitants, telling them to make an idol in honor of the beast that had been wounded by the sword and yet lived. <sup>15</sup> The second wild beast was then permitted to give life to the beast's image, so that the image had the power of speech and of putting to death anyone who refused to worship it. <sup>16</sup> It forced all men, small and great, rich and poor, slave and free, to accept a stamped image on their right hand or their forehead. <sup>17</sup> Moreover, it did not allow a man to buy or sell anything unless he was first marked with the name of the beast or with the number that stood for its name.

<sup>18</sup>† A certain wisdom is needed here; with a little ingenuity anyone can calculate the number of the beast, for it is a number that stands for a certain man. The man's number is six hundred sixty-six.

CHAPTER 14

Companions of the Lamb. <sup>1</sup>† Then the Lamb appeared in my vision. He was standing on Mount Zion, and with him were the hundred and forty-four thousand who had his name and the name of his Father written on their foreheads. <sup>2</sup> I heard a sound from heaven which resembled the roaring of the deep, or loud peals of thunder; the sound I heard was like the melody of harpists playing on their harps. <sup>3</sup>* They were singing a new hymn before the throne, in the presence of the four living creatures and the elders. This hymn no one could learn except the hundred and forty-four thousand who had been ransomed from the world. <sup>4</sup>† These are men who have never been defiled by immorality with women. They are pure and follow the Lamb wherever he goes. They have been ransomed as the first fruit of mankind for God and the Lamb. <sup>5</sup>*† On their lips no deceit has been found; they are indeed without flaw.

The Three Angels. <sup>6</sup>† Then I saw another angel flying in midheaven, the herald of everlasting good news to the whole world, to every nation and race, language and people. <sup>7</sup> He said in a loud voice: "Honor God and give him glory, for his time has come to sit in judgment. Worship the Creator of heaven and earth, the Creator of the sea and the springs."

<sup>8</sup>*† A second angel followed and cried out:

"Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great, which made all the nations drink the poisoned wine of her lewdness!"

<sup>9</sup> A third angel followed the others and said in a loud voice: "If anyone worships the beast or its image, or accepts its mark on his forehead or hand, <sup>10</sup>† he too will drink the wine of God's wrath, poured full strength into the cup of his anger. He will be tormented in burning sulphur before the holy angels and before the Lamb, <sup>11</sup> and the smoke of their torment shall rise forever and ever. There shall be no relief day or night for those who worship the beast or its image or accept the mark of its name." <sup>12</sup>† This is what sustains the holy ones, who keep the commandments of God and their faith in Jesus.

<sup>13</sup>* I heard a voice from heaven say to me: "Write this down: Happy now are the dead who die in the Lord!" The Spirit added, "Yes, they shall find rest from their labors, for their good works accompany them."

The Harvest of the Earth. <sup>14</sup>*† Then, as I watched, a white cloud appeared, and on the cloud sat One like a Son of Man wearing a gold crown on his head and holding a sharp sickle in his hand. <sup>15</sup>* Another angel came out of the temple and in a loud voice cried out to him who sat on the cloud, "Use your sickle

14, 1: Jl 3, 5; Ob 17,	Jer 25, 15, 51,
Acts 2, 21;	8,
3: Ps 33, 3; Is 42,	13: Heb 4, 10,
10,	14: Dn 7, 13,
5: Zep 3, 13,	15: Mt 13, 36-43; Jl
8: 18, 21; Is 21, 9,	4, 13.

† 13, 18: Each of the letters of the alphabet in Hebrew as well as in Greek has a numerical value. Many possible combinations of letters will add up to the total six hundred sixty-six, and many candidates have been nominated for this infamous number. The most likely, however, is the emperor Caesar Nero (see note on v 3), whose name in Hebrew letters gives the required sum. Nero personifies the emperors who viciously persecuted the church.

14, 1: Mount Zion: Jerusalem, the traditional place where the true remnant, the Israel of faith, is to be gathered together in the messianic reign of Christ, cf 2 Kgs 19, 30f; Mt 4, 6ff; Ob 17; Jl 3, 5; Zep 3, 12-20. His name . . . foreheads: in contrast to the pagans who were marked with the name or number of the beast (13, 17); cf note on 7, 4-8.

14, 4: Pure: literally, virgins, because they never indulged in any idolatrous practices, which are considered to be adultery and fornication (2, 14f, 20ff; 17, 1-7; cf Ez 16, 1-58; ch 23).

14, 5: No deceit: because they did not deny Christ or do homage to the beast.

14, 6: Everlasting good news: that God's eternal reign is about to begin; see note on 10, 7.

14, 8: This verse anticipates the lengthy dirge over Babylon (Rome) in chapter 18.

14, 10f: The wine of God's wrath: image taken from Is 51, 17; Jer 25, 15f; 49, 12; 51, 7; Ez 23, 31-34. Eternal punishment in the fiery pool of burning sulphur is also reserved for the devil, the beast, and the false prophet (19, 20, 20, 10; 21, 8).

14, 12f: In addition to faith in Jesus John insists upon the necessity and value of good works, as in 2, 23; 20, 12f; 22, 12; see note on 1, 3.

14, 14-20: The cutting down of the harvest as well as the gathering and treading of the grapes symbolizes the doom of the ungodly which will come (19, 11-21); cf Jl 4, 12f; Is 63, 1-6.

and cut down the harvest, for now is the time to reap; the earth's harvest is fully ripe." <sup>16</sup> So the one sitting on the cloud wielded his sickle over all the earth and reaped the earth's harvest.

<sup>17</sup> Then out of the temple in heaven came another angel, who likewise held a sharp sickle. <sup>18</sup> A second angel, who was in charge of the fire at the altar of incense, cried out in a loud voice to the one who held the sharp sickle, "Use your sharp sickle and gather the grapes from the vines of the earth, for the clusters are ripe." <sup>19*</sup> So the angel wielded his sickle over the earth and gathered the grapes of the earth. He threw them into the huge wine press of God's wrath. <sup>20†</sup> The wine press was trodden outside the city, and so much blood poured out of the wine press that for two hundred miles around, it reached as high as a horse's bridle.

CHAPTER 15

The Seven Last Plagues. <sup>1†</sup> I saw in heaven another sign, great and awe-inspiring: seven angels holding the seven final plagues which would bring God's wrath to a climax.

<sup>2*</sup> I then saw something like a sea of glass mingled with fire. On the sea of glass were standing those who had won the victory over the beast and its image, and also the number that signified its name. They were holding the harps used in worshiping God, <sup>3*†</sup> and they sang the song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb:

"Mighty and wonderful are your works,

Lord God Almighty!

Righteous and true are your ways,
O King of the nations!

<sup>4*</sup> Who would dare refuse you honor, or the glory due your name, O
Lord?

Since you alone are holy,

all nations shall come and worship in your presence.

Your mighty deeds are clearly
seen."

<sup>5†</sup> After this I had another vision. The heavenly sanctuary which is the tent of witness opened up, <sup>6</sup> and out of it came the seven angels holding the seven plagues. The angels were dressed in pure white linen, each with a sash of gold about his breast. <sup>7</sup> One of the four living creatures gave to the seven angels seven golden bowls filled with the wrath of the God who lives forever and ever. <sup>8*</sup> Then the sanctuary became so filled with the smoke which arose from God's glory and might that no one could enter it until the seven plagues of the seven angels had come to an end.

CHAPTER 16

The Seven Bowls. <sup>1†</sup> I heard a mighty voice from the sanctuary say to the seven angels, "Go and pour out upon the earth the seven bowls of God's wrath!"

<sup>2†</sup> The first angel went out, and when he poured out his bowl on the earth, severe and festering boils broke out on the men who had accepted the mark of the beast or worshiped its image.

<sup>3†</sup> The second angel poured out his bowl on the sea. The sea turned to blood like that of a corpse, and every creature living in the sea died.

<sup>4*</sup> The third angel poured out his bowl on the rivers and springs. These also turned to blood. <sup>5</sup> Then I heard the angel in charge of the waters cry out:

"You are just, O Holy One
who is and who was,
in passing this sentence!

<sup>6*</sup> To those who shed the blood of saints and prophets,
you have given blood to drink;
they deserve it."

<sup>7*</sup> Then I heard the altar cry out:

"Yes, Lord God Almighty, your judgments are true and
just!"

<sup>8</sup> The fourth angel poured out his bowl on the sun. He was commissioned to burn men with fire. <sup>9</sup> Those who were scorched by the intense heat blasphemed the name of God who had power to send these plagues, but they did not repent or give him due honor.

<sup>10*†</sup> The fifth angel poured out his bowl on the throne of the beast. Its kingdom was plunged into darkness; men bit their

19: Is 63, 1-6.	8: Is 6, 4.
15, 2: 7, 9, 14; 13, 15-18.	16, 4: Ex 7, 14-24.
3: Pss 92, 5; 98, 1; 145, 17.	6: Ez 35, 6; Mt 23, 35.
4: Jer 10, 7.	7: Dn 3, 27.
	10: Ex 10, 21-23.

† 14, 20: Two hundred miles: literally, 1600 stadia. The stadion, a Greek unit of measurement, was about 607 feet in length.

15, 1-4: A vision of the victorious martyrs precedes the vision of woe in 15, 5-16, 21; cf 7, 9-12.

15, 3: The song of Moses: which Moses and the Israelites sang after their escape from the oppression of Egypt (Ex 15, 1-19). The martyrs have escaped from the oppression of the devil.

15, 5: The tent of witness: the name of the meeting tent in the Greek text of Ex 40.

16, 1-21: These seven bowls, like the seven seals (6, 1-17, 8, 1) and the seven trumpets (8, 2-9, 21; 11, 15-19), bring on a succession of disasters modeled in part on the plagues of Egypt (Ex 7-12); see note on 6, 12ff.

16, 2: Like the sixth Egyptian plague (Ex 9, 8-11).

16, 3f: Like the first Egyptian plague (Ex 7, 20f). The same woe followed the blowing of the second trumpet (8, 8f).

16, 10: The throne of the beast: symbol of the forces of evil. Darkness: like the ninth Egyptian plague (Ex 10, 21ff); cf 9, 2.

tongues in pain <sup>11*</sup> and blasphemed the God of heaven because of their suffering and their boils. But they did not turn away from their wicked deeds.

<sup>12†</sup> The sixth angel poured out his bowl on the great river Euphrates. Its water was dried up to prepare the way for the kings of the East. <sup>13</sup> I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come from the mouth of the dragon, from the mouth of the beast, and from the mouth of the false prophet; <sup>14</sup> these spirits were devils who worked prodigies. They went out to assemble all the kings of the earth for battle on the great day of God the Almighty. <sup>15*†</sup> (Be on your guard! I come like a thief. Happy the man who stays wide awake and fully clothed for fear of going naked and exposed for all to see!) <sup>16†</sup> The devils then assembled the kings in a place called in Hebrew "Armageddon."

<sup>17</sup> Finally, the seventh angel poured out his bowl upon the empty air. From the throne in the sanctuary came a loud voice which said, "It is finished!" <sup>18</sup> There followed lightning flashes and peals of thunder, then a violent earthquake. Such was its violence that there has never been one like it in all the time men have lived on the earth. <sup>19†</sup> The great city was split into three parts, and the other Gentile cities also fell. God remembered Babylon the great, giving her the cup filled with the blazing wine of his wrath. <sup>20†</sup> Every island fled and mountains disappeared. <sup>21*</sup> Giant hailstones like huge weights came crashing down on mankind from the sky, and men blasphemed God for the plague of hailstones, because this plague was so severe.

IV: PUNISHMENT OF BABYLON

CHAPTER 17

Babylon the Great. <sup>1*†</sup> Then one of the seven angels who were holding the seven bowls came to me and said: "Come, I will show you the judgment in store for the great harlot who sits by the waters of the deep. <sup>2†</sup> The kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the earth's inhabitants have grown drunk on the wine of her lewdness." <sup>3*†</sup> The angel then carried me away in spirit to a desolate place where I saw a woman seated on a scarlet beast which was covered with blasphemous names. This beast had seven heads and ten horns. <sup>4†</sup> The woman was dressed in purple and scarlet and adorned with gold and pearls and other jewels. In her hand she held a gold cup that was filled with the abominable and sordid deeds of her lewdness. <sup>5</sup> On her forehead was written a symbolic name, "Babylon the great, mother of harlots and all the world's abominations." <sup>6</sup> I saw that the woman was drunk with the blood of God's holy ones and the blood of those martyred for their faith in Jesus.

The Meaning of Beast and Harlot. When I saw her I was greatly astonished. <sup>7</sup> The angel said to me: "Why are you so taken aback? I will explain to you the symbolism of the woman and of the seven-headed and ten-horned beast carrying her. <sup>8†</sup> The beast you saw existed once but now exists no longer. It will come up from the abyss once more before going to final ruin. All the men of the earth whose names have not been written in the book of the living from the creation of the world shall be amazed when they see the beast, for it existed once and now exists no longer, and yet it will exist again. <sup>9†</sup> Here is the clue for one who possesses wisdom! The seven heads are seven hills on which the woman sits enthroned. They are also seven kings: <sup>10†</sup> five have already fallen, one lives now, and the last has not yet come; but when he does come he will remain only a short while. <sup>11†</sup> The beast which existed once but now exists no longer, even though it is an eighth king, is really one of the seven and is on its way to ruin. <sup>12*†</sup> The ten horns you saw represent ten kings who have not yet been crowned; they will possess royal authority along with the beast, but only

11: Ex 9, 8-11; Jer 5, 3;	21: Ex 9, 22-26; Jer 51, 13;
15: 3, 3; Mt 24, 43; Lk 12, 39.	3: Jer 51, 7; 12: Dn 7, 24.

†

16, 12: The kings of the East: Parthians; see notes on 6, 2 and 17, 12ff.

16, 15: Like a thief: as in 3, 3; cf Mt 24, 42ff; 1 Thes 5, 2. Happy: see note on 1, 3. Fully clothed: see note on 3, 18.

16, 16: Armageddon: "Mountain of Megiddo." Since Megiddo was the scene of many decisive battles in antiquity (Jgs 5, 19f; 2 Kgs 9, 27; 2 Chr 35, 20-24), the town became the symbol of the final disastrous rout of the forces of evil; see note on v 19.

16, 19: The great city: Rome and the empire.

16, 20f: See note on 6, 12ff. Hailstones: as in the seventh Egyptian plague (Ex 9, 23f); cf 8, 7.

17, 1-6: Babylon, a symbolic name (v 5) of Rome, is graphically described as the great harlot.

17, 2: Fornication . . . lewdness: see note on 14, 4. The pagan kings subject to Rome adopted the cult of the emperor.

17, 3: Scarlet beast: see note on 13, 1-8. Blasphemous names: divine titles assumed by the Roman emperors; see note on 13, 5f.

17, 4: Reference to the great wealth of Rome.

17, 8: Allusion to the belief that the dead Nero would return to power (v 11); see note on 13, 3.

17, 9: Seven hills: of Rome.

17, 10: There is little agreement as to the identity of the Roman emperors alluded to here. The number seven (v 9) suggests that all the emperors are meant; see note on 1, 4.

17, 11: The beast: Nero; see note on v 8.

17, 12ff: Ten kings . . . not yet . . . crowned: perhaps Parthian satraps who are to accompany the revived Nero (the beast) in his march on Rome to regain power; see note on 13, 3. In 19, 11ff the Lamb and his followers will conquer them.

for an hour. <sup>13</sup> Then they will come to agreement and bestow their power and authority on the beast. <sup>14*</sup> They will fight against the Lamb but the Lamb will conquer them, for he is the Lord of lords and the King of kings; victorious, too, will be his followers—the ones who were called: the chosen and the faithful.”

<sup>15</sup> The angel then said to me: “The waters on which you saw the harlot enthroned are large numbers of peoples and nations and tongues. <sup>16†</sup> The ten horns you saw on the beast will turn against the harlot with hatred; they will strip off her finery and leave her naked; they will devour her flesh and set her on fire. <sup>17</sup> For God has put it into their minds to carry out his plan, by making them agree to bestow their sovereignty on the beast until his will is accomplished. <sup>18</sup> The woman you saw is the great city which has sovereignty over the kings of the earth.”

CHAPTER 18

The Fall of Babylon. <sup>1†</sup> After this I saw another angel coming down from heaven. His authority was so great that all the earth was lighted up by his glory. <sup>2*</sup> He cried out in a strong voice:

“Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great!
She has become a dwelling place for demons.

She is a cage for every unclean
spirit,
a cage for every filthy and disgusting bird;

<sup>3†</sup> For she has made all the nations drink
the poisoned wine of her lewdness.
The kings of the earth committed fornication with her,
and the world’s merchants grew rich from her wealth and wantonness.”

<sup>4*</sup> Then I heard another voice from heaven say:

“Depart from her, my people, for fear of sinning with her and sharing the plagues inflicted on her!

<sup>5*</sup> For her sins have piled up as high as heaven,
and God keeps count of her crimes.

<sup>6</sup> Pay her back as she has paid others;
pay her double for her deeds!
Pour into her cup twice the amount she concocted!

<sup>7*</sup> In proportion to her boasting and sensuality,
repay her in torment and grief!
For she said to herself,
‘I sit enthroned as a queen.
No widow am I,
and never will I go into mourning!’

<sup>8</sup> Therefore her plagues will come all at once,
death and mourning and famine.
She shall be consumed by fire,
for mighty is the Lord God who condemns her.”

<sup>9</sup> The kings of the earth who committed fornication with her and wallowed in her sensuality will weep and lament over her when they see the smoke arise as she burns. <sup>10</sup> They will keep their distance for fear of the punishment inflicted on her, and will say:

“Alas, alas, great city that you are,
Babylon the mighty!
In a single hour your doom has
come!”

<sup>11†</sup> The merchants of the world will weep and mourn over her too, for there will be no more market for their imports—<sup>12</sup> their cargoes of gold and silver, precious stones and pearls; fine linen and purple garments, silk and scarlet cloth; fragrant wood of every kind, all sorts of ivory pieces and expensive wooden furniture; bronze, iron and marble; <sup>13</sup> cinnamon and amomum, perfumes, myrrh and frankincense; wine and olive oil, fine flour and grain; cattle and sheep, horses and carriages; slaves and human lives.

<sup>14*</sup> “The fruit your appetite craved has deserted you.
All your luxury and splendor are
gone;
you shall never find them again!”

<sup>15</sup> The merchants who deal in these goods, who grew rich from business with the city, will keep their distance for fear of the punishment inflicted on her.
Weeping and mourning, <sup>16*</sup> they cry
out:

“Alas, alas, the great city, dressed in fine linen
and purple and scarlet, Adorned all in gold and jewels and pearls!

14: 19, 16; Rom 6,

15; 1 Tm 6, 15.

18, 1: Jer 50, 39.

2: 14, 8; Is 21, 9;

Jer 51, 8.

4: Jer 50, 8.

5: Jer 51, 9.

7: Is 47, 8.

14: Hos 10, 5.

16: 17, 4; Ez 27, 27-

29.

† 17, 16ff: The ten pagan kings (v 12) unwittingly fulfill God’s will against the harlot Rome, the great city; cf Ez 16, 37.

18, 1—19, 4: A stirring dirge over the fall of Babylon-Rome. The perspective is prophetic—as if the fall of Rome had already taken place. The imagery here, as elsewhere in this book, is not to be taken literally. The vindictiveness of some of the language is meant to portray symbolically the inexorable demands of God’s holiness and justice.

18, 3, 24: Rome is condemned for her lewdness, symbol of idolatry (see note on 14, 4), and for persecuting the church; cf 19, 2.

18, 11: Ironically, the merchants weep not for Babylon-Rome, but for their lost markets; cf Ez 27, 36.

17 In a single hour
this great wealth has been destroyed!"

Every captain and navigator, all sailors and seafaring men, then stood at a distance <sup>18</sup> and cried out when they saw the smoke go up as the city burned to the ground: "What city could have compared with this great one!" <sup>19</sup> They poured dust on their heads and cried out, weeping and mourning:

"Alas, alas, the great city,
in which all shipowners grew rich from their profitable trade with
her!

In a single hour
her destruction has come about!"

<sup>20*</sup> Rejoice over her, you heavens, you saints, apostles and prophets! For God has exacted punishment from her on your account.

<sup>21*</sup> A powerful angel picked up a stone like a huge millstone and hurled it into the sea and said:

"Babylon the great city shall be cast down like this, with violence,
and nevermore be found!

<sup>22*</sup> No tunes of harpists and minstrels, of flutists and trumpeters,
shall ever again be heard in you!
No craftsman in any trade shall ever again be found in you!
No sound of the millstone
shall ever again be heard in you!

<sup>23</sup> No light from a burning lamp shall ever again shine out in you!
No voices of bride and groom
shall ever again be heard in you!
Because your merchants were the world's nobility,
you led all nations astray by your sorcery.

<sup>24*</sup> "In her was found the blood of prophets and saints and of all who were slain on the earth."

CHAPTER 19

<sup>1</sup> After this I heard what sounded like the loud song of a great assembly in heaven. They were singing:

"Alleluia!

Salvation, glory and might belong to our God,

<sup>2*</sup> for his judgments are true and just!

He has condemned the great harlot who corrupted the earth with her harlotry.

He has avenged the blood of his servants which was shed by her hand."

<sup>3</sup> Once more they sang "Alleluia!" And as the smoke began to rise from her forever and ever, <sup>4*</sup> the four and twenty elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshiped God seated on the throne and sang, "Amen! Alleluia!"

Song of Victory. <sup>5</sup> A voice coming from the throne cried out:

"Praise our God, all you his servants,
the small and the great, who revere him!"

<sup>6</sup> Then I heard what sounded like the shouts of a great crowd, or the roaring of the deep, or mighty peals of thunder, as they cried:

"Alleluia!
The Lord is king,
our God, the Almighty!

<sup>7*†</sup> Let us rejoice and be glad,
and give him glory!

For this is the wedding day of the Lamb;
his bride has prepared herself for the wedding.

<sup>8*†</sup> She has been given a dress to wear made of finest linen, brilliant white."

(The linen dress is the virtuous deeds of God's saints.)

<sup>9*†</sup> The angel then said to me: "Write this down: Happy are they who have been invited to the wedding feast of the Lamb." The angel continued, "These words are true; they come from God."

<sup>10†</sup> I fell at his feet to worship him, but he said to me, "No, get up! I am merely a fellow servant with you and your brothers who give witness to Jesus. Worship God alone. The prophetic spirit proves itself by witnessing to Jesus."

V: DESTRUCTION OF PAGAN NATIONS

The King of Kings. <sup>11†</sup> The heavens were opened, and as I looked on, a white

20: Jer 51, 48.
21: Jer 51, 63f.
22: Is 24, 8; Ez 26,
13.
24: Mt 23, 35-37.
19, 2: Dn 3, 27.

4: Is 34, 10.
7: Mt 22, 9; Eph 5,
27.
8: Is 61, 10.
9: Mt 22, 2; Lk 14,
16.

† 19, 7: The wedding day of the Lamb: symbol of God's reign about to begin (21, 1-22, 5); see note on 10, 7. His bride:
the church (2 Cor 11, 2; Eph 5, 22-27). Marriage is one of the biblical metaphors used to describe the covenant relationship between God and his people (Hos 2, 16-22; Is 54, 5f; 62, 5; Ez 16, 6-14). Hence, idolatry and apostasy are viewed as adultery and prostitution (Hos 2, 4-15; Ez 16, 15-63); see note on 14, 4.

19, 8: See note on 14, 12f.

19, 9: Happy: see note on 1, 3.

19, 10: The prophetic spirit . . . Jesus: As the prophets were inspired to proclaim God's word, so the Christian is called to give witness to the Word of God (v 13) made flesh;
cf 1, 2; 6, 9; 12, 17.

19, 11-16: Symbolic description of the exalted Christ (1, 13-16), who, together with the armies of heaven, overcomes the beast and its followers (17, 14).

horse appeared; its rider was called "The Faithful and True." Justice is his standard in passing judgment and in waging war.<sup>12†</sup> His eyes blazed like fire, and on his head were many diadems. Inscribed on his person was a name known to no one but himself.<sup>13*†</sup> He wore a cloak that had been dipped in blood, and his name was the Word of God.<sup>14*</sup> The armies of heaven were behind him riding white horses and dressed in fine linen, pure and white.<sup>15*†</sup> Out of his mouth came a sharp sword for striking down the nations. He will shepherd them with an iron rod; it is he who will tread out in the wine press the blazing wrath of God the Almighty.<sup>16*</sup> A name was written on the part of the cloak that covered his thigh: "King of kings and Lord of lords."

<sup>17*†</sup> Next I saw an angel standing on the sun. He cried out in a loud voice to all the birds flying in midheaven: "Come! Gather together for the great feast God has prepared for you!"<sup>18</sup> You are to eat the flesh of kings, of commanders and warriors, of horses and their riders; the flesh of all men, the free and the slave, the small and the great."<sup>19</sup> Then I saw the beast and the kings of the earth, and the armies they had mustered to do battle with the One riding the horse, and with his army.<sup>20†</sup> The beast was captured along with the false prophet who performed in its presence the prodigies that led men astray, making them accept the mark of the beast and worship its image. Both were hurled down alive into the fiery pool of burning sulphur.<sup>21</sup> The rest were slain by the sword which came out of the mouth of the One who rode the horse, and all the birds gorged themselves on the flesh of the slain.

CHAPTER 20

Thousand-Year Reign. <sup>1†</sup> Then I saw an angel come down from heaven, holding the key to the abyss and a huge chain in his hand. <sup>2*†</sup> He seized the dragon, the ancient serpent, who is the devil or Satan, and chained him up for a thousand years. <sup>3</sup> The angel hurled him into the abyss, which he closed and sealed over him. He did this so that the dragon might not lead the nations astray until the thousand years are over. After this, the dragon is to be released for a short time.

<sup>4*†</sup> Then I saw some thrones. Those who were sitting on them were empowered to pass judgment. I also saw the spirits of those who had been beheaded for their witness to Jesus and the word of God, those who had never worshiped the beast or its image nor accepted its mark on their foreheads or their hands.

They came to life again and reigned with Christ for a thousand years.<sup>5</sup> The others who were dead did not come to life till the thousand years were over. This is the first resurrection; <sup>6†</sup> happy and holy are they who share in the first resurrection! The second death will have no claim on them; they shall serve God and Christ as priests, and shall reign with him for a thousand years.

<sup>7†</sup> When the thousand years are over Satan will be released from his prison. <sup>8*†</sup> He will go out to seduce the nations in all four corners of the earth, and muster for war the troops of Gog and Magog, numerous as the sands of the sea. <sup>9*†</sup> They invaded the whole country and surrounded the beloved city where God's people were encamped; but fire came down from heaven and devoured them. <sup>10</sup> The devil who led them astray was hurled into the pool of burning sulphur, where the beast and the false prophet had also been thrown. There they will be tortured day and night, forever and ever.

The Last Judgment. <sup>11*</sup> Next I saw a large white throne and the One who sat on it. The earth and the sky fled from his presence until they could no longer

13: Is 63, 1.	20, 2: Gn 3, 1.
14: Jn 1, 1.	4: Mt 19, 28.
15: Ps 2, 9.	8: Ez 38, 2, 9; 39, 2.
16: 17, 14; Is 63, 3;	9: Ez 38, 22.
1 Tm 6, 15.	11: Rom 2, 6.
17: Ez 39, 17.

†

19, 12: A name . . . no one but himself: in Semitic thought, the name conveyed the reality of the person; cf Mt 11, 27; Lk 10, 22.

19, 13: Had been dipped in: other ancient MSS read "had been sprinkled with"; cf v 15. The Word of God: Christ is the revelation of the Father (Jn 1, 1, 14; 1 Jn 2, 14).

19, 15: The treading of the wine press is a prophetic symbol used to describe the destruction of God's enemies (Is 63, 1-6; Jl 4, 13).

19, 17f. 21: Gruesome imagery borrowed from Ez 39, 4, 17-20.

19, 20: Beast . . . false prophet: see notes on chapter 13. The fiery pool . . . sulphur: symbol of hell (14, 10; 20, 10, 14f), different from the abyss; see note on 9, 1.

20, 1-6: Like the other numerical values in this book, the thousand years are not to be taken literally; they symbolize the long period of time between the chaining up of Satan (a symbol for Christ's resurrection-victory over death and the forces of evil) and the end of the world. During this time God's people share in the glorious reign of God which is present to them in virtue of their baptism-victory over death and sin (Rom 6, 1-8; Jn 5, 24f; 16, 33; 1 Jn 3, 14; Eph 2, 1).

20, 1: Abyss: see note on 9, 1.

20, 2: Dragon . . . serpent . . . Satan: see notes on 12, 3, 9f, 15.

20, 4: Beast . . . mark: see chapter 13 and its notes.

20, 6: Happy: see note on 1, 3. Second death: see note on 2, 11. Priests: as in 1, 6; 5, 10; 22, 3; cf 1 Pt 2, 9.

20, 7-10: A description of the symbolic battle to take place when Satan is released at the end of time, when the thousand years are over; see note on vv 1-6.

20, 8: Gog and Magog: symbols of all pagan nations; the names are taken from Ez 38, 1-39, 20.

20, 9: The whole country: Palestine. The beloved city: Jerusalem; see note on 14, 1.

be seen. <sup>12†</sup> I saw the dead, the great and the lowly, standing before the throne. Lastly, among the scrolls, the book of the living was opened. The dead were judged according to their conduct as recorded on the scrolls. <sup>13†</sup> The sea gave up its dead; then death and the nether world gave up their dead. Each person was judged according to his conduct. <sup>14†</sup> Then death and the nether world were hurled into the pool of fire, which is the second death; <sup>15</sup> anyone whose name was not found inscribed in the book of the living was hurled into this pool of fire.

VI: NEW CREATION

CHAPTER 21

New Heavens and New Earth.

<sup>1†</sup> Then I saw new heavens and a new earth. The former heavens and the former earth had passed away, and the sea was no longer. <sup>2†</sup> I also saw a new Jerusalem, the holy city, coming down out of heaven from God, beautiful as a bride prepared to meet her husband. <sup>3††</sup> I heard a loud voice from the throne cry out: "This is God's dwelling among men. He shall dwell with them and they shall be his people and he shall be their God who is always with them. <sup>4*</sup> He shall wipe every tear from their eyes, and there shall be no more death or mourning, crying out or pain, for the former world has passed away."

<sup>5†</sup> The One who sat on the throne said to me, "See, I make all things new!" Then he said, "Write these matters down, for the words are trustworthy and true!" <sup>6††</sup> He went on to say: "These words are already fulfilled! I am the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End. To anyone who thirsts I will give to drink without cost from the spring of life-giving water. <sup>7††</sup> He who wins the victory shall inherit these gifts; I will be his God and he shall be my son. <sup>8†</sup> As for the cowards and traitors to the faith, the depraved and murderers, the fornicators and sorcerers, the idol-worshippers and deceivers of every sort—their lot is the fiery pool of burning sulphur, the second death!"

The New Jerusalem. <sup>9†</sup> One of the seven angels who held the seven bowls filled with the seven last plagues came and said to me, "Come, I will show you the woman who is the bride of the Lamb." <sup>10*</sup> He carried me away in spirit to the top of a very high mountain and showed me the holy city Jerusalem coming down out of heaven from God. <sup>11*</sup> It gleamed with the splendor of God. The city had the radiance of a precious jewel that sparkled like a diamond. <sup>12</sup> Its wall, massive and high, had twelve gates at which twelve angels were stationed.

Twelve names were written on the gates, the names of the twelve tribes of Israel. <sup>13*</sup> There were three gates facing east, three north, three south, and three west. <sup>14††</sup> The wall of the city had twelve courses of stones as its foundation, on which were written the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

<sup>15†</sup> The one who spoke to me held a rod of gold for measuring the city, its gates, and its wall. <sup>16</sup> The city is perfectly square, its length and its width being the same. He measured the city with the rod and found it twelve thousand furlongs in length, in width, and in height. <sup>17</sup> Its wall measured a hundred and forty-four cubits in height by the unit of measurement the angel used. <sup>18††</sup> The wall was constructed of jasper; the city was of pure gold, crystal-clear. <sup>19</sup> The foundation of the city wall was ornate with precious stones of every sort: the first course of stones was jasper, the second sapphire, the third chalcidony, the fourth emerald, <sup>20</sup> the fifth sardonyx, the sixth carnelian, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoptase, the eleventh hya-

- |                           |                      |
|---------------------------|----------------------|
| 21, 1: Is 65, 17; 66, 22; | 6: 22, 17; Is 55, 1. |
| 2 Pt 3, 13.               | 7: 2 Sm 7, 14.       |
| 3: Ez 37, 27.             | 10: Heb 11, 10.      |
| 4: 7, 17; Is 25, 8;       | 11: Is 60, 1f.       |
| 35, 10.                   | 13: Ez 48, 31-35.    |
| 5: Is 43, 19; 2 Cor       | 14: Eph 2, 20.       |
| 5, 17.                    | 18: Is 54, 11f.      |

†

20, 12: The book of the living: see note on 3, 4f. Judged . . . scrolls: see note on 14, 12f.

20, 13: The nether world: see note on 1, 18.

20, 14: Second death: see note on 2, 11.

21, 1—22, 5: A description of God's eternal kingdom in heaven under the symbols of new heavens and a new earth (Is 65, 17-25; 66, 22).

21, 2: New Jerusalem . . . bride: symbol of the church (Gal 4, 26); see note on 19, 7.

21, 3f: Language taken from Ez 37, 27; Is 8, 8; 25, 8, 35, 10; cf 7, 17.

21, 5: The One . . . on the throne: God himself; cf 4, 1-11.

21, 6: These words . . . fulfilled: God's reign has already begun; see note on 20, 1-6. Alpha and . . . Omega: see note on 1, 8. Life-giving water: see note on 7, 17.

21, 7: The victory: over the forces of evil; see the conclusions of the seven letters (2, 7, 11, 17, 26; 3, 5, 12, 21). He shall be my son: the victorious Christian enjoys divine sonship by adoption (Gal 4, 4-7; Rom 8, 14-17); see note on 2, 26f.

21, 8: Cowards: their conviction is so weak that they deny Christ in time of trial and become traitors. Second death: see note on 2, 11.

21, 9—22, 5: Symbolic description of the new Jerusalem, the church. Most of the images are borrowed from Ez 40—48.

21, 9: The woman . . . bride of the Lamb: the church (v 2), the new Jerusalem (v 10).

21, 14: Courses of stones . . . apostles: cf Eph 2, 19f.

21, 15f: The city is shaped like a gigantic cube, a symbol of perfection (cf 1 Kgs 6, 19f). The measurements of the city and its wall are multiples of the symbolic number twelve; see note on 7, 4-8. Twelve thousand furlongs: literally, 12,000 stadia about 1500 miles; see note on 14, 20. The cubit was about 18 inches.

21, 18-21: The gold and precious gems symbolize the beauty and excellence of the church: cf Ex 28, 15-21; Is 54, 11f; Tb 13, 16f.

cinth, and the twelfth amethyst. <sup>21</sup> The twelve gates were twelve pearls, each made of a single pearl; and the streets of the city were of pure gold, transparent as glass.

<sup>22</sup>† I saw no temple in the city. The Lord, God the Almighty, is its temple—he and the Lamb. <sup>23</sup>*† The city had no need of sun or moon, for the glory of God gave it light, and its lamp was the Lamb. <sup>24</sup>*† The nations shall walk by its light; to it the kings of the earth shall bring their treasures. <sup>25</sup>* During the day its gates shall never be shut, and there shall be no night. <sup>26</sup> The treasures and wealth of the nations shall be brought there, <sup>27</sup>* but nothing profane shall enter it, nor anyone who is a liar or has done a detestable act. Only those shall enter whose names are inscribed in the book of the living kept by the Lamb.

CHAPTER 22

<sup>1</sup>*† The angel then showed me the river of life-giving water, clear as crystal, which issued from the throne of God and of the Lamb <sup>2</sup>† and flowed down the middle of the streets. On either side of the river grew the trees of life which produce fruit twelve times a year, once each month; their leaves serve as medicine for the nations. <sup>3</sup> Nothing deserving a curse shall be found there. The throne of God and of the Lamb shall be there, and his servants shall serve him faithfully. <sup>4</sup>*† They shall see him face to face and bear his name on their foreheads. <sup>5</sup>* The night shall be no more. They will need no light from lamps or the sun, for the Lord God shall give them light, and they shall reign forever.

VII: EPILOGUE

<sup>6</sup> The angel said to me: "These words are trustworthy and true; the Lord, the God of prophetic spirits, has sent his angel to show his servants what must happen very soon."

<sup>7</sup>† "Remember, I am coming soon! Happy the man who heeds the prophetic message of this book!"

<sup>8</sup> It is I, John, who heard and saw all these things, and when I heard and saw them I fell down to worship at the feet of the angel who showed them to me. <sup>9</sup> But he said to me: "No, get up! I am merely a fellow servant with you and your brothers the prophets and those who heed the message of this book. Worship God alone!"

<sup>10</sup>*† Then someone said to me: "Do not seal up the prophetic words of this book, for the appointed time is near! <sup>11</sup> Let the wicked continue in their wicked ways, the depraved in their depravity! The virtuos must live on in their virtue and the holy ones in their holiness!

<sup>12</sup>* "Remember, I am coming soon! I bring with me the reward that will be given to each man as his conduct deserves. <sup>13</sup>*† I am the Alpha and the Omega, the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End! <sup>14</sup>† Happy are they who wash their robes so as to have free access to the tree of life and enter the city through its gates! <sup>15</sup> Outside are the dogs and sorcerers, the fornicators and murderers, the idol-worshippers and all who love falsehood.

<sup>16</sup>† "It is I, Jesus, who have sent my angel to give you this testimony about the churches. I am the Root and Offspring of David, the Morning Star shining bright."

<sup>17</sup>*† The Spirit and the Bride say, "Come!" Let him who hears answer, "Come!" Let him who is thirsty come forward; let all who desire it accept the gift of life-giving water.

<sup>18</sup>* I myself give witness to all who hear the prophetic words of this book. If anyone adds to these words, God will visit him with all the plagues described herein! <sup>19</sup> If anyone takes from the words of this prophetic book, God will take away his share in the tree of life and the holy city described here!

<sup>20</sup>† The One who gives this testimony says, "Yes, I am coming soon!" Amen! Come, Lord Jesus!

<sup>21</sup> The grace of the Lord Jesus be with you all. Amen!

23: Is 60, 19f; Jn 2,	Jn 3, 2.
19-21; 2 Cor 3,	5: Is 60, 20.
18.	10: 10, 4.
24: Is 60, 3.	12: Is 40, 10; 62, 13.
25: Is 60, 11.	13: 1, 8; Is 41, 4; 44,
27: Is 35, 8; 52, 1;	6.
2 Pt 3, 13.	17: Is 55, 1.
22, 1: Ez 47, 1-12.	18: Dt 4, 2.
4: 1 Cor 13, 12; 1

† 21, 22: Christ is present throughout the church; hence, no temple is needed as an earthly dwelling for God; cf Mt 18, 20; 28, 20; Jn 4, 21.

21, 23: Lamp . . . Lamb: cf Jn 8, 12.

21, 24-27: All men of good will are welcome in the church; cf Is 60, 1.3.5.11. The book of the living: see note on 3, 4f.

22, 1.17: Life-giving water: see note on 7, 17.

22, 2: The tree of life; cf v 14; see note on 2, 7. Fruit

. . . medicine: cf Ez 47, 12.

22, 4: See him face to face: cf Mt 5, 8; 1 Cor 13, 12; 1

Jn 3, 2.

22, 7.12.20: I am coming soon: Christ is the speaker; see note on 1, 3.

22, 7.14: Happy: see note on 1, 3.

22, 10: The appointed time: see note on 1, 3.

22, 13: Christ applies to himself the words used by God in 1, 8.

22, 14: The city: heavenly Jerusalem; see note on 21, 2.

22, 16: The Root . . . of David: see note on 5, 5. Morning

Star: see note on 2, 28ff.

22, 17: Bride: the church; see note on 21, 2.

22, 20: Come, Lord Jesus: a liturgical refrain, similar to the Aramaic expression Marana tha, "Our Lord, come!" in 1 Cor 16, 22. It was a prayer for the coming of Christ in glory at the parousia; see note on 1, 3.

THE ENGLISH VERSIONS OF THE BIBLE

BY JOHN BERCHMANS DOCKERY, O.F.M.

Bibliography—The choice is very large. Only a selection of works which give a comprehensive treatment of the subject is offered here. The two classic works on the subject of English versions are: The Cambridge History of the Bible: the West from the Reformation to the present day, ed. S. L. Greenslade, Cambridge, 1963; H. Pope: English Versions of the Bible, revised and amplified by S. Bullough, St. Louis, Mo., 1952.

Other General Works: F. F. Bruce, The English Bible: a history of translations, London, 1961. A short, clear, up-to-date account of the history and development of the Bible in England; T. H. Darlow and H. F. Moule, Historical Catalogue of Printed Editions of Holy Scripture, London, 1903-11; vol. 1 English Editions; J. R. Dore, Old Bibles: an Account of the Early versions of the English Bible, 1882;<sup>2</sup> F. Kenyon, Our Bible and the Ancient Manuscripts, 1958<sup>3</sup>, chs. X—XII; J. G. MacGregor, The Bible in the Making, 1961; W. F. Moulton, The History of the English Bible, last complete ed., 1911—abridged ed., 1937; E. H. Robertson, The New Translations of the Bible, 1959; H. W. Robinson (ed.), The Bible in its Ancient and English Versions, Oxford, 1940; Reprinted with appendix Oxford, 1954; L. A. Weigle, The English New Testament from Tyndale to the RSV, Nashville, 1949; London, 1950; B. F. Westcott: A General View of the History of the English Bible, 1905, 3rd revision by W. A. Wright.

Earliest English Bible—Some paraphrases and translations into the vernacular were made in England of at least some parts of the Bible about the end of the seventh century and continued by Bede and others. In those days the standard of literacy was low, books, before printing was invented, very scarce, and educated people were able to read Latin. In the ninth century King Alfred translated or caused to be translated several books of the Bible, as did Aldhelm and Aelfric. But the Bible in general use was the Latin Vulgate. "In no part of the western world was this version studied more diligently and copied more lovingly and faithfully than in Great Britain and Ireland," F. F. Bruce, The English Bible, 1. Possibly the finest MS of this Bible, the Codex Amiatinus was made in England at Jarrow or Wearmouth. One early form of translation was the interlinear gloss—i.e., a translation between the lines of a Latin MS. Thus the Lindisfarne Gospels, a magnificent MS in Latin, has an interlinear translation in the Northumbrian dialect of the tenth century. The Norman Conquest radically modified and slowed down the development of English as a national language and in consequence translations into the vernacular continued to be sporadic and partial until the fourteenth century, when English began to emerge as a national language, a blend of Norman French and the various Anglo-Saxon dialects. Some objected to the vernacular Scriptures and complained that "the jewel of the clergy has become the toy of the laity." Nevertheless the demand, inevitably, grew as English came to be more widely spoken by the educated classes. Hitherto they had been satisfied with either Latin or Norman-French Bibles. St. Thomas More, Cranmer and even Foxe the martyrologist affirm the existence of English versions, at least of large portions of the Bible before Wycliffe's time and MSS have survived of English translations of the Gospels (11th century) Mark, Luke, St. Paul's Epistles (14th century), Apocalypse (11th century).

John Wycliffe—However, it is now generally accepted that the first complete English version of the Bible was made toward the end of the fourteenth century by Wycliffe and his followers. Wycliffe was perhaps the most eminent theologian of his time at Oxford and a great popular preacher who fiercely attacked the abuses of the age. Unfortunately in doing so he expressed unorthodox views concerning the sacraments of Penance and the Eucharist, the use of relics and against the celibacy of the clergy. He strongly advocated a translation of the Scriptures into English so that the poor people could read God's Word for themselves. Such a version would also make it easier for him to propagate his teachings. Wycliffe and his companions made a translation of the NT in 1380, followed by one of the OT two years later, both of course from the Latin Vulgate and the latter including the deuterocanonical books. It is uncertain what part Wycliffe took in the translation. He may have translated the NT but most of the OT was the work of Nicholas of Hereford, one of his ardent supporters. Nicholas was vice-Chancellor of the University of Oxford but later retired to the Carthusian monastery at Coventry where he died. Hereford's work on the OT is scholarly and literal; that of his collaborators more free and colloquial. Many familiar phrases from the Wycliffite Bible are found in most later English versions, e.g., "strait is the gate and narrow the way"; "the beame and the mote." In 1384, after Wycliffe's death, John Purvey, one of his followers revised the translation. In the general prologue Purvey expressed his indebtedness to Nicholas of Lyra, the Franciscan scholar and expert in Hebrew and rabbinical studies who represented the culmination of a long tradition in these fields of knowledge.

Wycliffe's teachings were condemned repeatedly in England during the latter part of the fourteenth century and at the Council of Oxford, 1408 translations of the Scriptures into the vernacular were forbidden unless and until they were fully approved by Church authority. The reason for this was the use made of the Wycliffite Bible in spreading the doctrines of Lollardy. In fact there was nothing unorthodox in the translation itself though, in the prologue, novel views on the Eucharist were expressed, incompatible with the faith. Finally in 1415 at the Council of Florence all Wycliffe's works were condemned. The actual Bibles, however, continued in use, shorn of their heretical prologue, and were in the possession of both religious houses and those of the nobility. Many of these Bibles may now be seen in the British Museum—mostly copies of the second Wycliffite version. The suggestion that these Bibles are really Catholic translations from the time before Wycliffe has now been abandoned. Once separated from the prologue there was no reason why they should not be used by Catholics and they came to be tacitly accepted. It should be noted that the Council of Oxford did not condemn vernacular translations. As Sir Thomas More said: "It neither forbiddeth the translations to be read that were already well done of old before Wycliffe's days, nor damneth his because it was new but because it was naught; nor prohibiteth new to be made but provideth that they shall not be read if they be made amiss till they be by good examination amended." A Dialogue against Heresies.

First Printed Editions—The year 1525 saw the publication of the NT in Tyndale's translation and in 1530 there appeared his translation of the Pentateuch from the Hebrew. This was soon followed by Jonah. Unfortunately, like Wycliffe, Tyndale made his translation a vehicle for bitter attacks on the Church.

Tyndale was put to death in 1536 but left his translation of the OT in manuscript. The English ecclesiastical authorities condemned his Bible because it was considered to be part of the Lutheran reform. In their view much of the wording of the text and the prefaces emphasized basic principles of the reformers, e.g., justification by faith alone. The real reason for the condemnation seems rather to have been himself than his Bible, for his leanings toward Lutheranism were well known. It was on account of these opinions that he was compelled to carry out his work on the continent. His translation was a great improvement on that of Wycliffe, especially in literary merit, e.g., his translation of 1 Corinthians 13 has persevered through many versions. As regards orthodox Catholic teaching his translation gave some grounds for condemnation—his NT clearly reflects the influence of Luther's 1522 NT. The authorities objected to his rejection of "priest" for "elder," "church" for "congregation" and his notes were offensive to the Church. In 1543 Parliament banned it as a "crafty, false and untrue translation"; yet it is estimated that 80% of the words in the RV stand as in Tyndale's NT, and his Pentateuch formed the basis of most subsequent English versions. Cuthbert Tunstall, Bishop of London, had never encouraged Tyndale's efforts and, being especially perturbed by the circulation of this Bible, had it condemned and burned.

In the NT Tyndale used the Greek text of Erasmus and compared it with the Vulgate. In the OT he translated from the Hebrew, also comparing it with the Vulgate and Luther's German version. Tyndale's later corrections departed more from the Vulgate and from Wycliffe and his 1534 edition of the NT formed the basis for the AV, RV, and RSV. When Cranmer became Archbishop of Canterbury in 1533 the making of a new translation was committed to Miles Coverdale (1488-1569). He had been an Augustinian friar who left his Order under the influence of the Reformation, repudiated Catholicism and became the first Protestant Bishop of Exeter. In 1535 his English Bible was published. He did not claim Tyndale's knowledge of ancient languages but he made use of Tyndale's translation, together with Latin and German versions, as the title-page says, "translated from Douche and Latin." He followed Luther's example of putting the deuterocanonical books (he called them Hagiographa but later they were named Apocrypha by non-Catholics), at the end of the OT. Later English versions followed this example or omitted them. Coverdale's Bible was issued without royal authority but apparently there were no obstacles to its circulation. The second edition in 1537 received royal license, "set forth with the Kynges most gracious licence"; yet in 1546 King Henry forbade anyone to have a copy of either Tyndale's or Coverdale's NT. Because Coverdale's translation was not made from the original languages, it did not satisfy scholars. It may have been tactful of Coverdale not to mention Tyndale's Bible, but his NT is mainly Tyndale. It was essentially a "Protestant" version, e.g., "congregation" for "church," etc., but Coverdale was not a controversialist as Tyndale was. He was the first to introduce chapter summaries. One part of his Bible, the Psalter, has remained in the Prayer Book, as his English style has lent itself to singing.

In 1537 another English version appeared, known as the Matthew Bible. It was thought to be the work of a Thomas Matthew but now it is generally considered to be a composite translation edited by John Rogers (1500-55), a friend of Tyndale who became a Protestant under his influence. Some think that "Matthew" stands for Tyndale's own name, but in any case the pseudonym was probably used to protect the translator from the fate that overtook Tyndale. In fact Rogers became one of the first of the Marian martyrs. His work was a revision mainly of Tyndale with emendations from Coverdale. The king gave it royal license but did not authorize it for use in public worship. Numerous editions appeared; the last in 1551. This version welded together the best in Tyndale and Coverdale; his dependence on Tyndale is clear from his copious and offensive notes—it was the controversial nature of these that spoiled his work, though the Matthew Bible was an important influence on later versions.

The Great Bible, so called on account of its size (11" x 16½"), was an attempt to supersede the two existing Bibles, Coverdale and Matthew, both considered unsatisfactory for one reason or another. Thomas Cromwell, deciding that these two Bibles stood in need of revision, assigned the work to Coverdale. It was now generally accepted by the reformers that the English Bible should be translated from the original languages. For this reason Coverdale worked on the Matthew Bible rather than on his own; but he was influenced by Tyndale's translation, especially in his retention of his ecclesiastical vocabulary. He used the last edition of Tyndale's NT of 1534-35, corrected by Sebastian Munster's Latin version of the Hebrew OT, the Latin Bible of Erasmus and the Complutensian Polyglot.

The Great Bible, often known as Cromwell's Bible first appeared in 1539 and though not considered heretical by Catholics, was defective in many places. It was the first English Bible to be authorized for public use in churches. In 1542 Convocation made an unsuccessful attempt to have it corrected by the Vulgate but a second edition had appeared in 1540, for which Cranmer himself had written the preface (hence often known as Cranmer's Bible), which became the standard text. There were seven editions of it in the next two years and many more before the last edition of 1569. As the publicly used Bible it remained unchallenged until the appearance of the Bishop's Bible in 1568. During Mary's reign no definite steps were taken to suppress it, though many English Bibles were burned. Neither Parliament nor royal proclamation denounced the Great Bible and when Elizabeth came to the throne, it was still in general use throughout the country.

Richard Taverner (1505-77) was a lawyer and a Greek scholar though he knew no Hebrew; he was a layman, the only one to produce an entire Bible, but licensed to preach by Edward VI. He revised the Matthew Bible and from the standpoint of scholarship, the result was a great improvement, particularly in his accurate rendering of the Greek article. He aimed at compression and vividness often substituting a Saxon word for a Latin word (e.g., "spokesman" for "advocate") and did not hesitate to coin words. He also introduced many strange spellings, e.g., "peax" for "peace," "hable" for "able." Owing to his lack of Hebrew, his standard of accuracy in the OT was not as high as in the NT; he merely polished up the text of Matthew's OT. His influence on later versions was slight but some of his words and expressions have survived, e.g., his use of "parable" for "similitude." The first edition of 1539 is the most reliable as later editions contain many alterations by Bishop Becke. Taverner's own marginal notes were not controversial and the Bible might have had a better reception had it not appeared so short a time before the Great Bible which entirely eclipsed it. The last edition was in 1552. It is of interest to note that a certain A. Marler was granted permission to sell copies of the Great Bible in 1541, unbound for 10/—and bound for 12/—a copy (in today's money about £30 and £36).

During the reign of Edward VI when all restrictions on reading the Bible were removed, thirty-five editions of the NT appeared and thirteen of the whole Bible. When the young king died and Mary Tudor succeeded, publications of the English Scriptures ceased and her reign witnessed only one edition, the NT from Geneva in 1557. It was at this time that a number of clerics left the country to join Knox and Calvin. Among these were Coverdale, Beza, and William Whittingham, sometime Fellow of All Souls, Oxford, and related by marriage to Calvin. These exiles decided to produce another English version, which became known as the Geneva Bible. Several hands took part in its completion. The NT was a revision of Tyndale's by Whittingham, more specifically Matthew's version of Tyndale, with some changes based on Beza's Latin NT of 1556. It was apparently only an interim edition for in 1560 there appeared the full Bible with a dedicatory epistle to Queen Elizabeth. The OT was a thorough revision of the Great Bible. Instead of the usual black letter type, Roman and italic types were used which rendered it much easier to read and this won it a place never achieved by previous Bibles. Its phrases find an echo in Scripture-quotations from Shakespeare to Bunyan. It remained the family Bible until the outbreak of the Civil War in 1642. For the first time in an English Bible the text was divided into verses. Its widespread popularity was due also to its quarto size. It was appointed to be read in the Churches in Scotland, though never in England. At least 140 editions of the whole Bible or NT were printed. It superseded the Great Bible and also held its own against the Bishops' Bible and even against the AV for a generation. The notes for the original 1560 edition emphasize "justification by faith alone" and make frequent attacks on Rome, thus making this first edition Protestant rather than Calvinistic. Later editions supply notes of a more Calvinistic nature; indeed this Bible played no small part in promoting English Puritanism. In spite of this, the AV was to benefit considerably from the scholarship of the Geneva translators. It formed a turning point in the history of the English Bible for it was more independent than the Great Bible which relied on Matthew, as Matthew relied on Tyndale. The Geneva Bible started afresh and a new way was opened for the later AV of 1611.

The growing popularity of the Geneva Bible made it impossible to continue reading the Great Bible in church. Apprehensive of the Calvinistic tendencies of the Geneva Bible Archbishop Matthew Parker in 1561 submitted a plan for the revision of the Great Bible. The Bishops' Bible, as it came to be called, took seven years to complete. The Great Bible was checked by the Hebrew text and the controversial notes were omitted; though it contained notes strongly Protestant in tone, these were neither anti-Catholic nor anti-Calvinist. On the whole the revision was inadequate and unsatisfactory, being little more than a safe and dignified compromise. It went through many editions until the last in 1606, but copies of the NT continued to be printed until 1619. In 1571 Convocation ordered this Bible to be used throughout the country and in 1572 there was a considerable revision of it, especially of the NT. Though not a work of high merit, it formed the official basis for the revision of 1611. It was the first text to be published in England by episcopal authority.

Catholic Bible—Meanwhile Catholics were considering a vernacular Bible and it was the professors of the English College at Douay who took up the work. Mainly from Oxford and exiled on account of their faith, even in Douay they were not left at rest; a storm on the political horizon threatened the existence of the college and caused its transfer to Rheims for fifteen years (1578-93). The chief names concerned with this translation of the Bible were: (1) William Allen (1532-94) Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford, Principal of St. Mary's Hall and Canon of York, who, refusing to conform in 1561, withdrew to Louvain. He opened the English College at Douay in 1568 and later founded a similar college in Rome. He was created Cardinal and appointed to the Sistine commission for the revision of the Septuagint and the Vulgate. (2) Gregory Martin (d. 1582), scholar of St. John's College, Oxford, poet, Hebraist, and Greek scholar. He too refused to conform to the religious changes in England and went to Douay in 1570. (3) Richard Bristow (1538-81), Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford, was a convert to Catholicism. He taught at Douay and went as its rector to Rheims. (4) William Reynolds (1544-94), another convert to the Catholic Church, from New College, Oxford, also went to Douay.

On 16 October 1578 Gregory Martin began an E. translation of the Bible in order to meet "the heretical corruptions imposed upon the English nation." He determined "to translate two chapters a day with Dr. Alanus and Mr. Bristow as revisors." In 1582 there was printed at Rheims the NT translated "faithfully into English out of the authentical Latin . . . diligently conferred with the Greek . . . especially for the discovery of the corruptions of divers late translations and for clearing the controversies in religion of these days . . ." The reason for the translation was "not of necessity . . . but upon consideration of the present time and condition of our country"; i.e., a vernacular version would not have been necessary in more peaceful times. The preface goes on to say that the Church "never wholly condemned all vulgar versions" but gave warning against indiscriminate interpretation. The Council of Oxford, called by Thomas Arundel, Archbishop of Canterbury, in 1408, had demanded diocesan approval for the publication of Bibles. The translators of the Rheims NT went on to explain that, lest any doctrinal error should creep in or the true sense of the Holy Ghost be missed, they had followed the Fathers and Jerome himself "in keeping religiously the very barbarisms of the vulgar Latin text," e.g., "supersubstantial bread" (Mt 6, 11); "similitude of the prevarication of Adam" (Rom. 5, 14). The annotations, considerable in extent, were added "to show the studious reader both the heretical corruptions and false deductions." Then follow the reasons why the Vulgate was used for the translation: its ancient character, its tradition, its accuracy and its sincerity as well as the decree of the Council of Trent. The Rheims translators set out to produce a literal translation as they clearly point out in their preface of 1582. Further light is thrown on the intentions of the translators by a book published in the same year, 1582, by Martin entitled, A Discovorie of the manifold corruptions of the Holy Scriptures by the Hereticks of our daies, especially the English Sectaries and of their foule dealing herein by partial and false translations to the advantage of their heresies in the English Bibles used and authorised since the time of Schisme. In this work Martin makes a careful study of a number of phrases in the English Bibles and comparing them with the Hebrew or Greek expressions establishes the accuracy of the recently published Catholic Bible; he also asserts that many of the inaccuracies have been due to the influence of the new religious teachings. The following year this expression of strong Catholic views was answered in equally strong language by William Fulke, Master of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, in his Defense of the Sincere and true translation of the holie Scriptures into the English tong against the manifold cavils, frivolous quarrels and imprudent slanders of Gregory Martin, one of the readers of Popish divinitie in the trayterous Seminarie of Rhemes.

The groundwork of the Rheims NT was supplied by the existing English versions from which Martin did not hesitate to borrow freely; his renderings often bear a striking resemblance to Coverdale's diglot of 1538. The translation also shows traces of a careful study of the Bishops' Bible and the Geneva Bible and through them of the earlier translators from Tyndale onward. But generally speaking, the Rheims NT follows Wycliffe, whereas Protestant translations follow Tyndale. The notes in the first edition of this Catholic NT were most probably contributed by Bristow. The preface, termed "ingenious" by its critics, gives reasons for publishing a new English translation. Many critics gratuitously suggested that the obscure style was deliberately adopted in order to prevent readers from understanding the Bible; the Catholic Church, they said, had been compelled by circumstances to produce vernacular Bibles but made it as difficult as possible to understand them! Later scholars, among them Carleton and Westcott, have praised the accuracy of the Rheims-Douay version. Among points to be specially noted is the careful treatment of the definite article arising from a study of the Greek text, as Taverner had shown. In 1589 William Fulke, continuing his controversy, published the Bishops' version and the Rheims NT in parallel columns. This secured for the Catholic NT a publicity which it would not have otherwise obtained and this publicity was indirectly responsible for the marked influence of the Rheims NT on the AV.

It was not until 1609-10 that the Catholic OT was published in two volumes. In the preface the editors declare that the work had been "completed long since but lack of funds prevented its publication before." Another reason for the delay may have been that this

OT, based on an unofficial Louvain text, might be corrected by the Sistine edition of the Vulgate published in 1590. It is again stated in the preface that the real purpose of the translation was polemical: "Now since Luther and his followers have pretended that the Catholic Roman faith and doctrine should be contrary to God's written word and that the Scriptures were not suffered in vulgar languages lest the people should see the truth and withal these new masters corruptly turning the Scriptures into diverse tongues, as might best serve their own opinions, against this false suggestion and practice, Catholic pastors have, for one especial remedy, set forth true and sincere translations in most languages of the Latin Church." Criticisms were made against the OT such as had been launched against the NT, especially its too close adherence to the Latin text. There was a partial reversal of this attitude when many of the improved translations of the Rheims NT were introduced into the AV (the Douay OT appeared too late to influence the AV), e.g., "converted" (convertantur) for "turn" (Mk 4, 12); "founded" (fundata) for "grounded" (Eph 3, 17); "centurion" (centurio) for "captain" (Acts 10, 22); "sign" (signum) for "badge, token" (Mt 26, 48); "clemency" (clementia) for "courtesy" (Acts 24, 4). Not only did the Rheims NT introduce such Latin words into the English language but it also influenced the AV in the direction of modernization, e.g., "moisture" for "moistness" (Lk 8, 6); "what man is there" for "what man is it" (Acts 19, 35); "distresses" for "anguishes" (2 Cor 12, 10). The Rheims-Douay gave a glossary ("explication") of new words and it is surprising how many have become well established, e.g., acquisition, advent, allegory, assumption, calumniate, character, evangelize, neophyte, resuscitate, victim, etc. The Psalter was thought to be the weakest part of the translation; but this was because Jerome's Gallican Psalter, made from the Septuagint, had been included in the Vulgate and not his translation from the Hebrew. In the Douay OT there were annotations of a doctrinal nature, most valuable at a time when the Catholic body in England was so short of pastors. The purpose of these notes was to interpret the text in conformity with the faith of the editors and the decrees of the Council of Trent, as well as to rebut the arguments of the reformers. The deuterocanonical books are found distributed among the other canonical books in the Catholic OT. At a time when there was almost no knowledge of the relative value of MSS of original texts, the Rheims-Douay Bible, based on the Latin, drew attention to an important fact. Since the Vulgate was made in the fourth century many readings contained in it might be more exact than those in very late and corrupt Greek mss that were used to make translations in the sixteenth century. But obviously one must bear in mind the fact that the Vulgate mss too were subject to error. No further edition of the Rheims-Douay version appeared for another hundred years.

Authorized Version (called in USA King James Version)—The official authority given to the Bishops' Bible caused the Puritans to agitate for a new translation, to which James I agreed. Almost all existing English Bibles, including the Rheims NT were used as sources with the Bishops' Bible of 1572 as the main text. The translators were to keep the "old ecclesiastical words" because it was feared that the Puritans would discard all ecclesiastical tradition. The completed work appeared in 1611 and became known later as the Authorized Version. It was, in fact, never officially authorized either by Church or State, though the king's "special command" conferred considerable authority and it became the official Bible of the Church of England until modern times. It was favorably accepted by the non-conformist Churches. Being translated from the original texts, it claimed to be more accurate than a translation from the Latin, but (as has already been seen) this did not necessarily follow. Its notes do not stress differences in theological views, and scholarly marginal notes add much to textual criticism. The Apocrypha were included as it was not until the Long Parliament of 1644 that the books of the Hebrew canon only were directed to be read in the Church of England. After the Restoration this policy was reversed but the non-conformists continued for the most part to disregard the deuterocanonical books. The AV weathered all attacks and nearly a thousand editions of all or part were published between 1611 and 1800. Alterations were found in many editions: "Thou art Christ" (Mt 16, 16) became "Thou art the Christ"; "The words of Jesus" (Mt 26, 75) became "the word of Jesus"; "For press" (Mk 2, 4) became "for the press"; "He came and worshipped" (Mk 5, 6) became "He ran and worshipped." The revisers were accused of being "damnable corrupters of God's word" for making such changes. Though the AV received no approbation from Convocation or Parliament, it obtained a preeminent place on its own merits, "the noblest monument of English prose." It was published in Scotland in 1633, in Ireland in 1714, and in the American colonies in 1752.

Later Catholic Editions—During the course of the hundred years following the publication of the only existing Catholic English

Bible, its language became increasingly strange. "In a number of places it is unintelligible and all over so grating to the ears of such as are accustomed to speak, in a manner, another language, that most people will not be at the pains to reading them." As an example of the truth of this criticism by Dr. Nary Numbers 6, 17 reads in the Rheims-Douay edition, "The ram he shal immolate for a pacifique host to the Lord, offering withal the baskette of azymes and the libametes that by custom are dew." With the authority of the Archbishop of Dublin, Dr. Nary published a modernized version of the NT in 1718. His sense of English rhythm was excellent and he had a high ideal of the translator's task, being probably ahead of his time in his understanding of it. He had another object in view, namely, to replace "Bibles that are so bulky that they cannot conveniently be carried about for public devotion; and so scarce and dear that the generality of people neither have nor can procure them for private use." In 1730 another President of the English College, Douay, Dr. Robert Witham, published a revision of the Rheims NT. In his preface, having praised the work of the original translators for producing such a true and literal translation and not a paraphrase, Witham thought that "the Rheims translators followed too scrupulously the Latin, even to the placing of words." He changed almost every verse in his revision of the NT. The censor of this edition was Dr. Richard Challoner, vice-president of the College at Douay. The same year Challoner returned to England to work on the mission and in 1738 a new revision of the NT appeared which was probably the work of Challoner, assisted by Francis Blyth, O.D.C. Both these men were converts from Protestantism and being familiar with the language of the AV did not hesitate to adopt many of its renderings. Thus, the young man who followed our Lord (Mk 14, 51), and, according to the Rheims translation was "clothed with sindon upon the bare," became "cloathed with linnen cloath over his naked body." Challoner's wide pastoral experience made him familiar with the needs of the people for whom the English Bible was required. This qualification more than made up for any lack of the profound scholarship that adorned the previous translators. Challoner's aim was to give his people a Bible they would read and understand and carry about with them; and this he did in the further revision of the NT of 1749. In this edition further alterations were made toward the AV and the expressions so familiar to modern readers of the Catholic Bible were introduced, e.g., instead of "But when I was made a man, I did away the things that belonged to a little one" Challoner wrote, "But when I became a man, I put away the things of a child" (1 Cor 13, 11). The next year, 1750, the whole Bible was published, "newly revised and corrected according to the Clementine edition of the Scriptures." It went through six editions in the lifetime of Challoner who died in his ninetyeth year in 1781. His corrections in the OT almost amounted to a new translation. There must of necessity be a certain resemblance between any two Catholic versions, both translated from the Vulgate; but, this connection between the Douay and Challoner's being allowed for, Challoner's version is nearer to the AV than it is to the Douay in phraseology and diction. In the NT the Gospels are the best, the Epistles the least satisfactory part of his work. In the necessary simplifying of the English text, there was some loss of the dignity and rhythm of the original version of 1582; but Challoner produced what has been the Bible of English Catholics for nearly two hundred years. Nevertheless differing texts are found, due to the changes by different editors. For example, Bernard MacMahon produced a new edition in 1783 which professed to be a revision of Challoner and basically it is, but there are over five hundred variations and still more in an 1816 edition, known as Dr. Troy's Bible. Dr. Cotton maintained that the changes made in subsequent editions of the Rheims-Douay Bible produced a Bible further from the AV than Challoner's Bible ever was (H. Cotton, Rheims and Doway. An attempt to shew what has been done by the Roman Catholics for the diffusion of the Holy Scriptures in English, Oxford, 1855. On this work of H. Pope, op. cit., 92-97).

Revised Version—In the course of time, the need was felt for a revision of the AV as new sources of knowledge became available. In 1856 a petition for a royal commission was put before the House of Commons, but not until 1870 did the Convocation of Canterbury decide to undertake the work. A committee was formed of members of the Church of England as well as of other non-Catholic communions (Cardinal Newman was invited but felt unable to accept). They published the NT in 1881, the whole Bible in 1885, and the Apocrypha in 1894. In the preface to the NT the debt of the AV to the Rheims NT was at last publicly recognized. Though possessing greater accuracy than the AV, the RV lacked its style and dignity. But all agree that its appearance was a milestone in the history of the English Bible and a greater landmark than early critics ever suspected. Its scholarship has never been disputed.

The revisers were "to introduce as few alterations as possible into the text of the AV consistently with faithfulness," as the preface states. The Greek text they used, based on Septuagint (B) and (S), was the work of B. F. Westcott and F. J. A. Hort, both occupying professional chairs at Cambridge. For the OT the Massoretic text was employed. Toward the end of the nineteenth century, revisers in America were at work and produced in 1901 the American Standard Version, a re-ension of the RV in which were included words and phrases that were a matter of preference for Americans, e.g., "Holy Spirit" for "Holy Ghost." In general the American revisers desired a more extensive elimination of archaic words than the English revisers wished, e.g., the American version of the Lord's Prayer reverted to the "who art in heaven" of the Rheims NT. Perhaps the major defect of both the RV and the ASV of the NT is that they are too literal and follow the Greek order of words rather than the natural English word order.

The International Council of Education appointed in 1937 a committee of scholars to revise the American Standard Version and their work was published as the Revised Standard Version of the NT in 1946 and of the OT in 1952. The revision is "based on the consonantal Hebrew text" for the OT, and for the NT the best available texts. "The major reason for the revision of the King James' version . . . is the change since 1611 in English usage." Over twelve million copies of the RSV were sold within ten years.

Other Modern Non-Catholic Versions—Only briefly can mention be made of a number of modern English Protestant texts: (1) Richard Weymouth: NT in 1902, a careful, conservative, and literary translation; (2) Twentieth Century NT (1898, revised 1904), changed the traditional order of books to the chronological order; (3) James Moffat: the whole Bible (1913-24), a one-man translation, the first for nearly four hundred years and a complete breakaway from the style of the AV. It became most popular; (4) Basic English Bible, 1949 (it uses only a thousand words), has a simple direct style; (5) New English Bible, 1961, under the direction of Dr. C. H. Dodd, aims at rendering the original into idiomatic English designed primarily for private use; (6) J. B. Phillips's version has achieved a very wide circulation, especially of its separate parts in paperbacks: Epistles (London, 1947), Gospels (1952), Acts (1955), Revelation (1958); NT in one volume (1958). His principles of translation are: use only language that is commonly spoken; expand if necessary to make the meaning clear; keep the style flowing and easy to read; (7) New American Standard Bible, 1971, updated the ASV into more acceptable English style, and recent Hebrew and Greek textual discoveries were incorporated into the text; (8) New International Version, 1978, enlisted an international team of scholars and attempted a translation acceptable to all English-speaking peoples through the use of an eclectic Greek text, the Massoretic Hebrew text, and current English style; (9) New King James Bible (NT, 1979; NT with Psalms, 1980; complete Bible, 1982) is a complete revision of the 1611 AV or King James Version and endeavors to update the archaisms of the AV while retaining its style and beauty of language.

Modern Catholic Versions—In 1811 a revision of Challoner's version, which became known as Dr. Hay's version, went through a number of editions in Ireland. In the same year Thomas Haydock, printer and schoolmaster in Manchester, suggested that his brother, the Rev. George Haydock of Ushaw College, should prepare a new translation. It was mainly Challoner and published in fortnightly parts. Other editions of Challoner appeared but when Bible Societies began to produce their cheap copies, Catholics felt they should do something similar, so the "Catholic Board" inaugurated the "Roman Catholic Bible Society." After initial difficulties about the text and notes, the NT was published in 1815 "stereotyped from the edition published by authority in 1749," i.e., Challoner's revision, though the notes were abridged and the text modernized ("said" for "saith"; "my" for "mine"). Between 1816 and 1829 the text of Challoner's third revision was published in several editions. Dr. John Lingard made a translation of the Gospels from the Greek, using the Vulgate wherever possible. In 1857 Cardinal Wiseman approached Newman about the possibility of a new translation but nothing came of it. It must suffice to say that during the next hundred years ninety different editions of the NT were published and fifty-six of the complete Bible; a figure that does not include the vast number of editions appearing in America (See H. Pope: English Versions, 719-46).

Twentieth-Century Catholic Versions—The Westminster Version is an unofficial (i.e., not commissioned by the Hierarchy) English translation from the original languages. The NT under the direction of Cuthbert Lattey, S. J., was completed in 1936; but the OT remains unfinished. The translation of both Testaments, though uneven, is good, and the version is accompanied by copious notes and commentaries. It is interesting to notice that in the OT proper names appear as in the AV and not as in the Vulgate. The Confraternity Version is a new translation from the originals. It was begun in the U.S.A. before the 1939-45 war as a translation from the Vulgate under the auspices of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine who published the NT in 1941 as a revision of the Challoner-Rheims version. The Committee then changed its policy; and its proposed new translation of the OT from the Hebrew into modern English is nearing completion, at the same time as a translation of NT from the Greek.

Knox Version—In 1939 Monsignor Ronald Knox was asked by the English Hierarchy to make a translation of the NT from the Vulgate. Knox's aim was to express the Bible "in timeless English" in a style that was "accurate, intelligible, idiomatic, readable." He pointed out that a literal translation was not always accurate. The NT, authorized by the Archbishops and Bishops of England and Wales, appeared in 1945. The preface stated that it was not intended to displace the Rheims version of the NT, "on the contrary we now have two official versions in the Church in this country." The translation was completely new, breaking away from all previous translations and became popular both in England and America. It had the overwhelming advantage of being the work of a single author who was a master of English. In 1949 his OT was published for private use only, though it bore the imprimatur of Cardinal Griffin. It represented what Knox himself claimed to be "my idea of how the OT ought to be translated." This meant that his translation was written in a freer, more personal style than was found in the NT. In this edition of the OT the book of Psalms was a translation from the Vulgate Gallican Psalter, but Knox gave in an appendix a translation into English of the new Latin psalter made in 1943 from the Hebrew by members of the Pontifical Biblical Institute. In the 1955 edition of Knox's Bible the Gallican Psalter is replaced by this new psalter.

RSV Catholic Edition—The whole story of the Bible from Wycliffe to modern times has been one of divergence and differences in English versions, with the gap between Christians growing wider and wider. In our two days a change in this long tradition is being effected and there is a movement in the direction of a common Bible. Thus the Second Vatican Council commended the making of present-day versions from the original text of the Bible for the use of the faithful, and added: "As opportunity offers, and with the approval of Church authority, such versions can be made in collaboration with our separated brothers and be available for use by all Christians" (De divina Rev., 22). In England it was thought that one practical approach to this ideal would be to edit an existing version.

The recently published RSV seemed to be the best starting point. The preliminary difficulties were surmounted and the NT was ready by 1956, but then Cardinal Griffin, who had approved the plan, died and things remained in abeyance until Archbishop Gray of St. Andrews and Edinburgh gave his imprimatur to the NT of the RSV Catholic edition in 1964.

In 1966 the whole Bible in the RSV Catholic edition was published. In it: (1) the deuterocanonical books (known to Protestants as the Apocrypha) are included, and moreover in their traditional Catholic order as in the Septuagint and the Vulgate; (2) in accordance with Canon Law, explanatory notes are supplied; (3) a small number of changes of wording has been made, where the textual evidence is evenly balanced; (4) some passages omitted in RSV have been restored. The publication of this Bible is a great step forward toward the ideal of a common Bible.

The Jerusalem Bible is a translation from the original languages following closely the critical text on which the well-known Bible de Jerusalem is based and providing an English version of the notes appended to the French translation. It thus provides for Catholics in English-speaking countries not only a version from the original languages but an annotated Bible for the first time in many years. The translation, the work of many hands, is adequate, and effectively brings out the meaning. It attempts to render the originals into good standard English, which at times can be beautiful but at others pedestrian. The whole Bible was published in 1966.

Meanwhile in the U.S.A. a promising and significant step of another kind was taken when the production of the Anchor Bible was begun. This is described by its editors as a project of international and interfaith scope: Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish scholars from many countries contribute individual volumes under the general editorship of William Foxwell Albright and David Noel Freedman. Each volume contains a new translation of the particular book concerned, together with introduction and notes; and while the work "is aimed at the general reader with no special formal training in biblical studies, yet it is written with the most exacting standards of scholarship."

LITERARY FORMS OF THE BIBLE

EUGENE A. LAVERDIERE, S.S.S.

Literature cannot be separated from the form in which it is written. A literary form is the exact type of writing which an author uses to express his ideas. The literary form of this article, for instance, is a prose essay. A poem is another kind of literary form, as is a novel, a short story, a sermon, or a listing of the members of a family. Each form has its own rules, special vocabulary, type of punctuation, and style of expression. Only in recent years have scholars tried to identify the various literary forms which the writers of the Bible used to convey their message.

They discovered that the biblical writers used literary forms that were in use by other writers of other books during the same period. This discovery helped scholars answer many questions about the historical accuracy of the biblical text.

Sometimes two different biblical passages by different authors described the same event, but there are obvious differences in what is said about the event. These differences no longer need to be explained on the basis of what actually happened. They can be explained by paying close attention to the nature of the particular literary form which the author used to discuss the event.

Biblical authors took full advantage of available literary resources in their efforts to share their message with others. They used appropriate language, drawing words and phrases from accepted usage, both religious and secular. However, they also drew on the broader forms of literary expression, writing in prose and poetry and expressing themselves through various types of narrative and with a wide range of other forms. In 1943, this expanded approach to understanding the Scriptures was formally endorsed by Pius XII as the right way to study the Bible (Divino Afflante Spiritu, Nos. 35—41).

This approach of studying the literary forms of the Bible has helped clarify questions of a historical nature. It has also opened the Bible to a much richer religious appreciation. The forms of biblical literature are literary "incarnations" of fundamental religious experience in the Israelite and Christian tradition. Because of this, they became the basic language of the heart and mind for all who continue to live in that tradition to express their own religious experience in ways that are true to that tradition. In this way, biblical prayers and hymns readily become our own prayers and hymns; biblical narratives become our story; its discourses address us; and its dialogues voice our own dialogue with God and the Lord Jesus. Vocation narratives continue to call us forth, and the parables of Jesus are ever-present challenges to all whose ears are truly open to hear.

Awareness of the literary forms of the Bible will help the reader to understand more accurately the ancient meaning of the text and will help release the power of this divine and human word in modern living. While special consideration is given in this article to the major forms found in the two Testaments, some of the minor forms which have been woven into their rich fabric will also be treated.

Prose and Poetry: As in all literature, the most general distinction in biblical literature is between prose and poetry. In the Old and New Testaments, both prose and poetry appear in a wide variety of forms. However, since biblical prose will be amply treated in later sections of this essay, the present section is devoted mainly to poetry.

Characteristics of biblical poetry include its concise and rhythmic expression, specialized diction, parallelism, balance of ideas, concrete imagery, and symbolic language. Poetry expresses its ideas at a high level of intensity. It is quite distinct from biblical prose, which is much closer to spoken language. However, since many elements of biblical poetry also appear in prose, it is sometimes difficult to distinguish the two. This is especially true for someone who thinks mostly of rhyme and meter when they think of poetry. Neither rhyme nor meter are found very often in biblical poetry. A good approach to the question of what is prose or poetry in the Bible is to think of placing the passage someplace along a line from pure prose to the very poetic.

Among all the features that make biblical poetry, parallelism and balance are the most distinctive. Biblical poems are divided into stanzas of two or more lines, each of which is usually subdivided into two or three parallel segments.

Sometimes a parallel segment repeats an idea in the previous segment, but using different words to do this (synonymous parallelism):

For I acknowledge my offense, and my sin is before me always.
(Ps 51, 5)

At other times, the parallel segment sets forth a contrast to the idea in the first segment (antithetic parallelism):

For the LORD watches over the way of the just,

but the way of the wicked vanishes.

(Ps 1, 6)

And sometimes the parallel segments add to the thought formed in the first segment (cumulative or "staircase" parallelism):

Give to the LORD, you sons of God,
give to the LORD glory and praise.

Give to the LORD the glory due his name;
adore the LORD in holy attire.

(Ps 29, 1-2)

By its very nature as poetry, biblical poetry communicates mainly by calling forth experiences and perceptions rather than by making direct statements about reality. This aspect of poetic communication is extremely important for grasping the purpose for which the biblical word was written. An image or symbolic statement which presents God as a rock or a shield, or which compares him to an eagle bearing its young across the sky, is true. However, to be seen as true, the statement must be understood to be an image. Only then will it call forth the picture of the firm ground of life and not just a rock, or the protective presence of God and not just a shield, or the soaring power of God's loving care and not just a bird. The author intended to convey these deeper truths by the use of imagery.

One of the most important aspects of biblical poetry is its relation to the poet's own understanding through faith of the nature of God. God exists at a level above his creation, and human life; but he nevertheless reveals himself through them. The biblical poet is thus challenged to tell about experiences of reality which human words can never adequately express. Straining at the limits of language, the writer turns to poetry and its power to call forth direct insight. Poetry is thus intimately related to the very nature of religious inspiration and the communication of that experience in the words of the Bible.

Fully one-third of the Old Testament is poetry. Although poetry can be found in the historical books, it is most often found in the prophetic and wisdom literature. And, of course, there are the many hymns, laments, and other poetic forms which were gathered into the book of Psalms. Not all the poetry in the Bible is of the same quality. It is generally agreed that Israel's highest poetic achievement is found in the books of Isaiah and Job. The widespread use of poetry in Israel's liturgy as well as in the parts of the Bible devoted to teaching accounts in part for the strong influence of poetry on Hebrew prose writing. The constant appearance of poetic prose in the Bible can also be explained by the intensity of the experience the author wants to present to his readers.

The poetic form appears far less frequently in the New Testament, where no single book can be described as primarily poetic. However, there are evidences in the New Testament of Christian hymns which were coming into being in the early Church. Many hymns are quoted in whole or part in several New Testament works. Along with Old Testament and Jewish hymns, these Christian hymns contributed to the poetic quality of New Testament prose passages.

Narrative and Direct Address: The Bible may tell its story by use of narrative and direct address, two important literary forms. In narrative the writer uses the third person ("he" or "she") to tell the story of Israel or the early Christian community. In direct address the writer uses the second person ("you," "your") to express his religious or ethical concern.

In the Old Testament, narrative is the form used by the writers of Israel's historical writings, as well as a number of short stories such as the books of Ruth, Jonah, and Judith. It is also present in a wide range of other works, however, including prophetic, wisdom, and apocalyptic literature. Direct address is not used as widely as narrative. It is found in some psalms, in prophetic books (especially Jeremiah), and in "didactic," or "instructive," wisdom literature.

In the New Testament, narrative is characteristic of the Gospels, Acts, and the book of Revelation; but narrative sections are also found in some of the letters. While direct address is the basic form of the letters, it also appears as a secondary form in the narrative literature (as in Luke 1, 1-4; Acts 1, 1-2; John 20, 30-31).

Narrative and direct address are not rigidly separate from each other. They often interpenetrate and complement one another. That they do so is quite normal, since the biblical story (narrative) was told with its implications for the religious and ethical life of the readers (direct address) made very clear. In the Bible, ethical teaching is rooted in God's showing of himself in history. The very nature and purpose of biblical literature made it easy for authors to move freely from narrative to direct address and back, depending on whether they were focusing on the subjects of the stories or on the readers being addressed.

In order to understand whether narrative or direct address is being used, the reader should look to see whether the subject or the people for whom the book was written appears uppermost in the writer's mind at any given point in the writing. In John 20, 24-29, for example, the writer's clear attention is on how Thomas the doubter became a believer. The writer does have an eye, however, on the readers who, unlike Thomas, must believe without having seen Jesus. In these verses, the story is in sharp focus with indirect reference to the readers. In John 20, 30-31, on the other hand, the reader is brought into sharp focus when the author comments on the purpose of the entire gospel. The readers are addressed in a comment arising from the story. These two successive units show both the difference and the close relationship between the two forms as the biblical author seeks to make his message clear.

Even though narrative and direct address in the Bible are closely associated, we must carefully distinguish between them. This is especially so when we approach a literary work from the standpoint of the readers.

Narrative makes its points with the reader primarily through a process of identification. The people in the story, their characteristics and attitudes as well as their relationships to one another, act as mirrors in which the readers can see all themselves and their own life-situations. The story is told concretely, but with an openness to other times and contexts which is characteristic of all classical literature. Thus the story is read as the reader's story. Any change which takes place in the story makes possible a similar change in the reader.

In historical narrative, the entire process is made easier by the fact that the readers belong to a new moment in the same history which is being read or heard. The story of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the story of Moses, the story of Jesus and of Peter and Paul is thus more than a historical account which is able to arouse feelings in us because we are caught up in the people and events in the story. It is also a part of our very own story. Even though the event happened a long time ago, we live in a stream of history which continues to be affected by that event. We are challenged to live daily in its light.

In all such narratives, it is the story and the people in the story which inspire us. It is not the writer. His literary presence remains hidden behind the voice of the narrator. Only when the author tends to use second-person address does he surface to speak to us directly. At such moments, the story and its people recede into the background only to emerge once more when the third-person narrative starts again.

Direct address communicates with the reader by insisting on some kind of response from him or her. It discusses issues directly. It analyzes current behavior; it argues; confronts; exhorts; condemns; and commends. By these means it calls the readers to initial or renewed conversion. It shapes their attitudes. It confirms them in their faith and demands action as the outworking of their faith.

In direct address, the writer's own person is usually at the fore. To the extent that this literary form involves identification, it is with the person and attitudes of the writer that readers are called to identify. Therefore, the writer uses the first person ("I," "me") along with the second ("you," "your"). There are moments, however, when the author steps aside and turns to narrative, using the third person ("he," "she"). A good example of this shift from direct address to narrative and back again can be found in 1 Corinthians 10, 1-13. Paul begins by addressing his readers directly, "Brothers, I want you to remember this" (v. 1a). Then, in a narrative setting, he tells about Moses and the Israelites in the Exodus. Paul does this to call forth the reader's memory of that great event (vv. 1b-5). He then returns to the use of the first and second person in verses 6-13. This is his application of the narrative to the readers.

The minor literary forms used in narrative and direct address are quite different. Biblical narratives include the many forms found in the literary traditions of antiquity. Direct address includes the various forms used in ancient oratory.

Dialogue and discourse are two of the most important forms found in biblical narrative.

Dialogues suggest the face-to-face nature of direct communication between people. They also give the author the opportunity to put into words the readers' own searching and response to challenges by the use of spoken language. This is done as the author interprets for his readership the meaning of each life of the people who appear in the story. The questions, answers, and confessional statements of Abraham, Moses, and Christian disciples thus become those of every reader who joins in their story. When God himself or Jesus participates in the dialogue, they retain the initiative; the people addressed respond. In this context of divine address and human response in the Bible, many psalms and prayers can be understood as our human response in a dialogue for which a divine address is presupposed.

According to ancient literary custom, discourses and especially farewell discourses give writers an opportunity to speak directly to current situations. In Deuteronomy, for example, the writer through Moses' voice speaks to the Israelites of the seventh and sixth centuries B.C. He emphasizes that the covenant is not something only in the remote past. It is also a present and immediate reality. In John 13-17, Jesus' statements are used to shed light on the nature of the community which centered about the apostle

John toward the end of the first century A.D. in Ephesus. In Acts 20, 17-35, the voice of Paul addresses the Lukan churches of the mid-eighties. Narrative writers could thus speak to their contemporary readers in a manner that seemed like direct address while still telling their story.

Some of the literary forms used by biblical writers are rooted more in the significance of the history and the importance of the people whose story is told than in the literary customs of the time. Thus Israel's ancient and evolving laws were included in the story of Moses the lawgiver. Thus the prophetic oracles and messages were incorporated in the story of the prophet who uttered them. Thus Jesus' proclamation of the good news of the kingdom, his pithy sayings, and his parabolic teachings were placed in the gospel accounts of what God accomplished in and through Jesus' person. Thus apostolic teaching was presented in Acts' story of the early growth and development of the Christian communities. Biblical narratives closely reflect the spoken word and the life context of the communities from which they sprang.

In the Old Testament, direct address includes (1) the traditional styles of prophetic speech in which the prophet often says his message is a word of God to Israel, and (2) Israel's teaching tradition in which tested sayings for practical living were recorded for the education of officials and the general public. Isaiah is an example of prophetic speech, and Proverbs of teaching. The writers in both forms used vocabulary and figures of speech which were long established in many parts of the ancient world. The written word reflects the original spoken word. The prophet's function was to speak God's word to the king or the people. The wise teacher taught young Israelites by word of mouth. He had to phrase his teaching so that it could easily be remembered. He used parallelism and other devices to assist his learner's memory.

In the New Testament, the direct address form of the letters uses long-accepted patterns of letter writing. For instance, there is an address which starts with the name of the writer. This is followed by naming the person or group to whom the letter is sent. This is followed by greetings from the writer. Then the body of the letter comes, followed by final greetings from the writer. The New Testament letters combined some of the characteristics of Semitic letters with others from the Greek world. Profoundly Christian in spirit, this form was deeply influenced by the tradition of preaching of the apostles and other early church leaders. So much was this so that we must speak of a new, distinctively

Christian letter form which is best described as a "Christian apostolic letter."

These letters were substitutes for a personal visit by one of the apostles and for the personally spoken word of the apostle. The letters therefore are close to the writer's spoken word. They proclaim and teach. They often contain long segments which are modeled on the oratorical methods of the day. Paul and others write in their letters in a sharp imaginary debate with people who oppose the truth of the Christian faith. Some supposed objector states his case; the writer answers the objection, and this raises another question which needs answering. The effect is similar to listening to a tight rhetorical argument. Good examples may be found in James 2, 2-4, Romans 2, 1-23, and 1 Corinthians 9 and 15, 35-36. Sometimes Paul may use methods of argumentation used by the rabbis. Good examples are found in Romans 1, 17 and Galatians 4, 21-31.

The letters were intended to be read when the people to whom they were sent gathered for the Eucharist. It is therefore understandable that they used many traditional forms of expression current in the early liturgy. For instance, there is the influence of the homily with its discussion of faith issues and its exhortation to Christian living, as in Romans 1, 16—11, 36 and 12, 1—15, 13. The letters also include many of the Christian community's prayers, creeds, hymns, liturgical greetings, and blessings.

History, the Covenant Formulary, and Myth: Most of the Old Testament is very concerned with history. This is true of the historical books and of Israel's prophetic and wisdom literature. This concern with history is closely linked to the historical nature of Israel's religious experience of God. He is ever seen as the God of Israel's Fathers, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

This section focuses primarily on historical writing in the Pentateuch, Joshua, Judges, 1 and 2 Samuel, 1 and 2 Kings, 1 and 2 Chronicles, Ezra, and Nehemiah. Since the historical nature of these works varies considerably, they provide ample grounds for observing the forms of historical writing used in ancient Israel.

Similar to the writing of history in other ancient cultures of the Near East, Israel's history was written so that the past was always seen from the point of view of the time of writing and the need at that time to help shape the future. Historical writings summed up the meaning of Israelite life in order to express the meaning of the present at a time when events seemed to have broken the line with the past. This kind of writing is very different from modern historical writing. It is a different literary form. There is also a religious value system which underlies the account of events and gives meaning to those events.

The writers of biblical history intended to inspire their readers and to help them live purposefully within their own historical tradition. Accordingly, the focus of biblical history is on the meaning of events rather than on the "objective" description of those events. Modern historical writing is also interpretive, of course, but it emphasizes precise chronology, geography, and comprehensiveness.

The writers of Israel's history believe that God is both creator and lord of history. For Israel, God shows himself in all of creation and in every facet of history, but especially in human life and in those historical events in which life is saved from death and provided with expansive development. Biblical writers frequently refer to these events as God's signs and wonders on humankind's behalf. Modern historical writing, however, is mainly secular in orientation. It does not view events with faith in the God of history as its basic understanding of the meaning of history. It presents history in purely humanistic terms. It finds historical order in the succession and linking together of human events without reference to God's creative and saving presence.

The literary form of Israel's historical writing was greatly influenced by the wording of ancient covenants. These were treaties between nations, people, and the gods, associated especially with the Hittite people of Anatolia about 1800-1500 B.C. These treaty forms outlined the past, present, and expected future relationship between a vassal kingdom and its Hittite sovereign. They provided Israel with a good model for understanding its own life and history in relation to its divine Lord.

The form of these treaties is fairly simple. Like the Hittite or other human sovereign, God introduces himself, recalls his prior history with Israel, and sets forth the law which must govern those who enter into a covenant relationship with him. He also outlines the curses which will befall the unfaithful as well as the blessings which those who are faithful will enjoy. These elements recur at many points in Israel's historical writing. In Exodus' presentation of the decalogue, for example, the text begins with God's self-introduction, "I, the LORD, am your God," and continues with a historical statement, "who brought you out of the land of Egypt, that place of slavery" (Ex 20, 2). Then the commandments or laws of the covenant (Ex 20, 3-17) follow. Much of the book of Deuter- onomy is modeled on the covenantal form. Deuteronomy provides a good example of covenantal blessings (28, 1-14) and curses (28, 15-68). The book of Joshua concludes with a covenantal renewal ceremony which sets forth the basic charter of Israelite life within the Promised Land (24, 1-28).

Given the importance of the covenantal form, it is possible to view all of Israelite historical writing as an expansion of the recitation of God's relations with his people used in the covenantal form. The religious significance of historical writing in the Bible is thus very carefully defined.

The nature of biblical history, especially when seen as an expression of the covenantal relationship between God and his people, provided scope for varying degrees of historical accuracy in matters of chronology, geography, and comprehensiveness. When the events narrated were closer to the writer's own times, personal observation and court records rendered the account far more reliable in terms of modern methods in the writing of history. This accounts for the distinctive flavor of 1 and 2 Samuel, 1 and 2 Kings, Ezra, and Nehemiah. The story of earlier periods, however, is marked by the heroic or romantic nature of epic and saga traditions. The people written about and the fundamental significance of their lives and actions are indeed historical, but the presentation emphasizes God's initiatives and purposes in forming the Israelite nation with relatively less interest in details of historical precision. Such is the case in most of the Pentateuch as well as in parts of Joshua and Judges.

The first eleven chapters of Genesis are much closer to mythical forms of writing. Myth, in this case, must not be understood to mean that the events told were fictional or untrue. A myth is a profoundly true statement which speaks to universal aspects of life and reality. It is a statement whose meaning rises above time and space. Although biblical myths were influenced by other mythical statements of the ancient world, they are used by the biblical writers to express history's relationship to God. They point to history's origins at the moment of the world's creation. They speak of the beginnings where history touches eternity, and, therefore, to moments which cannot be historically described. Myth is thus essential to biblical faith. We do the Scriptures a serious injustice if we read myth as though it were history. Such a tendency must be resisted along with the opposite tendency to read biblical history as though it were mythical. By reading the early chapters of Genesis with sensitivity to poetic symbol and imagery, we can easily avoid such temptations.

Gospel, Tradition, and Midrash: The narratives of Mark, Matthew, Luke, and John use the literary form called gospel. All four tell the story of Jesus Christ. They include the general outline of Jesus' life, but focus especially on the end of that life with Jesus' crucifixion and resurrection. Jesus' story, however, is not told for its own sake, but it is told to enable Christians to develop a self-understanding with which to face the challenges of the last third of the first century. Accordingly, the various conditions in which the early Christians lived and the situations they had to face influenced the gospel form. They affected the context, wording, and emphases of the narrative.

The Gospels were written in the historical context of the first century. Besides the contemporary situations, the tradition of preaching, teaching, and liturgy used in the growing Christian communities also influenced the gospel form. The most important source of the gospel form is thus the shape and nature of the early Christian assembly. What makes the Gospels distinctive is their origin from the traditional patterns of expression in the assembly with its gospel proclamation, teaching, eucharistic celebration, hymns, and prayers.

While all four gospel narratives have a great deal in common, they also vary considerably. Mark is the oldest gospel and is an important literary source for Matthew and Luke. It focuses chiefly on the deeds of Jesus and his urgent call to suffering discipleship. Matthew relies more heavily on formal discourses of Jesus which are appropriate for a Jewish-Christian church which has been excluded from Judaism. Writing for gentile Christians, Luke transforms Mark's minor journey theme into a major structure about which to organize his data. Viewing his work far more in the manner of a historian, Luke even wrote a second volume, Acts, which presents the missionary development of the early church. In John, Jesus speaks a long farewell discourse. More than any other, John's gospel tends to poetic prose. This characteristic is seen clearly in the opening section. It is an adaptation of an early Christian hymn used by believers in the Johannine community.

One of the characteristics of all gospel writing is reflection on the meaning of events in the light of the Scriptures. From the beginning, this kind of reflection had been the most fundamental principle in New Testament methods of arriving at theological understanding. Standing in the Jewish and biblical tradition, Jesus himself had presented his work and message in relation to the Scriptures.

To best understand the Gospels, however, one must go further and note the various ways such reflections were carried out. At times the Scriptures were cited directly and applied. A Scripture text thus illumined the meaning of later events in the life of Jesus and of the Christian community. Frequently, however, the same effect could be achieved by the simple use of well-recognized biblical language when referring to an event. The most extensive use of this procedure appears in the Jewish form called midrash. It is the retelling of a biblical story with a view to bringing out its meaning for a later generation. The Christian community developed from Jewish roots. Therefore, the early Christians and the gospel writers readily used this form of writing. However, the Christian intent was usually far more to bring out the meaning of a present event in the light of the Hebrew Scriptures than to provide a formal commentary on the ancient biblical story. The result was a kind of midrash-in-reverse.

Midrashic writing is especially prominent in Matthew's and Luke's accounts of Jesus' birth and infancy. In those accounts the meaning and implications of Jesus' life and work are set forth in highly biblical terms. Although there are frequent direct quotations from the Scriptures in these narratives, biblical language and phrases are present throughout. The infancy narratives can thus be compared to gospels in miniature in which multiple biblical references from many parts of the Old Testament form a marvelous theological tapestry. Elements in the infancy narratives which are more biblical and poetic than historical should not be considered untrue. Rather, they are meant to pierce beneath the surface of historical observation and to present the divine truth concerning the significance of Jesus for human history.

Through a better understanding of the literary forms of the Bible, today's reader can find more clearly that the Bible is truly good news for today.

BIBLICAL THEMES

CAROLYN OSIEK, R.S.C.J.
DONALD SENIOR, C.P.
CARROLL STUHLMUELLER, C.P.

The richness and scope of the Bible is far greater than any series of categories can contain. The following themes, however, are central to the Bible's reflections on God and his relationship to us. Seven themes have been selected because they are basic concepts that span the entire Bible (SALVATION, SPIRIT, COVENANT, and WORSHIP) or because they are of particular interest to the Christian reader of Scriptures (KINGDOM, CHURCH, and CHRISTOLOGY). These themes are related to each other. That fact will be noted by referring the reader to other themes at various points in the article. Numerous references to Bible passages enable the reader to trace the themes throughout the Bible itself.

SALVATION

The triumph of life over death is one of the Bible's most basic concerns. Death is seen in the biblical tradition to be the result of sin. It is part of the curse laid upon Adam as a consequence of his transgression of the command of God (Gn 2, 17; 3, 19; Rom 5, 12-14). Other actors in the drama, however, are also sometimes blamed: the devil (Wis 2, 24) or Eve (Sir 25, 23; 1 Tim 2, 14). Death is thus now ordained by God (Sir 41, 4), but it was not originally intended (Wis 1, 13-14; 2, 23).

Life was originally seen as long survival (Is 38). It quickly takes on a spiritual dimension. It is the result of keeping God's commandments (Dt 30, 15-20) and, above all, of loving him (Dt 30, 6). Life is, therefore, for all (Ez 18). In the later writings of the Old Testament, the sense of life as immortality beyond the grave begins to emerge (Wis 3, 1-5).

The experience of the Exile in Babylon and the search to return to restore the nation is symbolized by Ezekiel's vision of the dry bones restored to life by the breath of God (Ez 37). This experience caused people to think of reward and retribution based on an individual's faith and actions instead of being only the result of the sins or merits of the community or of one's ancestors (Ez 18). This faith is most strikingly expressed in the account of the martyrdom of the mother and her seven sons under the persecution of Antiochus Epiphanes. Here the reward of the martyr clearly includes a hope of bodily resurrection from the dead (2 Mc 7, 9, 11, 23, 29).

The hope of salvation as bodily resurrection is based on a strong sense of looking forward to the final Day of the Lord. It is rooted in the belief and hope that God's power and ultimate triumph will be made clear to all on the last day. (See KINGDOM.) This looking to the future for ultimate salvation is already strong in the prophetic tradition (Is 35, 4; 56, 1; 62, 1). The prophets affirm that the faithful remnant of Israel will surely be saved (Is 10, 20-21; 28, 5; Am 3, 12; 5, 15). Salvation is not limited to the people of Israel alone, however. Yahweh's saving power can extend to all the ends of the earth (Is 45, 22). (See COVENANT.)

Out of this yearning for God's future salvation comes a kind of writing that looks into the Last Days in highly symbolic language. These ideas appear in some of the later writers of the Old Testament, for example, in Ezekiel and in Daniel, and are well developed in the New Testament. In this dramatic kind of writing the account of how God will come at the Last Day to save is given to the writer in a revelation (Mk 13; Mt 24; Lk 21; Rv 1, 19; 4, 1). The future saving action of God will be accompanied by frightful cosmic signs (Mk 13, 24-25; Mt 24, 29; Lk 21, 11; 21, 25; Rv 6, 8, 12-17), but this revelation of what will occur is meant to be the consolation and encouragement of the just while they still live (Mt 10, 22; Lk 21, 28).

While 2 Maccabees suggests that bodily resurrection is part of God's act of salvation only for martyrs, or at least only for the just (2 Mc 7, 14), the New Testament seems to assume that bodily resurrection will occur both for the reward of the just in eternal life and for retribution to the wicked in eternal punishment (Mt 25, 46; Jn 11, 24). The principal focus in the New Testament, however, is still on the resurrection of the just (Jn 11, 24; Rv 20, 4).

John and the Letters of John explain salvation as eternal life in yet another way. Jesus himself is the Life (Jn 1, 4; 6, 33, 35, 51; 11, 25; 14, 19). True life is hearing and believing in him (Jn 3, 36; 5, 24), knowing the Father and Son (17, 3), and loving one another (1 Jn 3, 14).

In the Gospels, salvation is intimately connected with present bodily or mental well-being (Mk 15, 30-31; Mt 8, 25; 14, 30), yet it also is something that will come about in the future (Mk 8, 35 and parallels; Lk 13, 23; Jn 12, 47). For Paul, salvation is closely connected with being put into a right standing with God. This new standing comes not through works of the Law (Rom 3, 28) but through the saving death of Christ which reconciles us to God (Rom 5, 10, 18). We too must be dead to sin as Christ was in order to remain in that salvation (Rom 6, 3-11; Col 3, 3-5).

The prophets saw God as Savior of Israel (Is 12, 2-3; 63, 8; Jer 4, 14). The New Testament writers saw Jesus' mission in the world as that of saving his people (Mt 1, 21; Lk 2, 11; 19, 10; Jn 4, 42; Phil 3, 20; 2 Tim 1, 10; 2 Pt 1, 11). This is accomplished through his presence and deeds (Lk 7, 50; 19, 9) and through the proclamation of salvation made in his name by his ministers (Acts 4, 12; 16, 17). (See KINGDOM.)

Salvation is intended by God for all (1 Tim 2, 3-4; 4, 10) but demands a response of repentance, faith, obedience, and good deeds (2 Cor 7, 10; Acts 2, 21; Phil 2, 12; Mk 10, 17 and parallels; Mt 7, 14).

SPIRIT

The biblical theme of Spirit also deals with the penetration of God's life in the world. In the Old Testament the Hebrew word for "spirit" means a mysterious and penetrating force. It is used for what was truly strong, durable, and beyond human control. The word can be translated into English as "wind," "breath," or "spirit" (Gn 1, 2; 2 Sm 22, 16; Is 11, 4; Ez 13, 13; 27, 26). In the earliest texts the Spirit of the Lord came upon or enveloped warrior-judges (Jgs 3, 10; 6, 34; 14, 6; 19; 1 Sm 11, 6). The prophets who often spoke the word of God under the direct control of the Spirit of God were passive under this mighty force (Nm 24, 2; 1 Sm 10, 5-13). At times the Spirit settled more quietly and permanently on a person. It still gave exceptional gifts to that person: Joseph (Gn 41, 38-40), Moses with the elders (Nm 11, 17, 25), and Joshua (Nm 27, 18).

The classical prophets, those with books to their names, avoided performing external wonders, and so turned attention away from emphasizing the Spirit. A few exceptions would be Hosea 9, 7 or Isaiah 11, 1-9. During the Exile, prophets like Ezekiel and Second Isaiah reintroduced the Spirit as the powerful agent for purifying and restoring the despondent people (Ez 36, 23-28; 37, 1-14; Is 42, 1; 44, 1-4). Still later in the postexilic age, the Spirit is viewed as the principle of creation (Gn 1, 1; 2, 7; Jb 26, 13).

God's power and guidance also came through angels. At first they appear as messengers (Gn 19, 1; 28, 12; Ps 104, 4) or as members of God's heavenly court (Is 6, 2-3; 14, 13-14; 1 Kgs 22, 19-23). Called "Cherubim" or "Seraphim," statues were made of them to "protect" the ark of the covenant (Ex 37, 6-9; 1 Kgs 6, 22-28). Angels symbolized God's majesty (Ez 1).

The term "angel of the LORD" was often used to refer to God himself (Ex 3, 2; Jgs 6, 11-24). Popular devotion to the angels increased at the time of the Exile and after (Tb 12, 15-16; 15, 15-16; Jb 4, 18-19). Guardian angels are mentioned for individuals (Tb 5, 22; Ps 91, 11-12) or for nations (Dn 12, 1). They were sometimes healers (Tb 3, 17; 12, 14-15) or mediators for prayer (Zec 1, 12; Jb 5, 1).

While the doctrine of spirit and angel appeared in a vague form throughout Old Testament times, that of demons was not as clear. Witchcraft was forbidden (Lv 19, 31). At first Satan was thought to be an opponent of people, but still in God's throne room (Jb 1, 6; Zec 3, 1-5; cf. 2 Sm 24, 1 with 1 Chr 21, 1). Very late, Satan is seen also as God's enemy (Wis 2, 24). Books written in the years between the writing of the Old and New Testaments expanded the activity of spirit, angels, and demons.

In the New Testament, angels appear as messengers and agents of God to people (Lk 1, 11, 26; Mt 1, 20; 2, 13, 19; 28, 2-7; Acts 5, 19; 12, 7, 11), and as representatives of individual people to God (Mt 18, 10; Acts 12, 15). They are thought to be brilliant in appearance (Mt 28, 3; Acts 6, 15), and will accompany the Son of Man when he returns in glory (Mk 8, 38 and parallels; Mt 25, 31). In Revelation, seven spirits stand before the throne of God. They seem to represent the seven cities to whom the letters of Revelation 1-3 are addressed (Rv 1, 4; 3, 1; 4, 5), even though they are later sent out upon the whole earth (Rv 5, 6). The "angels" of the churches in the headings of the seven letters (Rv 2, 1, 8, 18; 3, 1, 7, 14) are best understood, however, as the human leaders of those communities.

Evil spirits are often spoken of as "unclean spirits" (for example, Mk 1, 23; 3, 11; 6, 7; Mt 12, 43-45; Lk 4, 33). The devil, or Satan, is their leader, just as Michael is leader of God's angels (Rv 12, 7-9). Satan tempts both Jesus (Mk 1, 13; Mt 4, 1; Lk 4, 2) and his followers (Acts 5, 3; 1 Cor 7, 5; 2 Cor 2, 11; 12, 7). The devil and his angels are subject to God, even though Jesus' disciples (Lk 10, 17-20), but not without the struggle of the cosmic battle in which they have been ultimately defeated and cast out of heaven (Jude 6; 2 Pt 2, 4; Mt 25, 41; Rv 12, 7-9). (See KINGDOM.)

God himself is Spirit (Jn 4, 24), yet the "Holy Spirit" is usually spoken of as one sent by the Father, as the principal agent in the conception of Jesus (Mt 1, 18; Lk 1, 35) and in the casting out of demons (Mt 12, 28). The Spirit is a power received by believers after the resurrection of Jesus (Jn 7, 39; Acts 1, 8; 15, 8). The Holy Spirit hovered over Jesus at his baptism (Mk 1, 10 and parallels; Jn 1, 32-33) and is the source of the divine power flowing from Jesus which was able to transform disciples into fearless apostles (Jn 1, 33; Acts 1, 5; 2, 4).

The Holy Spirit is advocate (one who pleads on behalf of a needy person) and intercessor (Jn 14, 16-17; 15, 26; 16, 7), teacher of truth (Jn 14, 26; 16, 13; 1 Jn 4, 6), gift and pledge of future glory (2 Cor 1, 22; 5, 5). The Spirit is the inspirer of prophecy (Lk 1, 41, 67; 1 Cor 14; Rv 1, 10; 17, 3; 19, 10; 21, 10), and Christian prophecy is seen as carrying Old Testament prophecy forward in a new age (Acts 2, 16-21, 33; 4, 25; 28, 25). Indeed, it is the presence of the Spirit in the Church that guarantees and gives it validity as the assembly of God's faithful. (See CHURCH.)

COVENANT

The Greek word for "covenant" can also be translated "testament," the name often given to the entire Bible as the Old and New Testament (Heb 7-9). Covenant, therefore, brings us into the heart of the Scriptures, and also into the heartrending division between Judaism and Christianity (Rom 9, 1-5).

The idea of covenant originated with treaties between nations. As such, it was used to describe events in the secular world of the ancient patriarchs (Gn 14, 13; 21, 32; 26, 28). Among the various types of treaties between nations, the one between a strong overlord and a vassal nation gradually became the model for the covenant between God and Israel at Mount Sinai. According to this type, frequently called a "Suzerainty Treaty," the overlord had shown exceptional kindness in protecting the vassal. The vassal, in turn, pledged loyalty and obedience toward the more powerful nation. For Israel, covenant was able to transform religion and law into an expression of gratitude for God's deliverance.

Six elements of the Suzerainty Treaty, especially as it evolved in Deuteronomy, occur in the biblical covenant: (1) the preamble, with the name of the Great King (Dt 5, 6); (2) benefits bestowed by the Great King upon the vassal (Dt 5, 6); (3) laws which demand exclusive loyalty (Dt 17-21); (4) depositing the text in a sanctuary with periodic rereading (Dt 31); (5) lists of witnesses (Dt 32, 1); and (6) blessings and curses (Dt 27-28).

Covenantal laws were either "apodictic" (straightforward and self-evident), like the Ten Commandments (Ex 20, 1-17; Dt 5, 6-21); or "casuistic" (arrived at by a process of argumentation and reasoning), like the majority in Exodus 21 and 22. The apodictic laws were nonnegotiable. Still they did evolve, as a comparison between Exodus 20 and Deuteronomy 5 reveals. The casuistic laws were actually famous cases, remembered more as standards to direct future decisions than as absolute laws. Development and change can be seen as well in the liturgical celebration of the covenant. A careful reading of Exodus 19 and 24, as well as Deuteronomy 25 and 31, Joshua 24, or Psalm 68, shows that the renewal of covenant in a sanctuary setting became ever more evident; and the religious meaning became ever more at the heart of the covenant.

Covenant presumes a specially chosen people, a concept appreciated especially by Deuteronomy (Dt 4, 37; 7, 6-7; 10, 15; 14, 2). This sense of being an elect people was symbolized liturgically by the holy city of Jerusalem or its sacred temple (Dt 12; 16-17). (See WORSHIP.)

The prophets further developed the notion of covenant and election by making them refer to the inner religious and moral condition of a person. Amos stressed the idea of "remnant," meaning not all Israelites by birth but only those endowed with a true spirit (Am 3, 1-2, 12; 5, 15). Hosea compared the covenant to the marriage bond (Hos 2, 16-18) while Jeremiah and Ezekiel began to foresee a new covenant written on the heart (Jer 31, 31-34; Ez 36, 26-27), an idea inspired by Deuteronomy 6, 4-9. During the Exile, Isaiah 42, 6-7 and 49, 6 foresaw a universal covenant with the Gentiles achieved through Israel as the suffering servant. This vision can be traced to such passages as Hosea 2, 21-24 and Jeremiah 31, 35-37. Although covenant seemed to separate one elect people from all the nonelect, still it evolved in such a way as to become more of an inner disposition which God breathed into the heart of all peoples, regardless of race or nationality.

Jesus continued this development. He did restrict his apostolate "only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Mt 15, 24). Nonetheless, he saw himself as the suffering servant of Isaiah 42, 49-50, and 53 (Lk 9, 21-27) and in still other ways endorsed a bond or covenant that expanded the Mosaic covenant beyond its customary interpretation (Mt 12, 1-8; 15, 1-20; Lk 19, 1-9). Jesus instructed his disciples to celebrate a new covenant in his body and blood. The Eucharist was not intended to replace the Passover sacrifice of Judaism, but to bring it to a new perfection (Mk 14, 24; Mt 26, 28; Lk 22, 20; 1 Cor 11, 25). (See WORSHIP.)

At first, the followers of Jesus worshiped at the temple as faithful Jews. They offered their Eucharistic service at home (Acts 2, 42-47). Unfortunately, many factors contributed to a rift between Jesus' disciples and their Jewish kinsfolk. The Church considered herself the true Israel, the rightful offspring of Abraham (Gal 4, 24-31; 2 Cor 3). (See CHURCH.)

Later New Testament writings reflect the ever-growing split between Christianity and Judaism. Hebrews argues that Jesus' sacrifice on the cross and his heavenly priesthood replaced the many Jewish sacrifices and the hereditary priesthood of the Levites and Aaron. The longest quotation of the Hebrew Scriptures in the New Testament (Jer 31, 31-34) concludes that "Jesus has obtained a more excellent ministry now . . . of a better covenant, founded on better promises" (Heb 8, 6). The special rights and privileges of Israel as a priestly people were now applied to all Christians (Ex 19, 5-6; 1 Pt 2, 9; Rv 5, 9-10; 21, 2-3, 9).

Covenant, then, is a political idea, which was religiously applied to Israel as God's chosen people. It was then made personal and inward as it was extended to all peoples, while still maintaining its essential mystery of God's personal, redemptive love.

WORSHIP

Biblical worship developed within "salvation history" (the history of the saving acts of God for his people). Different from all other ancient religions, Israel's story did not begin with the mighty act of first creation, but with God's compassionate response to the people's cries of oppression (Ex 3, 7). (See KINGDOM; SALVATION.) The earliest creeds of the Old or New Testament are frequently records of what God has done in the midst of human history, such as the Exodus out of Egypt or the occupation of the Promised Land, or like the public ministry of Jesus, his death, resurrection, and the sending of the Spirit (Dt 26; Jos 24; Jgs 5; Ps 68; 105; Rom 1, 1-5; Acts 2; 7; 13, 16-41). These events of themselves would have made little or no impression upon human history. Only as "salvation history," recorded in the Scriptures and celebrated in the liturgy, in other words as worship, were these actions remembered and thus able to exercise an impact eventually upon world history.

At first, during the formative age of Moses and desert wandering, Israelite worship possessed no sacred place, only a sacred object called the "ark of the covenant," a chest some 3' 9" long and 2' 3" in width and height (Ex 25, 10-22). It contained at least the two tablets of the Decalogue (Ten Commandments) (Dt 10, 1-5), perhaps the rod of Aaron, and some manna (Ex 16, 32-34; Heb 9, 4). Above the ark was a golden plate, called the "propitiatory" (or "place of meeting") (Ex 25, 10-22); and it was considered God's footstool (Ps 132, 7; 1 Chr 28, 2). The ark symbolized the Lord's continuous protection and guidance (Nm 10, 33), especially in times of war (Nm 10, 34-35; 1 Sm 4, 4-5).

David brought the ark to Jerusalem (2 Sm 6, 12-19) as a way of linking his dynasty and capital with Mosaic origins. (See KING-DOM; COVENANT.) In building a temple as a permanent abode for the ark, Solomon was responsible for a radical shift in Israel's religion. The ark no longer led the people in their journeys; rather they now journeyed in pilgrimage to the sacred place of the temple. In 587 B.C., the ark was destroyed along with the temple, city, and dynasty (Jer 3, 16-17; 7: 26), but it was thought to reappear at least symbolically at the end of time (2 Mc 2, 4-8; Rv 11, 19).

Many qualities of the ark and the temple were said to apply to Jesus, the Church, and individual Christians (Jn 2, 21; Rom 3, 25; 1 Cor 3, 10-17; 6, 19). (See CHRISTOLOGY; CHURCH.)

Israel's feastdays combined great historical moments of salvation with the cycles of the agricultural life of a farmer: the lunar cycle appeared in the Sabbath (Ex 20, 8-11) and the new moons (2 Kgs 4, 23); the solar cycle with the spring festival of Passover (Pasch) (relating the celebration of the Exodus out of Egypt and the barley harvest) and Pentecost (relating the giving of the law on Sinai and the wheat harvest), or with the fall feast of Booths (relating the ark or temple and the olive harvest). See Exodus 12 and 23, 14-17, Leviticus 23, and Deuteronomy 16. A New Year's festival (Nm 29, 1-6) and a Day of Atonement (Lv 16) probably existed very early. During the Exile, fasting took on an important religious meaning (Zec 7, 1-7). After the Exile, two new feasts became very popular: Purim (Est 9, 20-32) and Hanukkah, or Rededication of the Temple (1 Mc 4, 52-59).

The Church began to substitute Sunday for the Sabbath (Acts 20, 7; 1 Cor 16, 2; Rv 1, 10), while Passover was associated with the death and resurrection of Jesus (Lk 22, 1-20; 1 Cor 5, 7-8), Pentecost with the descent of the Holy Spirit (Acts 2), and Booths with the exaltation of the Holy Cross in the Basilica of the Holy Sepulcher at Jerusalem.

Temple worship included: the reading of the Scripture (Dt 31, 9-13, 24-29; Neh 8, 8), the psalms as adapted to many communal and individual needs, and liturgical actions such as processions (Ps 24; 68), holocausts with the gift entirely burnt in adoration (Lv 1-7), peace offerings or sacred meals such as the Passover (Ex 12; Dt 26), and the sprinkling of blood to symbolize a renewed bond of life (Ex 24, 3-8; Lv 16; 17). Another important ceremony was circumcision (Gn 17, 9-14; Lv 12, 3), which the prophets linked with purity of heart (Jer 4, 4; Dt 10, 12-22).

These ritual elements were absorbed within the Church in various ways. Baptism combined the purpose of circumcision and ceremonial washing with water with the mystery of Jesus' death and resurrection (Gal 5, 6; 1 Cor 10; Acts 2, 38-41; Rom 6, 3-4). The Eucharist united traditions about the manna and miracles in the desert with the Jewish Passover and the redemptive death and second coming of Jesus (Jn 6; Lk 22; 1 Cor 10, 16-17).

KINGDOM OF GOD

The "Kingdom of God," or Reign of God, is an important theme in the entire Scriptures, but takes on special significance in the New Testament because of the mission of Jesus.

The concept is ultimately rooted in Israel's experience of God as one upon whom the people depended for their very life and hope. (See WORSHIP.) It was Yahweh who had rescued them from slavery in Egypt and had given them their nation and their land. The rule of Yahweh directly over his people was one reason why Israel was reluctant to accept human monarchy as its form of government (cf. Jgs 8, 23). At first, the people had been content with a loose confederacy among the various clans, but the need for a more centralized government and the influence of the surrounding Canaanite cultures led Israel to establish a monarchy (cf. 1 Sm 8-9). But Israel still stoutly maintained that Yahweh alone was ruler over them; the king was merely the instrument of God's power (1 Sm 8, 22; 1 Chr 28, 5).

Israelite monarchy reached its highest point quickly. After the Hamlet-like Saul came the promising David. Under his rule, the land was united and the central government established in Jerusalem. Political consolidation went hand in hand with religious centralization. Worship at local shrines was suppressed in favor of worship at the Jerusalem Temple. (See WORSHIP.) David's ruthless misuse of his power to gain Bathsheba as his wife (2 Sm 11-12) was a preview of the flawed history that would follow. Solomon, David's brilliant son, brought further glory to Israel, but he also significantly contributed to that strange pattern of infidelity which Israel's kings would practice down to the Hasmonean dynasty only a century before Jesus.

But even if the succession of kings in Israel died out, the dream of the "kingdom of God" did not. The people still longed for the day when their true ruler, Yahweh himself, would come to claim Israel for his own. On that day, as the prophets and poets had repeatedly affirmed, justice and peace and prosperity would abound. Thus the theme of the Kingdom of God was one of the ways Israel expressed its longing for God himself. To speak of David as the ideal king and to hope for the restoration of a renewed Davidic dynasty became a way of expressing hope in future salvation. (See SALVATION.)

Although the theme of the coming of the Kingdom was only one way among many to express Israel's hope for salvation, it is the one Jesus used as the keynote of his own ministry (Mk 1, 14-15). The synoptic Gospels, in particular, organize the entire ministry of Jesus around this theme. Jesus' message about the Kingdom can be summarized under the following points:

1. The Kingdom of God Is Near. In his preaching and parables, Jesus proclaims that the Kingdom (or reign) is not merely an elusive future hope, but it is "at hand" (Mk 1, 15), "has overtaken you" (Mt 12, 28). Jesus speaks, too, of a future bringing of the Kingdom to perfection when all will be accomplished, but he also says that the effects of God's reign can be experienced now by those who are open to God's grace. The presence of the Kingdom is hidden, but the harvest is sure and the seed is already growing (Mk 4, 26-29). (See SALVATION.)

2. The God of the Kingdom Is Gracious and Merciful. Contrary to the emphases taken by some of the people of his time, Jesus does not speak of the coming of God's reign primarily in terms of judgment. The God of the Kingdom is a God of forgiveness and compassion. This is reflected in Jesus' own ministry of compassion to outcasts and sinners (Lk 15, 1-32) and in his call for reconciliation and limitless forgiveness (Mt 18, 21-35). The mercy of God's reign is also transmitted through the miracles of Jesus. His healing touch, his victory over evil in all its forms, his restoration of sight and life demonstrate that the saving God of Israel is "upon you" (Lk 11, 20). The miracle activity of Jesus shows that the ultimate goal of his Kingdom ministry is the salvation of all creation. Paul reflects this view when he speaks of God's reign being complete when the "last enemy," death itself, has been defeated (1 Cor 15, 24-28). (See SALVATION.)

3. The Presence of the Kingdom Demands Response. When Jesus announces the Kingdom, he calls for the hearer to "reform . . . and believe in the gospel" (Mk 1, 15). Much of Jesus' preaching is an urgent call to respond to the graciousness of his Father. The parables of the buried treasure and the valuable pearl (Mt 13, 44-46) are typical of Jesus' eloquent plea for commitment. Conversion is not just a turning away from obstacles to God's reign, but it is a pledge to follow Jesus (Mt 19, 21). The disciples are invited to take up the same ministry of proclaiming the Kingdom's presence and of healing and teaching that Jesus himself inaugurates (Mt 10, 7-8).

The Kingdom of God is one of the New

Testament's most fundamental images for speaking of the nature of God as merciful, the person of Jesus as the fulfillment of Israel's hope, and the mission of the Church as continuing the work of establishing God's reign. (See COVENANT; CHRISTOLOGY; CHURCH.)

CHURCH

The early Christians' understanding of their identity and their role in history is expressed in the concept of "church." In the Hellenistic Greek world, the ekklesia ("the assembly of those who are called") was a gathering of citizens to exercise their political rights. The Septuagint often adopted the same word as a translation for two Hebrew words, each of which meant the "assembly" of Israel, brought together for religious instruction or worship (Dt 4, 10; Jgs 20, 2), though often too the word synagōgē is used in the Septuagint for those same Hebrew words (Ex 35, 1; Lv 19, 2; Nm 1, 2; in Jgs 20, 1-2, the two terms seem interchangeable). Regardless of the word used, the "assembly of Israel" is the gathering of its citizens with full awareness of their identity as the People of God. (See COVENANT; WORSHIP.)

Probably under the influence of both Greek and Jewish usage, ekklesia became the usual term for the gathering of Christians to worship or to determine together their course of action (Acts 5, 11; 9, 31; 11, 22; 12, 5; Rom 16, 1, 5; 1 Cor 1, 2). By New Testament times, a synagōgē was a local Jewish assembly for the purpose of prayer, reading of the Scriptures, and instruction. Christian writers usually restricted its use to Jewish congregations (though in Jas 2, 2, synagōgē may mean a Christian assembly, as it does in some later Christian writings). (See WORSHIP.)

The first generations of Christians looked back to Jesus as founder of the Church (Mt 16, 18), which was established on the foundation stones of the apostles and prophets (Eph 2, 20; Rv 21, 14). Responsibility for leadership was entrusted to the twelve men whom Jesus chose from among his disciples to send out as missionaries to announce the good news of the Kingdom (Mk 3, 14-19; Mt 10, 1-7; Lk 6, 13-16; Jn 6, 67-71), first to Israel but ultimately to the whole world (Mt 28, 16-20). (See KINGDOM.) The Acts of the Apostles dramatizes the missionary movement as it progresses from Jerusalem to Samaria and eventually ends with the arrival of Paul in the heart of the pagan world, Rome (Acts 1, 8).

The original group of apostles, under the leadership of Peter (Mt 16, 18; Acts 1, 15; 2, 14, 37), bore witness boldly to the resurrection of Jesus and took the lead in establishing a community of believers who were of "one heart and one mind" (Acts 4, 32-35), united in common worship and sharing of the Eucharist in their homes (Acts 2, 44-47). Even in the first days of the Church, however, human failings were present, as the dishonesty of Ananias and Sapphira (Acts 5, 1-11), the dispute between Greek-speaking and Hebrew-speaking Christians (Acts 6, 1), and the dissension between Paul and Barnabas (Acts 15, 36-41) show.

Leadership in the Church was never confined to the Twelve. Already in the Jerusalem community "James the brother of the Lord," one of its "pillars" (Gal 1, 19; 2, 9), was a prominent figure who participated in major decisions. The members of the Jerusalem Council of Acts 15 assembled to ponder the extent to which gentile converts to the Christian faith should be required to observe the Mosaic Law. The members of the Council are referred to consistently as "the apostles and presbyters" (Acts 15, 2, 4, 6, 22-23). Moreover, Paul unflinchingly considers himself an apostle with the rest (1 Cor 9, 1; 15, 9-10).

The first generation of apostles appointed elders or presbyters in the communities they established (Acts 14, 23) for the work of guiding the Church in living the gospel. Paul usually refers to "churches" in the plural (Rom 16, 4, 16; 1 Cor 11, 16; 16, 19). This expresses his way of seeing each local community of Christians as whole in itself. Yet, at the same time, he stresses communication and communion among the churches. He worked hard toward that goal. Elsewhere, the term churches is used collectively to include all local Christian communities (Rom 16, 16).

The Church is the community of believers (Acts 4, 32), the assembly of the holy People of God (1 Cor 1, 2; cf. Nm 23, 7-10) in which all discriminatory distinctions are to be dissolved in the waters of baptism (1 Cor 12, 13; Gal 3, 27-28; Col 3, 11; Eph 2, 14). It is the great mystery planned by God from all ages and revealed in Christ (Eph 1, 9-10). It is born with the outpouring of the Spirit at Pentecost.

The Church is compared to the branches that grow upon Christ the true Vine (Jn 15, 1-8) and the flock tended by the Good Shepherd (Jn 10, 1-18). The most familiar image is that of the body with many members, all of whom perform different roles but together make a smoothly functioning whole (1 Cor 12, 12-27; Rom 12, 4-5), whose head is Christ (Eph 1, 22-23; 5, 23).

The Church is the bride of Christ (Eph 5, 25-27, 32; Rv 21, 2), a building (Eph 2, 20), the Jerusalem from on high (Gal 4, 26), in its final form the new Jerusalem descending from heaven (Rv 21, 2-4).

Though the expression "new Israel" is never used in the New Testament, Christians are given new commandments (Mt 5, 21-48; Jn 13, 34); and already Paul seems to consider Christians the "Israel of God" (Gal 6, 16). The Eucharist is seen as ratification of the new Covenant in the blood of Christ (Lk 22, 20; 1 Cor 11, 25), and Paul sees himself and his co-workers as ministers of this new Covenant (2 Cor 3, 6). The letter to the Hebrews expands on this theme (Heb 8, 8-12 and 10, 16-17, quoting Jer 31, 31-34; Heb 9, 11-15). Christians are called "the temple of the living God" (2 Cor 6, 16), "a holy temple in the Lord" (Eph 2, 21-22), an "edifice of spirit" and "holy priesthood" which offers acceptable spiritual sacrifices (1 Pt 2, 5). Many writers in the New Testament, therefore, felt that the Church was for them not only what the Covenant had been for the Jewish people, but also the fulfillment and completion of that which the first Covenant had foreshadowed. (See COVENANT.)

CHRISTOLOGY

Christology is a technical term which means "an ordered process of reflection on the nature and meaning of Jesus." Although none of the New Testament writers are theologians in the technical sense of the word, they did reflect on the mystery of Jesus' person and mission. Therefore, they present us with a variety of christologies.

This reflection seems to have begun with the resurrection itself. (See SALVATION, SPIRIT.) Faced with Jesus' victory over death and his risen presence in the community, the early Christians looked with new understanding upon the entire life, death, and mission of Jesus. They connected this history of Jesus with the message of the Hebrew Scriptures. They pondered the meaning of Jesus for their hopes in the future. All of the New Testament books are written from this resurrection perspective. The Gospels, for example, are not a detached collection of historical information about Jesus. They present that history through the lens of the Church's understanding of Jesus as one who had been raised from the dead and who was alive in his Church.

One of the most important ways the New Testament writers expressed their reflection upon the person of Jesus was to give him special titles drawn mainly from the Old Testament, but now filled with new meaning when applied to Jesus. Some of the most important titles include the following:

1. Christ. The word Christos means "anointed one" in Greek. It was used to translate the Hebrew word Messiah. The title was first used to speak of the king who was anointed, or consecrated, for Yahweh's service (cf. the so-called royal psalms which speak of this anointment: Ps 2; 20; 21; 45; 89).

David soon is thought to be the ideal example of the Lord's anointed: one who liberates, unites, and protects his people on behalf of Yahweh (2 Sm 7, 3-16). When the monarchy went into decline, the image of the ideal king was connected with Israel's hope for future salvation: a new David, a new Messiah, would be sent by God to deliver his people (Is 9, 1-6; Mi 5, 1-3). (See KINGDOM OF GOD.) It seems that Jesus himself was hesitant to accept the title of "Christ" because of the nationalistic hopes it suggested (Mk 8, 28-30). In the light of the resurrection, Jesus was clearly seen by the Christians as the expected Messiah, the leader sent by God to rescue his people. Thus Christians applied to Jesus the promises and prophecies which refer to the Messiah in the Old Testament. The frequency of this title in the New Testament gives the impression that in many passages "Christ" has become a surname rather than a title.

2. Son of God. This title, too, was first applied to the king in Israel, because he was chosen by God to rule his people (2 Sm 7, 14; Ps 2, 7). The title was also used of the faithful Israelite who obeyed God and trusted in his love (Wis 2, 13, 16-18; 5, 5). When this title is used of Jesus in the New Testament, it refers to his roles both as kingly Messiah and as obedient Israelite. It is also a way of stressing the intimate bond between Jesus and his Father (Mt 4, 1-11). In later Christian reflection, this dimension of the "Son of God" title will become even more important: Jesus is Son of God because he shares in the Father's own divine life.

3. Lord. One of the most important New Testament titles for expressing the divine power and status of Jesus was "Lord." The title may have originated as a title of respect for a dignitary, not unlike the English word "sir." But it came to be used in the Old Testament as a reference to Yahweh himself. In the New Testament, the title affirms Christian faith in Jesus as one who has been exalted through his resurrection (Phil 2, 11; Acts 2, 36) and who will come in triumph at the end of time (1 Cor 16, 22). This title seems to have been used often in the Church's prayer as an exclamation of worship and praise (Rv 22, 20; Mt 7, 21).

4. Son of Man. This is perhaps the most mysterious of the titles used of Jesus in the New Testament. In Aramaic, "Son of Man" is simply a way of referring to "man" or "human being." But "Son of Man" seems to be used in a more technical sense in Daniel (Dn 7, 13-14) where it refers to a mysterious figure (perhaps a symbol of the nation of Israel) who will be given majesty and power at the end of time. This title is used frequently of Jesus in all four Gospels. It is, in fact, the title Jesus most often uses of himself. Some scholars believe that "Son of Man" is not a technical term, but it refers simply to Jesus' share in humanity; he is the human being. But it is more likely that the vagueness of the title allowed the early Church to give it a specific Christian meaning. Therefore, it is used to identify Jesus as the one who will come in triumph at the end of time (Mk 13, 26), who had authority even on earth to heal and forgive (Mt 9, 6), but who also had to suffer and to give his life for others (Mk 10, 45).

Many other titles are used of Jesus in the New Testament: for example, Lamb of God, High Priest, Emmanuel, Savior, Holy One, Last Adam, King of Israel, Word, and Servant. The plurality of titles illustrates the depth and richness of the early Church's faith in Jesus. No single title or any combination of them was adequate to express the overwhelming mystery of Jesus' person. Later theology would reflect on this mystery in a more organized fashion, but the ingredients for the Church's confession of Jesus as fully human and yet fully divine are already present in the New Testament itself.

SUGGESTED READINGS FOR THE LITURGICAL YEAR

PATRICK J. SENA, C.P.P.S.

ADVENT

The season of Advent is a time of preparation: preparation for celebrating the birth of Christ liturgically at Christmas, preparation for the final coming of Christ at the end of time, preparation for the coming of Christ in so many ways into our lives as we travel our pilgrim way to the heavenly Jerusalem, and preparation for the coming of Christ to us at the moment of our deaths. There are four Sundays of Advent.

Scripture Readings for Advent: Isaiah 11—12; 40; 66, 1-14; Jeremiah 33; Zephaniah 3, 11-20; Numbers 24; 2 Samuel 7; Matthew 3, 1-12; Luke 1, 5-25; 1, 57-80; John 1, 19-34; Revelation 22, 6-21.

Old Testament Readings: The readings from the prophetic books (Jer; Is; Zep) look forward to the rule of God's Messiah; they speak of that glorious day when God's promises to his people will indeed be fulfilled. In the face of every obstacle, whether they are political powers, improper religious practices, or imminent danger to Jerusalem by Sennacherib or Nebuchadnezzar, the writers believe that God will still champion his people and thus turn disaster into a glorious deliverance. The readings cry out for joy at the liberation of the Israelites from Babylon during the time of Cyrus the Great. They speak eloquently of the time of restoration which is to come and of the great joy which shall be visited upon the people who dwell in Jerusalem.

The selections from Numbers and 2 Samuel tell of an individual who shall rise up out of the midst of the Israelites. This individual shall be a descendant of David. God's favor will rest upon him. These are messianic prophecies which in the fuller sense speak of the future Messiah whom Yahweh God will put forward to lead his people into the ultimate peaceful reign of God.

New Testament Readings: The passages from Matthew, Luke, and John inform us about the birth of John the Baptist and his ministry of preparing the way for Jesus, the messianic Son of God. John the Baptist is the last of the prophets to point the way to the fulfillment of Israel's hopes. He makes it clear that Jesus is that fulfillment. The reading from Revelation emphasizes the yearning of every Christian for the coming of the Savior. The prayer of each Christian during the Advent season must be the same as that of the inspired author: "Amen! Come, Lord Jesus!" (Rv 22, 20).

CHRISTMAS SEASON

The Christmas season begins with the Vigil Mass of Christmas and concludes with the Feast of the Baptism of the Lord. Included in this season are also the three masses of Christmas and the feasts of the Holy Family, the Solemnity of Mary, the Second Sunday after Christmas, and the Epiphany. The season highlights the significance of God's becoming man in the Incarnation as well as the early appearances of Jesus to his family, to the Israelites, and to the world.

Scripture Readings for the Christmas Season: Hebrews 1; Acts 10, 34-43; 1 John 5, 5-13; John 1, 1-18; 2, 1-11; Matthew 1—2; Luke 2, 1-21; 2, 41-52; 3, 1-22.

New Testament Readings: The readings from Hebrews, Acts, and 1 John tell about God's plan for us in the Incarnation. With the coming of God's Son, the final unfolding of God's plan has begun. The Son reigns and his throne will last forever and ever (Heb 1, 8). God has acted in history in many ways through the prophets, but now he speaks to us through his Incarnate Son Jesus. We have received the Good News of peace through Jesus Christ (Acts 10, 36), through his birth, his baptism in the Jordan, and the shedding of his blood upon the cross (1 Jn 5, 8), and his glorious resurrection (Acts 10, 40).

The readings from the gospel of John recall the divine preexistence of the Son of God. He is the Father's Word. "The Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us" (Jn 1, 14). Jesus, God's Word, was present at the first of many signs which he was to work, at the Wedding Feast of Cana when he turned water into wine and thus began his public ministry. "His disciples believed in him" (Jn 2, 11).

Matthew and Luke recount for us a history of the birth of the Messiah. They tell us that Jesus was born of the Virgin Mary who had conceived by the Holy Spirit while she was engaged to Joseph. Joseph married Mary; the child was born in Bethlehem during the reigns of Herod the Great of Israel and Emperor Augustus of Rome. After his birth, Jesus together with his mother Mary and his stepfather Joseph went to live in Nazareth in Galilee.

Matthew calls special attention in his account to the fulfillment of history by recounting the fourteen generations from Abraham to David and from David to the Babylonian captivity and from the return from Babylon to the birth of the Messiah. David had been the greatest king. The Babylonian captivity and the destruction of Jerusalem had been the lowest point in history for the Israelites. However, the highest point in the history of God's people was the birth of Jesus Christ, the Messiah. Jesus was born for all nations.

Luke emphasizes that Jesus had come for the poor and the lowly. Angels appear to shepherds informing them of the birth of the baby Jesus in Bethlehem. Luke tells us that the Holy Family lived at Nazareth, and it is he who recounts the baptism of the Lord by John the Baptist in the Jordan River (Lk 3, 21-22).

LENTEN SEASON

Lent is a time of walking with Christ on the road to the Holy City Jerusalem in which God's divine plan will be accomplished. It is a preparation season for the celebration of Easter. The catechumens, or converts, are initiated into the message and meaning of Jesus Christ; the faithful recall their own baptism and do penance in acts of self-denial, prayer, and charitable works. Lent lasts from Ash Wednesday through the Chrism Mass on Holy Thursday morning when the Bishop consecrates the sacred oils which are used for baptism, confirmation, the anointing of the sick, and sacred ordination. In addition to Passion (Palm) Sunday, there are five other Sundays in Lent.

Scripture Readings for the Lenten Season: Genesis 3; Exodus 3; Leviticus 17, 1-14; 19; Baruch 4, 5-37; Lamentations 1; Romans 4, 13-25; Philippians 2, 1-11; Hebrews 5; Matthew 6, 21, 1-16; Mark 14, 53—15, 39; Luke 15; John 4, 1-42; 9; 11, 1-54.

Old Testament Readings: The readings from the Pentateuch (Gn; Ex; Lv) speak of the disobedience of human beings in the very beginning and of their fall from God's grace. God sent them out from the garden of Eden. At the same time, the promise is given that the offspring of Eve will one day crush the head of the snake-devil and humanity will triumph over evil (Gn 3, 15). God's people are to know how to act with one another, showing respect for each other. The injunction had been given to Moses to announce to the people, "Be holy, for I, the LORD your God, am holy" (Lv 19, 2). Moses had been called by I AM, Yahweh-God (Ex 3, 14), to liberate the Israelites from the bondage of slavery in Egypt.

The passages from Lamentations and Baruch describe the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. with its devastation and the exile of its inhabitants. At the same time, Baruch gives hope for an eventual consolation since the captivity was about to end and the city would be restored and once again filled with rejoicing.

New Testament Readings: The Epistles (Rom; Phil; Heb) tell us of what Christ did for us in freeing us from sin and giving us life through his suffering-death-resurrection. Abraham is presented for our reflection as a man of living faith who did believe in what God had promised him (Rom 4, 21). At the same time, we are informed that "Jesus . . . was handed over to death for our sins and raised up for our justification" (Rom 4, 25). Philippians and Hebrews inform us of the obedience of Christ to his Father's command in becoming a man like us in all things but sin, learning obedience through his suffering, and being exalted as the great high priest whom all acknowledge as Lord.

The synoptic Gospels (Matthew, Mark, and Luke)—called "synoptic" because they present an overall similar picture of Jesus, in contrast to John's gospel) impress upon us the necessity of fasting, seeking and giving forgiveness, and praying. All of these are so vital during this season of Lent. Luke zeroes in on the lost sheep, lost coin, and lost son in his celebrated passage in chapter 15: all which is lost is found and there must indeed be great rejoicing. The Sacrament of Reconciliation (Penance) administered during Lent assists those lost in sin to be found in the grace of God. Matthew tells us of Jesus' triumphant entry into Jerusalem where the crowds shouted, "Hosanna to the Son of David! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord! Hosanna in the highest!" (Mt 21, 9). Yet, it is the long reading selected from Mark which speaks of the passion and death of Christ; shouts of praise on Palm Sunday have given way to shouts of condemnation on Holy Thursday.

With the example of the Samaritan woman of chapter 4 and the man born blind of chapter 9, John gives us representatives of those who have come to believe in the person of Jesus Christ. Belief must go beyond the physical—those things we see and touch and drink—and must come to be rooted in Jesus himself. There can always be a deeper faith experience and growth in faith. With chapter 11, John gives us a good preview of what will happen to Jesus. Lazarus had died and been in the tomb for four days; at Jesus' command (Jn 11, 43), Lazarus came forth from the tomb. Because of this good work, many believed in him (Jn 11, 45), but others sought to kill him (Jn 11, 53). Jesus, in turn, after three days, would be raised from the dead in his glorious resurrection on that first Easter Sunday.

EASTER SEASON

The Easter season begins with the Mass of the Last Supper on Holy Thursday evening and concludes with the celebration of Pentecost. Included in this season are the Easter Triduum of Holy Thursday, Good Friday, the Easter Vigil, and Easter Sunday. In addition the season continues for fifty days and comprises Seven Sundays of Easter, the Ascension, and Pentecost. The Church's sacramental system is highlighted during this period, especially the duties of the newly baptized to lead the Christian life. All of this points to the need of those who have been initiated into Christ to be bearers of the evangelical witness that Christ has indeed died, that he is risen, and that he will come again.

Scripture Readings for the Season of Easter: Genesis 1, 1—2, 4; Joshua 3; Ezekiel 37, 1-14; Psalm 118; Jeremiah 31, 31-34; Ecclesiastes 3, 1-15; Luke 22, 1-23; 24; John 19, 17-30; 20, 19-31; Acts 2, 1-36; 13, 16-43; 1 Peter 2, 1-10; Ephesians 2, 11-22; Hebrews 8, 1-13; 9, 11-23; 1 Corinthians 13, 1-13; 15, 1-26; Revelation 21, 1-21.

Old Testament Readings: The readings from Genesis, Joshua, and Ezekiel outline the history of salvation from the time of Creation when "God looked at everything he had made, and he found it very good" (Gn 1, 31), to the entrance of the chosen people into the Promised Land under Joshua and the restoration of a broken people during the Babylonian captivity under the image of Ezekiel's dry bones—the kingdom of Judah would one day live again, for Yahweh-God had said, "I will put my spirit in you that you may live, and I will settle you upon your land" (Ez 37, 14).

Psalm 118, Ecclesiastes, and Jeremiah emphasize victory, God's providence, and an ultimate fulfillment of hope. The psalm is a prayer of thanksgiving and in the Easter season we apply this psalm to the risen Christ.

"This is the day the LORD has made;
let us be glad and rejoice in it."

(Ps 118, 24)

We are to be thankful for we realize that "there is an appointed time for everything, and a time for every affair under the heavens" (Eccl 3, 1); we realize that Christ's resurrection was God's own choice. All in all Jeremiah tells us to look forward to the day when there shall be a "new covenant" (Jer 31, 31) with the law written on the hearts of the people. Certainly that New Covenant has been realized in the Eucharistic banquet which Jesus has given to us.

New Testament Readings: The readings from the Gospels (Luke and John) tell us about the Last Supper and the Sacrament of Reconciliation (Penance). Luke tells us of the preparation for the Last Supper and impresses upon us that in the drinking from the Eucharistic cup and the eating of the Eucharistic bread, the Kingdom of God has indeed come (Lk 22, 18). For the disciples on the road to Emmaus, Jesus is recognized in the breaking of the bread (Lk 24, 30-31). The Christian recognizes Jesus in the Eucharistic Banquet during the Sacrifice of the Mass. Luke also narrates briefly the Ascension of Christ (Lk 24, 51). John informs us of the last hours of Jesus and that final way of the cross. This is the reading for Good Friday (Jn 19). The joy of the Resurrection has brought us reconciliation: "Receive the Holy Spirit. If you forgive men's sins, they are forgiven them; if you hold them bound, they are held bound" (Jn 20, 22-23). Through the resurrection, Christ lives on in the Sacrament of Reconciliation bringing peace to those who need it through the forgiveness of sins.

Acts, 1 Peter, and Ephesians emphasize the necessity to evangelize for those who have received the Holy Spirit in Baptism and Confirmation. Acts 2 recounts the Pentecost event and the outpouring of the Holy Spirit through the speech of Peter to the multitude assembled from every nation. Salvation has indeed been extended to every human being: "through him we both have access in one Spirit to the Father" (Eph 2, 18). Paul emphasizes that the history of salvation has been brought to a fulfillment in Jesus Christ by God's "raising up Jesus" (Acts 13, 33). Each Christian, because of baptism into Christ, must "proclaim the glorious works" of God (1 Pt 2, 9). The renewal of our Easter baptismal promises urges us to constantly proclaim the Good News of Jesus Christ and to share that News with our neighbors.

The selections from Hebrews emphasize Christ's priesthood; Christ the priest, before God's throne, prays to God for us his people. "He entered heaven itself that he might appear before God now on our behalf" (Heb 9, 24). The old pattern of relating to God has been replaced; and there is now a new way of doing things, all because God has established a New Covenant in the blood of his Son Jesus.

Christians are sharers in Christ's resurrection, and as such they are to show love for one another: love which is genuine concern for others, love which is giving and not expecting a return, love which is giving to others what Christ has given to us. Love is the greatest of all the virtues (1 Cor 13, 13).

First Corinthians 15 and Revelation 21 speak about the resurrection of Christ and the ultimate resurrection of every Christian. First Corinthians 15, 3-11 is an early Christian creed affirming belief in the resurrection of Christ. Paul reminds all who follow the Lord Jesus that they shall one day also be raised with him in a "spiritual body" (1 Cor 15, 44). Revelation depicts the new Jerusalem, the heavenly city which is the abode of all who have faithfully followed the Lamb. "The wall of the city had twelve courses of stones as its foundation, on which were written the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb" (Rv 21, 14). The heavenly city is God's assembly which is based upon the message and the persons of the twelve apostles. As an Easter people, each of us is on our way home to that city.

SEASON OF THE YEAR

This is the longest season of the liturgical year and runs for thirty-three Sundays culminating in the feast of Christ the King on the last Sunday. No single emphasis of the mystery of Christ is celebrated. Instead, there is a focus upon the public ministry of Christ. We follow him upon his life-long path to his coronation as our King.

Scripture Readings for the Season of the Year: Exodus 12, 1-42; Leviticus 16; 23; Deuteronomy 5, 1-21; Numbers 11, 16-25; Sirach 44, 16-45, 26; 46, 1-47, 25; 48, 1-50, 29; Joshua 24, 1-29; 1 Samuel 3, 1-18; 9, 14-10, 27; 16, 1-13; 2 Samuel 6; 1 Kings 3; 12, 1-32; 1 Maccabees 1, 1-2, 70; Ruth 1; Judges 4, 1-5, 31; Judith 15, 14-16, 25; Proverbs 31; Jeremiah 1, 4-10; Hosea 3; Zechariah 9, 9-10, 12; Ezekiel 2, 1-3, 27; Daniel 7, 9-28; Habakkuk 3; Song of Songs 1, 1-2, 17; Tobit 4, 1-19; Job 1, 1-2, 13; 42, 7-17; Psalms 148-150; Luke 9, 51-10, 24; 14; Mark 4; 15, 36-21, 14; Galatians 5, 1-6, 10; 2 Corinthians 4, 1-6, 17; 1 Thessalonians 4, 13-5, 28; 2 Timothy 2, 1-4, 5; Ephesians 4; Colossians 2, 4-23; 1 Peter 3, 8-22; James 5, 1-20; Hebrews 4, 1-16; 11-12; Revelation 1, 1-3, 22; 4, 1-5, 14; 21, 22-22, 5.

Old Testament Readings: The readings from the Pentateuch (Ex; Lv; Nm; Dt) recount the importance of worship for the people of God. Exodus tells of the preparation for the first Passover and the ritual which accompanied it. Jesus later was to become the new Passover Lamb of sacrifice by his saving death and resurrection. Leviticus explains the various religious festivals of the Jews which served as early forms and models of the feasts which we Christians observe today, e.g., Passover—Easter, feast of Weeks—Pentecost, Day of Atonement—Good Friday. The readings from Deuteronomy and Numbers inform us of Moses as the person who represented God to his people and who pleaded with God for the people. Moses could not bear the burden of total responsibility for God's people and so God had him choose seventy respected elders to assist him in governing the people. Moses and the seventy associates were filled with God's Spirit.

The readings from Sirach coming from the second century B.C. praise the famous historical figures of old, beginning with the early patriarchs and continuing down to Simon the high priest of Sirach's own day. God had always worked well in instilling wisdom into his chosen people.

The selections from the historical books (Jos; 1-2 Sm; 1 Kgs; 1 Mc) show important events in the lives of God's people. From 1 and 2 Samuel we read of Samuel's call to be a prophet in Israel; and we learn of his ready response to God, "Speak, for your servant is listening" (1 Sm 3, 10). Samuel anoints Saul as the ruler; and it is Samuel who will reject Saul and then anoint Jesse's son, David, to rule in his place (1 Sm 16, 13). The author of 1 Kings informs us of the great wisdom of Solomon, David's son. Solomon prayed for wisdom; God heard him and gave him the power of judging wisely (1 Kgs 3, 12). But with the death of Solomon, Rehoboam came to the throne; he did not govern wisely. The Kingdom was divided into two kingdoms. The reading from 1 Maccabees tells of the revolt of Mattathias and his sons against Antiochus and his pagan practices. Throughout all of the historical books, it is God who constantly champions his people and gives them the ultimate victory. The people are constantly on the move, a pilgrimage people in search of a final resting place.

The readings from Judges, Ruth, Judith, and Proverbs focus upon four different women. Deborah is a strong woman who brought peace to a troubled land with the assistance of the army of Barak (Jgs 5, 31). Ruth is an example of filial piety who follows her mother-in-law Naomi wherever she goes. Judith is a beautiful woman who sees her role as a deliverer of her people in the face of the oppression of Holofernes. The woman of Proverbs is the housewife who by her daily toil helps her family find its rightful place in God's world.

The prophets (Jer; Zec; Hos; Dn; Ez; Hb) recount an age old story: God raised up the lowly to confound those in high places. Jeremiah claimed to be too young to accept God's call, but he did accept it. Ezekiel was promised bitterness when he was called to be a servant of the Lord. Hosea's personal life was marked with tragedy for his wife was unfaithful to him. Habakkuk, in the face of impending destruction, sings aloud a faith-filled song of the greatness of God. Zechariah shouts for joy, "Shout for joy, O daughter Jerusalem! See, your king shall come to you" (Zec 9, 9). Daniel looks forward to the time when someone would come whose "dominion is an everlasting dominion that shall not be taken away" (Dn 7, 14). That someone was destined to be Christ the King.

The remaining Old Testament readings concern themselves with the people of God on the march. Tobit recounts a father's advice to his son as he sets out to seek a wife. Job informs us of a patient man who, though faithful to God, nevertheless suffered; we are reminded that God's ways are not our ways and that suffering does play a part in the lives of all the faithful. The Song of Songs recounts the ways of love between a man and a woman; we understand that love to be expressive of Christ's love for his Church and his love for us. The Psalms sing out in praise for each pilgrim as one on the way must constantly sing, "Let Israel be glad in their maker, let the children of Zion rejoice in their king" (Ps 149, 2).

New Testament Readings: The Gospels focus in upon the public ministry of Jesus in whose footsteps we follow. Luke recounts the beginning of Jesus' journey on the road to Jerusalem for the final fulfillment of his mission. Jesus commissions seventy-two disciples to evangelize in his name (Lk 10, 1), for the Lord uses his people to assist him as Moses had done with the seventy elders. The Christian has been invited to the wedding feast and must be humble in accepting Christ's call (Lk 14, 11); the call is one for service. Mark explains to us how the Kingdom of God must grow (Mk 4, 1-34), using the examples of the parables of the sower, the lamp, and the mustard seed to illustrate that growth. With a baptismal-faith commitment to Jesus Christ, the Kingdom of God begins to grow in our lives. That initial faith must continue to be nurtured for growth; we show maturity of faith when we demonstrate our love for God and neighbor by our actions and not merely our words (Mk 12, 30-31). True happiness is in following the teachings found in the Sermon on the Mount (Mt 5-7). Jesus preached about true serenity; and yet, he continued on his journey to Jerusalem where he predicted he would be put to death (Mt 20, 18).

The gospel reading for the Feast of Christ the King is taken from John. Jesus is King of Truth for he is Truth itself (Jn 18, 37). The Church's year of pilgrimage ends with that solemn proclamation.

Acts of the Apostles tells of the Council of Jerusalem (Acts 15). It was decided there that gentile Christians need not observe all of the ancient Jewish law. This chapter is pivotal in showing the definitive break between the community of Israel and the new Christian community. And in the following chapters of Acts (Acts 15, 36-21, 14), we follow Paul as he travels in the lands bordering upon the Mediterranean Sea, bringing the message and knowledge of Jesus Christ to the peoples of Asia Minor, to the Coastal Islands, and to Europe itself. Like a mustard seed planted in the ground, the faith began to grow and to spread for the faith had been planted in the fertile hearts of people. The content of that faith is found in the other readings.

"It was for liberty that Christ freed us. So stand firm, and do not take on yourselves the yoke of slavery a second time!" (Gal 5, 1). We are free from the slavery of sin and from everlasting death. Christ himself is a spiritual treasure who dwells within us. We are fragile, but in Christ we have all the strength we need (2 Cor 4, 7-9). Through the reconciliation brought about by Jesus, we have become friends with God (2 Cor 5, 18-19).

As members of the Body of Christ, redeemed by his blood, we await the Lord's coming again for us at the end of time and above all at the end of our present human existence (1 Thes 4, 14). This present life will issue forth into union with the glorified Savior in heaven. The steadfast person is urged to "bear hardship along with me [Paul] as a good soldier of Christ Jesus" (2 Tim 2, 3). Such a one must seek consolation in God's written word: "All Scripture is inspired of God and is useful for teaching" (2 Tim 3, 16).

God gave gifts of ministry to be used: "he . . . gave apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers in roles of service for the faithful to build up the body of Christ" (Eph 4, 11-12). All good gifts have been given for the common good and are for the building up of the body of Christ and not for its deterioration. The faithful must always live in union with Jesus (Col 2, 19), under Christ's control, acknowledging his Lordship. A person who lives under the Lordship of Christ will surely know what it is to suffer: "If it should be God's will that you suffer, it is better to do so for good deeds than for evil ones" (1 Pt 3, 17).

The remaining readings (Heb; Jas; Rv) announce the end of the pilgrim's journey. Hebrews reminds us what the pilgrim life was like for many people whose stories are told in the Old Testament. Yet, it is only through the redemption brought by Jesus that these faithful people have been saved. "Yet despite the fact that all of these were approved because of their faith, they did not obtain what had been promised. God had made a better plan, a plan which included us. Without us, they were not to be made perfect" (Heb 11, 39-40). The journey ends on Mount Zion united with Jesus who is the mediator of this New Covenant through his blood (Heb 12, 24). On Mount Zion, we shall be united with the saints of old and our loved ones who have gone before us and who now wondrously enjoy the sleep of peace.

We receive much help as we travel our own pilgrim paths to our permanent dwelling with the Lord. James informs us of how when we are ill we are to call for the presbyters and be anointed with oil for a healing of both body and soul. We have the Sacrament of the Anointing of the Sick to assist us as we work out our salvation on our pilgrim paths (Jas 5, 14-15).

Christ, our glorified Savior, has not left us orphans. He continues to care for us and he is constantly in our midst. We are held secure in the palm of his strong right hand (Rv 1, 16). He is a most caring, providing, guarding, and loving God-Redeemer. We have received the message; we cannot waver lest he come like a thief in the night to bring judgment (Rv 3, 3). For those who have won the fight and struggle of this life and remained in the love of Christ, there is an invitation to the heavenly throne room where we shall constantly sing the praise of the Father and the Lamb who is Christ (Rv 5, 13). In the holy city, "the night shall be no more. They will need no light from lamps or the sun, for the Lord God shall give them light, and they shall reign forever" (Rv 22, 5). What great joy awaits those who faithfully make their yearly journey from Advent to the Feast of Christ the King. "The grace of the Lord Jesus be with you all. Amen!" (Rv 22, 21).

SOLEMNITIES OF THE LORD DURING THE SEASON OF THE YEAR

Celebrated under this heading are Trinity Sunday, the Feast of Corpus et Sanguis Christi (Body and Blood of Christ), and the Feast of the Sacred Heart. Trinity Sunday celebrates the Unity of God in the Trinity of Persons with an emphasis upon the role of each of the Persons. Corpus et Sanguis Christi commemorates the Eucharist and its importance in the life of the Church. The Sacred Heart celebrates the compassion and love that Jesus has for his followers.

Scripture Readings for the Solemnities of the Lord: John 3, 1-21; Ephesians 1, 3-14; 1 Corinthians 11, 23-33; 1 Peter 1, 3-21; Psalms 1—2; John 10, 1-39.

The Psalms speak about true happiness in following the Lord and learning to accept mercy from his hands.

New Testament Readings: John 3 recounts the work of the Trinity in baptism, and John 10 informs us of the compassion of the Good Shepherd. Ephesians 1 is an early Trinitarian liturgical hymn. First Corinthians informs us of the earliest written tradition about the Eucharistic assembly. First Peter speaks eloquently about the perfect sacrifice of Christ.

STUDY GUIDE QUESTIONS

JOHN A. SWARTZ

Genesis: What different pictures of God and man emerge in the two different creation stories in chapters 1 and 2? How do the first eleven chapters show the progress of man's sin? How is this theme in chapters 1—11 a fine introduction to the patriarchal stories in chapters 12—50? What values and virtues of Israel are celebrated in the different stories about the patriarchs in 12—50?

Exodus: How does the sequence of epic material in chapters 5—12 show Yahweh is the Lord of History? How do the origins and call of Moses in chapters 2 and 3 indicate the relationship of the Israelite hero to Yahweh? If Israel became God's people in the Exodus event recorded in chapter 12, how does the Sinai covenant indicate a response to God's love? How is this covenant a refinement of that covenant made with Abraham (Gn 17)?

Leviticus: What in this "liturgical handbook" indicates the purpose of legislation in Israel's religious life? Was the call to holiness limited to any one group within Israel (11, 41-46)?

Numbers: How does this book show that the author was concerned in showing God's providence for his people? What in the book indicates that the Sinai covenant was both conditioned by and directed at the total life of Israel?

Deuteronomy: How does this book reflect the theology that God rewards the good and punishes the evil? How is that theology reflected in the commandments (chapter 6)? What in the book indicates the author's preoccupation with extending Israel's faith tradition through education? What was built into this book to insure Israel's concern for its poor? Why would this book emphasize the importance of a central place of worship while Genesis reflects a proliferation of shrines? Why was this book often used by Israel as a tool of reform?

Joshua: How does the author of this book use the "reward theology" of Deuteronomy to interpret Israel's experience after entering the land? How is the plan of conquest described in Deuteronomy 31 executed in Joshua 1—12? What was the basic strategy used in dividing the land? How is this later distribution of land reflected in the description of the twelve tribes of Israel in Genesis 49? How does the program outlined in chapter 23 insure Israel's faithfulness to God?

Judges: If Joshua showed the continued faithfulness of God toward his people, how did the author of Judges indicate man's continued unfaithfulness to God? How does chapter 2 provide the basic theme of the book? How is this pattern of unfaithfulness, conversion, forgiveness, and recurring unfaithfulness reflected in the work of each of the judges?

Ruth: Why is this book used in the Jewish liturgy for the feast of Weeks? How does the book reflect the providence of God in continuing the Davidic line through his forefathers? Does the woman Ruth serve as a model for any significant virtues for our own age?

1 Samuel: In what way does the author show the holiness of Samuel in chapters 1—7? What was Samuel's great role in this book? How did he determine the meaning of kingship and prophecy for ages to come? Was kingship unanimously welcomed by the people of Israel? What problems did Samuel see in kingship (chapter 8)? What qualities led to the choice of Saul as first king; what weaknesses led to his demise? In chapter 12, Samuel summarizes the tragic consequences of Israel's infidelity to God: how is that summary a reflection on the plan of Joshua 23, and its implementation in Judges 2? What qualities led to David's choice by God? How did Jonathan's selfless love for David insure David's future as king?

2 Samuel: After the death of Saul and three of his sons (1 Samuel 31), how did David effect his acceptance as leader of northern and southern Israel? What function did the taking of Jerusalem and the building of the ark there play in the unification of the North and South? While David was later honored as Israel's greatest king, what in 2 Samuel indicates that he was not a "plaster saint"? What purpose did the sequence of scandals in David's family play in chapters 8—24? Why does this sequence make the pivotal messianic message of 2 Samuel 7 so important for Israel's self-understanding?

1 Kings: How does the author's commentary on the rule of different kings indicate his concern for showing God's fidelity to the covenant? What function does the prophet play in this book? Are the dying words of David to his son Solomon any clue to the theology found in the book? Why is the author forever indicating how promises were fulfilled in Israel's history? Why does the author spend so much time recalling the episodes in Elijah's life? What do these episodes reveal about the importance of the prophet and of God's word in Israel?

2 Kings: What was the purpose of the author in including the story of Elijah's conferring the Spirit on Elisha? How do the two prophets differ? Why is the author forever comparing later kings to David? Which of the kings walked in the way of David? How are the reforms of Hezekiah and Josiah an indication that the covenant had not been taken seriously?

1 Chronicles: Why does the author indicate that the Davidic covenant was more important than that of Sinai? How does the author show that David is the founder of the religion of Judaism? What stories from David's life are noticeably absent in the work of this author? How is David's position as founder of the religion established when the reader knows that Solomon built the temple? How is the book in its attitudes to Levites, priests, and prophets a "church book"?

2 Chronicles: Why is it that the author eliminates the parallel history of the northern kingdom in his work? Is there anything in the book which justifies attributing to the author a "God of war" or a "God of exclusiveness"? How can one explain the author's attitude to the northern portion of Israel which considers it "mission territory"?

Ezra: What in the book indicated Ezra's concern for teaching the religious tradition to women and children? What so motivated him? Ezra loved religion and brotherhood; how does his approach to the people facilitate his sharing this love with them? Is there anything in the book which shows Ezra's awareness that Jerusalem needs a beautifully adorned temple, and knowledge of the Law?

Nehemiah: What about Nehemiah's character can explain his ability to motivate and inspire his fellow Israelites to rebuild the temple? How does Nehemiah's concern for the poor affect his decisions when rebuilding the temple? Was the rebuilding of the temple a work without obstacle? How could the book of Deuteronomy's theology explain Nehemiah's concern for Jerusalem and the poor?

Esther: How does chapter 11 provide insights into the purpose of this book? Why is the book used in the celebration of the feast of Purim by contemporary Jews?

Job: How does this book show that the theology in which good are rewarded and bad punished cannot explain all human experience? Which characters in the book defend this theology by denying their experience? Which characters opt for a new theology when faced with contradictory experience? How are the beginning and ending of the book like the beginning and ending of a contemporary television drama? What is the purpose of God's speech in chapters 38—40? Why has history identified Job as a man of patience?

Psalms: In what ways is the book of Psalms similar to a contemporary human book? Although all the Psalms should be considered the song-prayers of the community, are there clues in any of them to indicate that these song-prayers emerged from an individual's life experience? In what way do some Psalms function as reflections of history? Are there any which indicate wisdom, or the right way to do things in life? What moods are reflected by the individual Psalms? What needs did the Psalms meet in Israel's life? What needs can they fill today?

Proverbs: How does the author show that religion is more than a segment of man's life and that it is everything man does? How does this kind of literature tend to focus on the individual rather than the community? What are the advantages and disadvantages of such an emphasis? How much is God a part of the author's vision? How does his view of woman differ in chapters 1—8 and in chapter 31? What indicates that the book is a collection of different sayings and poems? What about the style of the book indicates the manner in which wisdom is to be found?

Ecclesiastes: How is the thinking about God and man in this book a radical departure from that found in Proverbs? How is the book at times very optimistic while seeming at times most pessimistic? According to the author, in what is life's meaning to be found? If the book of Job asked the question, How does God govern his world? what is the more profound question which Ecclesiastes asks? What makes this book so forever relevant?

Song of Songs: What insights into the love relationship between man and woman does this book provide? What would have motivated early Christian writers to see in this book the symbolic relationship of God to his people?

Isaiah: What in Isaiah's calling indicated his unique insight into the meaning of God (chapter 6)? How does Isaiah understand Jerusa-lem's role in the missionary activity of God's people? What shows his unwillingness to tolerate Israel's abandoning trust in Yahweh for the "security" of human technology? What contributions does Isaiah make to an understanding of the Messiah? Of what wrongdoing did Isaiah accuse his people? Did he envision a radical and total conversion of these people to Yahweh? How does the author of chapters 40—55 show the loftiness and the intimacy of Yahweh? What purpose did the author have in showing that the God of this captive, exiled Israel was the God of all creation? How does he show that even pagan princes are governed by his plan (chapter 45)? In four separate "songs" (40, 1-4; 49, 1-6; 50, 4-9; 53, 12), what contribution does the author make to Israel's understanding of suffering and its dimension of service? What in chapters 56—66 indicates that the prophet needed to confront his people with their evil rather than provide hope for them in their despair? How does this section differ from chapters 40—55?

Jeremiah: How do the vignettes of King Ahaz (2 Kgs 16, 2-5), Hezekiah (2 Kgs 18, 3-8), King Manasseh (2 Kgs 21, 2-6) and King Josiah (2 Kgs 22, 2-3) help to clarify the call of Jeremiah in chapter 1? What could he be tearing down, and what would he be building up? What evil was Jeremiah attacking in chapter 7? What was the price Jeremiah had to pay for playing the prophet (chapters 11; 26; 37; 38)? While a prophet spoke God's word in words, and testified with his life, what special means of communicating did he use in chapters 13, 18, 19, and 24? What is so special about the new covenant described in chapter 31? What insights into the person of Jeremiah and his relationship with God can be found in the autobiographical pages (chapters 12; 15; 20)? What do the biographical sections in chapters 26—45 contribute to this understanding?

Lamentations: How is the theme of chapter 1 reminiscent of Jeremiah's chapter 2? Why was this book chosen for reading in the Jewish community at the times of fasts in remembrance of the destruction of Jerusalem?

Ezekiel: If the departure of God's presence from Jerusalem in the psychedelic language of chapters 1, 3, and 8—11 pointed to the failure of Israel, what in chapters 40—48 signaled hope? How does the vision of the dry bones sum up Ezekiel's message of despair and hope? If the Exile had been seen by the prophet as a rejection of God's people, why would he emphasize personal responsibility for sin (chapter 18)? If Ezekiel saw, as the other prophets did, the great sin of Jerusalem as social wrongdoing, why does his vision of the new Jerusalem in chapters 40—48 envision the great need of Jerusalem as a return to authentic worship? What does the motive attributed to Yahweh for restoring Israel (chapter 36) indicate about his concept of God? What concept of God emerges in chapter 34? Why has Ezekiel been called the first "pastor of souls"?

Daniel: How do the stories in chapters 1—6 show how God takes care of those who are faithful to him? What in those chapters would indicate that the writer is addressing an audience which was suffering persecution for its religious beliefs? How does the author use history to indicate that God's purpose will ultimately prevail? How do the endless lists of rulers and empires, the interventions of heavenly mediaries, and the remote image of God help to encourage hope in those who are suffering persecution? What purpose does the author have in describing past history with which his audience was familiar as if it were to happen in the future? What in those visions suggests this is the case?

Hosea: What in Hosea's personal life is reflected in his understanding of God's relationship with Israel (chapters 1—4)? For what sinfulness does Hosea condemn Israel? Does the author in reflecting on Israel's history (chapter 11) suggest anything about God's attitude toward Israel's past? Does the book end with despair or hope?

Joel: What in Israel's experience would cause her to see in a plague of locusts God's dissatisfaction with his people? What response does the book indicate was expected of the people? How is the whole experience used as a vehicle for hope? What could the book have meant by "day of the LORD"?

Amos: What was Amos's purpose in proclaiming judgment on all the surrounding nations before confronting Israel with her sin? How does the author indicate the inner compulsion which drove him to speak God's word? How would such a testimony help a "southerner" win acceptance by the "northerners" who were Israel? What in chapter 7 shows that the "southerner" from Judah had difficulty winning acceptance in the North, Israel? How does Amos use the different visions to reflect Israel's relationship with God?

Obadiah: How does the story in Genesis 25 help one to understand Israel's feelings toward Edom (Esau) as they are reflected in this book? What mixed meaning does the "day of the LORD" have for Israel and for her enemies?

Jonah: How does this book attempt to transform a narrow concept of God into a much larger one? Does Jonah's attempt to run away from God indicate his understanding of God? Why was Jonah reluctant to see Nineveh undergo conversion? What about the book's ending shows the greatness of God?

Micah: How is Micah's reflection in 6, 6-9 an adequate summary of the prophet's notion of God? What sins did Micah find Samaria had committed which welcomed God's wrath? Of what sins did he accuse Jerusalem and Israel (chapters 2—3)? Does the book provide any hope? If the prophecy of the destruction of the temple and Jerusalem in chapter 3 seems especially disheartening, how is this balanced by hope in chapter 4?

Nahum: How do the approaches to Nineveh differ in Jonah and Nahum? How would you explain that? What aspects of God does each present?

Habakkuk: What answer does God give to Habakkuk concerning the problem of evil?

Zephaniah: About what wrongdoing does Zephaniah accuse the foreign nations? How is the city, Jerusalem, guilty of the same? What qualities will mark the small "remnant" who will be saved?

Haggai: What motivation is given for rebuilding the temple? How does the message of chapter 1 differ from the words of God in 2 Samuel 7?

Zechariah: How does Zechariah show the importance of social concern? Does his preoccupation with angels show an exalted concept of God? How does he suggest a pattern of repentance to his people?

Malachi: How is Israel's worship unworthy in Malachi's vision? What noble insights does he have into marriage? What image of God does Malachi emphasize?

Tobit: What values and virtues in Jewish life does Tobit manifest? What does the function of Raphael in this book indicate about God's concern for his people? Is there any sense in which this book suggests how one should live religiously in a secular society? Does the book suggest separation from those who do not believe? Or is the book missionary in its purpose?

Judith: How do the crises in chapters 2—8 prepare the reader for the emergence of Judith in chapter 8? How is the reaction of the coastland people in 2, 28 different from that of the Israelites in 4, 8-13? Is there any indication in Achior's testimony concerning Israel (5, 5-20) of the outcome to be expected for Israel? What insights does Judith provide into God's working with people (chapter 8)? What qualities of Judith in chapters 8—14 show her worthy of honor? Are there any parallels of valiant women elsewhere in Israel's history?

Wisdom: How does the author answer the problem that the evil seem to prosper while the good suffer? What in the book would indicate that the author was reinforcing the faith of his people at a time when many were abandoning that faith for secular wisdom? How does he indicate that man should find God through the things which God created? What reflection is made on those who failed to find God through his works?

Sirach: What does the author mean by wisdom? In what does the good life consist? Does Sirach provide any insight into friendship (chapters 6; 8; 12; 27; 37)? What do chapters 17 and 40 have to say about the dignity of man? How does Sirach's listing of famous men (chapters 44—50) vindicate Israel's claim to a wisdom of her own? What little hints at family life are to be found in the author's counsel on raising children, honoring one's spouse, respecting parents, and being hospitable to others?

Baruch: Why would the reflections on history in this book have given hope to a community which had lost its home, its temple, and a whole way of life?

1 Maccabees: How does chapter 2 provide the theme for the whole book? What is Mattathias's role in the Jewish struggle for freedom of religion? What roles did Judas Maccabeus, Jonathan, and Simon play in this struggle? How does Mattathias use history to inspire his people (chapter 2)? What strategies are used throughout the book to bring about religious freedom? Does the use of the name "Heaven" for God say anything about their understanding of him? What function does the temple play in their struggle for freedom? And how is the Law seen as an important tool in their attainment of victory?

2 Maccabees: How does the author indicate the importance of the Law in the life of Israel (chapters 6—7)? Is the image of God in this book any different from that in 1 Maccabees?

bees? Is the author's outlook on death any different from that of the author of 1 Macca-bees?

Matthew: Why does Matthew trace the ancestry of Jesus to Abraham while Luke traces it to Adam? Is there any similarity in the infancy of Moses (Ex 2) and that of Jesus? How would the placing of the teaching of Jesus on a mountain in chapter 5 have recalled Israel's Exodus experience? How would you contrast the moral demands of Jesus with those of the scribes and Pharisees (chapters 5—7)? Why did Matthew introduce the instruction of Jesus' twelve disciples (chapter 10) with two chapters of miraculous works? What is the reason given for speaking in parables (chapter 13)? Is that the same reason given in Mark 4? Why is it that the passion narratives in Matthew, Mark, and Luke are so similar while other parts are so dissimilar? What could you conclude about the Gospels when seeing the difference in details in the Resurrection stories of Matthew, Mark, and Luke?

Mark: Is there anything about the size of this gospel which indicates that it might be earliest? What is John's relationship to Jesus in the first chapter of Mark? After most of the miracles what response is given to the meaning of Jesus? How does that prepare the reader for the question asked by Jesus in chapter 8? How is the response of Peter one with which Jesus seems pleased, and yet with which he is not pleased at all? Is there any reason why Mark's passion narrative should show Jesus as one who went to his passion and death all alone? Why is the response of the Roman centurion to the death of Jesus so unique (chapter 15)? Why is it that throughout Mark Jesus had told those who had been healed or who had witnessed the healings "not to tell anyone"?

Luke: Why does Luke dwell on the comparison of John and Jesus in the infancy stories? Does that help to explain why John seems to be in prison when Jesus is baptized (chapter 3)? Why is it that Luke includes more stories about Jesus praying than any other gospel? Could one conclude anything about the audience of this gospel when he knows that Jesus taught the "Our Father" in Luke to those asking how to pray (chapter 11) while in Matthew to those needing to know how to pray better (chapter 6)? Why does this gospel include so many stories about those rejected by society: sinners, tax collectors, poor, prodigals, and thieves? Why does the author emphasize Jerusalem by beginning and ending his gospel there and by including a journey to Jerusalem narrative in chapters 9—18? How does this gospel relate to Luke's other work, the Acts of the Apostles?

John: Why does John trace Jesus' origins to the beginning of time? How does he use the light-darkness theme throughout the gospel? How does John make clear the relationship of John the Baptist to Jesus? Does John provide any new insight into the call of the disciples which the other gospels do not share? How do different people react to the seven different signs in chapters 1—12? How is John 12, 37-50 a good summary of the first part of the gospel? After gathering together his disciples in chapters 1—12, what gifts does Jesus share with them in chapters 13—15? What is John's purpose in showing that Jesus was in complete control of his passion and death (chapter 10)? What in the passion narrative shows he was in complete control? What Resurrection stories are only found in John's gospel? Why?

Acts of the Apostles: Why could one say that verse 8 in chapter 1 is a summary of the mission geography of the whole book? What events led to the mission of the Church beyond Jerusalem? beyond Judea and Samaria? What key preaching about Jesus is found in the sermons of Peter in chapters 2—5 and 10? Why are three different accounts of Paul's conversion included in this book (chapters 9; 22; 26)? How does each of the missionary journeys of Paul extend the mission of the Kingdom closer to the "ends of the earth" (Rome)? What important issues confronting the early Church are faced in this book?

Romans: How does Paul indicate that both Jew and Gentile have received the message of salvation? What in Paul's eyes is necessary for salvation? How does he argue in chapter 4 from the experience of Abraham? How does Paul show (chapter 6) that man today can enter into the saving work of Jesus? What function does the Law serve in a Christian world (chapters 7—8)? How does Paul explain the position of Israel before Christ, after Christ, and at the end of the world? What is expected of the relationship between Christians in chapters 12—15?

1 Corinthians: What are the divisions within the Corinthian community about which Paul speaks (chapters 1; 5—6; 11; 15)? How has the word wisdom become a means of division between Jews and Gentiles (chapter 2)? How does each of the metaphors used for the community in chapter 3 help us to understand the Church? If the Eucharist had come to divide the Corinthian community, what does Paul suggest as a remedy (chapter 11)? Does Paul's discourse on love help us to deal better with diversity in the community (chapter 13)? Why does Paul list all the appearances of the risen Christ before speaking of bodily resurrection?

2 Corinthians: What experience of Paul would explain his defending his apostolate in this book? How does he defend it? Why does Paul praise the generosity of the Macedonian community when addressing the Corinthians (chapter 8)? Why does Paul describe the many difficulties attached to his apostolate (chapters 11–12)?

Galatians: What issue of the early Christian community does Paul treat in chapter 2? How does the description of his call as apostle prepare one for his position on that issue (chapter 1)? What purpose did the Law serve in Paul's eyes (chapters 3–4)? How does Paul use the example of Abraham to present his point? What is expected of the Christian because of his newly won freedom?

Ephesians: How does Paul's summary of the Christian faith in chapter 1 relate the Christian to God's plan for history? What is the role of Jesus in this plan? What is expected of the Christian (chapters 4–5) because of the gospel preached to him by Paul (chapters 3–4)? Are there any concrete ways in which the Christian can live out that calling (chapter 6)?

Philippians: Is there any indication that Paul had deep affection for the Philippian community? What motivation does he suggest one might have for preaching Christ? How does Paul use the example of Christ to invite this community to live selfless lives (chapter 2)? Does Paul suggest that there were members of the community who were living unchristian lives? Why has this been called the "epistle of joy"?

Colossians: How does Paul show the centrality of Christ in God's plan for the world? What does Paul mean by "the mystery hidden from ages"? Are there any practices which are incompatible with the Christian's life in Christ according to Paul? Why can this epistle be called a blueprint for Christian growth?

1 Thessalonians: Is there any indication that there was expected by this early Christian community an "immediate" second coming of Christ? How does Paul relate the community of the living to that of the dead through this event? Did Paul anticipate that Jesus would return soon?

2 Thessalonians: Has there occurred any change in attitude toward the Second Coming in this second letter to the Thessalonians? What does Paul add to the theology of the Second Coming?

1 Timothy: What recommendations are made to Timothy in ministering to the Church at Ephesus? What unusual practices had crept into the community (chapter 4)? How would you contrast the true teacher with the false teacher from the words of this epistle?

2 Timothy: What counsel does Timothy receive for his ministry in this epistle? What problems seem to exist in this community? What analogies are used in chapter 2 to inspire fidelity to Christ?

Titus: What strange doctrine is Titus warned about in this letter? What is Titus told to teach the different segments of the community? Is salvation a gift of God or is it earned (chapter 3)?

Philemon: What request is Paul really making of Philemon? In what way does the message of this letter have meaning for today?

Hebrews: What problem in the Christianity of his day was the author facing? Does the comparison of Christ with personalities of the Old Testament suggest an audience with which the writer was dealing? While all of these great figures of the Old Testament lived by faith, what was missing from their lives (chapter 11)? How is the journey of the Christian rewarded (chapter 12)? How would you summarize the meaning of Jesus for this author?

James: How does this book answer the question, How does one live the Christian life? Does the author's use of Abraham in chapter 2 compare with Paul's use of Abraham in Romans 4? Which is more important, faith or works?

1 Peter: What is expected of those who have found new life through baptism into the resurrection of Jesus? How does Christ serve as the model for Christian living? Is there any indication that the community was suffering persecution? What advice is given to them?

2 Peter: What blueprint does this letter provide for Christian growth? What arguments are used against lapsing from the faith? Why does the author emphasize vigilance and preparation for the last day? Is there anything in his own life which would have inspired such thinking?

1 John: What is the fellowship suggested by this letter, and how does one find it? How does one walk in the light? What does the author mean by “the world”? How can one discern who is a true prophet or teacher?

2 John: How does John suggest that one deal with those who bring a different teaching?

3 John: How does John suggest one deal with strangers? Does he indicate that his own have been accepted well by other communities? What would 1 and 2 John suggest about the unity of the early Christian communities?

Jude: How is this letter similar to 2 Peter? Is there any indication that there was dissension in the early community? What was to be done about it?

Revelation: In the vision of John, what is each church accused of and what is each praised for (chapter 2)? How does one determine who is worthy to open the scroll (chapter 5)? Who are those worthy to stand around the throne (chapter 7)? How is the war in chapter 12 a reflection of the war in the heavenly sphere and in the earthly sphere? Who are the good powers and who are the powers of evil? How is the conflict resolved? How is chapter 21 a chapter of hope for those who were suffering persecution? Where, according to the author, is God during this conflict? What does that say about his control of history?

